["Devotees solely engaged in the devotional service of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Nārāyaṇa, never fear any condition of life. For them the heavenly planets, liberation and the hellish planets are all the same, for such devotees are interested only in the service of the Lord."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 6.17.28]

Of equal value, suffering, pleasure and pain, of equal value, when we're engaged in the service of Kṛṣṇa. I shall get remuneration, of course in the terms of more affinity, attraction, love. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Tṛṇād api sunīcena. [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 3] We shall not give anyone chance to create any opposition. Our general behaviour should be that no opposition may come, that should be our program, we must not invite any opposition. But still if it comes, taror api sahiṣṇunā, we must forbear it, tolerate it like a tree, passive. On the face of any sort of attack tree works in a passive way, no offensive for offensive, taror api sahiṣṇunā. Amāninā, he won't want anything in name or fame, or even in the form of credit. That is pratiṣṭhā means credit, won't want anything as credit, amāninā. Mānadena, but he will pay regularly the honour that is demanded from outside. Kīrtanīyaḥ sadā hariḥ. So if you can move in this way then your Hari kīrtana will be, your chanting of the Name of Hari, your preaching will be nirguṇa, beyond any qualifications, no want for any of it. If you can adopt this process in your preaching then it will be purely nirguṇa. That is without wanting anything in exchange for your activity, niṣkāma. That is automatic, ahaitukī, no reason, it will be only ahaitukī, causeless, niṣkāma. You do not want any remuneration for it, that will be nirguṇa. If you can adopt such process in your activity then it will be nirguṇa, guṇātīta. Nothing fetching for this purpose, no fame, no name, no money, nothing. But only the preaching to spread Kṛṣṇa, wants to preach Kṛṣṇa, to give out to the world Kṛṣṇa conception. That will be nirguṇa. Amāninā mānadena, kīrtanīyaḥ sadā hariḥ. And it is not a temporary program, but it's a whole life program, life after life, eternal program, continuous. Not for a particular period, of course adjusted according to his own capacity and position, but the program is an eternal one.

satataṁ kīrtayanto māṁ, yatantaś ca dṛḍha-vratāḥ
namasyantaś ca māṁ bhaktyā, nitya-yuktā upāsate

["Disregarding the purity or impurity of time, place, and circumstances, those great souls are constantly absorbed in singing or narrating the glories of My Holy Name, form, qualities, pastimes, and paraphernalia. They are attentive to the irrevocable and conclusive definition of My nature, personality, and expansions, and they strictly follow the rules and regulations for taking the Holy Name and observing holy days such as Ekādaśī. Following all the practices of devotion beginning with offering obeisances unto Me, the devotees, earnestly longing for their eternal relationship with Me in the future, worship Me by the path of engaging in My transcendental devotional service."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.14]

It's continuous program, life after life.

[sa vai puṁsāṁ paro dharmo, yato bhaktir adhokṣaje]
ahaituky apratihatā, yayātmā suprasīdati

["The supreme occupation (dharma) for all humanity is that by which men can attain to loving devotional service unto the transcendental Lord. Such devotional service must be unmotivated and uninterrupted to completely satisfy the self."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.6]

And there you'll find you're inner satisfaction of you're heart. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Die to live means not cessation, not a static thing, not a cessation, it is also dynamic. Die to live. Live means a continuous...

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: There is Bhāgavata Mahārāja he's there? And there is one Kundalatā, lady?

Devotees: Yes.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: She sent a letter to you.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Kundalatā? Direct to me or to Anurādhā?

Anurādhā: I have it here.

Devotee: Yes, directly to you Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All right. And Parvat Mahārāja is there.

Devotees: Bhāgavata Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhāgavata Mahārāja. Hare Kṛṣṇa.
Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: ...Devī, she says that, vipadaḥ santu tāḥ śaśvat...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

[vipadaḥ santu tāḥ śaśvat,] tatra tatra jagad-guro
bhavato darśanam yat syād, apunar bhava-darśanam

[Queen Kuntī Devī prayed to Kṛṣṇa: "I wish that all those calamities (poisoning, arson, cannibalism, the vicious assembly, exile in the forest, the battle), would occur again and again so that we could have Your darśana again and again, for seeing You means that we will no longer see repeated births and deaths."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.8.25]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: She seems to have reached the stage where she's inviting that kind of opposition.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Inviting? Inviting for which?

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: A kind of opposition.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: To remember Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. The positive thing is there.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Apunar bhava-darśanam, punar bhava, which takes birth again and again, for death and birth, apunar bhava, continuous, eternal. To have eternal connection with Kṛṣṇa, if she's ready to invite anything apathetic. At the risk of anything, that is she's inviting death to live, die to live, in a similar line, the die to live. To invite danger means in the line of death, pratikūla, but for which? Her eternal, continued consciousness of Kṛṣṇa. Apunar bhava-darśanam. Punar bhava means coming and going, coming and going, punar bhava. And apunar bhava means continuous, bhavato, apunar bhava-darśanam, the continuous vision. For that, any risk I'm ready to take, rather I invite. I invite the danger which may bestow to me the continuous companionship. Vipadaḥ santu tāḥ śaśvat, tatra tatra jagad-guro. In every stage of life may have peculiar difficulties. Test and promotion. Those that want progress in life they're not afraid of any examination or test. They'll invite that undesirable examination which will produce the desired result. To face the risk and to come with flying colours with greater, higher position. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: You also said once, in taking that risk, you quoted that verse, tyaktvā sva-dharmaṁ caraṇāmbujam harer, [bhajann apakvo 'tha patet tato yadi yatra kva vābhadram abhūd amuṣya kiṁ, ko vārtha āpto 'bhajatāṁ sva-dharmataḥ]

["One who has forsaken his material occupations to engage in the devotional service of the Lord may sometimes fall down while in an immature stage, yet there is no danger of his being unsuccessful. On the other hand, a non devotee, though fully engaged in occupational duties, does not gain anything."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.5.17]

It is better to take that risk. Even you may go down in the process, because what is gained, otherwise if you remain in your position without taking that risk.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? What? I can't follow.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: You say, no risk, no gain.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. No risk. I also told that in the beginning, all risk, no gain. And in the end, all gain, no risk.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Because in the beginning we consider that the misconceived gain, that is the only substantial thing. So all risk. And that is uncertain, adhokṣaja. What I shall gain or not I don't know, so all risk, no gain. But when we reach the goal we see that no risk. The risk was all misconception, misconceived wealth, that was the risk. And the gain is a real thing, so all gain, no risk, in the end. And the beginning, all risk, no gain. That is uncertain, adhokṣaja. I can't feel it. But at present within misconception I think I'm master of all I survey, so I'm to lose, to take risk. But because it's misconception, ultimately we find I'm out of misconception, so it's all gain, no risk. But in the beginning, all risk, no gain, uncertain gain.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol.

sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja
ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

When we're to give up our immediate duty we're to take some risk even. But when that is compensated amply by the graceful embrace of the Absolute then all gain, never to repent.

"Mā śucaḥ. You'll have no chance of mourning when you'll reach Me. But when you start, leaving you're immediate duty you're taking some risk. Sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja. Giving up all your engagement, come to Me. Mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ. I shall relieve you from all the troubles. You won't have to repent in any way. So all gain."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: But sometimes, before you mentioned how one may be encouraged in the constitutional line.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

śreyān sva-dharmo viguṇaḥ, para-dharmāt svanuṣṭhitāt
sva dharme nidhanaṁ śreyaḥ, para-dharmo bhayāvahaḥ

["It is better to carry out one's own duties a little imperfectly rather than faultlessly perform another's duties. Know that even death is auspicious in the discharge of one's duties appropriate to his natural position in the ordained socio-religious system, because to pursue another's path is perilous."]
[Bhagavad-gītā, 3.35]

"Don't lose your position. Try to stand firm." Then that advice is that we may not go back. For that purpose, to make us firm in our present position, that sort of advice is given strong. "Rather die, don't back out, come back. Sva dharme nidhanaṁ śreyaḥ, para-dharmo bhayāvahaḥ. Don't be over-greedy to march forward, but consolidate your position where you are first. And then, when there'll be time I shall advise you to march on. In this light it should be taken. Sva dharme nidhanaṁ śreyaḥ. To maintain your position you will rather die, take all risk, but don't move an inch from your present position."

"Then, sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ. When you'll receive My call from within your heart, come forward, give up all your aspirations and march towards Me, and I'm there to protect you. When such inspiration you'll feel within you, that My call will enter your ear, sarva-dharmān parityajya, then you'll march. As long as you're not sure about My call, you take your stand in your present position."

Generally that is meant that you may not have to go back. You'll be immature, you'll come forward, but you'll lose your present position and go down. To save from that position this has been told. Always relative and absolute.

Progress is necessary, not going back is necessary. This requires to be firm in your own position, don't be very fickle. But when you'll hear the Absolute call then you won't care for your present position, take risk and march on. Otherwise progress is meaningless. To maintain ones own position and to go forward, both things equally necessary, and never go back.

By the call of Swāmī Mahārāja many came, but many backed out. Some going to the sahajiyā, this, that, in this way, they cannot maintain their position. And some, they're hankering more. What position he has got they're trying to dive deep. Not that coming in connection they have reached the highest goal. They've got some position, and progress is not finished there, it is always dynamic. From that position also they'll try to go deeper, deeper, this way. And life is dynamic. And the path to the goal is infinite.

There is some example, that always movement, if you stand you'll fall. Just like cycle, when moving it is all right, but if you stop you'll fall. So always be in dynamic position, in progress. Kṛṣṇa kīrtana, that Brahman is static, more or less. Virajā, Brahmaloka, that is static. But Goloka, Vaikuṇṭha, They're dynamic, moving. And moving we're safe, making progress. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Once, three or four personal attendants of our Guru Mahārāja, they approached him to speak something, but they're hesitating, they don't speak.

Then our Guru Mahārāja, Prabhupāda, could understand them from their movement. "O, you want to say something, but you don't say. What do you want to say to me, you ask?"

Then they hesitatingly asked. "Yes, we came to ask you, but we hesitate."

"No, no, you say what you want to say."

"We came so long time, twelve years or fifteen years we have come, but we do not find any progress within our heart. That was our question, that we don't feel any progress in our heart."

It is peculiar that Guru Mahārāja told, "What do you say now, is it right, truth?"

"Yes, it is true, that we don't feel any progress."

"Then it is all right, you go."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: A peculiar answer. "All right. If you could feel that you have got something, that would have been dangerous. In connection with the infinite it is such. That you're maintaining you're position without getting anything tangible, if you find you've got something tangible, then you're deceived by māyā."

A peculiar thing, to try to understand what is progress, what is satisfaction, that I have got something, that is dangerous, that I have got something. Coming in this line it is dangerous to feel, or to say that I have got something. So how to understand this sort of statement? Because what I think what I'm in possession of, next moment I may not see it's there.

Adhokṣaja wealth, that other's property extended to me for His service. It may be withdrawn, anything. I can never think that it's under my possession. But at the same time it's encouraging to find that it's in the possession of the devotee, of my Guru, etc. A peculiar thing, it is there.

ahaṁ bhakta-parārdhīno, [hy asvatantra iva dvija
sādhubhir grasta-hṛdayo, bhaktair bhakta-jana-priyaḥ]

[The Lord tells Durvāsā: "I am the slave of My devotees; I have no freedom apart from their will. Because they are completely pure and devoted to Me, My heart is controlled by them, and I reside always in their hearts. I am dependent not only on My devotees, but even on the servants of My devotees. Even the servants of My devotees are dear to Me."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 9.4.63]

The Lord is tied down by the affection of the Vaiṣṇava, of my Guru. But I'm not a devotee, I'm not up to mark, so I have nothing. Everything is in possession of my Guru and the Vaiṣṇava. I can see that clearly. But not in my possession because I'm not up to standard. But I see they're up to standard and there is obligation of Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa is in obligation with the devotees, I can see, but not in obligation with me because I've not come up to that standard. That is a peculiar position of the devotee.

But sometimes when pralāpita, pralāp, what is known as pralāp means delirium, in that stage sometimes they assert. "Yes, I shall see. You're doing this mischief to the Vaiṣṇava, to the Guru, I shall fight with you. I shall show you what strength I've got, to serve them." In indirect way this sort of possession one may feel, and that is like delirium. "That I have got extended strength of the adhokṣaja transcendental in me." Sometimes for the service of the Vaiṣṇava they may feel it in indirect way, and they sometimes boast. "I shall fight with you. I shall show you what is the nobility and greatness of my Masters." In this way he may assert sometimes. But that is temporary inspiration, something like pralāpita vakra, vetivek. Taking risk, having nothing in hand, but going to fight with, making the sādhu as capital. Something like that.

āmi ta' vaiṣṇava, e-buddhi ha-ile, amānī nā haba āmi
pratiṣṭhāśā āsi', hṛdaya dūṣibe, ha-iba niraya-gāmī
[nije śreṣṭha jāni', ucchiṣṭādi-dāne, habe abhimāna bhāra

[" 'If I think I am a Vaiṣṇava, I shall look forward to receiving respect from others. And if the desire for fame and reputation pollutes my heart, certainly I shall go to hell. By giving others the remnants of my food, I shall consider myself superior and shall be burdened with the weight of false pride. Therefore, always remaining your surrendered disciple, I shall not accept worship from anyone else.']

[From Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's Kalyāṇa-kalpataru] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 4.173, purport]

As soon as I think that I'm a Vaiṣṇava, my road to hell is cleared. Amānī nā haba āmi. Then I shall think I'm someone, I have some credit. No. Whenever you'll come to think that you're a devotee you're finished. What's this peculiar thing? Because a devotee should always be conscious that his Master is autocrat.

mat-sthāni sarva-bhūtāni, na cāhaṁ teṣv avasthitaḥ.]

["In an unmanifest manner, I pervade this entire universe, and everything conceivable is situated within Me - and yet, I am not situated within that total entity."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.4]

"I'm everywhere, I'm nowhere." The wholesale, sweet-willed Master he has come to serve. "He goes according to His sweet will, and I've made Him my Master. So I always must be conscious that I've got the service of Autocrat's sweet will." He's everywhere, He's nowhere. And at the same time, mayi te teṣu cāpy aham.

[samo 'haṁ sarva-bhūteṣu, na me dveṣyo 'sti na priyaḥ
ye bhajanti tu māṁ bhaktyā, mayi te teṣu cāpy aham]

["I am equally disposed to all souls, therefore no one is My enemy or My friend. Yet, for those who render devotional service unto Me with love, as they are bound by affection for Me, I am similarly bound by the tie of affection for them."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.29]

"They're always in Me, and I'm always in them."

The special case with the devotees, but I'm not so. I'm trying to be their servant. I'm trying to be the servant of the Vaiṣṇava. Or the servant of the servant, of the servant of the servant, in this way peculiar position. As I told that of the telescopic system, that a glass is in between the sight and the seer, eye, but it enhances vision. Many glasses, very fine and distant things they can take to me, by the help of many glasses. So many guardians, guardian after guardian, Guru paramparā, the most distant thing may come nearby, Guru paramparā. Servant of the servant, of the servant of the servant, in this way. Their all good will. So many guardians, so many thinkers of me, about my fortune, so I'm rich, as much I've got my number of my guardians. They're all well-wishers. I possess so many well-wishers, so many guardians, so I'm a rich man. In this way. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

In the beginning the devotee may think, 'Why these people will come between and trouble? So many Vaiṣṇava, Vaiṣṇava. God and myself I must have direct connection. And it's not necessary, not desirable, that any man will come between.' This is kaniṣṭha adhikāra. 'It is impractical.' But when they'll come to the practical stage they'll find that only through the Vaiṣṇava that God is tangible to the devotee. That substantial position, not abstract position. That become the slave, servant of a Vaiṣṇava, servant of a Guru, this is not theoretical proposal, this is most practical. That Vaiṣṇava will come between me and God, this is our practical gain, not theoretical. So when any man has got his devotion towards God he's in the lowest class. But when has real attraction towards Vaiṣṇava he's higher class, he's promoted. And it is reality.

[ye me bhakta-janāḥ partha, ne me bhaktaś ca te janāḥ]
mad bhaktānāṁ ca ye bhaktās, te me bhaktatamā mataḥ

[Kṛṣṇa says, "Those who worship Me directly are not real devotees; real devotees are those who are devoted to My devotees."] [Ādi Purāṇa]

"He's really My devotee who has got attraction, or recognition, and serving tendency for My own servant. There it comes into reality, otherwise it is more or less fictitious. He wants Me and none."

The hierarchy, the king is there and so many different staff surrounding him. "I want the king and myself." Crossing, or neglecting all his hierarchy, that is theoretical, imaginary. But when we really come in connection with the king I shall have to come practically in so many surroundings of different grades of the king. And in a particular department I may connect with him. That is practical.

So whenever, we're told, that is a great test whether one has got pure devotion or not.

If he says, "I have got devotion for Rāmacandra, or for Kṛṣṇa, or for Mahāprabhu," but not in the line of any devotees, no recognition for the higher devotees, other servants, then it's a fictitious devotion. Just as we think in the case of Mira and others. She says, "We only have recognition of the Supreme Master, and not His paraphernalia." That is a fictitious, lower position of devotion. But devotion when it takes the real position they must have some sort of master, who is the link of the master, which will connect with the Supreme.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Is that also true in relation to the Spiritual Master?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? Relation?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: To the Spiritual Master, the Guru. Sometimes the disciples want to say, 'I don't have any regard for his servitors. But I my direct affinity for him."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: For whom?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: The Guru.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And not for any?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: His servitors.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Godbrothers?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. If he's got real connection with Guru, then his connection with the Godbrothers will be in a proportionate position. As their Godbrother is really as much faithful to the Guru. Guru means not the body. What is Guru? What is the inner self of Guru? And the disciples as much has got realisation and affinity for their Guru, our genuine disciple they have friendship according to that. But Guru may be seen in various ways, as Kṛṣṇa Himself is seen in various ways.

[gopānāṁ svajano 'satāṁ kṣitibhujāṁ śāstā svapitro śiśuḥ mṛtyur bhojapater virāḍ aviduṣāṁ tattvaṁ paraṁ yoginām
vṛṣṇīnāṁ paradevateti vidito raṅgaṁ gataḥ sāgrajaḥ]

["O King, Śrī Kṛṣṇa then appeared as a thunderbolt to the wrestlers, as the supreme male to the men, as Cupid incarnate to the ladies, as a friend to the cowherds men; as an emperor to the wicked kings, as a child to His father and mother, as death to Kaṁsa, as the universal form of the world to the ignorant; as the Supreme Truth to the yogīs, as the Supreme Worshipful Lord to the Vṛṣṇis - and along with Baladeva He entered the arena."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.43.17]

Kṛṣṇa entering the arena of Kaṁsa and so many sections are having views in different ways about Him, that same Kṛṣṇa. Some seeing some thing, some seeing another thing, some seeing a third thing, in this way.

So Guru is also infinite in that way. Where is Guru proper? Where is Gurudeva? What are his real dealings? And what is his external temporary behaviour to capture someone, or to do this or that? What is his real position? Kṛṣṇaika saran [?] A Vaiṣṇava has many qualifications. But Kṛṣṇaika saran [?] is the most substantial, inner qualification, symptom, of Vaiṣṇava. Vaiṣṇava has got many symptoms but there's gradation, comparative study. So what is Guru proper, and how much one is attracted by that real aspect of Guru, one should have connection accordingly. Because the same interest, common interest, we should be drawn by the common interest. And God Himself, what about Guru, when God's incarnation comes here, according to their position the various persons see Him in various ways. Our Guru is Kṛṣṇa. Guru is infinite. Finite in infinite, or infinite in finite. Guru. "I have understood the Guru fully." Ha, ha. It is not possible. So, ācāryaṁ māṁ vijānīyān, [nāvamanyeta karhicit / na martya-buddhyāsūyeta, sarva-deva-mayo guruḥ

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.17.27] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 1.46]

"I'm there, he's My representative."

We cannot finally know any ordinary person, then how we can see that we have known Guru to the finish? Audacity, ignorance. According to our progress, Guru will be seen with new colour, new position.

_____ [?] When Nārada is coming to Dvārakā, Kṛṣṇa, Uddhava and Baladeva They're sitting together to discuss about Śiśupāla, and Devarṣi Nārada coming. And They found first a mass of light. Coming nearer They found, 'O, there is a figure within the light.' Then again coming nearer They found, 'O, that is the figure of a gent.' Then more nearer, 'O, Devarṣi Nārada coming.'

So this has been quoted in Vedānta commentary of Baladeva. "The first we see the consciousness as a whole like some light. And then when we closely come in contact we find where there is light, that is person. Vāsudava. Then we find potency by its side we find Nārāyaṇa. And in this way gradually according to our capacity, Rāmacandra, Dvārakeśa, Vrajeśa, in this way, by deeper vision we come nearer our goal."

In this way progress. So at once we came to Gurudeva and we found him whole? That is absurd thing. According to my progress I shall see Guru, Vaiṣṇava, Kṛṣṇa, everything will be new.

[yasyāṁ jāgrati bhūtāni, sā niśā paśyato muneḥ]

That is dark in the usha [?] At night we can't see, but early, before sunrise we see something vague. And light comes clear we see more clearly. In this way in progressive light we see things in deeper way. In the first we come in connection with the hazy aspect of things. Always these things. So it goes up to Yaśodā, to Rādhārāṇī, to Śrīdam, Subal, in different aspects, Baladeva, the gradation.

[na ca saṅkarṣaṇo na śrīr naivātmā ca yathā bhavān]

["Neither Brahmā nor Śīva are as dear to Me as you; My elder brother Saṅkarṣaṇa is not as dear to Me as you, nor even Lakṣmī Devī. Even My own Self is not as dear to Me as you."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.14.15]

Beginning from Brahmā, Śiva, Baladeva, Lakṣmī, even to Him it is going.
"And more favourite than My Own Self is My devotee. Uddhava, you."
Then Uddhava says, "How I found what is devotion proper, in prema bhakti in Vṛndāvana."
He's astonished to find it, always progressing, going, in classification, and in group, as well as in personal characteristic.

We must not be afraid to hear that progress is eternal. We must not be fond of any static thing, the progress finished there. That draws us to the example of this material world, this fossil. Nava-navayana, every moment it is becoming, taking new shape, new appearance, new meaning, all these things, ever new, nava-navayana. Prati-padaṁ pūrṇāmṛtāsvādanaṁ [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 1] At every step we think that it's perfect. Taking the Name we feel some joy, or pleasure, ecstasy, whatever it be. At every step we find it is full, not stale. Ānandāmbudhi-vardhanaṁ [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 1] The ocean of joy, and that is also ever increasing. And prati-padaṁ pūrṇāmṛtāsvādanaṁ, at every step that is ever increasing ocean coming in new colour. So some sort of idea of the infinite. How should we think about infinite? Hare Kṛṣṇa. To be in that world we must not be afraid of our mean and lower position.

dāsyāya te mama raso 'stu raso 'stu satyam

We shall always tend to go down in the menial work. But the Yogamāyā will forcibly arrange, if I'm fit, to post me in a proper position. But our tendency will always be that, 'I'm not fit for higher service, I must go to the lowest.' That is laudable and that is fruitful, realistic, real.

Rādhārāṇī Herself says, "I want to serve Him in the lowest way, but because He desires Me to do another service I can't help." That is the tendency, humility. Humility is the characteristic. And that is not a show. Rādhārāṇī says, "My innermost desire that My Lord should be served in the perfect way. But others cannot do so, but they venture and come forward to do but cannot do the service. They're My trouble, so I can't tolerate them. That's not for My selfish position. The other party, I'm not envious of them, I'm not jealous for My selfish purpose. But because they cannot do the service well, that is My, toleration disturbed thereby."

Yogamāyā's representation in this way. Diya kana krsna sukha nahi jani [?]

"They come forward to do service but they can't do so. There's the rub. That I'm not jealous of them, that I shall take the service and I shall deceive them, not the least purpose within that. Service is all. And the Master, the recipient of the service, He should get the best."

That should be the temperament everywhere. Kṛṣṇa sukha tat paryja [?] From the beginning to the end, Kṛṣṇa sukha tat pūjā [?] Sacrifice for the satisfaction of the centre to the utmost degree. That is the principle, the whole structure is searching for that, and no end, eternal and infinite. The question of space, time, and anything, it is eternal. And ahaitukī apratihatā, causeless, and everything for His satisfaction, for Him.

Your position in the room is dependent, relative, and never absolute. You're to think like that. And no job, no post is permanent. You'll find that is possible in māyā. A permanent post in the service, they won't think, can't think like that, though it is more permanent than enough, more than permanent. But they feel so uncertain.

"I can't go. If You want to take Me anywhere You please carry Me there."

And He disappeared. Externally we see that. But there is another meaning from the devotee side.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol.

Anything perplexing, Akṣayānanda Mahārāja? Eh? Perplexing? Ha, ha.

Absolute and relative. But there's a peculiar thing in a society of the devotees, when the Absolute is defeated by His potency, apparently they're enjoying. In the defeat of the Master to the servitors, the servitor class they find joy there. There is bhakti, devotion is there. We find their devotion when the Master is defeated by the servant. There is such position also. They're over-joyful. "Yes, here it is, the joy, the success of the devotion, supremacy of the devotion.

sādhubhir grasta-hṛdayo, bhaktair bhakta-jana-priyaḥ]

[The Lord tells Durvāsā: "I am the slave of My devotees; I have no freedom apart from their will. Because they are completely pure and devoted to Me, My heart is controlled by them, and I reside always in their hearts. I am dependent not only on My devotees, but even on the servants of My devotees. Even the servants of My devotees are dear to Me."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 9.4.63]

In the example where we see that the Lord is defeated by His servitor, we feel more joy. That He has enjoyed the victory of the devotion. He can't tolerate that any - the control of the devotion, especially in the rāga section, controlling the devotion of devotees, in that aspect they do not find much peace, much joy.

Once, our Godbrother Parvat Mahārāja, asked our Guru Mahārāja Prabhupāda, "That after rasa-līlā, seeing the common dealing of Kṛṣṇa there the Rādhārāṇī with the gopīs, Rādhārāṇī left the position. She could not tolerate that She should be dealt in a common way with other gopīs. She left the place. And when suddenly Kṛṣṇa found that Rādhārāṇī has left the playground, rasa ground, then He left all the gopīs and went to search for Her. And after going some distance He met Her and tried to take Her to some other place.

But Rādhārāṇī when She could not walk any more, She told, "I can't walk. If You like to go far You carry Me."

Then when She told that Kṛṣṇa suddenly disappeared.

And this was asked by Parvat Mahārāja to our Guru Mahārāja, "What is this? We think that Kṛṣṇa is so favourite of Rādhārāṇī. Rādhārāṇī's also so. And when Rādhārāṇī She failed to walk any longer, and She told that, "If You like to go further You're to carry Me." And He disappeared."

Then Prabhupāda he could not tolerate this thought to mention. "What is the question of devotion here?" He was little disturbed. "You're asking this question, what point of devotion is here that you ask?" And he did not speak anything more.

That sannyāsī Parvat Mahārāja he mentioned it to me. "Once I asked Gurudeva in this way, but he felt disturbed. 'What devotion is here, that you come to ask me? No expression of any devotional sentiment is here. She was dishonoured. This is no victory of devotion.'" In this way.

Then I tried to see what Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura had written here in this case, his remark. And I found that he told that, "Kṛṣṇa wanted to enjoy the position. If in such case She's deserted, how She behaves? For that purpose Kṛṣṇa told, not through His despising undermining. But only to enjoy, if in the lonely forest _____ [?] and He also disappears under such circumstance, then how She behaves? Only to enjoy that Kṛṣṇa did so. And not out of neglect for Her. In that way that is _____ [?] But no dishonour of Rādhārāṇī by Kṛṣṇa is possible. Not for dishonour, despite, but for particular object of Him, to enjoy a particular position He did so."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. The question of absolute and relative, that will go always everywhere, and we're to _____ [?] Not only in this life, even life after death. That thing - survival of the fittest, and natural selection. Two things in the scientific world, natural selection, and survival of the fittest. This is the shadow of what is going on in Vaikuṇṭha, in the transcendental world. Fair field. What we find here that has got some original aspect on the other, superior part, and this is a shadow.

tam eva bhāntam anubhāti sarvaṁ, tasya bhāsā sarvaṁ idaṁ vibhāti

["In the transcendental abode of the Lord there is no need of sun, moon, or stars for illumination, nor is there any need of electricity, what to speak of ignited lamps. On the other hand, it is because those planets are self-illuminating that all effulgence has become possible. Whatever there is that is dazzling is due to the reflection of the divine abode of the Lord. The Supreme Godhead is so brilliantly self-luminous that neither the sun, nor the moon, nor stars, nor lightning have any power of illumination in His transcendental abode, and what to speak of fire. It is a fact that all of them get their power of illumination from His effulgence alone. In fact, it is only because of His existence that the whole universe exists."]

[Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.2.10-2] & [Kathā-Upaniṣad, 2.2.25 - part 5, mantra 15]

Only difference, in-carrying and out-carrying, separate interest and absolute interest, otherwise similar.

One and many, relative but by diversity and harmony.

According to the degree of surrender, the degree of our being, give and get. Thirst, and the degree of thirst, water is tasteful. No thirst, no necessity of water, in Brahmaloka, in the abscissa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Ordinary thirst and difference in the thirst. Napoleon's thirst, Alexander's thirst, that is superior to the ordinary thirst of the māyā. Thirst cannot be appeased in the devotional world. This Rāmānuja, Madhvācārya, there are so many thirsty people. Want.

The search of Brahman in Vedānta, that is more or less some intellectual thing, to satisfy our knowing faculty, the search for Brahman. The search for Brahman, that is brahma-jijñāsā, that may take us to the indifferent position. "O, this is search." That may help withdrawal from this negative side.

But search for Kṛṣṇa, that is positive. One cannot neglect that, one cannot be idle. Brahma-jijñāsā, athāto brahma-jijñāsā. As Mahāprabhu's kṛṣṇānusandhāna, full of life, vitality.

Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.21 & 11.20.30]

According to hunger the health is to be determined, how one is healthy, that should be determined by his hunger, something. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Śyāmānanda: Guru Mahārāja. You were talking of this thirst. How can we acquire this thirst? This thirst is so valuable. How to get it?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who is he?

Devotees: Śyāmānanda Prabhu.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He wants to know how to acquire the thirst?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Search?

Devotees: Thirst.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Thirst. Yes. That is repeatedly asked. That is the only question. Sādhu-śāstra, by association with thirsty men.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. The germs which is within his body creating thirsty, that germ may come to me and create thirst there. Ha, ha, ha. So not physical germ, but there are spiritual germs.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Like that tatra laulyam of Rūpa Goswāmī. [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya, 8.70]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhaktyā sañjātayā bhaktyā.

[smarantaḥ smārayantaś ca, mitho 'ghaugha-haraṁ harim
bhaktyā sañjātayā bhaktyā, bibhraty utpulakāṁ tanum]

["The devotees of the Lord constantly discuss the glories of the Personality of Godhead among themselves. Thus they constantly remember the Lord and remind one another of His qualities and pastimes. In this way, by their devotion to the principles of bhakti-yoga, the devotees please the Personality of Godhead, who takes away from them everything inauspicious. Being purified of all impediments, the devotees awaken to pure love of Godhead, and thus, even within this world, their spiritualised bodies exhibit symptoms of transcendental ecstasy, such as standing of the bodily hairs on end."]

Bhakti can never be produced by any other thing, it is the most elementary thing. So bhakti only can produce bhakti, devotion can produce devotion. Nothing else from outside, then it will have secondary position. So nothing can produce devotion than devotion, so it is causeless.

Faith is a peculiar thing, śraddhā.

Napoleon told, "There will be no walls." And many came to that standard of mental strength that 'No walls. We shall cross over. There are no walls.'

And Hitler told when he attacked Greece, "If walls stands in your way, blow it out." His missionary power was up to that mark, I marked it. I heard that no walls, and I marked in the paper Hitler told, "If wall stands in your way, blow it out."

So the strength of the mind from the general comes to the subordinates. Association.

...then at the request Devarṣi Nārada, Indra circumambulated reverently Kayādhu, mother of Prahlāda and went on.

Then Kayādhu told, Kayādhu requested Nārada, "You're like my father, you've released me from the hands of the enemy. And I don't like to go back to the capitol. You please keep me in your āśrama."

And Nārada did so, he took her to his own āśrama, and there he kept her. And there that Kayādhu, Prahlāda's mother lived. And Prahlāda was known as jati sada [?], he could hear from the womb, and what devotional advices were given to Kayādhu, Prahlāda's mother, Prahlāda could understand, feel them all. And he accepted Nārada as his Guru from the womb of his mother.

That was also the case with Parīkṣit we heard in Mahābhārata. When Arjuna was explaining _____ [?] Abhimanyu heard it from the womb of his mother. Abhimanyu, son of Arjuna, he could enter cakra vyuha, but when Arjuna was speaking about coming out of the vyuha arena, at that time Subhadrā slept so Abhimanyu could not hear. And when the fight with Kuru Pāṇḍava then Arjuna was taken away to the samsaptaka [?] field. And none in the side of Pāṇḍava knew how to enter cakra vyuha of Droṇācārya accept Abhimanyu. But Abhimanyu only knew how to enter, but not to come out. Because when Arjuna was describing how to come out, at that time his mother slept. So from the womb also the child can hear if in some such stage by previous karma.

So Prahlāda could hear everything from the womb. And also Kayādhu prayed to Devarṣi Nārada.

"I want to unboon as long as my husband does not come back, my child may not come out."

And Nārada sanctioned that. So Prahlāda for long time living in the womb heard so many spiritual advices from Nārada, and accepted him as Guru.

So when Prahlāda was in the school of Ṣaṇḍa and Amarka, sons of Śukrācārya, and he was called by...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...Hari. Then with this warning they sent again Prahlāda to their school.

Then they asked Prahlāda, "Where do you get this devotion to Hari? When your father came to test you, you told, the consequence, the result of all the learning is to learn devotion to Hari, you told. We have not taught you in that way." And then Prahlāda told,

matir na kṛṣṇe parataḥ svato vā, mitho 'bhipadyeta gṛha-vratānām
adānta-gobir viśatāṁ tamisraṁ, punaḥ punaś carvita-carvaṇānām

[Prahlāda Mahārāja said: "Because of their uncontrolled senses, persons too addicted to materialistic life make progress toward hellish conditions and repeatedly chew that which has already been chewed. Their inclinations toward Kṛṣṇa are never aroused, either by the instructions of others, by their own efforts, or by a combination of both."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.30]

"You're safe, rest assured. You're not responsible for teaching me these devotional things. Where you get matir na kṛṣṇe parataḥ svato vā, it is not got from within, not come from within or from outside. Or by the combination of the self and outsider. It is 'All Rights Reserved', it can come only from the devotee. And you are not devotee so you rest assured that you won't be responsible for teaching me all this devotional education." There he told. "I got it from Nārada when I was living in the womb of my mother. He's my spiritual preceptor."

Devotee: Right.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Kūrma temple is not found in many places, as Nṛsiṁhadeva. Nṛsiṁhadeva temple is found here and there, everywhere.

Devotee: Yes, that's right.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But Kūrma temple is only there, Śrī Kūrma. And Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam in the conclusion we find obeisance to Kūrmadeva. It is peculiar thing. So some say that some Andhra paṇḍita had some contribution in Bhāgavatam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The mention of the obeisance to Kūrma is there, and Kūrma temple is only in Andhradesa, that place. Grāvāgra-kaṇḍūyanān. Nidrāloḥ kamaṭhākṛter. Pāntu vaḥ. Bhrāmyad amanda- mandara.

And when it was churning at that time, bhrāmyad amanda-mandara-giri-grāvāgra-kaṇḍūyanān. Pṛṣṭhe bhrāmyad amanda-mandara-giri. It was not a very furious thing, but it was very comfortable to Him. When the hill is moving on His back He felt a very pleasing sensation, comfortable sensation, and some sort of slumber attacked Him. And His breath, because He fell sleeping, so breath became little speedy, and that produced some wave in the ocean. Nidrāloḥ kamaṭhākṛter bhagavataḥ śvāsānilāḥ pāntu vaḥ.

And we crave the mercy to that breath of the sleeping tendency of Kūrmadeva to grace us, be graceful to us. It is in the conclusion of Bhāgavatam this śloka is mentioned.

pṛṣṭhe bhrāmyad amanda-mandara-giri-grāvāgra-kaṇḍūyanān
nidrāloḥ kamaṭhākṛter bhagavataḥ śvāsānilāḥ pāntu vaḥ

It is mentioned in the Vedic literature that the scriptures coming from the breath of the Lord.

Purusasya nisyasya nisyasya idam [?] Scriptures are coming from the breath of the Supreme Entity.

And here is also the question of the breath. When some trouble between the Godly and non Godly, that is in a particular state. And to bring peace in this world Kūrmadeva's incarnation is necessary. And for their good that nectar is going to be, by churning, the kirodasamudra [?], the nectar is supposed to come out, the nectar. And for that purpose that sort of churning took place. And when that was being done then the trouble in the world was the cause of His soothing sensation.

And that He came to some subconscious region and from there the breath came, and with that came the scripture to give delivery to the world. So the object of the churning was to produce the nectar. And the nectar is represented in the highest sense in Bhāgavatam, kathāmṛtam. So the śāstra means nectar, and it came from the breath of the Supreme Lord, and He was in the form of Kūrma. And from His breath came the scripture which in its ultimate position came to Bhāgavatam which is nectar, amṛtam. The source of śāstra is the breath of Kūrmadeva. And that came when there is some quarrel between the theistic, non theistic, from there that is the cause of śāstra coming in this world. And that śāstra came from His breath and it wanted to produce nectar, and that we find in Bhāgavatam now. The acme of His production from the holy breath, this Bhāgavatam to be traced there, it comes. The object of that churning was to produce nectar, and from His breath the nectar Bhāgavatam has come. It's origin to be traced there in the breath of Kūrmadeva. And when? The occasion is the quarrel between Godly, non Godly, theistic, atheistic, śāstra is necessary. And this has ultimately come to Bhāgavatam. That is the real nectar to save all the fallible mortals. But figuratively that was meant to produce nectar, and really it came from His breath, and now here is that nectar production of His, by His grace from His nostrils has come.

In that way we may harmonise. Ke?

In the campaign of Śrī Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Ṭhākura, to fight with the mutilated culture which is creating disturbance, which is causing misery and pain to the animation, he tried to attempt to remove it wholesale. And after his departure his descendants also are trying in that line according to their might.

But recently one of his disciples, A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja, he, according to the instructions previously received from his Guru Mahārāja, he went to the west, to the foreign land to preach to doctrine of Bhāgavatam and Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu.

Before his approach, another two parties were also sent to the west to preach the doctrine of Śrī Caitanyadeva, to remove the misery, to appease the hunger of the world at large.

So A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja, he was very successful in his attempt. And he converted many, many souls in the west towards Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇava creed, the creed of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam.

That is they're given to understand that God is love, not knowledge, nor energy. The ultimate reality is neither energy nor knowledge, but it is love, inclusive of these two. We can search for the God, not as a father, but as friend also, and where we can have our fullest satisfaction in that aspect also we can have relationship with Him. We can live with God as in a family - it is possible. Back to God, back to home. Home comfort we can live, or we can have in association with the Supreme Entity.

This sort of ideal appealed to many of sincere heart of those countries, and they've also joined us, and to our predecessor's satisfaction. So you'll find many of our foreign friends here.

I was saying that for the benefit of the animation, the knowledge that has been sent here may be classified into two. One, inductive, ascending production. Another which is coming, revealed truth, that is coming from above. Which we like to say as above, that must be more efficient in all respects than we are. So that is fully conscious of our misery, our trouble, and eager also to uplift us to the standard of self satisfaction, and a higher satisfaction of life.

So our puppy brain cannot produce the comfort, the fulfilment of our eternal life. It is all limited, and it is also in the relativity of the limitation always. So the attempt from the side of the Infinite, that comes to help the finite. And in that process we can come closer to the higher transcendental truth, the spiritual truth. Low cannot, may not approach high, but high can easily embrace lower existence. In that way the Highest Entity out of His mercy, He's eager to connect with this fallen portion of the world. And to seek that sort of help it is very laudable.

So amongst the revealed truth section there is also classification, you all know. And the highest amongst them has been understood as Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam and what Śrī Caitanyadeva came here to give to the public clearly. And in that line our Gurudeva Śrī Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī he began this sort of distribution of the revealed truth of the highest order, that is Divine Love to one and all, most vigorously.

And from that we're also attracted by his call. We came to his Holy Feet and whatever little we got from him we also got it with this inspiration that we must spread it to the environment. To get benefit within us we must try to distribute that benefit to others. Kīrtana, that is the highest process to improve ones own interest. Whatever you think best, try to distribute that to your paraphernalia. That is kīrtana.

Whatever you - that is offensive for offensive - the environment is eager to attack you from all sides. You also create offensive tendency in you. With the Divine Spirit you try to disperse that darkness, just as a spark. Each spark tries to disperse the darkness outside on all sides. So also that method, the Nāma saṅkīrtana, only through the simple process of Divine Sound calculation, the Name, and Whose Name it is, one and the same. In the Vaikuṇṭha substance there is no distinction. No distinction can be drawn between, dehi dehi vipada niscari vidyate pacit [?] His Name, rūpa, guṇa, līlā, everything is inseparable connected. Especially taking the Name which will be very easy for you. You can go on preaching, cultivating, creating, defying atmosphere on all sides of you. And in this way you'll be given capital. If you can do good business then the capitalist will be satisfied to give you, to supply the capital. And in that way the world and yourself will be most benefited.

This saṅkīrtana, this Nāma saṅkīrtana, Kṛṣṇa saṅkīrtana, Kṛṣṇa representing Svayaṁ-Bhagavān, the highest conception of the reality. And the reality is beautiful, and Reality For Itself. Everything for Him. It is the greatest error to be a consumer. The reaction is such that we shall have to repent. So the tendency of a consumer, that is poison. You must leave that. At the same time to disassociate with everything, all we can see, only disassociation, renunciation, that is not conclusive, not positive attainment.

Only if we can try to find out our innate inner function that can love all in the interest of that one Master, Who is the sundaram. Satyam, śivam, sundaram, or sat-cit-ānandam, ānandam brahma mūrti, evam sundara mūrti, the world, the life is worth living if we can come in connection with that sort of plane. That life will be a happy life, a homely life. Back to God, back to home. A comfortable, easy and desirable life we can have without any fighting with the adverse circumstances, or retiring to the utter conception of renunciation just like reducing to zero. We can have full positive life, and home comfort in it's highest quality we can get.

["Only through love and devotion can I be understood as I am. Thereafter, fully understanding Me, you can merge into My entourage."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.55]

We can enter into His family and we can have our life very happily there. This news has been given by Śrī Caitanyadeva and Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam which is considered to be the very gist of the Vedic culture of the revealed truth.

So there are others also, Swāmī Mahārāja, they will also say. And there are also our foreign friends who have come to join us, and joined us completely, they will also say something. One by one you listen to them. With this request I retire.

Devotee: ...for His Divine Grace. Now we have very short time in our hands. There are so many things to express about Guru Mahārāja, to glorify Guru Mahārāja. But I'm to check my temptations, I'm to check myself. Anyhow Śrīla Guru Mahārāja was born in eighteen ninety five. This is the eighty ninth auspicious advent ceremony of our Guru Mahārāja. From the very beginning of the life it was found that he was a great devotee of Lord Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu. The devotion towards Lord Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu was irresistible in him. So today no time, so let us come forward to pray to Guru Mahārāja.

"O, the guardian of devotion. O, the protector of devotion. O, the Divine Lord of our life. O, the Divine Light of our lives, please bless us, please bless me, please bless this most unqualified servant of you, to be engaged in your service. Please bless me so that I can serve you properly. Bless me with the intensified love towards your service."

Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta in this connection I remember one thing. Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Prabhupāda gave his name as Śrīla Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī. Because Śrīla Prabhupāda could realise that the super excellency of his teachings would be preserved in him, for the preserve. And many times he appreciated the nice beautiful compositions of Śrīla Guru Mahārāja. Uttering these words "Happy style."

So there's no time, so let me offer my most humble obeisance unto the lotus feet of Guru Mahārāja, and pray, and request him to bless me. "O Mahārāja, have mercy upon me."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In Goloka, two sections there eternally. One, Kṛṣṇa within His own circle He's...

distributing. And just in the other place the both combined, tasting and throwing to the public. The same quality of rasa. In one place we find it's being tasted amongst them, another place that very quality of rasa, ānandam, is being distributed to others. Both of equal quality. And this is mixed with little generosity. That is within a particular circle. And here it is meant to give to others also, while tasting themselves, also distributing to others. So our concern more with Mahāprabhu, with Navadwīpa. If we get ticket here then automatically we can go, a pass to Vṛndāvana, free pass.

tathā tathot sarpati hṛdy akasmāt, rādhā padāmbhoja sudhāmbhu-rāśiḥ

["As much as we devote ourselves to the lotus feet of Śrī Gaurāṅga, we will automatically achieve the nectarine service of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī in Vṛndāvana. An investment in Navadwīpa Dhāma will automatically take one to Vṛndāvana. How one will be carried there will be unknown to him. But those who have good fortune invest everything in the service of Gaurāṅga. If they do that, they will find that everything has automatically been offered to the divine feet of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī. She will accept them in Her confidential service and give them engagement, saying: "Oh, you have a good recommendation from Navadwīpa; I immediately appoint you to this service."] [Prabodhānanda's Caitanya-candrāmṛta, 88]

As much as you dedicate yourself to Gaurāṅga, automatically you'll find in your mind that Rādhārāṇī's service to Kṛṣṇa. Automatically it comes. Yathā yathā. As much energy as you devote here, surely and very clearly and purely, that sort of Vṛndāvana Rādhārāṇī's service rasa automatically you'll find in you.

Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. What's then the - how are we to understand the position of Mahāprabhu in Jagannātha Purī Dhāma, if Navadwīpa is the same as Vṛndāvana?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Jagannātha Purī that is generally representing Dvārakā, the Kṛṣṇa līlā of Dvārakā. With some speciality to give chance to everyone to come through mahā-prasāda. Balarāma, Subhadrā, and Kṛṣṇa, Jagannātha, Themselves, and sometimes He comes to visit Vṛndāvana in Guṇḍicā, which is conceived to be Vṛndāvana. From Dvārakā He comes to Vṛndāvana during the ratha-yātrā ceremony and stays in Vṛndāvana for more than a week, and returns again to Dvārakā. That is the conception there. And it has also been told, for the beginner Navadwīpa most helpful. Then who has begun they may be helped in Purī. And who have acquired some position they may go to Vṛndāvana. Outwardly it has been given instruction in this way.

There are other teachers also by following whose direction we can go to Vṛndāvana. But when Kṛṣṇa and Rādhārāṇī combined has come to instruct us about Kṛṣṇa līlā, that is the perfect system. We can have through them the most perfect achievement in Vṛndāvana, thereby training their teachings. There are so many others, Ācāryas also, but when they themselves become Ācārya their grace is something more. So those that approach through Gaurāṅga to Kṛṣṇa their achievement is highest.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. In the temple in Jagannātha Purī there's some old standing rules forbidding foreigners to come in. In Lord Jagannātha's temple, will it be bona fide for an Indian looking foreigner to go into the temple, passing as an Indian? For a foreigner who looks like an Indian, will it be bona fide according to our paramparā to go into the temple and have darśana of Lord Jagannātha?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We, the followers of Caitanyadeva won't worry for that.

Haridāsa Ṭhākura was there during Mahāprabhu's time, but he did not try to enter as a right. He did not want that right to enter into the temple. Rather he followed the ways that the direct servitors of the temple may not have any touch of him, he used to keep himself far away. But there his internal bhajan was not affected at all. Sanātana Goswāmī also avoided to touch all those direct servitors.

In rāga-mārga sādhana the way of love and affection is not affected by that outer. We're not here to establish our physical right into the temple. That is not necessary. Independent of this formality we can go to Vṛndāvana. So this is viddhi-mārga, though rāga-mārga is higher, still viddhi-mārga should not be considered as enemy and will be crushed, or will be bruised down.

They'll give respect to viddhi-mārga. "Yes, I'm not fit for the service." With that humility they'll approach, and they won't be eager to establish their superiority over those viddhi-mārga servitors, no eagerness. That is a main system in the pure rāga-mārga. "Yes, we're of lower order." And thereby they thrive more. Their consideration of self, "I'm unfit. I'm unfit." And that increases their superiority thereby, by humility. They're not eager to enter the temple of Nārāyaṇa where these rules and regulations are - have much respect, they're not eager for that. They do not hate also, do not despise, no contempt for the Nārāyaṇa viddhi-mārga, but they show their honour from distance to them. And they want to have Kṛṣṇa.

In Bṛhat-Bhāgavatāmṛta Sanātana Goswāmī has described in this way. That from Kṛṣṇaloka, Kṛṣṇa with His friends, sakhās, came down to Vaikuṇṭha. And He just went a little ahead and was one with Nārāyaṇa, Kṛṣṇa Himself. And the sakhās, His friends, Kṛṣṇa's friends, they were there and without finding Kṛṣṇa they were something like perplexed.

And the Vaikuṇṭha servitors they're neglecting them. "Where do you come from? You fellows you have come here, entered, how you have come here? And what are you doing?" Negligently they were treated by the permanent servitors of Vaikuṇṭha.

And they were perplexed not finding their sakhā. But after some time Kṛṣṇa came out from Nārāyaṇa, emerged from Nārāyaṇa, and joined them. And they were very much fearful and went away with Him. It has been described in this way. The Vaikuṇṭha servitors they neglect these human servitors of Kṛṣṇa. But really they hold superior position than the Vaikuṇṭha servitors. But in grandeur and respect they're high, and they do not seek that grandeur and respect and awe, reverence. They're another type, but they hold higher position.

Haridāsa Ṭhākura, Sanātana, Rūpa, they did not try to establish their right. "Why should we not enter Jagannātha temple?" They did not care to fight for that. "O, that is viddhi-mārga." Respectfully avoided that, and they went in their own way. They rather took their quarter with Haridāsa Ṭhākura.

And in the hot season also Sanātana went to meet Mahāprabhu in Gadādhara temple over the sand way and blisters came out in his soles. Mahāprabhu told, "Why have you not used this ordinary way? Why have you come over the sands which is very hot in the sun?"

"O, I can't venture to go that way because all the servitors of Jagannātha temple always passing, going and coming, I'm afraid of their touch. I'm not pure enough to touch them. They're doing direct service to Jagannātha." In this way.

Sanātana Goswāmī when he met first in Benares Mahāprabhu, he was really afraid that Mahāprabhu may not touch him. When Mahāprabhu forcibly embraced him and he was very much afraid.

"What do You do? I'm untouchable, I'm so mean, I'm so sinful. I don't deserve Your touch."

But the answer came from Mahāprabhu, prabhu kahe, - "tomā sparśi ātma pavitrite, bhakti-bale pāra tumi brahmāṇḍa śodhite

[The Lord replied, "I am touching you just to purify Myself because by the force of your devotional service you can purify the whole universe."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 20.56]

"Sanātana, it is your extreme humility. I touch you to purify Myself. I don't consider that you're untouchable. But I see what kind of devotion is in your heart. You can purify the whole creation. And I'm touching you to purify Me Sanātana."

This is the line of the thinking of the Vaiṣṇava. Mutual. Everyone thinks "I'm the most humble, sinner." But others can see, "No." As much humility there is so much devotion, real humility, dainya. Humility is the criterion to measure Vaiṣṇavism.

Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura has said, "Whether one is a Vaiṣṇava or not we can measure it by his humility."

As much as one is conscious of the Infinite he cannot but think that he's nothing. So much one is conscious of the Infinite, necessarily he'll have to think that he's the most insignificant. And who is not in relativity of the Infinite he thinks himself, "I'm big" because he does not know the Infinite. So the measure of Vaiṣṇavism is according to his humility, and not lip deep, but sincere, heartfelt humility. But that does not mean that if sometime for the service of the Lord assertion is necessary then he'll do that on behalf of the service. But at heart he knows he has no value. All his work inspired by the will of the Supreme.

"If that is withdrawn I'm nowhere. Whatever I've got it is the inspiration of the Lord, the delegated power from the Lord. If that's withdrawn my value is nothing."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: And Prabhupāda Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī also said, "Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Bhāgavata Jñānānanda - that's also given here. "Here is my Guru. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura came me but I could not recognise him." Then, and also your example about the nose, that...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Nark [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: _____ [?] What is this in Bengali?

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Nose, nark [?] Narka karge nani seshe karge [?] Yes, yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It is the form, and the breath is the substance. Narka karge nani seshe karge [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then here, also you say how the sahajiyās, or the imitationists, they're the worst enemies of the sampradāya of Mahāprabhu, they're traitors, they've taken the garb of Mahāprabhu. So then you say, pūjāla rāgapaṭha gaurava bāṅge. And then Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta said, "I'm servant of the servant of the Vaiṣṇavas." And there's a picture of Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Pūjāla rāgapaṭha gaurava bāṅge _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then chapter four called, The Original Guru is a chapter about Nityānanda Prabhu. You say He's the general representation of Guru. And how Nityānanda Prabhu is distributing Kṛṣṇa prema, with Baladeva, with magnanimity added becomes Nityānanda. Then there's a picture of Nityānanda Prabhu.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: From _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: From so many different places, Vidagdha has collected this photo. And then you tell the story when Nityānanda Prabhu came to see Mahāprabhu, Nimāi Paṇḍit, and He was naked. And Mahāprabhu gave Him some cloth, and then took His kaupīna and distributed to the householders. So you say, "By the grace of Nityānanda we get a firm foundation."

[From Narottama dāsa Ṭhākura's Manaḥ-śikṣā, 1]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then here's Nityānanda Prabhu, where He said, "There's some danger in Kṛṣṇa līlā, so take the Name of Gaurāṅga."

bhaja gaurāṅga, kaha gaurāṅga laha gauranger nāma,
[yei jana gaurāṅga bhaje sei amāra prāna]

And you tell the story of...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Danger in misunderstanding.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And in Caitanya-Bhāgavata, Śacī Devī's dream about Balarāma...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. _____ [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then you quote, yasya prasādād bhagavat-prasādo [From Śrīla Viśvanātha Cakravartī Ṭhākura's Gurv-aṣṭaka, 8] The mercy of Guru. Then here, Guru is Not a Doll.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Guru is Not a Doll. _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: He's not the body. You say, "Who am I, the disciple, the inquirer? And the Guru is the inquired, that party within Guru." Then...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Guru: More than..

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Meets the Eye.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: More than Meets the Eye. Than what can be seen with your eye.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So then you say, "How can we recognise Guru by his dress? In the summer he's wearing one dress, in the winter another dress. Or sometimes he's old, sometimes he's young. So how to trace, how to recognise him? From external consideration we must go to the internal, and devoid of flesh and blood." And you give example of gandharvas and siddhas, no fleshy form, but they also have Guru.

Then, Progress: Elimination and Acceptance. Dynamic world. And you say, "To get the grace of Nityānanda Prabhu we should try to study the character of Śrī Gaurāṅga, and serve Him, His Dhāma, and His devotees." Then here's that verse of Raghunātha dāsa Goswāmī. Nāma-śreṣṭhaṁ manum api śacī- putram atra svarūpaṁ. He says why we're indebted to Śrī Gurudeva, what Gurudeva is giving us, nāma- śreṣṭhaṁ.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: These are his contributions to us.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. This is what is Guru, he's given. Then, after that you give a whole description of that verse, that he's giving the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa, the highest form of thought, aspiration, ideal, the mantra. Then the service of Mother Śacī's Son Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, Who's like a golden mountain standing to show the direction of Kṛṣṇa līlā. And the lotus feet of His favourite personal assistants, Svarūpa Dāmodara, then Śrī Rūpa, and Dāsa Goswāmī says, "And Śrīla Sanātana Goswāmī." And Mathurā Maṇḍala, then Vṛndāvana, and Rādhā-kuṇḍa, Govardhana.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then when you turn the page, here it says, What is ISKCON? Because you say here, "What is our Guru? What is his mission? It is filled with all of these things. Nāma-śreṣṭhaṁ manum api.

83.11.01.B

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: [From Śrī Guru and His Grace]

[Devotee: There are so] many visions about the International Society for Kṛṣṇa Consciousness (ISKCON). But what should the real vision of ISKCON be?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In this verse, Raghunātha Dāsa Goswāmī gives the real acquaintance of what is ISKCON. Nāma-śreṣṭhaṁ manum api śacī-putram atra svarūpaṁ. ISKCON must not deviate from this line. We have not come here to deceive ourselves, but to fulfil ourselves. ISKCON will fulfil everyone's inner demand, even extending to the vegetables and stones, taking them to the feet of Mahāprabhu and the Goswāmīs. From village to village, everyone, in every place, should be hunted and approached. "Take the Name of Kṛṣṇa! Come under the flag of Mahāprabhu!" This grand worldwide mission will thrive like anything; it will touch the heavens and cover the Earth, and other planets also. That was the aim of Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Prabhupāda, and we understand and appreciate that.

So that's the end of that chapter. Then this chapter, chapter five, is called, God Consciousness Versus Society Consciousness. Where you explain progress means elimination and a new acceptance. And you give the example if someone is an out and out socialist living in the capitalist country, but there's a clash between the socialist and the capitalist, what will he do? Whose side will he take?

And you mentioned how in the Christian line they have Catholics, Protestants, and Puritans, progressive Christianity. Then how Einstein had to leave Germany to go to America for his high ideal of life.

And where Kṛṣṇa says, sva-dharme nidhanaṁ śreyaḥ, para-dharmo bhayāvahaḥ [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.35], the relative consideration. Then absolute consideration, sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]. "Give up everything. Come to Me directly."

And also, after, The Disappearance of Guru. You explain how disturbance must come. And the disciple begins ātmā samiksa, self analysis.

And this example of Jesus and Judas. How Judas betrayed Jesus. And how also Peter who was the leader of Christ's apostles, disciples, he was exposed when he denied Christ.

Then you gave the example of the sycophant, flatterer. The Muslim king when he advertised, "I want one flatterer. Who will be the fit man for the job?"

Then the example of Droṇācārya and the Pāṇḍavas shooting the eye of the bird in the tree.

Then about...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: God Consciousness, Society Consciousness.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Then about not taking the Infinite within the prison house of our mind, confining Him there. And also our Guru, what he has given us, is it a living thing, dynamic, any growth can be seen? And here you say that if someone thinks that he's finished all knowledge and has attained perfection, then we hate it! And then you give the example of Kavirāja Goswāmī, purīṣera kīṭa haite muñi sei laghiṣṭha [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 5.205] Thinking himself lower than the worm in the stool. And here's the finish. If someone says, "I have finished all knowledge. God, Caitanya, is my disciple," he should be shot down as the greatest enemy ever found in the world!

And this is chapter six.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: How many chapters?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Fourteen. Here is, "I Command You - Become Guru!" Here's a picture of Mahāprabhu. And this verse, tava kathāmṛtaṁ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.31.9]. And you gave Bilvamaṅgala Ṭhākura's verse, madhuraṁ madhuraṁ vapur asya vibhor [Kṛṣṇa-Karṇāmṛtam, 92]. And that other verse, māraḥ svayaṁ nu madhura-dyuti-maṇḍalaṁ nu [Kṛṣṇa-Karṇāmṛtam, 68]. "How sweet is Kṛṣṇa." And that should be distributed, the Hari kathā.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. So then you say, yāre dekha, tāre kaha 'kṛṣṇa'-upadeśa [Caitanya- caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 7.128]. And you say that the sum total of news in this world is that at every second everyone is entering the jaws of death.

So Mahāprabhu says, "I command you. Take the position of Guru, the giver. And don't be afraid that you'll become puffed up with pride and go to hell. I order you. Do relief work. Don't stand idle as an onlooker."

And you give the example, when someone criticised in Madras that Ramkrishna Mission is feeding people. And you told, if there's a famine, and you're distributing food, and someone flees from the crowd, should you go to catch them and stop your distribution?

And then there's a picture of Mahāprabhu in the Jhārikhaṇḍa Forest.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Jhārikhaṇḍa _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: You say, "His vibration of Hari kathā was so fine it penetrated the elephant and tiger bodies and they began...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then chapter seven. The Initiating Spiritual Master. You give the example of the three kinds of Guru. Two feet in Vaikuṇṭha, extending one foot here.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Ah. This is very important.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. And the kaniṣṭha, madhyama, and uttama adhikārī. Then Kṛṣṇa's Headache, and the gopīs giving their feet dust. And Rāmānuja giving his mantra at the risk of going to hell. And The Trap to Capture Guru. You once said through śikṣā the disciple will add as the trap to capture Guru, hearing his śikṣā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? To trap Guru? What is this?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: You said that if someone speaks, gives his śikṣā in the disciple, he will recognise that Guru is there. Because I was saying once...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Śikhā?

Devotees: Śikṣā.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: No, no. Upadeśa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: O, śikṣā. His trap, what is it, how?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Once I told you that - you said, "You must follow your Guru's - you must give what your Guru has given to you. It is not your property." So I said I can give that by giving instruction. And what is the necessity to give initiation? And you said, "But by instruction, or śikṣā, the disciple will capture the Guru." He will understand who is the Guru through the śikṣā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Trap, what does it mean, trap?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: It's figurative.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. It means he will recognise his Guru.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: How?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: By his śikṣā. By the śikṣā of the Guru the disciple he can _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Trap _____ [?] to capture, to catch the Guru.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. He'll capture the conception of Guru _____ [?] He can appreciate the conception of Guru this way. It is in a figurative way, captures.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: It was on the discussion of dīkṣā and śikṣā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Trap means something which unconsciously can capture one? Whom it captures, he may not know? He unconsciously comes and falls in the trap? Eh?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. Literally it means that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Literally. But...

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: It is more figurative.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: In a figurative way, in a loose way.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Capture Guru, by śraddhā. Narottama Ṭhākura he captured Lokanātha in a trap?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. Something like that.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Like that. That idea.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. That may be, yes, that may be.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Because Lokanātha Goswāmī did not want to give initiation. Just like that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But he was trapped, captured.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then this chapter, chapter eight, Separation from Śrī Guru. Here is a picture of yourself and Swāmī Mahārāja on the roof here of your Maṭha.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And the beginning of the chapter says that,

His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Prabhupāda gave advice to his senior disciples that if the need arose to consult higher spiritual authority after his disappearance, his senior Godbrother Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja should be consulted. On more than one occasion he said, "I consider Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja to be my śikṣā Guru, instructing spiritual master, so what to speak of the benefit that others can have from his association." Then. Just after his disappearance, his senior disciples approached Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja and asked his advice on how to guide the International Society for Krsna Consciousness. The following is an excerpt of their conversations.

So this is when the GBC came to see you in nineteen seventy eight. But it is not represented as GBC but just question and answer format. And you gave the example of the disciple is like the lotus, and Kṛṣṇa is like the sun, and the Guru is like the water all around in which the lotus is situated. So remove the water and then the lotus burns in the sun.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: This is very nice example.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. And then also you gave the example of Raghunātha Dāsa Goswāmī. How he saw that Rādhā-kuṇḍa which previously was inspiring him, was now like a tiger's jaws coming to devour him. And Govardhana Hill was like a python coming to swallow him up. So it was antagonistic. So you spoke about vipralambha.

Then you speak of the position of Ācārya. And vātsalya-rasa and sākhya-rasa, dealing with disciples and Godbrothers. Then you speak of autocracy as opposed to democracy. That ours is autocratic position of Guru, all in all, unconditional surrender.

But you say that the Kṛṣṇa conception helps us make adjustments. Because whom we can see with the Absolute - mother Yaśodā, is coming to whip Him. She's whipping Kṛṣṇa. And taṭasthā-vicāra is given.

And also to the disciple you said the Guru is more near and dear to us than God Himself.

And also you said we're Messiahs of Free Faith. That no law should come to check the flow of love. But law, viddhi, should promote the flow of love.

You also give the example of the tooth biting the tongue, from the Bhāgavatam. The tooth cuts the tongue - should we remove the tooth? So you said some loving, one organic whole, loving dealings.

Then kanak, kāminī, and pratiṣṭhā. You explain the dangers for Ācārya.

And also if Guru must be abandoned. Guror apy avaliptasya, kāryākāryam ajānataḥ. [Mahābhārata, Udyoga-parva, 179.25] And Jīva Goswāmī in Hari-Nāma-cintāmaṇi of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura.

Also you explain that when Kṛṣṇa entered the arena of Kaṁsa, how Guru is seen differently by different persons, so as Kṛṣṇa when He entered Kaṁsa's arena He was seen in different ways.

And the example of where the son may be a judge, but the father comes before the judge and gives his regard to the rank, the position.

And Śrīdhara Swāmī's, aham vedmi śuko vetti, vyāso vetti na vetti vā [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 24.313] And Mahāprabhu telling Sanātana that Kṛṣṇa...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It is not composed by Śrīdhara Swāmī, but it's about Śrīdhara Swāmī.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. And his commentary on the Bhāgavatam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Right.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then Mahāprabhu telling Sanātana that, "Kṛṣṇa is going to grace you through Me." And your example of the poster in the war time in Calcutta. "Take this dress."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] That example for which?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: For which? So many questions are being asked to you. "Should we do this? We will have disciples. Should we do that?" Then finally you say, "Take this uniform, and so many things will be shown to you. You'll get inspiration what to do."

And you say that, "Our Master is not a cheat. He will come to help us with all His might, saying, 'Do this. I'm helping you. I'm at your back. When we're all sincere, things will happen like this.'"

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Do that, not do that.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Then the next chapter is called, Nāma Guru and Mantra Guru. Then here, this is your example - Govinda Mahārāja he does a graphic illustration of your example, a circle within a circle.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Gāyatrī mantra.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Continuous to Goloka.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Continuous to Goloka _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Hari Nāma, extends to the lowest position, and goes to the highest position.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Hari Nāma _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] To help.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: The Hari Nāma.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So this looks very scientific, this explanation.
Then also here this, ātmā parijñāna-mayo.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja:

ātmā parijñāna-mayo vivādo, hy astīti nāstīti bhidārtha-niṣṭhaḥ
[vyartho 'pi naivoparameta puṁsāṁ, mattaḥ parāvṛtta-dhiyāṁ sva-lokāt]

[One party says: "God exists!" The other says: "God does not exist!" Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam says that the ātmā is self effulgent, but still we find that one class of men say, "He exists, we see Him, He can be seen," and another says: "He has never existed." This quarrel has no end because one of the parties hasn't got the eye to see what is self-evident. This quarrel is a useless waste of time, but still it will never stop; it will continue forever."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.22.34]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And you tell the story of Sārvabhauma Bhaṭṭācārya and Gopīnāth Ācārya.
And Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī's example of a man living in a dungeon. His friend comes to show him the sun, and he says, "Let me get one lantern." He says, "No lantern will be necessary."
Then also Duḥśāsana, and the virāṭ-rūpa, to bind Kṛṣṇa. And Dhṛtarāṣṭra hears the sages, everyone praising Kṛṣṇa, and says, "Remove my blindness and let me see You." And Kṛṣṇa says, "I say that you'll see and you'll see. No necessity of removing your blindness."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Revolutionary. Ha, ha.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Independent of our physical senses, that knowledge, that is more...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "Let there be water." There was water. "Let light." Light. His sweet will everything, at the back.

[21:55 - 22:25 ?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: A Religious Jungle. When Uddhava asked Kṛṣṇa, "Why are there so many 'isms' in the world? How did this come about?"

Then, The Lady and the Mullah. You say, "Every disciple cannot catch the real spirit of the advice of the Guru." So the mullah was giving lecture on Koran.

Devotees: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So that story. Very humorous.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then Newton saying, "I'm just collecting pebbles on the shore of the ocean of knowledge. In that way I'm more learned than all of you who think that you know everything."

Then here this chapter ten, Instructing Spiritual Masters. Śikṣā Guru Paramparā.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So you explain, "Our paramparā follows the ideal, not the body; it is a succession of instructing Spiritual Masters."

mahāprabhu śrī-caitanya, rādhā-kṛṣṇa nahe anya rūpānuga janera jīvana [viśwambhara priyaṅkara śrī-swarūpa dāmodara, śrī-goswāmī rūpa-sanātana]

["Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanya is non-different from Śrī Śrī Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa and is the very life of those Vaiṣṇavas who follow Śrī Rūpa Goswāmī. Śrī Svarūpa Dāmodara Goswāmī, Rūpa Goswāmī, and Sanātana Goswāmī were the givers of great happiness to Viśvambhara (Śrī Caitanya)."]

[Brahma-Mādhva-Gauḍīya Sampradāya, 6] [Compiled by Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura]

Then you explain about the line of thought as traced from Newton to Einstein. Copernicus, Galileo, Newton, Einstein. How in considering great distance the intermediate points may be neglected, and the major points are taken into consideration. Like the thought from Newton to Einstein.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Newton.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] What did I say?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: That you traced in scientific thought, from Newton to Einstein. And the lesser important scientist in between...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Excluded.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So Guru paramparā, touching the main points.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Then, you say disciplic succession is not a bodily succession, not body paramparā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Spiritual thought.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Then you mention Baladeva Vidyābhūṣaṇa and his valuable contribution to the sampradāya.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And here's pictures of Rāmānujācārya, Madhvācārya, Nimbārkācārya, Viṣṇusvāmī.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And there's a photo of Baladeva Vidyābhūṣaṇa.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And you explain The Zigzag Line of Truth. Analogies coming down in a zigzag way. And you say, "I'm not a servant of A,B,C, or D. I'm a servant of Mahāprabhu. And I must turn in any way, whatever may be favourable to reach my Lord."

And you tell of Gopa-kumāra in Bṛhat-Bhāgavatāmṛta, how he had to go from one level to another.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Progressing.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Progressing. Then you tell of Prahlāda Mahārāja, that his father is a demon, he's a devotee, his son is a demon, his grandson a devotee again. You mention Prahlāda's Guru paramparā, Hanumān's Guru paramparā, Pāṇḍavas Guru paramparā, Mahādeva's Guru paramparā. You say but Brahmā and Mahādeva are Gurus themselves. They're the creators of their own lines of Guru paramparā. But Gopa-kumāra passes them also. Why? His thirst is not quenched until he goes to Vṛndāvana. So Bṛhat- Bhāgavatāmṛta has shown us the line of Guru paramparā, or the real line of our quest, our search.

Then, you give the example of the Pāṇḍavas going to the Himalayas, and how so many fell away, but Yudhiṣṭhira and the dog continued together. So you said some may be eliminated.

Then you quote Mahāprabhu and Rāmānanda. But Rāmānanda was shrinking away, not to instruct Mahāprabhu. But Mahāprabhu said that, "You are the wealthiest capitalist of the spiritual world. So use that and do good for the public."

Here you say, "First let us understand Guru, then the question of paramparā." And you say, "Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī is not in the Guru paramparā. Should we dismiss Her? The question of first importance is who is Guru? And then there can be a chain of them coming down."

Then you give example, Alexander the Great, the Gordion knot. "That who can unloose this knot will be a great king." Then Alexander he cut the knot with his sword, ignoring the formal consideration.

And the example of Columbus. "Who can stand an egg - can you make an egg stand?"

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is for Napoleon perhaps.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Aha! Yes. Someone said that. He says in one tape Columbus.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I thought that that was the case with Napoleon. "Can you keep the egg on your nail?" "Yes, yes."

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: You can correct?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes, we can correct that. We thought so, but in one place you said Columbus.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I heard it like that, in the case of Napoleon.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Make it clear.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Right. We can change it. Anyway, then chapter eleven is called, The Land of Gurus. And you explain the verse, na hy ekasmād guror jñānaṁ, su-sthiraṁ syāt su-puṣkalam [Śrīmad- Bhāgavatam, 11.9.31]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then you tell of that Baladeva Vidyābhūṣaṇa explains how both Rūpa and Sanātana Goswāmīs have shown Govinda to the world, like a jewel within their palms.

And then also you quote that nyāya śāstra, this viṣaya, saṁśaya, purva-pakṣa, mimaṁsā, siddhānta, and saṁgatiḥ. Then ajñāta-sukṛti, jñāta-sukṛti, śraddhā, sādhu-saṅga.

And you explain the gradations. You say, "What to speak of here, in God's own self there's gradation. Vāsudeva, Viṣṇu, Nārāyaṇa, Dvārakeśa, Mathureśa, Svayaṁ-Bhagavān Kṛṣṇa."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not only ends there, but Svayaṁ-Rūpa, Svayaṁ-Prakāśa, Prabhāva-Prakāśa, Vaibhava-Prakāśa, and so many differentiated.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then here you mention about being Hurled Down to Vaikuṇṭha. Raghunātha Dāsa Goswāmī...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: pasa bhumi divi pheli selidi parola hadi [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then this is chapter twelve. It's called Servant of the Servant.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Telescopic system.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Ha, ha. And that, ārādhanānām sarveśāṁ, viṣṇor ārādhanaṁ param

[tasmāt parataraṁ devi, tadīyānām samārcanam]

["Lord Śiva told the goddess Durgā:] 'My dear Devī, although the Vedas recommend worship of demigods, the worship of Lord Viṣṇu is topmost. However, above the worship of Lord Viṣṇu is the rendering of service to Vaiṣṇavas, who are related to Lord Viṣṇu.'"]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 11.31]

ye me bhakta-janāḥ partha, ne me bhaktaś ca te janāḥ
[mad bhaktānāṁ ca ye bhaktās, te me bhaktatamā mataḥ]

["Those who worship Me directly are not real devotees; real devotees are those who are devoted to My devotees."] [Ādi Purāṇa]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Mad bhaktānāṁ ca ye bhaktās.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Te me bhaktatamā mataḥ.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And also you told how in the beginning how Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī was worshipping time, kāle, ye kāle vā svapane.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Time. Worshipping time. Ye kāle vā svapane, dekhinu vaṁśi vadane [Caitanya- caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.37-8]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So that Kṛṣṇa would remain.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Rāmānanda-saṁvāda _____ [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: No. It's not in Rāmānanda-saṁvāda.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Ye kāle vā svapane, dekhinu vaṁśi vadane.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Yes, I know that.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: But where is it?

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: It's in Caitanya-caritāmṛta.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes, it's Rāmānanda-saṁvāda.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: In Rāmānanda-saṁvāda?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Whenever we went to find anything on Rādhārāṇī it was there.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Who says that?

Devotees: Rādhārāṇī says that.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: "That when Kṛṣṇa comes again I'll worship time, propitiate time."

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: O, this śloka in Jagannātha-vallabha-nāṭaka.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Ye kāle vā svapane, dekhinu vaṁśi vadane.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Sei kāle āilā dui vairi, 'ānanda' āra 'madana,' hari' nila mora mana, dekhite nā pāinu netra bhari'.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: But we only have access to Caitanya-caritāmṛta.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

punaḥ yadi kona kṣaṇa, kayāya kṛṣṇa daraśana, tabe sei ghaṭī-kṣaṇa-pala

["Whenever I had the chance to see Lord Kṛṣṇa's face and His flute, even in a dream, two enemies would appear before Me. They were pleasure and Cupid, and since they took away My mind, I was not able to see the face of Kṛṣṇa to the full satisfaction of My eyes."] ["If by chance such a moment comes when I can once again see Kṛṣṇa, then I shall worship those seconds, moments and hours with flower garlands and pulp of sandalwood and decorate them with all kinds of jewels and ornaments."]

[Jagannātha-vallabha-nāṭaka, 3.12-3] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.37-8]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?] This śloka, this is translation of that śloka.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes, that's right. Also you say this example. "If you love me, love my dog. How intense one's love for his master must be if he can love the master's dog. So the test of our love of the master, of Kṛṣṇa, is in pleasing His servants."

And then you say how Kṛṣṇa is a king, and there's a hierarchy, servitors surrounding the king.

And the Everest example, highest peak, Everest. Surrounding Everest so many subordinate peaks.

So making the approach nearer to Kṛṣṇa we'll understand so many servitors in His connection.

And you say The Real Test of Devotion. When Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura was travelling in South India, and someone would say he's 'a great devotee of Kṛṣṇa, or a great devotee of Rāma,' he would say, "Under whose guidance does your service to Kṛṣṇa go on?"

And they would say, "No, no, I'm directly concerned with Lord Kṛṣṇa. I'm directly concerned with Lord Rāma." Then when they went away we heard our Guru Mahārāja say, "He has no devotion." That person was dismissed as an imitation devotee.

Then this chapter thirteen is Lives of the Saints. About goṣṭhyānandī and viviktānandī. You explain...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ last chapter [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Next to last. There's one more after this.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Yes. Thirteenth chapter _____ [?] viviktānandī, goṣṭhyānandī ___ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Premārurukṣu.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Premārurukṣu.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Yes. _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then here's a picture of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Because you're quoting his Caitanya-śikṣāmṛta. And that we cannot make this distinction who is higher and lower. And you mention Kṛṣṇa, it's His will through whom He chooses to do different services in this world.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hmm?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Kṛṣṇa, it's His selection.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Kṛṣṇa?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Kṛṣṇa's selection, which devotee He will do His work through, and what kind of work. And you mention Svarūpa Dāmodara, Rāmānanda Rāya, how they did not preach in an extensive way. But on the other hand Nityānanda Prabhu and others did. Kṛṣṇa selects His instruments according to His desire. Then you mention Rūpa and Sanātana did not practically come in touch with the masses for preaching. But they gave scriptures for the preachers.

Then sparśa-maṇi, the Vaiṣṇavas, like touchstones.

Then you mention that it may be taken from one point of view that Gaura līlā is higher than Kṛṣṇa līlā. So those who are engaged in distribution that that is very laudable.

Then here's a picture of Śrīla Gaura Kiśora Dāsa Bābājī Mahārāja. Because how Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura said, "All spiritual knowledge is contained within a particle of the dust of his lotus feet."

And you mention Gadādhara Paṇḍita also, his affinity for Mahāprabhu is so great.

And you say, Kṛṣṇa is Dancing, through different agents.

Then you give the story of Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi. Aho bakī yaṁ stana-kāla-kūṭaṁ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 3.2.23] And Gadādhara Paṇḍita and Mukunda Datta.

Then this is the last chapter, chapter fourteen. It's called The Line of Śrī Rūpa. Rūpānuga sampradāya. And you begin saying mercy is above justice. And that verse again, aho bakī yaṁ stana-kāla-kūṭaṁ / kaṁ vā dayāluṁ śaraṇaṁ vrajema. And you say we should omit the department of justice, because we'll be dealt with very severely. Rather we should approach the department of mercy. Then you quote...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: ...Gopāla Bhaṭṭa Goswāmī.

govinda-vallabhe rādhe, prārthaye tvām ahaṁ sadā

["O Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī, the dearest of Lord Govinda, this is always my request to You - please let Lord Govinda, along with Yourself, consider me to be one of Your assistants."] [Arcana Paddhati, p 70]

Gopāla Bhaṭṭa Goswāmī, his arcana. And, rādhe vṛndāvanādhīśe, karuṇāmṛta-vāhini

[kṛpayā nija-pādābja, dāsyaṁ mahyam pradīyatām]

["O Rādhe, O Queen of Vṛndāvana, You are like a flowing river filled with the nectar of mercy. Please be kind upon me, and bestow upon me some small service at Your lotus feet."] [Arcana Paddhati, p 70]

And there's a photo of Gopāla Bhaṭṭa Goswāmī writing his...

Devotees: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then Distributing Ecstasy. The hlādinī, karuṇāmṛta-vāhini, the hlādinī-śakti is distributing. You say like a river has in it many valuable minerals and jewels, to trace in that current. So the hlādinī current is distributing that. Then Śrīla Raghunātha Dāsa Goswāmī, who says, "Kṛṣṇa is of secondary concern."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Then, here is that verse, āśābharair-amṛta-sindhu-mayaiḥ kathañcit [Vilāpa- kuṣumāñjali, 102] Then Rādhā-dāsyam. And you quote also Kṛṣṇa and Uddhava. Na tathā me priyatama ātmayonir na śaṅkaraḥ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.14.15]. Then Āsā maho caraṇa-renu-juṣām aham syām [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.47.61]. Then, you give explanation of - oh, here's a photo of Rādhā and Govinda. Then you explain the significance of the rūpānuga sampradāya, coming from Rūpa Goswāmī. And here's a picture, Śrīla Rūpa Goswāmī, the bhakti-rasācārya, giver of the rāgānūga-śāstras.

And then you describe this is our Spiritual Inheritance. You gave the example, the father leaves some valuable documents for the children. They may not know the value as children, but when they mature they come to realise there wealth, that's been left. And you said, "This is not my property but the property of my Gurudeva."

Then you say, "Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Prabhupāda he gave everyone a clue. He distributed the key, widely, and gave a clue. 'Come and open the chest and find out what valuable ornaments and gems are within the chest." Then you say, "But people will say this is just a product of a disorganised brain. The non-devotees, they'll think this is madness."

And you quote Rūpa Goswāmī's verse, viracaya mayi daṇḍaṁ dīnabandho dayāṁ vā [Śrī-Rūpapādānāṁ]. About a cātaka bird praying for water from the clouds. And then the book finishes with that verse, praying for the grace...

83.11.01.C_83.10.30

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...at once the Dewān of the, that is Vṛndāvana, Rādhā-kuṇḍa perhaps in the, near about the chief if Bharatpur State. And he came there with his family and was circumambulating Rādhā- kuṇḍa.

And one of the favourite disciples of our Guru Mahārāja, named Paramānanda, from boyhood he came to Gurudeva. He told, "Prabhu, they also appreciate Rādhā-kuṇḍa, Rādhārāṇī."

Then Prabhupāda replied that, "Their appreciation of Rādhārāṇī is something, and ours is another thing. What is the difference? They revere Kṛṣṇa, and because Rādhārāṇī is His favourite, so they have reverence for Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa. And we revere Rādhārāṇī directly, and because Kṛṣṇa is favourite of Rādhārāṇī so we go to Kṛṣṇa. We have direct concern with, we're potency, our direct devotion should be with the highest potency. And Kṛṣṇa is substance. Because Kṛṣṇa is necessary for Rādhārāṇī's purpose, so we shall have to keep our connection with Kṛṣṇa. But mainly we're all absorbed in the interest of Rādhārāṇī. Direct connection here. Potency, potency."

So generally people they approach Kṛṣṇa, and then from Him to His devotees.

But Prabhupāda told, "Our inborn relationship is with Rādhārāṇī. We're śakta, worshipper of potency. And because Rādhārāṇī wants Kṛṣṇa, we shall have to want Him also. That is secondary."

You have mentioned one place "secondary." The āśābharair-amṛta-sindhu-mayaiḥ. But there is a story, a tale was there, secondary. You have already mentioned, "Our relation with Kṛṣṇa is secondary. Primary is Rādhārāṇī." And that was described in that way by Prabhupāda in Rādhā-kuṇḍa.

And that cleared my doubt. Rādhā-dāsya. How? Why? We're mainly concerned in achieving Her group. We're in Her group. And with us all She worships Kṛṣṇa and She serves Kṛṣṇa. So rūpānuga vicāra is this, we're in this party, in Her party. And She faces the service of Kṛṣṇa, and we all help Her.

That is the real position of a liberated ego who has entered the līlā in a particular position of service. So many forms may extend that way. Anyhow it is laudable one has come by His Divine will. We try to pay our obeisance to that. And also who has given that to us, we've got our adoration for him also.

What do you say Akṣayānanda Mahārāja?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Ah! You've captured Guru.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Śāstra Guru. Vyāsadeva means this. Already there is so many scriptures, and Vyāsa comes and systematically adjusts them. There are so many Vyāsa. This is Kṛṣṇa Dvaipāyana Vyāsa. Vyāsa means who distributes the revealed truth in a systematic way, he's Vyāsa. Very laudable, we're happy, and our Swāmī Mahārāja, our Gurudeva, they're all happy to find Vyāsa.

Parama Pūjāpāda Śrīla Śrīdhara Goswāmī Mahārāja

[06:02 - 29:03 ?]

Devotees: (Applaud)

[29:08 - 30:10 ?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: I offer my prostrate obeisances, body, mind, words, and soul, at the holy feet of my Śrīla Guru Mahārāja.

From the very beginning I wished to abandon all I have learned, all I have dutifully but mechanically committed to memory in the vain pursuit of labour without love. How can I sing the praises of a personality divine, while clutching greedily to all my worldly accomplishments? Will it be praise, will it be divine, if I vomit and re-vomit all I could digest within the parts of my voracious intestines?

If I wave a flag and make a merry dance for the crowd, will it touch the heart of the Absolute? If I cross the oceans and mountains and return with a pot of gold, should I receive some blessings? Or if I renounce the whole affair as false, how will I renounce my own hypocrisy?

To give up the company of true saints is the most heinous and criminal offence one can commit against his self. Because they, the saints, do not relish being waited on, or served, their company is very rarely attained. Our quandary is that devoid of prospect divine, we wander hither and thither, loitering in the wake of our own selfish interest, with no conception of a goal, perfection, or shelter. Finally by dint of sheer good luck do we approach the sacred and holy foot dust of Śrīla Gurudeva, who without pomp and ceremony, meticulously places us at the feet of the Absolute. Therefore the conception of Śrīla Gurudeva is infinite.

I would like to specifically pray at the divine feet of His Divine Grace Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda Paramahaṁsa Ṭhākura Śrīla Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja. Śrīla Guru Mahārāja and his associates are members of the eternal family of the Absolute Divinity Infinite. His heritage is beyond the limits of time, space, and mental faculty. But it is in the plane of the pure heart, the plane of dedication, devotion, giving, serving, contributing and submitting oneself at the feet of the Absolute. It is the plane of love divine. It makes one almost mad it is so high, sweet, and sublime. It is the golden gift of the golden Lord, Gaura Sundara. It is so rare to be found within this world or the next.

Today is the sacred appearance day of Śrīla Guru Mahārāja. On this happy day he was sent by the Almighty God to carry out the eternal play of love divine by giving us tiny bound up souls of the borderland yet another chance to enter the glorious land of love. The land of ever new light, prospect, and beauty. So joyful we have become to learn from His Grace that this land is our home, home sweet home.

No longer need we ponder ad nauseam in the land of imitation. No longer need we crack our skulls with the endless puzzles of proud scholarship which culminates only in the slumber of emptiness. And no longer need we sharpen our vulnerable sensual swords to usurp the mysteries of the autocrat in the wild world of imagination.

The holy scriptures and saints are guiding us and their centre is one. They're in-harmonic in the charming malady of their friendly invitations. Today, feeling our lives to be like a point, on a line, on a plane, on a solid, we pray to Śrīla Gurudeva who is the personification of quintessential genius. And who aptly eclipses his own genius in the pure sweetness of his nature as the most beloved associate of the ever youthful cowboy of Braja. We pray to Śrīla Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja to kindly, mercifully, enlist us as one of the grains of sand in the shade of his holy lotus feet. I am his aspiring servant.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Without surrendering no effect may be expected to come out.

The Absolute Interest. Everything for Himself. Nothing for me. I'm also for Him. This sort of idea must develop within. A transformation is necessary, from particular to the universal, from self to the Absolute. That sort of transformation, that is necessary. In taking the Name, or reading the scriptures, or preaching to the public, whatever the external form may be, but that very life must be present there, that I'm surrendering to the Absolute call. Neither for name, fame, _____ [?] if with this idea I go on chanting Name, that is of no use.

[ataḥ śrī-kṛṣṇa-nāmādi na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiḥ]
sevonmukhe hi jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty adaḥ

["Because the name of Kṛṣṇa is identical with Kṛṣṇa Himself, and on the absolute spiritual platform, Kṛṣṇa's name, form, qualities, and associates, cannot be appreciated by the material senses. However, when one engages the tongue in chanting the Holy Names of the Lord and tasting the remnants of the Lord's food, Kṛṣṇa gradually reveals Himself to the purified senses of that devotee."]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrva-vibhāga, 2.234]

He will have to come down to my level. My tendencies, my activities will be of such nature that that should be sufficient to attract the higher, all-omniscient, conscious principle, to come down to my heart. In whatever I do. The universal knowledge, universal love, has to come down to my heart, to meet my hankering. Crying all through his bhajan, weeping, crying, repenting, that is also bhajan, devotion.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. I have one question. If prasāda is given with contempt - because, like when I was in Tirupati at one temple I asked for some prasāda. That man gave very contemptuously he gave me. I felt felt severe bad reaction after taking that prasāda. I want to know whether I should accept prasāda given like that or should reject it?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: If with contempt you get you can show some independent respect to that. You may not take it, but you should show some respect.

Devotee: Also, while taking donations, we should er? In ISKCON they take donations which is given grudgingly. They even take the money against the will of the person giving it. But in Gītā it says that such a donation given with contempt or grudgingly has no effect.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! The prasāda cannot be sold. In exchange of money, what is given that may not be considered as prasādam, in the real sense.

Devotee: And what about donation Mahārāja? Supposing we take donation, I collect some donation?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That must be considered separately. You will take, not to sell the book. I'm presenting the book, I want, I beg something for the publication service of the book. So I'm sending some prasādam, at the same time I can beg a free contribution from them. But it's necessary that we can distribute prasādam, we have got no sufficient money. You should contribute something for the purpose, for the bhoga. Even in ancient India education was not paying. Basic education cannot be given, imparted, in exchange of money. Must be free.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. It cannot be purchased in exchange of money or anything. Transaction must be free, anugraha. Prasāda means anugraha, grace, does not have to be purchased.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. I have one more, it's not such an important question, but, when we sing bhajans, the use of the harmonium, is that er?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It is not admit-able because our Guru Mahārāja did not allow it. But Swāmī Mahārāja allowed there considering the peculiar position of those days. But our Guru Mahārāja did not like that some element of luxury.

Devotee: So you don't like us to use...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: When Mahāprabhu, Who inaugurated this kīrtana, He did not use any harmonium, just mṛdaṅga and karatālas, in Goloka. And that is the source of saṅkīrtana. We should really revere in that way.

golokera prema-dhana, hari-nāma-saṅkīrtana, [rati nā janmila kene tāya.]

[Narottama dāsa Ṭhākura regretted that he did not pursue his attraction for the transcendental vibration of the Hare Kṛṣṇa mantra.] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 4.22.15, purport]

It is the capital of the highest quarter in the universe. And in the original position we don't find any harmonium or anything else, but mṛdaṅga and karatāla. And so many other things in the procession. So it is better we shall try to stick to that idea...

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...of the most original plane.

Devotee: Yes. That is good to hear your final instruction on every subject.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Why does God appear to take on karmic reaction? As in the case of Vali shooting the arrow at Kṛṣṇa's foot.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, different incarnations of God came here for different purpose. Varāhadeva, Yajña Varāhadeva came to devour all the sins of the doers, of the sinners, with the help of yajña, sacrifice. When they do sacrifice there, all the prejudices of the past life is finished in the fire.

Devotee: The real question, why God Himself becomes victim to the reaction?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Victim to reaction? What do you mean?

Badrināyaṇa: Like Bali Mahārāja, I mean Vali.

Devotee: Not Bali Mahārāja.

Badrināyaṇa: Not Bali. Vali and Sugriva.

Devotee: Rāma shot Vali.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha.

Devotee: But then again he took, Bali shot Kṛṣṇa who is...

Badrināyaṇa: As a hunter.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: God comes here to teach things for us. In different stages of teaching comes from different incarnations.

utsīdeyur ime lokā, na kuryāṁ karma ced aham saṅkarasya ca kartā syām, upahanyām imāḥ prajāḥ

["If I do not perform duties, then, following My example, all the inhabitants of these worlds will renounce their duties and thereby come to ruination. Thus I will be the cause of social turmoil due to unvirtuous population, and in this way, I will be responsible for spoiling posterity."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.24]

He showed that this is the reaction of the karma-kāṇḍa. If you do something against another you must have to take that as reaction, receive that. To teach that He's also showing. Otherwise no reaction.

Devotee: So the karmīs will only understand that level.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! To teach the karmī about the reaction, He Himself accepts that. "That I'm also not out of the law of karma. So you must be very careful." That is His teaching. Otherwise He may avoid everything, He's above.

Devotee: Why does He not make it known that He's above the law?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's above, then what will be above all? Where from all these laws are coming? He's a conception of the Absolute. If God is under law then law is the absolute thing. He's another conception. Whether law comes from God, or God comes from law? There are so many, the Jaiminī and others they say 'the law is above all.' But devotees do not accept that mean theory. What is the characteristic of the Absolute? Hegel say, "Everything For Himself.

Then He's Absolute. Otherwise He's not Absolute." The conception of the Absolute must include that He's independent, He's the Master of everything. Whatever thing exists, only to satisfy Him, then He's Absolute, then He's God, not a man created God under law. That is no God. That is our creation.

Devotee: Yes. Everyone has taken?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Badrinārāyaṇa prabhu, you've gone through the letters yesterday?

...that is found only here, guṇa, māyā guṇa. And that is Yogamāyā guṇa is present there in Goloka. That must be in the cause. What we find in the effect, that must have to exist in the original, though in different form. What is not in the cause that cannot come in the effect. So it must be there, but in different way.

Devotee: That is inconceivable to us at present.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sometimes, and it is conceivable by His grace. All the things there that is understandable only by His will. All Rights Reserved. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas.

nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena
yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. When the living entity begs the Lord for His mercy, being desirous of His transcendental loving service, then the Supreme Lord reveals His self-manifest form directly before him."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] & [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.3.2]

That is super subjective area. I as a subject cannot enter, cannot have any entrance in that finer world. But that can come down and contact with me. Superior consciousness can come down to contact with gross consciousness. But gross consciousness cannot go up, piercing the superior subtle consciousness and to make any investigation there, it is not possible. That can come to meet us, we cannot go up to meet Him. By nature the existence is such, super consciousness. Jīva consciousness is relative, lower consciousness, and Paramātmā consciousness higher. Then Nārāyaṇa consciousness, Rāmacandra consciousness, Kṛṣṇa consciousness, going higher to higher.

Devotee: What should be our behaviour with other Deities, other temples?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We should consider Them as appointed officers to conduct the activities of the world in different stages of the creation. They're all officer Lords.

Devotee: So we can offer obeisances and respect, worship also?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not with the object of bribing to get some, to fulfil local interest, but as the officer we can show some respect to Them, not neglecting.

Devotee: A couple of other Viṣṇu Deities, or Kṛṣṇa Deities. I'm talking about only other Viṣṇu or Kṛṣṇa Deities.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, you will show your honour to Everyone, you should.

Devotee: But is there any difference in Their behaviour towards our behaviour to Them, than our own Deities?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Deity, that is receiving worship of the lower classes. If to show honour to that Deity means to encourage the lower class people, then we should have to do it cleverly. From within I shall show respect, not outwardly, because these persons they'll be misled.

Devotee: Yes, that's what happened there.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. How can we, or should we try develop some internal realisation like remembering Kṛṣṇa, or is it more important to develop sādhana?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The only process, to improve our degree of surrender, and our realisation in the way of surrendering. Then that will come to meet me, come down to my level to make me understand.

Devotee: No separate endeavour.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No separate way. Only to attract Him to come down to my level. My negative side, that is my hankering, hunger, that should be improved. So invited by my humility He'll come down to take me. Negative side should be increased, no asserting, but attractive side. He'll have to take initiative, and mine is in the negative side. Humility, māna, need, dire need, all these things will attract. To come and not to come it is His free will. But intense invitation from my side. I cannot force Him to come. In other words I can force Him only by my earnest invitation. That I can do, I can increase the earnestness of my invitation.

"O Lord, You have to come, to deliver this fallen soul. I can't live without You."

In this way the negative side should be increased, to attract the positive.

Predominating and Predominated, two aspects, of the same thing.

Proton and neutron, what does it say in the science? The atom is broken, proton and neutron, or something like that? Or if the electron broken?

Devotee: Proton and electron, nucleus and electron. Electron is very small.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Two aspects everywhere.

prakṛtiṁ puruṣaṁ caiva, viddhy anādī ubhāv api
[vikārāṁś ca guṇāṁś caiva, viddhi prakṛti-sambhavān]

["You should certainly know material nature and the soul as beginning-less; and all bodily, sensual, mental, intellectual, or egotistic transformations, as well as the consequences of the action of the material modes - based on happiness, unhappiness, lamentation, and delusion - to be born of material nature."]
[Bhagavad-gītā, 13.20]

The possessor and the possessed energy. Energy and the possessor. These two things are simultaneous and eternal. Thing and its potency.

Devotee: They've recently found in science that the smallest particles like electrons, they're simultaneously exhibiting inconceivable characteristics of both particle and wave. You know it's very analogous to Mahāprabhu's description of the soul which is acintya bhedābheda, because...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. Everywhere, acintya bhedābheda everywhere. And now they've gone from atom to electron, then again if they analyse they'll have to go to more finer things. Ha, ha, ha. No end. No end that side, and no end also in the bigger side. After that, after that, ether, then, what is outside ether, outside electricity? One may say, "O, there's another thing outside electricity." All comprehended within, no end.

Then they'll have to trace that all these things are a part of the mind. Everything is a part of the mind, experience of the mind. From mind it comes out when in the dissolution, all the concrete things come out of the mind. And in dissolution all enters into mind, a portion of the thought world, nothing else. Subjective evolution. Not that from fossil into reason. The fossil has developed itself into reason, or intelligence. No! The fossil is a part, and everything is a part of consciousness. Subjective evolution.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. I want to ask you one question. Whether this aṣṭa prakṛti, earth, water, fire, air, ether, mind, intelligence, false ego - the aṣṭa prakṛti, whether it actually exists in the gross form, or it only exists in the consciousness of the soul?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Consciousness is the reality, everything there. In Viśvarūpa, where Kṛṣṇa showed Viśvarūpa to Arjuna, where does it come from? So many heavy things, Candra, Sūrya, Bhīṣma, Droṇa, all devouring, whatever is shown in Viśvarūpa, where from it came? All consciousness.

The hard thing, this is hard, this is also a sensation of the touch sensation. This is big, this is small, that is all sensation, experience of consciousness. Consciousness is the graphic, extensive, comprehensive. Brahman, according, everything within it. And Paramātmā, entering into everything.

aṇor aṇīyān [mahato mahīyān, ātmasya jantor nihito guhāyām
tam akratuḥ paśyati vīta-śoko, dhātuḥ prasādān mahimānam ātmanaḥ]

["Smaller than the atom, greater than the greatest, the Supreme Self secretly resides even within the core of the atomic individual soul [the jīva]. When the devotee beholds Him he is freed from lamentation, and by the grace of the Lord [Dhātṛ] he realises the superiority of the Supreme Soul."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.20]

The smallest of the small, and the biggest of the big, two aspects. Biggest of the big is Brahman, and smallest of the small is Paramātmā. And why all these exist? To fulfil the will of the Lord, Bhagavān. Bhajanīya-guṇa viśiṣṭha. One all comprehending, one all permeating, and Brahman, Paramātmā, and what is Bhagavān? It is meant for which? To serve which purpose? For His satisfaction, that is Bhagavān conception. Everything for Him. Whomever we come in contact, we want to love Him, at the cost of our whole life, sacrifice. That aspect represents Bhagavān. Whenever we come in His contact we're captured by His beauty, or His magnanimity, or any higher superior quality, and I want to serve Him. By that tendency we come to understand what is Bhagavān. For which everything is meant, everything, all existence is meant for that. That aspect is Bhagavān. And all comprehensive that is Brahman. And all permeating, antaryāmī, that is Paramātmā. In this way it has been - general description given.

Devotee: But prakṛti is also considered one of the five eternal elements, isn't it? Or the five eternal things.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But what are they?

Devotee: Bhagavān, then kāla, prakṛti, karma...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That all comes out of Bhagavān. All Yogamāyā, His prakṛti, His potency. Kāla, karma, that has come in Baladeva Vidyābhūṣaṇa's Gītā ṭīkā, it is mentioned here. And also there, perverted reflection. In Goloka also there is question of kāla, but not this mundane, but some sort of spiritual time.

Kṛṣṇa is growing, from childhood He's coming to youth, this is going. It presupposes kāla, and so many tendencies. Yaśodā doing so much service, that energy that is karma, but not karma of this type. That is another thing, vilāsa, līlā. Here it is karma, there that is līlā. And in līlā so many factors, the childhood, the youth, the old age, differences represented there.

Space also. Here is Rādhā-kuṇḍa, here is Govardhana, here is Vṛndāvana, all these things, question of space. But that is controlled by the will of Kṛṣṇa. Sometimes it's becoming far, and if Kṛṣṇa wills they're coming together. Ha, ha. In this way.

Devotee: But the demon killing pastime may not be there in Goloka, isn't it?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Demon killing, yes, that is also in some particular way. The Agha, Baka, Pūtanā, they're found in Goloka, of demonic representation. But that is not in their full strength as a necessary article for līlā. In this way the representation is there.

Devotee: How can the demons enter into Goloka?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Just as in a play, a drama, in drama a good man also may take the part of a demon to play. Like play, all līlā.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. One time I heard that in Goloka, the demons are not actually present, only rumours of demons. Some say that they're...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: They're something like portrait. They're inspired to play like that.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja _____ [?]

[33:50 - 34:30 ?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who are to start today?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Syāmānanda Prabhu, his wife, and Kṛṣṇa Mohan, Rādhikā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...which helps us to make our progress towards the truth, that is true truth. All else false. What helps me to go to my home, that is really help to me. All other movements are false.

A madman may have many thoughts and ideas, but what helps him to reinstate in his former life, that is really truth for him, which helps him to get back his real life. And other helps to satisfy so many other whims which comes out from that madman that is no help. Help proper is to help him to go back to his own homely life, which everyone is searching, knowingly or unknowingly.

Knowingly or unknowingly we're searching for the home comfort. We're not satisfied with our present environment, whatever it may be, some sort of uneasiness. So what helps us to, helps me to go to my home, desired home sweet home, that is true for me. All others false. Here, everyone has got tendency to go back to home, and homeward help is real help. Other help are all not only unnecessary but injurious.

That we should understand. That is dīkṣā, that is Kṛṣṇa consciousness, that is preaching of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. All else falsehood, and attempts of the foes and enemies. All false, not only false but pain producing, leading to misery. Only Kṛṣṇa consciousness is reality, has real value. All else witch or wizard. Do you know witch, wizard? Eh? You do not know witch?

Devotee: Which results in Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Witch, witch.

Badrināràyaṇa: A witch.

Devotee: O!

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: A mystic lady, that enchants, especially the boys. So that is māyā. Māyā means witch.

Devotee: So help comes from the positive side, and then all negative thoughts of the madman will be eliminated automatically? Is that so? Help comes to us from the higher quarter, and then the negative thoughts elimination.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We're to acquire that by sukṛti, by śraddhā, our willing cooperation. We have to come to that. We have to deserve, we have to earn that we may deserve. Other things will pass over my ear, I won't feel it, I won't care to come to its connection. Kṛṣṇa consciousness is flowing throughout the world, but there are so many men who are deaf to this call of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Even some animals and trees may be benefited. Still, some so called scholarly human beings they may be apathetic. They may be deceived of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Human beings may be deceived, but animals may derive benefit of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. It is possible. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. Scholarship is no qualification to go towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Neither master of energy, neither capitalist, nor scientist, they're qualified for Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. When a jīva starts falling, does he lose control and go all the way down, or can he stop his fall at any time?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Fall, that is the first idea. Jīva's ordinary position, of the fallen jīva, akṣara, non differentiated plane. And first starting is begun with some sort of curiosity. Just like a man begins his intoxicating habit, in the beginning, curiosity, something like that. But later on the intoxication that acquires some power and forces him to obey its dictation, something like that.

Devotee: In the beginning if he wants to stop...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Beginning with independent free cooperation out of curiosity. But when coming in contact he's coming within the fist gradually of māyā, and then forced to do the deed. That tendency, inertia.

Devotee: Then he goes all the way to the bottom of the ladder, to a worm or a...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's going down and coming up, reaction, action, reaction, coming and going. In a vicious circle moving.

Devotee: So every soul passing downward has to become a Brahmā also?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, maybe, and Brahmā's position must be crossed over, but he may be Brahmā or may not be.

Devotee: Brahmaloka he...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Brahmaloka he must have to pass over. But one may go in a lightning speed through Brahmaloka, with the speed of lightning. A devotee from this mundane plane he may have such sukṛti, grace of the Lord, then Virajā, Brahmaloka, Vaikuṇṭha, he may pass through quickly and go at once to the Goloka. It is possible. And gradually, slowly passing, going. Going up and down, up, down, in this way also slowly one can make progress. A question of particular fortune, particular _____ [?]

Devotee: Can the devotees go too fast?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Devotee of different type. All devotees is not one thing. All the devotees are not one and same. They have got their different individual acquisition. According to that their future will be determined.

Devotee: So what is the criterion for a devotee to make a very rapid progress?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Rapid progress that is they had strength to gather power from the outside, and that is the association of the sādhu and śāstra.

Devotee: Chanting and associating.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Surrendering, and on the basis of surrendering everything.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...there are forms, many forms there may be. But all must be of that type, of Godly type. Association of the holy things, with surrender. According to the intensity of the surrender, the association with the higher devotees, that will help one to make progress fairly, quickly.

Devotee: Ātma-nivedan.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. After ātma-nivedan, then śravaṇa, kīrtana, smaraṇa, vandana, so many things, but the basis is ātma-nivedan.

Devotee: Then they put ātma-nivedan in the last.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Self surrender.

Devotee: Ātma-nivedan is put in the last of the nine processes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In the last, it is in the beginning. Everything is everywhere.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Without ātma-nivedan no śravaṇa is possible. Without śravaṇa, ātma-nivedan won't increase. In this way visa-versa, interdependent, all one, all bhakti.

Devotee: Service and surrender.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Without surrender nothing can be bhakti. And without hearing and the others, sukṛti, ātma-nivedan may not come. In this way all interdependent, one and same. Originally one thing, and for our purpose we divide them in different ways.

Devotee: Everywhere centre, nowhere circumference.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. Everywhere centre, nowhere circumference. Helping mutually. One part presupposes another. Śravaṇa is first, but without kīrtana - how can you hear if there's no kīrtana? In this way. And without that mental memory how you can kīrtana or even śravaṇa? All interdependent.

Devotee: One is the attitude, the surrender is attitude, and service is activity.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Surrender is not attitude, but the innate nature, surrender. But that is covered now by different kinds of dirts. The inner function is surrender, innate wealth rather. The innermost wealth of every jīva is surrender. All surrendered truth. Service means on the basis of surrender. I serve, I dedicate. Dedication, surrender, slavery. Every unit is surrendering for the help of the other unit - that is Vaikuṇṭha conception. And just opposite here, every unit wants to exploit another, this is covered. And the innate substance of the soul is that - all mad to help neighbour, in connection with the Supreme Power. That is innate wealth, innate nature, of everything that is good cooperation, cooperation at the cost of ones own life. That is the nature of the inheritance of Vaikuṇṭha, Goloka. How happy. They're mad to look after the interest of others for the whole. And just opposite here.

Devotee: We've gotten some hint of that mentality when we came here.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Die to live. Die to live. Dissolve your ego wholesale, you'll find your golden self. This sham ego, that must be dissolved. Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś. [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.21 & 11.20.30] Then all doubts cleared, you will find you're quite at home.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. You were saying in the book Ambrosia that service and surrender are just like two tracks. Two tracks for bhakti, one is service and one is surrender.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Service and surrender. Where is it mentioned?

Devotee: I don't remember exactly where I read it.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Two wheels on which it's going?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Service and surrender.

Devotee: It appears to me that service...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Surrender, and on the basis of surrender the movement, progress is the object of surrender. Without surrender no bhakti can come, and the surrender nature will be traced in service, co-existence.

Devotee: But it appears that service is some kind of actual physical activity. Service appears to be more of an activity. Where surrender seems to be the underlying favourable attitude with which we do things. Is that right?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Surrender and service. Just as plan and work. A design and to work according to that design. Surrender is there, and on this basis practically going on, service, both must be favoured. Surrender does not mean only a static, stand still thing. It is also dynamic. Everything dynamic, not a plane only. It also has life, it increases. It has got different type also. Surrender of a friend, surrender of a wife, surrender of the parents, surrender of the materials of different type.

Devotee: What is the highest quality surrender?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? What quality?

Devotee: Surrender.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is found in consort-hood. Twenty four hours service is possible there. Surrender in the quality of consort-hood, that has been told to be the highest type of surrender and service, both. Surrender to the extreme, and service to the extreme, only in consort-hood. And in tyāga also different types. And Rādhārāṇī's considered to perform the highest. In other words, everything is coming out from Rādhārāṇī. She's the main Predominated Aspect. The whole negative side represented by Her. And others are different developments from Her. That is the position of Rādhārāṇī. That cannot be estimated from our puppy brain, it's beyond.

And Mahāprabhu, Both combined, came to inform about that. That by getting our admission in that line we can have experience of that quality of rasa. Rūpānuga sampradāya. The rūpānuga sampradāya, the speciality of Mahāprabhu reaches to the highest quality in the world.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. These are all imaginations, stories, tales, like. But this prospect even to us, if we can work out gradually, we have got our goal, destination, so high, that such conception. Kṛṣṇa confidence we can get admission into the confidential service of Kṛṣṇa of such high type. Our fortune may be connected with that. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Nitāi.

Devāśis: Mahārāja. I read in one book that śaraṇāgati is only a mental attitude, whereas ātma-nivedanam is the full surrender of the soul.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? What do you say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He said he read in one book...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who is he?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Devāśis Prabhu.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Devāśis. What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He read in one book that śaraṇāgati...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devāśis: Is only a mental attitude.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Is only a mental attitude, and ātma-nivedanam is the full surrender of the soul.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. Ha, ha. Who says it's mental, he's wrong. Mind cannot touch that level. Mind products comes from the workshop of māyā.

Devāśis: So are they the same thing Mahārāja? Śaraṇāgati and ātma-nivedanam?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Śaraṇāgati and ātma-nivedanam, are they the same?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Śaraṇāgati if analysed we'll find six elements there, maybe.

ānukūlyasya saṅkalpaḥ, prātikūlya-vivarjjanam rakṣiṣyatīti viśvāso, goptṛtve varaṇaṁ tathā.
ātma-nikṣepa kārpaṇye, ṣaḍ-vidhā śaraṇāgatiḥ
[evaṁ paryyāyataś cāsminn, ekaikādhyāya-saṅgrahaḥ]

["The six limbs of surrender are as follows: 1 - To accept everything favourable for devotion to Kṛṣṇa. 2 - To reject everything unfavourable for devotion to Kṛṣṇa. 3 - To be confident that Kṛṣṇa will grant His protection. 4 - To embrace Kṛṣṇa's guardianship. 5 - To offer oneself unto Him. 6 - To consider oneself lowly and bereft."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 22.100] & [Śrī Śrī Prapanna-jīvanāmṛtam, p 9-10]

Then within the six parts of śaraṇāgati Jīva Goswāmī Prabhu points out goptṛtve varaṇaṁ is the central element in śaraṇāgati. Ātma-nikṣepa, to throw, that mainly comes to ātma-nivedanam. So śaraṇāgati in the sense that is described in śāstra, ātma-nivedanam is its one part. Ātma-nikṣepa, to throw one desperately. But that is also not the vital point of śaraṇāgati. _____ [?] Goptṛtve varaṇa. To accept Him as Master, Guardian. "I'm Yours." Śaraṇāgati, ātma-nivedanam. "I'm Yours." That is the principal, central point of śaraṇāgati. "I'm Yours." And not to throw anywhere and everywhere. There must be some guardian. "I'm at Your disposal." That is the central thought of śaraṇāgati. And in a spacious way if we think śaraṇāgati, to do what is favourable to śaraṇāgati, to avoid what is opposite to śaraṇāgati, so many parts. But the main central nature of śaraṇāgati is, "I'm Yours."

Mere throwing desperately to any place, that is also not safe. The desperate bravery also we see from different persons for different purpose. For the political case, for the freedom of the nation, so many risky self sacrifice we see. But that won't come in the jurisdiction of śaraṇāgati, ātma-nivedan. It must be in a proper place, ātma-nivedan. That is to have the guardian, and to give His thing to Him. We belong to someone, and to give back to Him.

"That I'm Yours. So long I was thinking that I belong to me. Now I come to understand I do not belong to me. You are my owner. I'm Your slave, a constituent part of Your potency. I'm not independent." _____ [?] "Neither I belong to me, nor I belong to anyone, or so many friends and foes in the world. Or earth or sun or something, or air or ether or anything. I belong to You Kṛṣṇa. What are You? You are Kṛṣṇa, the attracting centre of everything which has got existence. Kṛṣ - ṇa, all-attractive principle. And attraction in the plane of consciousness that becomes love, affection. Attraction physically, sun attracting earth, earth attracting so many things, this is physical. But when it's endowed with life, or it's spiritual world, that is prema, love. And that is the highest entity. We all belong to that personification, all-attractor, through love, we belong to Him. Love includes mercy, harmony, beauty, everything subservient to love. This will be highest conception of divinity is love.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: ...explanations, he mentions repeatedly, Mukunda Dāsa Goswāmī. So previously we'd not heard of Mukunda Dāsa Goswāmī. So we're wondering if you could explain his position?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bana Mahārāja has translated Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu into English?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. First part. Not the complete edition but the first part.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bana Mahārāja, Swāmī B.H. Bana?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Devotee: In English?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: In English.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mukunda Dāsa Goswāmī, he compiled a commentary of Bhakti-rasāmṛta- sindhu? How he has mentioned his name?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: In Bana Mahārāja's explanations of particular verses, mainly he's quoting Jīva Goswāmī, but sometimes he will quote, he will say, "Mukunda Dāsa Goswāmī has said."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's another commentator of Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mukunda Dāsa. I don't remember. Mukunda Dāsa, one, two, three. In Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's or Prabhupāda's writings we do not remember any Mukunda Dāsa reference, Mukunda Dāsa. But he has not given any reference to that name? Bana Mahārāja?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: No, not that we could find.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Nimāi _____ [?] Nimāi.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Scriptures of the Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇavas in the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, in the Caitanya-caritāmṛta, so much stress is given to the lotus feet of a pure devotee.

naiṣāṁ matis tāvad urukramāṅghriṁ, [spṛśaty anarthāpagamo yad-arthaḥ mahīyasāṁ pāda-rajo-'bhiṣekaṁ, niṣkiñcanānāṁ na vṛṇīta yāvat]

[Prahlāda Mahārāja states: "Unless they smear upon their bodies the dust of the lotus feet of a Vaiṣṇava completely freed from material contamination, persons very much inclined toward materialistic life cannot be attached to the lotus feet of the Lord, Who is glorified for His uncommon activities. Only by becoming Kṛṣṇa conscious and taking shelter at the lotus feet of the Lord in this way can one be freed from material contamination."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.32]

The verses are there from Prahlāda Mahārāja, from Ṛṣabhadeva. And again in Caitanya-caritāmṛta, in the songs of Narottama Dāsa Ṭhākura, so always is mentioned the lotus feet of the Vaiṣṇava. So what should be the proper conception of the lotus feet of a Vaiṣṇava?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

martyo yadā tyakta-samasta-karmā, niveditātmā vicikīrṣito me
tadāmṛtatvaṁ pratipadyamāno, mayātma-bhūyāya ca kalpate vai

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.29.34]

Ātma-bhūyāya ca. According to the extent and intensity of their realisation the Vaiṣṇava are unified with Him as a part in a system. Just as the iron, or any other mineral thing, when caught by iron, that iron can get the capacity of the fire and that can burn things. So when Kṛṣṇa conception, Kṛṣṇa realisation, is wholly captured or transformed, any personality he gets the quality of Kṛṣṇa purity. And so his connection is cheaper in the market than Kṛṣṇa Himself. So if we can come in contact with any Vaiṣṇava - Vaiṣṇava means who is wholly absorbed in Kṛṣṇa, only Kṛṣṇa conception is fully representing there in him, then he gets the capacity of Kṛṣṇa for purifying. And it is easier for us to get the chance of association of a Vaiṣṇava than Kṛṣṇa Himself. So we're recommended everywhere to come in contact with Vaiṣṇava. And by their grace we may be purified wholesale. And we may also attain the status of a Vaiṣṇava. That Kṛṣṇa consciousness wholly absorbed in us, we have no other interest but Kṛṣṇa interest. We're wholly converted for Him, for Himself. No other separate business we shall have. But self determination fully attained that means we represent Kṛṣṇa's interest. Then we're so many agents of Kṛṣṇa, and whoever will come to Vaiṣṇava they'll get that Kṛṣṇa contamination, Kṛṣṇa interest, touch, association, conversion. All these possible only by so many Vaiṣṇavas that are covering Kṛṣṇa on all sides in different rasa.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Mahārāja. Yesterday on the way to Hāpāniyā, when we were travelling there, we went through the village of Vṛndāvana Dāsa Ṭhākura, his appearance place. So is it mentioned by Kavi Karṇapūra in Gaura-gaṇoddeśa-dīpikā that Vṛndāvana Dāsa Ṭhākura is he one of the Dvādaśaka Gopālas?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I don't think so. But Kavirāja Goswāmī has given respect to Vṛndāvana Dāsa Ṭhākura as "Vyāsa of Caitanya līlā."

[kṛṣṇa-līlā bhāgavate kahe veda-vyāsa] caitanya-līlāra vyāsa — vṛndāvana-dāsa

And Kavirāja Goswāmī has been considered as Śukadeva _____ [?] Caitanya līlā. That is the ontological side represented there, beautifully.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

The other day that gentleman came _____ [?] community _____ [?] whom I asked in the meeting to speak something about devotion, and he chanted only Sanskrit śloka. That gentleman expressed his heartfelt sympathetic appreciation for The Search For Śrī Kṛṣṇa.

He told that, "I've read many, many devotional books. But in such a short space the whole thing is represented in such a beautiful way, I'm simply charmed." That gentleman.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Ha, ha. Jaya!

Nimāi: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: [39:48 - 42:30 ?] To understand the principle of Caitanyadeva, of Gauḍīya Maṭha, with open mind. So it was thought that I do not understand any diplomacy, or tactfulness. But I came to catch with open mind what is the real teachings of Śrī Caitanyadeva. Sadar hoile gore śikṣā _____ [?]
If you can become simple then you'll be able to understand what is the teachings of Śrī Caitanyadeva. The simplicity is necessary, is the only qualification. It is plain, jñāna śūnya bhakti, not jugglery of reason and argument have much place in the teachings of Śrī Caitanyadeva. So intellect, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena.

[nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena
yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām]

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. When the living entity begs the Lord for His mercy, being desirous of His transcendental loving service, then the Supreme Lord reveals His self-manifest form directly before him."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] & [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.3.2]

Extensive reading of the scriptures, or sharp understanding, they have got no place in the line of Śrī Caitanyadeva. So simplicity, simple, simple. And not complex with the understanding of this misunderstood aspect of the world, diplomacy.

83.11.04.A_83.11.05.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...dharma, artha, kāma, the hankerings of the material pleasure, they will wait far, far away. Whenever a calling bell sounds they will rush: "What do you want?" The bhakta is there. They're always eager to serve him but he does not want. He does not want, no attention towards them. No attention, no time to spare for thinking about them. Deeply engaged in the service of Kṛṣṇa.

Where from Queen Kuntī Devī is inviting. "You come," the worldly adversity, she's inviting, "You come. When you come I get the chance of being united with the blessing of the touch of Kṛṣṇa Himself. So you come." She's directly inviting the adversity.

These are standing like lighthouse, beacon light for us encouraging to go on that path. There is something for which they're inviting we see and we must go on this path towards the land of Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣ - ṇa, Kṛṣ - ṇa, All-Attractor. The best friend of everything, the natural friend of the whole, Kṛṣ - ṇa, attracts and gives pleasure. Kṛṣ - ṇa. To be connected with Him direct process. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. There is more nobility there. Both the Parties combined, the greatest giver, the greatest taker. Who is giving, who is taking? It cannot be determined clearly who is giver and who is taker. Apparently seen that the potency is the giver and the consciousness is the taker. Anyhow, Both combined come here to distribute Themselves to one and all.

"This is the process. Accept this and come to Me." Very magnanimously, and almost the sole agent was Nityānanda Prabhu. He preached: "Anyhow, accept Gaurāṅga. Nothing to be done. I shall look after all other things. Take His Name, enlist your name in His group, I shall look after."

But it is unbelievable. We're so far, that to understand our own interest, we're so far from our own inner interest that it is difficult to believe what is interest, what is not. The interest Himself is running, wandering from door to door, "Accept Me, accept Me, accept Me. I have come to your door. You take Me, accept Me." It is also possible by His magnanimous līlā, pastimes, it is also possible.

nāmnām akāri bahudhā nija-sarva-śaktis, tatrārpitā niyamitaḥ smaraṇe na kālaḥ etādṛśī tava kṛpā bhagavan mamāpi, durdaivam īdṛśam ihājani nānurāgaḥ

["O my Lord, Your Holy Name bestows auspiciousness upon all. And You have unlimited Names such as Kṛṣṇa and Govinda by which You reveal Yourself. In Your many Holy Names You have kindly invested all Your transcendental potency. And in chanting these Names, there are no strict rules concerning time or place. Out of Your causeless mercy, You have descended in the form of divine sound, but my great misfortune is that I have no love for Your Holy Name."] [Śikṣāṣtakam, 2]

Many say that it is one hand giving and another hand taking, so much magnanimity is there! But some sort of durdaiva is opposing me to accept that. Then, what is giving, what is the fun of such preaching and distribution? Because it is not possible to get in a forced way, free, free achievement is necessary. Without disturbing our freedom, we are invited and welcomed. If freedom is not disturbed then everything will be spoiled. We are given to understand in such way, the harmony. Without interfering in our free will we are to be led to that, then we'll be benefited. This is the general way.

To say so, that also wants some devotion, he's already within the compound who can show so. "That it is my misfortune that I do not get You my Lord. You are so great. But I am the most unfortunate fellow." Who can say such, he's also within the jurisdiction, he is in the line. To be entitled to utter such words and thought, that requires something great. He's already in the compound.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

He's already in the relativity of the Absolute happiness, or good, then only he can utter such words, "that I can't get." And that is extended to the highest position. That is nature, that is the law. For the finite to get Infinite the only law is that, "that I can't get." Finite cannot finish Infinite. So his deepest connection can only make him utter such words, "that I'm not fit. I'm not getting, I'm thirsty, I'm not getting." That should be the real position of a finite in the relation with the Infinite. "I can't get." Infinite connection coming to him and influencing him and through his mouth, "I can't get, that I can't finish. I want more and more."

Even it went to Rādhārāṇī Herself. "I could not do justice what I should have done. What to speak not up to level, up to mark, I can't do. The service should have been of more higher and deeper type, but I failed."

This will be the region, no circumference. No satisfaction, where there is satisfaction there is limit, that is limit, but it is unlimited satisfaction. And the health also increases, hunger also increases, health develops, to consume more. Hunger increases. As much as it is coming in connection and identifying with the Infinite, he's also being of that type. But still it is cultivation, it is culture, it is serving, the service is there, culture is there, mutual transaction is there. For Reality. Die to live.

[na tu mām abhijānanti, tattvenātaś cyavanti te]

["Because I alone am the enjoyer and rewarder of all sacrifices. But since they cannot know Me in this way, they again undergo birth, disease, infirmity, and death."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.24]

"Arjuna, I am everything. You are My intimate friend. At least I won't deceive you. What to speak, I am everything. Man-manā bhava."

[man-manā bhava mad-bhakto, mad-yājī māṁ namaskuru
mam evaiṣyasi satyaṁ te, pratijāne priyo 'si me]

["Think of Me, serve Me, worship Me, offer your very self unto Me, and surely you will reach Me. Sincerely, this is My promise to you because you are My dear friend."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.65]

"Whole mind you give to Me. Mad-bhakto bhava. Become My devotee. Whole devotedness due to Me. Mad-yājī. Whatever you do, do only for Me. Be selfless to the extreme. Mam evaiṣyasi. You will enter and stay in Me for eternity. Pratijāne. I promise to you. Priyo 'si me. You are My favourite friend. At least I won't deceive you. I am everything. I am everything."

Another place: "You have come into this world many a time, I have also come. But I know them all, you do not know."

aparaṁ bhavato janma, paraṁ janma vivasvataḥ katham etad vijānīyāṁ, tvam ādau proktavān iti

[Arjuna said: "Vivasvān, the Sun-god, was born in ancient times, and You were born only recently. Therefore, how is it to be believed that You previously instructed these teachings to him?"]

[Bhagavad-gītā, 4.4]

"How can You say that You told this advice to Vivasvān, who is long and long ago born?"

Then Kṛṣṇa says: "Many a time you also came here and I also came, but you do not know any one of those previous lives, but I know them all fully well. This is the difference. I am everything." What is the most wonderful that Infinite has come in our form and He's asserting that, "I am everything." He has come in our level in such a way to assert, "I am everything. I am your heart's friend. I am all to you. Come to Me. You will get everything. Give up all your engagements, all the conceptions of your duties. They're all sham, temporary, cheating. But everything due to Me is reality. I am so. Such a thing exists in this world, the fulfilment of everyone's life. I am so and so."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. What's the time? Ten? So I drop here.

Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Prabhupāda kī jaya!

Devotees: Jaya!

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Śrīpāda A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!

Devotees: Jaya!

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What about her, that Vinode Bhani? You asked why?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Oh, I just wanted to know if in his presence, Śrīla Prabhupāda Bhaktisiddhānta had made any ṛtvik?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. Prabhupāda gave permission, and I was present there. "You can give Hari- Nāma there if anyone takes." I heard, I was present on the occasion.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Also, we were reading in Śrī Guru And His Grace when you were talking about Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura and Vipina-vihārī Goswāmī. So sometimes you say that, "Vipina-vihārī Goswāmī was in the line, so many lady gurus, they had passed the mantram down." But you say, "We don't give recognition to them. What is their realisation?" But Ṭhākura Bhaktivinoda, his formal connection is with Vipina-vihārī Goswāmī. So, we always say that there must be connection of a genuine Vaiṣṇava, of a real Vaiṣṇava. So we find in the writings...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is necessary in the case of a general man. But when any particular pārṣada comes, his initiation is only a formal one. In that case it maybe supported. So a śikṣā- guru paramparā. The formal dīkṣā-guru paramparā, that is cancelled. That is not important in the case of a pārṣada-bhakta.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. But I mean in the case of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, we don't see with our limited vision, any other teacher of him. But he's giving so many things, his books, Jaiva Dharma, Navadwīpa Dhāma Māhātmya, Caitanya Śikṣāmṛtam, he's giving the...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is the proof that already all this wealth was in his possession. So he's sent from, looking at the chaos, chaotic condition, he was sent here from above to re-establish things.

yadā yadā hi dharmasya, glānir bhavati bhārata

["O Bhārata, whenever there is a decline of religion and an uprising of irreligion, I personally appear, like a being born in this world. I appear in every age to deliver the saintly devotees, to vanquish sinful miscreants, and to firmly establish true religion."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.7-8]

"Whether I come down, or I send some representative, in this way."

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Sometimes, as in the case of Mādhavendra Purī, you mentioned what we find in him we cannot trace that in Mādhva...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Found in the Mādhva school, yes.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So did you say once he could be considered kṛpa-siddha?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, kṛpa-siddha. The development in the midway cannot but be so. In the line, some high development in the midway, we're to take it like that. Because ultimately we're to give judgement only seeing the material, we're to ignore the form.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. So in one of the next books when we have The Lives of the Saints, like Sādhu-jīvani, we want to make one book with all the lives of great devotees. You wrote one article called The Pontifical Position of Mādhavendra Purī many years ago in the Harmonist, so we want to include that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes I did.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Very wonderful article on the sampradāya.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Long ago. I was in Madras perhaps at that time.

At that time Prabhupāda was living, our Guru Mahārāja he was here when that article was written.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yesterday, you mentioned how Kavirāja Goswāmī has spoken of Vṛndāvana Dāsa Ṭhākura as the Vyāsa of Caitanya līlā. And in that section of Caitanya-caritāmṛta he mentions that in the future that more, that Vyāsa will come again and describe Caitanya līlā. How are we to understand that?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vyāsa, is something like a title. Whomever gives exposition to the Vedic meaning, they're known as Vyāsa. Vyāsa, Somāsa and Vyāsa, to harmonise, to elaborate things when they're put in a substance, that is Somāsa, to combine many into one. And Vyāsa means when one is extended, one thing extended in different ways by branches, that is Vyāsa. When the Vedic truth, the revealed truth is extended in such a way that it may be acceptable and understandable by many.

Veda tapa vinihita [?] The meaning of the Veda is taken from the source, and it is differentiated, and it is distributed to many. That is the title of the Vyāsa. This is a function of the Vyāsa. So there are many Vyāsa, and this Vyāsa is known as Kṛṣṇa Dvaipāyana Vyāsa, from whom we get the Bhāgavatam, Māhābhārata, all these, he's one of the special Vyāsas whose name was Kṛṣṇa Dvaipāyana Vyāsa. But there are many other Vyāsas previously. Whoever expands the meaning of the Veda, they're known as Vyāsa expansions, they're Vyāsa. So Vṛndāvana Dāsa Ṭhākura is recognised as the first Vyāsa of Caitanya līlā. And there may be in future many Vyāsas that will come to make expansion of the, that is to give detailed meanings of the līlā and the teachings of Śrī Caitanyadeva. Many Vyāsa will come and they will go on giving relation about Caitanyadeva and His teachings. The meaning is that. Vyāsa is not one, Vyāsa is rather a title. "Who gives expansion, explanation of the inner meaning of the Veda, He's Vyāsa."

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Don't say so.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. You're the living representative of Vyāsadeva.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Because you expand the meaning.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

artho 'yaṁ brahma sūtrānāṁ, bhāratārtha-viniṛṇayaḥ
gāyatrī bhāṣya rūpo 'sau, vedārthaḥ paribriṁhitaḥ

["Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam represents the real purport of Vedānta-sūtra. And although it is very difficult to draw out the real purpose of the one hundred thousand verse epic Mahābhārata, the great history of the world, Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam has come to give its real meaning. The mother of all Vedic knowledge is the Gāyatrī mantra. Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam gives the gist of Gāyatrī in a very full-fledged way. And the supplementary truths of the Vedas are also found within Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam."] [Garuḍa-Purāṇa]

In Bhāgavatam, new light, the very substance taken out and given to the public. "This is the meaning of the Veda, cannot but be." Just as I am always trying to take out the meaning from Gāyatrī, this Brahmā-Gāyatrī, how it's coming to the sweet sound of the flute of Kṛṣṇa. Gāyatrī, in the lower conception, is the Brahmā-Gāyatrī, and in the highest, the vaṁśi-nātha, the sound of the flute of Kṛṣṇa, one and the same thing. Religion is proper adjustment, and the flute sound is helping the devotees to adjust in their present function of respective duties. The sound, attracting the gopīs, instructing. "Come here, come there." All these. Yaśodā also serves hearing the sound of the flute, that says when He will come, making arrangement for His food etc., that vaṁśi-nātha, the sound giving direction to adjust everyone in their respective service.

That gāna, that song, and Gāyatrī is also in the beginning, Brahmā-Gāyatrī song which takes us out of the material world towards conscious world, Brahman. First stage Brahmā-Gāyatrī, the song that engages ourselves in Brahman that is all-conscious thing. From the fossil conception to subject consciousness, from objective to subjective consciousness. Brahmā-Gāyatrī's first call is from objective consciousness to subject consciousness. Then that develops in the subjective world. The hierarchy is there. There is Guru-Gāyatrī, Gaura-Gāyatrī, Kāma-Gāyatrī, in this way Gāyatrī develops in the meaning and goes to the Bhāgavata conception. So Mahāprabhu's kīrtana, that is also Gāyatrī. By chanting the Name of Kṛṣṇa we get emancipation: gānat trāyate, by singing which, the song that helps our self-determination, our emancipation, liberation. Liberation in the negative sense, and self-determination in the positive sense.

["Liberation is the permanent situation of the form of the living entity after he gives up the changeable gross and subtle material bodies."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.10.6]

What is mukti? What is salvation, proper? That culminates in self-determination, the positive side. And the negative side it takes us away from the conception of the objective world. So Gāyatrī, the song that helps us from the objective consciousness to the subjective. And then go further in the subjective world, up to self-determination. Mahāprabhu's kīrtana song also helps for self-determination. And Kṛṣṇa's flute also helps us in our immediate self-determination in the adjustment of respective service, as a guide. So, the same line, is Gāyatrī, going to Kāma-Gāyatrī, Gaura-Gāyatrī, in this way, above, to the acme, highest position of self-determination. When already in self-determination then also every day's programme, "Go there, go there, do this for Me, and all these things." That adjustment call also coming from the flute of Kṛṣṇa there. So song, of this Gāyatrī culminates in Kāma-Gāyatrī, ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa. The same, one and the same, harmony, advaya-jñāna, undivided absolute, from the surface towards the, He is such, innermost existence. Home, from foreign land to home. And home duty is also guided by that flute of Kṛṣṇa, by sound.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

So, not only that from the go section, generally the food of Kṛṣṇa, the favourite food also coming from that species, of the food of Kṛṣṇa. Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Every incarnation of God to be worshippable in different positions. Vaiṣṇava also of different sections, of different types, of different sections, different Avatāra. We should give our reverence to all, one and all, and special veneration towards Vṛndāvana.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] He's congruent where His day of - Vāmanadeva came and Bali Mahārāja surrendered to Him, ignoring the direction of his Guru. So that is a very important thing and we should respect. Perhaps that came in this day, congruent, Bali Mahārāja pūjā. Bali Mahārāja surrendered to Vāmana, in this day. So He should be given respect in general, we should worship Him. That is not connection with Vṛndāvana līlā, Govardhana pūjā. It is a separate thing. That took place in this day.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Mahārāja. Sometime you said that Śrīla Prabhupāda Bhaktisiddhānta, he would, in his last days said to construct a cottage in Govardhana, that his disciples should construct a cottage in Govardhana and he would go there.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. The tenor of his life on that preaching was: pūjāla rāgapaṭha gaurava bāṅge [mattala sādhu-jana viṣaya range] ["The path of divine love is worshippable to us and should be held overhead as our highest aspiration."] He himself behaved in that way, also taught us, "That don't think that you have reached that rāga stage. Always try from the lower position to give your reverence to rāga stage. Don't think that 'I'm established there, I have got my position in that higher stage,' then you will miss it.

Whenever you will make the subjective thing as the object of your experience, that higher subject will vanish. So if you want to make that permanent, always keep at a higher respectable distance. So he told the plane of our highest service is Rādhā-kuṇḍa. That is our goal. Service of the Vaiṣṇava of the highest type, they serve there, Kṛṣṇa is served there. The highest quality of service is found in Rādhā-kuṇḍa and we're concerned with that only. But if we pose that we are there we won't be able to maintain our position there. Only, the strategy is this, that if we pose we are in the lower plain and just in the front view, above that highest plane, then we can maintain our position safely. So he tended that Rādhā-kuṇḍa is the highest position of our service, and all our masters, lords, they are playing there. And from a little lower position we are to look at that, then it may be permanent. So close by we shall get the place Govardhana. Vṛndāraṇyam rāsotsavād udāra-pāṇi-ramaṇāt tatrāpi govardhanaḥ. Then rādhā-kuṇḍam ihāpi gokula-pateḥ premāmṛtāplāvanāt.

But best of all is Rādhā-kuṇḍa, which is situated at the foot of Govardhana Hill, and holds the supreme position because it is over-flooded with the nectar of the highest kind of divine love. Who is acquainted with the science of devotion who will not aspire for the divine service of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī at Rādhā-kuṇḍa?"] [Śrī Upadeśamṛta, 9]

The next lower position is Govardhana. We shall stay there and we shall go from that place to Rādhā-kuṇḍa and we shall serve our Guru and...

jñāne prayāsam udapāsya namanta eva, jīvanti san-mukharitāṁ bhavadīya-vārtām
[sthāne sthitāḥ śruti-gatāṁ tanu-vāṅ-manobhir, ye prāyaśo 'jita jito 'py asi tais tri-lokyām]

[Lord Brahmā said to the Supreme Lord Śrī Kṛṣṇa: "Oh Lord, Oh Unconquerable One, those devotees who, completely giving up all attempts on the path of jñāna of attaining the non-differentiated platform known as Brahma by hearing the transcendental narratives of Your pastimes, which emanates from the lotus mouths of the mahā-bhāgavat sādhus and pass their lives by engaging their body, mind and words in pure devotion, easily conquer You (they easily get Your transcendental association), although You are the most difficult to attain in the three worlds."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.3]

They hatefully reject any attempt in the intellectual line. Namanta eva. Invite submissive spirit within you. Namanta eva jīvanti. And in that way like to try to live your life. How to live life? San-mukharitāṁ bhavadīya-vārtām. Live the life in association of the topics about You - about the Lord. Of course, san-mukharitāṁ, not any topics about the Lord, but it must come from a genuine source, ye prāyaśo.

But he's attending that expressions of the good association must be of genuine type. Śruti-gatāṁ tanu-vāṅ-manobhir. By thought, deed and word. Only through that process! Sthāne sthitāḥ śruti-gatāṁ tanu-vāṅ-manobhir ye prāyaśo 'jita jito 'py asi tais tri-lokyām. In these three planes of life, You are found to be conquered by them only in that process, who wholeheartedly attain the teachings of Your divine agents. Wholeheartedly! By thought, word, and deed, then they can conquer You, Who is otherwise invincible."

śreyaḥ sṛtiṁ bhaktim udasya te vibho, kliśyanti ye kevala-bodha-labdhaye teṣām asau kleśala eva śiṣyate, nānyad yathā sthūla-tuṣāvaghātinām

["My dear Lord, devotional service unto You is the only auspicious path. If one gives it up simply for speculative knowledge or the understanding that these living beings are spirit souls and the material world is false, he undergoes a great deal of trouble. He only gains troublesome and inauspicious activities. His endeavours are like beating a husk that is already devoid of rice. One's labour becomes fruitless."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.4] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 22.22]

Śreyaḥ sṛtiṁ bhaktim udasya. The only way of devotion, rejected by whom? Kliśyanti ye kevala-bodha- labdhaye. When wants to have clear conception of You, Oh Lord. Teṣām asau kleśala eva. Their attempts ended only in useless attempts, or energising. Only pain is the consequence of their endeavour. Nānyad yathā sthūla-tuṣāvaghātinām. Just as those that labour much to get out rice from the husk. No paddy, only husk, the cover, and they're trying their best to press that husk to take out rice from there.

So, jñāna is the heart's cover, it is outer aspect, this energy and knowledge, outer aspect. The substance, the rice, is devotion, is love. That is tasteful thing within. Jñāna-karma anavṛtam. Other things are mere covers, but things within the cover is the tasteful. Satyam-śivam-sundaram. Sundaram is the reality, anāndam is the reality, and all else is outer cover. If we make too much with the cover we cannot get the substance within. Then our life is ultimately disappointment.

naiṣkarmyam apy acyuta-bhāva-varjitaṁ, na śobhate jñānam alaṁ nirañjanam kutaḥ punaḥ śaśvad abhadram īśvare, na cārpitaṁ karma yad apy akāraṇam

Naiṣkarmyam apy acyuta-bhāva-varjitaṁ. Those that are suffering from hard labour, they want to get rest, naturally. To live the life they're to depend on labour, and that is thought as useless and undesirable - labour and to live. If I have to live, then I must labour. That is a dishonourable life. So, generally, people's aspiration is how to live a life without labour? Naiṣkarmyam. They're in search of naiṣkarmya, rest, peaceful life of rest, not the servant of labour. Naiṣkarmyam apy acyuta-bhāva-varjitaṁ na śobhate. If they possibly can get it to certain extent, without the connection of Acyuta, that it is not estimated as a good gain, a successful life, mere retirement. Mere retirement in renunciation, that is also considered not to be fulfilment in anyone's life. Na śobhate jñānam alaṁ nirañjanam. Though in that stage, no contamination of death and birth, and disease and infirmity; still, that cannot be considered to be a very fine life. Kutaḥ punaḥ śaśvad abhadram īśvare, na cārpitaṁ karma yad apy akāraṇam. Then what to speak about this karma, work, labour, which is not done for the satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa? That is labour which is already held in a condemnable position, insulting position. Even that higher position of perfect rest is not considered to be a happy position, what to speak of this laborious life.

So which can give fulfilment to both the labour and rest, that is Kṛṣṇa, the harmonising principle of both. If you do for Kṛṣṇa, serve Kṛṣṇa, the labour also converted into gold, no longer iron. And if the rest, that is renunciation, that is also in the relativity of devotion, divine service, that has value, otherwise not. This is the speciality of the Bhāgavat's teaching, always trying to put the conception of divine love, sentiment, feeling, above our intellectualism and mastery over energy. The master of power and the master of knowledge, if devoid of the master of love they have got no value. On the other hand, devoid of these two, if it is possible to enter into the area of love, his life is successful. His movement is no longer considered as labour and is sambandha-jñāna, this is knowledge about the paraphernalia, who is who. That is not within the jurisdiction of any knowledge that we can get by research. Conduct research into the scientific condition into the nature, not like that. It is fulfilled in itself.

And Devarṣi Nārada came to Vedavyāsa to recommend that, "You must introduce this very clearly in your present book. You have dealt previously with different aspects of knowledge and work, but it is not so clear. So now very clearly and definitely you will have to describe independent of all them, the success of life is there in the full form without the help of knowledge, as well as energy."

Our reinstating is possible, reinstating ourselves to our lost wealth, that is possible independent of this sort of search, only break the seal. Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś. Break the seal of the fort of the ego, and then the natural flow will come and recognise, and have its own thing automatically. Such arrangement is there. So to come home you will have not to take the guidance of any director, or you won't feel any tedious labour in journey. You will be carried by your natural affection, independent of your external guidance. It can know his own soil, the plane can understand its own soil, a natural gift of attraction. No scientific search is necessary for that, the automatic attraction, that will bring you there, home.

Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ. Rather, you will be able to put a stop to your intellectualism, intellectual ambition and aspiration. It is unnecessary. It is wild goose chasing. It will never help me in reaching my goal. You will reject that. Chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ. There will be no room of any suspicion at all. A natural selection, infallible, natural, home selection is there. Try to find out that natural thing not acquired, not as the result of any long programme, fulfilling, fighting, war, all these things, quite natural. Only the artificialism in you, that is to be removed. That is to be bid adieu for all.

Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ, kṣīyante cāsya karmāṇi. The reactions so long you acquired in your false journey, that will evaporate out of itself. No problem! No problem! It is such. So karma has no reaction and no necessity of finding or discovering a new invention, all these things. Progressive knowledge, civilisation, all redundant. Home selection is such. A child can know its mother, a calf also, there are so many cows, yet a calf runs to its own mother. Something like centre, something like natural guidance. Anyhow you go, not much trouble, not much investigation, nor experiment, nor suspicion, nor clearance of that. Automatic, natural, happy, spontaneous life flow, movement, the interest is love. Love is such, independent of anything it can remain, love, affection, the innermost substance in the existence is such.

To live, dive into reality they say, dive deep into reality and you find your home there. You are a child of that soil, quite comfortable. That is Bhāgavatam and Mahāprabhu. And that is not a very meagre and abstract, hazy thing, but that is the most intense and reality is that.

Mahāprabhu showed in His character how much intensely He searched for Kṛṣṇa. And how intensely He engaged Himself deeply in that līlā of Kṛṣṇa, ignoring so many facts concrete in the outside world. Forgetting everything, despising everything which is so important to us. So many functions, so many duty considerations, all are neglected and how deeply and intensely He engaged Himself in Kṛṣṇa līlā. Diving deep into it, captured His whole heart so intensely that externally He was found helpless; jumping into the ocean, crossing the wall, coming to the Jagannātha temple unknowingly. What sort of deep attraction for that Reality, Jagannātha? We see the Vigraha, the wooden form of Jagannātha. But how could He see? Tears running down incessantly filling up so many small pits, one after another, pits are being filled by the tears. What does He see? What is the depth of His vision? Is He seeing the wooden form of Jagannātha that we see? What is He to see? How He is feeling? What intensity is in Him?

yasyāṁ jāgrati bhūtāni, sā niśā paśyato muneḥ]

["While spiritual awareness is like night for the living beings enchanted by materialism, the self-realised soul remains awake, directly relishing the divine ecstasy of his uninterrupted spiritual intelligence. On the contrary, the wakefulness of materialistic persons addicted to sense enjoyment is night for the self-realised person who is completely indifferent to such pursuits. The realised souls, indifferent to the mundane, are ever joyful in the divine ecstatic plane, while the general mass is infatuated by fleeting mundane fancies devoid of spiritual joy."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 2.69]

So this is all night to Him. Our day world was really night to Him, and what was night to us that was a very clear day to Him. He was fully awake there, He showed by His example, forgetfulness of this apparent interesting world. And what we think imagination, superstition, deeply diving there, He showed by His own characteristic and nature, own example, own practices, that how sweet, how capturing is the life of a devotee in the internal world of reality.

And mayi dṛṣṭe 'khilātmani. [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.21 & 11.20.30]

"When they find Me everywhere, solution finished!"

He's there. What my duty will be there? The Director, the All-dispensing officer is there. He can make or mar everything. He's there. What I shall feel is my duty towards that thing? So all ties dissolved, no duty. But still I find some inclination in discharging the duty for Him to help Him. To help Him, He's such. And that is our own reward. Not that He wants it. Without my help in discharging duty or service towards Him He will be undone, or He'll be imperfect, not that. My fulfilment is there, and no want of accommodation, no bankruptcy there. He can give us engagement, any number of engagements we can get there for our interests. He's all right. Without my help He can go, He can do. It is not for that purpose. But for my fulfilment I want that connection of Infinite. My service won't add something to that, but I will be happy in the highest sense. He's there. Everywhere is He. So my responsibility is to do good to the work, but still they come at His inspiration, His guidance.

"Comes to the world to say about Me. Try to recruit them for their fulfilment of life. Not for My necessity. My necessity is that they're suffering."

Para-duḥkha duḥkhī. There is such a conception of life that one has got no pain of his own, but still he has got some pain for others. That is also within him, but not concerning his own self, but concerning the pain of the outside. Such pain is also existing. Dāsa Goswāmī says about Sanātana Goswāmī. Para-duḥkha-duḥkhī. "You Sanātana, you Gurudeva, came to help me because you could not tolerate my pain in your heart. So you came to deliver me from my difficulty. But you have no pain for yourself. You are perfectly in the safest position."

kṛpāmbudhir yaḥ para-duḥkha-duḥkhī, sanātanaṁ taṁ prabhum āśrayāmi]

["I surrender unto Śrī Sanātana Goswāmī, the Ācārya of sambandha-jñāna. He is an ocean of mercy and is always unhappy to see the sufferings of others. Although I was blind, in the darkness of ignorance, he gave me the light of transcendental knowledge. He taught me the real meaning of detachment and made me drink the highest nectarine rasa of divine love."] [Vilāpa-kuṣumāñjali, 6] & [Bhāgavatam, 5.18.12, purport]

What is that safest position? Not to care anything for him but Kṛṣṇa. That is the highest position showed by the gopīs. "If necessary I can contract eternal hell for my whole life for the satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa." The most desperate position, of self-forgetfulness for Kṛṣṇa. No pain or pleasure for them, still they're found to be in severe pain in separation of Kṛṣṇa. Acintya-bhedābheda. Not for his own account, but for Kṛṣṇa's concern. That knowledge, that position, that friendly connection with Kṛṣṇa, that is intolerable to them. That is intolerable, vipralambha, bhedābheda. But, the characteristic is this, peculiar, that that pain, that is external, but internally they feel great pleasure, satisfaction.

Here, just as in the opposite world of exploitation, apparently robbing things we find satisfaction, superficially. But there is underground some suspicions that the result won't be very good, the reaction will come to attack me underground. Superficially we may feel.

America conquered Japan, or the world, by atom bomb. Superficially they enjoyed the pleasure of defeating the world. But that is apparent. Internally the apprehension is there, reaction may come. For such a disastrous action, it is self-condemned. It is not human. Similarly, our victory on the surface, that cannot eliminate the apprehension within for the reaction, it cannot be satisfied. In demonic stage, it can absolve to certain extent for ignorance, but pain is there. As much as sensibility, doing heinous action to another, the pain is with that. But there in the Kṛṣṇa conception, just the opposite.

bahye viṣajvāla haya, bhitare ānandamāya, kṛṣṇa premara adbhuta carite

["The wonderful characteristic of divine love of Kṛṣṇa is that although externally, it works like fiery lava, internally it is like sweet nectar that fills the heart with the greatest joy."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.50]

Here also in the world we find so many persons they gave their life for helping others. But they spent all their energy and money for the good of the others, so many examples. And they're outwardly leading a poor life, but internally at mind they're happy. Externally leading poor life but internally happy.

So also in Kṛṣṇa conception, those that are wholly given to Kṛṣṇa, externally they may be seen to feel pain of separation of Kṛṣṇa, and so many other things. But internally they're in touch with absolute joy. They have done right things. Quality is of the highest degree, the quality and the joy is of the highest type. Everything for Kṛṣṇa, Reality is for Itself. "I am for Himself. I am in the finest harmony." No hitch, no possibility of any hitch of a dislocated anomaly, smoothly going on, pleasure, no pain, but something natural, peace found in them. "The sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest things."

["Our sincerest laughter with some pain is fraught;
Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought."]
[The English Romantic poet, Percy Bysshe Shelley, 1792-1822]

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. What is pain and what is pleasure? That is to be understood. External pain by which we are captured, but that is not real pain. Internal pain, plenary pain is real pain. So plenary, fundamental pleasure is real pleasure which is very eager in its turn to carry pleasure to you, but you do not care for them.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is the strategy of remaining in the relativity of the highest quarter of service of Kṛṣṇa.

pūjāla rāgapaṭha gaurava bāṅge [mattala sādhu-jana viṣaya range]

["The path of divine love is worshippable to us and should be held overhead as our highest aspiration."]
[Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura]

He wanted us to teach in that way. So he ordered that a cottage should be built in Govardhana.

"I shall live there. And from there - I'm not fit to live in Rādhā-kuṇḍa, I'm little lower - but my Gurus, Gaurakiśora Bābājī, Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, and others, they're fit to serve there. We shall go and serve them and come in the next lower position and there we shall stay."

To maintain the subjective position in the subjective world that is a tactic, tact. Otherwise, if we think we're in the highest quarter, that will vanish from us. Only from a little down, with respectable eye, we can have the vision. And whenever we think that we're there, it is nowhere, it is the nature. So at respectable distance we can have a look of that thing. That is a peculiar principle. If you look straight you lose, but if you try to look at it with some screen, or any other hiding place, then you can see. A peculiar type of posing of seeing, or coming in contact with the thing of the highest order.

If you like to see it, to contact with it direct, then it will vanish from your experience, from your look. Ha, ha, ha, ha. Espionage, through spy you can know things of the enemy land but not direct. Ha, ha, ha. They can't come in direct connection, but through spy you can, something like that. Espionage. If you go to know direct it is impossible, something like that. Hare Kṛṣṇa. So become spy, only from behind the screen you can handle, interfere, but not direct. Things are such. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So that is the eternal position of the jīva-śakti?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The land is such. Kṛṣṇa is also playing like that, something like a thief. The play in that particular order and there, in that way, we can have the highest experience of the ontological truth. By chance, as if by chance, ontological truth comes to us. He accepts us suddenly we can find Him. He's Absolute, He's autocrat, He's independent. Whenever whimsically He comes to give His connection to me, then I can have that. It is never within my clutches. So through the, it won't come directly within my control, by nature. But the highest position, to have Him in closer connection, has been devised by the devotees in that way. Because by nature He's not a thing to come direct within my control, always above. So by this system we can come to the highest realisation.

In the highest order in the līlā of Rādhā-Govinda, Rādhārāṇī's always bhāma. Kṛṣṇa asks Her to do something, "No, I won't do that." And this has been accepted as the highest mood of the negative side. "I won't." Whatever He will want, to deny that. That is bhāma-bhāva and Rādhārāṇī's full of that nature, and that enhances the eagerness, earnestness of Kṛṣṇa. So the whole thing is a crooked one. And this is the way recommended for the poorest to come in contact with the highest. It is a wonderful device. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Direct transaction, clear, face to face transaction, is absent there. Everything is stealing, all stealthily performed. And there you'll be gainer, like black marketing. In the highest area, in the area of autocracy that is wholly black marketing. Aprākṛta, aprākṛta-vāt, just similar to the lowest conception of things, the highest is that. Autocracy is considered to be the lowest in our present living, we can't tolerate, but autocracy is there. So, aprākṛta, the highest quarter of the transcendental world which can harmonise with everything which is considered to be of the lowest type, all harmonised. That is the beauty, the beauty, what is undesirable, what is nasty, what is bad, that is harmonised in such a way that that gives the highest position. The harmony, the harmonious strength is so much there. His peculiar position is so much there where the lowest has proved to be the highest by His magical touch. Because He's there, no dirt is dirt, that is purest. His magical touch means that. The Kṛṣṇa consciousness, the touch of Kṛṣṇa, the Beauty of the highest order, just as the touch-stone, whether one wants not only silver to make it gold, but iron, lead, anything of the lowest order, that may be turned into gold. The touch-stone is so powerful. The lowest type of everything of our conception gets the highest position by the magical touch of that wonderful substance, and He's Kṛṣṇa, He's Kṛṣṇa. All the dirty things coming in contact with Him, harmonised in such a way that holds the highest position. The highest centre is so wonderfully powerful, or whatever you'll like to say.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Ha, ha. [Raghunātha] Dāsa Goswāmī says: "If you are not up to mark to accept this as truth, then you'll be thrown down into paravyoma. Go and live there where there's the general law and rules, fair dealings, go there. Go down to the land of fair dealings." Ha, ha, ha, ha. "Vaikuṇṭha, there are simple dealings there, you can calculate and go on veneration."

But this most diplomatic position, even Brahmā, Mahādeva, they're all bewildered to know.

Brahmā confessed: "How I can know that a cowboy with the rod in His armpit and taking His morsel with His friends in a one pot giving in the mouth, and going in search in the forest, and He's the highest? How can I know?" Brahmā says: "I have got some intimacy with my father, Nārāyaṇa. Sometimes whenever any difficulty I approach Him to get some instruction and do accordingly. But I have not come in connection with any Supreme Power of such nature. A cowboy in one dish taking food with His friends and with a rod in His armpit He's going in search for cows and He's the highest? So now I see that You are far above than my father Nārāyaṇa. That is fair field we can know but these most tactful and obscure diplomacy we have never experienced any time that this is in the highest quarter. How? We should not be blamed for that. Wonderful, obscure."

"Full many a gems of purest ray serene
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear;
Full many a flower is born to bare unseen,

To lose its sweetness in the desert air."
(Thomas Gray's Elegy in a Country Churchyard)

There may be unknown quarter, there may be so much wealth and so much sweetness unknown to us.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. To find our highest Mastership, our Lordship, as a thief, what peculiarity. Who is the Master of everything, He's a thief. Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha. Everything in Whose possession He comes as a debauch. Everything belongs to Him, but He's playing the part of a debauch. All wonderful. He's a thief, everything belongs to Him and He behaves as a thief, as one of us. A peculiar plane, all equal, superior also, father, mother. Mother whipping and He's weeping, mother whipping and the Lord weeping. A peculiar type of līlā, pastimes. The bhakti, here is bhakti. Where is bhakti ? What is the symptom of pure devotion? Where the highest authority is submissive to the servant, there is devotion. Devotion to be located there where the Master is subservient to the servant. That peculiar power of devotion is to be found there. Bhakta- parārdhīno.

sādhubhir grasta-hṛdayo, bhaktair bhakta-jana-priyaḥ]

[The Lord tells Durvāsā: "I am the slave of My devotees; I have no freedom apart from their will. Because they are completely pure and devoted to Me, My heart is controlled by them, and I reside always in their hearts. I am dependent not only on My devotees, but even on the servants of My devotees. Even the servants of My devotees are dear to Me."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 9.4.63]

The highest has been forcibly taken down to serve the devotees, His servants. A peculiar power of devotion, devotion means this. Kṣetra-hari prema bhajana. The last acquisition of devotion is this, that that can control the Supreme Lord and forcibly take Him to the devotee as a friend, as a friendly servant. The Master submits and surrenders to the servant, a peculiar thing that is there. So what more we can expect?

The Infinite is at the disposal of the finite. So much to say. Can we conceive? And that is done stealthily in various diplomatic ways. So finite has got its supreme most unthinkable position, that the Infinite is coming to serve him, the finite. The most glorious unthinkable position a finite can have, unthinkable that the Infinite is at the disposal of the finite. What is this? Impossible, this impossible can be effected by devotion, rāga, love. Love is such a powerful, unthinkable jewel. It is impossible, the Infinite's defeat to finite. What is that unthinkable position? It can be attained through love only. Love. So how adorable and how precious and valuable the love is. And to acquire a drop of that, what sacrifice we should do? Nothing is bigger. To acquire a drop of that divine love, no sacrifice is sufficient, is enough. Die to live. So wholesale death is adorable life. It is the impossible of the impossible.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. And Mahāprabhu came to give you that. And who is He? How magnanimous is He? He Himself is in that position, He has come to us begging from door to door. "Enlist your name to purchase that thing." He came as a canvasser from door to door.

"Enlist your name. I have come to recruit for that highest quarter where the Infinite will be slave to the finite. And that valuable thing, a drop take, from the land." It is the impossible of the impossible. Is it possible? Ha, ha.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.
Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.
Inconceivable of the inconceivable.
Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.
Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. So I close here.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Jaya. Jaya Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda Paramahaṁsa Parivrājakācārya Aṣṭottara-śata Śrī Śrīmad Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Śrīpād A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!

Devotees: Jaya.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...that is also a peculiar plane of the conception of the Infinite. I heard once said by a servant of a Vaiṣṇava that it is the sweet will of his Guru, our Gaura Kiśora Dāsa Bābājī Mahārāja, to live as long as he likes, it is his sweet will. The basis is that what Vaiṣṇava wills, Kṛṣṇa sanctions that without any hesitation. So we take it what a Vaiṣṇava wills that is absolute. Sometimes there is a line of understanding in this way. That is to find the Infinite in every part of it. Every part represents the whole, that is a peculiar nature of Infinite. What a servant wills, we can take it for certain that it's Kṛṣṇa's will and it cannot be violated. In that sense that Infinite represents Himself fully in every part of it in His own zone.

So from there, this expression, "As you have kept Me I am so." Ha, ha. This line of thought originates from this conviction. Mutually. A Vaiṣṇava says to another Vaiṣṇava, "As You like, I am like that. As You have kept I am so and so." The fashion, the etiquette is like that, and the truth behind is like that in the ontological calculation. What a Vaiṣṇava wills Kṛṣṇa wills accordingly, and what Kṛṣṇa wills then it is Absolute, in this way. "As you have kept Me I am so and so." The background of such statement is like that. Kṛṣṇa. The Vaiṣṇava commands Kṛṣṇa, His will. Every part of the Absolute is Absolute. Ha, ha, ha. He's so.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. His parivasa. Kṛṣṇa.
Nitāi Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Mahārāja. In this regard, sometimes you say the Vaiṣṇava Guru has two aspects. His own adhikāra and level of attainment and capacity, and the inspired side of the Vaiṣṇava is the Guru.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. With his personal and delegated power, two sides. Inspired side, that is inspiration given by Kṛṣṇa. Just as an officer, a private man, and the man in the service. A District Magistrate, or a Captain, General, anyone, his personal capacity and his official capacity, in this way the difference. As delegated power as representative of Kṛṣṇa, he talks in a way of official style. But independent of that he's a person and he's very humble. "I'm nothing." In that way, niṣkiñcana.

"Everyone is delivered from the sinful world, only with the exception of me." Narottama Ṭhākura says. "Mahāprabhu came and delivered the whole world. All the fallen souls delivered, save and except myself." tuwa narottama aloila bhadi jagat udhar he jalu e avatari [?] "In this incarnation the whole sinful world is absolved, only with the exception of my most fallen soul."

That is a sort of feeling in them as regards personal position. Kavirāja Goswāmī he says, Purīṣera kīṭa haite muñi sei laghiṣṭha ["I am so mean, lower even than the worm in stool."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 5.205] And when he's in the office, official side: "This is the truth what I say and there is nothing to concern it. Whoever does not care for this is doomed." Kavirāja Goswāmī, the man who says, "I am the worst of the worms in the stool. A greater sinner than even the Jagāi and Madhāi etc.," he says, "That Mahāprabhu's Avatāra is doing such and such magnanimous work. If anyone misses this chance he's gone forever."

pāiyā amṛtadhunī, piye viṣa-garta-pāni,] janmiyā se kene nāhi maila

["Anyone who attains a human body but does not take to the cult of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu is baffled in his opportunity. Amṛtadhunī is a flowing river of the nectar of devotional service. If after getting a human body one drinks the water in a poison pit of material happiness instead of the water of such a river, it would be better for him not to have lived, but to have died long ago."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 13.123]

"Who loses this chance, what is the good of his living? It would rather have been better if he'd died immediately after his birth. He could not take the chance of human life in such a great magnanimous opportunity." In this way he's asserting. Personal capacity who thinks himself even worse than a worm in the stool, in official capacity his statement is so courageous. That those who have not accepted the grace of this great magnanimous incarnation of the Lord, his position is the worse type of suicidal person. Pāiyā amṛtadhunī, piye viṣa-garta-pāni. There is the flow of the nectar, and neglecting that he's drinking the water of a poisonous pit. In the poisonous pit there is water and that he's drinking, leaving the flow of the nectar. Janmiyā se kene nāhi maila. That is so worthless, useless and unfortunate. This strong assertion, from whom? Who thinks himself independently of his inspiration that, "I am worse than a worm in the stool."

So two sides, one inspired by Kṛṣṇa, and another taken away from that grace of Kṛṣṇa. Two types of personality we find. As a servant of the Vaiṣṇava, that is in the official function in the office of Kṛṣṇa. Doing something, in charge in his duty, that is one personality. "I have got this responsibility to do from the higher. So like a District Magistrate I must do it." In this way. Two-fold functions we see, one personal, another official, in the service of the Lord. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Mahārāja. One question here. We've got Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam published by Tridaṇḍi Śrī Bhakti Prajnan Yati Mahārāja. And in the introduction, the beginning, he has written a statement here. He says, "Fallen, fallen, still fallen am I. Who else except Śrī Gaura Hari's mercy embodiment, Śrī Nityānanda's other self, Gurudeva. His Divine Grace Śrīmad Bhakti Vilāsa Tīrtha Goswāmī Mahārāja, who is none other but Bimala Mañjarī. He has operated on my eyes with the collyrium.

oṁ ajñāna-timirāndhasya jñānāñjana-śalākayā, [cakṣur unmilitaṁ yena, tasmai śrī-gurave namaḥ]

["I was blind in the darkness of ignorance but my Spiritual Master applied the ointment of proper spiritual knowledge and thus opened my eyes. Unto him I offer my respectful obeisances."]

This line, so...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Then he says, "I record the fact that one day in a spiritual vision my divine master commanded me to follow him and soon I could see myself present along with him at an enchanting dalliance of the Rasa-Rāja and Mahābhāva at that transcendental sportive land of Vraja. What a marvellous sight. But soon, I lost myself in ecstatic rapture. Alas! I lost the vision and lamented so bitterly when my divine master, once again appearing before me, behested me to penetrate upon Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam and commissioned me...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is the next? I could not follow.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He had a vision of Rasa-Rāja and Mahābhāva in Vraja. "And after some time I lost that vision and lamenting, again my Divine Master came, Gurudeva appeared and ordered me to take this task, take up this work of Śrīmad-Bhāgavata _____ [?] translate Bhāgavata.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And I am engaged by special request after coming down from the highest position.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. So we feel a little difficult.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Question _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Question _____ [?] is this your question?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's posing in this way, the Bhāgavata _____ [?] our Gurudeva Bimala Mañjarī _____ [?] Rādhā-Govinda Rasa-Rāja Mahābhāva _____ [?] must be of perfect nature, most perfect nature, that is the _____ [?] What is the purpose underlying? But what I say, that is perfect and infallible. After getting the perfect vision by the grace of my Gurudeva, by his special request I have come down and I am explaining Bhāgavatam. So you should be taken as the highest angle of vision. _____ [?] Is it true [?]
_____ [?] How far this is true? _____ [?] Is it?

Devotees: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That how far we can accept this as true?

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Itihāsa, history.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He's recording history.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What I avoided in case of our Goswāmī Mahārāja. So many things what I know, but if I say it will create havoc. Ha, ha, ha. _____ [?] So far I know in this connection that when _____ [?]

Śrīla Guru Mahārāja: It is confidential, something.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Right. We just want to know for ourselves Mahārāja.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: That can be taken off also.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But when [Śrīpād Bhakti Vilās] Tīrtha Mahārāja, that is Kuñja Bābu at that time, Kuñja Bābu we considered himself to be the co-founder of this Institution, Gauḍīya Maṭh Mission. But sometimes we are told that for the financial difficulty he had to accept a service in the war field in Mesopotamia in the First Great War. The staff, he was working in the Post Office, then the clerks who took the risk of going to the war field they could get a big remuneration. So he accepted that service and went, risking his person, to that place. And it was told that for financial difficulty, to meet the expenditure of the Mission he was compelled to do so for greater remuneration.

At that time Prabhupāda found himself...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...of the administration, management. Our Guru Mahārāja was of ontological nature, of sannyāsī, and not very practical to meet so many persons for preaching purpose, etc., of secluded nature. So he felt himself too much disturbed by the absence of [Śrīpād Bhakti Vilās] Tīrtha Mahārāja. At that time he was very much disturbed in his heart and expressed some of his internal relationship with Kuñja Bābu.

There is a letter and it was published, that letter of Prabhupāda. There we find that Prabhupāda says, he gives his own identification as Nayana-maṇi Mañjarī. "I am a young girl. Nayana-maṇi Mañjarī is my name. Vṛṣabhānu-nandinī, the Rādhārāṇī, likes me very much and She always tries to keep me just before Her eyes. But I am not very able, expert in discharging my duties. But Bimala Mañjarī can help me to do my quota of service, even by Rādhārāṇī. But at present that Bimala Mañjarī has become apathetic towards Rādhārāṇī and left me. _____ [?] So I'm not able to discharge my little quota of duty that is expected from me by Rādhārāṇī."

That this formula, this is a formula, according to which one will try to find his real highest aim of realisation, travelling through this path. It is couched in such a way. So from there we know, Bimala, that was the name of Prabhupāda, Bimalānanda, Bimala Prasād. So from his name, connected with his name, Kuñja Bābu was given the name of Bimala Mañjarī. And he was expert in doing the external side of the duty, and Prabhupāda, he with his help could satisfy, or satisfactorily discharge his own duty as wanted by Rādhārāṇī. Or as he saw it, Her, in Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura. This is a kind of posing formula. Following this we are to reach to our goal. From there we can, we know, that Bimala Mañjarī in the internal circle of service, Kuñja Bābu and he's in such position.

So taking that position of his Gurudeva at present, that Yati Mahārāja, he also conceived him as his servitor and, "That Bimala Mañjarī he must have got a bona fide position in the higher circle. And by my fervent prayer I came near him and got some inspiration to do this, to undertake this task. And I am doing so." That is what he wants to say here, as far as I understand.

But this is a formula of the higher type for our realisation. But how far one is practically doing and how far it will be applied to any particular case, that is to be determined. One side, the sahajiyā, they have all such formula and they're trying to follow this. And we cancel them abhorrently. At another side, such things are really existing for the lover of truth, cent per cent, and to approach from his bona fide sincere position of higher devotion. So particular cases should be dealt whether it can be applied here or there.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: One question arises, that, generally we preach, or we hear Your Divine Grace say, "That if I have got it, or if I have seen it, then it is rotten." Generally such high things are not admitted so openly in the public. And if a great soul has got such a vibhūti he will not say such things to the general mass. So this is the only thing which we're anxious about.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Yes, correct.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: This is not for advertisement, but to be concealed like the highest, most precious achievement.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. _____ [?]

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...that in Prabhupāda's writings, Anubhāṣya, or the Bhāgavata _____ [?], we did not find such type of self-advertisement.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Never. I think at the end of Anubhāṣya, in a very covered way...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Very covered way.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: In a very hidden way, he mentioned his Gurudeva...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gaura Kiśora Dāsa Bābājī Mahārāja, Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Svarūpa Dāmodara, Gadādhāra.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "But I am a servant of a servant."

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: But nobody can understand that unless they are connected with Prabhupāda in the Mission. A general man will read it and cannot understand the meaning. It looks like poetry.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: In Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's Bhāgavata-Arka-Maricimālā, he says, and it sounds as though Yati Mahārāja has taken from there. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura says: "One day, while penetrating deeply on the meaning of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, Svarūpa Dāmodara, the right-hand personal attendant of Mahāprabhu, came to me in a vision and said: "You divide into sambandha, abhideya, prayojana, Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam," and give a special explanation of the first verse. So Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura says: "I did not think it proper to disclose this, but I fear some offence to my Guru and my superiors if I do not admit it." So in almost the exact same language, Yati Mahārāja he is plagiarising, they say in English, plagiarism.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "If I do not mention this then I commit some offence against my Guru."

Devotees: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So he has got direct order in his inspiration. "That you give your, you express your position as such, and then you begin this work."

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura _____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Bhāgavata-Arka-Maricimālā, ekadas śloka. Janmādy asya yato 'nvayād.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Janmādy asya yato 'nvayād [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.1.1]. A new explanation he has given, drawn from the inspiration of Svarūpa Dāmodara. And also he has expressed that he gave a new explanation to a particular śloka of Bhagavad-gītā. Kṣipram bhavati dharmātmā, [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.31]. In an assembly of Yāmarāja, śabha. But has he mentioned there his own śakhi, svarūpa, anywhere? Though he has mentioned it in a song, Kamala Mañjarī, his name, he expressed. "My name is such, my dress is such, my service is such. That is the highest position in the service of Rādhārāṇī." He has given vent to us.

Yati Mahārāja has not mentioned his name there?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: No.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: His own name? No.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Sometimes also, Narottama Dāsa Ṭhākura's expressing that sort of higher aspiration in his songs.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bana Mahārāja, also, was expressing his svarūpa, from long time. And perhaps he has mentioned in some book of his publication.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. This is the Introduction of the publication of Bhāgavatam?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. First page. Preface.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You re-read it again from the very beginning.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Preface. "Fallen, fallen, still fallen am I. Who else except Śrī Gaura Hari, His mercy embodiment, Śrī Nityānanda's other self, Gurudeva, His Divine Grace Śrīmad Bhakti Vilāsa Tīrtha Goswāmī Mahārāja, who is none but Bimala Mañjarī, eternally waiting upon the transcendental erotic dalliance...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I find there is a defect. Gaura Hari...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yeah, Nityānanda...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Nityānanda's line...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yeah, this sākhya, mādhurya...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: How is it?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?] Without asking you we could not...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gaura Hari, Nityānanda, by Their Grace you must go to the line of Rādhārāṇī and then Gurudeva, or Prabhupāda, then we should come to Bimala Mañjarī. But what does he say? "Fallen, fallen, fallen as I am...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: "Still fallen am I. Who else except Śrī Gaura Hari's mercy embodiment of Śrī Nityānanda's other self, Gurudeva...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Nityānanda's other self, Śrī Gurudeva, how there he can find the Bimala Mañjarī?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: This is also a problem.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: "His Divine Grace Śrīmad Bhakti Vilāsa Tīrtha Goswāmī Mahārāja, who is none but Bimala Mañjarī, eternally waiting upon the transcendental erotic dalliance...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Again go, "Other self...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: "Who else except Śrī Gaura Hari's mercy embodiment of Śrī Nityānanda's other self, Gurudeva His Divine Grace Śrīmad Bhakti Vilāsa Tīrtha Goswāmī Mahārāja, who is none but Bimala Mañjarī, eternally waiting upon, serving, the transcendental erotic dalliance of Rādhā-Govinda at Their sportive land of Vraja. Out of his bountiful mercy operated upon my eyes with the collyrium of intuitive wisdom for having a glimpse of the divine sport. Although I am the vilest creature."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "By His Grace, suddenly I got entrance into that vision." Then?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Later, next paragraph. "A vile destitute as I am, a dwarf as I am, what a foolish gesture to make a high jump to catch the moon. A poor soul as I am, how could I aspire after the gain of Kṛṣṇa prema when the Bhāgavata itself at the very outset, beginning, it says: 'Him, the sages and gods, are puzzled to know." Muhyanti yat sūrayaḥ. "Where angels fear to tread, devils try to trespass." Meaning fools rush in where angels fear to tread.

Then in the next paragraph he tells about his spiritual vision of Rasa-Rāja, Mahābhāva. "Then how can I, such a fool vouch safe to undertake this task is a mystery which I felt not proper on my part to disclose as it might be bringing spiritual conceit. But subsequently I realised that it would be an act undone to my spiritual Guru which might stand as an obstacle on the path of my spiritual progress."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]"Because it is this duty is given to me by my Guru, if I do not do then I shall commit offence to my Guru's feet. So I am engaged in such bold actions."

What is that? He's approaching to dasama kanda? Or in the beginning of Bhāgavatam?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Beginning of Bhāgavatam.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You're finished?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?] "Without any reserve I record the fact that one day in a spiritual vision my divine master commanded me to follow him. And soon I could see myself present along with him at an enchanting dalliance of the Rasa-Rāja and Mahābhāva at that transcendental sportive land of Vraja. What a marvellous sight. But soon, I lost myself in ecstatic rapture. Alas! I lost the vision and lamented so bitterly when my divine master, once again appearing before me, behested me to penetrate upon Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam and commissioned me to undertake this task. And yet, another one, for the attainment of final beatitude or summum bonum of my life."

_____ Swāmī Mahārāja _____ Gauḍīya-patrikā _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Have you seen those points?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Vasudeva Gosh _____ [?]

...

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: I was thinking it was best for us to concentrate ourselves on what you are giving to us.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] that is another thing.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Mahārāja. In the brahmā-vimohana-līlā after Lord Brahmā offers his prayers to Kṛṣṇa, jñāne prayāsam udapāsya namanta eva, [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.3] and other prayers in appreciation of Kṛṣṇa. Doesn't he pray to become situated in Vṛndāvana as a creeper? Does he make a similar prayer to that of Uddhava?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Did he make?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswām: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswām: When, after he begins to pray to Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: After Brahma-sthal when Kṛṣṇa is born, at that time also there is some events of Brahmā with other gods. Then Brahmā, after this brahmā-vimohana when he stole the cowboys and the calves, then again he met at Dvārakā. Always he's found to be tested, and still, Brahmā is our Mūla-Gurudeva, he's the original Guru of our line. And so much so that Mādhvācārya eliminated that from Bhāgavatam, he could not accept those two chapters of Bhāgavatam where Brahmā was under illusion, misunderstanding about Kṛṣṇa. But Mahāprabhu accepted everything in toto.

Ha, ha. A very peculiar thing, acintya. Nimāi is very fond of this expression, acintya bhedābheda. Everything is unintelligible. Our original Guru he's perplexed, not only once but thrice. How to accommodate? That is līlā, to attribute to His līlā, independent of everything. Sometimes showing that He's under His servants. Whatever the servant likes He cannot but do that. And sometimes ignoring.

That is the spontaneous pastimes of the Absolute. Showing His Absolute submission to Rādhārāṇī, sometimes ignoring, sometimes She's ignoring.

aher iva gatiḥ premṇaḥ, svabhāva-kuṭilā bhavet [ato hetor ahetoś ca, yūnor māna udañcati]

["Just as a serpent naturally moves in a crooked way, in a zigzag way, the nature of love is naturally crooked. It is not straight. So the concerned parties quarrel, sometimes with cause and sometimes without cause, and separation comes. Separation is necessary for the transcendental pastimes of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa."]

[Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi]

Rūpa Goswāmī has supplied this basis. When we go to think about the pastimes of the Absolute, we finite, we'll have to take this armour. Aher iva gatiḥ premṇaḥ, svabhāva-kuṭilā bhavet. Naturally it is crooked, just as the movement of the serpent. A serpent cannot go straight, but by zigzag way. So the Absolute, the waves that come from Him are in that way, above all. That characteristic is always maintained, cannot be taken under any law and rule. With this initial thing we should approach to study anything and everything about the Absolute. He's Absolute, and we are infinitesimal. He's adhokṣaja.

Once I asked our Prabhupāda. "Why this difference in the conception of the last part of Kṛṣṇa līlā between Sanātana and Rūpa?"

Sanātana closed in Mathurā and Rūpa took in another stage towards Dvārakā. Lalitā-Mādhava and Vidagdha-Mādhava, Vidagdha-Mādhava in Vṛndāvana līlā and Lalitā-Mādhava in Dvārakā līlā. The same group taken there in different forms and Sanātana Prabhu he liked to complete in Mathurā and from Mathurā again, the wheel turning to Vṛndāvana. Nitya-līlā passing in this way.

(Sudira prayas ?) in Mathurā, after that long, long separation, again the wheel changes. In Vṛndāvana they think, "Oh, Nanda, Yaśodā has got no child." In this way. "You must have some child." Some think in this way. Then, "Oh, yes, Yaśodā will have some child." In this way. Again, passing and developing and going to Mathurā, Kaṁsa, and from Mathurā maṇḍala, not, he took Kṛṣṇa into Dvārakā.

But Rūpa Goswāmī took Lalitā as Jāmbavatī, Rādhārāṇī as Satyabhāmā, Chandrāvalī as Rukmiṇī, in this way transformation came somewhat.

I asked this to Prabhupāda. Prabhupāda simply answered me. "You are going into details. Why? It has been mentioned as adhokṣaja." That was his short answer.

Un-understandable, acintya-niya adhakrta. Everything is not bound to come within our fist. All Rights Reserved. In that way, that sort of expectant attitude should always be maintained within us if we like to be in connection with that plane of thought. Jñāne prayāsam udapāsya. It is our defect that we want to understand anything and everything. It may be qualification here, but in relation to the transcendental truth of the highest order, it is disqualification. Everything we want to know, the clue of everything, the key of everything we want to have in our possession. But this is really bar to progress. If we assert in this way, we rather lose confidence there, and there will be some delay to extend the key to us. If a servant, getting engagement in his master's house is very particular to have the key of the store, very particular, then the master will suspect him. So that is a type of disease to know anything and everything. That is, the understanding element in us is enemy to our progress. It is difficult of course to accept, but still it is so.

Surrender. What understanding the gopīs had, knowledge from the śāstra, this or that? Nothing.

Rather what we understand to be standard purity, knowledge, all these things, they're disqualifications in the case of the Absolute pleasure.

You see, Kṛṣṇa, one day, He suddenly fell ill and became senseless. And in another figure He came as a physician. "O Yaśodā, your boy is caught by some disease, is it? I am told by someone."

"Yes, yes. Who are you?"

"I'm a physician and I have come, a mystic physician. I'd like to see your son. What is His disease?"

"He fainted, perhaps a headache, all these things."

Then He told that, "I can relieve a big disease but I want to cure Him, I can. Only I want some water, and that water should be taken in a porous pot from the Yamunā, and only a chaste lady can do that. A chaste girl must take some water in a porous pot, and then with the help of that I shall give some medicine and the Boy will come to consciousness immediately."

Then Yaśodā was mad to find out who is a chaste lady living in Vṛndāvana. Then told Jaṭilā and Kuṭilā, Rādhārāṇī's mother-in-law and sister-in-law. Jaṭilā was mother-in-law and Kuṭilā was sister-in-law, husband's sister. Naturally, they preached about some doubt, suspicion in the other girls of the gopīs, so generally they're considered to be chaste.

So Yaśodā appealed to Jaṭilā first. "You please go and take some water."

"How is it possible? To fetch water in a porous pot is impossible."

"No. The physician says that if she's really a chaste lady, then she can take water."

Then Jaṭilā could not avoid that mad request of Yaśodā...

83.11.07.B

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...Her son is in such condition. Her request was so intense that she had to go. But could not fetch water because so many pores, all got away.

Then Kuṭilā was requested. But she did not venture to approach, seeing the condition of her mother. Anyhow Yaśodā was so mad in her request that she also could not avoid that. She had to go to fetch water. But no water comes, all getting out through the pores. Then what to do?

"Who are in Vraja, not a chaste girl, a single one? What a horrible thing."

So that physician, Kṛṣṇa Himself in the garb of physician, He pointed out Rādhārāṇī. "I think that She is the chaste lady. Through Her symptoms I find that She's chaste. Request Her to fetch water."

And at the request of Yaśodā, Rādhārāṇī could not avoid. She had to go to fetch water. But She was thinking of Kṛṣṇa. "It is impossible. If You come to My relief, then only it may be possible, otherwise it is impossible."

There is a portrait we find in the market, that Rādhārāṇī when She's dipping the porous pot into the water - Kṛṣṇa, from within the water He's pressing, touching the porous pot from within the water.

And Rādhārāṇī with great suspicion She took out. She says, "Yes, the water is there." She took out, and Her maids also, the sakhīs, she friends, some of them also followed Her. And they're all astounded to find She took the water, and the pores are there, but still the water is in the pot. So took that water. All were astounded. And that water with some fictitious medicine was put into the Boy, Kṛṣṇa, and Kṛṣṇa rose.

A tactic to prove the position of Rādhārāṇī. What is chastity? This ordinary chastity is not chastity. That is far above, consideration of chastity there is, all relative. And beyond knowledge, how a porous pot can contain water. Miracle. The God works wonders. His ways are that of miracle. We should be prepared for that contact.

All the knowledge of this world should prove failure, all our experience. So jñāne prayāsam udapāsya. Deeper vision. Be clear of your past experiences, drawn from the world of senses, pratyakṣa-jñāna. You will always try push this knowledge of the mundane world into the transcendental. You fallen people, your capital is the experience of this world, of senses. But it won't do, have any value in that. A new thing. So with open mind, everything is possible with Him, it is such a world. So all your expectation, your past experience, no value. Quite open, give up all, purging. Quite new.

It is very difficult to get out of this superstition of so called truth here. But still it's necessary, that anything and everything is possible with Him, with the Master of impossibles. Possibility, impossibility found in our dictionary. Even Napoleon wanted to remove the impossible. "Impossibility is found in the dictionary of fools." That we're told was a remark from Napoleon. "Impossible is a word which is found in the dictionary of fools." So our dictionary is fool's dictionary.

Jñāne prayāsam udapāsya. His play, He's playing hide-and-seek, perhaps, with Brahmā, Gurudeva. We may take it in that way. The play of hide-and-seek. Sometimes He's defeating, sometimes He's defeated.

Just as with His friends in the jungle playing. Kṛṣṇa, Balarāma playing. Generally in the play, two groups; in one group Kṛṣṇa, and in another group Balarāma. And Kṛṣṇa was considered to be less strong. So next strong man, Baladeva was the best among the strong there, the strongest person, and next was Śrīdāmā. So Śrīdāmā used to come to the side of Kṛṣṇa. Baladeva one party, Kṛṣṇa another party, and Śrīdāmā to come to the side of Kṛṣṇa. And if any time Baladeva is defeated, He was enraged, He became mad. And Kṛṣṇa, diplomatically, He helped His own party. And when Baladeva saw that by Kṛṣṇa's instruction they're avoiding His obligation, then Baladeva used to call on Kṛṣṇa, "I shall punish You."

"No, You can't punish me. My mother Yaśodā she has dedicated Me to Your hand."

Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha.

One day Baladeva gave a slap, and Kṛṣṇa told it to Yaśodā.

And Baladeva was very much disturbed in mind and told, "I have given slap and You complain that to mother? I do not love You? That only one day I gave a slap and You are complaining of that? What is this, Kṛṣṇa? How could You do this? Do I not love You then?"

Then Kṛṣṇa was perplexed. He accepted His defeat.

In this way.

aher iva gatiḥ premṇaḥ, [svabhāva-kuṭilā bhavet / ato hetor ahetoś ca, yūnor māna udañcati]

[Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi]

The fundamental, the foundation has been given by Rūpa Goswāmī in this way. Aher iva gatiḥ premṇaḥ, svabhāva-kuṭilā bhavet. Don't go to find, don't be eager to find out reason everywhere in the pastimes of the Divinity. It is naturally such. Ato hetor ahetoś ca, yūnor māna udañcati. No party is defective, but still one party finds defect with another and begins a quarrel. No defect, but still for the necessity of the līlā, sham defects, false defects are searched, and with that touch some quarrel begins. Otherwise līlā means this; what we find here by necessity, there automatically the flow is like that.

So Brahmā, we won't try to apply our reason, the standard of measure at every case. No solution shall be found, and the easy, taken by the natural touch of that flow of līlā, what gain we should have got, that will be lost. That will be the result, consequence. So with submissive attitude, try to have a taste of that thing. Sometimes it is necessary only for the lower people to canvass, to preach. To preach to the ordinary people of the class of reason, we are to take the help of reason. Only for that purpose, śāstra-yukti. But when automatic, anurāga, śāstra, śāstra-yukti, both reason and scripture are left in the subterranean position. Śāstra-yukti, no place of śāstra-yukti. It is up to viddhi-bhakti to a certain extent. But above that no reins. That is automatic. That is līlā, that is aher iva gatiḥ premṇaḥ. That is His sweet will. Sweet will means not a fixed program that it will pass by this road. That is not sweet will.

I heard from a gentleman, that Mahārāja of Mysore, when he used to wander into his own town, where he will go, he did not speak to his driver. Because if the fixed program is there, then he may be in danger. So whenever coming to the crossing of the road he put his stick into the driver on a particular shoulder. In the crossing, if Mahārāja wants to go this side then in the right side he puts the stick on his driver. So he did not disclose what way he will go, only the last moment he put the stick, and the driver took that course. He kept in reserve, his sweet will. Which side he will go, sweet will, he did not leave it formally to his driver.

So sweet will. We want to search some law about the sweet will, which is self-inconsistent. One side we shall say it's sweet will, another side we shall try to find some law of his movement, of its movement. That is contradiction. The divine is such. When we shall say it is līlā, then we can't give any shape to that. It was shown in a particular case in this way, but whether today the same course will be taken, we're not sure of that. In this particular way it was shown in a particular day, but that does not mean that every time the same thing will be repeated.

So we find difference in the different līlās and explanation given that kalpas, Jīva Goswāmī has given, kalpa-bheda. One time that līlā was played in this way, another time it was played in that way. So there are differences we find. And we charge that why somewhere in Padma-Purāṇa it is mentioned, the līlā, in this way? Why Bhāgavatam gives description in another way? Why Harivaṁśa in a different way? Mahābhārata in another way? They say of different kalpa it was acted in different time in different way. In infinite way it may be represented to this world, because He's independent, He's absolute.

So, leaving aside all these doubts and suspicions of meanest type I may call, we shall be more generous to approach the Absolute in its free form or free representation. We shall approach and try more and more leaving away past prejudices and precedents, records of the past, we shall approach. It is still living, it is not a stereotyped thing, that what was done once, and we must expect that only, we shall expect that only to see, so only repetition. He's not a living thing. He's under historical law. In past He showed Himself in a particular way, so He's compelled to show Him in that way always? Not living today? And sometimes He can show a new thing. Every moment, every second He can show in a quite new way.

So our heart should be made broader, wider, to accept Him, to accept, when we approach that highest authority, of the absolute world, absolute plane. That means surrender, the type of surrender will be increased, will be limitless. Surrender is also limitless. And His display is also limitless. With that sort of deep and expectant vision we'll try to read His līlā. So Brahmā and the other gods and Gurus and the givers of so many śāstras, they have given some description, and He's not confined within that cage, we shall have to think.

So Mahāprabhu did not hesitate to give description of this līlā, Brahmā-vimohana. Brahmā was being absorbed in Kṛṣṇa līlā in Vṛndāvana. Again in Dvārakā when Brahmā went to have an interview with Kṛṣṇa, there also the same condition we find.

Brahmā wanted an interview and Kṛṣṇa He replied, sent a note that, "Which Brahmā has come?"

And Brahmā again nonplussed. "Which Brahma? I am the Brahmā! Which Brahma?" Anyhow he composed himself and sent the reply that, "The father of Sanaka, the four-headed Brahmā has come."

"Oh, bring him here."

Then Brahmā was taken in and he found so many Brahmās, hundred-faced, thousand-faced, million-faced Brahmās all there. "What is the matter?" Infinite is such. Brahmā was perplexed. "Only one brahmāṇḍa, I'm the creator of that." So many brahmāṇḍas and bigger brahmāṇḍas, and bigger masters of those brahmāṇḍas. His sweet will. The boundary of sweet will is such; anything can be accommodated. Brahmā was perplexed.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. All these are so many light posts, lighthouses, the which way to go. Vyāsa himself, he's being chastised by Nārada. Nārada also was put many a time under test, we find. All these are showing the way, this side. Śrutibhir vimṛgyām [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.47.61] The authentic books about the revealed truth, they are also only showing sign. "O, this side. Where? We do not know particularly, but you may go this side, this direction." Vimṛgyām, showing a direction. All the śruti, śrutibhir, in all the śruti, that is the guide given by the scholars of revealed truth, they also give some direction. "Go this side, this way, this direction, and perhaps you may find it." Śrutibhir vimṛgyām. Vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo.

[sarvasya cāhaṁ hṛdi sanniviṣṭho, mattaḥ smṛtir jñānam apohanaṁ ca
vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo, vedānta-kṛd veda-vid eva cāham]

["I am situated (as the Supersoul) within the heart of all souls, and from Me arises the soul's remembrance, knowledge, and the dissipation of both (according to his karma, or action in the mundane plane). I am the exclusive knowable (ecstatic) principle of all the Vedas. I am the author of the Vedānta - Vedavyāsa, the expounder of the knowable meaning of the Vedas. And certainly I am the knower of the purport of the Vedas."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.15]

"All the Veda means to show Me."

The infinite, how He's infinite? One atom is within my fist, it is analysed, and analysed, and analysed, and re-analysed, no end. It is already within my fist, and it is infinite, go on analysis, no end. Ha, ha, ha. No end, you go. Where do you go?

So they say the maximum benefit you may get by surrendering. Give up all your prejudices of the limitation, drawn from the limited world, and be open. And then it will be easy for the infinite to cast sweets [?] on your soul, and your knowing faculty. It will be easy for you also to cleanse your plane of understanding. Cleanse your glass, the mirror of your heart. Remove all the prejudices and it will be able to catch the shade of different play of light. Cleanse the glass of your heart, and you will be able to catch different shades of light of the outside.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Everywhere there is centre, nowhere circumference. Nowhere circumference. Try to live in the eternity, Vaikuṇṭha. Vaikuṇṭha means, kuṇṭha means measurable thing. So what can be measured that is kuṇṭha, narrowness. Vaikuṇṭha, no crookedness, no limit, no measure. That is Vaikuṇṭha, and the upper part of that is Goloka. Some type of different measurement has been given in Vaikuṇṭha.

But in Goloka the Vaikuṇṭha people are puzzled. That is Goloka. Who are accustomed to move in Vaikuṇṭha, in the general infinite, they are also puzzled when they come in the jurisdiction of Goloka. Their language, their sounds, they are all obsolete in Goloka.

When Kṛṣṇa has opened His mouth and Yaśodā is astonished to find the brahmāṇḍa within. And Yaśodā is nonplussed. "What do I see? The brahmāṇḍa, the whole brahmāṇḍa is within here? The infinite in finite?" The infinite, and for the moment she became, she fainted almost. Then a cat cried aloud, and Kṛṣṇa, as if He's very much afraid by the sound of the cat, caught hold of His mother out of fear. Then at once Yaśodā's apprehension went off. "Oh no, He's my son! No representation of infinite within His part, within Him. He's my son." And embraced Him.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. When Brahmā took away the cowboys and calves, he thought that he has created some want into the līlā. But he came to find that, "No, it is flowing as it was. Not even a least part is." Then Brahmā thinks, "Then, have those calves and the cowboys stealthily came here and joined?" Again he went to see, no, they were where he kept them in the caves of the mountain, they are there. The boys and the calves were there. Again he feels it is continuing as it was, no defect. So Brahmā was then, he surrendered and he got some assurance.

At the same time it is mentioned in Bhāgavatam that when Kṛṣṇa Himself became calf and cowboy, then at that time the mothers they felt an infinite type of affection. It is mentioned there. So much so they could not understand, but they were entranced rather. That how beautiful these boys are. And the cows also, they were also mad to show their affection to those calves, when Kṛṣṇa Himself extended Himself to become all these things. It is also mentioned. He Himself became the calf and the cowboy. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

["I offer my prayers unto You, O praiseworthy Lord who are the child of the cowherd Nanda. Your complexion is the dark blue colour of a thundercloud and You are clad in silk garments that shine like lightning. Your charming face is adorned with guñja-mālā ornaments, and Your hair is decorated with a peacock feather. You look beautiful wearing a garland of forest flowers, and that beauty is enhanced by the morsel of food in Your left hand. You carry a buffalo horn and a stick for herding cows tucked beneath Your left arm. You hold a flute and other emblems, and Your feet are as soft as a lotus."]

I explained it, _____ [?] this śloka once. And some old audience told that, "We did not hear such scholarly explanation of this stanza. Naumīdya te 'bhra-vapuṣe taḍid-ambarāya. "O You venerable, we put our prayers to You. Who are You? Abhra-vapuṣe. Abhra means this cloud, black cloud, Unintelligible. Abhra-vapuṣe. You are unseeable, unfeelable like black. But taḍid-ambarāya, we can know You by Your yellow garb. That is only for Viṣṇu, Kṛṣṇa, Your likeness is there. You Yourself are unknown and unknowable but taḍid, yellow means Rādhārāṇī's colour. By the help of Your potency only, You can be ascertained, who are You. Taḍid means that lightning. By the lightning we can see the black cloud at night. So You are unknown and unknowable, but Your potency can show us. Taḍid-ambarāya.

'Bhra-vapuṣe taḍid-ambarāya, guñjāvataṁsa-paripiccha-lasan-mukhāya. And You come to our level as if one of our position. You, this guñjā, ordinary, this jungle sports and this _____ [?] with that You are coloured, and that also deceives us to ascertain You. The ordinary things that You adore so much, just as Your ornament, that is also misguiding.

Paripiccha-lasan-mukhāya, vanya-sraje. And also the garland You take, that is also collected from ordinary jungle flowers. Your ruci, Your taste is of such type, lower type.

Kavala-vetra-viṣāṇa-veṇu. And all these signs are misguiding. Kavala. Take some morsel of food with so many others taken too within and You are running after cows. That is a sign of lower caste. A brāhmaṇa, kṣatriya, vaiśya, the higher caste people, they cannot move, behave in such way with their food. That is also misguiding us. Kavala-vetra-viṣāṇa-veṇu.

All other things, the instrument You carry, of lower type. Vanya-sraje kavala-vetra-viṣāṇa-veṇu-, lakṣma-śriye mṛdu-pade paśupāṇgajāya. And Your stride is also very small. All this is misguiding to some lower conception of You. Hiding Yourself. And of this, how we can understand You? What fault we have got? It is difficult to accept You, that You are the Master of everything, real Kṛṣṇa conception."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Infinite. Infinite is not only in the consideration of space. In time consideration, in small consideration, in every infinite, many sort of representation. Infinite. Consciousness, existence, then the dealings, love.

Brahman, Paramātmā, Bhagavān. Three conceptions of infinite has been given to us. Brahman conception, all-comprehensive infinite. Whatever we can conceive, it is within that, that type of infinite. Paramātmā, the smallest of the small. Aṇor aṇīyān [Kaṭha Upaniṣad, 1.2.20]. Whatever small you can conceive, it is smaller than that. That is a type of infinite. And Bhagavān. Bhagavān conception of two types; one of majesty, power, infinite potency, master of infinite potency.

And Jīva Goswāmī has given a new meaning to this, at least to me. This is written in his book, Bhagavān. Bhagavān, by Bhagavān he wants to feel us, follow us. Bhajanīya-guṇa viśiṣṭha. Bhagavān. This aspect of infinite, bhajanīya. When we come in touch of Him, then we like to surrender us for His satisfaction. Bhajanu, that type of infinite. Infinite of various types, Bhagavān infinite is bhajanīya-guṇa viśiṣṭha. So beautiful, attractive, attracting surrender to Him. That aspect of infinite, that is the highest type of infinite. Neither space nor time nor anything else, but all-attraction, all-attractive type of infinite, that is the highest.

And these are all outskirts, covers, the space infinite, the time infinite and the other aspects. The power infinite and love infinite, attracting love, self-surrender, that is the highest type of infinite. And that is Kṛṣṇa. The attractor also wholly higher and the attracted potency, aspect. Predominating and Predominated Moiety, in the expression of our Guru Mahārāja. Predominating and Predominated. Positive, negative, they may be called. Attraction, that is the most fundamental element everywhere. All else can be eliminated, ignored, forgotten, if we come in the touch of attraction, love. Everything can be ignored if we are in connection with love. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

The fulfilment of our existence, all the existence, everything is in love. Love is the principle in the centre, which is the only fulfilment of everything, every existence. The very gist of existence is there, can't be ignored or challenged by any other forms or aspect of our substantial existence. Unchallengeable, absolute. Absolute king, emperor, is love. None can stand in comparison with that. All will have to accept defeat coming in clash with that principle of love. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari.

Mahaprabhu pointed out the thing. That is the most substantial thing in this world. Whatever we see and find and experience and come in connection with, the most central necessity and fulfilment is there, love. And Bhāgavatam it draws the extract from the whole revealed scriptures and says that love divine, that is the most desirable original entity. We must not allow ourselves to run hither and thither searching for our base fulfilment, this thing, that thing, so many other things. But forcibly taking our attention, concentrate you in this line, this is the...

["The gopīs of Vṛndāvana have given up the association of their husbands, sons and other family members, who are very difficult to renounce, and they have sacrificed even their religious principles to take shelter of the lotus feet of Kṛṣṇa, which are sought after by even the Vedas. O grant me the fortune to be born as a blade of grass in Vṛndāvana, so that I may take the dust of those great souls upon my head."]

Svajanam ārya-pathaṁ ca hitvā. Risk, the background of risk, that also enhances mood. A necessary part of the highest form of love, to risk the so-called achievement, worldly achievement. The standard of so much so-called purity ever found in this world, at the risk of that, the quest of love divine, that is, that commands the highest position. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa.

Very carefully that should be taken. The line of Newton, the greatest knower of everything, he said that, "I know nothing." That is the way. As much as one is in the midst of purity, so much he thinks that, "I am impure." That is the nature of infinite measurement. "I have nothing." Because the charm is so infinite, it cannot but be estimated in that way. The more they achieve, the more they thirst. Thirst, more earnestness. Realisation toward infinite is of that characteristic. As much as one can progress, so much he thinks himself to be helpless, to go further for measurement. It does not come into the plane of measurement. Nothing.

Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Ha. Ha.

["I offer my respectful obeisances unto Mādhava, Who is the Personification of transcendental bliss. By His mercy, a blind man can see the stars in the sky, a lame man can cross mountains, and a dumb man can speak eloquent words of poetry."] [Bhavārtha Dipikā, maṅgala stotram, 1]

We cannot understand, we cannot find ourselves qualified to give any expression about that, so we become dumb. "What shall I say?" But He makes us to open our mouths. Otherwise, the reader, the knower, he becomes dumb. A bona fide searching person becomes dumb with His ways. Cannot give any expression to that. But the power from high comes to make him give some statement. In that way the truth from that part comes here. Mukam karoti vācālaṁ. They begin to say, give vent to their feeling, pressed by the higher plane, entity. Panghum langhāyate girīm. He has got no power of his own that he can walk, but His wonderful power can help him to cross the mountains. Yat kṛpā. This is the nature of the grace of the Almighty, of the Absolute. By His power, everything can move, live.

yat prayanty abhiṣamviśanti, [tad brahma tad vijijñāsa]

["The Supreme Brahman is the origin and shelter of all living beings. When there is creation, He brings them forth from their original state, and at the time of annihilation, He devours them. After creation, everything rests in His omnipotence, and after annihilation, everything again returns to rest in Him."]

The cause of production, the cause of sustenance. Production, sustenance and again withdrawal. Evolution and dissolution, and sustenance in the middle. The prime cause, universal cause. Yato vā imāni bhūtāni jāyante, yena jātāni jīvanti, yat prayanty abhiṣamviśanti. Prayanty abhiṣamviśanti. Twice, this is repetition. Superficially it is repetition. Yat padyanty. Towards whom, then abhiṣamviśanti, and finally enters. At the time of dissolution that is _____ [?] Everything disappears into the subtle existence, at the wholesale dissolution of this world. But again with the evolution, they come out. And abhiṣamviśanti, they enter into the permanent līlā. They do not come back into this world of exploitation and renunciation.

Tad brahma tad vijijñāsa. Enquire after Him. What do you do? Make enquiry where you are. Where you are, and enquiry must have such broad form. Making enquiry always, but for trifle things? But give a wide, widest shape of your enquiry. Where you are? Who are you? Where you are? How you are to go? This is our dire necessity for our own purpose. We can't avoid. And that enquiry contains, we can't predict level of thought.

Brahman, Paramātmā, Bhagavān. So Bhagavān enquiry, that is the highest, search for Śrī Kṛṣṇa, Reality the Beautiful. A natural necessity within us, for our own interest, can't avoid. A sane man, a man who does not want to deceive himself he can't avoid search for Kṛṣṇa, for his own best benefit. The most general thing of our nature, to enquire for happiness, raso vai saḥ. Enquire for our best comfort. This is the general question. This should be the only question of the whole animation. Search for Kṛṣṇa. Searching, searching for rasa, ecstasy, the highest form of ecstasy.

Read and Cry. What have I done? What is my necessity, and how I'm passing my days? Repent, cry. I have passed my days uselessly. I'm a traitor to my own self. I'm going to commit suicide. Complain against yourself, and your so-called friends. We have nothing to do here. Read and cry, do or die! Progress in the right way, or you are inviting your death. The general tenor of life, of all existence will be this.

In the most scientific way, search for Śrī Kṛṣṇa, Reality the Beautiful. That is the ever-found highest goal of humanity, not only, but all animation. And all problems are combined here. All problems, they're all harmonised, all the problems. So no complaint against this attempt can be normal. Deviation from this general instruction, the general call, all false, unnecessary, and ill-doing, injurious. So this is the truth, the necessity of everyone, wherever there is animation. The most generalised march, call for such march. Most grand and extensive and friendly. Friendly call to the all, to the whole of the world, the only call. "March towards Kṛṣṇa!" The only call. All should be silenced. All other topics should be silenced, should be stopped, and only if this call remains, the real welfare of the world remains. Everything becomes...

yasmin vijñāte sarvam evam vijñātam bhavati, yasmin prāpte sarvam idam prāptam bhavati

["By knowing Him, everything is known - by getting Him, everything is gained."]

So comprehensive call.

Non sectarianism is here. Apparently it is thought sectarian by the abnormal thinking. But every normal thinking, that is the most general, universal thing you are dealing with. Search for Śrī Kṛṣṇa, march towards the divine domain, universal march towards divine domain. Save yourself, back to home, back to God, back to Godhead. Call. Back to home. We're quarrelling in the foreign land for fictitious gain. Save them, and take them all home. Only by the grace of that Absolute it is possible to certain extent. The wave coming from there to take us home. Home-knowing man can only give us such news, and can take us there. The home-knowing man. So the call comes from the home. The origination of this call is from the home.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. I close here. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

["May that Lord of the cows be satisfied by us. Who is Indra when compared to Kṛṣṇa? Kṛṣṇa is the master of Indra. And yet He has appeared as the master of cows; the Supreme Absolute Truth has accepted a simple position as the keeper of cows. Superficially, He is a mere cowherd boy. But let that cowherd boy, who holds within Him the power of controlling the whole universe, be satisfied with us. We want to worship that Lord who has taken the humble position of the king of the cows."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.26.25]

The other say I told that I should speak something about the Govardhana Girirāja, that day I missed.

So this is the very gist of the whole narration. In this śloka the very substance has been represented.

What was the matter, the whole Govardhana? Previously, at that time the gopa, the milkmen, they used to observe some sacrifice to satisfy the king of the heaven, Indra.

...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

...

Indra, the king of heaven, at whose command the air, the clouds and other subtle elementary powers are supposed to be commanded by Indra, the king of heaven.

And the gopas, their main wealth is cow, and the food of the cow is mainly the grass. And in that part of the land only rain can produce grass. And the grass can come only by the rain. So they used to satisfy the subtle power who is supposed to be at the command of the natural, subtle substances. And by satisfying him the favourable rain will come, there will be grass, immense. And the cows will graze easily and they may get milk profusely. And that is their living, occupation. Different preparations from the milk, and to sell that, and then to earn their livelihood.

So sometimes from one forest they will have to change to another forest. When the grazing ground is finished then they used to change their position. Sometimes in Vṛndāvana, sometimes Nandagrāma, sometimes Gokula, they were wandering, only for the purpose of grass, fodder for the cows. So first we find that Nanda Mahārāja was in Gokula, then again find sometimes in Vṛndāvana, then again find sometimes in Nandagrāma. Only for the grazing purpose.

Deve varṣati. When Kṛṣṇa, He wanted to assert Himself in His own way, to modify. In other words, He wanted to discover His own dhāma, Vṛndāvana, to put it in its pristine glory. So though boy, He was supposed to be an extraordinary boy, a boy of extraordinary capacity, so sapta hayana, seven years old, Kṛṣṇa only. But in Padma-Purāṇa we find that the special personality, their development, their growth is one and a half more than ordinary standard. So sapta hayana _____ [?], one and a half. That sort of growth we expect generally from uncommon personality, it is mentioned in Padma-Purāṇa. So sapta hayana _____ [?] eleven, in general age.

But that boy announced that, "Why should we supply the - accept the sacrifice of Indra? We have direct concern with Govardhana. Really we get fodder from the Govardhana. So let us worship Govardhana and not Indra." This sort of announcement He made among the gopas.

Anyhow, willingly or reluctantly, the gopas anyhow had to submit to the advice of Kṛṣṇa.

"Yes, let us do that."

Nanda Mahārāja was influenced by the affection of his boy, and because he was the king, he announced that, "This time we shall worship Govardhana Girirāja, and not Indra."

And some reluctantly, some willingly, the other gopas, milkmen, they followed. And they began the sacrifice for the Govardhana.

Intimation reached Indra. "A boy of special capacity has grown there and he has taken the leadership and he has stopped my, that eternal, that sacrifice. For long time it is the usage of the gopas to sacrifice in my favour, and that one boy, he's the cause of stopping my sacrifice." Then he was very much enraged and ordered the clouds and the wind, and the electricity, that is the lightning, all these elements, they are supposed to be personified.

Here also I like to say something, that in ancient days the Āryans, the Rājarṣi, they used to see everything as person. Their behaviour, conduct was such, that they saw and thought everything around them, this creeper, the tree, all person. That person according to karma is wandering through these species. So all person.

And I also told, when our Svarūpa Dāmodara he asked me that, "Guru Mahārāja told me to crush the fossil theory. How it is possible?"

I advised him on the basis of Berkeley's theory; that whatever we think, really it is part of our consciousness. And part of consciousness means person. Part of consciousness that is person, cetana. So everything is such. Then the wind, we think it is an inanimate object, but it was thought in the Vedic line, no, it is person. The lightning, all person. Whatever we consider to be elementary, matter, gross and subtle, all had consideration of personality.

Deve varṣati. Then when Indra commanded that, "Go and devastate the whole Gokula. They have insulted me. They have rejected, closed my worship and worshipping that mountain, that hill, Govardhana. I can't tolerate this insult. You go and devastate the land."

By the order of Indra, who is supposed to be master of all the higher, subtle elements, deve varṣati, heavy rain began to fall. Yajña-viplavaruṣā, and backed by the anger which came from the stoppage of the sacrifice of the higher elements, yajña-viplavaruṣā. How? Vajrāśma-varṣānilaiḥ. Vajra means thunder. Aśma means hail. Vajrāśma, rain. Anilaiḥ, and storm. Hail, storm, heavy rain, and thunder, simultaneously they attacked the whole of Vraja-maṇḍala. Varṣati yajña-viplava-ruṣā vajrāsma-varṣānilaiḥ, sīdat-pāla- paśu-striy ātma-śaraṇaṁ. And consequently the whole Vrajavāsīs they were thrown into great disaster. Sīdat, the application, the pain in general came down there, affliction, misery. Pāla-paśu, the animals and the protector of the animals, pāla, gopāla, who maintain the animals, pāla-paśu. Striya, the women. Sīdat-pāla-paśu-striy ātma-śaraṇaṁ. Then they had no other alternative but to take refuge to Kṛṣṇa. They all came to Kṛṣṇa for their relief.

"Now, what to do? You have influenced us to stop the sacrifice meant for Indra. And the vindictive Indra he has begun to afflict us in this heavy way. How we can live? Please make arrangement for our life."

Striy ātma-śaraṇaṁ. They all came to Him for protection, ātma-śaraṇaṁ.

Dṛṣṭvānukampy utsmayan. Seeing this He had much pity, Kṛṣṇa, was pitiful on them. Ātma-śaraṇaṁ. Dṛṣṭvānukampy utsmayan, and smiled a little. "They've all come to Me for relief." Samvik. Dṛṣṭvānukampy utsmayan. Smiling*. Utpāṭyaika-kareṇa śailam abalo līlo*. Only with one hand He took the mountain up. A very simple thing. Utpāṭyaika-kareṇa, only with one hand, single hand, He uprooted the hill, utpāṭyaika- kareṇa.

How? Līlocchilīndhraṁ yathā. Just as a boy he deals with his play ball. Ucchilīndhram, the ball of a child, līlocchilīndhraṁ, the play ball, the ball with which the child plays, just like that. Very easily He took up the heavy mountain up. Utpāṭyaika-kareṇa śailam abalo līlocchilīndhraṁ yathā. As a boy, as a child, he lifts his play ball, just like that He took up. Utpāṭyaika-kareṇa śailam abalo līlocchilīndhraṁ.

Bibrad goṣṭham apān. And holding that up He gave protection to all those who were living in that Gokula. The men, women, cow, their luggage, bags, baggages, everything. Or if any bullocks, everything, they took protection under that hill. _____ [?] śailam avalo līlocchilīndhraṁ yathā, bibrad goṣṭham apān. The whole goṣṭha, those that deals with cows, the whole camp was given shelter under that hill. Bibrad goṣṭham apān mahendra-mada-bhit. And thereby He disarmed, or He crushed the pride of the great king of heaven. Goṣṭham apān mahendra-mada-bhit. He gave protection as well as crushed the pride of the lord of heaven, mahendra-mada-bhit.

Prīyān na indro gavām. And that Lord of the cows, such Lord of the cows, let Him be satisfied, propitiated with us. Mahendra-mada-bhit prīyān. Let Him be propitiated with us. Indro gavām. Who is He? He is also Indra, master. Master of the cows. The simple position, the rakhaldra, the cowboy, the keeper of the cows. Superficially, He's a mere cowboy. Let that sort of cowboy, who within Him holds the whole power of controlling the whole universe of our conception, apparently cowboy. But really He's the controller of the universe. Mahendra-mada-bhit. Let Him be propitiated, satisfied with us, that cowboy. We want to worship that cowboy, the king of the cows, in a humble position, in this way."

That is Govardhana. Govardhana, then when, it is also described, when the Vrajavāsīs, they worshipped Him, sacrificed for His satisfaction, they saw that Govardhana also spreading one hand, He's taking the things and feeding Himself.

And Krsna pointed out. "You see! You thought that it is only a material heap of stone. No. It is living, it is God, you see." So He showed that, that is also an extended self of Kṛṣṇa, Govardhana. We're told that Rādhā-kuṇḍa is extended position of Rādhārāṇī, and Govardhana that is the extended self of Kṛṣṇa Himself. So we're not to look for Girirāja, we worship a part of Girirāja. The part of the infinite is infinite. So a pebble as our ordinary vision, but that is the part of the infinite is infinite. That was in our material vision, it is a piece of stone. But its possibility is infinite, it is there.

In the general sense Einstein, his law of relativity has announced that anything is that thing plus something more. Turya, something more. More possibility, prospect, it is not standstill. In his scientific way he says.

But we also want to continue, produce this to infinite. What is seen by our senses, that is not limited to that conception of our senses. It may be, the possibility, the probability is added to that. Our vision, estimation of anything is limited, but its prospect may be unlimited, unknown, no limitation. We do not know even what is the prospect, what possibility is, a particle of sand may have. A creeper, a leaf of a creeper, what sort of possibility is there we do not know. In medicinal purpose...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...representing Kṛṣṇa, that cowboy, indro gavām, Who is the Master of the keeper of the cows. That sort of mild and soft conception, beautiful God is there. Prīyān na indro gavām. And we beg His mercy, His affection, His gracious look on us. That may save us from those inclemencies and frowning of the environment. When we try to put a stop to our former form of life and take our course towards Godhead, Kṛṣṇa consciousness, neglecting the imperative duties that are on us...

[ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ]

...we stop the program of our every day life which was ascertained in our previous life, give up all duties and try to march on exclusively towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness, so many difficulties may come, to trouble us, to trap us in our journey. But we must stick to the order of Kṛṣṇa, and He will protect us. Indro gavām. The indro, the controller of all ordinary activities and tendencies and mental impulse of different type, they may come to attack us. But if we're attentive towards our goal to be the order of Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa will come to protect us in the shade of His - giving us shelter under the shade of Govardhana. And no Indra can, will be able to touch our hair. He will give us protection. So Girirāja Govardhana, we try to take shelter under Him.

"Give us protection from all the difficulties that may come to attack, because of my leaving, or neglecting the past program of my life."

So many anomalies may be caused, and we'll get protection from Him. Mahendra-mada-bhit prīyān na indro gavām. That cowboy, Master of the cows, in His other representation Govardhana, He will save us from all sorts of difficulties on our way. Sarva-dharmān parityajya.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. God works wonders. His ways are unknown. Our revered Swāmī Mahārāja, we could not understand in general that he will do such a marvellous work. Rather, Kṛṣṇa will do through him such a marvellous work, or service. Mahāprabhu. It was beyond our estimation, but suddenly what happened. I was connected with him, associated with him from long time. I found ambition in him, and a great enthusiasm in him to preach. So much so that it seemed to us that it's ambitious imagination.

Sometimes he expressed his will. "Let us go to Gandhi, Jawaharlal [Pandit Nehru], the political leaders. Why they're engaged in such lower type of improvement of the nation, and not accepting Mahāprabhu's program? Why they're not, what basis they've got? If they really want to do good to the people, why they do not take this program of Mahāprabhu, to do real good to the people? These political narrow views, by this they think they're proud that they're doing good to the people." In this way sometimes he told.

And he had some talks about Bhagavad-gītā lines, discussing with me. And very brave movement we found in him. And also another thing we found in him, that though financially he was not well established, but he did not care for that at all. His ways were rather princely, though he was put in poverty. Ambitious movement. Whenever he secures a good partner, he's going to accept his business in a grand way. Not humble beginning and then gradually going, not. At once he used to take up in a big scale. The broad, wide view he had. Sometimes it seemed to be inconsistent with his present position and that ambitious sentiment.

But anyhow we found a miracle in his last days. How, apparently disappointed in his worldly life, he took sannyāsa, and then tried to make a big attempt. And the providence came to his help. And making arrangement with some Sumati Morarji or so, who were all known to him, somewhat, in his business life, he went towards America.

Prabhupāda, our Guru Mahārāja, his idea was that. When he took sannyāsa, red cloth, generally the sahajiyā they remarked, "This red cloth is dishonour to the Vaiṣṇava."

Sanātana Goswāmī mentioned in one place, rakta-vastra 'vaiṣṇavera' parite nā yuyāya, [kona pravāsīre dimu, ki kāya uhāya?]

["This saffron cloth is unfit for a Vaiṣṇava to wear; therefore I have no use for it. I shall give it to a stranger."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 13.61]

Rakta means red, blood red. Generally the kapalis [?] the sakta section, they use that blood red cloth. So rakta-vastra means blood red.

But Mahāprabhu took that mild red sannyāsa veśa. And Madhavendra Purī, Īśvara Purī, _____ [?]

Anyhow Sanātana Goswāmī, out of great humility, he did not take the position of a sannyāsī. Because their descent, questions of their family was of suspicious type. Sanātana Goswāmī, Rūpa Goswāmī, they were very closely connected with the Muslims. So the Hindu society could not take them as Ācārya.

In Purī also when they visited Mahāprabhu they used to live with Haridāsa Ṭhākura. And they generally did not use the ordinary road. If any brāhmaṇa pūjārī worshipping in the temple, they will have a touch, and they will show some hate. So previously they were very careful about that.

When Mahāprabhu came to touch him, "No, no, I am, by my lineage, by my own nature, in all respects I'm untouchable. I'm untouchable, don't touch me, my Lord!"

But Mahāprabhu's vision was otherwise. "You can purify the whole world by your touch. I'm touching you to purify Me. Such Kṛṣṇa bhakti which can purify wonderfully everything, you hold that within your heart."

prabhu kahe, - "tomā sparśi ātma pavitrite, [bhakti-bale pāra tumi brahmāṇḍa śodhite]

But Sanātana Goswāmī out of his unlimited humility, he always took care that, "I am - none can seek any word against me in connection with my lineage that I had contamination with the Muslims, yavanas, eater of the cow. So anyone may cast that sort of blame on us, so we should not give any opportunity to our enemy to say against us that we are encroaching." That sort of humility he had. And he told, rakta-vastra 'vaiṣṇavera' parite. "We are nothing, nothing of the nothing. But we're ordered to do these things, so we're doing." In this way.

But Prabhupāda, our Guru Mahārāja, when he went to Vṛndāvana with red cloth, and two of his attendants they were clad in European style, not even white cloth, but European coat and pants.

The people remarked, "What is this? This man has come in the garb of a sannyāsī, red cloth, which is not acceptable to the Goswāmī Sanātana, and has taken his two disciples dressed in European style."

So such was the beginning of the preaching life of our Guru Mahārāja. And he was very different from the current sahajiyā section.

"That they're misrepresenting Rūpa, Sanātana, and Mahāprabhu. Misrepresenting. So Mahāprabhu's sampradāya must be protected from this imitation contamination." From the beginning he had his heart in that. "And they're all charmed by the European civilisation. But European civilisation must be crushed. That must be taken under our feet, then these fools will automatically come. Something like, it is. The European civilisation, they're attracting all the stalwarts of this world, mostly." In this way, he posed himself in that way.

Then when he found the opportunity he sent a party to preach in England. Anyhow, some movement was created. Mahārāja _____ [?] he had some influence in the British official area, royal area also. Mahārāja _____ [?] was his title.

He remarked, "Who is the man so courageous that he has sent the banner of Mahāprabhu to Europe and this England? Prema-dhāma, divine love, the news of divine love. So courageous he wants to preach that principle of divine love in this Europe, out-and-out materialistic civilisation. And you want to influence the civilisation by the love given by Mahāprabhu, divine love. Who is that bold man?" He remarked like that. "Impossible, it is impossible."

But Prabhupāda had the courage to do so, and he felt it necessary. Otherwise these people cannot be convinced so well. Then during his lifetime he could not send to America, but he has written in Gauḍīya, Mārkine-loka. Before he sent his party to England he consulted with Rabindranath Tagore. He was already well known in the world, he got Nobel prize.

Rabindranath requested him to, "Send preachers in Germany. Not England because they're always proud, and that they're the king and we're the subject. India is under them, so generally the British people they have this conceit that we're the king-nation and they're the subject nation. So they won't give due attention to our words. And America has been polluted by so many other Indian preachers of yoga and other things."

Rabindranath also he had not much regard for Vivekānanda, Ramakrishna Mission. "And at that time one Yogyadar he went to America and he used to show many yoga practice, that is many mudras, especially amongst the women. And a bad name came, was created for the Indians at that time."

"So in America they will easily take something, try to appreciate, but now the position is not favourable there. That a few gentlemen have come from India, and misrepresented Indian culture and there is a bad name in America. So you should not go. I don't recommend you to go there. And the French people also, very easily take something, and divorce, give up that thing. That is also. Rather if you ask my opinion, I shall say to send your men to Germany, because they are considerate people, they have general appreciation for ancient Indian culture. And what they accept once, they do not reject it very easily. Stability is in that nationality." So he recommended.

But anyhow Prabhupāda managed to send men to England. Two parties were sent. When he had a wish to send preachers in America, but he could not do so.

Swāmī Mahārāja says, I do not remember it very clearly, that in Bombay when he was, Swāmī Mahārāja and myself and Prabhupāda at that time his party is preaching in London.

His feeling was that, "We shall all have to go to attempt preaching in the western world civilisation. And you must be ready, you'll have to go." Swāmī Mahārāja said that, "In your presence Prabhupāda asked me, that be ready, you'll have to go there. And with that order I thought that Prabhupāda wanted me to go." And he had in his mind that, and anyhow managed to go.

And this wonderful success, that so many of you have come to come here to study prema-dhāma, what is love divine. What is the topmost conception of the Vedic culture, the ancient theistic revealed scripture, Ṛg- Veda, it is admitted on all hands that Ṛg-Veda is the most ancient of revealed scriptures. And from other Vedas, and the very purpose of the Veda is in Bhāgavatam, and what is that preached by Mahāprabhu, that love divine. That should be the goal of all animation. That is our home, how to go back there? And that was so extensively taken. Just as we heard that Nityānanda Prabhu, from door to door He wandered and requested, "Accept Mahāprabhu, Śrī Caitanyadeva."

bhaja gaurāṅga, kaha gaurāṅga [laha gauranger nāma, yei jana gaurāṅga bhaje sei amāra prāna]

["Worship Gaurāṅga, speak of Gaurāṅga, chant Gaurāṅga's Name. Whoever worships Śrī Gaurāṅga is My life and soul. Come straight to the campaign of Śrī Caitanya and you will safely attain Vṛndāvana."]

So Swāmī Mahārāja went from door to door in America, as if, from park to park, with his simple dress and that karatālas, he chanted the Name of Mahāprabhu and Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

And came with flying colours. First he came with two followers here, Acyutānanda and Rāmānuja, and he was given to stay in that blue house. And that reception by the Municipality. And anyhow gradually this perhaps happened, you all know from his life and teachings.

So today is the day of the disappearance of that great soul, great Ācārya. And the disappearance of the great personages from our view is the most undesirable and deplorable and unfortunate time for us, we consider. When they come, we rejoice in union, and we feel helpless when they withdraw from us. From amongst all the separation, the separation of the devotee and the Gurudeva, that is the highest. In the Rāmānanda-saṁvāda we find what is the greatest painfulness in the devotee.

['duḥkha-madhye kona duḥkha haya gurutara?'] 'kṛṣṇa-bhakta-viraha vinā duḥkha nāhi dekhi para'

[Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu asked, "Of all kinds of distress, what is the most painful?" Śrī Rāmānanda Rāya replied, "Apart from separation from the devotee of Kṛṣṇa, I know of no unbearable unhappiness."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.248]

The great sorrow is in separation with Vaiṣṇava. When we're in the company of the Vaiṣṇava we're in the midst of the company of the Lord. By their separation, just as if radio is removed we're cut off from the world information. Through radio we get information of the world. So the divine world information we get from the Vaiṣṇava. If they're removed, then we're disconnected, we're cut off. 'Kṛṣṇa-bhakta-viraha vinā duḥkha nāhi dekhi para'. Of all the miseries and torments, the separation of a Vaiṣṇava, that is the most disappointing thing. And it has reached the acme when we find in the dealings of Dāsa Goswāmī. Vyāghra- tuṇḍāyate kuṇḍaṁ. Girīndro 'jagarāyate.

[śūnyāyate mahā-goṣṭhaṁ, girīndro 'jagarāyate / vyāghra-tuṇḍāyate kuṇḍaṁ, jīvātu-rahitasya me]

["Now that I no longer have the sustainer of my life, the land of Vraja has become empty and desolate, Govardhana Hill has become like a great python, and Rādhā-kuṇḍa has become like the gaping mouth of a ferocious tiger."] [Śrī Prārthanāśraya-caturdaśaka, Fourteen Prayers For Shelter, 11]

This is inconceivable to us, what is the realisation of Dāsa Goswāmī. Vyāghra-tuṇḍāyate. The most favourite place of Dāsa Goswāmī was Rādhā-Kuṇḍa. From beginning to end he accepted that position in the bank of Rādhā-Kuṇḍa he will think about the Rādhā-Govinda līlā.

But after the separation of Rūpa and Sanātana he says, "That very kuṇḍa like a big mouth of a tiger, is coming to devour me. By whose connection Rādhā-Kuṇḍa was so sweet, so bright, so divine, and that is coming to devour me. Such position. And girīndro 'jagarāyate, this Govardhana, who is conceived to be representation of Kṛṣṇa Himself, that seems to be like a big python"

We cannot conceive that such position may be in truth. So a dear and so near, all, only by the absence of Guru and Vaiṣṇava can become so apathetic, it is inconceivable to us. But we cannot dismiss the feeling of Dāsa Goswāmī, who is so great in other respects we feel. So we shudder to think how the separation of a Guru will be, who is a real Vaiṣṇava.

And also in Rāmānanda-saṁvāda, 'kṛṣṇa-bhakta-viraha vinā duḥkha nāhi dekhi para'. We are always in different position than the Supreme Lord. We cannot be in His very close connection. But we can come in very close connection with the Vaiṣṇava. They are agent, bona side agent, that is true to us, that is real to us. And that is the Lord is rather coming, a vague conception. From imagination-like thing, cannot be infinite, cannot be contained, have any connection, very feasible. But Vaiṣṇava, His agent, that is a concrete thing to us, a reality. So when that connection disappears we're in the greatest of loss, in greatest mourning. If we can feel that, then we can attain the real position of a servant of Vaiṣṇava. Otherwise we're also in imaginary world, moving here and there endlessly. If regular temperament of a Vaiṣṇava we're to appreciate, we're to achieve, then such conceptions also we must feel. 'Kṛṣṇa-bhakta-viraha vinā duḥkha nāhi dekhi para'.

And the Guru he's the king of the Vaiṣṇava so by his separation we must mourn to leave. The general, normal disciple must observe a great mourning in many ways. And in other words his cultivation of his, we can come in his connection when we're engaged in culture of his ways and thoughts and what he came here to give to us, our adherence, loyalty, our hearty loyalty to that, that can take us near to him, to his holy feet. And thereby we can appeal wherever he is, he's not so. He has got a spacious aspect, he's all-seeing, all-knowing. And our sincerity what he came for us to take us up, if he sees that we're continuing in that plane of life what he wanted us to do, he'll be satisfied. In this way we can satisfy him.

yasya prasādād bhagavat-prasādo, [yasyāprasādān na gatiḥ kuto 'pi dhyāyan stuvaṁs tasya yaśas tri sandhyaṁ, vande guroḥ śrī-caraṇāravindam]

["By the mercy of the spiritual master one receives the benediction of Kṛṣṇa. Without the grace of the spiritual master, one cannot make any advancement. Therefore, I should always remember and praise the spiritual master. At least three times a day I should offer my respectful obeisances unto the lotus feet of my spiritual master."] [Śrī Gurvaṣṭakam, 8]

By satisfying him, we can satisfy the Supreme Entity. In this way we shall try to pass our days.

So today is the day of disappearance of Swāmī Mahārāja, whose action, whose preaching, whose last life was so bright that all the Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇava, they cannot but be indebted to that great personage who in such a broad way, wide way, preached in the Name of Gaura-Nityānanda in the west.

With our obeisance to him today, I close here.

Mahānanda [?]: Conception of difference in attitude between offering to Nṛsiṁhadeva, to Kṛṣṇa, and to Caitanya Mahāprabhu in that way, and Lord Jagannātha?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What do you think?

Mahānanda: I'm slightly unclear in that they are all Kṛṣṇa, but yet we're offering to different predominant mood of Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Different representation of Kṛṣṇa for different function, and They're full in Themselves. And They've got Their separate taste Who is. And we're to adjust ourselves accordingly when we approach the particular representation of Kṛṣṇa.

Mainly two types; Predominating and Predominated. Predominated section there also different representations, with different functions. There also we have to adjust, to satisfy Them differently. Then we're to find our own intrinsic graduation in the whole, and to be adjusted there, to have our adjustment. Where from we're expected to do our duty to Them differently. Different function, everyone of us we may have to watch different sight of the representation of Kṛṣṇa or His potency. According to our adjustment, eternal adjusted position. And as long as we're not reinstated in that permanent position in a general way we're to move according to our progress of realisation.

Suppose we've got our position in the friendly circle of Kṛṣṇa in Vṛndāvana, then we're to deal with Baladeva in a particular way. Subal, Śrīdāmā, there are, Nanda and Yaśodā there are, the gopīs there are, our respective response will be accordingly towards them, their demands. We're to serve all, but in different mood and different way. It is everywhere adjustment such. Adjust means to be adjusted in a particular position and from there we may have various functions and duties to do towards different representations of the environment, not all equal. Not all equal, adjustment means that hierarchy. Begin small, important, non-important according to their gradation. The position is all there high or low according to the satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa. Every point trying to satisfy Kṛṣṇa, and according to their nature and their degree of service that is got, we're to adjust ourselves. Adjustment with the environment means various duties towards various representatives of the whole. So Nṛsiṁhadeva we shall be generally looking after that any obstacle in my way to march towards the service may be removed by His grace, special prayer. In this way according to Their function and the kind of grace They hold, our position, prayer, and our service will be accordingly. Adjustment. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

The sonhood of Godhead, consorthood of Godhead, friendhood of Godhead, fatherhood of Godhead, different conceptions there are. And there is a gradation. And consorthood is considered to be the highest conception according to Bhāgavatam and Mahāprabhu.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Searching our heart we're to find out high and low, the demand, the degree of demand within us. We may classify according to that. So many inner hankering we have got and what is the most intense, according to that the solution will have got the importance, the response. Hṛdaye nābhya nujñāto. Svarūpa.

[vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ sadbhir, nityam adveṣa-rāgibhiḥ
hṛdayenābhyanujñāto, yo dharmas taṁ nibhodhata]
[Manu-saṁhitā, 2.1]

Self-determination. Self-determination; where is my fulfilment? Fullest engagement, fullest satisfaction, where I am get, the solution will come accordingly.

[na tatra sūryo bhāti candra-tārakaṁ, nema vidyuto bhānti kūto 'yam agniḥ]
tam eva bhāntam anubhāti sarvaṁ, tasya bhāsā sarvaṁ idaṁ vibhāti

["In the transcendental abode of the Lord there is no need of sun, moon, or stars for illumination, nor is there any need of electricity, what to speak of ignited lamps. On the other hand, it is because those planets are self-illuminating that all effulgence has become possible. Whatever there is that is dazzling is due to the reflection of the divine abode of the Lord. The Supreme Godhead is so brilliantly self-luminous that neither the sun, nor the moon, nor stars, nor lightning have any power of illumination in His transcendental abode, and what to speak of fire. It is a fact that all of them get their power of illumination from His effulgence alone. In fact, it is only because of His existence that the whole universe exists."]

What is there, the similar thing is here, corresponding phase. What is in me, the demand, and outside that is also existing.

So I told the other day that the seed of all the revealed scripture is in one word, the Yes, Oṁ. Oṁ, this sound contains the whole thing. This very seed of Gāyatrī, and from Gāyatrī comes the Veda, and from Veda three departures. Anyhow, Vedānta, Bhāgavatam, in this way. The very seed is Oṁ. What is Oṁ? Oṁ means a great, a grand Yes! What is yes? What you are searching for within, that is. The positive assertion. It is there! The object of your innermost searching, it is. Really it has existence, for which you find your innermost desire, hankering. That is, one word. Then begin searching, what is that? That is Brahman. All-accommodating, that is Paramātmā, that is Bhagavān. Here we'll have the greater satisfaction, bhajanīya. The object of your worship, your innermost adoration is there, what you are searching for. All this comes from within, it is automatic with us. Yes - a positive, direct, positive answer. What you are searching for in your innermost heart, that exists. Be assured, be consoled.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...culminate in Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead. Because we shall be able to find gradually our innermost hankering is for that sweetness, that sweet consorthood. According to their position, vātsalya, sākhya, a little modified. Hare Kṛṣṇa. We can't ignore. It is the truth, we can't avoid. Wherever we go, we're in the tree section, or in the insect, animal, wherever we go, this is within us. The eternal search, within for something. And that thing is. And how? Try, try again to find out the innermost satisfaction, the object of innermost.

[andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās, te 'pīśa-tantryām uru-dāmni baddhāḥ]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.31]

Prahlāda Mahārāja says we can't understand, the very object of our selfish nature is Viṣṇu conception, Kṛṣṇa conception. Generally misguided, we make much of the cover. Is it that? Is it that? Is it that? All cover. But when we come to the sādhu and get sukṛti and some help, then we can understand, not the cover, but my inner heart is searching after Viṣṇu, after Kṛṣṇa conception. Prahlāda Mahārāja says. We can detect. Then we can understand our own self, ātmā-darśan-ātmā-sakhathkar. When we can meet our own self we can find, according to our progress, that what our innermost demand, what we want really. And each calculation to full-fledged theism that is Kṛṣṇa conception. There we are, so far, no further. It stops its journey there.

So it is not thrust on anyone against his will. No force, no enforcement, no application of any force, it is natural only to understand. Favourable circumstance help us to understand our own necessity. We're to be educated about our own self and selfishness proper. What is our real self and what is selfishness proper. Then we can come gradually to understand that Kṛṣṇa, it culminates there, Kṛṣṇa conception of the environment, Vṛndāvana can satisfy us. Vṛndāvana is a place that can fulfil all our inner hankering to the fullest extent, no further. It is natural. So comparative study is allowed, not a blind faith, led towards a corner by a designing man, no. March in the plain line.

Satyam śivam sundaram. First existence, unassailable existence assured. Next, śivam, general satisfaction that is above death, to conceive oneself above death. Beyond the attack of the negative side, safe position. Then positive progress, sundaram. Śivam means to get out of the negative side, attack, torment, difficulties, trouble, to go above that, śivam. Satyam, śivam, then sundaram, that sweetness or beauty, march towards that. Three stages of life, to feel where we are, really our position. That we are assailed by our environment, attacked and subdued. Action, reaction; to get out of that, in the abscissa, that is śivam, out of the negative influence. Then third position is fulfilment, to merge in the beautiful atmosphere of Vṛndāvana.

And very akin to them we also can find Navadwīpa, a little generous Vṛndāvana. Generous, magnanimous Vṛndāvana, we're concerned more with that, fallen souls. Very palatable dishes are being served among the friends inner circle, and then that being distributed to the public, two forms of the highest.

So to be adjusted in this way, unassailable position. So we admit the necessity of only one thing; back to home. March towards home. All engagements must be subservient to that. If it hinders the royal march back to home, that should be rejected. And what will help our march towards home, that is accepted, favourable, what is. The only thing, only duty we have got to discharge, we must go home. Where the innermost part, with the innermost part wholesale satisfaction we get. Every nerve gets its satisfaction of our existence. Full-fledged theism. Consideration for the necessity of the fulfilment of every nerve in our system. Every nerve will find its satisfaction in that soil. Wholesale satisfaction of our whole existence, automatic, found in that land. That is home, where full attendance is given to us, to our every nerve of existence. We want to go there.

Here it is impossible, in this atmosphere to have. We cannot lead a treacherous life. We must be sincere to our own self. And that requires that we must be, we cannot be but a devotee of Kṛṣṇa, cannot but be members of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. So that is the universal march, and that is necessary for everyone, wherever there is animation, self-consideration It cannot be avoided. Most universal form of life and the fullest utilisation of our energy is only there.

It is not non-scientific. Higher science where the mortality is also, is given its due position. With death everything finishes, not that haphazard program. The program is a full program. We must live, crossing the boundary of mortality, concerned with our eternal life. Only we are trying our hardest only up to death, then after death that is unknown? We cannot be satisfied with that unknown propaganda. The unknown must also be taken within our program, and we are to provide for that. Such broad, wide program we want to have for us as well as for others. There is a clear program of us. Live in the eternity. Live in the eternity and the demand of that we find eternal aspect within ourselves. Our soul is eternal factor in eternity. We can find out in course of that search that who am I? Really I am a factor in the eternity.

And when we come to make much of this flesh and blood, we come down in the level of mortality. We are immortal. And Socrates had to pay up his life for that. Soul is immortal. At the cost of his life he had to prove that soul is immortal. Our innermost factor in this world is immortal, and the environment is also immortal. And we're a member of the immortal world. And then not merely immortality will satisfy. What is the positive gain, to be a member of the immortal world? To first get out of all these undesirable troubles that come to disturb us. And the next, the positive fulfilment.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi. Nitāi.

nityo nityānāṁ cetanaś-cetanānām, eko bahūnāṁ yo vidadhāti kāmān
[tam ātmasthaṁ ye 'nupaśyanti dhīrās teṣāṁ śāntiḥ śāśvatī netareṣām]

["Of the innumerable, eternal, conscious beings, there is one eternal Supreme Being. That Supreme Lord is the maintainer of the innumerable living beings in terms of their different situations, according to individual work and reaction of work. That Supreme Lord is also, by His expansion as Paramātmā, present within the heart of every living being. Only those saintly persons who can see, within and without, that same Supreme Lord, can actually attain to perfect and eternal peace."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 2.2.13]

What is expanded here from the domain of immortality, there we find somewhat about the immortal world. What type of that world is, which is said to be immortal. There also men are living, there also persons are living and they're living, they're enjoying their life. And they send something down to this world, that we're so-and-so, we're living men in the sukhra, Mars? _____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Seminal.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Venus?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: No. Seminal.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mars is mangal. Jupiter Bṛhaspati. Venus perhaps?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Planet. Which planet?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. The planet where they suppose that higher civilisation is there. Venus. So they're more civilised. But a recent finding is that Venus is also a desert. Ha, ha, ha. No persons may live there. Hitherto they supposed that the higher civilisation may be found in Venus, than this Earth. But now they're disappointed finding no higher civilised life. No life, no human beings can be traced.

But Indian philosophy it does not say that. They are living, but not in this flesh and blood, their bodies are otherwise. Just after death the mental system, they leave centring about Moon, Pitṛloka. Pitṛloka is located in the moon. And Devaloka towards the Sun, more light. The Moon is connected more with Earth. After death they go to the Moon and then they're in connection with the Earth, again they have to come here to live and do karma. In this way.

But those that get liberation from the Earthly enjoyment, they go towards the Sun. Crossing the boundary of attraction of the Earth, they go forth to the eternal atmosphere of the Sun. That is another thing.

And Druvaloka is considered to be holding some position of devotion, Druva, the polar star. That he has not yet investigated, by the scientists. Druvaloka. And Druvaloka and this Earth, it is very peculiar; they are holding similar position always. All moving, but still Earth and this Druva planet, they're holding similar position. So the Indian yogī, scientists they are of opinion that this Earth is not moving. In consideration with the Sun it is moving. But if we fix all movements are relative, if we think whether Earth is moving or not with our concentration in relation with this Druva, the Mars, the polar system, then Earth is here, standstill. And the Sun and the others are moving.

You take a photo, thinking that Earth is immoveable, and that Druva. Druva and Earth, they're holding similar position always. In consideration of taking the Sun in the centre, so many moving. But if Druva is taken in the centre, then Earth is always maintaining the same position with it. Then you take the place of Sun and others, all moving, but Earth is fixed. We can think like that. So movements, motion means relative conception.

Two persons, if two trains are going parallel, two persons who are face to face, they think that we are not moving, always face to face. Though the trains are moving at the same rate of velocity. We are changing no position.

[dhūmo rātris tathā kṛṣṇaḥ, ṣaṇ-māsā dakṣiṇāyanam]
tatra cāndramasaṁ jyotir, yogī prāpya nivartate

["If he expires on a dark night within a fortnight of the dark moon, during the sun's six-month southern orbit, the fruitive worker on the path of action reaches the heavenly plane, but subsequently has to undergo rebirth."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 8.25]

After death for some time they want to get some mental peace, they went to this Moon. But with the astral body, not to be traced by the Earth's observatory. Then they will again come back here. They have charm for the enjoyment of this Earth so they do not go out of the circle of attraction of the Earth. They go up to the Moon, and come back. And crossing the gravitation of the Earth, those that go towards the Sun, they have no charm for any attraction, enjoyment on the Earth. Uttarāyaṇa [Bhagavad-gītā, 8.24], dakṣiṇāyaṇa and uttarāyaṇa. Uttarāyaṇa, that goes crossing the boundary line of gravitation of the Earth. No charm for the Earth, earthly pleasure. And those that have still got attraction for the earthly pleasure, they go to the Moon and can come back. The Moon is the satellite of the Earth.

But anyhow, our argument basis will be subjective evolution. Evolution of the most revolutionary thing, in the line of hypnotism. As Kṛṣṇa showed Arjuna Viśvarūpa, that line. It is His sweet will, He can display in any way His creation as He likes. He controls the whole subject, and as He likes to show anyone He can do that. He controls the whole subjective area, the seer, the hearer, the thinker. The Absolute thinker controls all the thinkers under Him.

Just as Earth attracts all our bodies. All material substance attracted by the Earth, controlled by the Earth, or there is Sun, or something else. So also, the Absolute thinker controls all thinking agents. It is His līlā, then. His līlā. And also partly freedom is given for the time being, as He wills, to the so many thinking units. Thinking units also given their independence to certain extent, but not absolute. It is His līlā.

Everything for Himself. And He is by itself and for itself. This Hegelian theory covers the whole thing. By itself and for itself. In consideration of the existence, and in consideration of the fulfilment, both sides controlled by Him. But He's such, His nature is such that we can live happily with Him. He cannot live in a desert. He wants to live in a family. He's a family man. Sonhood of Godhead, according to us. Peace, home, Vṛndāvana, home. Plain, simple, loving, promising, and infinite resources.

There was a mock fight between Śrīvāsa Paṇḍita and Svarūpa Dāmodara. Śrīvāsa Paṇḍita wanted to plead about Vaikuṇṭha. Svarūpa Dāmodara after hearing to a certain extent, could not tolerate.

He told, "You, Śrīvāsa, you forget what are the wealth in Vṛndāvana. The ordinary tree holds the capacity of all the resources of your Vaikuṇṭha. The milk cows they are like such, these creepers and these trees and so many simple. But the grandeur, awe, reverence, the wealth side, that is suppressed within their foot. That is Vṛndāvana."

Such is Vṛndāvana. It is pleasing. Grandeur cannot please one for long time. He will vex himself, cannot be tolerated. But this homely life, the plain life, the simple life, the forest life, that is health giving.

Now also the scientific persons, they discover that trees are necessary for our living. If we do away with the forest then we won't be able, who will supply the carbon dioxide, the oxygen for us? So in towns also they're trying to create trees, forests. The forest is life giving place, and town is not so, life killing, and forest life giving.

So Vṛndāvana, life giving. Supplying vitality from all quarters, Vṛndāvana. Vaikuṇṭha is not so. Ha, ha. All concentrated in Kṛṣṇa. Others living helpless, dependent life to Kṛṣṇa.

"Oh, Kṛṣṇa will see, Kṛṣṇa will do, Kṛṣṇa will." In this way.

The friends, when Kṛṣṇa held up the Govardhana, the friends told, "Oh, You could not hold it by Yourself alone. We also put our sticks to hold it up. Without our help You could not do." The friends are saying.

rakṣā koribo tuhuṅ niścaya jāni, pāna korobuṅ hāma yamunā pāni

["Fearless and confident of Your protection, I shall drink the waters of the Yamunā, whether they are poisoned or not. I am Your property. You must take care of me; You can't leave me."]

[The Songs Of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, p 26-7]

At the bottom of their heart they're so confident of Kṛṣṇa's assistance, continuous Kṛṣṇa assistance at their back, they're going and rushing towards poisonous thing, and swallowing poison, drinking poison. "Oh, Kṛṣṇa is at our back. Whom do I fear? We don't fear anyone." They're going to the Kāliyadaha, the poisonous place of Yamunā by this serpent venom. They're drinking that water and fainting, but without any fear. "Oh, Kṛṣṇa is at our back. He will look after, whatever calamity befalls on us, He will ultimately take care of that." Then Kṛṣṇa had to go and again to revive them from the poisonous effect.

Rakṣisyatīti viśvāsaḥ, in Śaraṇāgati, in the process of surrender there is one great part. "That He will protect me. Whom do I care? I don't care for anyone. He's, my master is there on my head. He'll protect me. No necessity of any apprehension from any quarter at all." In the sākhya rasa that is very, very clear. Rakṣisyatīti viśvāsaḥ.

And at the same time challenging in the time of play. "You could not do this. I gained over You. You failed." Ha, ha. Such homely play. God and His servant in equal position on the surface. Sometimes holding lower position even. Family life, sweet family life. And the devotees of the higher type they see devotion only there when the Absolute is defeated to the part. The peculiar thing is devotion, Yogamāyā. Devotion, leaving everything, say, "We want devotion only. If we get devotion, the Absolute will come to our door." Devotion is such. So go on praising devotion, devotion, devotion. Is all-in-all, devotion. Where is devotion? Where it is found that the master is defeated by the servant. There is devotion. There you can trace what is devotion.

[sādhubhir grasta-hṛdayo, bhaktair bhakta-jana-priyaḥ]

[The Lord tells Durvāsā: "I am the slave of My devotees; I have no freedom apart from their will. Because they are completely pure and devoted to Me, My heart is controlled by them, and I reside always in their hearts. I am dependent not only on My devotees, but even on the servants of My devotees. Even the servants of My devotees are dear to Me."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 9.4.63]

"That My absolutism is forgotten at that time, that I am absolute, I forget that. I go as one of them, sometimes, approach them to serve."

That peculiar thing is devotion. So high. Then what this worldly energy, or that knowledge will come to cope with it? Because devotion means mystique, miracle. Devotion.

Nitai loile janma bhitire hari bole ke hari bole kere gaura hari bole ke?

Who else than Nityānanda, He's roaming around the banks of this Ganges with the Name of Hari and Gaura Hari. Surely, this Nityānanda, so bold assertion, careless. Careless of any individuality Nityānanda boldly asserting. "Take the Name of Gaura Hari, Gaura Hari, and you will have wonderful promise of your life. Take the Name of Gaura Hari! Gaura Hari!"

High potentiality. Distributing the high potentiality along the banks of the Ganges, that great Nityānanda. How we're to judge the efficiency and utility of a thing? We can judge it only in connection of its goal, of its highest prospect, things should be judged whether how valuable it is. If we can understand what was distributed in Bhāgavatam and by Śrī Gaurāṅga, that how that is the highest attainment of all of us, all animation, then we can appreciate that vagabond, Nityānanda. In a vagabond life, He was only crying hoarsely, "Take the Name of Gaurāṅga! Take the Name of Gaura Hari!"

Ultimately that half-educated and fat and strong gentleman of high, tall figure, and carelessness, moving anywhere and everywhere. But He had one precedent record in His back; that He delivered Jagāi and Mādhāi, the greatest guṇḍās of the time. That was as His back, Nityānanda roaming like a vagabond, here and there and, "Take the Name of Gaurāṅga." But at His back that record supports Him. Jagāi and Mādhāi are there, we cannot ignore them, that is a concrete fact. Whatever tantric or nyāyic, the logicians, or so many miraculous, whoever we are, we cannot dismiss from our experience that Jagāi and Mādhāi. Those horrible thieves that were converted by that vagabond Nityānanda. So, something, some attention, some apprehension we must have for that man, ha, ha, Nityānanda. Gaura Hari bol.

Ata bhauli nityananda bhumi kori jaya sana padma jana dhulay lotai [?]

Appealing, appealing, appealing. No response. Then He's rolling on the gate. "Listen to Me! I have come to give you the highest thing. Don't drive away! The highest nectar is passing through your door! Take it! A drop, take a drop!" And as if one big, beautiful and fair body, just as golden peak of a mountain is rolling on the gate. Nityānanda. So much earnestness to do good to the people.

Nadiya ya kore gaura jaya de [?] When Mahāprabhu went to take sannyāsa, the devotees, some of them sang this song. "Oh Gaurāṅga is going out of Navadwīpa. The whole Navadwīpa is enveloped in darkness. As long as He was here, the great light. His passing away, His leaving Navadwīpa at His back. And Navadwīpa seems to be a dark area. You inhabitants of Navadwīpa, go and take Him back. Fall at His feet and take Him back to Navadwīpa, reinstate there. Otherwise, all dark."

Ata baya dayi pi arey nadiya bar gaura jaya [?] "The light of Navadwīpa is going away from Navadwīpa. You don't appreciate this. You don't know what wealth you're missing. Go and fall at His feet and take Him, reinstate in Navadwīpa." In this way the devotees are singing.

Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Adjustment. To take the Name of Gaurāṅga and Nityānanda, to maintain the adjusted position. Position may be disturbed by some influences from outside. But when we take the Name we find we think that we're again having my proper adjusted position, taking the Name of Gaurāṅga and Nityānanda. I am at Their feet.

Kṛpayā tava pāda-paṅkaja-sthita-dhūlī-sadṛśaṁ vicintaya. "Please consider me a dust of Your holy feet. That is my position. I like to be adjusted there. By dealing the topics of so many kinds, my attention is drawn towards this and that. But I like to have my own permanent position as the dust of Your holy feet. There is my located position. From there I can serve best, I can do my duty best. Consider." Mahāprabhu says.

ayi nanda-tanuja kiṅkaraṁ, patitaṁ māṁ viṣame bhavāmbudhau kṛpayā tava pāda-paṅkaja-sthita-dhūlī-sadṛśaṁ vicintaya

["O son of Nanda Mahārāja, I am Your eternal servant, yet because of My own karma, I have fallen into this terrible ocean of birth and death. Accept this fallen soul and consider Me a particle of dust at Your holy lotus feet."] [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 5]

"Please consider Me as a dust of Your holy feet."

sakhyāya te mama namo 'stu namo 'stu nityam, dāsyāya te mama raso 'stu raso 'stu satyam

["I won't allow myself to become fascinated by the proposal of the higher level service as a friend, sākhya. Rather, I shall tend always to do the lower service, dāsya, the service of the servant. I shall not consider myself to be a high class servitor and I shall always tend to go towards the lower class of service. But He may forcibly take me to a higher service. "No, you are no longer to serve there; now you must serve in this higher category.'"] [Vilāpa-kusamāñjali, 16]

"I do not like to be holding a higher position in the service. But my natural trend will be to go towards lower service. But the Yogamāyā will come, "No, no, I like to give you this sort of service. Don't disobey me." In this way they go upward to do that duty. But their natural tendency, inner tendency, always to go down. "Oh, I'm not fit for this service. I like to serve, any smallest, meanest service I want to have. This is my prayer. The meanest service I want. I'm not fit to do the higher service." But Yogamāyā will come, "No, no, you must do, you must obey me, you are to do this service." Then we have to, we do that. That will be the attitude, Dāsa Goswāmī says. The sākhya, to come in the same level, no. The confidential, no, no. I must go down, lower service. That should be the tendency of pure devotee, all. A tendency to go towards the lower part. And never any aggression towards the higher. That is only forced. Forced from the common interest management...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. At the same time they're concious about their own master exclusively, faithfully. Otherwise the paravyoma deli pheli. I shall discharge the meanest service of our Master, Kṛṣṇa. But I won't have any attraction for the higher service in Vaikuṇṭha, Nārāyaṇa. Never. The meanest service of my Lord, but not highest service position in serving even Kṛṣṇa as Nārāyaṇa there in Vaikuṇṭha. No. That is not my inner tendency. What can I do? If I see Nārāyaṇa I shall bow down to Him.

"O Lord, You are Master of everything. You please grant that I may have my liking towards my Lord Kṛṣṇa, and be a servant or maidservant there. I want this boon, pray for this boon to You my Lord. You are Master. You can do everything."

In that way. But my heart's inner hankering will there, in the meanest service.

Nitāi. Dayal-Nitāi. Dayal-Nitāi. Dayal-Nitāi. Dayal-Nitāi. Nitāi-Dayal. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi-Dayal.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja not come?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. _____ [?] Yesterday we had a very happy program.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, I heard from Govinda Mahārāja repeatedly.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "That I've never taken prasādam so much in my whole life."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "I can remember so many feasts." He told. "One in Śakhī Bābu, another here, there. But this surpasses all."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "Then I have taken so much, that four days I'm not to take anything."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Said like that, announcing and announcing, yesterday.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

The local people were also given some prasādam there?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That Vasudeva came?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: No. He's a little entangled.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: O, he could not come?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: No.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...is also not here? Pramāṇa Swāmī also joined the festival and made it more satisfactory, joyful, added to the happiness of all the devotees.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: That's a fact.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Whenever he came and met me I at once sent there. Go, the festival is going of your Prabhupāda, run there.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.
Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Eight or nine of you spoke about Swāmī Mahārāja there? With his grace. Kṛṣṇa.

...

...prabhu is leaving today?

Devotee: Yes Guru Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What o'clock?

Devotee: Eleven o'clock train.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: ...movement was pre-planned by he and yourself. It was originally your plan, but you do not tell us that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: At least common to certain extent, no doubt, common interest. Sincerely we're of common interest, at least to major portion. For that interest I'm living a life about fifty six years here. And you are also like that. This interest. He moved heaven and earth for this interest. The vital interest. To live or to die, for such interest, that is our common capital.

When some of his disciples interned him in a room for three days without any food perhaps...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: So we hear.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...he had to take the risk. Imprisonment for unknown time he had to undergo. More bold and aggressive. I'm always a player in the back, not in the front. He was a player in the centre, of the front.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Sudhīra Goswāmī Mahārāja he has one photograph of Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura, with many disciples. And we find Your Divine Grace in the back.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Back. Oh, in Madras?

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Standing in Madras.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. That photo.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: With shaved head.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I remember.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: And looking very strong and proper.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Health was good at that time.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. Very good health. Very nice photo.
...for us to come to you Mahārāja. It is his order for us to come to your feet.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gaura Hari.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He has given us that order to complete the order of Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta.
Because in the beginning he asked Your Divine Grace.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Expected from me.

...

...I understood diplomacy, but I came in the Maṭha with a childlike simplicity. And Prabhupāda remarked one day, "He's _____ [?] brāhmaṇa, he's a brāhmaṇa of very simple type."

Then one member of a friendly type he told me, "Do you hear what Prabhupāda remarks about you?"

What is the remark?

"That _____ [?] brāhmaṇa _____ [?] brāhmaṇa. You are a foolish brāhmaṇa he says. By simple brāhmaṇa means foolish. You do not understand anything."

Then after a long time I asked himself. Am I that foolish brāhmaṇa now, you think?

"No, no. You are more diplomatic."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I understand diplomacy but I generally hate it. That is I don't appreciate it, but I understand. But I have come to the devotees not to play diplomatically with them, but fullest simplicity I have come. With full openness I have come to appreciate their movements. Wholehearted to appreciate what is - every point guarding with great attention that what best there can be. With this attitude I came to study the Gauḍīya Matha.

So the outward forms of Gauḍīya Maṭha were always eliminated from my vision. Only ontological side that was my concern. I tried to study my best to ontological side of Gauḍīya Maṭha. Whole, as much as I could command, the whole attention was given towards ontological side, ignoring the formal aspect. That was my nature. So I could understand the lectures of Prabhupāda. The old, experienced, and veteran preachers also used to enquire from me after our Guru Mahārāja delivered his lecture.

"What did Guru Mahārāja, Prabhupāda tell?"

I repeated again before them. He told this, this, this, this, that thing. And they heard it attentively. Because I was all attentive to the ontological side.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

śrīmad-bhāgavate mahā-muni-kṛte kiṁ vā parair īśvaraḥ

["Completely rejecting all religious activities which are materially motivated, this Bhāgavata-Purāṇa propounds the highest truth, which is understandable by those devotees who are fully pure in heart. The highest truth is reality distinguished from illusion for the welfare of all. Such truth uproots the threefold miseries. This beautiful Bhāgavatam, compiled by the great sage Vyāsadeva (in his maturity), is sufficient in itself for God realisation. What is the need of any other scripture? As soon as one attentively and submissively hears the message of Bhāgavatam, by this culture of knowledge the Supreme Lord is established within his heart."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.1.2]

"The very gist, eliminating all undesirable things from the conception of our duty, all eliminated. And what is our duty proper, that was to be distributed from Bhāgavatam, and to the particular section. Who are they? Nirmat-sarāṇāṁ satāṁ. Those that can ignore their ego to the fullest extent, nirmatsara, no consideration of their ego, no selfish idea. Who are ready to die for the cause, it is only meant for them. Nirmat-sarāṇāṁ. Self consideration fully eliminated, fully forgetful of his own selfish acquisition, it is only meant for them. Completely uncontaminated naked truth I'm going to distribute now in this scripture, in Bhāgavatam." With this promise, Preface, Vedavyāsa began to write this book, Bhāgavatam.

And Jīva Goswāmī Prabhu also he wants to go a step further. Savatopita. "Who have not got this qualification he won't come to touch my book. I give some author's curse they may not approach to touch my book. If they've got no such qualification they won't come to touch my book, then they'll be lost, in this way. Savatopita. They won't touch, shouldn't touch. They can't understand, and they will mutilate, and they'll do disservice to the world in my name."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. And Kavirāja Goswāmī told on the other hand. "I bow down to the feet of those who will be the readers of my book in future. From here I bow down to them, to the feet dust of those that will have to come across to read this book. My future readers, hearers, I bow down to them. But at the same time assert if anyone cannot understand, his life is no life, his life is rather considered to be death. Janmiyā se. He should have died immediately after he's born. He's coming across, coming in touch with Caitanya līlā, if anyone cannot appreciate, it would have been better that immediately after his birth he should have died. Janmiyā se kene nāhi maila. Such a great chance he missed, such a great chance in his life he missed, that he should have died immediately after he's born. Pāiyā amṛtadhunī, piye viṣa-garta-pāni. There is divine nectar, and there is poisonous drain water. You are creature of the drain water, and here is divine nectar. If you coming together miss this chance, then what is the value of your life?" This strong term.

pāiyā amṛtadhunī, piye viṣa-garta-pāni, janmiyā se kene nāhi maila]

["Anyone who attains a human body but does not take to the cult of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu is baffled in his opportunity. Amṛtadhunī is a flowing river of the nectar of devotional service. If after getting a human body one drinks the water in a poison pit of material happiness instead of the water of such a river, it would be better for him not to have lived, but to have died long ago."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 13.123]

And at the same time, "I'm so mean, but Nityānanda Prabhu's Grace I think took me to the high order that I can taste this sort of sweetness. It is not my credit but whole credit to Nityānanda, His Grace. Whatever I have got, only it is from Him. And I bow down to the future reader of my book, and hearer of this book also, from here."

saba śrotā-vaiṣṇavere kari' namaskāra [ei saba ślokera kari artha-vicāra]

["I offer my obeisances unto all my Vaiṣṇava readers as I begin to explain the intricacies of all these verses."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 1.30]

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. And in Caitanya-Bhāgavata, Vṛndāvana Dāsa Ṭhākura, that is also apparently it is just the opposite. "I appeal, appeal, and appeal so much entreatingly. But still if there is anyone who won't care to show his dignity or attention towards the līlā of Śrī Caitanyadeva, I kick him on his head."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That was his straight and proud version. Apparently it seems that it is just opposite to Vaiṣṇava humility. But I heard for the first time from Guru Mahārāja, Prabhupāda.

"That who had no alternative to come towards Gaura consciousness, or Kṛṣṇa consciousness, Vṛndāvana Dāsa Ṭhākura had devised the way, opened the way for them. For the worst section he has found a way out. What is that? That because he has insulted them so much, so Gaura-Nityānanda will have to come to their relief to save them. Because Their son has done something wrong to a person, the guardian will come to satisfy him.

"O, you had misdeed, you are wounded by My son in such a way. All right, I'm compensating, giving something to you to compensate."

The compensation will come to them for this bold action of Vṛndāvana Dāsa Ṭhākura from the higher guardian area. So for whom there was no prospect, no way out, he has made, created some sort of way for them by dealing so rashly against the opponents."

That I heard. How to see the action of the Vaiṣṇava. Their anger, their curse, that is also helpful to the ordinary person, their curse also.

It is mentioned there also when Nārada threw curse amongst Nalakūvara, "Go to the tree species. You can't remain in the human form. Go to the tree section."

Then when they, for the reaction, apprehension, began to cry, falling at the feet of Nārada.

Then it was sanctioned. "Yes, you'll be tree, but in Vṛndāvana. Kṛṣṇa will break you and you'll come up and gain your former position."

Nalakūvara, Yamalarjuna, became Yamalarjuna and came to be a part of Kṛṣṇa līlā. And when relieved from that curse then in the touch of Kṛṣṇa līlā they where turned into golden position.

So curse of a Vaiṣṇava, any connection of a Vaiṣṇava cannot do any harm. Vaiṣṇava aparādha, it is not from this side to that. But from Vaiṣṇava side any aggression, if any aggression comes from the Vaiṣṇava side, then they're compensated by the Lord in a very valuable way. But if any offence committed against Vaiṣṇava, and they do not care for it, he cannot get any release. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Our Godbrother, Atreya Ṛṣi Prabhu, he also wrote you one letter.

"I hope one day I will be blessed by you to chastise me."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. He has written to you?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: No, to yourself. About one year ago. "One day I hope you will chastise me."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Chastise him.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: So he also wants your blessings.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. He's not against me. Hare Kṛṣṇa. He did not cast vote against me in the meeting?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: No.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And even Svarūpa Dāmodara also did not cast his vote against me I was told.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. You're beyond votes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. I do not think anything ill against ISKCON. Only institute to preach the greatness, the nobility of Mahāprabhu, to go against them that is to commit suicide. So I can't do that. My interest and ISKCON interest is common. The glory of Mahāprabhu that will be spread and so many souls will come to have their eternal happy life. How can I go against that. But only if little misconception comes, according to my conscience I want to remove that, for my own spiritual interest. As much as I can understand, this is not the way, this is not the conception of the goal. To my best sincerity what I can understand I say that. I think I'm such, otherwise I shall murder me, I shall commit...

Yatuk jnatim yatum katum sahate _____ [?] "If you spit over your head it will come on your head."

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

If I'm sincere I must want that the teachings of Mahāprabhu will be spread abroad, and ISKCON is doing that, giving distribution to that thing. So to have any envy about the principle of ISKCON, that will be suicidal to me. God forbids I may not take anything of the type in me.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Now we're to hear Pramāṇa Swāmī. Akṣayānanda specially has stopped his journey towards Bombay to look after him. We're getting our old friend within us, so sincere.

Pramāṇa Swāmī [?]: I was thinking this morning Mahārāja, that I had tried many times to establish some loving relationship with my Godbrothers in ISKCON. And they have many times closed their doors in my face. And then I've come here and I find this loving welcome embrace, but still I'll have to go there.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Pramāṇa Swāmī: What's the use? You were saying before that we want to be among brothers.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Birds of the same feather flock together. You have come among your own friends. And your old and best friend Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja is here.

Pramāṇa Swāmī: But great enemy of ISKCON.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. You have come here because Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja had a phone call with you? He called you on a phone?

Pramāṇa Swāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And also you received letter from _____ [?] Mahārāja?

Pramāṇa Swāmī: Actually one of my Godbrothers you have never met, he's called Virabahu.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Another Godbrother that you do not know named Virabahu, he influenced him.

Pramāṇa Swāmī: He's going to come sometime.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: With his virabahu, strong hand, he has caught hold of you and thrown.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Pramāṇa Swāmī: He sent me a letter saying that "I think that now more than ever you will want my friendship." And when I read that I decided I had to call him up.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh. Threatening in that way?

Pramāṇa Swāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa's diplomacy.
Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

This is so, O dear one, because a person who performs virtuous actions never becomes ill-fated."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 6.40]

Sara hoile gaura siksa bujiya _____ [?] If we're simple, unprejudiced, open minded, we'll be able to appreciate the teachings of Śrī Gaurāṅga. Only simplicity is necessary, independent of so many bad prejudices. Simplicity, openness, sincerity, and Gaurāṅga will come to take possession of the throne in his heart.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. So I close here today.

...at the evening, in the night, where he was crucified, he washed the feet of his disciples, is it not?

Devotees: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Feet of the disciples, and also with the towels dried them.

Our Guru Mahārāja, whoever used to prostrate before him, "daso smi," that was his answer. We saw for the first time that Guru is also - anyone bowing down to him he's just returning in the same way. So much so one day when I had not yet entered the Maṭha, I'm coming and going. Perhaps Janmāṣṭamī day or so, I found that whoever is passing by him he's bowing down, and he also bowing down. I thought that so many times that one gentleman had to bow down. One by one they're going and he of course he's alone and he's giving back, bowing down to everyone. Then he's so much tired, so at least I must give him relief, so I bowed down mentally, and passed by him. And necessarily he did not bow down to me. I felt that at least I gave him some relief. Then I told someone that I did not bow down to him.

"Why?" One of the disciples was enraged.

And for this purpose, that if I bow down he will also bow down. And a man, how long can he go on doing? So many persons only once they're doing, and him to everyone he's to. So at least I thought I must give him relief. Then he was satisfied.

So service, outwardly Guru receives the reverence, but really he does service. His duty is that of service, to cleanse the undesirable things from the heart, and to make it a dwelling place for Kṛṣṇa and kāṛṣṇa, that sort of duty. Guru is also dāsa, he's servant of the disciple, in the higher sense. In the higher sense his duty is to cleanse, to clear away the rubbishes, undesirability from the hearts of those that come to him. To brush them aside, that is the duty.

So Jesus also showed that he's serving his disciples. Disciples means not to be, not to get an eternal predominated property. A real Guru he does not look like that, "that they're my living property." No. Servants, he does not. His vision is like that.

We're entering a domain where everyone is to be respected by everyone. Just as here the opposite, so one cannot stand without exploitation. And there the opposite, one cannot stand without service, without dedication. We're going to have entrance into that land. We must be fully conscious of the fact, to be serving unit is to serve one and all. Whatever will emit from me that is serving ray.

And of course there is adjustment, not all equal. All equal ultimately comes to nirviśeṣa, non differentiated, non specified environment. All equal means samaḥ, sarveṣu bhūteṣu. That is to pass through. Mad-bhaktiṁ labhate parām.

[brahma-bhūtaḥ prasannātmā, na śocati na kāṅkṣati
samaḥ sarveṣu bhūteṣu, mad-bhaktiṁ labhate parām]

["The spotlessly pure-hearted and self-satisfied soul who has attained to his conscious divine nature neither grieves nor craves for anything. Seeing all beings equally (in the conception of My supreme energy), he gradually achieves supreme devotion (prema-bhakti) unto Me."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.54]

"If you really want to get My unalloyed devotion, higher devotion, para-bhakti, then you are to pass through this samaḥ. I'm the bigger, and then in Virajā, Brahmaloka, I'm equal with all, and then I'm a servant of all."

The realm, there we're to enter. I'm the servant, all my master. This is very difficult. Even the land over which I pass, that is also master. Inconceivable. Vṛndāvana, Goloka, Vaikuṇṭha, so, paricāraka-bhṛtya- bhṛtya-bhṛtyasya bhṛtyam iti māṁ smara lokanātha.

[maj-janmanaḥ phalam idaṁ madhu-kaiṭabhāre, mat prārthanīya mad anugraha eṣa eva tvad bhṛtya-bhṛtya-paricāraka-bhṛtya-bhṛtya-, bhṛtyasya bhṛtyam iti māṁ smara lokanātha]

["O Supreme Lord of all beings, O slayer of the demons Madhu and Kaiṭabha, this is the purpose of my life, this is my prayer, and this is Your grace - that You will remember me as Your servant, a servant of a servant of a Vaiṣṇava, a servant of a servant of such a servant of a servant of a Vaiṣṇava, and a servant of a servant of the servant of a servant of a Vaiṣṇava's servant's servant."] [Mukunda-Mālā-stotra, 25]

They utter this mantram to set them right. "I'm servant of the servant, of the servant of the servant." Uttering this mantra and thinking of the purport they will have to move over, to live over, to walk over. Only for the service it is possible that I'm given opportunity to walk over which is my venerable thing. I'm servant of Him. I'm walking over His breast. It is impossible. So how much, sankusa means - care, we're to live and move there...

83.11.11.B

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I may not have to commit any offence. There's every possibility of committing offence. But only relief if I'm engaged in the service of the highest. That is the capital. Otherwise we shall lose everything, if we sit there idle we'll be loser. Always make some income, so much expense there. So expenditure, the income must be more, then we can stand. And what is the way of income? Service. By service I can thrive. Otherwise if I stand there I'll be diminished without service. Here as without exploitation none can stand in his position if he does not a place by. There the opposite, service, plane of service, service, service.

Servant of the servant, of the servant of the servant, so you all _____ [?]

Cintāmaṇi, bhumi-cintāmaṇi, it is posing as an Earth, or as ground, but it is conscious substance. The land I'm entering to live and move that is conscious. And I'm coming from the taṭasthā loka, and he's ever conscious. Vṛndāvana, Goluka, that is ever consciousness. And I lost my own self consciousness, I was somewhere, and I've got admission to come in that land. That is conscious plane. But only solace my connection with the higher consciousness. Śanta, dāsya, sākhya, vātsalya, mādhurya, Kṛṣṇa sevā. This is the solace that everything we come across they'll help us. They'll try their best to help me to Kṛṣṇa consciousness, to Kṛṣṇa service, their services. They're not apathetic, their contribution is also eternally to push me to serve.

Though superior in position, the mother takes the child in her lap, the feet of the child is in the thigh or breast of the mother, but affectionate does not take any offence there. So affection, so mercy, so love, is such noble thing. Anyhow we're related to Kṛṣṇa they all adore us. "Oh, this new child has come for the service of Kṛṣṇa." They will invite and welcome us very fervently. "He has come, he has got this opportunity, this great fortune." So everyone will come to help him. "Yes, do the service of the Lord, and embrace your fortune." In this way, all sympathetic. But we're to think that we're to - samaḥ, mad-bhaktiṁ labhate parām.

samaḥ sarveṣu bhūteṣu, mad-bhaktiṁ labhate parām]

Para-bhakti, śuddha-bhakti, unalloyed devotion, is of that characteristic. Full life, not vague, more clear life, but that is of that type. So surrender, self abnegation, self surrendering, the basis and the earnest desire to serve Kṛṣṇa and His own. We're new recruit entering the land, and they all come to receive us, welcome us, because the service, the surrender, that is our capital. Śaraṇāgati, on the basis of śaraṇāgati, the earnestness of service to Kṛṣṇa, to be normal. To strive to become normal, to come out of the abnormality, brain disease, heart disease, hṛd-rogam āśv apahinoty acireṇa dhīraḥ.

bhaktiṁ parām bhagavati pratilabhya kāmaṁ, hṛd-rogam āśv apahinoty acireṇa dhīraḥ]

["One who hears with firm faith the supra-mundane amorous affairs of Lord Kṛṣṇa and the gopīs, as described by a pure devotee of the Lord, soon becomes freed from mundane lust and achieves divine love of Kṛṣṇa."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.33.39]

All suffering from heart disease, heart wants to consume, whatever he finds outside wants. Just like a foolish, ignorant boy, what he finds he puts into the mouth. His tendency is to put into the mouth, the young child. Sometimes he's seeing an insect, anything, even in his stools, he'll take it and put into the mouth.

So man's compulsion for exploitation, this hopeless condition we're passing under, and what we want to achieve that is the greatest ambitious aspiration. And that is somewhat like this, the opposite. So must be careful.

bhukti-mukti-spṛhā yāvat, piśācī hṛdi varttate [tāvad bhakti-sukhasyātra, katham abhyudayo bhavet]

["How can the joy of holy devotion appear in the heart as long as it is haunted by the ghosts of desire for exploitation and renunciation?"] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva 2.22]

Those that have got a little touch of the magnanimity of that higher soil, they look at this world as piśācī. The motherly affection, fatherly affection, friendly affection, are here, they're piśācī, witch or wizard. Wants to tempt us away from our own wealth. Piśācī pāile yena mati-chhanna.

[kṛṣṇa-bahir-mukha haiyā bhoga vāñchā kare, nikaṭa-stha māyā tāre jāpaṭiyā dhare piśācī pāile yena mati-chhanna haya, māyā-grasta jīvera haya se bhāva udaya
"āmi nitya kṛṣṇa-dāsa" – ei kathā bhule, māyāra naphara haiyā cira-dina bule kabhu rājā, kabhu prajā, kabhu vipra, śudra, kabhu sukhī, kabhu duḥkhī, kabhu kīṭa, kṣudra kabhu svarge, kabhu martye, narake vā kabhu, kabhu deva, kabhu daitya, kabhu dāsa prabhu]

["Being averse to the loving service of the Supreme Lord, the living entity tries to satisfy his lusty desires for sense gratification, and the illusory energy clasps him tightly within her embrace. The living entity, thus captured by the illusory energy, becomes just like a madman under a witch's spell. "I am the eternal servant of Kṛṣṇa" – forgetting this, the soul becomes the slave of māyā and forever wanders through a succession of lives. Sometimes he is a king and sometimes a subject. Now he is a brāhmaṇa, now a śudra, now an insignificant ant. Sometimes happy, sometimes sad, now he goes to heaven, now to hell. Sometimes he is a god and sometimes a devil, now a servant, now a lord."] [Prema-Vivarta]

Piśācī hṛdi varttate. So much adored, and talked so highly, the mukti, salvation, liberation, these big sounding words. And revered by the so many scholars, mukti, salvation, liberation, emancipation. That is compared to a piśācī, a ghost, in unalloyed devotion. Rūpa Goswāmī. Bhukti-mukti-spṛhā yāvat, piśācī hṛdi varttate. As the filthy agents of the hell wants to entice us to take in that hellish plane, piśācī hṛdi varttate.

So positive and holy, noble, fulfilling, is the plane of devotion, honour and devotion, love, especially the plane of love. Not the plane of duty, or resourcefulness as in Vaikuṇṭha, but the plane of love and beauty. That is so fascinating, so fulfilling in its character that bhukti-mukti-spṛhā yāvat, piśācī. And when we're in other stage, that is we're suffering from heart disease. Hṛd-rogam āśv apahinoty acireṇa dhīraḥ. If we can come in contact with real discourse of divine character of the Supreme Lord then we're relieved from these evil ghosts, who are the recruiters, or representatives of these two planes of complete retirement or mal engagement of a looter.

Śuddha bhakti. So Yaśodā who is whipping Kṛṣṇa, outwardly, but at heart, what degree of intensity she bears affection for the child? So that is serving. Vātsalya rasa, taran vatsan. Chastising the boy, but it is found that there is affection, there is service. And Kṛṣṇa likes it, very palatable to Him. This sort of chastising and punishing, that is a form of service. So it is aprākṛta, aprākṛta vat, similar to this mundane, most selfish area, but just the opposite held. That is service. Parental, filial service, love, service. Without that it cannot be possible to come in contact with Kṛṣṇa.

All service full attitude but formed in different way. Parents they're higher servants than the friendly servants. Friends are also playing with Kṛṣṇa, sometimes climbing over His shoulder, sometimes He's climbing on their shoulder, in this way. But they're servants, sweet servants than ordinary servants, they're more sweet servants. Parents also servants.

And not to speak of the consorthood, the wholesale giving. We cannot conceive of that higher plane. We should be thought so pure, so subtle, so touchy. We should not venture to enter into that domain of the most confidential service.

["I won't allow myself to become fascinated by the proposal of the higher level service as a friend, sākhya. Rather, I shall tend always to do the lower service, dāsya, the service of the servant. I shall not consider myself to be a high-class servitor and I shall always tend to go towards the lower class of service. But He may forcibly take me to a higher service - 'No, you are no longer to serve there; now you must serve in this higher category.'"] [Vilāpa-kusamāñjali, 16]

Always we shall keep in our mind whenever we shall try go to hear about the mādhurya rasa service this śloka, this mantram, will protect us, of [Śrīla Raghunātha] Dāsa Goswāmī. Your tendency always be to the service to the feet. But Kṛṣṇa's will must have the supreme position. In whatever way He likes He'll accept. And it will come direct from that direction. And not any sort of slightest inclination for that highest peak of divinity. Inconceivable.

Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Serving. We're only concerned in concrete, that what is service, what is renunciation, what is exploitation, of different degrees. To come to be a child of the proper soil, that is the difficult thing. Then there is gradation. We must aspire after that. But our attention always be towards the plane where I'm taking my stand, where from I'm talking, where from I'm writing, where from I'm judging.

Always, is it phantasmagoria, will o the wisp, imagination? Or it is concrete, it is more real than we feel, see, hear, in this world? Am I going to be a loser or gainer? I must feel the plane under my foot. Where am I? The plane of devotion must be my home. A homely experience I must have there. As in home we're well acquainted with many things in home. So we're to make home what I'm going to enter, to accept, get my admission and to stay comfortably, to have my life of prospect. Is that real, or I'm a visionary, suffering from imagination? That always must be verified, that what is devotion? Can I live there really for long time, for ever? Or it is a fashion to me, a luxury to me for the time being?

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Our Guru Mahārāja used to tell, "Every day before you leave the bed you'll strike a hundred times with the broomstick on your head. Then you put your foot on the earth. What have I done in my last day, night? How far I could make progress in the real line? I've lost my time and energy. I'm losing my time and energy. I'm worthless. So put broomstick on your head. O Lord, save me. Today I may make some real progress. You please bless me."

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. His recognition for the pure devotional level was so much, when he wandered through Vṛndāvana and put a slap on his head. "Oh, such holy well known place, Vṛndāvana, I came. But my Lord is so high. I could not find a single Vaiṣṇava."

That is the high estimation of a Vaiṣṇava he had, our Guru Mahārāja, in this materialistic so-called scientific civilised age. His hankering, and his acquaintance, with the plane of Vaiṣṇava was so rare, so valuable. "I could not find a single Vaiṣṇava. My Lord is so high. So unfortunate am I, a single Vaiṣṇava I could not find in the holy land of Vṛndāvana."

So what standard of devotional life he used to foster within him, unalloyed devotion? Neti, neti, neti. This is not. Tamna, tamna. This is not, this is not this.

anyābhilāṣitā-śūnyaṁ, jñāna-karmādy-anāvṛtam / ānukūlyena-kṛṣṇānu-śīlanaṁ bhaktir uttamā

["One should render transcendental loving service to the Supreme Lord Kṛṣṇa favourably and without desire for material profit or gain through fruitive activities or philosophical speculation. That is called pure devotional service."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, 1.1.11] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19-167]

bhukti-mukti-spṛhā yāvat, piśācī hṛdi varttate / tāvad bhakti-sukhasyātra, katham abhyudayo bhavet

["How can the joy of holy devotion appear in the heart as long as it is haunted by the ghosts of desire for exploitation and renunciation?"] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva 2.22]

So we're to test, first with what things we're going to be engaged. Phantasmagoria, can really render satisfaction to our finest understanding? And the innermost demand of our heart? Can we know what is the innermost demand or hankering of our heart? Is it collaborating with that? Or I'm going to commit suicide, knowing nothing only _____ [?] something like rumour? Guided by some rumour I'm jumping for the time being. And then I'll come back abusing them. Their impertinence for my impotency and - improper judgement, I shall come as back as a reactionary. "Oh, all these are false. I have used a great portion of my energy. I have seen very closely. It is all false, nothing." As reactionary I shall come back.

"Brahma-bhūtaḥ. Identify yourself with the highest conception of the limit of this worldly experience. The greatest boundary which contains everything. All worldly experience contained in a particular globe. Introduce you with that brahma, all comprehending aspect of the existence. The verge, the highest reach, brahma-bhūtaḥ. Prasannātmā. If you can attain that position, the last limit of this world of exploitation, then prasannātmā. Your mind will be, will find some peace. Because it is relieved from the deceitful transaction of this world."

I'm saved, from the action reaction, action reaction. I'm out of that action and reaction, that most troublesome life. Action, reaction, I'm out of that. Now I'm in a peaceful area, not a play to that action, reaction, a struggle.

"Brahma-bhūtaḥ prasannātmā, na śocati na kāṅkṣati. He neither aspires after anything, or even everything goes he does not feel any loss. Above loss and gain. Now try to make a fresh attempt, outside this circumference of loss and gain, action, reaction. Brahma-bhūtaḥ prasannātmā, na śocati na kāṅkṣati. Neither he wants anything, nor he mourns for loss of anything, no lamentation. Mad-bhaktiṁ labhate parām. Now you're in a position to seek after something. And that maybe My domain, My devotion."

"You're in a position to negotiate for Me when you're exclusively out of this loss and gain of your long experience of life. Then only you're eligible to be a student of the devotional school. Your eligibility may be admitted at that time."

But in Rāmānanda Rāya [saṁvāda] discourse Mahāprabhu says, "Eho bāhya āge kaha āra." [Caitanya- caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.59] "This is also not within the presence, in the boundary line of Kṛṣṇa. It is also, it is out of māyā, but that does not mean that it's the domain of Kṛṣṇa. Eho bāhya. No contact with the positive thing, but you've escaped from the negative side. Eho bāhya. Then comes,"

jñāne prayāsam udapāsya [namanta eva, jīvanti san-mukharitāṁ bhavadīya-vārtām

["Oh Lord, Oh Unconquerable One, those devotees who, completely giving up all attempts on the path of jñāna of attaining the non-differentiated platform known as Brahma by hearing the transcendental narratives of Your pastimes, which emanates from the lotus mouths of the mahā-bhāgavat sādhus and pass their lives by engaging their body, mind and words in pure devotion, easily conquer You (they easily get Your transcendental association), although You are the most difficult to attain in the three worlds."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.3]

Does not matter wherever you are but you've got the connection through a real sādhu about Kṛṣṇa. Puzzling. You may be in the exploiting area, and in the lowest position sometimes, but if Kṛṣṇa consciousness agent has come to connect with you graciously, then you're in safe position, reliable position. Substantial position you have got. This is śuddha bhakti. Here the positive connection has entered the negative area and has posted its flag there, in his heart. In the heart of a soul he has posted the flag there. Soon your fortune is sure. Na me bhaktaḥ pranaśyati.

[kṣipram bhavati dharmātmā, śaśvac-chāntiṁ nigacchati

["He soon becomes righteous (dharmātmā) and attains lasting peace. O son of Kuntī, declare it boldly that My devotee never perishes."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.31]

["If even a person of extremely abominable practices, abandoning all non devotional pursuits of exploitation and renunciation engages in My exclusive and uninterrupted devotional service, he is venerable as a true saint because he has embraced the revolutionary plane of life."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.30]

Or,

māṁ hi pārtha vyapāśritya, ye 'pi syuḥ pāpa-yonayaḥ
striyo vaiśyās tathā śūdrās, te 'pi yānti parāṁ gatim

["O son of Pṛthā, low-born persons of degraded lineage, women, merchants, or labourers - they also attain the supreme destination by taking full refuge in Me."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.32]

Na me bhaktaḥ pranaśyati. Api cet sudurācāro, bhajate mām ananya-bhāk / sādhur eva sa mantavyaḥ, samyag vyavasito hi saḥ. Kṣipram bhavati dharmātmā, śaśvac-chāntiṁ nigacchati / kaunteya pratijānīhi, na me bhaktaḥ pranaśyati.

Independent of his external position if the real positive anywhere comes to grace any man in any lowest position, his future is ensured. Eho bāhya. Wherever he's posted in the deepest position of māyā does not matter. Māyā cannot come to fight with Kṛṣṇa. Only māyā can fight with us.

daivī hy eṣā guṇamayī, mama māyā duratyayā mām eva ye prapadyante, māyām etāṁ taranti te

["This "trimodal," supernatural, (alluring) deluding energy of Mine is practically insurmountable. However, those who fully surrender exclusively unto Me can certainly surpass this formidable fantasy."]
[Bhagavad-gītā, 7.14]

"Māyā is afraid of Me, but not of any jīva. So whenever My connection is present anywhere, he may be reckoned as śuddha bhakta. Eho bāhya."

This is a peculiar position. So this sings the glory of the positive connection in the negative. That is descending method. And by ascending method we may go so high, but if we cannot connect with the positive then we'll have to come down again to the lowest.

ye 'nye 'ravindākṣa vimukta-māninas, tvayi asta-bhāvād aviśuddha-buddhayaḥ
āruhya kṛcchreṇa paraṁ padaṁ tataḥ, patanty adho 'nādṛta-yuṣmad-aṅghrayaḥ

["O lotus-eyed Lord, although non-devotees who accept severe austerities and penances to achieve the highest position may think themselves liberated, their intelligence is impure. Although they may rise to the level of impersonal Brahman realisation, they fall down from their position of imagined superiority because they neglect to worship Your lotus feet."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.2.32]

To make progress in the ascending method it is uncertain. But from the deepest, lower position, anyhow by my previous sukṛti I can come in connection with the positive agent of Kṛṣṇa I'm safe. Though at that time I may not feel it. But those seers of the above they say, "Oh. The connection has gone there, he's saved now forever. Kṛṣṇa's grace won't come back, He's Absolute. Wherever, in whatever position, His connection has a touch, he's saved, guaranteed." So,

sthāne sthitāḥ śruti-gatāṁ tanu-vāṅ-manobhir, ye prāyaśo 'jita jito 'py asi tais tri-lokyām]

["Oh Lord, Oh Unconquerable One, those devotees who, completely giving up all attempts on the path of jñāna of attaining the non-differentiated platform known as Brahma by hearing the transcendental narratives of Your pastimes, which emanates from the lotus mouths of the mahā-bhāgavat sādhus and pass their lives by engaging their body, mind and words in pure devotion, easily conquer You (they easily get Your transcendental association), although You are the most difficult to attain in the three worlds."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.3]

A slight taste for that about Kṛṣṇa through His genuine agent. San-mukharitāṁ bhavadīya-vārtām. Externally, superficially it is seen in this way, whoever has got connection. He may be a man of the lowest order in the society of the present civilisation. But if he's acquired some taste to attend the tidings of Kṛṣṇa from the mouth of the genuine source, he's saved. That is the peculiar view of Mahāprabhu.

Jñāna śūnya bhakti, that taste reliable, intellect unreliable. Generally we see and we examine things by our intelligence, our faculty of judgement, but that is not reliable. But our unconscious taste is reliable. The normal thinking they can, they're satisfied if they find that 'our taste is for Kṛṣṇa kathā, wherever externally we hold our position.' Jñāne prayāsam udapāsya namanta eva.

"Eho bāhya āge kaha āra." [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.59] Here the position of Kṛṣṇa has been extended in some meagre way, and that is unconquerable Kṛṣṇa's connection unconquerable, unopposable, no opposition, Kṛṣṇa connection. They're saved they will find. About that taste for Kṛṣṇa one has risen up to the highest portion of the Brahma, Paramātmā, but they're not thought to be in safe position. So bhakti is of such nature, such type devotion, sevā, service. Self-giving of the higher type.

Not contract with the dacoits, "That I'm supplying this, you supply that." Not that. Here also the devotion for nationality, for humanity, for scientific culture. So many sacrifices and devotion may be found here in this world, but they're all to be cancelled. That is _____ [?] a contract between two thieves, or two dacoits. That is all partial and so reactionary, only extended selfishness. Transaction between smaller selfishness and a greater selfishness, but all extended selfishness. I'm working for the nation, I'm working for the country, I'm working for the culture, that is all part in the infinite, infinitesimal.

But Kṛṣṇa conception should be differentiated, should be understood differentiating from all these, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. And also in the gradation in Kṛṣṇa's different position, this Nārāyaṇa conception, Rāmacandra conception, then that Dvārakā conception, so differentiation. And we're concerned by the Grace of Mahāprabhu only with Vṛndāvana consciousness, Kṛṣṇa consciousness, Vṛndāvana Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

And if our heart is captivated by that consciousness we may think us fortunate, and go on. All may not know how to explain His position that He's holding the Supreme Power. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. But now and then Ācāryas they come for the good of the general people to show how by their writings, or by their preaching, to show how Kṛṣṇa conception holds the supreme-most position. Otherwise all the devotees necessarily won't be able to explain that He holds the supreme-most position. "I like it. I cannot explain."

Only when that sort of capacity is given to a particular bhakta by the special will of Kṛṣṇa they come to be Ācārya. That all the members of Vṛndāvana they will necessarily be Ācārya, that should not be thought. They may not care to do, they're going, they're deeply engaged in their service, does not know anything. Their attitude will be, "I think this is the best. I feel this. That is the guarantee. I do not know why I do this. I'm not able to make you understand. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. To me it seems to be best I do this. Why I do this I do not know." But sometimes we find such rush comes from them that the scholars should become silent.

As we find in Kurukṣetra. When Kṛṣṇa Himself apparently charged them. "Oh. People in general they want Me, they have affection for Me, for their eternal bliss. Amṛtatvāya kalpate. And fortunately you have got some of affection towards Me, so your future good is ensured." Kṛṣṇa told. Bhavatīnāṁ mad-āpanaḥ.

mayi bhaktir hi bhūtānām, amṛtatvāya kalpate
[diṣṭyā yad āsīn mat sneho, bhavatīnāṁ mad-āpanaḥ]

["My dear gopīs, everyone considers themselves fortunate if they possess devotion for Me, and by that they achieve an eternal life of nectar. But I must admit that I consider Myself most fortunate because I have come in touch with the wonderful affection found in your hearts."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.42.44]

"Devotion towards Me has been described in the śāstra. It is given out that by devotion towards Me they attain amṛtatvam, eternal happy life. So when you've got some affection towards Me you're sure to get that benefit."

But the gopīs they also gently gave some reply - superficially it was to say. "But the karmī by their great yajña, sacrifice, spending heaps of money, they try to get out of this worldly painful life. And so many great jñānīs and yogīs by their practices they also may attain that eternal conception of life as You say. But we're neither of them. We're jungle girls, no culture and no such understanding that by sacrifice we shall invite You and we shall get some desired result, consequence. We're not of that type, we have nothing of the kind." But thunder came from their heart, with, na hi gopi yajni _____ [?] "What You say, we rather hate it. The achievement of the karmī and the yogī to have a mere eternal life, we hate it. We have no aspiration, a slight aspiration what You canvass before us to get. We're not of that type. Our inner demand is of something else. You note it fully well. We want home life with You, neither the yogīs nor the karmīs that they want their own selfish demand or attainment, we want a permanent intense family life with You, we discard them." So by their simple feeling and practices they dismissed those higher achievements of the salvationists and the exploitationists, with the help of Kṛṣṇa. "Our position is that."

To Uddhava also they expressed their inner feeling in such a way that Uddhava was perplexed, astounded. "What are they?" The deep feeling, the property, the wealth they contained in their heart, what noble, how higher, Uddhava could appreciate there.

So naturally sometimes they preached themselves. It is not regular preaching...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...shows the, proves the helplessness of the other influence of the environment. When volcanic energy comes out it transfers everything and all have to accept it helplessly. Something like that. It is not preaching, but it can give instruction of a very valuable type, converts the heart direct unconsciously. "Yes, this is the thing." Uddhava surrenders. A devotee of Uddhava's position, he had to surrender immediately to that volcanic force coming out, oozing from the heart, unconsciously coming out. "What is this?" Beyond the conception of our scientific knowledge. In this way.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?] It is not possible to explain word to word.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: And if you do word to word explanation that is not must be correct. There is so many thinking, so many siddhānta, so many bhāva.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Concentrated.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Concentrated there.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The banyan tree in the small seed.

Devotees: Yes.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: And Gāyatrī also that type. Hmm. Śrīmad-Bhāgavat says artho 'yaṁ brahma sūtrānāṁ. Brahma sūtra a great and _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ Garuḍa-Purāṇa. Artho 'yaṁ brahma sūtrānāṁ, bhāratārtha-viniṛṇayaḥ.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Artho 'yaṁ brahma sūtrānāṁ, bhāratārtha-viniṛṇayaḥ. Eighteen lākh śloka _____ [?] One lākh of śloka in Mahābhārata.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: And gāyatrī bhāṣya rūpo 'sau, and Gāyatrī only one śloka. One śloka of Gāyatrī equal to one lākh śloka of Mahābhārata.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Artho 'yaṁ brahma sūtrānāṁ, bhāratārtha-viniṛṇayaḥ. It is the very gist of the Vedānta-sūtra, brahma sūtrānāṁ, brahma-sūtra, Vedānta, bhāratārtha-viniṛṇayaḥ. Gāyatrī bhāṣya rūpo 'sau.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Vedārthaḥ paribriṁhitaḥ.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Artho 'yaṁ brahma sūtrānāṁ.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gāyatrī bhāṣya rūpo 'sau. So Gāyatrī's meaning must come to Bhāgavata, or the equivalent. Gāyatrī and Bhāgavata is one and same. Gāyatrī bhāṣya is the _____ [?] elaborate...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Elaborate commentary.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Elaborate commentary. Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam is the elaborate commentary of Gāyatrī. So the meaning of Gāyatrī must have come to the line of Bhāgavatam. How that is possible? The steps in between that should be supplied, that by these steps from Gāyatrī it is coming to Bhāgavatam. What is the meaning of Gāyatrī? Gānat trāyate. It is a particular kind of song by which we can get our salvation. Gāyatrī _____ [?] Gives us relief, emancipation. And Gāyatrī is called Veda-mātā. And Gāyatrī has produced the whole Veda. First oṁ, oṁkāra, praṇava, then Gāyatrī, then Veda, then Vedānta- sūtra, then Bhāgavatam. The meaning, the purpose, is running that way. So Gāyatrī must have to mean Bhāgavatam, that Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead is the highest. Gāyatrī must have to say so, it is there, and how to get out Kṛṣṇa conception from Gāyatrī? That is the problem, that is the object before us, how to extract Bhāgavatam that is the Kṛṣṇa conception from within the womb of Gāyatrī. It must have to prove so. The Gāyatrī must have to say that there is Kṛṣṇa consciousness within her womb. That should be drawn out.

I heard that Jīva Goswāmī has given such a meaning, but where I could not find. I heard only that Jīva Goswāmī has given a meaning of Gāyatrī leading to Kṛṣṇa consciousness. But I could not find that anywhere. Anyhow the tendency awakened in me to take the meaning, to draw the meaning of Gāyatrī towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness, and I did in that way. The basis is gānat trāyate. The general meaning of Gāyatrī we find, by singing which we can work out our emancipation, our liberation. Now liberation must have a meaning in the positive line. Liberation not only to be free from the negative side, but,

["Liberation is the permanent situation of the form of the living entity after he gives up the changeable gross and subtle material bodies."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.10.6]

The definition of emancipation proper in Bhāgavatam we find that some positive attainment. Not only to attain freedom from the negative side, that is the, apparently it seems like that, mukti, liberation, emancipation. But Bhāgavata has given the positive. Until and unless we get our positive, highest position, possible to get, mukti is not effected. We cannot - mere withdrawal from the negative side cannot be said mukti.

Self-determination, as says Hegel. Mukti, our object of our life is self determination. We must have to determine our normal function in the organic whole. Not mere emancipation from the negative side, but our participation in the positive function, which is considered to be the highest attainment of us. That is in the domain of service. That is gānat trāyate, trān means positive attainment to the final stage, trān. Mukti, svarūpeṇa vyavasthitiḥ, we're to take that, one thing. And gānat, and that is some musical sound. Gān means not mere sound but with musical touch, gān. That is there. Then music draws Mahāprabhu's saṅkīrtana - gets the touch, and the flute of Kṛṣṇa. We find there sound and music.

So now we're to go to analyse what is Gāyatrī. Oṁ, the bīja mantra which contains everything within it. Then, bhūr, bhuvaḥ, svaḥ, tat, savitur, varenyaṁ. Bhūr, where we are, the world of our experience, that is bhūr, the world of our perception.

Bhuvaḥ, which is at the back of that, our mental acquisition. The effect of our mental acquisition takes to our present position of experience. That we're here in the world of our experience, it is not accidental existence, but we had to acquire such position by our previous karma. And the previous karma area that is called Bhuvaḥloka, that is the mental sphere. And this physical sphere only an outcome of that. The present world of experience is the product of our previous mental impulse. Bhuvaḥ.

Then Svaḥloka. Mental means what to do, what not to do. What I like, what I dislike. Concerning this saṅkalpa, vikalpa. Saṅkalpa - I like this, I don't like that. That is the sign of the mental world, our liking or not. Svaḥloka means Buddhiloka, the plane of decision. You may like this but don't do that, then you'll be loser. That faculty, reason, that is Svaḥloka.

In this way, in this mundane world there are different planes, seven planes. Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa, Satyaloka. This negative side, they have got these seven planes of life. From this Bhūrloka up to Satyaloka, where the creator Brahmā he lives, the master of the whole world of experience in the negative side, he lives in Satyaloka. And Catuḥsana, who holds the highest position of the saints, they also live in Satyaloka. Sanātana Goswāmī has given description of all these seven plane of life in the negative side. Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa, Satyaloka. The seven layers of life in the material world from gross to subtle, Sanātana Goswāmī in his Bṛhat-Bhāgavatāmṛta he has given some sort of conception there, Satyaloka. Up to Satyaloka, there finishes this negative side, guṇa māyā, sātya, rāja, tāma, three guṇa of māyā, and their combination, permutation, has produced this world, and it ends in Satyaloka.

Then begins Virajā, the verge of equilibrium in the negative side, Virajā. Then the verge of positive world equilibrium that is Brahmaloka. Then real world of reality, that world of dedication and service, the soul proper begins there, Vaikuṇṭha. Śivaloka, devotee Śiva, and then Vaikuṇṭha. In this way it develops into Kṛṣṇaloka, Vṛndāvana.

Bhūr, bhuvaḥ, svaḥ, tat, savitur, varenyaṁ. Bhūr, bhuvaḥ, svaḥ, that means it is only dig darśana. Bhūr, bhuvaḥ, svaḥ, the three mentioned, but it marks towards the seven strata, Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa, Satya. Bhūr, bhuvaḥ, svaḥ, tat, savitur. Now these bhūr, bhuvaḥ, svaḥ they're summarised in one, savitur. Savita means sūrya, sun. Sun means figuratively which shows, that is sun. Then these three gross and subtle stratas of world, or rather the seven different planes of negative world, has been shown by a particular thing. What is that? That is jīvātmā. Really sun does not show us the world, but really shows our soul, prakāśa darśana.

Savita sūrya prakāśa, who really gives perception to the gross things, that is not the sun, really that is the soul. In Bhagavad-gītā you may find, ekaḥ, kṛtsnaṁ lokam imaṁ raviḥ.

[yathā prakāśayaty ekaḥ, kṛtsnaṁ lokam imaṁ raviḥ
kṣetraṁ kṣetrī tathā kṛtsnaṁ, prakāśayati bhārata]

Ātmā, soul, that is really expressing to us this world just like sun. He's in the centre, sun can show only the colour, but ear can show the sound world, other, touch world. So really in the centre the soul he really gives us understanding of the environment, world of perception. The perception is possible only because there is soul. Soul like the sun it is showing everything. Tat savitur, now summarised, Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa, Satya, all these seven stratas of our experience that is reduced to one, tat, that. And that is shown by whom? The sun, sun means here the soul. Soul means not universal soul but individual soul. Individual soul is the cause of his world. Not that the mind is in the world, but the world is in the mind. That [George] Berkeley [1685-1753] "World is in the mind." Everything is in the sun, whatever we see that is in the sun, sun can show. There is no sun everything is dark, nothing can be seen. So light is soul, and that is the subject, and the object is these seven planes of experience.

Bhūr, bhuvaḥ, svaḥ, tat, savitur, varenyaṁ. Varenyaṁ means pūjya, worshippable, venerable, reverential, varenyaṁ. Our soul's venerable, it is coming - the objective side of soul - soul is the subject, then there is another domain which is to be venerated, to be worshipped by the soul. So Supersoul area, means that is bhargo. Bhargo means the energy which contains the Supersoul, super subjective area, bhargo means.

Dhāmnā svena sadā nirasta-kuhakaṁ satyaṁ paraṁ dhīmahi. In Bhāgavatam [1.1.1] it is mentioned that, "What I'm going to deal with here, dhāmnā svena sadā, by whose own ray, nirasta, all these misconceptions are brushed aside. And in its own pristine glory it shows another world. I'm talking about that world."

So subject is the soul, and object all these worlds of mundane experience. And subject's venerable area that is - which is superior to the subject, soul, that is super-subjective area. Bhargo means more subtle than the soul, and holding more important position than the jīva soul, jīvātmā. That is Supersoul area, bhargo. Bhargo means in general tej, that is ordinarily light. And really it is Supersoul which can see, which can show everything more in detailed way. Just as x-ray can show us what ordinary eye cannot see. So that bhargo that is the svarūpa śakti, higher powerful light, and that can show even the soul also. Paramātmā jatiya.

Bhargo devasya dhīmahi. Bhargo belongs to whom? Belongs to Deva, devasya bhargo, bhargo devasya, pertaining to Deva. What is Deva? Deva means from derivative meaning we get Deva means who is very beautiful and who is playful. Two things we get from Deva. Deva means very beautiful, that is Reality The Beautiful, and also playful, playing, not a non differentiated substance, but is full of līlā. The līlā and beauty combined, Deva, and His bhargo, His domain is bhargo which is to be venerated by the jīva soul. What is that, svarūpa śakti, and that is the vaibhava, the extension of Rādhārāṇī. Rādhārāṇī, She holds the whole, the full service responsibility and energy to serve Kṛṣṇa. So bhargo is no less than the vaibhava, the extended body of Rādhārāṇī, containing everything for the service, that mahābhāva. Rasa-rāja mahābhāva. Bhargo representing mahābhāva, and Deva representing Rasa-rāja. Predominating Moiety, Predominated Moiety.

Bhargo devasya dhīmahi. We're addressed, "Come and meditate." Then what sort of meditation is possible there? Meditate in the sense of culture, cultivation, that is, show your process of veneration, worship. That sort of experience is possible there, dhīmahi. Dhīmahi not abstract meditation, it is kṛṣṇānuśilanam. Dhīmahi means to participate in the spontaneous flow of the current of devotion there, to participate, dhīmahi.

And dhiyo yo naḥ pracodayāt, and what will be the result? The capacity of your cultivation will be increased. Dāsa kare vetan, more deha prema-dhan. We'll serve, and what remuneration we'll get, that more capacity and more willingness will be given to me to serve. It will enhance, what is the remuneration of the service, the serving principle, serving spirit is increased. Just as interest is added in the capital. In the bank I'm getting the interest. I do not draw the money but the interest comes and is added into the capital. In this way, dāsa kare vetan, more deha prema-dhan. We shall try to cultivate, that is we shall try to serve, to dedicate, and the dedicating principle will be increased ever and ever. Dhiyo yo naḥ pracodayāt.

This is the underlying meaning of the Gāyatrī. And then I have connected it - this gan which is begun in the beginning, that comes to saṅkīrtana, in the middle process. Gaura Hari. Kīrtana also meaning that is also song, and that is also improving us towards our highest goal, saṅkīrtana. So kīrtana, Gāyatrī, beginning, brahma Gāyatrī, that is coming to Gaurāṅga stage, is becoming Kṛṣṇa kīrtana. And then it's reaching Vṛndāvana, then the flute kīrtana, the sweet sound of the flute of Kṛṣṇa.

And Mahāprabhu's saṅkīrtana also trying to reinstate in our highest serving position. And when we enter the area of Vṛndāvana, there also the sound of vaṁśī, flute, engages, helps to engage the servants in their own respective duty, gives excitement. The flute is sounding, and the gopīs and others they're being adjusted in their respective duty.

"Oh, sound, flute is there. He's coming from - or He's going." Or at night the gopīs will run to the Yamunā. And Yaśodā also hearing the flute, "My son is there. He's coming very soon." In this way they're - the sound of the flute are engaging the servants of respective position to mind their own business that is their service.

Kṛṣṇa kīrtana gāyatrī. Rādhāpadaṁ dhīmahi. That is, all the services represented fully in Rādhikā. All others like branches they're part of Her. That is the mukhya-rasa, mādhurya-rasa is the mukhya-rasa, that is the combination of all rasa. So rasa-rāja mahābhāva. Mahābhāva represents the whole serving attitude. So it is reminding us and engaging us in our service. And what is the service? The service is to surrender ourselves to accept the suggestion of Rādhārāṇī, what to do. It will excite us to mind about Rādhārāṇī's feet, to obey Her orders. She's mainly representing the whole serving area. So to try to engage ourselves in Her service, that is Her order, to accept Her direction, and to obey Her. That is the service of Rādhārāṇī.

In this way the Gāyatrīs meaning has been drawn to Rādhā dāsya, the self determination. Svarūpena vyavashitiḥ. Muktir hitvānyathā rūpaṁ svarūpena vyavaṣthiḥ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.10.6] In the meantime the partial representation in vātsalya-rasa, sākhya-rasa, there also in some other way it is a part and parcel of the mukhya-rasa, and they'll be set there. The vātsalya-rasa person they will also serve Nanda-Yaśodā, sākhya-rasa, Śrīdāmā, Sudama. But ultimately the whole thing in one conception it is included in Rādhārāṇī. So Rādhā dāsya has been drawn out from that Gāyatrī. That is the end of our life, cannot but be. If Bhāgavatam is the full fledged theism, from Veda, Upaniṣad, so many śāstra, all the revealed truth rises to its acme, to the highest position in the conception of Bhāgavatam, then also it may go to the - Bhāgavatam also teaches us that the highest realisation, self determination in the service of Rādhārāṇī. That is under Her guidance to serve Kṛṣṇa. And directly to serve, to give disposal, devote all of our energy at the disposal of Her. And She knows how to serve Kṛṣṇa. Direct we have got connection, Her service. In this way it has been drawn that side. The background is this. And that has been put into the stanzas, ślokas, Sanskrit. We're to follow in that line.

Now if you like you can line by line you may ask how step by step it is making progress towards that.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja:

bhvādes tat savitur vareṇya-vihitaṁ kṣetra-jña sevyārthakaṁ bhargo vai vṛṣabhānu-jātma-vibhavaikārādhanā śrī puram bhargo jyotir acintya līlana sudhaikārādhanā śrī puram bhargo dhāma-taraṅga khelana sudhaikārādhanā śrī puram bhargo dhāma sadā-nirasta kuhakaṁ prajñāna-līlā-puram

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: From different aspects to approach what is bhargo. Bhargo you may say, either you may see in this way or in that way, all similar, in various ways it has been dealt, but all one and same. Formerly you may see in these two, three, four ways, but materially it is the same thing, whatever you like.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Dhiyo yo naḥ pracodayāt.

[Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja and Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja - 36:00 - 37:10 ?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The whole of the spiritual potency is represented by bhargo. And whose representation, whose extension, is the whole spiritual area? That is the mula, that is the mahābhāva, sarvarasa, samaha, mukhya rasa, that is going to hit Rādhārāṇī only.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

gāyatrī-muralīṣṭa-kīrtana-dhanaṁ rādhā-padaṁ dhīmahi gāyatrī-gaditaṁ mahāprabhu-mataṁ rādhā-padaṁ dhīmahi dhīr ārādhanam eva nānyad iti tad rādhā-padaṁ dhīmahi
_____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Dhī means ārādhana. Dhī cannot but be explained in the terms of ārādhana, pūjya, sevā, loving service, that is to be understood by the word dhī. Dhī means _____ [?] With the help of intelligence what we cultivate, dhīmahi. Dhīmahi not experiment with the material thing, but our cultivation with the venerable fine intelligence, dhīmahi, dhī. Dhī, anuśilana, not meditation but in the land of service, so it will have to mean that cid anuśilana, that spiritual culture. Dhī means spiritual culture in that area. What is spiritual culture? The higher connection with only service is culture, cultivation only of service. Exploitation culture here, and in the middle no culture, and in the higher sphere culture means service. Cannot but be that conception. With serving temperament whatever we exercise our fine spiritual senses, or whatever we exercise our fine cult, that is dhīmahi. Anuśilana, dhyāna kare, meditate. Meditate in the area of service that is service, cannot be otherwise. In the service area that meditation that is the exercise of our spiritual faculty, that is dhīmahi, and that cannot be but service there. In the serving area with our transaction with the highest the relationship, and our relation, and our activity, cannot but be service. Here exploitation and there dedication, the service. So dhīmahi means service. Then in the soul to soul, soul Supersoul, that relationship, that cultivation, cannot but be service. Not ordinary idle meditation of abstract things. That area without service no movement possible. So dhī means the spiritual exercise of our spiritual wealth, resources, that means service in that area. Here all cultivation is exploitation, and there all cultivation culture is service, on the other part. So dhīmahi means service, in the spiritual world. Not idle abstract thinking is dhīmahi, as we can conceive it here, dhīmahi, dhyāna, meditation.

Devotees: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Put question, where you can't follow, this portion is not clear, you can put question. Govinda Mahārāja _____ [?] Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Mahārāja. That is your explanation on the Brahmā Gāyatrī. But so many verses are given, that Kāma Gāyatrī, these different mantras are given.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Guru Gāyatrī, Gaura Gāyatrī, Kāma Gāyatrī, that is leading more towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Their help is not taken here, I forgot to take, to incorporate them. If I'm to incorporate them I shall get better position, that it cannot but lead towards that. Because if it must go towards that side, the Kāma Gāyatrī, Brahmā Gāyatrī and Kṛṣṇa Gāyatrī, the development from here it goes there, so it is a Grand Trunk Road.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Mahārāja. This line, bhargo vai vṛṣabhānu-jātma-vibhavaikārādhanā śrī puram.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

83.11.12.B

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is the meaning, purport of bhargo?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Hmm.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhargo vai vṛṣabhānuja-ātma-vibhava-eka-ārādhanā-śrī-pūram. Very beautiful.
Bhargo vai vṛṣabhānu. There is bhānu which shows us by light. And Rādhārāṇī is the daughter of Vṛṣabhānu. So bhānu, Sūrya, that bhānu śabda has been selected. Bhargo vai vṛṣabhānu, savitur vareṇya bhargo. Vṛṣabhānu-jātma-vibhavai. Her personal extended self, vaibhava, which means comes out as resourcefulness, or extended self, vaibhava. Prābhava is the central representation, and vaibhava is the outer extension of a thing. So bhargo vai vṛṣabhānuja-ātma-vibhava, vṛṣabhānuja, Śrī Rādhā, Her internal self extension, bhargo. The svarūpa śakti, the very gist is Rādhārāṇī, and the whole svarūpa śakti Her extended self. Do you follow?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. Śrī-pūram.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ārādhanā-śrī-pūram, ārādhanā, what is Her characteristic, that She's worshipped Herself, ārādhanā. Ārādhanā-śrī. Śrī, Lakṣmī, the gist, śobha, beauty. The beauty of Her serving and it is _____ [?] the city, the town of Her beautiful service. That is the country, abode, of Her beautiful service. That is the whole svarūpa śakti means that.

Just as from the sun when the light ray is coming, so She's the Person, Mahābhāva. Rasa-rāja and Mahābhāva, from the extension of Mahābhāva this svarūpa śakti, the bhargo. Bhargo means extended self of Mahābhāva. Mahābhāva means ārādhanā, ārādhanā-śrī. Śrī, Lakṣmī. Rādhārāṇī is also called Śrī, Her śrī, Her śobha, śrī means śobha, the beauty. The beautiful extended self of Rādhārāṇī that is whole bhargo, the whole area. She's the gist and this is the extended self. And what is the nature, that is all serving, and vaibhava, śrī, vaibhava, it is meant by that. Ārādhanā-śrī-pūram. She has developed this whole area of bhargo, has developed Herself into such beautiful area of svarūpa śakti, and thereby She serves Her Lord. All these necessary things have been sprung up from Her to help Her in Her serving Her Lord, they all come out. The very gist is She, Rasa-rāja Mahābhāva. Mahābhāva when all these svarūpa śakti is in a concise form it is Mahābhāva, Rādhārāṇī. And when Rādhārāṇī wants to serve She extends Herself in different ways.

Kṛṣṇa something, and Baladeva, Rādhārāṇī, Yogamāyā, and then Vṛndāvana, all these things, Nanda- Yaśodā, other rasa. Some contribution of Baladeva, and some contribution of Rādhārāṇī. In this way the whole thing is evolved there to help the service of Kṛṣṇa. It is told that from sandhīnī śakti all this up to vātsalya rasa. And mādhurya rasa only reserved for Rādhārāṇī. And the other rasa there is Yogamāyā she has been introduced as the potency of Baladeva. And Baladeva in another self He has been the sister of Rādhārāṇī. In this way They're serving, one side Baladeva, another side Rādhārāṇī. But when that is taken into one, only Rasa-rāja Mahābhāva. Rasa-rāja's contribution is Baladeva in that way, and Rādhārāṇī's contribution in this way, and then the combination of Both in different rasa, in this way whole thing is evolved. Sandhīnī mainly represented by Baladeva, and saṁvīt the enjoying mood by Vāsudeva Kṛṣṇa, and hlādinī the enjoying aspect, enjoyer and enjoyed aspect is represented by Rādhārāṇī. The paraphernalia of service in Vṛndāvana that has been created by the combination of Baladeva and Rādhārāṇī. Baladeva in the line of Kṛṣṇa, and then Rādhārāṇī, and the mixture has produced the whole thing. And Yogamāyā she's under Baladeva, helping all these things from His side. But mādhurya rasa, Baladeva cannot have any direct approach, only He's represented there as the sister of Rādhārāṇī there, Anaṅga Mañjarī.

I thought when I was reading this Jīva Goswāmī's Sat-Sandarbha, Bhāgavat-Sandarbha, who is the husband of Yogamāyā? According to the arrangement I had in mind that only she may be connected with Balarāma as the things are shown there. And I found that Jīva Goswāmī has given that idea, that Baladeva is the husband of Yogamāyā. I was very much satisfied there that my line of thought is corroborated there. Things are in such way so how they'll connect with, so Yogamāyā how? Baladeva's function and Yogamāyā's function similar. Baladeva in the mādhurya rasa is in the background, and Yogamāyā comes in the front, and she makes management from a little distance. She prepares the stage, Yogamāyā prepares the stage for the play of so many servitors. So Baladeva's function is always the foundation, to keep up the foundation of this, that is the function of Baladeva. And there the players of both parties, Kṛṣṇa and Rādhārāṇī. And the foundation is supplied from the energy of Baladeva, mainly, sandhīnī.

Sat-cit-ānanda. Ānanda - hlādinī, that is Rādhārāṇī presenting. Cit means conception, feeler, consumer, enjoyer. And sat - sandhīnī, existence everywhere, that is Baladeva, sandhīnī śakti. Jñāna, bala, krīya, ca. These three principles have been admitted very broadly by the philosophers anywhere and everywhere. In the west also philosophers, feeling, thinking and willing. Willing represented by Baladeva. Thinking by Vāsudeva, Kṛṣṇa. And feeling sentiment represented by hlādinī side. Upaniṣad, jñāna, bala, krīya, ca. Satyam, śivam, sundaram, and this sat-cit-ānanda, three principles of the existence of the whole creation.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Very wonderful explanation. Question?

Devotee: Yes. I was thinking if there's any relationship _____ [?] with the Trinity of the Christian?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Bon Mahārāja, you have to interpret this question.

Devotee: He's questioning...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say?

Devotee: Is there any relationship between what you have just explained of jñāna, bala, krīya, ca, and the Christian Trinity, Holy Ghost, the Father, and the Son?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: God the Father, God the Holy Ghost, and God the Son. God the Son is represented as Guru, maybe. And God the Father the creator. And God the Ghost comes nearby Brahman. Brahman creator, and God the Guru. God the Son, Christ has come to deliver the people, so God the Son representing Guru. And God the father the creator, guardian. And God the Holy Ghost that is something like Brahman, impersonal existence, Holy Ghost, Holy Spirit. And Who holds the superior position, there depends everything. If Holy Ghost is generally thought to be, to hold the supreme position. Then Brahman, then the father this side, sātya guṇa, Nārāyaṇa, may be that Kṣīrodakaśāyī, or the creator Garbhodakaśāyī, something like, and sātya guṇa. And the Guru also representation of God, sent by Him to deliver the people towards that. It is hazy, not very clear.

We were told, I heard from Bon Mahārāja in Germany they made a drama. And they put God in a higher balcony, an old man with grey beard, and half visible half non visible position. And from there he's saying, giving some instruction, half hidden in the higher balcony. Representation of God was like that, a grey beard, aged, not very old but old, sober, and with grey beard, and half unseen, and giving instruction from there. "Do this, do this." In a drama they represented God like that.

God the creator, and God the Holy Ghost. I heard from one haji sahib Muslim, he told, "In the beginning there was some - light," in _____ [?] Farsi language. "First there was that light, and from there gradually everything came out." That is from Brahman conception, the origin.

I was told here was one big Indian scholar philosopher Brejan Shil [?] There was some worldly religious conference some sixty or seventy years ago in Italy. And from different parts the philosophers and the religionists they flocked there, and meetings took place. Now suddenly one day they declared, "Leave. No lecture," so all were not informed. So one Mr. Brejan Shil and some others they went there, but many could not come, the sudden declaration of the closers that all did not get information. Every day the subject is written on the board. That day it was written, "Nothing."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And Brejan Shil was the appointed speaker of that day, he began to talk about nothing.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He began from nothing, how from nothing something came, that was his point.
So from Brahman conception that is inestimable. So far no further we can go up to understand or make others understand. It is hazy, it is left unknown and unknowable, something, arosaja [?] That is the easy thing, to go to some extent and then to declare that, "We cannot see further, it is unknown and unknowable."

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Mahārāja. Is this your verse also?

Rg tatva syam tad visno paramam padam śruti matam muyanti yat suraya
Drāṣṭā caksu eva pasadito maha sujeba dibya tatam
Dhamna svena sada nirasta kuhakam satyam param sabditam
Jyoti priti tanum hiranya purusam pasyanti tam suraya [?]

Also that is yours?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. And this is the main sūtram of Ṛg Veda. And especially the smārta before they attempt to participate in any holy function they're asked to repeat this mantram and then to begin the work.

oṁ tad viṣṇo paramaṁ padaṁ sadā, paśyanti suraya divīva cakṣur ātatam
[tad viprāso vipanyavo jāgṛvāṁśāḥ, samindhate viṣṇor yat paramaṁ padam]

["As the sun and sunlight is continuous over the skies as light-giver to us (for that sunlight is the universal form of the Lord) similarly, the Divine Lotus Feet of the Lord Śrī Viṣṇu is always spread widely (like a canopy) over our head."] [Ṛg-Veda, 1.22.20]

First say, utter this, and then begin the work, any sort of work. And this is the Ṛg mantra in the beginning, the very gist. And I tried to take out what is the purpose, the meaning of this. Then what is there? Tad viṣṇo paramaṁ padaṁ.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Sruti matam muyanti yat suraya.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. Sruti matam. Tad viṣṇo paramaṁ padaṁ. Sadā paśyanti suraya divīva cakṣur ātatam. The general meaning is, tad viṣṇo paramaṁ padaṁ, tat tvam tat, ourselves and the outside. Outside combined in one is called tat, tvam tat, or aham tat. Tat is generally used for the superior unknown element. Tad viṣṇo paramaṁ padaṁ. Viṣṇu's Param-pada, what we have given to hear as Viṣṇu, yayedam visno vyapnoti, Who pervades everywhere, all pervading principle is Viṣṇu. And we're asked to think about His Param-pada, Who is all pervading principle to think of Him.

Before I approach to begin any duty I must have such conception first, and then begin any duty. That is, who are you, how to approach the duty? The object is this. You are approaching a particular duty, before this you utter this, that you have a conception of your own self, your position. Who are you and how to approach, this will help you to understand. Tad viṣṇo paramaṁ padaṁ. You're to think that the all pervading principle His Param-pada, His beautiful or principle pada, meaning His holy divine feet, is on my head. On my head that holy all pervading principle's feet is on my head. Feet is considered to be the lowest part, our head the highest part.

Tad viṣṇo paramaṁ padaṁ. Sadā paśyanti suraya. And the sury [?], that's the spiritual scholars, they always conceive in that Param-pada. How? Divīva cakṣur ātatam. In the sky, in the heaven, like a great eye it is there. His leg, His feet can see. His feet, His lowest part towards me is fully seeing what I'm going to do, like a sun. Just as sun is in the sky, so His holy feet - He's all conscious, His holy feet also conscious, and His holy feet is spread over my head like the sun, seeing everything. With this idea you approach. The guardian's vigilant eye is over your head. That all knowing and all pervading principle Viṣṇu His holy eye like a sun spread over your head. A vigilant eye always - whatever you're doing He sees that clearly. With this idea you approach to do any duty. Who are you? And you cannot conceal anything. Whatever you're doing the eye is there, guardian's vigilant eye, and which is all clear, as real as the sun over your head. Cakṣur means sun, and cakṣ means eye, and divī means over your head, in the sky. It's like that.

Now, what is the explanation statement?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Drāṣṭā cakṣu eva pasadito.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Drāṣṭā cakṣu eva. Cakṣu, what is the significance of the eye? Who can see, he's drāṣṭā, he's got subjective position, drāṣṭā means seer. He's the seer, that is subjective position he holds. The all pervading principle Viṣṇu as a subject, so with His subjective eye over your soul, and He's watching everything what you're doing or not.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Pasadito maha sujeba.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Like a great sun He's spread on the sky.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Dibya atatam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Dibi atatam, vistitam, spread over the sky.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Dhamna svena sada nirasta kuhakam satyam param sabditam.
Jyoti priti tanum hiranya purusam pasyanti tam suraya.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. Jyoti, he can see, and priti like a guardian He's got sympathetic feeling towards you so He's watching your activity. So both the light and the priti, love, can be attributed there with guardian's eye, with sympathetic loving eye. With loving and piercing eye He's watching everything you do, so spread over the whole sky area as a seer, like sun. So concrete as the sun, and all covering with His light, with His ray. In this way.

And that is a principle mantram in Ṛg-Veda, the most primary revealed scripture, accepted by all nations. The most ancient revealed scripture is Ṛg-Veda in the whole of the world, Ṛg mantra.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: In this āruhya kṛcchreṇa paraṁ padaṁ, that is just below the feet of?

ye 'nye 'ravindākṣa vimukta-māninas, tvayi asta-bhāvād aviśuddha-buddhayaḥ
āruhya kṛcchreṇa paraṁ padaṁ [tataḥ, patanty adho 'nādṛta-yuṣmad-aṅghrayaḥ]

[Someone may say that aside from Vaiṣṇavas, who always seek shelter at the Lord's lotus feet, there are those who are not Vaiṣṇavas but who have accepted different processes for attaining salvation. What happens to them? In answer to this question, Lord Brahmā and the other demigods said:]

But not...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Paraṁ padaṁ. By ascending method they can rise, they can raise themselves up to paraṁ pada. But no sukṛti from the other world. So only to go to the limit of this world is not sufficient. The passport, but the visa is necessary to enter, it is like that. No arrangement of any visa, but they're with much difficulty went up to the no-man's-land that is the verge of the country, but visa is necessary. No visa they'll have to come back home. From the last limit of the country they'll have to come home again, or anywhere. If he does something wrong then he won't come home, he'll hide himself anywhere and everywhere, he may be caught.

Āruhya kṛcchreṇa paraṁ padaṁ tataḥ, patanty adho 'nādṛta-yuṣmad-aṅghrayaḥ.

One gentleman told, "Your visa example is very much applicable."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Devotee: Especially when it happens to you, Mahārāja. Once me and Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja we were going from France towards Spain - no, from Spain towards France, then when we entered the train we had no visa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Our Vidagdha is suffering in that case very much, always going to Gayā and paying something and doctor issuing visa, a false visa _____ [?] Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Devotees: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa.

...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: So where else can anybody hear these things?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: What you speak, where else can anybody hear these things? There's no other place. _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha, ha.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: No place.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ontological talk connecting with Mahāprabhu and Kṛṣṇa.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. No other place.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ontology. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Our Guru Mahārāja's lecture was of this type, ontology. About this what this Jyoti Mahārāja has expressed _____ [?] Mañjarī.

Guru Mahārāja told once that, "It is reality, it is not imagination. Of course it is the greatest fortune we seek after that, but it is not imagination. There is such real position, and we're all out only to attain that, but no imagination or concoction may deceive us. It is not so cheap. Adhokṣaja, the realm is adhokṣaja."

vicakṣaṇa kari', dekhite cāhile haya, haya ākhi-agocara

Whenever I apply any amount of carefulness to look after - vanishes. Out of His own accord He may come for some time. And what is that? The other day you told that it is such stage that when Mahāprabhu came down and He told Svarūpa Dāmodara, "You are all, eh?...

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Making noise.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Making noise. Yes. Svarūpa Dāmodara and other devotees of that plane, that type, they're chanting Kṛṣṇa Nāma to draw out the consciousness in this world.

And their Kṛṣṇa Nāma was considered by Mahāprabhu when coming from that He told, "You are making noise, kali kolaha [?] You all dragged Me here, and I'm devoid of that sweet experience."

So Kṛṣṇa Nāma of Svarūpa Dāmodara is noise in comparison to that experience. So what high position that holds. How deeper, dive deep into reality, how far we're to dive to reach that stage of reality for our experience? The depth, the measurement has been given there.

"You are all making noise and dragged Me down here. I got that chance and missed it."

What is that, a farce?

Dekhi dekhi tine dinete nava stajaha [?] Whom I see, three conditions everywhere.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Every day.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Conditions every day, every time, and, kamana sei balai kicha...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Kamana sei balai...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____[?] That I'm so big, so great, all these things. Hare Kṛṣṇa.
That is to dishonour.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: What does that mean Mahārāja?

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Vṛndāvana Dāsa Ṭhākura, in Caitanya-Bhāgavata, Cāpāla Gopāla.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]
That is not so cheap. So many incarnations. "I'm incarnation of Kṛṣṇa. I'm incarnation..." they're full of incarnation.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Vishkishan [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vishkishan, so Ramkrishna, then Jagabandhu, then one Ballabh Brahmacārī, then one Anukula Ṭhākura...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Avatāra asankiya [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Asankiya, avatāra asankiya. Ha, ha, ha. _____ [?] No recognition of any incarnation of God there. It is not so cheap, in the market, we can purchase in the market some Avatāra, go and purchase.

When we preached we told to the people, the public meeting, then when Kṛṣṇa was another Vasudeva

_____ [?] "I am Vasudeva."

Devotees: Pauṇḍraka.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Pauṇḍraka. So Kṛṣṇa fought with him and finished to prove who is Avatāra. So let these Avatāra fight with one another and establish who is the real, then we shall consider their case.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Here we close eh? Vāñchā-kalpatarubhyaś ca...

83.11.13.A

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: ...begins with hṛdayam, what is concerned in your heart.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In the beginning, first chapter, when Manu begins his saṁhitā there.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Hṛdayenābhyanujñāto.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

āsīd idaṁ tamo bhūtam, aprajñātam alakṣanam / apratarkyam avijñeyaṁ, prasuptam iva sarvataḥ [tataḥ svayambhur bhāgavān, avyaktavyaṁ jayan idam / mahābhutādi vṛtaujāḥ, prādur āsin tamonudaḥ]

[Just before the creative movement began, the marginal potency of the Lord was in a state of equilibrium, taṭasthā means equilibrium. Āsīd idaṁ tamo bhūtam. Everything was in darkness, fully enveloped by ignorance. Alakṣanam means there was no possibility of any estimation; no symptoms of reality existed by which any conjecture or inference about the nature of reality would have been possible. And it was aprajñātam: science has no capacity for investigating the nature of that stage of existence. We can only say from here that it was completely immersed in deep sleep. The analogy of deep sleep may give us some conception of that period: prasuptam iva sarvatra. Material existence was as if in a sound sleep.]

[Manu-Saṁhitā, 1.1.5-6]

That is the first śloka. Then perhaps coming,

vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ sadbhir, nityam adveṣa-rāgibhiḥ
hṛdayenābhyanujñāto, yo dharmas taṁ nibhodhata

[We can feel within our heart whether we are gainers or losers. That tasting machine is within us. As we progress in Kṛṣṇa consciousness, our karma, our connection with this material world, will evaporate in no time, and spacious knowledge will come to satisfy us. At that time, we shall feel the object of our life everywhere.] [Manu-Saṁhitā, 2.1]

What is the definition of dharma, our duty, what should be the definition of our duty? The first thing, vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ, vidvadbhiḥ, vedavidbhiḥ...

Empirical knowledge. Empirical knowledge is always misguiding, a part conception. It cannot give the idea from the standpoint of the whole. It is all partial conception, however great or bigger it may be, so all learning of experience cancelled. Only revealed truth which is coming from the centre, who are well versed in that learning, they should be considered as learned, vidvadbhiḥ. The knowledge which is accepted by those who are well versed in the Vedic experience, Vedic learning. Vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ sadbhir. And which is accepted by the saints. And what is the symptoms of the saints? Adveṣa-rāgibhiḥ, who has got neither apathy or sympathy for worldly things. Kanak, kāminī, pratiṣṭhā. But independent of these three they're really saint, and the truth that is accepted by such saints. Nityam sadbhir, nityam adveṣa, and hṛdayenābhyanujñāto, and it must have approval from the inner heart. Then you can accept it as dharma, duty. That is mentioned there in Manu-Saṁhitā.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Vidvat bhagavate pariksa [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vidvat bhagavate pariksa. That is another thought. How far one is learned is to be measured by the truth given in Bhāgavatam, the full-fledged. Muhyanti yat sūrayaḥ [Bhāgavatam, 1.1.1]. The great, the so-called renowned learned men, they cannot find any entrance into the truth given in Bhāgavatam. Vidvat bhagavatam pariksa. Muhyanti yat sūrayaḥ.

What Vedavyāsa says in the beginning introduction, "What I'm going to distribute here, what to speak of ordinary men, the great scholars they will be dumb jointly, they will be nonplussed to understand what I say to be truth here. Vedyaṁ vāstavam atra vastu. Nirmat-sarāṇāṁ satāṁ [Bhāgavatam, 1.1.2] Wherever there's a tinge of selfish idea of egoism, it is not for them."

And Jīva Goswāmī is going a step further. "I curse them if anyone without this qualification comes to touch my book. _____ [?] I give him curse. _____ [?] Some sort of oath _____ [?] They should not touch my book, who has not got such attitude towards revealed truth, they should not touch."

So in this way, it is meant only for those that have not got the least selfish idea, selfish aim or object. If any selfish object anyone has got this book is not for him. He wants to die a wholesale death, die to live, a wholesale death of the worldly ego. And then one will be able to understand the autocracy of the - to admit the autocracy of the highest principle that is to invite, incur wholesale death. Otherwise we cannot accept the autocracy of the prime God. To accept that creed that means we come closer to that.

Nirmat-sarāṇāṁ, matsara, that is - light here means matsara, separating, separate consciousness, separate interest. Anyone possessing separate interest is matsara. So wholesale dissolution is necessary, not expecting any law, justice, but the Autocrat. Then it will be possible to have wholesale death. Nirmatsara, the autocracy of the over management, then if one can accept then he's nirmatsara, wholesale death, then he'll live another life. Where this lust, this anger, the greed, everything of other type, because wholesale death has been already done. Now coming that kāma, krodha, this is from other world, aprākṛta, wholesale death. And even in Nārāyaṇa, Vaikuṇṭha, wholesale death is not there, only in Vṛndāvana wholesale death is possible.

yā dustyajaṁ svajanam ārya-pathaṁ ca hitvā, bhejur mukunda-padavīṁ śrutibhir vimṛgyām

["The gopīs of Vṛndāvana have given up the association of their husbands, sons and other family members, who are very difficult to renounce, and they have sacrificed even their religious principles to take shelter of the lotus feet of Kṛṣṇa, which are sought after by even the Vedas. O grant me the fortune to be born as a blade of grass in Vṛndāvana, so that I may take the dust of those great souls upon my head."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.47.61]

Uddhava wonders. "The greatest devotee," in the expression of His own mouth, Kṛṣṇa. The greatest devotee, Uddhava, he's nonplussed. "I want to be a creeper to get the feet dust of these damsels."

Wholesale death is there, all risk no fear. Fearlessly, dauntless death, they're inviting risk of having intensely, no gap, that means wholesale death, die to live.

Ha, ha. Hegel _____ [?] Reality is By Itself, For Itself, and Die to Live _____ [?]

[08:15 - 09:25 silence]

Devotee: ...only by the _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, yes, anyhow by the agents.

kṛṣṇa-bhakti-janma-mūla haya 'sādhu-saṅga' [kṛṣṇa-prema janme, teṅho punar mukhya aṅga]

["The root cause of devotional service to Lord Kṛṣṇa is association with advanced devotees. Even when one's dormant love for Kṛṣṇa awakens, association with devotees is still most essential."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 22.83]

Anyhow the agent's they're wandering doing relief work, and they come in connection with someone and try to utilise his energy. Though he's not conscious whose energy he's using, utilising for the service of the Lord, the sukṛti. Then when it produces laulyam, lobha, janma-koṭi-sukṛtair na labhyate.

[kṛṣṇa-bhakti-rasa-bhāvitā matiḥ, kriyatāṁ yadi kuto 'pi labhyate
tatra laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ, janma-koṭi-sukṛtair na labhyate]

["Pure devotional service to Kṛṣṇa cannot be obtained by performing pious activities even for millions of births. It can be purchased only by paying one price: intense eagerness. Wherever it is available, one must purchase it immediately."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.70]

Part by part, part by part, accumulated. It is very difficult by the accumulation of sukṛti to come at once to rāga-mārga, laulya. Janma-koṭi-sukṛtair na labhyate. That is also another type of sukṛti, when by chance he comes in connection with the higher type of rāga-mārga sādhu, then he can get laulyam.

Such as Nityānanda Prabhu He's wandering to distribute that to anyone and everyone.

Yei agi pariye tare kori nistha kaviraja goswami pari kalensikar [?]

Kṛṣṇadāsa Kavirāja he was, he got the chance of being chosen of the grace of Nityānanda Prabhu. And some substantial magnitude came, it worked direct, straight, and helped him to rise above, this rāga-mārga, laulyam api mūlyam, the laulya, the highest type of devotion is imparted.

Autocracy, it won't come under law. Śaraṇāgata, and the surrendered party and the autocratic party, both meeting and some effect is coming out. We can't say, "Why you have given to him and not to me?" This law cannot be applied, because when you come as śaraṇāgata you want ahaitukī kṛpa.

Visayate haya guṇa nahibe [?] You must give up the way of justice. "Then if You come with the consideration of justice then I have no hope." If I approach in that window where causelessly the grace of the Lord is being distributed, I'm approaching that window, from this office causeless devotion is being distributed, ahaitukī. I have come, because if You come to judge my case I have no hope." Then standing just before that window I can't say, 'Why You are giving mercy to him and not to me?' Ahaitukī kṛpa. "If You take the line of justice I have no hope, so give up the line of justice." And I have come to the department where causelessly, without any cause, the mercy is distributed. I have come there. Standing there I cannot say, "Why You show mercy to that man and not to me?" I can't say, because no justice, no law. I have come not for justice but for mercy. Then I can't say, demand, "That why You show mercy to that man and not to me?" Mercy is mercy, it is causeless.

ahaituki sei karuna bedera vicar [?] The causeless department above justice, only grace, that department I have come to get something where no justice, only mercy. Only by grace everything is distributed there. There I can't call any explanation, "Why You have show mercy to him and not to me? Why You have given to him and not to me?" I can't say. Once I told this to our Guru Mahārāja in Purī. "When all of us come in that window to get something, we can't demand that why you give him and not me?" Ha, ha, ha. In Bagh Bazaar.

Devotee: That is the most fundamental and the highest principle of Vaiṣṇava philosophy.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And when we can eliminate that then matsarata, nirmat-sarāṇāṁ satāṁ [Bhāgavatam, 1.1.2] The egoism is eliminated, that is the evidence. As long as I - "Oh, he gets, why I not?" there is matsarata. Nirmat-sarāṇāṁ satāṁ. So I'm not fit to stand in the front of that window, where from that nirmat-sarāṇāṁ satāṁ, with ahaitukī bhakti. Ahaitukī apratihatā, the wave automatic, spontaneous, neither beginning nor end, eternal flow of a particular eternal substance. That is bhakti, inclusive of all, and uplifting all. Absolute Good distributing Himself, that is bhakti. And we find it in its fullest form in Mahāprabhu, Absolute Good distributing Himself.

Devotee: _____ [?] Artheṣu abhijñaḥ svarāṭ [Bhāgavatam, 1.1.1] That is the highest conception of the truth of Bhāgavata surpassing all relative truths.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He knows Himself only, fully. Artheṣu abhijñaḥ varāṭ. What is the purpose of anything and everything, that is only known to Him, not to us. We can know partially as much as He wants us to know. Artheṣu abhijñaḥ svarāṭ. He knows the purpose of the movement, that is, everything For Himself, in other words. Everything For Himself, and He's fully versed in the position to know what is what. And when He transfers it to someone he may know that much. Artheṣu abhijñaḥ svarāṭ. What is the purpose of the movement of the whole, only it is known to Him alone. Artheṣu abhijñaḥ. We say, "This is for me, this is for others. This is for this country, this is for that sect." All partial representation, and clash between them is inevitable. Artheṣu abhijñaḥ svarāṭ.

Janmādy asya yato [Bhāgavatam, 1.1.1] That is also By Itself, Reality is By Itself. Janmādy asya yato, 'nvayād itarataś, both, direct, indirect, both. Māyā is also included there, though it is something opposite, it is misconception of the truth, but that is also there. The position of misconception also included, but partial conception. Conception of partial interest is also there. It is not false, as Śaṅkara said. Vaiṣṇava Ācāryas say this māyā is also - this measurable estimation, that is also there to be admitted. Otherwise why the trouble, why the preaching? But the comparative study is there, good, bad, everything is there. Janmādy asya yato, 'nvayād itarataś, artheṣu abhijñaḥ svarāṭ. We should not boast that we can know His ways. 'Anything, everything, all siddhānta is within my fist.' No. That is foolish statement. He knows, and whoever He likes to know, to make know, he may know. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute.

[nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena
yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām]

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. When the living entity begs the Lord for His mercy, being desirous of His transcendental loving service, then the Supreme Lord reveals His self-manifest form directly before him."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] & [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.3.2]

Artheṣu abhijñaḥ svarāṭ, tene brahma hṛdā ya ādi-kavaye. Where have you got this conception, He has extended this through Brahmā, through the creator here. Tene brahma means Veda, brahma-jñāna. He's all-in-all, this sort of knowledge is extended from higher to this lower level through the creator, hṛdā ya ādi- kavaye. Ādi-kavi, with the first maker of this world, through his heart He has extended that fact, "I'm so and so, this is so and so." Muhyanti yat sūrayaḥ. And the great scholars in the ascending side, empirical scholars their aspiration is stopped, they cannot understand this, they're perplexed to make out the ways, sūrayaḥ. Tejo-vāri-mṛdāṁ yathā vinimayo yatra tri-sargo 'mṛṣā. Just as we see that heat is transformed into gas, or gas transformed into water, water transformed into earth, the tejo-vāri- mṛdāṁ yathā vinimayo, this mutual transformation. Yatra tri-sargo, sātya, rāja, tāma, three guṇa, the original abstract conception of this variegated nature of world. It is amṛta, it is also there.

The Śaṅkarites will say 'mṛṣā, it is all false. Śrīdhara Swāmī has given note that misconception. Light sometimes is misconceived like water. Or this glass, glass can be conceived as light, light can be conceived as glass, sometimes. This misconception is here. So we misconceive the truth as false, māyā. Really no māyā only misconception. Aropa, vivarta, and vivarta is of Śaṅkara, and vikṛti of the Vaiṣṇava School.

Athatato anyatha buddhi vivarta iti uchyate _____ vikara iti uchyate [?]
The Vaiṣṇava School they have accepted vikara, there is some reason, something at the back. And the vivarta, the Śaṅkarites they say 'nothing in the back only mental concoction, vivarta.'

So here Śrīdhara Swāmī said of vivarta, kachalu, yada buddhi, baddha buddhi [?]
When Mayadanu constructed a capitol for the Pāṇḍavas in Indraprastha, there was underlying plan that who is the enemy of the Pāṇḍavas he will be caught by his vivarta. Where there is water he will think, 'No, this is a plain thing, but bright thing.' And the boundary wall made of glass, 'No, it is a good way out.'

So Duryodhana when entered he was in that position. There is a small pond full of water. Duryodhana saw, "No, it is a highway" and he suddenly dived in the water. And he says, "It's a way out, a good road." Only wall, he had to push against the wall.

So vivarta, aropa, one thing is seen as another. And here, vikara iti uchyate [?] Real transformation is there, Jīva Goswāmī says. Yathā vinimayo. Jīva Goswāmī has given stress in the meaning of this word vinimayo. Vinimayo means the thing is there, we put the money and we get the thing. That is vinimayo, I'm giving something and getting something - the change. So it is a change, the sātya, rāja, tāma guṇa, change one for another. But something is in the background, and that is being changed. Śakti pariṇāma vāda. [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 7.121-7] Rāmānuja also admits this, idam sarvam hare saridam [?] In the maximum view we can see everything, this world is the body of the Lord. But we cannot say that this is nothing. Something, some pariṇāma. Pariṇāma means a transformed stage, transformation is there in a transformed stage of a particular way. But it is there, the background is there, it is not nothing.

Yathā vinimayo yatra tri-sargo 'mṛṣā. Dhāmnā svena sadā nirasta-kuhakaṁ. [Bhāgavatam, 1.1.1] By His own will, by His own grace, by His own light, sent by Him, only we can know Him, by His will. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] By His acceptance, by His will force, by His inner desire. Then that light can show us clearly what is what. Dhāmnā svena sadā. Only By His grace we can understand what is what, and not by our partial position, our provincial position. But universal light, knowledge, is extended to us and that can help to know that what is what. To know that, light from that quarter is necessary, and not light produced, or which is inborn with us, with that light we cannot see what is what really. Only dhāmnā svena sadā nirasta-kuhakaṁ. All our misconceptions, kuhakaṁ means misconception, is removed when light comes down from there to show me what is what. Otherwise however greater empirical scholar can be, he can have a partial estimation, a negligible part. As Newton told, "That I'm only touching a very negligent part of the ocean of knowledge." A sober and sincere man can only speak up to that. That infinite ocean of knowledge is spread over my eye. So nothing to be proud of our parts.

Today's the day of Gopashtami, that our boy Kṛṣṇa, infant, in the beginning He was given the charge of the calves only, small calves. He was caretaker of the calves. But this is the day when He was promoted in a higher position to take care of the cows and bullocks. More responsibility, more aged perhaps, considered to be sufficiently aged and grown, He can now take the charge of the cows and bullocks also. He was promoted to that stage. Gopashtami. In Vṛndāvana we saw near Nandagrama the milkmen they take in the milan so many cows and give something, some food, some grass and other things there. Kṛṣṇa began His cow feeding today, so with that memory they give some fodder to the cows.

And also today the day of appearance [abirbhāva] of Dhanañjaya Paṇḍita and others. Gadādhara Dāsa, and another Vaiṣṇava.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Tirobhāva [disappearance]. Dhanañjaya Paṇḍita, Śrīnivāsa...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gadādhara Dāsa, and Dhanañjaya Paṇḍita.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Gadādhara Dāsa Goswāmī, Śrīnivāsa Ācārya.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Śrīnivāsa Ācārya.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Tirobhāva.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Both, two tirobhāva and one abirbhāva?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: No, I read all tirobhāva.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All tirobhāva?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Dhanañjaya Paṇḍita also?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I forget. All tirobhāva. Gadādhara Dāsa he's accepted as kānti, bhāva, kānti.
Rādhā-bhāva-dyuti-suvalitaṁ [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 1.5] Rādhārāṇī is conceived to divide into two. To be divided. His inner tendency, inner mood, and outer glaze. So Dāsa Gadādhara is conceived as the outer glaze. And Paṇḍita Gadādhara is taken as the inner mood. Mahāprabhu has taken both, and the shadow-like thing represented in both of them.

Dāsa Gadādhara he used to stay nearby Calcutta, Halishahar, [Endiyadaha ?] or some place. And he was simple and straight-minded man, as in our language. He one day approached the Kāzī. "You Kāzī, you must take the Name of Kṛṣṇa."
"Why? I'm a Muslim. Why should I take the Name of Kṛṣṇa?"
"Oh, you've taken already Kṛṣṇa."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "There, you have taken the Name of Kṛṣṇa." And he embraced him. "Yes, you have taken." And the Kāzī was friendly to him.

More important thing in him we find. After sannyāsa in Kāṭwā, in his last days he came to take charge of that place where Mahāprabhu took the sannyāsa, and he opened a temple there, Gadādhara Dāsa. And those that are at present also in charge of that temple management they're all the disciplic line of Dāsa Gadādhara. Dāsa Gadādhara's tomb is also there, samādhi. Up to his last day he lived there in Kāṭwā, in the place of that keśā samādhi of Mahāprabhu.

Very beautiful hairs Mahāprabhu had. So much so that the barber he could not approach to shave them. "So beautiful face, and beautiful curling hair, how can I go?"

And the objections are coming from all sides. "What do you do barber? Such beautiful figure, such beautiful curling hair, and you're going to shave to make Him sannyāsī, this young man, so beautiful. How His mother, and if there's any wife, they can live if such beautiful son takes sannyāsa? They'll die, you'll kill them. Don't do." In this way a great opposition, rumour, uproar. "No."

Then they threatened also Keśava Bhāratī. "We won't spare you if you give sannyāsa to this young man." In this way threatening also came.

But after all, Mahāprabhu's will is supreme. Anyhow whole thing subsided, seeing the extraordinary madness for sannyāsa life. He's so eager and so intensely dedicated to Kṛṣṇa, sometimes, "Let Me" - while that shaving is going on He's taking the chance, "Let Me sing and dance for some time, then again I'll show the head, in this way."

So these extraordinary signs benumbed all. Like a statue they had to see the show, the sight, and it was done.

And that barber he promised, "That with the hand which I engaged to shave the beautiful head of this beautiful person, no longer I shall touch with this hand anyone's feet or body. This is my last attempt." And he began the occupation of a sweet-meat seller. And there is buried underground, those beautiful hairs are there, buried.

Śiśir [Kumār] Ghose, the founder of Amṛta Bazaar Patrikā, and writer of Lord Gaurāṅga, Amiya Nimai Charita, in Amiya Nimai Charita he wrote that, "Only one thing still can be traced from the divine body of Śrī Gaurāṅga, that is those hairs are still there. If we unearth we can see that."

But another gentleman has remarked there, "Can we ignore His advices, His teachings? Is it not there? That is also concrete, but Śiśir Ghose says only the hair." We're told that hair stays for long, long time.

We heard, or saw in the paper perhaps, that Napoleon's hair was collected from his tomb perhaps and that was examined by the then present chemists and they said that he was applied arsenic. For his death, slow poison was injected, and that was found in his hair.

So hair is not - it lasts long, it is not worn out, not eaten by the worms, white ants or something, what generally eats the wood, [termites]. The hair is not generally lost, not transformed.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. So Gadādhara Dāsa he established a temple there, and his disciplic generation are still in charge of the temple there. Gadādhara Dāsa.

And Dhanañjaya Paṇḍita he's said to be one of the Dvādaśaka Gopāla who are friends of Baladeva, Dvādaśaka Gopāla in Vṛndāvana. And here they're all so many friends of Nityānanda, gopāla, friendly circle. Dhanañjaya Paṇḍita he's nearby Sitala-Grama, Kāṭwā - Bardhaman rail line nearby there is one Sitala-Grama. There also Dhanañjaya Paṇḍita...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...Dvādaśaka, one of the twelve selected friends of Nityānanda, friend rasa servant.

And Śrīnivāsa Ācārya you know, when Mahāprabhu took His sannyāsa there was one man standing, his name was Padmanābha. He was a class friend of Mahāprabhu in Navadwīpa. And he had a special charm for Śrī Gaurāṅga, Nimāi Paṇḍita. Near Kāṭwā there's one village Yajigrama, there was his wife's house, father-in-law's house, Yajigrama. And his own house was in Chakhandi, just opposite Agradipa. That day he was going from his father-in-law's house to his own house, and heard that Nimāi Paṇḍita has come to take sannyāsa. He was well-known to him, he went to see, and like a statue he's standing he saw the whole function and became half mad.

And when it was finished Mahāprabhu ran towards the jungle. "I'm going to Vṛndāvana."

Then he had to go back to his home on the other side of the Ganges. And he was so perplexed, half unconscious, mad, nothing he can say but "Caitanya." The Name of Mahāprabhu was Caitanya that he heard and that took possession of him. Whatever anyone says, he says "Caitanya, Caitanya," nothing more. Then his name was Caitanya Dāsa. His first name was Padmanābha, but in every words for few days he only answers as Caitanya, nothing else, so Caitanya Dāsa became his name.

Once he met, it is told, Mahāprabhu Kṛṣṇa Caitanyadeva in Purī. And we're told somewhere, he went with his family. And Mahāprabhu gave hint that, "You will have a very devoted child." Mahāprabhu told His old friend, class-mate, "You will have a child and he'll be a very devoted one."

Then he came back, Śrīnivāsa Ācārya came. It is told just like a moon he came out from the mother's womb, Śrīnivāsa, entered blessed child. Afterwards grown up, and not only beautiful body, but in mind wholesale surcharged with the love of Śrī Caitanyadeva. Perhaps father died when he was young. Then he's shown to us within his teens, fourteen, fifteen, or something, he ran towards Navadwīpa. And he was sitting on the bathing ghāṭa of Mahāprabhu of the Ganges, just by the side of Mahāprabhu's home, Nimāi Paṇḍita's home. And Viṣṇupriyā Devī she came to take bath in the Ganges ghāṭa very near her home, and found this child, this boy, about fifteen or so, and half mad, thinking, meditating mood. And she could find that he has not taken food, fasting, and his colour is also pale, deeply meditating something, in this way. She took compassion and took the boy home and fed him with something.

Then gradually he tried to go to Purī, heard Mahāprabhu passed away. Still, he went there, met Paṇḍita Gadādhara. Gadādhara Paṇḍita told, "Mahāprabhu asked me to teach you Bhāgavatam. But the books which I have got is not proper, not fit to teach you." Mainly the letters had been half washed by his tears or so, something. "So please get a good book of Bhāgavatam from Śrī Khanda in my name." Then Śrīnivāsa Paṇḍita went there, Śrī Khanda, and got one Bhāgavata copy, and again went to Purī. But by this time Gadādhara Paṇḍita disappeared. So what to do, he had to come back.

In the meantime Narottama Prabhu and Śyāmānanda perhaps they met together and they had some circumambulation of this Navadwīpa Dhāma. That is mentioned. And then those three approached, tried to go to Vṛndāvana and to get the company of Rūpa, Sanātana, Raghunātha Goswāmīns, etc. Gadādhara, Svarūpa Dāmodara, mainly all educated persons, specially devotees, they disappeared from Purī. So they wanted to go to Vṛndāvana to get the association of the Rūpa, Sanātana, Raghunātha, etc. Then when they went up to Allahabad they crossed the Benares they heard a rumour that Sanātana Goswāmī has left the world, so very much disappointed. Still, they made progress towards Vṛndāvana. When they reached Mathurā they heard, "Last night Rūpa Goswāmī gone away." Then they were very much disappointed and still went to Vṛndāvana. And found in the evening that the sandhyā-ārati, evening ārātrika was being done in that old big temple of Govindaji. And a great gathering and with great enthusiasm that ārati is going on, and they joined that. And seeing the grandeur and this weariness in the journey and broken-heartedness mixed he fainted there in some part of Nath Mandira. When he awoke he found that Jīva Goswāmī is taking care of him, he saw that he's Jīva Goswāmī. He fell in one part of that Nat Mandira, and at last it was reported to Jīva Goswāmī and he came and took him.

Then those three were living for some time there, and they got their dīkṣā, took dīkṣā initiation. Śrīnivāsa from Gopāla Bhaṭṭa, Śyāmānanda from Jīva Goswāmī, and Narottama Ṭhākura from Lokanātha. And they were sent back to Bengal for preaching purpose. All the books compiled by Sanātana, Rūpa, and Jīva that were in the charge of Jīva Goswāmī, were managed to be sent to Bengal through them in a big casket which was closed. And perhaps two bullock carts were engaged, and they're in charge, they're coming, walking with that cart. All the books, including Caitanya-caritāmṛta.

Then it was lost, you know, near Viṣṇupura in the district of Bapura, by one Birhambir who was the leader of the aborigines, ādivāsīs. One astrologer he told that, "In those caskets very valuable jewels are there." So he looted that at night. And then they found it missed, then they tried their best to find out that but could not. Then Narottama went away, Śyāmānanda went to his home in Midnapura, Narottama this north Bengal. And Śrīnivāsa he was the leader of the party, entrusted more with their charge, he could not go without making any trace of those books. Like a half mad boy he wandered throughout that neighbouring place.

Then he came to know that this Birhambir, the owner of the state, that Viṣṇupura, he's a little devoted, and he hears Bhāgavatam every day, in the evening. And there was one paṇḍita named Vyāsa, his guru, he explains Bhāgavatam every afternoon. And he began to attend. Ordinary people took he's a half mad boy, anyhow wandering here and there. He attended the class, concealing who he is. But one day suddenly when the Vyāsa is explaining Bhāgavatam, his explanation had some mistake.

And unconsciously Śrīnivāsa he suggested that, "Oh, this is not the meaning, the meaning is this."

Then the attention of all the audience came to him. "Who is he, who is this boy whom we all took as a mad boy? He's a brilliant scholar of Bhāgavatam. He points out the mistake of our guru Vyāsadeva who is the renowned scholar of Bhāgavatam in this area." Then all came to him and, "Who are you? You must say."

Then he told that, "I'm so and so. We have lost our wealth. The books that we took of the Goswāmīns that is all of our wealth of our life, our sampradāya, everything, we have lost that. And I was in charge, I was entrusted with those books that were stolen suddenly in the night."

And then that Birhambir came out. "We have those caskets in our stock."

Then he burst in carefulness and wanted to see, and he was taken in the room where the caskets were. And then he asked them, "I want to worship them. Please make some arrangement." And they made so, and began to make ārati, then opening the caskets found all books are intact there. Then he asked, "You must send some man to Narottama Ṭhākura there, and Śyāmānanda." And some man was sent, and then they're all satisfied they got the books.

Śrīnivāsa Ācārya generally lived in Yajpura, his mother's house, he lived there. And because Mahāprabhu asked Gadādhara Paṇḍita to teach Bhāgavatam to Śrīnivāsa, though no physical connection with the teacher, automatically Śrīnivāsa was the master of Bhāgavatam, by the force of the will of Mahāprabhu. Śrīnivāsa. And the whole country was charmed to hear his Bhāgavata explanation.

Then Narottama Ṭhākura he was the son of a rich man, and bachelor. He planned to establish a big temple to inaugurate the worship of Mahāprabhu also with Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa. There was a great function, and all the Vaiṣṇavas, especially followers of Mahāprabhu and Nityānanda joined there. Nityānanda Prabhu passed away by that time. Jāhnavā Devī, His first wife, Jāhnavā Devī, with all the followers of Nityānanda Prabhu joined. Śrīnivāsa was the leader to make the function of installation. And it was a very charming function, so much so, we're told that the whole group of Mahāprabhu were attracted down there. And when the saṅkīrtana went round the temple of the new installation of Mahāprabhu and Rādhā-Govinda, etc, it was so intensified saṅkīrtana that Mahāprabhu with all His parṣada was attracted and seen there. That both prakaṭa and aprakaṭa, who has passed away, those Vaiṣṇava, and those that are present, combined they're dancing and chanting. It was seen by some, it is mentioned in the book in that way.

Then as long as they lived they tried their best to preach the doctrine of Mahāprabhu. Śrīnivāsa Ācārya. Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Śrīnivāsa Ācārya. He composed that Sanskrit poem what our Swāmī Mahārāja sang in America. Vande rūpa-sanātanau raghu-yugau śrī-jīva-gopālakau.

[nānā-śāstra-vicāraṇaika-nipuṇau sad-dharma-saṁsthāpakau

vande rūpa-sanātanau raghu-yugau śrī-jīva-gopālakau]

["I offer my respectful obeisances unto the six Gosvāmīs, namely Śrī Sanātana Gosvāmī, Śrī Rūpa Gosvāmī, Śrī Raghunātha Bhaṭṭa Gosvāmī, Śrī Raghunātha dāsa Gosvāmī, Śrī Jīva Gosvāmī and Śrī Gopāla Bhaṭṭa Gosvāmī, who are very expert in scrutinisingly studying all the revealed scriptures with the aim of establishing eternal religious principles for the benefit of all human beings. Thus they are honoured all over the three worlds, and they are worth taking shelter of because they are absorbed in the mood of the gopīs and are engaged in the transcendental loving service of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa."] [Śrī Śrī Ṣaḍ-gosvāmī-aṣṭakam]

I heard that song sung by Swāmī Mahārāja in the radio or something. Vande rūpa-sanātanau raghu-yugau śrī-jīva-gopālakau. That beautiful verse was composed by Śrīnivāsa Ācārya. Rūpa-sanātanau raghu-yugau. That is Raghunātha Bhaṭṭa, Raghunātha dāsa, and Śrī Jīva, and Gopāla, Ṣaḍ-gosvāmī, the six revered Goswāmīns, their praise was composed in Sanskrit verse, very beautiful verse. Vande rūpa- sanātanau raghu-yugau śrī-jīva-gopālakau. Nānā-śāstra-vicāraṇaika-nipuṇau, sad-dharma-saṁsthāpakau. Vande rūpa-sanātanau raghu-yugau śrī-jīva-gopālakau. I'm told that the musician's school of America they appreciated this song of Swāmī Mahārāja very much. I was told, "There's something - not only the tune, but the internal conception behind that, that was considered to be the very, very valuable thing, the verve in the back of the sound." Somewhere the artist, the musician experts, they, and music also, they gave a very high value of this song, some told me. Very intense, the harmony, the sound, the meaning, all combined came from his mouth, from his heart. And that was weighed and considered to be of the very higher type of music, I was told by someone. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Course he himself playing on the mṛdaṅga and singing, something like. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Vaiṣṇavera guṇa gana suni _____ [?]

By singing in praise of the Vaiṣṇava conduct we can work our emancipation from the māyā, misconceived world, and we can have entrance into the reality. That is the desirable world, the world of sweetness, love, beauty. Vaiṣṇava. The process of approaching towards that adhokṣaja, transcendental quarter, only the Vaiṣṇava, carita, is so many gates through which we can have our attempt to enter into that domain. Their example, their life, their conduct, their teachings, their movements, that is our wealth. By giving our attention to them we can get some sort of conception of the divinity in their gesture, posture, words, everywhere. What for they're living? Ignoring so many charming things of the outsiders, what is represented in their character, in their attempt, in their words, their food, their every gesture, posture, that can help us to understand the nature of that divine world. And that is the gates.

[Prahlāda Mahārāja states: "Unless they smear upon their bodies the dust of the lotus feet of a Vaiṣṇava completely freed from material contamination, persons very much inclined toward materialistic life cannot be attached to the lotus feet of the Lord, Who is glorified for His uncommon activities. Only by becoming Kṛṣṇa conscious and taking shelter at the lotus feet of the Lord in this way can one be freed from material contamination."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.32]

Prahlāda Mahārāja said to his teachers, Ṣaṇḍa and Amarka, two sons of Śukrācārya, when they're charged by Prahlāda's father. "You two have educated my son in this way. You should teach them politics, my son, teach him politics and other things. But you have taught them about Hari, who is my enemy. This sort of education you are giving to my young boy."

When charged, then Ṣaṇḍa and Amarka was very much frightened with this remark of the king. And then after when they got Prahlāda in their vicinity they told, "Prahlāda, we have not taught anything of the like you told to your father. Tan manye 'dhītam uttamam."

When Prahlāda's father adored the child and asked him, "Prahlāda, what is the best thing you have learned from the school?"

Prahlāda told, tat sādhu manye 'sura-varya dehināṁ, vanaṁ gato yad dharim āśrayeta.

[Prahlāda Mahārāja replied: "O best of the asuras, King of the demons, as far as I have learned from my spiritual master, any person who has accepted a temporary body and temporary household life is certainly embarrassed by anxiety because of having fallen in a dark well where there is no water but only suffering. One should give up this position and go to the forest [vana]. More clearly, one should go to Vṛndāvana, where only Kṛṣṇa consciousness is prevalent, and should thus take shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.5]

"What I have learned to be the best, that to leave everything and to go jungle, and to search for Kṛṣṇa, Hari, that is the best."

"Oh, this sort of training is being given by the sons of Śukrācārya, my Gurudeva?"

Then he charged, then they told, "Prahlāda, we did not teach you such things. Why did you?

"Oh, you rest assured, you need not be afraid for that. It cannot come from you. What I have got I have made statement that this is the best learning, that can never come from you people. So you're in safe position. It can never come through you. I got it from my Guru, Nārada Goswāmī."

So,

[adānta-gobir viśatāṁ tamisraṁ, punaḥ punaś carvita-carvaṇānām]

"Where you are in a particular plane living, it is not found there, never found there. Kṛṣṇe parataḥ svato vā. It cannot come from others, it cannot come also from within one's own self, or by the mutual combined effort of one and his environment, so many outsiders. Neither parataḥ svato vā, or combined, by the combination of the external and the internal mentality of the worldly people. Parataḥ svato vā, mitho 'bhipadyeta gṛha-vratānām. Because your capital is only this material consciousness it can never produce that spiritual thing, so rest assured no fear, no charge can come over you."

Naiṣāṁ matis tāvad urukramāṅghriṁ, spṛśaty anarthāpagamo yad-arthaḥ, mahīyasāṁ pāda-rajo -'bhiṣekaṁ. The only way through which it can come that is the Vaiṣṇava, the devotees of Kṛṣṇa, only through them. They have reserved all right. Only through them it can come in this world, not otherwise. Only the appointed agents, they can distribute such things, and never from any other agent of the whole world it can come. So the Vaiṣṇava carita, only by our association with the agents of Vaikuṇṭha, or Goloka, Kṛṣṇaloka, Kṛṣṇa consciousness, that we can expect to have something about that great wealth what-so-ever it may be.

Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Only to acquire some taste for the tasteful thing. Which is really tasteful, we're in such a position that tasteful thing seems to be bitter to us. Rūpa Goswāmī has given some example. Pittopatapta-rasanasya na rocikā nu. This sugar candy is generally sweet, but if ones tongue is influenced by bile then the sugar candy if he wants to go to taste it will seem bitter sugar candy. But that sugar candy is the medicine of that bile disease.

syāt kṛṣṇa-nāma-caritādi-sitāpy avidyā-, pittopatapta-rasanasya na rocikā nu kintv ādarād anudinaṁ khalu saiva juṣṭā, svādvī kramād bhavati tad-gada-mūla-hantrī

Which tastes to be bitter, that is the medicine of removing that bitterness from the tongue, gradually, if we take that. So Kṛṣṇa consciousness may not seem very sweet to us in the beginning, but gradual application of that, the Name, and the Vaiṣṇava, the giver of the Name, if any way we can continue our contact, gradually what is imperfect within us that may be removed and we may be prepared to receive perfection within us, connection of perfection within us. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: Mahārāja _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then I close here today's class.

vāñchā-kalpatarubhyaś ca kṛpā-sindhubhya eva ca
patitānāṁ pāvanebhyo vaiṣṇavebhyo namo namaḥ

...

...there is possibility of ill-treatment, then to avoid that _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So then it would be better not to have a picture of anything on the cover?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sometimes we may deal there with śanta rasa bhakti. This is the temple. Not the personal characteristic but this passive devotion, may use.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: I see. Like the maṭha.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The maṭha, temple, this dhāma, mṛdaṅga, vaṁśī, and something.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Hmm. Śanta rasa representation.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Śanta rasa.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: All right. And inside the book, what about pictures inside? Should we restrict the pictures to only the Guru, yourself, Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Guru, Vaiṣṇava, others, but not very high rasa representation, just as in Rādhā- Govinda līlā, _____ [?] līlā. That may excite lust in the people. Caution must be made about that. Rādhā- Govinda, the sakhīs rasa, should be represented in such a way that it draws reverence, respect.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vātsalya rasa, sākhya rasa, that may be shown, but this mādhurya rasa should not be displayed in a very private type. That Kṛṣṇa is embracing Rādhārāṇī, or kissing, all these things should be avoided.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: But sometimes there are pictures of Rādhā-Govinda, but like They're not embracing or touching but just shown there respectfully, side by side.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Side by side, not exciting any sexual type. That will be offensive, that will create offence against the public. In a respectable way.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Hmm. Now, when any picture is used, generally the artist is unknown. The painter of the picture we cannot trace out their origin all of the time. It is difficult for us to find out the origin of the painter.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Origin of the painter?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. The painter, he may not be a Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇava.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then, under our direct guardianship, our direction, he may be utilised, like a machine.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Or they've already made a painting. Say we see some picture we would like to use that, generally that's what we're doing. There are many pictures in India, they're already painted, so we just take one and used it for our own purpose.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I don't follow.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: I'm saying there's so many pictures available.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Pictures in India.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes, already available.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. What type?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Of different, like yesterday I saw a picture of Yaśodā and Kṛṣṇa and one cowherd boy.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: If that is according to standard then we can accept them and utilise, if not crossing the standard, utilise them as materials.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. All right. I think it's clear then.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not besides our standard.

Sometimes old temples their Deities installed from previously, then we saw Guru Mahārāja accepted those installations and the temple. Established by others, but his acceptance that was bona fide, we accepted. So its origin may be otherwise, but the acceptance of a sādhu of that thing according to standard, that may be accepted, that may be analysed.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Hmm.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Considered to be newly adjusted.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Also, I wanted to tell you that with regard to the publication of any history of Your Divine Grace, or of Swāmī Mahārāja, that we had no intention to include these very personal things you may have said about your Godbrothers or the internal history. Our interest is mainly philosophical.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That was an important topic, but during your long stay that subject was not taken out for discussion, historical side. We told that we shall discuss, the background must be given in the historical side.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Because, Viṣṇu, Vaiṣṇava, in their case all representation is not real.
Sita rakrti maya harila rama [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Hmm. Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And the gopīs they're looted by the _____ [?] were looted, but that is all mahā māyā. So the Viṣṇu, Vaiṣṇava historical presentation, how much that should be acceptable as setting the example here? And how much that is to deceive the people? That sort of precaution one must be given in the introduction. So it is difficult to describe as well as to accept, understand, what is what, in the Vaiṣṇava carita, as in Viṣṇu, so in Vaiṣṇava. How much to deceive those that deserve deception? In the līlā of the Lord, two ways to show the example, to the good, as well as to deceive the demonic section. These things should be adjusted, everywhere.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Right.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Asura mohan, and sajjana tosan. The inner circle will be very much pleased, and the others will be deceived.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

83.11.14.A_83.11.15.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...he became sannyāsī, Kṛṣṇa Nanda Swāmī, later on. He came to my place here to visit, Kṛṣṇa Nanda. Eight brothers they are, all brilliant, so that the government gave the title to their mother as Ratna Garbha. Their mother had got that government title Ratna Garbha, who has given birth to so many jewels. One of them, so many sādhus also, one of them was secretary to Jawaharlal [Pandit Nehru] and was commissioner or - ambassador to Bangladesh, some doctor. He came from Cattagrama.

Devotee: There's one big doctor there that has Ayur Vedic dispensary, he's a very rich man.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who? Doctor _____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: What name?

Devotee: I can't remember his name.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: There is one Kanan Gopara or some village that is their original residence, Kanan Gopara, near Cattagrama town. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi, Mukunda Datta, Vāsudeva Datta.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: That is the original place of Puṇḍarīka? That land where your temple is is the original place?

Devotee: He was there, and his bhajan-kuṭīra was there.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Bhajan-kuṭīra, same land? Purchased by yourself?

Devotee: And half committee. We're not full ISKCON, we're called Chaitanya Culture Society. And the local Hindu committee they have joined, combined together, and we have purchased.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Joined, amalgamated.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And who is the Ācārya of that zone?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Jayapatāka Mahārāja?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Jayapatāka?

Devotee: Na. He comes once, very short visit, he'll come for one...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Did you visit Dhaka temple? No?

Devotee: Dhaka, yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No? Our original temple in Dhaka, our Guru Mahārājas?

Devotee: Oh, yes, yes, the Gauḍīya Maṭha.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Our Gauḍīya Maṭha in Navinda [?], Baliyati, then Mymensingh, near Dhaka town also, Kamalapur.

Devotee: I went to one little one by the river, a very nice temple. They put on one big feast when we came.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Near Dhaka town?

Devotee: Between Faridpura and Jessore there is one Gauḍīya Maṭha temple on the side of the river. I can't remember the name, there's so many villages. But there they put on one big huge feast when we came. They got three days notice.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In Faridpura?

Devotee: No, after Faridpura.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Who's in charge of that temple, sannyāsī?

Devotee: _____ [?] I'm only new there so _____ [?] I'm just learning the language _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Why have you left Bangladesh?

Devotee: I came to visit Vṛndāvana for my Gurudeva's puṣpa samādhi...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, to attend virahotsava, Swāmī Mahārāja. And you're going back to your home?

Devotee: Now I'm going back and taking some presents for the devotees there.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He's going back taking some gifts for the devotees.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Taking for some devotees there. They're all these Bengali devotees or European?

Devotee: Bengali.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not westerners?

Devotee: There's a very much shortage of Vaiṣṇava articles there because it is all Muslim country.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: How do you come here?

Devotee: We have a car, a minibus which we drive _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You came to Māyāpur temple, and from there you have come here, alone? Why?
Curiosity or any friend here to see?

Devotee: No. In Māyāpur temple I have one friend.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who is he?

Devotee: His name is Nishtular [?] He's a Canadian.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: From him you got the suggestion to come here?

Devotee: No, no. I previously met...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He met Sudhīra Goswāmī. When Sudhīra brought the book Search For Śrī Kṛṣṇa first time here, he Sarvatcha gave him a ride in his car, and he received a copy of Search For Śrī Kṛṣṇa from Sudhīra Goswāmī and appreciated it.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where does he come from? America?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: No. New Zealand. Same county as myself.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: New Zealand. Oh, your country.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He appreciated Search For Śrī Kṛṣṇa very much.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh. Search For Śrī Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Actually I liked speaking with him more than reading the book. I more enjoyed speaking with him.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Sudhīra. He enjoyed his conversation with Sudhīra Goswāmī.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah, but he left today.

Devotee: That was more than the book, for me. Because I'm not very good reader.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But you may have a talk with Akṣayānanda Mahārāja who comes from your native place, and you'll be well versed in all the necessary understanding.

Devotee: Yeah, I see he's very deeply into the books.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You do not know him?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yeah, he came to the land this morning.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So he was sannyāsī of Swāmī Mahārāja. He was in charge of Vṛndāvana, Bombay. He's an old experienced sannyāsī.

Devotee: Yes, very advanced.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And he's writing many books about Swāmī Mahārāja's teachings.

Devotee: You're inspiring many people, so I was encouraged to come and see you.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I'm trying because I'm left, so many of my Godbrothers they're leaving gradually one by one, I'm spared. In this old age I'm trying my little energy if possible to help something.

Our great Guru Mahārāja he had a great plan of conquering the whole of the world, and he began that task. And ultimately Swāmī Mahārāja has done that successfully. So we're appreciator, admire him and his activity to spread the highest form of truth to the world.

How it is? Only by mere pronouncing we cannot establish that this is high, that this teaching is the highest teaching. We're to try to know step by step what is high what is low. The measure, the standard of that we must have, and according to that standard we must measure how much value is where located. In this way theism - there is qualitative difference.

God is. The cause of the whole world is wonderful, and that is fulfilling, that can fulfil all our inner necessity. What is He? How to attain He, Him? There are the questions. The only one question has been accepted by the normal thinking person, to know the principle, by knowing Him we can know everything, whether it is possible? By getting Him we can get everything. That should be the general question of everyone, every living being. Is it possible that if we can get one we can have the whole? Apparently it seems to be impossible, by getting one we get the whole. How? The whole in one, how it is possible? So this impossible possibility we're given in the scripture, it is there. The whole banyan tree is in the smallest seed. One who has got such searching eye he may see that. Many in one, one in many, and how the relationship between one and many.

We hanker for many things, but what is the real hankering? That if that is satisfied then all hankering appeased, is it possible? For the solution of all these things the revealed scriptures come to our help. And that is also imparted by instalment, according to the capacity of the receiver.

Devotee: How do we increase our capacity?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Capacity, for this general enquiry, the lowest capacity is śraddhā. And the meaning of the śraddhā is that if I can know Him I can know everything. It is possible, it is true. It is not a hoax that by knowing, by getting one we can get everything. It is not a hoax, it is true. When we have got some faith in that, that is the beginning of spiritual life. And with the attainment of that particular one we can attain everything, it is possible. Not only that, and also not to know, but I can have all my innermost sweet engagement with Him only. Whatever, all the constituent parts in me can find their fullest satisfaction only coming in His connection. The wholesale satisfaction of every nerve of my existence is possible only coming in His contact.

All these things, the beginning, and we make progress, and we realise, and we have, and more we try, that is infinite. No end of trial. As much as I make progress, we can feel that we're making progress, but no end, going on, on, on. In this way, finite towards infinite. By the grace of the infinite, finite can know about infinite, otherwise not. So surrender, śraddhā means surrender, faith. Your duty to surrender at the disposal of the highest. And in highest you'll be moved by your surrender, and will express Him in you about Him. Finite cannot know infinite, but infinite can make Himself known to finite. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas.

[nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena
yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām]

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. When the living entity begs the Lord for His mercy, being desirous of His transcendental loving service, then the Supreme Lord reveals His self-manifest form directly before him."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] & [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.3.2]

Whomever He selects to make Him known to the person, he can know, others not. He's such by nature. All Rights Reserved. To be known or not to be known, the right is in His hand. Not exposed to the research scholars, to the laboratory scientists, not exposed. He can never be object, in the position of the objective, this human subject, cannot make Him object. He's rather the universal subject, subjective existence.

Ke? Who is he?

Devotees: _____ [?]

...

Devotee: ...is a very lonely path.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He says, "Our path, bhakti-mārga, seems to be a lonely path."

Devotee: Only, there are not many serious people attracted to er...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He cannot find that very many people are very serious. He feels we're alone.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who's alone?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Himself.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who's alone? Him or myself?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: No, no, himself.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He himself finds alone?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. In bhakti-mārga, he cannot find very many serious devotees, Vaiṣṇavas, to associate.

Devotee: So how do we...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Why? In ISKCON or your maṭha...

Devotee: Anywhere.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...how do you feel alone?

Devotee: I feel alone when I'm looking for someone who can give me some blessing, that can give me some spiritual advancement.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No external help you are getting, you think? What engagement you are within, that is not paying? Ha, ha, ha. Hmm?

Devotee: Sometimes it feels...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You are starving?

Devotee: Yes, starving.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. Starving. But that is also a sign of progress. There are so many things to enjoy, but you don't relish anything, why? You have got something within, so you cannot relish anything. You are searching, you are sincerely searching for something - what you do not, without which you feel that you are starving. But so many others around you they're not starving. Why?

Devotee: I don't know. I cannot see them.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So many other persons they have got ample food, but you don't find any food.

Devotee: I don't see them either _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So you have got something, already you're in possession of something, but that does not allow you to fill yourself with anything and everything. You feel you're starving, that means you're searching, you're starving means you're searching for something, for food proper. Raso vai saḥ.

[raso vai saḥ. rasaṁ hyevāyaṁ labdhānandī bhavati
ko hyevānyāt kaḥ prāṇyāt yadeṣa ākāśa ānando na syāt eṣa hyevānandayati]

["Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the embodiment of all ecstatic bliss; He is the reservoir of all pleasure. Having derived ecstasy from Him, the individual souls become blissful. For, who indeed, could breath, who could be alive if this Blissful Lord were not present within the hearts of all souls. He alone bestows ecstasy."]

[Taittirīya-Upaniṣad, 2.7] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 9.2]

For the main food you are searching and you can't get it. That is a progress in life, a good sign, that you are starving.

Devotee: But how long does starving continue?

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Even Mahāprabhu told the life is eternal, and soul is immortal, so no question of dying by starvation.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: This is the line of starvation.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Even Mahāprabhu Himself says, "Not a single drop of nectar I'm searching for I'm not getting." What to speak of others? The great devotees they say, "I'm starving." Like the particular bird, cātaka, in Sanskrit name, always fixing aim towards the sky. "A drop of water." He won't take. So much water flowed, even in the time of inundation, flood, won't touch a single drop on the earth. But always, "Patit-jal. Oh, a drop of water from heaven, a drop of water from the heaven." He'll always face...

Devotee: Is there a necessary...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Low and high, towards with his face, his beak, towards the sky always hankering, "A drop of water." _____ [?]

viracaya mayi daṇḍaṁ dīnabandho dayāṁ vā, gatir iha na bhavattaḥ kācid anyā mamāsti nipatatu śata-koṭir nirbharaṁ vā navāmbhas, tad api kila payodaḥ stūyate cātakena

["O friend of the needy, whether You chastise me or reward me, in the whole wide world I have no other shelter but You. Whether the thunderbolt strikes or torrents of fresh waters shower down, the cātaka bird (who drinks only the falling rainwater) perpetually goes on singing the glories of the rain cloud."]

[Śrī Śrī Prapanna-jīvanāmṛtam, p 118]

That particular bird, Rūpa Goswāmī has given this śloka. Cātaka won't touch so much water, all inundated, but only towards Kṛṣṇa kṛpa, a drop of the nectarine of the grace of Kṛṣṇa. Without that won't take anything, drink anything, so starving.

Once three brahmacārīns approached our Guru Mahārāja, wanted to speak something but hesitated.

Then Prabhupāda asked them, "Do you want to say something to me, but you don't say? Say what you want to say, tell."

Then they came and told that, "So many years we have come here, but we cannot find any tangible progress within us towards Godhead."

Then Prabhupāda, "Oh, this much you want to say to me?"

"Yes."

"What you say is it true? Are you sincere when you're speaking this that you've not got anything?"

"Yes. So much we understand, we sincerely say this that we've got nothing."

"It is all right, go away, you're on the right path."

Search for the infinite, the nature is such. "I'm satisfied with what I've got" that is māyā, limit. When there's limit of satisfaction, limit of anything, that is māyā means measurable thing. Which is immeasurable, His connection is always "I'm thirsty. I'm searching. I'm starving. I don't find satisfaction with what I experience."

Devotee: But there has to be a spiritual starving.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Spiritual?

Devotee: Starving. Like you have, you, yourself. I cannot see but I can understand from speaking with you that you are getting this drop. Can you give it to us?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You have also got something, otherwise, you do not search for any other food, so many around you. Why?

Devotee: Very few are here.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? Why you do not like to take so much food around you? You starve, why? Only you want a particular tasteful thing. One particular tasteful thing you want to taste, to eat, to drink, a drop of nectar you want.

Devotee: I'm very selfish.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So that means you have got some knowledge about that nectar. That non nectar you don't touch non nectar, you want nectar. That means some progress towards nectar. Indirectly you know something about nectar. "This is not nectar, that is not nectar, that is not nectar." You have got some knowledge about nectar, and you're going towards that. Still indirectly you'll feel some pleasure when there is talk with the devotees. The company of the devotees, that will give some sweet food to you, to us all. Sādhu-saṅga, śāstra-saṅga.

tava kathāmṛtaṁ tapta-jīvanaṁ, kavibhir īḍitaṁ kalmaṣāpaham
śravaṇa-maṅgalaṁ śrīmad-ātataṁ, bhuvi gṛṇanti ye bhūridā janāḥ

In Bhāgavatam when after the rasa nitya finished, the gopīs, Kṛṣṇa disappeared, the gopīs madly searching after Kṛṣṇa, the rasa dance is dissolved, Kṛṣṇa disappeared. They're searching after Kṛṣṇa. At that time they're singing in this way. From their heart they're charmed by the company of Kṛṣṇa. The nectar oozing from their heart, and they utter, tava kathāmṛtaṁ tapta-jīvanaṁ. They're uttering many, many things in praise of Kṛṣṇa, in appreciation of Kṛṣṇa's sweet company. In the midst of that this is one passage. Tava kathāmṛtaṁ tapta-jīvanaṁ. A drop of water into fire, Your kathāmṛta. One who's suffering...

...three phases of the Absolute. All attractive, that aspect is given predominance in the devotional school, than all permeating, or all comprehensive. Brahman, Paramātmā, and Bhagavān, all attractive, third and highest principle, all attractive. So much so that everything for Him. His attraction commands everything and makes everything for Him. So attractive that everything is converted into His order supplier servant, converted into servant. So much charm is there. The charm means everything subservient. The whole object of life, the fulfilment, He commands. "I'm your fulfilment." He declares.

Do you understand, no? Or English, Hebrew? English is Hebrew to you? Eh? So no time for me to learn Spanish. Ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa. All attraction, all charm, beauty, that is what is the principle thing. Sat, cit, ānandam. Satyam, śivam, sundaram. Śrī Kṛṣṇa. Thinking, feeling, willing. Willing is energy, thinking is the feeler, and the feeling the thinker what he wants to feel, food, the food of the thinker. The attraction for the thinker, feeler. And general existence foundation supplied by sandhīnī śakti.

Ke? Anurādhā come?

Devotee: Anurādhā Gāyatrī _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gāyatrī. They should come nearby. Where is Anurādhā?

Anurādhā [?]: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You? I want she should ask. She's Gāyatrī? She should ask some question.

Gāyatrī [?]: How can we serve you Guru Mahārāja?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: How can?

Gāyatrī: How can I best serve you Mahārāja?

Anurādhā [?]: How can she serve you?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Serve, me?

Anurādhā: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Why? Why not Kṛṣṇa?

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Gāyatrī: Because you represent Kṛṣṇa to me.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Because you represent Kṛṣṇa to her. You're Kṛṣṇa's representative.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Representative here for her. So that is normal thinking. What is her trouble?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Since the departure of her husband her mind has been thinking a bit in that direction.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mind thinking of that former husband?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: She can't control?

Badrinārāyaṇa: She's trying.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In what way, which way?

Badrinārāyaṇa: In which way are you trying?

Gāyatrī: Chanting, and listening to you Mahārāja.

Badrinārāyaṇa: By taking Hari Nāma, and by listening to your classes, she's trying to control.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: She's lamenting for her former husband, why?

Gāyatrī: Because I feel guilty.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Because she feels guilty.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Duty concerning which? For Kṛṣṇa consciousness connection, or otherwise?

Gāyatrī: Um, from ignorance, from being ignorant.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Badrinārāyaṇa: She says from being ignorant.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: From ignorance. So now you try your best to understand, if not for Kṛṣṇa consciousness, if you're thankful to him for taking you to Kṛṣṇa consciousness, that is tenable somewhat. But if otherwise then that should be brushed aside from your heart. Kṛṣṇa won't tolerate that. You belong wholesale to Kṛṣṇa, and you do not belong to anyone else in this world. The whole demand on you, so only Kṛṣṇa have. Kṛṣṇa consciousness means He's all-devouring, He can't tolerate any partnership in His right. If you really want to be Kṛṣṇa conscious then you'll have to understand that Kṛṣṇa does not want any partnership. Wholesale, otherwise He won't accept us, Kṛṣṇa.

There is a Bengali saying, song, tumi bina karana he hey radharamana. "I belong to You alone."

He says in Bhagavad-gītā, in the last śloka, His call.

sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja
[ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ]

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

"You'll have to give up all conceptions of duties whatsoever, and you'll have to come alone, to Me alone. My position is such. In relation to you and everything My position is Absolute. If you have any other duty then I won't accept. There may be different duties but all coming towards Me. You have your duty to Guru, to so many Vaiṣṇava, but they're all towards Me. So by serving them your energy is coming to Me."

But any duty which is not connected with Kṛṣṇa consciousness that must be shunned, and given up, forever. We shall cut the connection for any other obligation, and the only obligation wholesale to Him, that is Kṛṣṇa.

akhila-rasāmṛta-mūrtiḥ [prasṛmara-ruci-ruddha-tārakā-pāliḥ
kalita-śyāmā-lalito rādhā-preyān vidhur jayati]

[" 'Let Kṛṣṇa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, be glorified! By virtue of His expanding attractive features, He subjugated the gopīs named Tārakā and Pāli and absorbed the minds of Śyāmā and Lalitā. He is the most attractive lover of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī and is the reservoir of pleasure for devotees in all transcendental mellows.'] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.142]

Whatever is our inner demand we cannot ascertain. So many demands are within but we cannot ascertain them at present.

But Kṛṣṇa informs through the scriptures that, "All that big or small demands within you can only be satisfied in My connection, and never otherwise."

So every nerve, every atom, electron, within your system is related with Kṛṣṇa. And every part may find satisfaction only with His connection. His position is such. So wholesale to be given, surrender, wholesale surrender, that is the broad way towards Him, towards His holy feet. Won't tolerate any partnership. So if you want Kṛṣṇa consciousness, take the Name of Kṛṣṇa, must be that line. When counting Name, or doing, engaging in any other service, the attitude must be 'no partnership He will tolerate.' Wholesale, dedication, surrender, wholesale. Then He'll distribute you, engage you, "Do this, do that." By His interest you'll be guided to go to this camp, that camp, that group, this group, all for His service. You may be engaged in any group, in any camp, but first the wholesale must be for Him. Reality is for Itself. By Itself and for Itself. Everything for Him. We must be fully awake to this fact, that all for Him, and I'm for Him, totally. So no room for entering any interest from some other quarter. In this way you are to prepare yourself to march towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness, or to dive deep into Kṛṣṇa consciousness. This is - sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja.

"I am one. In one side I'm one, single. Another side all. All, unholy, holy, unholy and so-called holy."

Our dedication to country, to the society, to humanity, to father, mother, all these things, so many holy conceptions of duty we may think. But not only unholy and holy, all concerns should be totally, utterly, and unscrupulously given up. Then only He will come to accept us, and make us eligible for His service, for Kṛṣṇa consciousness. So whatever you'll do, you'll prepare yourself in that mood. All for Him. Reality is for Itself. Kṛṣṇa is for Himself. In this way. And everything here and there all consciously, unconsciously moving connected towards Him. And when we'll be reinstated in Kṛṣṇa consciousness we'll be able to see and feel that ultimately everything is towards Him. When conscious they're happy, unconscious they're in trouble.

Gāyatrī: Hmm. In this way I can also help Nimāi Paṇḍita dāsa...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: With the sādhu, śāstra, the association with His devotees, and association with His śāstra, holy books. Living books - sādhus are living books, active. And the passive association, benefit, we can get from books, śāstra. When sādhu is not available, at that time we can take the help of the śāstra, books.

Anurādhā: She's saying, in this way she can help Nimāi Paṇḍita dāsa in this kind of surrendering. This kind of surrendering to Lord Kṛṣṇa she can help Nimāi Paṇḍita dāsa _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. That should be eliminated. First I asked that, "Are you thankful to him that he took you to Kṛṣṇa consciousness?"

Gāyatrī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then you can remember him.

"He pointed out me towards Kṛṣṇa, pointed out Kṛṣṇa for my highest good, and he departed."

He was the instrument of Kṛṣṇa, instrumental to take you to this, so you may have some thankfulness and gratitude for him.

"Anyhow he was the cause of giving me connection with Kṛṣṇa consciousness, so I must show some reverence to him as agent of Kṛṣṇa."

Consciously, unconsciously, he played the part of connecting you towards - with Kṛṣṇa. That sort of gratitude you may offer to him, in Kṛṣṇa connection. If independent of Kṛṣṇa connection, that is undesirable. And if related with Kṛṣṇa connection, then in that way you may remember. And you can also give your obeisance to that agent who practically connected with Kṛṣṇa consciousness you're thankful to him. In this way. That is you know that best whether his connection helped you to come to Kṛṣṇa connection. Then some sort of regard should be shown to him, for Kṛṣṇa connection, not otherwise. So this way you will try, whatever you do, that my Master, my Lord, He wants me wholesale, not partial.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

"It is for My interest." He's full in Himself, but it is for my...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...if no hunger then there is disease. So to be hungry for Kṛṣṇa consciousness that is a good qualification, and that extends to infinite. Vipralambha _____ [?]

[Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu said: "Where is My beloved Kṛṣṇa? I can't tolerate His separation. Where is the Lord of My life, Who is playing His flute? What shall I do now? Where should I go to find the son of Mahārāja Nanda?"] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.15]

Because the connection of the finite with the infinite, we must not forget that, no end. No end for search, no possibility of any finishing. "Oh, I have finished." No possibility. That is māyā. Which can be finished that is māyā. As much as you make progress you should say, "So far, so far." That is Vaikuṇṭha, that is limitless. No bankruptcy, no finish, no bankruptcy is there. Ha, ha.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Mahārāja. Once we heard from you an explanation.

Those who spread this message of Godhead are certainly doing the greatest relief work for human society and are the most magnanimous welfare workers."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.31.9]

"Before, we were all right, but now when we hear Your kathāmṛtaṁ, now we've become tapta-jīvanaṁ."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Very similar.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You are starving, he also says after getting then we're disregarded, neglected.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. Before, we were all right.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: One dropped food in my way then I'm undone. I don't like another thing. That is too drastic. Vipralambha. No end of satisfaction. I have come in connection with the infinite, no end. Adhokṣaja. Ananta āmṛta. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Otherwise we're to become sahajiyā.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. You have here the real food relief program, on this side of the Gaṅgā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Of course if anyone has good fortune he may think like that. But at the same time I admit that this is not mine. This is the property of my Gurudeva. I am also like one of you, a student. As I told to Kīrtanānanda and others the other day, we consider ourself to be a student in the class of Kṛṣṇa consciousness, we're students.

Devotee: Mahārāja. In Bangladesh there are many gurus, like there's one guru called Jagabhandu, and there's many more.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Everywhere is such.

Devotee: They're saying that he has the vision.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We know them. When we were preaching in the length and breadth of the whole of India, the place of so many gurus. Ānandamayi, Ballabh Brahmacārī, Rāma Ṭhākura, Jagabandhu, then this Ramadas Bābājī, gurus, so many. Anukula Ṭhākura, Ramakrishna Paramahaṁsa, Vivekānanda. We had to fight with so many in the preaching when we were in the preaching camp and challenging them.

"Only figure won't do, come with what capital you have got. Only signboard won't do. The auditor will go and declare you bankrupt." So big signboard, I told in Kulya [?] one follower of Ramakrishna Mission, "A great signboard _____ [?] big signboard, but if auditor comes all bankrupt. What is the capital with which you are dealing? Take it out, and compare what Mahāprabhu and Bhāgavatam has given. The comparative study in the Vedic study, Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam the last issue from Vedavyāsa, and the comparative study is there. Come and fight, show. All sham thing glittering. All that glitters is not gold. To be gold something more is necessary, not glittering."

Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Prabhupāda kī jaya!
A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...it should be rather heard from a true Vaiṣṇava this what is what. It is unintelligible, it is adhokṣaja. It is not within the reason.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And that verse, vaiṣṇavera kriyā-mudrā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vijñeha nā bujhaya.

[vaiṣṇavera kriyā-mudrā vijñeha nā bujhaya]

[Even a very learned and intelligent scholar depending on direct perception of knowledge cannot understand the activities of a Vaiṣṇava.]
[From the purports of Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 15.22] [Ādi-līlā, 17.249] [Antya-līlā, 16.7] [Madhya-līlā, 7.66] & [Madhya-līlā, 19.155]

The intelligent section, the scholars, are muhyanti yat sūrayaḥ. [Great sages and demigods are placed into illusion, [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.1.1].

Parāśara was going to cross a river, suddenly she proposed, the lady that was rowing the boat, and there they connected and Vedavyāsa came out. How will you explain that in public? In the ordinary sense a great sage - and suddenly, but the underlying principle, that is the Supreme Will, and he's a mere instrument in the hand of that Supreme Will. The Vedavyāsa will come in that way, Kṛṣṇa-Dvaipāyana. That force, Parāśara is not the party, he's a mere instrument. But who is to understand that? In this way, outwardly it is an awkward thing, but inwardly they're mere instrument.

[yasya nāhaṅkṛto bhāvo, buddhir yasya na lipyate]
hatvāpi sa imāḺ lokān, na hanti na nibadhyate

["He who is free from egotism (arising from aversion to the Absolute), and whose intelligence is not implicated (in worldly activities) - even if he kills every living being in the whole world, he does not kill at all, and neither does he suffer a murderer's consequences."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.17]

In that level they're living, mere instrument to the whim of the Absolute. Does not care for their own dignity or non dignity. So in Viṣṇu and Vaiṣṇava caitya such things. With this caution we're to describe the history as well as any of their activities or anything. In particular case it may be fall from his own position. Madhyama adhikārī he may fall down. And uttama adhikārī he's out of that, no fall, no rise. And the application is difficult, what is what. So this should be dealt very cautiously, cleverly, in an introduction, then we shall go to deal with the history of a great Vaiṣṇavas.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. So I think in general we don't have a necessity to include these, so much internal personal dealings. But mainly those sections which have some philosophical import, benefit for the reader.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Kuntī, Draupadī, the case of these chaste ladies, their acceptance of two, three husbands, what is this? Apparently this is discard-able, it is blameable. But the śāstra says we'll be purified if we take the name of these chaste ladies. Their chastity is not disturbed, because divine arrangement has forced on them to do so. So these are the difficult things to handle, and with much caution and examples we're to have an introduction then we can discuss these things.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Now that is clear.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Risky, very risky.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: You are the fit person to deal with these things, only Your Divine Grace.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Another thing...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Muhyanti yat sūrayaḥ.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: But you are not bewildered by this. Another thing, I feel I have committed offence against the holy feet of Gaurakiśora Dāsa Bābājī Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is not much. He showed himself like that. Gaurakiśora Dāsa Bābājī Mahārāja he showed that he had nothing to do in the - he had no contribution in the śikṣā Guru. So you thought, 'yes, he may be omitted.'

But our Guru Mahārāja he gave recognition very much. "That in his toe the whole scriptural knowledge I can see by inspiration." Full of inspiration to Guru Mahārāja. So if we're to accept our Guru Mahārāja Bhaktisiddhānta, we cannot but accept Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja. I shall get all my wealth drawn from there, and Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So then you have to plead on my behalf to Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī to forgive this foolish boy.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And also you told this not to lavishly use this name mañjarī. Another offence on my part to your holy feet.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. We must not tackle the most secret part of the līlā so lavishly. So it will always be kept under a screen, over our head, that sort of position. That is the highest, but not to be exposed to the public. Kṛṣṇa's padam, something like that. That sort of respect, it's always over our head. It may not be exposed to the public senses. To satisfy the senses of the ordinary public, this should never be given. Because our senses like vultures, whenever they meet anything want to make it - in the words of our Guru Mahārāja, wants to make it a ground where the dead bodies are thrown, as fashion.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Burial ground.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Burial, that is underground. But in India in a place where dead bodies are thrown, and vultures and jackals and other animals come and eat. So our Guru Mahārāja said, "Whenever our senses will fall like vultures, make it material. We may try to represent it spiritually, but our senses will go there and like vultures they will fall on them." So we should not create any cremation ground, that so many vultures will come and make the place nasty. The food, the rotten flesh food for the lover of the rotten flesh. So to save them, not to extend those things, as much as possible. Where it will be mentioned with great caution.

["The path of divine love is worshippable to us and should be held overhead as our highest aspiration."]

That was the tenor of the teachings of our Guru Mahārāja. Always with great reverence he mentioned about that, the higher pastimes of Kṛṣṇa, especially this mādhurya rasa. Ke?

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Vaiṣṇava. If we want to make it object of our experience it will vanish, we won't be able to mark that. But when with some respect, distant, overhead, then it may show some ray, or glimpse, so that we can glimpse and have experience. It is there, it is over my head. I may have some conception. But if particularly go to make a direct object of experience, then this is the cremation ground. Respectable distance, venerable distance, we shall try to maintain about those līlās _____ [?] the private līlās.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Hmm. Yes. Also, another thing that is not so clear to me, is that you speak of the inspired side of the Vaiṣṇava is Guru, that is clear. Then his other side, there's two sides, and that other side, what is not clear to me, is since it appears that that other side is not completely absolute...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Which side?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: There's the inspired side, that is of the Guru. Then his regular self, his own individual position.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The man side and the transcendental side?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. So is there any room for the disciple to not adhere to that side?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: To the transcendental side?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: No, the other side.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Other, meaning this practical side?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: They should try to be harmonised with the transcendental side. Always it may not be clear to me, but it must not be devoid of the transcendental connection. I can't, it is not clear to me, but it must have some transcendental connection, what is not clear to me. In this way.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Hmm. That's healthy.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. The things like mundane he's loving, this man he should not be given so much preference, partiality, or all these things, that should be up to infinite, ha, ha, connection with infinite.

Once, that Kuñja Bābu [later Śrīpād Bhakti Vilās Tīrtha Mahārāja], the general secretary of Prabhupāda, he was supposed to - waste some money, sometimes for his own private life.

So once in Purī, Professor Sanyal he was in gṛhastha form, though mentally he was more than a sannyāsī. His daughter was mature, and in the marriage ceremony something must be spent, monies necessary, and he previously made an insurance for that purpose. And that was matured and he, in his wife's name. Wife, when it was matured she took the money and put it near the husband, the Professor Sanyal. And the Professor gave it to Guru Mahārāja. And Guru Mahārāja sent it to Kuñja Bābu.

Then we asked Professor Sanyal, "Why did you give this money to Guru Mahārāja? It is your private, it is in the name of that daughter, and she must be married, she's grown up. And you do not care, but your wife she's so much anxious, suffering from anxiety. The daughter is grown up, must marry her. You may not care, you have become a cent percent sādhu. And you gave it to Guru Mahārāja. Guru Mahārāja sent to Kuñja Bābu, and it is on the underground."

Then Professor answered, replied, "If Guru Mahārāja wants to become satisfied to give money to such and such person, then as a disciple should we not see how much money that man can consume. As his disciple, if our Guru Mahārāja finds satisfaction to give money to him, then as his disciple what should we do? We shall try our best to satisfy, to see how much money that man can consume." He answered in that way.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Hmm, very nice.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So this ordinary dealings had that infinite connection. Guru Mahārāja's partiality to give money to some person knowing that he'll waste something, this side was not very palatable to us.

But Sanyal told, he saw, in the infinite connection. "That Guru Mahārāja wants to give some money to others and we're going to complain against his behaviour, what is this? We shall try our best to see that how much Guru Mahārāja wants to give to that man." He came with that colour. Do you follow?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes, oh yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So he's connecting that little thing with the infinite vision. So everything must be seen or felt with infinite vision.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And later in that way every neglected movement here has got connection with the absolute. Nothing is eliminated. Infinite embraces everything. In the highest stage, paramahaṁsa, he says that everything is connected with infinite.

yo māṁ paśyati sarvatra, sarvaṁ ca mayi paśyati / tasyāhaṁ na praṇaśyāmi, sa ca me na praṇaśyati

["For one who sees Me in everything and everything in Me, I do not remain unseen and he also is not unnoticed by Me: he never sways in his thought of Me."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 6.30]

Only in the middle stage we distinguish, 'this is God, this is non God.' Māyā. But there is a stage from where, from that centre, the angle of vision in the fullest degree. Yo māṁ paśyati sarvatra, sarvaṁ ca mayi paśyati, tasyāhaṁ na praṇaśyāmi, sa ca me na praṇaśyati.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: All right. The Eight Precepts of Śrī Caitanya.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eight Precepts. Like the Ten Commandments. Eight Precepts, particular precepts of Śrī Caitanya, special precepts. And there is also Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's Daśakam, Nimbarka Sampradāya Daśakam. Madhvācārya also outlines ten more, the whole outlines of the whole teachings only ten stanzas. In the Nimbarka Sampradāya, Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's also, ten stanzas, the famous ten stanzas, covering the whole doctrine. Daśa-mūlam _____ [?] The original ten principles of the particular creed. The Gauḍīya, Nimbarka, Madhvācārya, they have the original ten principles. Daśakam. That is Daśa-mūlam, that is known by the special technical name Daśa-mūlam, ten original concepts of the creed, Daśa-mūlam. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura...

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: ...this book on the lives of great devotees.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That will be a big one.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes, a bigger one.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Find out who are the personalities, and in order of different rasa you are to - it will be a big thing. If it is possible you may do one thing. In Bhagavad-gītā, what is the development in my edition, if you can collect them with the help of Akṣayānanda Mahārāja, and that in a small pamphlet the special development of Bhagavad-gītā towards Bhāgavatam.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Oh. The speciality in your Bhagavad...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The search of Bhāgavatam in Bhagavad-gītā - or, in the light of Bhāgavatam the ray of Bhāgavatam in Bhagavad-gītā. Something like that.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: That's another book.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Or Gītā leading towards Bhāgavatam. The inner purpose of Gītā, or where Bhāgavatam and Gītā meets together, something. And the basis the Gītā flower and the fruit Bhāgavatam. How Bhāgavatam fruit coming out flower of Gītā. In this way. Ha, ha, ha. That will be a very peculiar thing for the scholars.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "What's the Bhāgavatam in Bhagavad-gītā?" They'll say. "What is this?" They'll be small and leading questions and be peculiar type.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. But this book on the lives of the devotees, on their different appearance day and disappearance day you sometimes speak about them. You've spoken about Raghunandan Ṭhākura, Rasikānanda, Śrīnivāsa Ācārya, his father.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I, in the very beginning, perhaps about forty five years ago or so, I prepared a book like that, I tried to prepare. Every day in the program for that thing, a book to prepare, at that date we shall open the book, and all the necessary things to be discussed it will be kept there. In this way I tried to prepare. Somewhat a portion was prepared and the manuscript perhaps may be there. This date this is Raghunātha Dāsa, Raghunātha Bhaṭṭa, and wherever anything mentioned about them it is all in one place. In this way I tried to compile one book.

But that is almost finished? And that will be a very comprehensive thing. Day by day about the Vaiṣṇava we're to discuss. In one place we shall get everything.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. Well this book would not be so comprehensive because it would be - their lives are mentioned but mainly philosophy.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That will be a difficult task. Wherever anything is mentioned about them that must be quoted. Reference from different books about the same person. Wherever you find about him, from Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Caitanya-Bhāgavata, then Bhakti-ratnākara, or any other about anything mentioned, or in Sanskrit, anywhere, all about him must be there. That will be very comprehensive and big book.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So, the book that I was thinking of is different.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: History of all the Vaiṣṇavas concerned, and that will be couched in that way. In the day of his appearance anything about him, referenced from this book, that book, all together. In this way I have tried to compile. That will be a huge thing.

And Prabhupāda wanted to publish Vaiṣṇava-Mañjūṣā, just as an encyclopaedia, Gauḍīya encyclopaedia he wanted. Mañjūṣā means a big box, chest. Whatever is necessary of the Vaiṣṇava will be found in that big chest, Vaiṣṇava-Mañjūṣā. He began but he could not complete.

After him Vasudeva Prabhu also did somewhat with the help of one sahajiyā scholar Haridāsa dāsa. But I did not see it.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: There's one book called Gaurāṅga-parṣada-caritavali.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: By?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Harikṛpa Brahmacārī.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where from, how long?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Well I don't know but it's after Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta. He has given jivani [?] of Vasudeva Prabhu. Purī Prasāda Ṭhākura. So he is perhaps in the line of Ananta Vasudeva Prabhu. Perhaps you did not see that book. That has given jivani of many core Vaiṣṇavas.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: By whom?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Harikṛpa dāsa. Maybe he's a disciple of Ananta Vasudeva.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Haridāsa maybe?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Not Haridāsa dāsa, no, Gauḍīya publication, printed by Gauḍīya Mission.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Maybe, I do not know. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Then, how has he mentioned there about Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura there?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: I've not read it very...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In later days that Ananta Vasudeva he depart from him.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: That they've not mentioned, of course, they did not give that, no mention of that.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Also, Mahārāja, another question, is one of our Godbrothers he's proficient in Sanskrit translation. And he's translated many, many books in the last six years or so. So I've acquired some of those books and I just wanted to know if we could have your permission to look through them. If I could mention, there's a few books, if I could mention their names and you could say whether it's approved reading or not.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Of course special portion if I can see then I can give my opinion.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Right, but we'll have to look through it to give you that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah, so I cannot read. Anyone should read, like Akṣayānanda Mahārāja or yourself, and whatever the points of difference, or peculiar points, if that is brought to me then I can____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Certain remarks.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Right. We can bring it to your attention.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: But I just mentioned to you some of the books he's done. He's translated the Stava-mala of Rūpa Goswāmī, the Haṁsadūta of Rūpa Goswāmī, Kṛṣṇa-Karṇāmṛtam, Mukunda-mālā- stotram, Gaurāṅga-smaraṇa-maṅgala-stotram of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, Tattva-Sandarbha of Jīva Goswāmī, Prema-Bhakti-Candrikā of Narottama Dāsa, Prārthanā of Narottama Dāsa, Caitanya- candrāmṛtam, and Śrī-Kṛṣṇa-Bhakti-Ratnā-Prakāśa of Raghava Paṇḍita Goswāmī. Those are the books I have acquired so far. But we can look through it and if there's some...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's a translator of ISKCON?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes but personally. In ISKCON they do not want to publish his translations, because they're not interested in these books.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He has done it as a self interest.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's a disciple of Swāmī Mahārāja?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Swāmī Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is his name?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: His name is Kuśakratha. Actually his name is two names, in ninth canto of Bhāgavatam [9.24], Kuśa and another name Kratha.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is the meaning of the word Kratha?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: They were names of two sages.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is the spelling?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: K,r,a,t,h,a. We think Swāmī Mahārāja didn't give that name. It was picked by some other...

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Secretary.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Krathanaka, there is a word, that is the name of a camel we find in Viṣṇu-Purāṇa, Krathanaka. Kratha. We're to consult the dictionary what is the meaning of kratha. Kuśakratha, which was the name of a saint?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Two saints. One is Kuśa one is Kratha.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: As in Kuśa, Lava.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yeah, like that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Kuśakratha. It is found, the tale of them in Mahābhārata or in any other place?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, I believe in ninth canto, where there's a list of many, many names, before the beginning of tenth canto. Which dynasty is that? At the very end of the ninth canto.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The name of saint or king or who?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: It may be king.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We're to find out from Bhāgavatam, the ṭīkā from Bhāgavatam. Viśvanātha Cakravartī's ṭīkā must have given something. Gaura Haribol.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Mahārāja. Another question I had was, I'm getting this Mahāprabhu Deity, Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, and the installation time will be I think on Gaura Pūrṇimā. So I should be there for the installation. So is it proper if I come to India a little before that and leave just before Gaura Pūrṇimā to return for that, or should come a little after?

You know because if you're here and you leave three days before Gaura Pūrṇimā it's a little off.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I shall consider and say, shall think it out.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: All right. And another point was that I think Mukunda Mala Vilas Prabhu he's working very nicely on these books. The main work of compilation and editing he's performing and doing very well, nicely. And I think when he was here last time he expressed some desire to take sannyāsa from Your Divine Grace.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But if he takes sannyāsa then his service there may be slackened?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: I don't know. I think he's very dedicated to doing this work, and that it would not slacken.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is his age?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: His age, twenty nine, thirty.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And how long his ISKCON connection, Kṛṣṇa conscious connection?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: For about seven years.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So disciple of Swāmī Mahārāja?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: First, Hari-Nāma from Swāmī Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And then?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: And mantra from Your Divine Grace.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And not Jayatīrtha?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: No, Rāmeśvara.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Rāmeśvara. Oh, he should call explanation from me.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Ha, ha, ha. Yes.

...

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: ...perform their karma-kāṇḍic ceremony for them. If they have some śraddhā, or if the hair cutting of their children, they want us, they think that we're the only representative of Hindu culture. So they're always coming, but every time, I try to accommodate them in some way, but it seems every time we get involved in this it creates a disturbance for us.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. _____ [?] You restore that gentleman, that Hiranyagarba.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Pradyumna.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Pradyumna. _____ [?] to go on with the karma-kāṇḍa.

Devotee: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Swāmī Mahārāja told here that, "You may try but that will cover you."

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. I spoke to him before I left America.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "A call for you has come, a dire demand, you must come out. Take my name."

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: That's the answer. That Keith Power [?] he also. I should just direct it all to him, I usually do.

So some man whose inclined like that can handle it. But we should not get involved in these things.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Anyābhilāṣitā-śūnyaṁ [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.167]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not in ordinary karma-kāṇḍa. But if you come this side, the Vaiṣṇava thought, then we can accept.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Bhakti-ānukūl.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah, bhakti-ānukūl. Gṛhastha Vaiṣṇava. In the predominated stage the gṛhastha Vaiṣṇava they may have something of these things. But we cannot state they do not care so much for service, and manage other things.

83.11.15.B

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Now Pramāṇa Swāmī any question? Hmm?

Devotees: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then, of course, on the surface, but that is very bad. When there is chance this human life is very valuable, especially when it's connected with Kṛṣṇa consciousness, very, very valuable time. And to be disgusted with that sort of life equals to disgust with Kṛṣṇa. Do you understand? Do you follow? The time in which the devotees they always try to keep up that time in which we can acquire, or we're in connection with Kṛṣṇa. The most valuable period, and if you lose to want that, that is very bad. You should never allow that idea to enter the prisons of your mental sphere, never. No indulgence of such suicidal thought. That will be like curse, not only to this life but lives together, in the future lives also it will haunt this idea. So never give indulgence to such thought. Then ordinary suicide that is also bad, everywhere. We're in the prison house - to break the prison and go out that means more punishment will come. Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes I do.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: If one culprit is in the prison and he breaks the prison, and goes out. Law, law of the country. Then he will be caught and will be given more punishment. So, what circumstances we have earned by our previous karma, we must submissively pass through that, allow ourselves to pass through patiently. "This is according to my own previous karma I'm here. And if from here I try to look that everything is God's arrangement, my affectionate Father's arrangement, my Lord's arrangement; and it is all right, I'm in the wrong." Then in no time that will be - we shall be out of the prison. But if I complain against the administration, which is dealt ultimately by Him, then I'll be put into further punishment.

So in ordinary case also suicide is condemned. Especially one who has come in touch with Kṛṣṇa consciousness. So valuable position, if that is lost by our own bad karma, then that would be the most deplorable thing. A great and inconceivable loss in our fortune, in our valuable life. So never indulge yourself in that line. This life is worth living. Gradually you will be able to see the wonderful pastimes of Kṛṣṇa, as much as you will be able to go forward, to understand. So many wonderful experiences you may have, that you cannot ever can conceive. And you are going to do away with that prospect of your life, the life full of prospect. So never allow yourself, even for a second, to go astray from the path of dedication to Kṛṣṇa. And try your best to catch every straw, that it may not be drowned.

In this way, you'll adjust yourself with the help of your friends. Anurādhā is there, Mañjuālī is there, so many other friends are there. With their help you'll try. This sudden disease; one disease is trying to enter into your body, devotional body. So don't allow that poison, that germ, that heinous germ to enter into your body of devotion, purge it out. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Do you understand what I say?

Devotee: Yes, I understand.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gaura Hari. And sometimes you may appeal to Nṛsiṁhadeva. "You please help me to get out of these hindrances of devotion. These are all enemy to devotional life. Please help me my Lord." And also Nityānanda Prabhu, to Gurudeva, "Please help me from all these enemies that are trying to fall on me." In this way. And take to the Name, and this book reading, and the service, wherever you are, do the service to your friends and well wishers around you. In this way go on.

Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Any question from anyone?

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. The jīva has a tendency to relate with Kṛṣṇa in a particular rasa. May Kṛṣṇa have the desire to give His association to that jīva in another rasa?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I can't follow. Badrinārāyaṇa Prabhu, what does he say?

Another devotee: A particular entity may have a rasa with Kṛṣṇa: vātsalya, sākhya rasa. But Kṛṣṇa Himself may like to have another type of relationship with that entity, with that devotee?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

ye yathā māṁ prapadyante, tāṁs tathaiva bhajāmy aham
[mama vartmānuvartante, manuṣyāḥ pārtha sarvaśaḥ]

[Śrī Kṛṣṇa says: "As a person takes refuge in Me and surrenders unto Me, I respond and reward accordingly. Being the ultimate goal of all philosophies and doctrines, I am the objective to be attained by all. Certainly, O Pārtha, everyone follows My various paths in all respects."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.11]

He's akhila-rasāmṛta-murtiḥ, emporium of all rasa. He's embodiment of all rasa possible. Everything in Him, all corresponding things in Him. So whatever is the inner most necessity in us, we gradually, when we come to Him closer, gradually we are adjusted there, accordingly.

Suppose in a tank full of water you put many pieces of wood, stone, and more little weighty than wood, and this _____ [?] which is on the surface. Anurādhā _____ [?]

Anurādhā: _____ [?]

Devotee: Foam?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Very, very light thing which floats over the water?

Devotees: Foam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The lightest.

Devotees: _____ [?] Foam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Foam means that comes within the _____ [?] No. _____ [?] The lightest substance, sometimes a crown is made of that thing, a very light substance. Anyhow, in the water the stone will go down, the iron piece, that will be more heavy than the stone; so, according to its weight it will be adjusted in the water. Some in the middle of the water; some on the top, on the surface of the water; some will go down in the water; and in this way.

So, according to our inner temperament we will be adjusted there, in any place accommodated. Everything is there. And not only myself, but so many groups. Mine, my nature, so many with little difference; so many in my group, they will also be adjusted in a particular place, and I will be one amongst them. So whatever is within me, according to that I will be adjusted there. My position, my respective position, corresponding position. The adjustment will be automatically, by Yogamāyā.

If you - so many birds are thrown into the sky. Those that can go higher into, they'll go there, those who cannot go so higher, they'll be lower, in this way. The hens and the ducks, they will be very near, and they will go to the ground and very little flying. So according to their capacity they will go. The sky is infinite, they'll go high, some will be in the lower, some more lower, in this way.

Mainly five rasa, five kinds of rasa. Then within every rasa there is also subdivision. In sākhya rasa Subala has particular position, Śrīdāmā another, then Madhumaṅgala of another type, then Arjuna he's of another type. So different leaders of different groups there are. And according to the newcomers' temperament, they'll be given service in the particular group under the guidance of particular leaders. And that is all infinite. A part of infinite is infinite. So as I say, "He's not bankrupt, not limited thing, that no accommodation, all filled up, no accommodation." No such question will arise there. Gaura Hari.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. What is the situation if the Guru wants to give to his disciple a particular rasa, but the disciple feels attracted to another rasa?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Guru will survey the heart of the disciple, and he will connect accordingly. Ruci parīkṣa. There is a stage in which Guru will examine the taste, the heart of the disciple, and connect accordingly. Division, subdivision; then again subdivision within subdivision. So, so many models are there. Infinite ideals and models, and according to the inner taste of the disciple Guru will mediate.

After a period of training with one Guru, hearing from him, he may not be satisfied, he may go to another. In bhakti, Jaiva Dharma we find that Brajanath and his sister's _____ [?] No. Vijay Kumar, both heard for some time from one Raghunātha Dāsa. Then Vijay Kumar he found that he has something more to know, and that is being dealt in Purī by someone. And he started there, and from him he got other things that was not found here. And Brajanath, he was satisfied with sākhya rasa, he got everything here and he settled here. You'll find there.

So, general education, general primary education may be finished in a particular school. And when one accepts any special course, he will have to select that sort of school for his further study. In the practical way we are to think like that, in the spiritual it is also. But that does not mean that we should withdraw all our respect from the primary teacher. When you have past, you have got higher degree, when you come to your own village and you meet the primary teacher you must show some respect. You must - "I learned from your holy feet." In this way. "You took trouble of teaching me in such a way." These are practical things. Theoretical, practical, both necessary; both combined becomes truth.

So form, the absolute and the relative truth always moving together. Relative and absolute. Absolute holding the highest position, and relative, the adjustment from, in different stages, in different way. Committee is necessary to guide, but if committee deviates from the ideal, then committee gone, dead, being dead. Everywhere; so many Christians, so many have come from Christianity, but Christianity also has bishops and committee. They have also committee, the Pope, or the committee, but you had left that. Why? Your inner hankering was not satisfied there. Not that there is a lack of administration.

So many disciples of the Goswāmīs, they leave them and come to sādhu. Their hereditary guru, there are many; and generally they take initiation from there. But when ones heart awakens he's not satisfied with the hereditary guru. He leaves the hereditary guru and comes to somewhere where he can find his heart satisfied, hankering satisfied.

So Guru has been told as Lord Himself, sākṣād hari; that all-permeating, pervading. Not a particular man. So we're told that in Guru you must try to see He's present; the presence of the Absolute. He's all-pervading, all-embracing. For practical purpose, we'll have to have that experience. As the śāstra, scripture, has approached to the lowest class, so Guru, has also approached to the lowest class, according to their fitness and capacity.

To the infant class the teacher is going to the infant class; and these books also are going to the infant class. To the infant class the books are also like that and teachers are also like that. And as much as they receive their education they're educated, the books also change, and the teacher also changes.

But in the ordinary, there are so many. In the spiritual the books and teachers are coming to be more limited; and as much as high we shall rise, we shall find one or two teachers, or at last only one teacher, and only one book. So many books eliminated, and so many teachers eliminated, if I can rise according to my growth. We can't avoid this.

So many religions, all of them put issues, rulings, "Never think of other religion. Die in this religion. Die for this religion." Whether Islam, or Christianity, or Buddhism; everywhere, the Ācārya, the committee, they'll stress, "Die as a Buddhist, die as a Muslim, or a Christian. Don't aspire after anything." But if it is possible to come, to take them, draw them into comparison: it is possible? And such of an international or inter-religious heart, they will come to compare. What Hindu religion means, what is this, substantially? Muslim, what in substance? Christianity, what substance or representation? And they will come to compare. Comparison is possible. And according to his eternal capacity, realisation, he will select whatever will be considered to be the best in his consideration, understanding. This is living thing. Or otherwise, "I'm born Christian, I must die a Christian." This is all death thing. Real inquirer, who is inquiring after truth, what is truth? Truth cannot be monopolised by anyone. Different aspects of the truth, degrees of truth. What is truth? What is religion? What is the conception of the God? What conception? In Hinduism also so many conceptions of God. But, for trifle purpose they hold one god.

Kama kami jayasya sambosh [?] For lust, self-satisfaction, sense satisfaction, go to the god. For getting a child, linage, go to another god. For health, go to another god. For wealth, go to another god. It is also mentioned there. And who does not want anything in this mundane world, he will go either to Brahman, or to Paramātmā, or to Bhagavān. And then, who will be attracted by the Brahman conception? And what is the difference between Brahman conception and Paramātmā conception? And what is the difference between God conception and Paramātmā conception? And then different conception, differentiation in the God in Nārāyaṇa. Nārāyaṇa, then vyuha: Vasudeva, Pradyumna, Annirudha, so many. Then there is vātsalya rasa is found in Ayodhyā, Rāmacandra worship. Then Dvārakeśa, then Mathureśa, then Vrajeśa.

In this way, it is developing higher, and higher. We are to study and accommodate our heart accordingly. This is the all important thing with us. So we cannot sit idle with any particular creed, blind faith. With the awakening of our heart, we shall try, try, where is the end? What should be the end of my life?

The philosophers, they also differ from them. The Marx and the Hegel opposite. The majority of the ordinary human beings, some, their food and lodging, that is all important with Marx. And what Hegel says? "Die to live," and "Everything for Himself." So much difference, gulf, between the two conceptions. The Locke, Hume, then others also; and the Kant, Hegel, they are also of different thinkers. Socrates had to give up his life only because he told that, "Soul is immortal." And who are the beasts around for whom he had to give up his life that, "Soul is immortal" because he told. And that affected their religious thought, so he was murdered. "Soul is immortal." For this statement of this truth that soul is immortal, and he was given capital punishment.

And Christ had to be, "Because everything belongs to God," this was his statement, and that innocent man had to be ... And that was also with religious plea, there's the trouble. Those that crucified him, they also take the name of religion; going on in their society at that time. So religion is a dangerous thing, ha, ha, so-called religion. The essential man who uttered, "Everything belongs to God," he was crucified! He had nothing, a single space in this world. He's to be driven out of the world, because "God is everything." In this jungle what you can expect?

So our Manu-saṁhitā [2.1] says in the beginning.

vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ [sadbhir, nityam adveṣa-rāgibhiḥ
hṛdayenābhyanujñāto, yo dharmas taṁ nibhodhata]

All these fool's and rascal's experience, knowledge of experience, should be set aside, brushed aside. Only revealed truth is to be dealt with. No knowledge of experience should be relied on. That is only coming, going, coming, going, developing and going down. No reliance into the human civilisation and their product of empirical knowledge, all brushed down. Only revealed truth, no waste of time considering these empirical thoughts, only revealed truth. Vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ. Those persons that have faith in the knowledge which comes down from the higher to this lower creation, only that truth considered. Save your time; don't waste your time to think about religion, so many scholars and poets of this world. Only revelation, that is to be relied, and there is also instalment. That also should meet comparison in revealed truth. Revealed truth is not one and the same, according to different sections it is extended here. For different division, in different type it has been given out.

So vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ, and sadbhir sevitaḥ, which is accepted by the sādhu. What is their general symptom? That they do not care for any gain or loss of this world. If anyone is puffed-up with gain, and he goes down with the loss of this world, he's not to be considered as sādhu, independent of gain and loss of this world. If such scholars, man of religious temperament, he comes to say something, we may give some attention to that. Sevitaḥ sadbhir.

Nityam adveṣa-rāgibhiḥ, and hṛdaye nābhya, and the innermost approval of your own heart. "Yes, it is satisfactory." Inner approval according to your own awakening. Awakening according to the degree of awakening of your own heart. You must have sanction from your inner heart. "Yes, I want this. Yes, I find there home comfort." That is also a part, you are to rely your inner feeling, innermost sanction. "Yes, I want such thing." One. And the sādhu who is above all gain and loss of this world, and knowledge that comes from above, not produced from this mundane, mortal world, however scholarly he may be. These three things to be considered.

And Gītā [18.66] says, "Sarva-dharmān parityajya. Whatever conception you have got so long in your life as your holy duty: give up everything, and come to Me. I'm such. The wholesale purging, the transformation you will find within you. What you are at present, the wholesale purging is necessary. Sarva-dharmān parityajya. Good or bad, the wholesale purging out. Then the inner frame will be seen within you, and that may be fit for My transaction."

That is with you, within. And the foreign things come and covered that, buried deep. Your own structure, your own real divine body it is filled up with so many dirts. They covered, they're buried under material ideas, thoughts, consideration. Revive yourself from the tomb. You are buried under earth. The earthly ideas have buried your soul within that, and you must come out of the burial ground.

What do you think? Ha, ha, ha. This is too much? Eh? This is too much?

Devotees: (Group laughter) We all think you're very merciful.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gaura Hari bol. These things cannot come from a tiny man like myself. Hare Kṛṣṇa. What I could imbibe from our Guru Mahārāja. He's wealthy, Mahāprabhu. But how much I can give it to you? This small medium. So many things are there.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. If in every instalments of the truth we are told this is final, how are we to know when we finally reach the highest?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

[pārtha naiveha nāmutra, vināśas tasya vidyate] na hi kalyāṇa-kṛt kaścid, durgatiṁ tāta gacchati

["O Arjuna, son of Kuntī, the unsuccessful yogī does not suffer ruination either in this life or the next. He is not deprived of the pleasures of the heavenly planetary systems in this universe, nor is he denied the chance to personally see the Supersoul in the divine realm. This is so, O dear one, because a person who performs virtuous actions never becomes ill-fated."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 6.40]

The capital is within, and you won't be satisfied. You will seek in other place, if anywhere it is said that this is final, so far, no further. But the capital within you won't be satisfied with that. You will try to find out something more. You have read the book of Sanātana Goswāmī?

Devotee: Yes Guru Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That Bṛhat-Bhāgavatāmṛta?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: How Gopa Kumar is going up, first he reaches a particular plane, and finds little satisfaction. Stays there for some time, tries to do his duty in that plane for some time, but dissatisfaction from inside grew. Then any connection from near, higher place, comes either Hanumān, Jambhuvan, or this, then getting that connection is going there, next higher position. And after trying in that plane for some time, then again some connection from next higher plane anyhow comes to his connection, and catching that thread he's going to the next higher position. And there also, in the beginning, he's very badly engaged himself, "this is the highest plane." After some time he finds dissatisfaction within. Do you not follow that?

Devotee: Yes Guru Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gradually the inner awakening. The Śyāmānanda who was first, his Guru, Hṛdayānanda someone...

Devotee: Hṛdaya Caitanya.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Near Kalna, Hṛdaya Caitanya, he gave him sākhya rasa. But the chance came to him for mādhurya rasa. Suddenly when he was wandering in Vṛndāvana, the chance, wonderful chance came to him. In the early morning he's taking the Name, he's going from Nandagrama to [_____ ?] He found a very beautiful divine girl, she's searching something near the way. But before that he suddenly found one nrpur, one beautiful anklet on the way. He took it and put it in his bag. And going more inspired, taking the Name of Kṛṣṇa. And sometimes looking back, towards the place where he got. Suddenly he found that one divine girl she's searching for something in that place thereabouts.

Then he came back. "What do you search sister, for something?"

She told, "My Mistress Rādhārāṇī, She lost Her anklet somewhere here. I have come to collect that."

"Oh, I have got it. Is this it?"

"Yes." She took the anklet and put on his forehead, and that became a permanent spot there, of that anklet. She disappeared.

Śyāmānanda more enthusiastic. "What did I saw today here?"

Gradually that connection roused in him that mādhurya rasa. That connection, wonderfully transformed his heart in mādhurya rasa, that chance.

And he took it, the formal order, he took from Jīva Goswāmī again. His previous Guru he felt disturbed and he made a committee of the Vaiṣṇavas in Vṛndāvana, and called for Śyāmānanda and Jīva Goswāmī there, to explain 'why he has seduced my disciple.'

Then Jīva Goswāmī did not attend, he sent Śyāmānanda. "Go and give explanation to the committee."

Śyāmānanda plainly made statement that, "Such is the happening. After this my heart changed. And only as a formal thing I took from him."

In the beginning they disbelieved. "Oh, that is a story. It is not true what you say."

Then he had to tell. "You see my forehead the nrpur tilak. This has been given to me in this way, and this is the evidence. Can you rub it, efface?"

They tried but failed. Then they gave recognition.

So it is possible. He's autocrat. The change also may be affected by His special, or His powerful groups' recommendation. "Do this thing, that thing." So we find that is inner gradual awakening; and also sometimes the change may be introduced also in the existing functional system, it is also possible. He's not under law. The beauty, the absolute beauty is not under law. The charm is not under law. But we're making legalised brain. Every point we seek some law, and want to put the elephant within a bottle. It is our nature, what to do! We hear a thousand times, "He's above all, above all, transcendental, all this." Still our habit, our construction is such that everything we want to bring within the fist of our understanding, knowledge, that Adhokṣaja.

Anyhow, that has got also some necessity; otherwise we may be defeated by any other, every statement in the world. We have got, that also has some necessity; the argument, the vicāra. So, vicāra-grantha also there, Vedānta, Jīva Goswāmī he gave us Sat-Sandarbha, and there also for the protection of the higher truth he has given so many reasoning [_____ ?] But still it is above. Tarkā-pratiṣṭhānāt. Above this yukti. But in a particular stage we're to take help of the reason also. And reason may play in different planes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...there also in a particular politic here. Then in the military department also reason is there, playing in another way. And the scholars also there. And the religious men they're also reasoning in a particular way. Reason is there, but different planes.

Śukadeva also was not lacking in showing, in marshalling reasons to all the existing scholars of the time of different schools. Tapasvino. Tried to summarise, to generalise. Tapasvino dāna-parā yaśasvino. "The statement that I'm going to give, that is not a partial, that represents the general." How it is general and not particular, Śukadeva had to give so many reasons. "You think for yourself. From whatever school you represent you have to spare something, you have to do something, for some unknown power, to remove the difficulties in your progress. Whatever department you are."

Just as whatever different company may make trade in the country, in their different by-laws, with the help of that they may trade in company so many in the country. But all of them must have some sort of understanding with the government of the country. They may trade in different departments, ways, some producing the motorcar, some producing the foodstuff, some producing this milk, and so many things. But they're going on independently in their own way, limited company, their committee is also there, laws, by-laws. But anyhow some sort of understanding they must have to meet with the existing government of the country, in any way.

So Śukadeva says,

tapasvino dāna-parā yaśasvino, manasvino mantra-vidaḥ sumaṅgalāḥ
kṣemaṁ na vindanti vinā yad-[arpaṇaṁ, tasmai subhadra-śravase namo namaḥ]

["I offer my repeated obeisances unto the Supreme Lord, who is all-famous as the Supreme Good. Without offering their actions unto Him, neither the liberationists (jñānīs) who are dedicated to austerities, not the charitable worldly workers (karmīs), nor the world famous, nor the performers of Aśvamedha sacrifices, nor the sages or yogīs, nor persons dedicated to chanting mantras, nor persons of virtuous behaviour - none of them can attain any auspiciousness in life."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.4.17]

In your own way for the protection you'll have admit and to pray for some help from the unknown quarter, so that no hindrance can come to influence your attempt. And what is that? If we can correctly have a vision of that, that goes to God conception, and ultimately Kṛṣṇa conception. In this way we'll progress.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

When after giving the advice of Bhagavad-gītā to Arjuna. "This karma yoga I previously told to Sūryadeva, and from him the Vaivasvata Manu, and from him to another. In this way that has vanished here. Again I'm telling to you."

Arjuna told, "Why? How You can say to that? You are born now, and I'm also born now. You are talking to me, and You say You previously talked to some other gentleman. How is it possible?"

"I had many births, I know them all. And you also had many births, but you do not know them."

So from time to time He comes to help the people for transformation towards the right direction. But the influence of the mundane tendency that disturbs that wave of thought. It is covered again with ignorance, with misconception from this area. So always trying to envelope, to cover the real knowledge, real understanding, realisation, with mundane thoughts and ideas, necessity, all these things.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Truth is there and truth is absolute. And in the absolute also there is gradation, we're to think. In the truth also there is a comparative study, what is truth. Religion proper there is also possibility of comparison. Wholesale surrender, on that side, akhila rasa, all attractiveness. And this side, the degree of surrender. The degree of surrendering, that can understand the innermost part of the truth, the truth real, degree of surrendering of this part.

So all cannot be equal. That is possible in the abscissa, in the marginal position, all equal, something like Brahmaloka, Virajā. Withdrawal from the negative side, and no participation in the positive. Their position equilibrium, balance, all equal. But progress in the positive, and also in the negative, that differentiation. And negative also infinite type, and the positive also infinite type.

Here also from the stone to Brahmā, and there also from the śanta rasa, this Vṛndāvana sand, and up to gopī, Rādhārāṇī, the gradation is there. So no static, all dynamic. And we should not be discouraged, because there's no bankruptcy, and our necessity we're atomic existence. How much we can accommodate within us? And there is enough, more than enough.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Then I close here.

Jaya Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda...

83.11.19.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...the Gurudeva, Gaurakiśora Dāsa Bābājī Mahārāja, who is supposed to be the Gurudeva of our Guru Mahārāja Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī, his day of disappearance. He came from Faridpur district, east Bengal, now in Bangladesh. And about thirty two years he passed in Vṛndāvana, in secluded life, bhajan. After that he came to Navadwīpa, and he stayed near Balalghat just near that Felighat in a dharmaśālā room, to avoid bad association of the so-called sahajiyā Vaiṣṇava, and other worldly thinking people. Only when regardful persons visited him he used to ask them, "Chant this mahā mantra, Hare Kṛṣṇa Nāma." And sometimes he was out for mādhukarī.

I told, you have heard perhaps, that even the boys, knowing nothing about his noble life, sometimes they used to run after him, and also sometimes in a ridiculing tone throwing some dust etc.

And he used to remark, "Kṛṣṇa, You are at the back of all these disturbances." His thought was in such level always, that Kṛṣṇa is in the back. "The boys are disturbing me, and Kṛṣṇa is at its back." So he used to say, "Kṛṣṇa, I shall complain to Yaśodāmāyī. You are disturbing me in such a way, I shall go and report Your such behaviour to Yaśodāmā and She will punish You." In this way, in this level of life he lived.

And also we're told one day one famous Bhāgavata explainer was Prāṇa Gopāla Goswāmī, he used to explain Bhāgavatam, ten rupees per hour. He made it as his occupation. And that is against pure devotional practice. He wanted that he will explain Bhāgavatam just before Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja. And Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja had heard his explanation, "This fame will fetch more money for him." Because at that time the benevolent king of Barampur, Musilahbad, Mohindranandi, he came to visit that Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja as the greatest devotee of the whole of Gaura-maṇḍala.

And also our Guru Mahārāja was his disciple, so he gave us so much value.

The Goswāmī he gives proposal, but he does not speak anything, silent.

In this way, twice, thrice, proposal was made, but he could defer here.

Then one day out of his own accord he made arrangement of explaining Bhāgavata just before, on the land before him. He was in a hut on the banks of Ganges. And there that Prāṇa Gopāla Goswāmī, the renowned explainer of Bhāgavatam came with his own men. He made arrangement of everything, and explained Bhāgavatam for some time, and went.

He did not speak a single word, Gaurakiśora Bābājī, kept silence, staying silent. But after it is finished he asked his attendant, "Just purify this place with cow dung."

He was astonished. "What? This is already purified, and Bhāgavata explanation took place here. So many gentlemen sat and heard. They have taken out the mat, everything, but the place is cleansed." Then he put the question to Bābājī Mahārāja. "It is all very - no dirt, it is already a cleansed place. Why do you say to cleanse it again? I can't understand, can't follow you. "I say you cleanse." I don't follow what you like to say. It is already a very clear place. The Goswāmī came and explained Bhāgavatam here."

Then he came out. "You heard Bhāgavatam, but I heard only rupee, rupee, rupee. He did not explain Bhāgavatam for the satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa. He did not spread here Kṛṣṇa conception, Kṛṣṇa consciousness, but of something else. He committed offence against Bhāgavatam. He wanted to use Bhāgavatam as his occupation, the means to earn money. Bhāgavata explanation when meant to earn money then it is offence against Bhāgavatam. It is not devotion, service to Bhāgavatam, service to Kṛṣṇa. He's using Bhāgavatam as servant to serve his family interest. This is not Bhāgavata explanation, Bhāgavata kathā."

The object of the action will judge its characteristic. For himself or Bhāgavatam, then it's Bhāgavata kathā. As much as he can, as his capacity, he must try to satisfy Bhāgavatam. Bhāgavata should be read for Bhāgavata's interest, not for any mundane interest. So also we show our devotion to many gods, but if anyābhilāṣa, karma, jñāna, if there's any fleeting desire to be satisfied by that, or any organised exploitation, even according to the regulation of the dharma śāstra, or even to work out our salvation, mukti, anyābhilāṣa, karma, jñāna, to acquire knowledge by which we can attain our emancipation from this entanglement, that is also not bhakti, devotion. Devotion presupposes surrender for His interest. That is the test. For Itself. For Himself. Then it will be devotion proper, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Then Bhāgavata reading, or to make it subservient to some other mundane purpose, or even for the emancipation, liberation, that is also not considered among devotion. Because the conception of salvation, liberation, according to Bhāgavata, is to be reinstated in our serving position. That is liberation proper. Liberation from the mania of eternal rest, idleness. But life proper is dynamic, is serving, contributing for the whole, or, for Him, everything, infinite is His part, such whole. That is Bhāgavata. That is devotion.

So Bābājī Mahārāja's, these remarks that, "I shall report to Yaśodā You are disturbing me Kṛṣṇa." What does it say? In what plane he's living? Everything done, tat te 'nukampāṁ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.8], even crossing that, whatever is done at the suggestion of Kṛṣṇa.

And again, this explanation of Bhāgavatam by an ordinary scholar of Bhāgavatam it is offence, it is not Bhāgavata explanation. As Mahāprabhu wanted, in the case of Devānanda Paṇḍita that was also worse. The explanation of Bhāgavatam in the line of impersonal absolute. Mahāprabhu wanted to tear out his books, Devānanda Paṇḍita. But afterwards he was excused, pardoned, and became devotee of Mahāprabhu.

So Bābājī Mahārāja was such type of Vaiṣṇava paramahaṁsa. And our Guru Mahārāja had the suggestion, as suggested by Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, took dīkṣā from that Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja. His day was this past ekādaśī he disappeared. Then when he disappeared - how to bury him?

The sahajiyā section they approached. "He was one of us, so it is our duty and our claim to bury him in a place where we will be owner. That we shall show this is the burial place of that paramahaṁsa Bābājī Mahārāja Gaurakiśora, and our dignity will be increased." They tried in that way.

But there was other small party, they informed our Guru Mahārāja. Guru Mahārāja came and the case was taken to police station. Our Guru Mahārāja told, "He was not one of these ordinary bābājī section, he was paramahaṁsa."

The police officer told, "We know about Ramakrishna paramahaṁsa. Was there any paramahaṁsa here?"

Guru Mahārāja asserted, "Only by the touch of the feet dust of this paramahaṁsa, hundreds of Ramakrishna paramahaṁsa may be delivered. They'll be liberated from these worldly ties."

"What do you say? Hundreds of Ramakrishna paramahaṁsa if they can touch the feet of this Gaurakiśora Dāsa paramahaṁsa they'll be all delivered?"

"Yes, he was such paramahaṁsa."

Anyhow, then all other bābājīs fled away and in some place of his devotees he was buried, samādhi.

Then again after few days the Ganges began to encroach, and his samādhi was to be removed, and our Guru Mahārāja managed to take it to Māyāpur. And that is a temple you might have seen, Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja, on the western bank of Rādhā Kuṇḍa, his remains were buried there in temple way. Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja.

He asked our Guru Mahārāja, "Don't go to Calcutta, remain in the Dhāma, and go on chanting Kṛṣṇa Nāma. Why do you bother about that?"

But Guru Mahārāja he came with some other inspiration direct. He came to relieve the whole of the world, with that idea. He answered...

Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja told, "Kolikatta means Kalisthan, Kali."

Kali means - that you know from Bhāgavatam, Kali, this worst yuga, Kali personified, sin personified.

So Bābājī Mahārāja told, "Kolikatta is Kalisthan that is full of filth, a filthy place. The place of business, the place of exploitation, mutual robbing, all these things, nasty place. You avoid that."

But Guru Mahārāja answered, "By dint of your foot dust, I've got so much charm in your foot dust, by the dint of your foot dust I can conquer thousands and thousands of Kali. They won't be able to disturb my attention from your holy feet. By the power of your holy feet dust I can conquer the whole world. Please bless me in that line."

With this Guru Mahārāja made his attempt to preach. And in his conception, so powerful the principle of exploiting life seems to be so powerful capturing the whole humanity almost. All busy to survive at the cost of others. Survival of the fittest. Struggle. Everyone is making struggle to emulate his condition, a great competition, everyone wants to be king, to be monarch. "I'm monarch of all I survey." Everyone is attempting to become monarch. This idea, this principle, was seen to be very weak to the eyes of Guru Mahārāja, Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī.

He used to say that, "The cocks roam about with very elegant style as if they've got much strength in their leg, with such air." So he used to give example of that. "Murgī tyang. The strength in the leg of a cock, how much power it may contain? So the Kali, what power has it got? The present principle of civilisation, the all exploiting attempt, what is its strength? I can crush it. With a spark of Kṛṣṇa consciousness I can burn them to ashes." With this strength he came. "This present civilisation, what is at its back? How much strength it has got? I'd like to crush them wholesale by Kṛṣṇa consciousness, so much prospect, full of prospect, from all round prospect there. And what meagre prospect these worldly people have got to propose in the field, in the battle?" That was his idea. So totalitarian war against Kali, against this age, and the civilisation, including all conceptions of so called religious views. Maybe some partial representation of some goodness there, but in comparison with Kṛṣṇa consciousness what position they may hold? The wholesale solution of every life in its fullest stage is to be found only in Kṛṣṇa. Akhila-rasāmṛta-murtiḥ [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.142]. So sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ [Gītā, 18.66].

"Give up all conceptions of your duties and come to Me alone, and you'll not have to repent anything. More than what you want, satisfaction you'll get, your compensation will get, beyond your aspiration. It is only a mere false statement in the end, conclusion of Bhagavad-gītā? It is the real statement. Everything one side, I'm alone one side. And your interest, very best represented coming to Me, giving up everything. The truth is such, absolute truth is such, absolute consideration is of such nature. You try to understand. Try to come in connection and you'll be able."

Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ, kṣīyante cāsya karmāṇi, [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.21 & 11.20.30] The wholesale treatment, the wholesale totalitarian transformation of everything. You're maladjusted there, and proper adjustment you will find.

...and that is possible, that is real liberation, and that is your best attainment. That is life. Die to live. That is proper life. And this is the life of abnormal life of robbery, everyone exploiting another. One body is to be maintained and so many bodies must be finished. Is this a life? Is this a model of life? At the cost of so many living friends I'm keeping up, I'm feeding myself. A most heinous form, most shameful, and sinful life. At the cost of the environment I can grow only. Hateful things.

So Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja his day of disappearance was this last ekādaśī, utthāna ekādaśī. Utthāna means the demigods, ordinary gods. Demons and gods, two classifications, good souls, bad souls. Beyond this body, after leaving this body, the jīva soul stay in mental body. At the death this flesh body drops down but the man in the mental system he is. And in a country also where they can live there is also government classification of. So god, the good people and the bad people, asura, deva. And they, those good people beyond this life they stay. They're supposed to live somewhere in the Sumeru, nearby. Where from geographical representation we hear the land of the Eskimo perhaps, Sumeru, where six months day, six months night. When the sun towards the north those six months day. And sun comes by the movement of earth towards the south that is their night, six months. So at night this dakṣiṇāyaṇa, that is when the sun going towards the south of the earth by their movement, mutual movement of the sun and the earth. Really it is by the movement of the earth, the sun seems to come to the south. And that is dakṣiṇāyaṇa, that is far off from the north pole. So that is night, that is the time of sleeping for the gods. So they're supposed to sleep in that mental body, and they rise this ekādaśī day, after four months deep sleep. Six months night, out of six months they sleep four months. So in the early morning they rise in this ekādaśī day it is supposed, so utthāna ekādaśī.

Śayanā ekādaśī _____ [?] in time it changes also. About the movement with the earth it begins, it is coming earlier.

One Bāl Gaṅgādhar Tilak, a political leader and scholar also of Maharashtra, when he was imprisoned for six years, from that prison he continued his search in the Upaniṣads, in Vedic doctrine. And he told that - and the present scholars they also accepted his theory. He told that when this particular verse of Veda was written, at that time this varadin [?] at the beginning of the increment in day, somewhere was in the month of March or so, Caitra, Phālguna. It was hinted there that the sun was going in his chariot, and suddenly the legs of his horses were broken. Something like this was written in a particular verse of the Vedas. And from there he concluded that the increment of the day over the night was begun at that time, in the month of Phālguna. Now it has come to the month of Pauṣa, in December, varadin [?] begins in December. But it was at that time when this śloka was composed it was - every hundred years one day is approaching. Every hundred years one day comes nearer. So, so many hundred years ago this verse was composed. At that time this varadin [?], the beginning of the bigger day, used to take place at that time, something in March, and now it's in December, it advanced so much.

So dakṣiṇāyaṇa [winter solstice], uttarāyaṇa [summer solstice]. Uttarāyaṇa is considered to be the day, and dakṣiṇāyaṇa the night. And according to that, utthāna ekādaśī. Śayanā ekādaśī _____ [?] This name has come from this theory. The utthāna ekādaśī day was the day of departure of Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. I composed a poem in the name of Gaurakiśora Bābājī Mahārāja.
[Śrīmad-Gaurakiśora-nāmaskāra-daśakam, ten verses]

Namo namo gaura-kiśora tubhyam. Guror guro me paramo gurus-tvaṁ. In this way. [from verse 1]

Mahāyaśo bhaktivinoda-bandho! mahāprabhu-prema-sudhaika-sindho! jagannātha-dayāspadendo! namo namo gaura [from verse 7]

Vivikta, vraja-dvandva-raho-vilāsī. Vivikta in Vṛndāvana. And then come to, kvacid vrajāraṇya vivikta-vāsī, hṛdi vraja-dvandva-raho-vilāsī bahir-virāgī tv-avadhūta-veṣī, namo namo gaura-kiśora tubhyam.

[verse 3]

kvacit punar gaura vanāntacārī, surāpagā-tīra-rajo-vihārī, pavitra-kaupiña-karaṅka-dhārī [verse 4]

sadā harer nāma mudā raṭantaṁ, gṛhe gṛhe mādhukarīm-aṭantam namanti devā api yaṁ mahāntaṁ, namo namo gaura-kiśora tubhyam.
[verse 5]

vihāya saṅgaṁ kuliyālayānāṁ, pragṛhya sevāṁ dayitānugasya vibhāsi māyāpura-mandirastho, namo namo gaura-kiśora tubhyam.

[verse 9]

This way tried to give a glimpse of his divine life in this poetry. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Today we're told the day of disappearance of Bhūgarbha Goswāmī and...

Badrināràyaṇa: Jagadīśa?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...and Kāśīnātha or someone.

Badrināràyaṇa: Jagadīśa?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Jagadīśa Paṇḍita?

Badrināràyaṇa: Yes, Jagadīśa Paṇḍita.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And? Bhūgarbha Goswāmī, and Kāśīnātha, I was told. Bhūgarbha Goswāmī was a friend of Lokanātha Goswāmī, the Gurudeva of Narottama. Came from the same place, and lived in Vṛndāvana together. A good Vaiṣṇava, revered, unassuming nature. And Kasīśvar Paṇḍita, he was Godbrother of Mahāprabhu, the disciple of Īśvara Purī.

When Īśvara Purī at the time of his disappearance he asked those two of his disciples, Govinda and Kasīśvar, "Go to Kṛṣṇa Caitanya and serve Him as long as you live."

So after the disappearance of Īśvara Purīpāda, both of them went to Purī and surrendered themselves to the divine feet of Mahāprabhu. Saying that, "This is the order of our Gurudeva that the rest of our life we shall like to be Your attendants."

Mahāprabhu showed some hesitation in the beginning. Guru seva haya manya avanatha [?]

"You are the servitor attendant of My Gurudeva. How can I engage you in My service? Rather, I shall have to respect you as My brother."

But they told, "Our Guru's order, we have come to you. What to do? You know best."

Then Mahāprabhu, though He knew everything He asked Sārvabhauma, "Sārvabhauma you have got much knowledge about the scripture. Now what to do? Generally the disciple of My Guru is My brother. I must show some respect to them. But Gurudeva has given some order, they say, that to engage them in My service. What should I do?"

Sārvabhauma told, "Guru ajna bhagavan [?] What he has ordered that must have preference."

Then what to do, He engaged Govinda in His direct service.

And Kasīśvar he came from a brāhmaṇa family, and he was very strong, and physically very strong. So when Mahāprabhu used to go to Jagannātha temple and there was much crowd, at that time Kasīśvar's duty was to go just in front of Mahāprabhu and to push the crowd on the outside and clear the way. We find his duty in that way.

And Govinda, twenty four hours attendant. Even when Mahāprabhu expressed His disgust with the environment. "Oh, you Govinda, let us go to Allanath. I won't stay here. They're coming and requesting Me unduly. I shall go to plead to the king for Gopīnātha Paṭṭanāyaka that the king may forgive his - he stole some money from his state...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...and they're all coming to Me. "Oh you ply to - in the, Ramānanda's brother is going to be harshly treated, cruelly treated by the crown. If You put a word to Pratāparudra, he's Your devotee, then they may be saved, released." They have come for these worldly affairs to Me. I should not stay here. Let us go to Allanath. Govinda you arrange bag and baggages. Let us go." In this way several times He's always taking Govinda as His personal attendant and using in that way.

And Rāmacandra Purī, one cruel critic, one day came, brother of Īśvara Purī, who advised his own Guru Mādhavendra Purī. "Why do you - you're wailing at the time of your death. You are that Brahman yourself. These pangs of separation for Kṛṣṇa, this is all tāma guṇa, śoka moha. You must leave this and you must think that 'I'm Brahman.'"

Then Mādhavendra Purī, "Be off from here, you māyāvādī fool. You do not know what is Kṛṣṇa. My misfortune that I can't see Kṛṣṇa. And you have come to advise me like a māyāvādī that I'm Brahman. Be off hence."

That Rāmacandra Purī, he came to Śrīkṣetra Purī, and one day came to visit Mahāprabhu's quarter and saw some ants are moving. "Oh, there must be some - at night there was some sweetmeat, so the ants are moving here. Then the sannyāsīs they have taken the robe of renunciation, and at night they're eating sweetmeats, eh? Horrible." And he remarked in that way and with angry mood he left the place.

"rātrāv atra aikṣavam āsīt, tena, pipīlikāḥ sañcaranti aho! viraktānāṁ sannyāsinām iyam indriya-lālaseti, [bruvann utthāya gataḥ."]

["Last night there was sugar candy here," he said. "Therefore ants are wandering about. Alas, this renounced sannyāsī is attached to such sense gratification!" After speaking in this way, he got up and left.]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 8.49]

"Who has taken the garb of a sannyāsī and they have got such temptation for the tongue. So many ants are moving here, so at night there must have been some sweetmeat. So at night privately He's taking sweetmeats here." Remarking in this way he fled away.

Then Mahāprabhu told, "Govinda, tell to the public only one paisa of Jagannātha prasāda from this time, no more I shall take. And you all go to the market and you beg your mādhukarī. And only one paisa worth prasādam of Jagannātha should come to Me and I shall take nothing more."

Then when this news reached the devotees they felt that a thunder on their head has happened. "One paisa only." At that time also Govinda was His attendant, and He had to ask even Govinda, "Go outside and beg your bread. Only one paisa. If you take more then you won't find Me here, I shall be away."

And another time Govinda says, "Advaita Ācārya and so many Bengali devotees have come, and so many mothers also have come. And they have brought many things preparing for Your taste. And they always ask me, 'Govinda, have you given my thing to Mahāprabhu?' 'Yes, yes, I shall give, I shall give.' In this way these great Vaiṣṇavas and I'm deceiving them by this word and that word. You are not touching anything. What will be my future? I'm always speaking lies to those Vaiṣṇavas."

Then Mahāprabhu, "Yes, take all what you have brought, take it to Me." And He began to swallow, and finishing, "Any more?"

"No, no more." Only this _____ [?] portion _____ [?]

"Yes, keep it. All finished?"

"Yes, finished."

"Yes, now you go and say to every Vaiṣṇava that I have taken their things."

In the confidential and personal service rendered by Govinda to his Godbrother. And then one Kasīśvar.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. So many Vaiṣṇava representing the peculiar type of serving tendency personified. Different type of serving tendency personified in so many Vaiṣṇava. Vaicit, no end of that, in this way. God means, king means with paraphernalia. Singly the king cannot be conceived as king. As father, relative term, father means the son is there, husband means wife is there. So king means so many paraphernalia is there. So Kṛṣṇa means svarūpa śakti, akhila-rasāmṛta-murtiḥ, so many there. Kṛṣṇa not a single thing, a system that is representing the whole in the positive aspect, and indirectly in the negative aspect, both, direct, indirect. Kṛṣṇa. So Vaiṣṇava they're part and parcel of Kṛṣṇa, of svarūpa śakti. Without potency the possessor of potency cannot be conceived, both combined. Otherwise it would be nirviśeṣa, non differentiated Brahman if potency is drawn out. So prakṛti, puruṣa, the possessor of potency and the potency combined makes the thing one. The real side, and another misconceived side, aspect of reality. Māyā, svarūpa and māyā, āmnāya itarata, direct, indirect, both combined in the whole, advaya-jñāna.

vadanti tat tattva-vidas, tattvaṁ yaj jñānam advayam [brahmeti paramātmeti, bhagavān iti śabdyate

["Learned transcendentalists who know the Absolute Truth call this non dual substance Brahman, Paramātmā or Bhagavān."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.11]

The wholesale conception, all comprehensive conception of the reality of that constituent both parts, the main and the partials. Elimination, progress means elimination and acceptance. In this way we're told to go to Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead, representing all sorts of variegated rasa or ecstasy, ānandam, joy, or pleasure, whatever you may say. Our inner appeasement of inner hankering. Hṛdaye nābhya nujñāto.

[vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ sadbhir, nityam adveṣa-rāgibhiḥ
hṛdayenābhyanujñāto, yo dharmas taṁ nibhodhata]
[Manu-saṁhitā, 2.1]

The fullest satisfaction of our inner hankering heart, heart's hankering. Intellectualism is considered to be a failure in that search. Heart has been given the primary position to seek our satisfaction. This is devotion, and the object of such devotional inquiry is the highest search of Kṛṣṇa. Qualitatively, quantitatively, but the search of our heart has got its highest object in Kṛṣṇa, highest representation in Kṛṣṇa consciousness. We're to understand that and try how to go, reach there. Search for Śrī Kṛṣṇa, kṛṣṇānusandhāna. Brahma-jijñāsā, in Vedānta, the general question what should be normal in our position, and that is brahma-jijñāsā. Who am I, where am I, whose am I? What is the conception of the environment? Where am I? Athāto brahma-jijñāsā. From what everything has come? And which is who can maintain its existence by His influence, and at the time of dissolution where there enter.

yat prayanty abhiṣamviśanti, tad brahma tad vijijñāsa

So we cannot deny our concern with the whole environment. Try to understand you, who are you, what is your function, what is your goal. Our intellect wants these answered. This is brahma-jijñāsā. And that came in Bhāgavatam as kṛṣṇānusandhāna, search the friend of your heart, Who can fulfil your heart's demand. And not only the intellectual explanation of the environment, but your heart's fullest satisfaction, the object of your future life, your prospect. Not only the present calculation of the present environment and to calculate your position, but what is your future, what is about your prospect. That should have more importance. And you are to begin search for Kṛṣṇa for your future want, to satisfy your want. In other words your fulfilment. In another word, home, you're to search for your home, your natural residence. Now you're in abnormal position, in a foreign land you are cast aside, you feel uncomfortable every step. Home comfort we're told, quite comfortable you'll be without any anxiety. That is a sort of fulfilment where you can have. That is in the feet of Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

So Bhāgavatam and Mahāprabhu asked us to go on with search for Kṛṣṇa, your friend, your Master, your Lord, your friend, your Lord, search for Him. This is the object of your life, and nothing else. All your energy should be utilised only for this purpose. Search the Lord of your heart Who can satisfy you from all respects you will have no wants.

[andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās, te 'pīśa-tantryām uru-dāmni baddhāḥ]

[Prahlāda Mahārāja says: "Persons who are strongly entrapped by the consciousness of enjoying material life, and who have therefore accepted as their leader or guru a similar blind man attached to external sense objects, cannot understand that the goal of life is to return home, back to Godhead, and engage in the service of Lord Viṣṇu. As blind men guided by another blind man miss the right path and fall into a ditch, materially attached men led by another materially attached man are bound by the ropes of fruitive labour, which are made of very strong cords, and they continue again and again in materialistic life, suffering the threefold miseries."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.31]

Give up your mania of attraction of the cover of things. Dive deep into reality and you'll find your deep representation can only find satisfaction with the deep representation of the outside, with inner. Your inner self can only be satisfied with the inner environment of what you can experience and see. There is Kṛṣṇa.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Here I stop today.

vāñchā-kalpatarubhyaś ca kṛpā-sindhubhya eva ca
[patitānāṁ pāvanebhyo vaiṣṇavebhyo namo namaḥ]

[I offer my respectful obeisances unto all the Vaiṣṇava devotees of the Lord. They are just like desire trees who can fulfil the desires of everyone, and they are full of compassion for the fallen conditioned souls.]

Devotee: Jaya Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda Paramahaṁsa Parivrājakācārya His Divine Grace Śrīla Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!

Devotees: Jaya!

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Prabhupāda kī jaya!

...

[17:55 - 21:32 unclear]

...everything was dedicated for the service of Kṛṣṇa. He's all conscious unit.

So can you allow your wife to serve another gentleman? Will she allow? She will allow yourself in her heart to be worshipped and won't accept any other.

So this all meant for Kṛṣṇa conciousness, and not for Subramanya consciousness or any other consciousness. Only reserved, everything here all dedicated exclusively to Kṛṣṇa, and no other gods.

Ha, ha, ha, ha. Then of course he was charmed that we have such conception.

We're not materialist, everything is conscious and spiritual, and no spirit allows when exclusively dedicated to his or her Lord. Ha, ha. So we're of that type.

Then of course he had to go back. "Yes, if what you say it is such."

Yes it is such. Every flower born here only to satisfy Kṛṣṇa-Rādhārāṇī. And They'll curse us if we try to utilise them for the service of any other, they're all meant for this. They'll curse us.

So here also trespassers come, lack flower or this or that, sometimes for medicinal purposes also come to take some creature. But I pain at my heart. Why? They're all meant for the service of Kṛṣṇa. These people for their medicinal purpose they're taking, removing something. I ask them, go to Mahāprabhu, take His permission, and then take away. Whatever necessary that it cannot be avoided, then I say go get His permission there, go to the temple, pray for His permission.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Once I heard in the Yoga-pīṭha, that is the appearance place of Mahāprabhu, there was one Kadamba bikya [?] and that new flower came. Prabhupāda is coming out of Dhāma going to Calcutta or so. Some devotee saw that new flower has come in this Kadamba bikya [?] not given to Prabhupāda, so he took a few flowers and ran towards the car of Prabhupāda and offered.

"What is this?"

"A new flower in Yoga-pīṭha temple tree, new come, so we have come to show you first, and then we shall give to Mahāprabhu."

"Oh, you have taken from, then go and show it to Mahāprabhu, take His permission, and then take to me. I'm going away. If when I was there you could give it to my hand then I can show Him and take to Him. But I'm going away. Now go and show Him and then take it to me. So take His permission. That is prasāda, anugraha, dedicated. To show to him means to dedicate, then the prasāda take to me."

īśāvāsyam idaṁ sarvaṁ, yat kiñca jagatyāṁ jagat tena tyaktena bhuñjīthā, mā gṛdhaḥ kasya svid dhanam

["Everything animate or inanimate that is within the universe is controlled and owned by the Lord. One should therefore accept only those things necessary for himself, which are set aside as his quota, and one should not accept other things, knowing well to whom they belong."] [Śrī Īśopaniṣad, 1]

This is the key to our life. Tena tyaktena. After offering Him, then you use it.

yajña-śiṣṭāśinaḥ santo, mucyante sarvva-kilbiṣaiḥ bhuñjate te tv aghaṁ pāpā, ye pacanty ātma-kāraṇāt

["Saintly persons who partake of the remnants of sacrifice become liberated from all the sins arising from the five kinds of violence to living beings. But those who cook for their own consumption, those sinners eat only sin."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.13]

Whenever you'll dedicate anything to your own self you commit sin, that is you create disharmony into the environment. But if you offer to the centre, yajña, for Viṣṇu, and then you use it stays, the harmony, the prestige. Everything they want to be - they're born, they're created to serve Kṛṣṇa. For Him, For Himself, everything. So anything and everything you dedicate to Him and then you can take the prasāda remaining. Īśāvāsyam idaṁ sarvaṁ. Everywhere everything is in possession of the Supreme Entity, everything belongs to Him. Īśāvāsyam idaṁ sarvaṁ. Tena tyaktena bhuñjīthā. Whatever you need, tena tyaktena, after offering, sanctioned by Him, then you take.

All right, no disturbance into the law and order. The law and order of the whole, that should be kept intact. You all live as loyal subjects, not a rebel, physically or even mentally. Thought, word and deed, you must be a loyal subject in this kingdom of the Lord. That is what is required of us, and then there's peace and harmony, and no reaction. Otherwise there'll be reaction and you'll have to suffer for that.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari.

So you did not see that temporary office opened in Ulṭā Ḍāṅgā station?

Devotee: _____ [?] We could not go there, because when we were going down there...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ulṭā Ḍāṅgā _____ [?] just near Ulṭā Ḍāṅgā station. If you could visit they would have been encouraged. Dhīra Kṛṣṇa Mahārāja for half an hour stayed there.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Then, Lalitā Charan?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He's going to take prasādam and then leave.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And these two, Vidagdha Prabhu and...

Badrinārāyaṇa: _____ [?] all eat together.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Altogether, three, they're also taking prasādam, hmm?

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Arrange. They'll also go.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. In this specific place in the world is where Goddess Kālī is most worshipped. And it seems to me that nowhere in the world people are smashed so hard by Goddess Kālī than in Calcutta.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Calcutta, everywhere in Bengal. Bengal is especially selected for Kālī worshipping, the tantra is there. They believe to satisfy their direct controller, the prison superintendent. In Brahma-saṁhitā [5.44] Devī [Durgā] is described as the mistress controller of the whole of this brahmāṇḍa, that is prison house, where those that lived irregular life they're put into prison. Do not follow Īśāvāsyam, or,

yajñārthāt karmaṇo 'nyatra, loko 'yaṁ [karma-bandhanaḥ
tad-artham karma kaunteya, mukta-saṅgaḥ samācara]

["Selfless duty performed as an offering to the Supreme Lord is called yajña, or sacrifice. O Arjuna, all action performed for any other purpose is the cause of bondage in this world of repeated birth and death. Therefore, remaining unattached to the fruits of action, perform all your duties in the spirit of such sacrifice. Such action is the means of entering the path of devotion, and with the awakening of true perception of the Lord, it will enable you to attain to pure, unalloyed devotion, free from all material qualities (nirguṇa- bhakti)."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.9]

They had no recognition of the final authority, and thinks themselves all. 'We're separately independent spirit, all Śiva.' They're put into prison of māyā, that is, māyā means misconception. Māyā Devī who rules over them, and they want to satisfy the Goddess who controls this prison house. "Release us." Then after thereby their punishment may be little liberal and less, they're given chance to go up. And sometimes those that are very sincere, She releases them and shows the path. "Go, up to Nārāyaṇa, go."

As in Bṛhat-Bhāgavatāmṛta you may see, Gopa Kumara he was worshipping Kamakaka [?] mantra, Śacī mantra, and because he was very sincere, so Kamaksa Devī showed the way towards higher direction. But generally who are insincere, and gives some offering and wants some advantage in return, they're dealt always very harshly.

Devotee: It seems like in Calcutta they're not very sincere Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gets liberation of a particular type, but not advised that take the worship of Nārāyaṇa and then can go up. Their seed even becomes Śiva, attains the position of Śiva, the master of the material potency. But remains in connection with the material potency, and gradually again addicted, and again enters.

ye 'nye 'ravindākṣa vimukta-māninas, tvayi asta-bhāvād aviśuddha-buddhayaḥ
[āruhya kṛcchreṇa paraṁ padaṁ tataḥ, patanty adho 'nādṛta-yuṣmad-aṅghrayaḥ]

(Someone may say that aside from Vaiṣṇavas, who always seek shelter at the Lord's lotus feet, there are those who are not Vaiṣṇavas but who have accepted different processes for attaining salvation. What happens to them? In answer to this question, Lord Brahmā and the other demigods said:)

["O lotus-eyed Lord, although non-devotees who accept severe austerities and penances to achieve the highest position may think themselves liberated, their intelligence is impure. Although they may rise to the level of impersonal Brahman realisation, they fall down from their position of imagined superiority because they neglect to worship Your lotus feet."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.2.32]

Cannot secure any visa, but passport they get, but after securing passport they're to move in the boundary line. And then, if no visa they'll have to enter here again. That is the general case. But in special case Māyā Devī recommends for the visa. "You do in this way and then you'll get visa, and then you'll go up to Vaikuṇṭha. Otherwise you may come to the last boundary of this position, and what to do, you'll have to enter again in the compound." That is the case.

So they that have got faith some of them think that śakti, potency, is above everything, and the consciousness is under potency. Potency is the highest existence, and potency produces consciousness. In other words this fossil father-ism. Who are out and out śakta, their conception is this, that potency and consciousness, puruṣa, prakṛti. Puruṣa means consciousness, enjoyer. Prakṛti means energy. Energy in course of its evolution it produces consciousness.

And consciousness of three kinds, Brahmā, Viṣṇu, Śiva. Brahmā with rāja guṇa, the spirit of creation. And Viṣṇu the sātya guṇa, that is the nature of sustenance. And Rudra the tāma guṇa, that is dissolution. Evolution, dissolution, and in meantime the sustenance with Viṣṇu. Brahmā, Viṣṇu, Maheśvara. Three guṇa, material qualification is produced by the potency.

So devoid of consciousness if any potency can be thought to be the ultimate, it can be only material potency, that is fossil. The fossil, that is the Darwin theory. The śakta, they know or know not, admit or may not admit that, but the orthodox śakta they're followers of Darwin. 'The matter produces mind.'

And this Vedānta, Veda, that is just opposite. "No, the consciousness produces everything, subjective evolution." And there, they have got faith, 'objective evolution,' prakṛti produces everything. First three guṇas, sātya, rāja, tāma. And sātya represented by Viṣṇu, rāja by Brahmā, and tāma by Śiva. And then the whole creation comes into existence, that is their theory. And at heart those that are Vaiṣṇava, sincere, they also have recognition of the prakṛti but otherwise. "You withdraw mother and give me real vision what is what I can see and I can go on accordingly." So that type of progress has been shown in Bṛhat- Bhāgavatāmṛta by Sanātana Goswāmī.

[pārtha naiveha nāmutra, vināśas tasya vidyate] na hi kalyāṇa-kṛt kaścid, durgatiṁ tāta gacchati

["O Arjuna, son of Kuntī, the unsuccessful yogī does not suffer ruination either in this life or the next. He is not deprived of the pleasures of the heavenly planetary systems in this universe, nor is he denied the chance to personally see the Supersoul in the divine realm. This is so, O dear

one, because a person who performs virtuous actions never becomes ill-fated."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 6.40]

Those sincere at heart they also receive real help from this jail superintendent. The authority of the prison house guides them properly. 'They're good prisoners, anyhow they've come within this prison house, but they're good men. They should be guided well that they may go and live well in the family outside, with his family outside.'

So śakta. And Buddhists are also of this śakta type. They also believe in force, in matter, but not eternal conscious unit. With the dissolution, the Cārvāka, Epicurus, aspect of thinking is, 'Only with the combination of some material substance the consciousness has been produced. With the dissolution of the body nothing remains.' This is the lowest kind of atheist, or highest kind as you say.

And Buddhists are moderate materialists. They say, "With the subtle combination of different things mind has been produced. And according to the karma they get physical - their attraction, their objects, they attain physical body. And they have transmigration. In the physical world they're getting many bodies according to their own karma, according to mind."

So with the dissolution of the body the jīva soul, the jīva, does not end, as the Epicurus or the Cārvāka school thinks. 'But with the dissolution of the mind everything disappears, nothing remains.' This is also a type of atheist. Atheist means 'soul is mortal.' Socrates told 'soul is immortal' but these fellows they say 'soul is mortal.' Some say 'with the dissolution of this physical body nothing remains as soul.' And Buddhist school, 'with the dissolution of the mental body nothing remains as soul.'

And the Śaṅkara, one step further. Śaṅkara says, "There is already a light there, and that light is focused here and it seems to be like a soul. Just as in the glass the sun or moon is reflected. The moon is there, it is reflected in the glass. Dissolve the glass - no moon here. So all the jīva, not different soul, but only one soul, like a moon on the sky. And in so many glasses so many reflections are considered as different souls." This is Śaṅkara.

And the Buddists, "No moon, no soul. Only a dissolution of the mind means dissolution of the soul."

And the Cārvāka, the lowest class, "With the dissolution of the body nothing remains."

So three sections of atheists according to Vaiṣṇava. They're all considered as atheist because they do not believe in the eternal existence of soul, in the immortality of the soul. But when soul is immortal it is considered, and God is there. They're properly theist, and there is also classification amongst them, according to the future conception of the prospect and environment there are differences. This Christianity, Islam, they have got faith in eternal existence of soul, and also God. But their conception of God and soul and the world is of different type.

83.11.22.B_83.11.23.A

Jagadisa: Mahārāja. May I ask you a question? I must say I'm very young, initiated only two years, but I have some experience.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who is he?

Devotee: He's my disciple Guru Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is his name?

Devotee: Jagadisa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Jagadisa. What do you say?

Jagadisa: Yes, my experience before being initiated and to be dedicated to service I was a psychologist. I made a lot of research about cultural shock and management development etc. I saw that many case in some experience the problems that the Hare Kṛṣṇa movement is doing it doesn't follow very scientifically a relative aspect. In other words sometimes they're very empirical, and sometimes they follow what Śrīla Prabhupāda did for certain time, place, and circumstance. But they're not attached to the new condition...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So you come nearer. What does he say?

Devotee: What he wants to say Guru Mahārāja is that, these big American and western companies, when they go to some place, like for example in south America, they want to introduce a new product. So they make a big study of the place, the ethnic type of people and everything, and then they do the propaganda. And they're very successful in changing peoples minds. So what he wants to say is that we should also utilise these techniques and things and try to bring people Kṛṣṇa consciousness, and try to introduce Kṛṣṇa consciousness, utilising these modern methods, the way these big companies study the character of the people. And they more or less like they manage the situation.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: There should be some limits, how much we shall indulge to create favourable environment, how much money we should spare to create the favourable environment of the business. If I spare whole of the money to create the favourable environment then no capital to take the things for the sale. So ānukūlyasya saṅkalpa, we should create favourable circumstances. But there should be proportion in the energy that how much we can spare for creating favourable environment, and how much for dealing with the articles. Ānukūlyasya saṅkalpaḥ, prātikūlya-vivarjjanam [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 22.100]

Do you understand?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So it is also that a boy may be given some sweetmeat to get his sympathy and then to make him hear. As Haridāsa Ṭhākura he used to distribute some sweetmeat to the boy and then he asked him "Chant Hare Kṛṣṇa, Hare Kṛṣṇa."

But some are of opinion that some intoxication may be dealt, and we should also take some intoxication, because the people they love intoxication. So if we go in that much in that way then we'll be finished.

Am I clear, no?

Devotee: Yes, for me it's clear.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then you make him understand. That what will be favourable, that is a proportion. So much we go in advance for the creation of the field, and then energy must be saved for dealing with the articles, the proportion. But if whole energy is spent only to create the ground and nothing to purchase the thing and to sell there then I'm bankrupt.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Always try to keep connection with me by letters.

Christian missionaries, they're also taking that sort of temperament. They're going and they're attending the people, making hospital, then education institution, and helping in many ways. Then attracting their mind and then they say, "Come to worship Jesus."

Ramakrishna Mission is also of similar type. They also do some service to the people and attract their mind and sympathy, and then what they have got to say they say, like that.

But we're generally concerned as much as possible to utilise our energy for the real cause. And we're to spend as less as possible to create the environment.

With the simple - when Swāmī Mahārāja approached first in America, what energy he had to create a field favourable to him? Nothing. Empty handed. His own posture, gesture, nature, simplicity, and a few books. He began his work with karatālas in a park - "Gaura-Nityānanda, Hare Kṛṣṇa," with karatālas he began his life and a few books by his side.

Acyutānanda told me, "We were the first batch to approach him. Then we took him as one of so many hippies, he's also a hippy. He's sounding karatālas and Hare Kṛṣṇa and doing. And that śikhā, and the tilaka, and simple dress, a kind of hippy has come. Then when we approached a little closely then he gave one book to me, the Bhagavad-gītā. I saw, 'Oh, he's not a hippy. This is his book." Acyutānanda told, "My father he was fond of reading Gītā, but that Gītā was of Śaṅkara school. I was not much satisfied. But here in his Gītā I find that Lord is personal. That attracted me." Acyutānanda he told me. "Then I connected some friends, "He's not a hippy, he's a learned man. You see his books. He has got some deep purpose for which he has come. With some friends I connected and came to him and put ourselves at his disposal. He told 'he has come for such and such purpose.' Then we tried to help him. We rented some room, and took him there. In this way that was begun."

The capital is not always positive in the sense of this material world. But some other spiritual capital there may be, and when that comes to our help then of course a big success we can get. Still, in ordinary sense we're to spend something to create favourable environment, and then to go on with our business. But there must be a proportion, how much we shall advance.

Generally an educated man when he's coaching a child he'll have to come down to the level of the child and then to speak with him, then gradually he'll take him up. So in this way we're to do something, but there will be some limit.

Jayatīrtha Mahārāja, one of the disciples of Jayatīrtha Mahārāja, from where he has written, quoted a śloka from Bhagavad-gītā?

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

[saktāḥ karmaṇy avidvāṁso, yathā kurvanti bhārata]
kuryād vidvāṁs tathāsaktaś, cikīrṣur loka-saṅgraham

["O Arjuna, as ignorant, attached persons work, the wise must also work, but without attachment, in order to protect the svadharma or religious principles of those who are competent to follow the path of action. The difference is not in the actions of these two classes of men, but in their respective attitudes of attachment and indifference."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.25]

Loka-saṅgraha, that is to capture the attention of the ordinary people, a man should imitate some of his activity. And then he may be allowed to mix with them freely and then he can draw them up. Karmaṇy avidvāṁso. Cikīrṣur loka-saṅgraham. Some disciple of Jayatīrtha Mahārāja he has given that. "We're publishing Bhagavad-gītā and this śloka supports us. The people are intoxicated so we also take intoxication and mix with them, get facility, and then we draw them up." That is his argument.

So, in Bhagavad-gītā, in other places it is given, chāstraṁ pramāṇaṁ te [Bhagavad-gītā, 16.24]. What the specialists of the scriptures they have given the standard, how much we should approach to the negative side to take them, to draw them towards positive. There is some limit.

yad yad ācarati śreṣṭhas, tad tad evetaro janaḥ [sa yat pramāṇaṁ kurute, lokas tad anuvartate]

And Śrīmad-Bhāgavata and many other śāstra it is said that never you lower your standard by mixing with those intoxication, this kalisthan, dyūtaṁ pānaṁ striyaḥ sūnā [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.17.38-41]. This gambling, pānaṁ, this intoxication, and unlawful connection with the men and women, and sūnā, and slaughtering, killing of animals. We must keep ourselves aloof from four such commitments.

So do you think that it's going to answer his question?

Devotee: Yes.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All right, a proportion there should be, that how much capital I have got, and how much I can go down to take one. One is drowning in the water. I should like to take him up. But how much I shall take risk to take him my mission may be successful. If carelessly I also jump and both will die, drown. But that is not laudable. Making my position safe if I can take the risk and take him up then I'm also saved and he'll also be saved, otherwise both will have to drown.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Generally that depends upon the personality, how much risk one can take, the rescuer, his power, his intelligence, his capacity, it depends on him.

Haridāsa Ṭhākura was there, Mahāprabhu's parṣada, he was in a secluded place, he was chanting the Name. Then one zamīndār of a very villeint [?], he anyhow wanted to dissuade Haridāsa Ṭhākura.

"That he's a Mohammedan born man, and he has become so much sādhu, all-taking His Name, and showing devotion to Him." He could not tolerate, he designed that his character must be spoiled. So he sent some prostitute and he told the prostitute, "I shall reward you, give you immense money if you can entice that man."

So that beautiful lady she approached Haridāsa Ṭhākura and tried to draw his attention towards her.

Haridāsa Ṭhākura, he was a man of such high type, she did not disturb him. "Yes, I shall fulfil your request, you stay here. I'm engaged in taking the Name of the Lord for one crore every month, so few remaining. When I shall finish it then I shall fulfil your object. You stay and hear."

The lady went back when day came, and the zamīndār he asked her, "How far you have made progress?"

"He has said that only three days remaining to fulfil his Hari Nāma and then he will attend me."

"All right, try."

Then the next night also she went and the whole night she heard the Hari Nāma.

Then in the morning also he had to tell, "I'm not yet finished. I thought it would be finished today but not yet finished. It will be finished tomorrow. You come."

Then the third night also she came and she was waiting, hearing the Name. And at the end her mind was changed. "What have I done? I have come to mislead this real sādhu." Hearing the Name of the Lord, wholesale change came in her mind.

And Haridāsa Ṭhākura told, "My number is finished. Now I'm free to satisfy. What do you want?"

"I want to become your disciple. I want to get Hari Nāma from you. You are my Gurudeva."

Haridāsa Ṭhākura told, "Yes, take Hari Nāma. And I knew that you'll be converted within three days, so I asked you to attend, that when my Nāma yajña will be finished I shall fulfil your desire. I could guess that three nights if you attend your heart will be changed, and I shall fulfil your desire, I'm keeping my promise. I'm giving Hari Nāma to you. Otherwise I would have fled the first day, when you approached me I would have fled from here. But I did not do, I could guess that after three nights hearing you'll be converted and you'll beg fulfilment of your spiritual life. So I stayed here for three nights. And now get yourself prepared."

So that prostitute became a good devotee. So much so, so many persons used to come to her. "Oh, how the prostitute is converted within three nights by that great mahātmā."

And Haridāsa Ṭhākura fled from that place. "That now the people will come to know how I converted that notable prostitute." So many people will come to flock before him, around him, so he fled from that place. And that cottage was left to that lady. "You take your seat here, and put a tulasī on the front, and go on taking the Name of Kṛṣṇa."

So it was possible for Haridāsa Ṭhākura to stay there three nights and to convert her. But if ordinary man goes to take such risk he'll be finished. So according to the capacity what will be favourable or unfavourable that needs to be decided. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi. Nitāi.

...right or wrong, because it is the most natural fundamental flow. For Itself, For Himself. Only He has right, the real right He has got, over anything and everything. The widest circle ever known to the world. Ha, ha. Beauty, charm, does not care for any, even may not care for justice, what to say to other things. It is unthinkable that anything fair can exist over justice, unthinkable, inconceivable. "That justice can be condemned, what is this? It is impossible. Justice is justice. How can that be challenged?"

But there is a plane of challenge. Justice becomes thief to enter into that domain, justice. Two parties, where justice you need two parties, a question of right and wrong, and a law book you must have. Administration, book of law, two or more parties, then you can have your chair.

But no, no room for those things here. Autocracy the Beauty, Autocracy is Absolute Good, what to speak. You have come to occupy the chair of justice, do you know what is Absolute Good? What is Absolute Good which is applicable everywhere? Not dependent on the decision of your tiny brain. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. Really it is a very wonderful thing, and that is Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇaloka, Kṛṣṇa consciousness is that. Despotism, that is beauty. Ha, ha, ha, ha. Absolute Good is such that its despotism is all good. How to be in connection with that thing, that plane, where also the cruelty is also love. Cruelty, love, all of same level, viraha, milan, justice, injustice, equal there. _____ [?] What is in Bengali _____ [?] to chastise, stricture, that is also desirable. One desire, let him give some stricture to me. Very sweet.
_____ [?] Such is the position.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The domain is such, if any loving, affectionate devotee, speaks something evil against him, Kṛṣṇa is so much satisfied the hymn in the scriptures cannot come nearby. Such is the domain, inconceivable, where speech means song, movement means dancing. The land means touchstone, something like that. Then trees and creepers they're such benevolent dealers, donors. Wherever one will make hostels, whatever one will ask it will come from the tree and creeper. They're to satisfy the guest. The creepers and trees they're also host there, they want to satisfy the guest. It has been described in Bramha-saṁhitā [5.56].

Inconceivable, acintya, at least let us think like that. To attain that position of course very, very inconceivable. But if we can think that there may be such plane of life, the Vaiṣṇavas of higher type they live there, they do not want anything.

So the environment is lavishly praying for them, "No, receive something. You are my guest, you take something."

"No, no, no. We do not want anything. I'm already satisfied."

So they compete there in such way. "No, no. You'll have to take."

"No, no. Forgive me. I don't want anything. I'm charmed with the very look, very touch of the land. All my thirst removed. What atmosphere I have come within?" In this way.

Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. All illusion, so we have nothing to lose. Let us at least have good dream. It is not waste of time and energy to think of such high ideal. What are we engaged in? What is reality with us? The reality in our present stage of knowledge, what value does it carry?

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Gaurāṅga came with such news, such prospect to us, approached. "Oh you soul you have got such prospect in your life." Nityānanda Prabhu begged from door to door with appeal. Appealing earnestly. "Your prospect is so high."

This is Navadwīpa Dhāma. Only we're to pierce through the surface and to dive deep within the inner Navadwīpa, the Navadwīpa of Gaura-Nitāi. Externally we may find Jagāi-Mādhāi, and Kṛṣṇa-nanda, so many, Chānd Kāzī, etc. But if we dive a little deep we shall find what is there, what is here. The gift of this Navadwīpa Dhāma, take to the market and all mercantile will be of less value, charming, no charm. All will be like trash, in comparison everything will seem to be trash. The gift of Navadwīpa is so high level. Even Vṛndāvana won't be able to stand in competition. But we're preaching about Vṛndāvana, but Vṛndāvana plus something. If we close the door then what valuation you'll have?

Nityānanda Prabhu He's dragging Baladeva from the throne. Śacī Devī had the dream. "I had a dream that Kṛṣṇa and Balarāma on the throne, and Nityānanda He's catching hold of Balarāma He's drawing Him. 'Your age is finished. Now the age of My Lord Gaurāṅga has come. You must come out, come down from the throne."

"In this age of Kali, if no canvasser, then what is the value of the property? A canvasser to so many. You are all confined in a room and You are eating lavishly. Confined in Vṛndāvana, and Our Vṛndāvana We're throwing the length and breadth of the world." That Vṛndāvana dāsa says. "And there, Rādhā-Govinda separate, and here combined, more power. Ha, ha, ha. Combined. And They have made Their mind to loot. Take as much wealth as you can. Combined We're giving it to you all here, combined. Impossible."

Kaivalyaṁ narakāyate. If one can get the taste of the gift of the dish that is distributed in Navadwīpa, one can have a slight taste of that dish, then kaivalyaṁ narakāyate, that permanent liberation, emancipation, that will seem to him just like hell. Kaivalyaṁ, which has been so much praised, admired in so many śāstra, that kaivalya mukti, eternal emancipation from this exploiting world - world of exploitation. Trouble is the tendency to exploit, that is the trouble found out by the experts of those tastes. What is the trouble? The exploiting tendency, that forces us to connect with the environment, and we're to suffer severely from the reaction. So how to successfully get out of the action reaction problem? That is the problem of the whole scholars of the previous age.

So here Prabodhānanda Sarasvatī, a disciple of Mahāprabhu, who came from the south, who was uncle of Gopāla Bhaṭṭa Goswāmī - Kaivalyaṁ narakāyate. "Oh, you talk so much of we're kaivalya, that we'll never have any possibility of coming into connection with the exploiting tendency, what of reaction. That is like a hell to us, to those that come to Śrī Gaurāṅga Deva's lotus feet.

Tridaśapūrākāśa-puṣpāyate. Sometimes you talk of so much of the heaven. That is just like, ākāśa- puṣpa means that...

Devotee: Flower in the air?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Some illusory conception that flower may be produced by the sky. That is the most negligible type of imagination, concoction, your heaven. Your heaven is just flower in the sky. That is impossible something. Kaivalyaṁ narakāyate tridaśapūrākāśa-puṣpāyate.

And in reaction the poison is coming and making you to suffer. But don't be afraid. Protkhāta-daṁṣṭrāyate. Their venomous teeth have been taken out. From the serpent, the teeth of their venom has been removed. The indriya will play like that, all your senses will play like so many serpents whose teeth of venom has been removed. So no apprehension from them.

Viśvaṁ pūrṇa-sukhāyate. Whatever you will see or hear or touch, the whole environment will only carry waves of happiness to you. Every incident will carry some good news to you. All the waves from outside they will carry only good news to you. Viśvaṁ pūrṇa-sukhāyate.

Vidhi-mahendrādiś ca kīṭāyate. And are you afraid of the Brahmā the creator, the Mahādeva the wholesale destroyer of the world? Are you afraid of them? They will be to you just like an insect or worm. Their power, their authority against you will not be of any use. Ha, ha. They'll be just like a worm to you. Your position will be unassailable if you get yat kāruṇya-kaṭākṣa-vaibhava, if you get kāruṇya-kaṭākṣa- vaibhava. Mahāprabhu is very benevolent, magnanimous. His kaṭākṣa means His glance, and only a ray of that glance if you get, if you can achieve, a point of ray of the glance of that magnanimous Lord Gaurāṅga, then you'll get such position in the world.

This is described by Prabodhānanda Sarasvatī Prabhu. Gaurāṅga is such, what to speak, no trouble all joy, all ecstatic joy, and no problem. And the dayā, His mercy, is of such type. All difficulties will be far, far away, won't be able to touch you, you'll be in the throne of ecstatic joy. No room for any complaint, you're in the normal position. All more or less suffering from abnormal stage, influence of abnormal stage. How can they venture to approach you? You're in the so high degree of normality, normal existence to the extreme you have attained. So more or less all outside is abnormal. How can they venture to approach against you? You're quite in the highest, normal position. You have got full surrendering spirit into Kṛṣṇa consciousness, Rādhā-Govinda, Mahāprabhu. Need not care for anything in this world, no apprehension. Such is the thing we're to conceive and we're to have. And what value, what price we have secured, how much attention we can collect to go? What passage we have collected to go to that land? Only visa means grace of that land. How much grace I have collected from the persons that come from there to here? Collected some grace, favour, their favour, of the agents of the land. Sādhu kṛpa, sādhu saṅga, bhakta kṛpa

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...of that land, and it must have to come from there. Anyhow it must have to come from that plane, to here. And that will be accumulated, and with the help of that we'll be led there. So sādhu saṅga, śāstra saṅga. All right reserved. So Kṛṣṇa bhakta, that is our solace, our consolation. Anyhow if we meet them, to satisfy them, through them to know how to satisfy Kṛṣṇa, Vṛndāvana, Rādhārāṇī, all these things, that land, that Navadwīpa. Navadwīpa also in that layer Navadwīpa and Vṛndāvana. One within the party, another distribution to the outside. Some are more addicted towards the internal dealings, and some are more addicted when it's being distributed to the public - that is Navadwīpa. And there is another group who bears same sympathy, common sympathy to this side and that side also.

Just as in Vṛndāvana also, three kinds. One group especially interested to Kṛṣṇa, another to Rādhārāṇī, and there's a particular group who keeps the balance, this side, that side, both. Lalitā with her maids, she exclusively supports Rādhārāṇī, she does not like to hear anything right or wrong. Whatever the Rādhārāṇī's side she must hold up under any condition. No rhyme or reason she will care to listen. There are others also towards, they're always supporting Kṛṣṇa in all sorts of dealings. And there are mediators also. Viśākhā inclined towards holding middle position, doing some sort of justice to Kṛṣṇa, partially. In this way Yogamāyā, the potency of Baladeva, They're arranging the līlā of Kṛṣṇa. We're told. And if we're attracted by the internal charm of such things, then gradually we may hope to enter into that plane one day in future. Ruci, taste, laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ.

tatra laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ, janma-koṭi-sukṛtair na labhyate]

["Pure devotional service to Kṛṣṇa cannot be obtained by performing pious activities even for millions of births. It can be purchased only by paying one price: intense eagerness. Wherever it is available, one must purchase it immediately."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.70]

The only passage money is our sincere inclination, heart's natural flow, taste, that is the passage money, nothing else, our sincere earnestness. Sincere earnestness to get that thing, that is the only price we're to pay, then entrance is easy there. Laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ, janma-koṭi-sukṛtair na labhyate. Not that your good deeds that you have acquired in your previous innumerable births, that's not to be accountable. Only recognition of the sincere earnestness within you. That is they want you, not anything of your resources. The very gist of your ego they want, that is their demand. And that plane is built up with that material, the most sincere part of the heart. That is the material by which that domain has been created, if we're to say like that. It is eternal, but it's with that substance. So back to home means whose home? The home of your eternal, inner self, home is there. Outwardly, karma strestha ajnana _____ [?] Externally by our so many demands of the senses we're being carried forcibly to this direction, that direction, they're dragging us there. But we're to find out our innermost existence, and that is the member of Vṛndāvana. Heart of the heart.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

The commodities there of such type. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. The rasa līlā is finished recently, rasa, ecstasy, joy. But what do you understand about rasa, sweetness? Rasa, sweetness, rasa, beauty for the eye, sweetness for the tongue, in this way, softness for the touch. But all common, you may say anything, sweetness, beauty, rasa, rājūjya. And extensively that is dealt with. Just as in a festival we make arrangement for lavish dishes, tasteful dishes lavishly in a festival. So also in the rasa in the common plane that rasa has been displayed by Kṛṣṇa. In a general way mādhurya rasa has been dealt with, rasa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

We're told, some hundred or two hundred years back, suddenly one afternoon there was some sound of flute of Ksna, some afternoon. A peculiar sweet sound rang. And we're told, we do not know for certain, only it's coming down through the persons, that all began to run towards Yamunā automatically. From the cows, from the calves, from the men, women, all running towards the sound, madly. They say sometimes that sweet flute sang in such a peculiar way, that knowingly or unknowingly, all animation is running madly towards Yamunā. They of course went there, could not find anything, and gradually they're calmed and came back to home.

So what degree of sweetness in the sound? It is impossible for us from our plane. Our eye can see a particular degree of light. If light is very high our eye can't see, we see darkness. Sound also like that, a particular stage of sound our ear can - not less, not more. High degree sound, ear cannot catch. So another ear necessary.

So we'll faint there. Swāmī Mahārāja told Acyutānanda. Acyutānanda came, and Swāmī Mahārāja and myself we had some talk. And Acyutānanda going to that there, Swāmī Mahārāja put up in that blue house. Acyutānanda asked, "What talk you had with Śrīdhara Mahārāja?"

"But you will faint, you won't be able to understand."

So faint, can't catch, we'll faint there. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Degree of sweetness, or degree of beauty, only relatively a particular stage may be known to us, given, so we may taste. But higher degree we can't receive. That is our condition. But if we're given,

[na tu māṁ śakyase draṣṭum, anenaiva sva-cakṣuṣā]
divyaṁ dadāmi te cakṣuḥ, paśya me yogam aiśvaram

["You will not be able to see Me through your present eyes, and therefore I give you supernatural vision by which to behold My almighty, supreme absolute power."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 11.8]

"I'm giving you a new eye. See Me."

And to Dhṛtarāṣṭra, Kṛṣṇa told, "No, your blindness need not be removed. I say you see Me, you'll see. Though you're blind you'll be able to see Me. To see Me it does not require any fleshy eye, it's transcending that."

A peculiar thing. Dhṛtarāṣṭra wanted, "For the time being remove my blindness so I can see You."

Kṛṣṇa replied, "No blindness to be removed to see Me. Remaining blind you'll be able to see Me. Only I say you see Me, you'll see Me."

What is the conception, eh? So many, Nārada, Bhīṣma, Droṇa, they're praising the beauty and the noble appearance of the Lord. And hearing that Dhṛtarāṣṭra appealed, "I'm astounded to find that those great personages they're seeing You in some colour or figure that they're charmed and they're praising in such a way. For the time being please remove my blindness so I can see. Again You make me blind."

"No, no, blindness not required to be removed. I say you see Me, you'll be able to see."

What type of vision? Of course Dhṛtarāṣṭra saw as a man with eye can see, he could see that.

So come in touch with that potency, or the holder, possessor of that potency.

Icchā mayi, icchā śakti, meli kṛṣṇa. [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 20.252-257]

Kṛṣṇa, Vāsudeva, Balarāma, of different functions of the same Entity. But Kṛṣṇa's conception, He controls the icchā deva desire, icchā śakti. Everything For Himself, to satisfy Him. No other function, no other power, no delegated power necessary for Him, only guidance. He's the Master of guidance, suggestion. "I want this, I want this." And there are others, they're to supply. The Master of that desirability, or suggestion, or guidance, He's Kṛṣṇa. Whatever He wants, He desires, that comes to be effected, icchā śakti.

And how to please, that is at the control of Rādhārāṇī, hlādinī. How to supply fulfilment, hlādinī, that is with Her. And other internal arrangements, that is with Baladeva, a supply officer, making arrangement for all this. Three principal, this trinity, these first three principals of the world, thinking, feeling, willing. Jñāna, bala, krīya, ca.

Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari.

Big words to pronounce. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Surrender, surrender, surrender. Śaraṇāgati, śaraṇāgati, for Them. Degree of self surrender, degree of self surrender, that is the price, self surrender towards the principal. That is the only - not to fight as a matter of right. Though, still some devotees they say like that, assert like that. "It is my right." Ha, ha, ha.

In Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu there is a śloka. I don't remember the śloka but the purport is like this.

One devotee he's making assertion, "That to serve You it's my duty. Kṛṣṇa, to serve You, it is my duty. If Baladeva, Lakṣmī, any other devotees they come to serve You, I shall remove them forcibly. I shall say to them, 'No, I'm the servant. My duty is to serve. I won't allow You to serve Him.'

In a challenging mood, outwardly, "Lakṣmī Devī she can serve higher. Baladeva and others They can also render higher services, higher type." But he says, "I won't allow Them to serve. It's my right to serve You. I shall do it direct. I won't allow Them."

In Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu when it was being prepared here, then another of my Godbrothers, Rāma Gopāla Bābū, coming to this śloka he was perplexed. "The devotee, he must not have so much pride that he can render service eliminating those higher servitors. This is an egoistic statement."

How? Then he read it and found out and told, "Here the attitude is some other. He says that Lakṣmī, Baladeva, or other devotees, I'm servant of Them also. In my presence I won't allow those masters to render service to You. They must take Their stand along with You and alone I shall serve all of Them. They're also my master. Baladeva, Lakṣmī Devī, in my presence why They will serve You? I'll be here, I shall do everything. And They will take position by Your side and They will render my service?" That is the spirit here. "I'm the servant and They're masters. Your closer servants They're all masters. I can't allow Them to serve You. I shall do the whole thing. And along with You They will - must receive my service." That is the spirit. "I'm servant of the servant, of the servant of the servant of the servant. When I'm present I won't allow anybody to serve You. I shall do it myself. And They're also my masters. They must sit and accept my service." Ha, ha. In this way.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

The existence of the purest type. Surrender. Not to family, not to village, not to country, not to nation. All extended selfishness. To the whole, to the whole of the whole. The whole is in one part.

By My fractional expansion as the Supreme Soul of material nature, Mahā-Viṣṇu (Kāraṇārṇavaśāyī Viṣṇu), I remain supporting this entire universe of moving and stationary beings."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 10.42]

"I'm enumerating, I'm here, I'm there, I'm so, I'm so, all these. What more I shall speak to you Arjuna? The whole you can conceive is in My negligent part. In nutshell I say to you. The conception of your infinite is in My negligent part, I'm such."

And at the say time He says, "I'm everywhere, everything in Me. I'm nowhere, nothing in Me. Try to understand My peculiar position. Impossible. I'm something impossible. The contradiction, no contradiction in Me. The conception of your contradiction, that is also a part in Me. Which is absurd in you, that is a part in Me. I'm such. I'm above your absurdity."

Hare Kṛṣṇa.

"So don't keep anything in your hand. Empty handed clearly surrender. What I am, or whatever I shall try to make you know, you will know that. You remain satisfied there. Don't go to form any estimation before your gain. Don't go to give any program to Me, don't try, don't make any program beforehand, you'll be loser. Whatever you'll ask that will be beneath the degree of your own goodness. Whatever your tiny brain can conceive as the Absolute Good to you, that will be very, very small. So surrender, surrender to Me and you'll be benefited there."

["Lord Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the reservoir of all pleasure, and Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī is the personification of ecstatic love of Godhead. These two forms had combined as one in Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu. This being the case, Lord Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu revealed His real form to Rāmānanda Rāya."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.282]

I've got much attraction for Godāvarī, and Rāya Rāmānanda saṁvāda. From the beginning to the highest, the whole possible surveying of the whole spiritual life is there, is given vent there. Beginning from varṇāśrama, beginning from ordinary theistic life, step by step to the highest attainment. And Mahāprabhu had to show who He was clearly there. Rasa-rāja, mahābhāva. And we never find anywhere that He showed Himself in that way, the combination of Two, only He disclosed to Rāya Rāmānanda. And never in His līlā in any other place we find that. And that also most reluctantly He had to show who was He. The pressure came from Rāmānanda Rāya, Viśākhā Sakhī.

"When You have come to grace this fallen soul, what is this Prabhu? You are dealing so miserly with me. It does not behove You. You'll be so much miserly to me. You Yourself have come to this place to deliver me, it does not behove that You'll deceive me."

Mahāprabhu could not stand before his earnest heartfelt appeal. He had to come out clearly, "I'm such and such." And Rāmānanda fainted, could not stand. Rāmānanda could not stand - fainted. Then He touched him and took him to his previous stage of consciousness. Rāmānanda found that sannyāsī standing. And what drama was shown and finished. A very peculiar place, Godāvarī. Rāya Rāmānanda saṁvāda.

Sarga digni gana ganendra vinite godavari gata ke

In such and such time, worshipped by Rāya Rāmānanda, the Divine Feet of Mahāprabhu was decorated here, shown here. And in such and such date the leader of the Gauḍīya, the Ācārya of the Gauḍīya, he's putting these footprints in stone, and making arrangement for worshipping that. It is mentioned therein.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Godāvarī, that gosthpada kṣetra. Gosthpada, there is a fashion that in that shore, in the bank of that Godāvarī river, sometimes by the current it comes breaking the bank. But a peculiar type of holes, just as the footprints of the cows, that is always, that will always remain there. The soil is such that some holes, just like the footprints of cows is seen there. So gosthpada kṣetra the name, go.

And Kṛṣṇa has much connection with go. Ha, ha. Go indriya, go veda, then go in that cow. Govinda, that the Master of senses. If we try to look attentively in the function of all our senses, then we can see that they're meant for Him only. He's the Master of all our senses. Govinda. Go means indriya. If we look carefully to the function of the indriya, then we must find that it carries us towards Him. He can satisfy. They're meant to satisfy Him only. And go means śruti, Veda, vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo.

[sarvasya cāhaṁ hṛdi sanniviṣṭho, mattaḥ smṛtir jñānam apohanaṁ ca

["I am situated (as the Supersoul) within the heart of all souls, and from Me arises the soul's remembrance, knowledge, and the dissipation of both (according to his karma, or action in the mundane plane). I am the exclusive knowable (ecstatic) principle of all the Vedas. I am the author of the Vedānta - Vedavyāsa, the expounder of the knowable meaning of the Vedas. And certainly I am the knower of the purport of the Vedas."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.15]

If we can notice into the inner meaning of the scriptures then we can also see that it's going towards Kṛṣṇa, Govinda. And the go in Vṛndāvana, śanta rasa, the innocent, all benefiting temperament animals that have finished their previous karma. And they're created only for the benefit of the society, of the world. There is also Kṛṣṇa, all Kṛṣṇa dedication. The highest species of dedication in the animal kingdom.
_____ [?] There is - then they're released from their karma, again the soul will have to begin. The soul in transmigration, last species he reaches to cow section. They're of less demand, and more giving, and their gift also towards the Deities, to the children, such holy contribution from that species. And they're satisfied with some grass or anything, some small reward, and more giving. In the animal type that is considered to be the highest stage, they're released from their previous bad action, in the last layer. Then again they're to begin new life of karma in human species, no more in the animal world.

Govardhana. As was their species, go dhana, our Guru Mahārāja told, in Śeṣaśāyī. I heard that Swāmī Mahārāja mentioned that incident. Many of the sannyāsīs went to see Śeṣaśāyī mandira, though Guru Mahārāja himself announced that, "Today I shall speak something." But some did not go, I did not go, I attended his lecture. And I think Swāmī Mahārāja also attended that lecture, did not go to see some places of pilgrimage there, Śeṣaśāyī.
That day in his lecture he told, "The Kṛṣṇa bhakta, the breeding, is like that of the cows. Not much restriction, any place, every place, they may talk about Kṛṣṇa. To spread Kṛṣṇa consciousness not much formality is necessary. Only the spirit should be there, sincere spirit. And external formality is not required very much there in that in preaching Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Like the breeding of the cow species."

Mahāprabhu says to Sanātana [in this śloka - to Rāmānanda Rāya], "What I talk to you that is a kind of mania, a madness. But you are a type of madman, I'm also so. So you and Myself are of same rank. Talking all these things, this delirium. What we say it is all delirium to the public. So I'm also a madman and you're also so. You are giving attendance and I'm speaking. So all delirium. What value in the so called world of reality these things have got?"

Becoming totally detached from their material life, those devotees have taken up the path of renunciation and have accepted alms just to maintain their lives on this plane. In this way they continue to search for Him, the all fulfilment of life."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.47.18]

Rādhārāṇī says to Uddhava. "What should We say Uddhava to you? Your Master has got such a charm that coming in connection with Him everyone becomes mad. Only a slight drop of His connection can make everyone mad. Yad-anucarita. The least part of His life, least part, a drop, of His activities or life, any connection can make everyone mad. Yad-anucarita-līlā-karṇa-pīyūṣa-vipruṭ. They're also very - think themselves very poor, very helpless. But who cares for them? The wife, the father, the mother, the son, the friends, they become very, very - considers themselves very unfortunate and suffers, they have to suffer much. But this genuine who has got the connection with Kṛṣṇa he does not care for them at all, nothing. Gṛha-kuṭumbaṁ dīnam utsṛjya dīnā, bahava iha vihaṅgā bhikṣu- caryāṁ caranti. Just like the birds who have got no attraction for any particular tree, only from this tree to that tree, that tree, that tree, in this way. So he also without caring for any comfortable environment, from here, there, he wanders in search of Him. Vihaṅgā bhikṣu-caryāṁ caranti. A king, he's giving up his throne, comes on the street and he wants to live on begging. King comes to be a beggar. A scholar comes to be on the street like a madman. So in this way, all the possession of this world becomes trash to him and he comes out on the street as a beggar, madman. And he's hunting after Him, "Where shall I get that kind of taste once more?"

Search For Śrī Kṛṣṇa, Reality The Beautiful. Athāto brahma-jijñāsā in Vedānta. The substance of the Veda collected, and Brahma-sūtra was given by Vedavyāsa. And that has come by Mahāprabhu, Search for Kṛṣṇa. Jijñāsā, enquiry after the biggest, all-accommodating thing. And here the Search for Kṛṣṇa, Reality the Beautiful. Kāhāṅ Kṛṣṇa. The life is injected into that consciousness, brahma-jijñāsā, the heart is taking the main part.

This is not a separate thing, this is included in the wholesale _____ [?]
Muktir hitvān-yathā-rūpaṁ svarūpeṇa vyavasthitiḥ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.10.6]
Their simplicity, or sincerity, that is the innate nature of us. And general progress towards the truth, that will reveal our innate nature, and that nature is sincere and simple. We're now suffering from abnormal condition, we want to go back to normal position, normal life. Back to home. So this is general question, all- comprehensive, how we can make progress towards Kṛṣṇa? Everything will come, no artificiality, that we shall acquire some particular quality, and thereby we shall learn something special, it is not like that. The general progress towards the truth, and that is effected by sādhu and śāstra, by the general instruction. By the association of the higher we can get out of our filth which we acquired in company of the abnormal world of māyā, misunderstanding. The same thing, misunderstanding will be cleared, and we shall go back to our simple and sincere life where everyone is engaged cent per cent in the service of Kṛṣṇa. Reality For Itself. And we shall harmonise, adjust ourselves to that plane of activity. Common question, not to be dealt by any part. The wholesale progress is necessary. One will help another, to take the Nāma. So it is said, that only counting the beads that may not be effective. Sevonmukhe hi jihvādau.

[ataḥ śrī-kṛṣṇa-nāmādi na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiḥ
sevonmukhe hi jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty adaḥ]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrva-vibhāga, 2.234]

That is to use the tongue, to use the eye, to use the touch, whatever we've got we shall take advantage of all of them. But the common thing, common capital of everyone of them will be the sevonmukhatā, to acquire serving tendency. Die to live, surrender, śaraṇāgati. There we can live. We're to dissolve ourselves into the most fundamental plane. And we've acquired so many prejudices for provincial, separate interest, and those must be dissolved, fully and finally. And then we shall find our soul is dancing in the wave of the most fundamental. That is For Itself, For Himself, everything for Kṛṣṇa, for His satisfaction. The whole is moving to create His satisfaction. That is the universal movement, the dynamic characteristic of the most fundamental plane. And our heart, our own self, must be a member, must find himself a member of that plane. All acquired foreign tendencies should be dissolved. Sevonmukha. What is the nature? That is the serving the universal cause. And to get out of all provincialism, separate interests, in general. Then eye will be able to see things properly, Kṛṣṇa consciousness, Kṛṣṇa relationship. The hand will work for that, the leg will work for that, everything, the sound will work for that. Whatever we've got, everything will work for Kṛṣṇa consciousness, Kṛṣṇa's satisfaction. The wholesale dissolution of the ego, die to live, surrender. Surrender to the interest, to the cause of Kṛṣṇa, for the satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa. And dissolve all selfish aspiration attempt. That is the general thing, wave, and that can be acquired,

[śrīmad-bhāgavatārthānām āsvādo rasikaiḥ saha] sajātī-yāśye snigdhe sādhau saṅgaḥ svato vare

["One should taste the meaning of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam in the association of pure devotees, and one should associate with the devotees who are more advanced than oneself and endowed with a similar type of affection for the Lord. Those that are in our line, who have the same high spiritual aspirations as we do, and who hold a superior position. To associate with such saintly persons will help us the most to progress towards the ultimate goal."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, 1.2.91] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 22.131]

With the association of a saint who is in my line of thinking, and superior to myself, to be associated. Association means that is to serve him, to work under his direction, that is association. He'll get the principal part, he'll be master, I'll be servant. I'll be instrumental to him, and he'll work the instrument in me. In this way. That aim, that fruit, the result, the product, belongs to Him, and not to anyone. That is the main object of a devotee's life, that Kṛṣṇa alone is to enjoy. And if we can accept that and we can, not only theoretical acceptance but practically if we can accept and mix up with that, then it is all right.

Sevonmukhe hi jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty adaḥ. Then the Name will come of it's own accord in me. The sound representation of Him, the colour representation, figure representation, touch representation, that will be in me, as in home, most natural, my own, my beloved. In this way, everything we shall be able to look at, and have as our most beloved, most desirable atmosphere, object, everything. And that will also give us experience of sweetness, of beauty, harmony, everything what is desirable, normal.

So one, and that is to acquire serving attitude. Service means opposite to exploitation and renunciation. Minus any movement, minus exploitation and renunciation, the positive thing will be service. Not self centred activity, nor apathy to the progress of the whole. So then that service that is to dive deep into the real interest of the wholesale. Die to live. Throw yourself into fire, assess the _____ [?] that will be reduced to ashes and the gold will remain in its pristine glory. Sevā, what is sevā, work for Kṛṣṇa.

That universal call, clarion call. "Give up all conceptions of your duties and come to Me alone. And you'll not have to repent."

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. That is the common thing, single thing. Sarva-dharma, all concentrated, all the advices, teachings in Bhagavad-gītā, concentrated in one śloka in the end.

Sarva-dharmān parityajya. "Give up all conceptions of duties in your life, and come to Me alone. And I shall look after you. You won't have to repent, you'll be amply paid."

That is one final call of Bhagavad-gītā by Kṛṣṇa.

"I'm everything, what you cannot even conceive of. I'm so friendly to you, you cannot think it properly now in your present position. I'm such an intimate friend to you. An indispensable necessity you have with Me only, I'm such. The whole world may be reduced to ashes, fire, but you do not lose anything. Whatever you're thinking is your own, all may be finished, crushed, reduced to ashes, you'll never lose anything. Your every engagement is with Me. Your only requirement is in Me."

That is His call, that universal call, that graphic, comprehensive call. No side issue, then general call.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. How am I to understand my connection with such a place as called Venezuela and my duties towards the preaching...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is hear-after, should be talked by - with the consultation of Akṣayānanda Mahārāja, the particulars. But general thing we're to deal, and that law should be applied everywhere, in any particular case. But my general interest must be kept intact, and how, that is to be applied in particular cases. It will come under that. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

And one gentleman came here a few months ago, he was busy to write a book of comparative study in various conceptions of religion. Do you remember, anyone?

Devotee: Bhargava Prabhu?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhargava maybe. He was preparing to compile different principles of different religions, and he had a strong mind to publish a book with the comparative study of the principles of different religions.

Ha, ha, ha. I asked him, physician cure thyself. First try to know. Don't lose your valuable time, don't waste. Know the truth first yourself, and whatever that truth will ask you to do, you should do that. Don't go to thrust, to push your mania into him. Know the truth first, that is all important, valuable human birth, try to know the truth, be established in truth. No urgent duty like that. Everything should be accepted or non accepted according to that conception. Know thyself first, and then try to give it to others. Otherwise without knowing you'll distribute something, this and that, an undesirable thing you will take trouble to distribute to others. Know first what is truth, and then if you get the inspiration, and then distribute the truth. So first know, to have then give, have and give. Mahāprabhu says, bhārata-bhūmite haila manuṣya-janma yāra, janma sārthaka kari' kara para-upakāra

["One who has taken his birth as a human being in the land of India should make his life successful and work for the benefit of all other people [by preaching Nāma-saṅkīrtana, the chanting of the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 9.41]

Mahāprabhu is saying there, "You are fortunate enough to have a birth in India. You have come to closer contact with the revealed truth, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. So get success, get, try to acquire your realisation, and then distribute that to others. Janma sārthaka kari. First you get your fulfilment, and then try to fulfil others." _____ [?] One who does not know anything, how he can make it known to others?

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Vidagdha Mādhava: Guru Mahārāja. Can you speak something about the superiority of Vedic culture.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Superiority of Vedic culture. First, the question of geography may come, eh?

In America, what is the place where the position of highest civilisation can be located? Either scientific, or about finance, there something must be selected to hold the highest position, in finance, or in scientific knowledge.

Devotee: Oxford.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oxford, in England.

Devotee: In America, what is this, near Boston...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But anyhow, anywhere. Then if other people say, "Why Oxford should be the seat of highest culture? Why should we give recognition? Why not my village?" If anyone asserts like that, what will be the answer?

Devotee: Because of the people, because of the learned men.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Why the learned men will be there only? I'm not less learned. Learned means in the scientific age those that cultivate about science. And the Bible will say that those are atheists, uneducated fellows. Who is well versed in the knowledge of Bible he's the really educated man. What do you say?

And educated man is a religious man, and religion has got the importance over science. It deals life eternal, and they're only dealing with the phenomenal part of the world , not the spiritual side.

Then what place should be the highest in your consideration? Why it should be there, Oxford? Or Cambridge _____ [?]

Devotee: You've lost us again Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So, to say that how Vedic culture should be the highest, why the revealed scriptures that came in India that should be considered as the highest? And not that came in Arabia, that Koran, and that Bible, and the Sikhs will say that Grantha Sahib given by Nanak. Why?

First we're to accept with toleration that somewhere in the world it should be, without being jealous about the position of the land. Then we shall come in comparison of religious points and find out some criterion, common standard. What is religion?

I've told many times that gold is the standard between the international currency. The dollar, the pound, the rupee, so many things, the standard is kept by the gold, medium.

So we're to find first what should be the criterion of religion. Some say that clever attempt in exploitation, that may be the highest, and to distribute them like a king, that will be the highest. Buddhists, Śaṅkara, the reactionary, they'll say for those that appreciate renunciation, exploitation can never be higher ideal.

karmaṇāṁ pariṇāmitvād, ā-virincyād amaṅgalam [vipścin naśvaram paśyed, adṛṣṭam api dṛṣṭa-vat]

["An intelligent person should see that any material activity is subject to constant transformation and that even on the planet of Lord Brahmā there is thus simply unhappiness. Indeed, a wise man can understand that just as all that he has seen is temporary, similarly, all things within the universe have a beginning and an end."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.19.18]

By amassing energy under ones command and to distribute them to others, these are all trifle things, all mortal things, so this cannot be the highest position in life.

So Brahmā, even the creator, he's also in the relativity of birth and death, he's to suffer from reaction. What to speak of others created, animals or men. Even the creator himself he's in relativity with this mortal world, so he's also to suffer birth and death.

Then the next section, that of renunciation. The Buddhists, the Śaṅkarites, they say by renouncing everything and reducing us to some zero, that is dreamless sleep, that samādhi, complete retirement from the environment, that is the highest attainment. According to them, according to Buddhists the dissolution of personality. And Śaṅkara also, dissolution of the so-called personality, but there is one common mass of consciousness as the cause of the whole, non differentiated, non specified. Anyhow renunciation has been recommended to be the highest attainment.

Then a third class they say exploitation and renunciation if both eliminated, a third plane is there by which we can have our association with outside. And that is that of service. I'm not exploiting anything, I'm not renouncing him also, I shall serve him. This divine temperament. Whatever I shall be in the midst of I shall look in the spirit of serving that. That is divine character. Not to exploit, and nor to renounce, but I shall connect with anything and everything with the spirit of service. And not only I shall see it part by part, but part of the whole. One. In that way we're led towards higher divine life, devotion. And it may be found in Koran, Bible, to certain extent, partially. According to the capacity of the local people the instalment has been given to them.

But in India from ancient time they have dedicated themselves more for the spiritual life than this material life. And there specially that is a selected place of the Lord. First I mentioned about geography. Why God has selected India? The question will come, why God has selected India to be the place where the fullest, the highest revelation, revealed truth, should be given down? Some place must be chosen. India has been chosen, the most important place what attracted God's attention to give the fullest spiritual knowledge extended here. We're not to envy, not to be jealous of the yoga field position, but we shall be eager wherever it is we must try to have that. With this spirit we're to approach the Vedic culture. Veda has dealt with spiritual life to the extreme, and of different stages.

That's why once Max Muller told, "The India in her Upaniṣad has got so much wealth that one drop may satisfy the whole of the world, but it won't be lessened thereby. So much nectar there is in the store of Upaniṣad in India that the whole world will be satisfied only with one drop, and India won't lose anything. It is of such type nectar." So this appreciation from a foreign man, he could appreciate what is there.

So some part in the globe, in the planet, must be selected, and India was selected, and here we find the general life is for religion, for God, than this material aspiration or development. So Vedic culture means Veda. Veda means 'know.' Veda, the literal meaning is 'know.' As I told about the praṇava, oṁkāra, the very seed of the Veda is Oṁ. What is the meaning of the Oṁ? "Yes." Only in one word the Vedas say "Yes." Yes, know, enquire. What is 'yes?' Whatever your inner search that exists. Everyone is searching something, happiness or pleasure, or ecstasy, joy, something, the inner hankering. In one word says, 'Yes. What you search after that is really existing, search.' The first word is this, this praṇava. And then comes to Veda you will see this, that, this, these things by gradation it will say. Whole thing contained there. So Vedic culture, vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo.

vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo, vedānta-kṛd veda-vid eva cāham]

["I am situated (as the Supersoul) within the heart of all souls, and from Me arises the soul's remembrance, knowledge, and the dissipation of both (according to his karma, or action in the mundane plane). I am the exclusive knowable (ecstatic) principle of all the Vedas. I am the author of the Vedānta - Vedavyāsa, the expounder of the knowable meaning of the Vedas. And certainly I am the knower of the purport of the Vedas."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.15]

The misguided people they've also come to interpret Veda, but they failed. Atheistic people also came to Veda, but they could not enter into the real meaning of the Veda. Śaṅkara was also a great exponent of the Vedic culture, but he concluded in some spiritual zero, Brahman.

But only the four Vaiṣṇava Schools, Śrī, Brahmā, Rudra, Sanaka, they, submitting to the hierarchy, to the spiritual lineage, Ācārya paramparā, they could find the real meaning. That by surrender we can come in connection with the super subjective world. We're subject, and everyone what we see that is all within the objective world. But there is super subjective world which can connect with me, with us, the gross type of subject. And that is finer subject, that can come to us, but we cannot go there according to our own whim. But if they want to take us in we can go. There is such a sphere of life, such a plane of living, such a soil where so many jīva, so many souls are engaged in service. Service of the centre, service of the Lord, of the world, in this way.

Whatever you'll refer from your religious books, it can be pointed out in a part of the Veda. It's a general representation of all comprehensive religious conceptions. There is a general saying, "What is not in Mahābhārata, that is not in India."

The Veda will say, "Whatever is there in the world, everything in Me. I contain everything, every class of thinkers, by gradation, accommodated in Me. And comparative study from the lowest conception of spiritualism to the highest, I contain there. By gradation you can get it." Vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo, Bhagavad-gītā, [15.15] as a guide to Vedic culture generally says, "The whole Veda attempts to know Me only. Kṛṣṇa consciousness. The attempt of the Veda is only to show Me as Kṛṣṇa. The origin of the whole is Myself." Kṛṣṇa says in Bhagavad-gītā. "This is the meaning of the Veda. Vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo. How the Kṛṣṇa conception is the highest conception of reality, it will come from Veda."

And even somewhere Veda says that, "We beg to be forgiven that we could not clearly express that Kṛṣṇa conception is the highest conception of reality." In śrutisthal, in Bhāgavatam it is mentioned, that the śruti, that is Veda mantra, they, personified, they jointly say, give their statement that, "We could not clearly express that the highest reality is You, Kṛṣṇa, in Your rasa līlā. That this kind of rasa is the highest object of all the souls in the world, we could not give it expressidly, clearly, to the people. So we beg to be forgiven by You my Lord."

This way, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Akhila-rasāmṛta-murtiḥ [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.142].

In a general way if we approach, that we want to express the rasa, joy, ānandam, pleasure, whatever you say, that thing, our inner hankering is for that. And that in its fullest conception is in Kṛṣṇa. You gradually try to find, make experiment, comparative study.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Vidagdha Mādhava: In the relativity of world religion can Jesus Christ be considered a śaktyāveśa avatāra?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I don't follow what he says.

Vidagdha Mādhava: Can Jesus Christ be considered a śaktyāveśa?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Can Jesus Christ - be considered - śaktyāveśa? Yes, maybe, no harm.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No, not to laugh, a serious thing. I think Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura has told like that, śaktyāveśa avatāra, but śakti of different kind.

Paraśurāma, he was mainly śaktyāveśa avatāra in India. Paraśurāma has got special power, śaktyāveśa, to fight with the so-called atheist kṣatriya.

Vyāsadeva, he has special power, he also - about the dealings of the revealed scriptures.

Pṛthu, to show how to give the good administration to the people.

In this way there were many who got special delegated power. Ordinary jīva but the delegated power in him from the Supreme for particular function, and they have done it successfully, there are many.

So Christ, no doubt he got some special power in him to deal with that sort of religious conception to the world, śaktyāveśa.

And I consider personally that Swāmī Mahārāja he also got some supernatural power to deal with such a graphic program in the foreign - what is not expected by the general capacity of a human being. Some special power came in him to make it possible. Śaktyāveśa Avatāra.

But that inspiration, or that delegation, does not come in any and every man. The man must have some capacity to a certain degree, then that delegation may come to him. So he has got also his personal value at the same time, though, mukam karoti vācālaṁ panghum langhāyate girīm [yat kṛpā tam ahaṁ vande śrī gurun dīna-tāranam]

["I offer my respectful obeisances unto Mādhava, Who is the Personification of transcendental bliss. By His mercy, a blind man can see the stars in the sky, a lame man can cross mountains, and a dumb man can speak eloquent words of poetry."] [Bhavārtha Dipikā, maṅgala stotram, 1]

It is mentioned that His Divine Will can make a lame man to dance, and to cross the mountain. And who is...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The Supreme Power is endowed with such miraculous capacity. But still in general we shall think that where that delegation comes there must be some qualitative capacity, in general.

Vidagdha Mādhava: Guru Mahārāja. One last, one other question on Jesus Christ. In your book Search For Śrī Kṛṣṇa you said that, "The foundation, the fundamental Vaiṣṇavism is present in Jesus Christ in die to live, at least physically." But Jesus Christ would also repeatedly say, 'I come only by the will of my father.' And it seems that his ego was also surrendered to the father. The ahaṅkāra, the false ego, no separate interest. At least he expressed that many times.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It is theism but not full-fledged. Christ preached about theism but not full- fledged theism. That is our contention. Not wholesale engagement of a soul with Godly service. Living a separate life, a reverential mood towards God. Then praying for his material life, bread and butter, and all these things. And also conception of God not very clear, hazy. And then direct connection with Him, and to live with Him in wholesale engagement is not recommended there. And also about the environment, the animals and the trees they're not endowed with any soul, you can eat them, animal and other things. Their pains when we cut an animal for our food there is some pain, some painful vibration, that has no recognition. So many things there are. But still there is theism but not full-fledged, in short, theism not full-fledged, partial representation of theism is there. That is our opinion, conception.

Vidagdha Mādhava: Yes. There are many misconceptions.

Devotee: Sometimes, can we think, Gurudeva, that he, due to time, place and circumstance, in which he was preaching, he could not give more than that?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So if we're to consider the wider, and the oneness of the high representation, then considering the position, that history and geography, considering the temperament of the people, such inspiration was allotted to them. Allotted in him to distribute. We're not blaming him, but the highest dispensation has made him medium of such spiritual truth considering the historical and geographical position of those that were in that locality. From the absolute standpoint we're to look like that. Because the highest dispensation is conscious of all the fact, of all the people, so they're sending different agents to different places and equipping them suitably for the time and place of that locality. So it should be taken in that light, not going to blame anyone, or to disregard anyone.

Devotee: So we should not waste our time speculating about what he may have known or not known, and just take what he did and know that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We should be guided by our inner tendency without thinking much about the environment. Our own concern will be that first of importance, that is one thing. And sometimes when as a preacher we're to deal with them, then we shall have to deal with them respectfully, not negligently.

A professor should not disregard a primary teacher. If he knows that primary education he's imparting, but still the primary teachers they've got their necessity for the society. And they may not be ignored totally and blamed for their job. They're trying to promote towards higher education in the beginning, so they're all friends. Friendly relation we shall maintain.

But when the question will come, 'so far, no further,' then those points where we develop, crossing their jurisdiction to higher, then we're to put some questions which may not be very palatable to them. Out of necessity we shall have to do, but we should not relish that thing.

...within seven days he'll have to die from Takṣaka bite, snake bite. Then he again entered into samādhi and tried to understand the circumstance what for that Parīkṣit him in that way. Then he came out from his samādhi and told his son, "He's a very religious man, virtuous. Because he'll have to take back my merit so he has punished as a king. So he has not done anything wrong, well-meaning, so you withdraw your curse."

Then, "No, I can't, I won't."

He tried his best to dissuade, but he did not withdraw the curse. Then, what to do, the muni sent two of his disciples to Parīkṣit Mahārāja to inform him that, "Such thing has happened, and he must be prepared, because what the boy has said that will surely come to effect, he's brahmajñā."

Then Parīkṣit Mahārāja, he was also repenting very much, "That why I did such a wrong decision, I took? I insulted brāhmaṇa. In natural course what it would have been, happened, that may take place. But why I have done such? I have insulted brāhmaṇa directly. My predecessors they used to honour the brāhmaṇas so much. And I have done this wrong." In this way he's repenting too much. "Let my kingdom be burned into ashes. This and that, I have done so."

In this way he was repenting, just at the time two brāhmaṇas sent by Śamīka Ṛṣi reached him and reported that such is the thing that has happened.

Then Parīkṣit Mahārāja was satisfied. "Yes, as I've done I've got the punishment, and it has been rightly done, this decision." Then he made arrangement. "I've only one week's longevity." So he had a house on the banks of the Ganges and he moved there with all his attendants. And his son was Janamejaya, and the responsibility of the management of the kingdom was given on Janamejaya, and he retired there.

This news reached all the corners of India, that the brāhmaṇa's curse is going to kill Parīkṣit Mahārāja who is such a virtuous king. A religious minded king and did so much service to the brāhmaṇas, he was going to die by the curse of a brāhmaṇa. So all the leaders of different sections of the brāhmaṇic class they came to console him and they attended that meeting. And there is a list, all the leading scholars of the day, they came to join that meeting.

atrir vasiṣṭhaś cyavanaḥ śaradvān, ariṣṭanemir bhṛgur aṅgirāś ca

["From different parts of the universe there arrived great sages like Atri, Cyavana, Śaradvān, Ariṣṭanemi, Bhṛgu, Vasiṣṭha, Parāśara, Viśvāmitra, Aṅgirā, Paraśurāma, Utathya, Indrapramada, Idhmavāhu, Medhātithi, Devala, Ārṣṭiṣeṇa, Bhāradvāja, Gautama, Pippalāda, Maitreya, Aurva, Kavaṣa, Kumbhayoni, Dvaipāyana and the great personality Nārada."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.19.9-10]

All came to console Mahārāja Parīkṣit.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] In that assembly Parīkṣit Mahārāja put the question to them.
"You all know I'm going to die within a week by the curse of a brāhmaṇa boy for my misdeed, in this and this way. Now only seven days left. How can I utilise my energy in these seven days that I can achieve the best destination? You advise me."

Then they began to advise in their own way, and there were so many differences between their recommendation.

Then Parīkṣit Mahārāja told again that, "You please be unanimous in your verdict, otherwise I cannot oblige all. Some say this, some say that, some say another, then whom I shall accept? You please come to a common conclusion and ask me to do, I shall do that."

At this time the young man Śukadeva entered the arena. Śukadeva coming, sixteen years old, well developed body, no dress, naked. And thinking him a madman, so many persons, women and young boys, casting this dust on him, and coming, following him. And Śukadeva, no care for anything else he's automatically coming, yadṛcchagati, coming without any object. Perhaps directed by the divine will he's coming that side.

As soon as the Ṛṣis saw him they all stood up, seeing such a venerable figure like Śukadeva. Seeing his posing, his appearance, his gesture, posture, they all in honour stood up. And then they proposed to Parīkṣit Mahārāja, "You are very, very fortunate. This mahātmā we could not see him, we hear his name but we couldn't see him. But fortunately for you that he has come suddenly, and we're all eager to hear from him. You please put him in the presidential chair and ask your questions, put your questions to him. And he'll answer, and all of us will hear with rapt attention what he says, this boy, what he has got, he's in such condition." So it was done rightly.

Then Parīkṣit Mahārāja put his question to Śukadeva. All hearing with rapt attention what the boy says. Parīkṣit Mahārāja's question was that, "I have got these senses, my property, how can I use them to realise the highest goal of my life?" That was his question. "What is the highest goal, how can I attain that? And I've got only these things as my capital, how can I use my capital, the senses, that I can achieve the highest goal of my life?"

Śrīmad-Bhāgavata is of twelve cantos, the first canto finished, the second canto begins with Śukadeva's advice.

varīyān eṣa te praśnaḥ, kṛto loka-hitaṁ nṛpa / ātmavit-sammataḥ puṁsāṁ, śrotavyādiṣu yaḥ paraḥ

[Śrī Śukadeva Gosvāmī said: "My dear King, your question is glorious because it is very beneficial to all kinds of people. The answer to this question is the prime subject matter for hearing, and it is approved by all transcendentalists."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.1]

"Oh Parīkṣit Mahārāja, your question is a very laudable one. Why? That this is the general question of all the public. Your question represents the whole questions of the public, all souls, general characteristic. Kṛto loka-hitaṁ / ātmavit-sammataḥ. Not only it is necessary for all, but the experts will also approve that it is really a question, it is worthy question, not to satisfy the ordinary, ignorant mass. But the exceptional scholars they will also approve that this is the question that should be solved. The only question of everyone, the common question of the whole creation, whole world, only one question. How we should utilise our energy to work out, to achieve the highest end of our life. That should be the only question in the world, and it is so. So it's a very laudable question, and I'm going to answer."

śrotavyādīni rājendra nṛṇāṁ santi sahasraśaḥ, apaśyatām ātma-tattvaṁ gṛheṣu gṛha-medhinām

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.2]

"Oh king, you asked me that, 'How can I utilise my ears, what to attend by the ear, what to attend by the eye, what to attend by the hand, how I can utilise my senses that I can go towards my highest goal? That śrotavyādīni rājendra nṛṇāṁ santi sahasraśaḥ. A man, a person, has got thousands of things to attend, they're always busy. You will see that everyone is always busy, they've no want of direction, how, what to see, what to hear, what to do, they're all busy. Śrotavyādīni rājendra nṛṇāṁ santi sahasraśaḥ.

Apaśyatām ātma-tattvaṁ. But who are they who are always busy, very busy about nothing, who are they? Apaśyatām ātma-tattvaṁ. Very busy for the treatment of the patient, but no diagnosis. No diagnosis. Apaśyatām ātma-tattvaṁ. They have not examined what is really necessary of their own. No diagnosis, but very busy. This is this world.

Apaśyatām ātma-tattvaṁ gṛheṣu gṛha-medhinām. They're all in a family life and engaged in their sense pleasure by mutual agreement.

["At night we see two things; either sleep or playing with women (sex indulgence). And the day-time is spent either in search of money or by serving the relatives."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.3]

The whole night they're passing either in sleep or in pleasure. And divā cārthehayā rājan, kuṭumba- bharaṇena vā. And the whole daytime they're using for where to get money, and also kuṭumba, and how to maintain their relatives. They're busy daytime in this for money and for attending their own relatives, and at night time, sleep and some pleasure seeking bliss.

[dehāpatya-kalatrādiṣv, ātma-sainyeṣv asatsv api] teṣāṁ pramatto nidhanaṁ, paśyann api na paśyati

["Such persons complacently believe that their nations, communities or families can protect them, unaware that all such fallible soldiers will be destroyed in due course of time. In conclusion, one should try to associate with persons who engage in devotional service twenty-four hours a day."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.4]

"And they're so busily engaged there, they've no time to find that the death is coming nearby, everything will be shattered, put to end. They overlook this, no time to, they're ignoring the great danger that is approaching day by day towards them. Nidhanaṁ, paśyann api na paśyati."

Then he says that, "You say that you've only seven days time." But I say this is enough." Saptāhaṁ jīvitāvadhiḥ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.14] But that is enough. Varaṁ muhūrtaṁ viditaṁ, ghaṭate.

kiṁ pramattasya bahubhir, parokṣair hāyanair iha / [varaṁ muhūrttaṁ viditaṁ, ghaṭate śreyase yataḥ]

["Imperceptibly, many, many years pass uselessly in the life of a person intoxicated by mundane pleasures. Better if only for a moment he realises that he is losing valuable time, for he may thus become serious to attain his eternal benefit."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.12]

Inattentive we may pass crores of lives. Infinite number of lives we're passing unattended, fruitless, no effect, unproductive life we're passing many, many lives, but not fruitful. But muhūrttaṁ viditaṁ, if properly understood, only a moment we can utilise ourselves, that is enough for our highest realisation. Kiṁ pramattasya bahubhir, parokṣair hāyanair iha. Ignored life, bahubhir, life after life, many lives we may live, so no question of time. Only the question of attention to the proper.

Devotee: Attention of?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Attention to the proper point. Varaṁ muhūrttaṁ viditaṁ. Properly understood one moment is sufficient to help our - going to destination, our fulfilment, muhūrttaṁ viditaṁ. In this way I told, khaṭvāṅgo nāma rājarṣir, [jñātveyattām ihāyuṣaḥ / muhūrtāt sarvvam utsṛjya, gatavān abhayaṁ harim]

["The saintly King Khaṭvāṅga, after being informed that the duration of his life would be only a moment more, at once freed himself from all material activities and took shelter of the supreme safety, the Personality of Godhead."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.13]

There was one king named Khaṭvāṅga, only in one moment he achieved his fulfilment in life. There was one King Khaṭvāṅga, he was invited by the [demi] gods to help them in their fight with the demons, and he did successfully.

After that the gods asked him, "You take some boon from us. You have done some valuable service. We're eager to give something in return."

Then he told, "If you want to give something, you give my salvation."

"No, salvation will come - that is only reserved for Nārāyaṇa, He can give. We can't do."

"Then, what can you do for me? Can you say how long I shall live?"

"Only one moment."

"Is it?"

"Yes. Be assured, only one moment left."

"Then you all go away."

That one moment he engaged exclusively in the devotion of Nārāyaṇa and got salvation. So this is a precedent, one moment is sufficient. But unmindful time, that is crores of births may pass away without producing any good result.

"So seven days time you have got, it is enough. Don't repent for that. Now what I say you hear."

In this way he began to chant the ślokas of Bhāgavatam, winding up all the existing different schools of religious section to devotion. The devotion is everything. In our dealing with the superior, devotion, surrender, sacrifice, that is what is really necessary for us.

In this case I want to quote one expression from one Mr. Hegel, German philosopher. He says that, "Reality must be By Itself and For Itself." The Reality, the Absolute Cause of the whole world must have these two qualifications. What are they? By Itself, and He's His own cause, nothing has produced Him. If anything had produced Him, then the producer that will be more important. Do you follow?

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The reality, vāstava-vastu [27:50 - 28:43 ?]

Whatever process you follow, but this main principle you must have to attend and to acknowledge, that everything for Him, to satisfy Him. [28:57 - 29:27 ?]

Wherever you are you must have to admit this, that everything is for Him, to satisfy Him.

Tine lilamaya, para tattva tine lilamaya. It is His play, and we're so many constituent parts to satisfy Him. Gītā _____ [?]

"Just as if we pour water into the root of the tree, the whole tree is fed. If we put food into the stomach, whole body is fed. So if we serve Acyuta, Nārāyaṇa, everything is served. This very apt example.

[35:44 - 35:55 ?] The centre of the whole world is Acyuta, Nārāyaṇa. If we do our duty to Him. Yasmin tuṣṭe jagat tuṣṭam priṇite priṇito jagat. If He's satisfied everything is satisfied.

As we find in the case of Draupadī, when Pāṇḍavas they're in their life of banishment. Duryodhana anyhow managed to seduce Durvāsā. After Draupadī's meal, his eating is finished, he will be their guest with ten thousand disciples. And Durvāsā did that, and then he became guest to Mahārāja Yudhiṣṭhira when he was in jungle.

They managed, so many guests used to come, so anyhow with the help of Sūrya, sun, they managed to get one cooking pot. That until Draupadī takes her food, any number of persons may come, and the pot will be able to supply them with sufficient food. But after Draupadī finished her meal then none will be fed that day. But Durvāsā, instigated by Duryodhana to catch the Pāṇḍavas to finish his enemies he came.

And then Draupadī was in great disturbed mind, what to do. Then Draupadī began to call for Kṛṣṇa sakhā. "Oh my friend, save Your Pāṇḍavas in this great danger, or today they'll all be finished."

Suddenly Kṛṣṇa appeared. "Draupadī, I'm too much hungry."

And Draupadī began to weep. "Only for food I'm in trouble and I've invited You my friend. Save me from the scarcity of food."

"No, no, I'm too much hungry. You please see if anything is there in the pot."

Then repeatedly requested Draupadī went to see and found one piece of vegetable leaf is there.

"Oh, give Me that, give Me." He took it. "Sthito smi" He told.

All concerned well fed. And Durvāsā and his disciples they went to the river to take their bath and will return and be guest to Pāṇḍavas to be fed in a very palatable way. They suddenly found their whole belly is filled up, they can't eat anything else.

"What to do? If we go back there, the Pāṇḍavas they must have arranged something. And Bhīma he's a very troublesome man, he'll disturb us if we don't eat anything. So what to do, go away from here."

Durvāsā _____ [?]

Kṛṣṇa told, taking the little particle of that leaf, "Sthito smi." And all were satisfied, belly full.

So the prime cause is such, that if we know Him everything is known, if we serve Him everything is served. And Bhāgavatam also says.

bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ / kṣīyante cāsya karmāṇi, mayi dṛṣṭe 'khilātmani

The Lord says, "I'm such. Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś. All the hankerings, your heart is sealed, and break out that seal. If you come to attend Me, your heart is sealed and that seal will be broken. And the natural flow will come and that will be able to recognise the soil outside, of its own plane. Your inner, automatic taste, when that will come out from your broken sealed heart, that will find for its own plane. That is the plane of Mine where I'm found.

Chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ. All your doubts will be cleared. This is one peculiar thing. Is it possible, all doubts will be cleared? Yasmin vijñāte sarvam evam vijñātam bhavati. If we can know Him everything is known. All doubts cleared. How will it be effected? Your natural flow from your heart, your ruci, your taste, that will come and select the similar friendly plane outside, that this is my own. This is all foreign things, and this is my home. The inner flow of the heart, ruci, not yukti, nor reason, but ruci can give you satisfaction.

Rāmānanda-saṁvāda, Mahāprabhu questions and Rāmānanda answering, Mahāprabhu questioning.

"What is our object of life, go on, and how to attain?"

Rāmānanda answered.

"This is "bāhya, eho bāhya, eho bāhya."

"Jñāna śūnya bhakti."

"Yes, it is. Go further."

Jñāna śūnya bhakti, it's a peculiar thing, devoid of jñāna. Bhakti means submission, devotion, jñāna śūnya, unintelligible.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: A natural flow of devotion, not based on any calculation, any reasoning, a natural flow towards the Absolute. Mahāprabhu accepted here. "Yes it is, here it is."

And when the product of our calculation this is faulty. Our calculation is faulty, we're limited, our calculation is limited. So finite calculation cannot give you infinite touch. But you have your natural relationship with Him, and that is sealed in your heart, ego. And if ego is broken the natural flow will come and it will select its own soil. "Yes, this I want." The bhakti, the natural flow, the natural tendency within you, that will find the environment of his own. He will recognise that 'this is my home, and that is foreign, and this is my home.' The natural inclination, natural tendency within you that will recognise, but never your calculation or your decisive faculty of anything like that. Jñāna śūnya bhakti.

"Eho bāhya āge kaha āra." [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.59] "Go further." Mahāprabhu told.

It is a very peculiar thing. _____ [?] Jñāna śūnya bhakti. _____ [?] The justice _____ [?] Judgement, calculation, this party, that party, then comparison, then conclusion, but this is all defective. They cannot produce anything perfect. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. Jñāna, if a tinge of judgement is in the devotion then that is spoiled. What is this?

bahūnāṁ janmanām ante, jñānavān māṁ prapadyate / vāsudevaḥ sarvam iti, sa mahātmā sudurlabhaḥ

["After many, many births, the knowledgeable person (who happens to attain the association of such a pure devotee) finally comes to understand that the whole universe of moving and stationary being is of the nature of Vāsudeva alone, inasmuch as all are subordinate to Vāsudeva. Having grasped this conception, he surrenders unto Me. Know such a great soul to be extremely rare."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 7.19]

In Bhagavad-gītā.

na hi jñānena sadṛśaṁ, pavitram iha vidyate [tat svayaṁ yoga-saṁsiddhaḥ, kālenātmani vindati]

["Among the aforementioned practices of sacrifice, austerity, and yoga, there is nothing as pure as divine knowledge. After a long time, a person who has achieved perfection in his practice on the path of selfless action realises such knowledge spontaneously within his heart."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.38]

"There is nothing in the world which is so much pure as knowledge." Then again He says that "After many, many births, a wise man comes to know that his calculation has no value."

Everything depends on Vāsudeva. Everything in the sweet will of the Absolute. And his calculation has no value there. He's Autocrat, the Absolute is Autocrat. He's not under law, law comes from Him. And where law is necessary, when to decide the relationship between the two or more. But when there's the consciousness of one, oneness, one is whole, no law is necessary. His sweet will is sufficient. But law is found necessary in a lower position where to make some compromise between different parties. And where the party is one, no law is necessary. Law originates from Him. So when a wise man comes to this conclusion, that His sweet will is everything, law coming from Him, knowledge for everything coming from Him. He says, "Let there be light." There was light. He says, "Let there be water." There was water. The prime cause includes everything in Him, His sweet will. Sa mahātmā sudurlabhaḥ. Such a great soul is very rarely to be found in the world, when the jñānī, a scholar submits to devotion. So devotion is above all.

[ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ]

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

Śaraṇāgati, surrender, is the highest property of everyone of us, to surrender to Him. And then He will be gracious to make Him known to us and we'll be able to know Him. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, in Upaniṣad.

[nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena
yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām]

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. When the living entity begs the Lord for His mercy, being desirous of His transcendental loving service, then the Supreme Lord reveals His self-manifest form directly before him."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] & [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.3.2]

Whomever He'll select to make Himself known, he'll know Him. Otherwise none can know Him against His will. He has reserved all the right of not being exposed to any senses to any persons. He's so high He can do that. If He does not want to make Himself known, none can know Him. Whomever He wants to make Him known to a party, he can know. This is His position. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena. Whomever He'll select to be known, to know Himself, he'll know, otherwise won't be able to know. This is the position.

So this Bhāgavatam was given by Vedavyāsa in the last treatise, his last upadeśa after he had dealt with Mahābhārata, Gītā, Veda, Upaniṣad, Purāṇa, everything, the last gift of Vedavyāsa in the world of the scriptures - Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. That Kṛṣṇa, that beauty is above all, not knowledge, not justice. Mercy is above justice. Affection, love, is above justice. Beauty, charm, harmony, above all. And that conception of the Ultimate Reality is in Kṛṣṇa conception. Beauty is above knowledge and power. Knowledge is above power, and above knowledge there is beauty, there is charm, there is love. That is the Supreme. So Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead that represents love, beauty, harmony, that is above all. Kṛṣṇas tu bhagavān svayam.

[ete cāṁśa-kalāḥ puṁsaḥ, kṛṣṇas tu bhagavān svayam / indrāri-vyākulaṁ lokaṁ, mṛḍayanti yuge yuge]

["All the above-mentioned incarnations are either plenary portions or portions of the plenary portions of the Lord, but Lord Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the original Personality of Godhead. All of them appear on planets whenever there is a disturbance created by the atheists. The Lord incarnates to protect the theists."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.3.28]

This was declared by Bhāgavatam. The Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead is the most original conception of Godhead, of the Absolute. This is the declaration of Bhāgavatam. The conception of the beauty as Lord, that is above all. And next, awe, reverence, power. Nārāyaṇa. And then all these things.

And Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanya Deva, He pointed out, "Go to the beautiful, Reality the Beautiful. That is our highest attainment. Eliminate everything - neither hanker for power, nor for knowledge, but for service of the Beautiful. And you'll be taken in, that you'll get entrance into the land of beauty, beautiful, and that is the highest realisation. Don't waste your energy by engaging you in this or that or so many others. But go straight, jñāna śūnya bhakti, sādhu saṅga, and by the help of that take the Name of the Lord and try to go straight, march towards Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. That is the highest of our achievement." That was given by Mahāprabhu, and Bhāgavatam.

And Bhāgavata came after all the scriptures had been given already by Vedavyāsa. By the special advice of Devarṣi Nārada, his Gurudeva, he gave us the Bhāgavatam. And Mahāprabhu He pointed out this Bhāgavatam. The last conclusion of the giver of all śāstras, Vedavyāsa. And don't waste your energy for anything else but for Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead. That recommended by Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanya Deva.

And we try to go to make our progress in that line. And also at the same time we ask our friends, "Try to go in this way. That is the fulfilment of life. Anyone and everyone may connect them from his particular position may take, start from this direction. And the fulfilment of life of every particle in the existence of this world is only that. So march towards universal good. Wherever you are does not matter, whoever you are does not matter, take your course towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness. And that is the highest fulfilment of the life of everyone. It is specially recommended by Mahāprabhu, Nityānanda Prabhu, from here, and it is in Bhāgavatam we find. And all other scriptures also if we note very specially then we can find that it's the inner idea everywhere. Just as in Bhagavad-gītā.

[ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ]

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

What does it mean? "Give up all your duties and come to Me."

Bāl Gaṅgādhar Tilak he also admitted Bhagavad-gītā. And under this sarva-dharmān śloka he has given this note. It is very beautiful. He says that, "In the last śloka the Lord has distributed nectar in a golden plate." [11.25 - 11.48 ?]

Wherever you are holding your position does not matter at all. Only you turn your face towards this and march. And He will, the Truth Absolute will welcome you. Kṛṣṇa. And this is the campaign of Gauḍīya Maṭha.

yāre dekha, tāre kaha 'kṛṣṇa'-upadeśa [āmāra ājñāya guru hañā tāra ei deśa
kabhu nā vādhibe tomāra viṣaya-taraṅga, punarapi ei ṭhāñi pābe mora saṅga]

["Instruct whoever you meet in the science of Kṛṣṇa. Teach them the instructions of Kṛṣṇa in Bhagavad-gītā, and the teachings about Kṛṣṇa in Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. In this way, on My order, become a Guru and liberate everyone in the land. If you follow this instruction, the waves of materialism within this world will not affect you. Indeed, if you follow My order, you will soon attain My association."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 7.128-9]

Mahāprabhu says, "Whomever you come across you talk of Him, about Kṛṣṇa, the highest end of our life. Only give news to them, "There is Kṛṣṇa, He's one, and you belong to Him. Only He's your only friend. He can satisfy everything. Whatever demand you have in your inner heart, that only can find satisfaction in connection with Him, no other. None other can satisfy all your inner hankering. The corresponding phase only with Him, then He's Kṛṣṇa."

In other words, Rūpa Goswāmī told in a scientific word, akhila-rasāmṛta-sindhu. Our heart is hankering for satisfaction with happiness of different type. But He's the emporium of all such rasas. All types of rasa is in Him, and He's the personified of them all. So everyone can find his corresponding phase in Him alone, and nowhere else. And He's Kṛṣṇa. Akhila-rasāmṛta-murtiḥ. All the necessary satisfactions are personified there in a scientific way in Him only. So He can satisfy you. So He can only say that, "Give up everything, come to Me, and you won't have to repent, you will find your highest satisfaction." None has said so in any place - only Kṛṣṇa said that.

And Mahāprabhu pointed out that, "Go direct that side. Don't go this side, hither thither, march straight towards Kṛṣṇa conception. That is your home." Tumibe na karana he radha ramana [?] Say like that, this slogan. "I belong to none but to You my Lord." With this slogan march towards Him. Tumibe na karana he. "I belong to none, I'm wholesale Yours. Wholesale I'm Yours."

In Vedānta, brahma-jijñāsā, in Upaniṣad, brahmansa. And Mahāprabhu, that was given life. The enquiry after Brahman, when that was given life, then it became kṛṣṇānusandhāna in Mahāprabhu. Kāhāṅ kṛṣṇa prāna nātha.

Śaṅkara, intellectually he's engaging himself to find out what is Brahman from the Upaniṣad.

And that was a living thing in Mahāprabhu. "Where is Kṛṣṇa? I can't live, I can't stand without Him. He's My friend, He's My Lord, He's everything to Me. I can't live without Him."

That brahma-jijñāsā, and kṛṣṇānusandhāna of Mahāprabhu. That is lifeless, intellectualism. And here it is full of life. Kṛṣṇa. Kāhāṅ kṛṣṇa. "I can't live without Him." Flow of love and affection for that Brahman, not satisfaction of intellectualism, but the very life enlivened, enlivened brahma-jijñāsā.

kāhāṅ mora prāna nātha muralī-vadana, kāhāṅ karoṅ kāhāṅ pāṅ vrajendra-nandana

[Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu said: "Where is My beloved Kṛṣṇa? I can't tolerate His separation. Where is the Lord of My life, who is playing His flute? What shall I do now? Where should I go to find the son of Mahārāja Nanda?"] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.15]

This is also brahma-jijñāsā but it's a living type, and that is a dead one, intellectualism. In Upaniṣad.

And so Bhāgavatam has been called the ripe fruit of the tree of Veda. Veda has been compared with a tree, and Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam a ripe fruit of the tree. Full fledged theism. The whole purpose of the tree has come into the fruit, and that is also ripe to be tasted by us. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. If one particular volume of the śāstras has been used for witchcraft, or sahajiyā rituals, are we to consider that particular book as contaminated?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not that. In the Veda there are different departments of learning, contains the whole, some āmnāya some vyatireka, direct or indirect teachings, many things may be added. Just as in the Absolute there is māyā, misconception, in the whole, in the Absolute, the māyā has got its position. So it is necessary to have a conception of the full. Anujnatu, inner guidance, that is śraddhā. The appreciation and association will come from within to recognise where I may be benefited. Inner guidance, caitya Guru, or śraddhā. By śraddhā we come to have some inner guidance that is caitya Guru, the Guru, the preceptor living inside us. And by that help we can come to mahānta Guru, the Guru outside, and there we are to take instruction, advice, guidance, all these things. He does not understand my English version perhaps?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Do you follow what I say?

Devotee: Yes Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: By sukṛti and śraddhā we have got some inner guiding tendency and by the help of that we shall come to understand our outside favourable association. Not knowledge but heart will be able to select about bhakti, śraddhā, ruci. Our inner tendency, that will guide us, and not our reason. Reason there may be but the principal guidance from ruci, or our inner hankering, or something, love, that will guide us. Bhaktyā sañjātayā bhaktyā.

[smarantaḥ smārayantaś ca, mitho 'ghaugha-haraṁ harim

["The devotees of the Lord constantly discuss the glories of the Personality of Godhead among themselves. Thus they constantly remember the Lord and remind one another of His qualities and pastimes. In this way, by their devotion to the principles of bhakti-yoga, the devotees please the Personality of Godhead, who takes away from them everything inauspicious. Being purified of all impediments, the devotees awaken to pure love of Godhead, and thus, even within this world, their spiritualised bodies exhibit symptoms of transcendental ecstasy, such as standing of the bodily hairs on end."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.3.31]

Bhakti can only give bhakti, nothing else, it is most fundamental, elementary thing. Nothing can produce bhakti, only bhakti can produce bhakti. Bhakti is by itself. As Hegel told, "Absolute is by Itself." So bhakti is by itself, absolute nature, function, that is by herself, rather. Ahaitukī, no cause, causeless. Nothing can produce devotion. Devotion is eternally existing and devotion can give devotion and nothing else can give devotion. Devotion is such an original substance. Nothing can oppose it, oppose her, and nothing can create her. She's eternally existing with the Absolute as His nature, inseparable from Him.

Ajñāta-sukṛti, jñāta-sukṛti, śraddhā. Then śraddhā ratir bhaktir anukramiṣyati.

By gradual development it gets the name of the prema, of love, in its final position, in her final position. What is śraddhā in the beginning, when fully developed that becomes divine love.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja, you say that association is very important, but this association is the same mentality?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mentality, mind is a foreign thing, acquired thing, from the illusory world. But nature you may say more applicable, same tendency, same nature.

Devotee: For me it's not possible to see the nature of the others, spiritual nature.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It may not be detectable but undetectably also she may work. Subconscious work also possible for her. That is called fortune, sometimes.

brahmāṇḍa brhamite kona bhāgyavān jīva [guru-kṛṣṇa-prasāde pāya bhakti-latā-bīja]

["Wandering throughout the material universe, the very fortunate living entity who receives the grace of Guru and Kṛṣṇa receives the seed of the creeper of devotional service."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.151]

While wandering through the different species in this world of creation, any fortunate soul comes to have a real guide, Guru, bhāgyavān, fortune. That means sukṛti, unconsciously, subconsciously acquired wealth, that is in the subconscious world. That may help us, underground. That is bhāgya, sukṛti, previously, unconsciously acquired merit, as a part of pure devotion. In crude form, underground.

... then we have got some action for our free will, cooperation with that śraddhā, may help me.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Mahārāja, Dāmodara Prabhu _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

...

Devotee: Can we say that the jīva has got free will?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Conscious element means endowed with free will. A part of that possesses a part of free will. Part of consciousness, part of light, also possesses the quality of light. Something like that.

Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: A part of stone possesses the quality of the stone. So consciousness means what is endowed with free will, light and free will. So anu-caitanya, anu free will. A small quantity of free will, small quantity of consciousness, reason, all these things. Otherwise, how that will be able to cooperate with the whole? Bindhu bindhu, in very small quantity.

But in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu it is mentioned Kṛṣṇa possessing full sixty-four qualities. Nārāyaṇa full, sixty qualities. Ordinary [demi] gods possessing partial, fifty-five qualities. And ordinary jīva possessing fifty partial qualities. What are the qualifications it is mentioned there. "Jīva fifty, higher gods fifty-five, all partial. Nārāyaṇa sixty, full qualities. And Kṛṣṇa sixty-four, full. And Rādhārāṇī, She is told to possess twenty-five more full qualities." It is mentioned there. You can try to get knowledge from there.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa kathā.

nāhaṁ vasāmi vaikuṇṭhe yogināṁ hṛdayeṣu vā mad bhaktāḥ yatra gāyante tatra tiṣṭhāmī nārada

There is a saying in some Purāṇa. "Nāhaṁ vasāmi vaikuṇṭhe. Nārada, I do not live in the transcendental world, vaikuṇṭha, infinite. I'm not to be traced in the conception of infinite.

Yoginām hṛdayeṣu vā. Neither I exist in the heart of the thinkers, heart of the yogīs. That is, thinkers of the smallest part of the world, the finest part of the world, the subtle-most aspect of the world, not there. But mad bhaktāḥ yatra gāyante. Wherever My devotees they chant about Me, I stay there." Lord says. "My devotees, where they talk about Me, I'm there."

In the Rāmānuja School three Āḷvārs, Āḷvār means pārṣada, who are eternally living in Vaikuṇṭha with Nārāyaṇa, eternal servitors, they're known as Āḷvārs in the South of India, Tamil word. One dark night anyhow in a temple, three Āḷvārs met together. Some occasion brought those three together. Then, they cannot see one another but they heard of their name but can't see in the dark night. They're talking about Nārāyaṇa, one talking about Nārāyaṇa, another giving answer. In this way these three anyhow met and talking in a dark night unknown to one another in a temple. And one of them asked, "Do you feel the presence of a fourth man here, fourth person?" Another says, "Yes." And what is meant by that? In their talk, Nārāyaṇa has come there, He's also present there.

"Mad bhaktāḥ yatra gāyante. Wherever My devotees they talk about Me I cannot but be present there. I may withdraw from the heart of the yogīs. I may withdraw from the knowledge of those that deal with all-comprehensive aspect of the world, of the whole. But I can't withdraw from the place where My devotees are talking with one another about Me. That is the most charming place for Me."

So Kṛṣṇa kathā, talk about Kṛṣṇa is Kṛṣṇa Himself. The Name of Kṛṣṇa is Kṛṣṇa Himself.

deha-dehi vibhedo 'yaṁ neśvare vidyate kvacit

["There is no difference between body and soul in the Supreme Personality of Godhead."]
[Kūrma Purāṇa] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 5.41, purport]

No whole and parts, part and whole, such consideration is not present there. Each part can work as the whole, can represent the whole. His eye can represent the ear, the nose, everything. His foot, His hair also can represent everything for Him. Such autonomy is there. The autonomy characteristic is there in such a way that every part represents the whole.

Mahāprabhu told to Sanātana Goswāmī, "Do you not understand that every letter in Bhāgavatam represents the whole of Kṛṣṇa?"

When Sanātana Goswāmī told to Mahāprabhu, "You Yourself are Kṛṣṇa so whatever explanation You may like to draw from Bhāgavatam You are able to do that."

Ātmārāmāś śloka, [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.7.10], one poem Mahāprabhu gave sixty-one kinds of interpretations on one śloka, one poem.

Then Sanātana Goswāmī told, "You Yourself are Kṛṣṇa, Infinite, so You can represent everything in the infinite characteristic."

"Sanātana, why do you admire Me? Don't you know that every part of Bhāgavatam is full Kṛṣṇa."

A part of Infinite is Infinite. No number of finite can make Infinite. So every part of Kṛṣṇa is full Kṛṣṇa. We are to understand in such a way. Puzzling. Acintya, not to enter into the cell of human brain. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Still, we have no other prospect, highest prospect than to deal with that thing, which is more than infinite. Infinite is in His one part.

[athavā bahunaitena, kiṁ jñātena tavārjjuna] viṣṭabhyāham idaṁ kṛtsnam, ekāṁśena sthito jagat

["But Arjuna, what is the need of your understanding this elaborate knowledge of My almighty grandeur? By My fractional expansion as the Supreme Soul of material nature, Mahā-Viṣṇu (Kāraṇārṇavaśāyī Viṣṇu), I remain supporting this entire universe of moving and stationary beings."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 10.42]

"I lie down in Śeṣa," means infinite, Ānanta Svayaṁ, His bed is infinite. On the bed of infinite He lays and sleeps, Ānanta Svayaṁ.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. So give up the way of knowledge, to know Him, to measure Him. But whatever little quota of service given to you, try to be satisfied with that. There you will find Him, according to your fullest capacity, to full degree in your capacity. As much as in the ocean, so much water, my necessity is only a glass, that will suffice. So for you, He's not bankrupt, not bankrupt to anyone of us, or any number of us. So we're not to be afraid that so many partners, so many beggars, then how their thirst may be filled up? No anxiety in that way. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Happiness, satisfaction, we're hankering for a drop of it, but the ocean of that mercy, that grace, that love divine, ocean, how much we can contain? How much can we contain? One drop. Eka-bindu jagat ḍubāya.

[kṛṣṇa-rūpāmṛta-sindhu, tāhāra taraṅga-bindu, eka-bindu jagat ḍubāya
trijagate yata nārī, tāra citta-ucca-giri, tāhā ḍubāi āge uṭhi' dhāya]

["The consciousness of each woman within the three worlds is certainly like a high hill, but the sweetness of Kṛṣṇa's beauty is like an ocean. Even a drop of water from that ocean can flood the entire world and submerge all the high hills of consciousness."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 15.19]

Mahāprabhu says, "Only one drop is sufficient to inundate the whole creation, one drop is sufficient. The whole creation will be inundated. Eka-bindu jagat ḍubāya."

It is of such character. And no end of our search, kṛṣṇānusandhāna. No end of such life that one day our search will be finished and we shall sit tight as a capitalist with a big belly? No! Always students, always searching, ānusandhāna. Such a thing, infinite, always searching as a student. When he's making the duty of a professor, still he's a student because Infinite cannot be finished. To know Infinite, that attempt can never be finished, it will go further and further.

Kīrtanānanda told me, "Yes, we may be students but not in your school, in our Guru Mahārāja's school."

There may be a common institution where your Guru Mahārāja and myself were students. Ha, ha, ha.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Our Gurudeva also wrote in Madras in his Vyāsa-pūjā address, "I'm monitor, a leader in this class, a leader in the class of devotion, amongst the students."

The leader student is known as monitor or something? He posed himself like that.

"All students in the school of bhakti, devotion. And for this group, I think that I possess the position of a monitor, the leader amongst the students. I'm making study and also trying to coach others of lower standard."

And sometimes he comes to see that, "Oh, these are higher than myself. Kṛṣṇa has engaged me to serve them." Guru, sometimes the Guru sees the disciple as his own Guru, so many Gurus. "So many Gurus, Kṛṣṇa has engaged me to serve them, to treat the disciple also to do some service, to that Kṛṣṇa and the student. I'm serving Him. Not educating him, not in the sense that I'm master and he's lower, or holding lower position, not that. Kṛṣṇa has engaged me to help them in service."

In the conception of service also it may be seen that śiṣya is Guru and the Guru is servant to the śiṣya. Such aspects may also be serving.

So many materials are offered to the Deity and the devotee does some service to those materials and makes them fit for the consumption of the Deity. Whatever s/he does is all service, not enjoyment, not exploitation. Whatever s/he does, a cent per cent Vaiṣṇava, all their actions are in the mood of service in connection with the Centre and His relations, His parts. Service, everything is service.

When the husband and wife are being united that is also service, it is possible. Not exploiting one another. In the mood of service everything can be done, and that is in the transcendental world. Without the spirit of exploitation, mood of exploitation, we can cooperate. We can exploit a thing, we can renounce a thing, and we can serve a thing. Divine life is in service. Every unit is serving another unit in connection with Kṛṣṇa. It is possible. What we cannot think, that it cannot be in the spirit of service, but it can be. Everything can be approached, every action may be approached in the mood of service, it is possible.

Especially in Vṛndāvana conception, in Vraja conception, in the highest quarter of the divinity it is such. Everything, all phases of activity there, but all in the spirit of loving service. Love means service, service of a sweet type, sweet type of service is love. Without service in the background, without that love is not possible. Sacrifice, love means sacrifice, based on sacrifice. Love divine. One who loves some, then s/he's ready to sacrifice for them, that is love. Love divine, how noble that thing. How much tendency to sacrifice oneself for others. The highest type of sacrificed love we find in Vṛndāvana, that very sweet plane of love. And the very atmosphere is surcharged with divine sacrifice and service, that is love, automatic. And there is also the sweetmeats of different kinds. So that sweet behaviour, conduct with one another, that is also of different types like different types of sweetmeats, variety. Variegated sweetness of service there, five groups, and then again some subdivision, super subdivision, in this way, branching and branching and branching.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. We're often, due to our past habits, we're often thinking that we're the enjoyers of this devotional process. This is the reverse idea. It's a very unhealthy attitude, "I want to enjoy devotional service."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Enjoy devotion? Hmm? You say that we can also enjoy devotion, is it?

In one sense it is there. There is some enjoyment, means satisfaction. Not only that is the highest quality satisfaction. If enjoyment means satisfaction, ecstasy, but not exploitation. Die to live. By robbing a person we may be satisfied, and also by donating something to a person also we can find satisfaction. But these two satisfactions of different types. In this way we're to push. So the satisfaction in exploitation is not of a similar type when we give something, a donation to a person who is satisfied, qualitative difference.

So similar, in the highest sacrifice of very highest type of satisfaction we find rasa. Rasa is everywhere, sukha, rasa, happiness, pleasure. But lowest kind is reactionary, and the highest kind, that is also reactionary but that reaction brings you, 'dāsa' kari' vetana more deha prema-dhana. That sacrificing tendency is increased more and more, that way. Rasa, the lowest type of rasa and the highest type of rasa. Lowest type of rasa in the crude exploitation, then regulated exploitation, then by renunciation, and then by service, considered and then by automatic, spontaneous service, in this way. But the rasa, the pleasure, or satisfaction, their quality and degree will be different.

One can kill, for selfish purpose one can kill a man, and for the good of the country also in a war also they sacrifice and they kill. They kill persons when fighting against a country. That killing and killing for selfish ends may be different. And dedication also in that way. But this is all mundane, we're only giving an example to understand that it's quite different. Hmm? What do you say?

Devotee: But to seek satisfaction is natural for the soul? To seek the desire for enjoyment is natural in the soul, in the living entity?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No, not in the soul, it is in the mind, it is in the cover of the soul, not to be found in the soul proper. Soul's proper function is service, sevā. And the foreign thing has come, accumulated, that is this misconceived idea, there is that thing. That is unnatural thing, not in the nature of the soul. Soul is seeker of satisfaction but by sacrifice, die to live, that process. Give and be happy. Take and give happiness, and give and feel happiness. Two kinds of happiness. One by giving, another by robbing, opposite.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. This is quite clear in this world also different types of happiness, and that may be extended, infinite. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: Mahārāja. _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. From the morning I'm engaged. This party, that party, this subject, that subject, going on. _____ [?] Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. So I close here.

Devotee: Jaya Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda Paramahaṁsa Parivrājakācārya Aṣṭottara-śata Śrī Śrīmad Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Prabhupāda kī jaya.

83.12.04.A_83.12.09.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

[kṣipram bhavati dharmātmā, śaśvac-chāntiṁ nigacchati
kaunteya pratijānīhi, na me bhaktaḥ pranaśyati]

["He soon becomes righteous [dharmātmā] and attains lasting peace. O son of Kuntī, declare it boldly that My devotee never perishes." [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.31]

"Śaśvac-chāntiṁ nigacchati. And he will be seen to acquire the real peace in his life. Kaunteya pratijānīhi. Oh, you son of Kuntī, you go and declare in the public with determination. Pratijānīhi. You may promise, give them a guarantee, to the public, that na me bhaktaḥ pranaśyati. My devotee never meets destruction, they can't be ruined."

So their contention, Yāmarāja, Brahmā, Nārada, in this point they do not find solution.

sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja
[ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ]

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

"Giving up all sorts of duties one may come to My feet. This is ananya-bhajana. One who will give up all phases of duties and only accept his duty towards Me, My exclusive devotee is he."

"Now, kṣipram bhavati dharmātmā, he will again be seen as a dutiful man, externally pious man."

This is anomaly. The meaning of ananya-bhajana is that he'll give all sorts of duties.

"Pure, impure, everything, and he'll come to My feet." Again, "He will be very saintly in his activities in the near future." What is the meaning? Do you follow?

Then at that time they marked that Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura he was moving in the sky and taking the Name, and they sent for him. "He's a pure devotee, and not any ordinary devotee but he has got deep knowledge in the scriptures. Let him come and explain this verse of Bhagavad-gītā."

So Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura was invited and he went there and he gave the meaning. Kṣipram bhavati dharmātmā. "Who will be dharmātmā?"

api cet sudurācāro, bhajate mām ananya-bhāk sādhur eva sa mantavyaḥ, [samyag vyavasito hi saḥ]

"The conclusion should be, or remark will be that he's a saint, cent per cent saint, ananya-bhāk. Sādhur eva sa mantavyaḥ, samyag vyavasito hi saḥ. And his statement is cent per cent right, who utters that decision. That exclusive devotee of Kṛṣṇa, whatever be his outer practices, he's cent per cent saintly. And who can understand and utter this, mantavyaḥ, who can understand such principle, he will be dharmātmā. He will in the near future, shortly, he will become dharmātmā, that is, his conduct will be very pure very soon."

And śaśvac-chāntiṁ. "And he will also get the chance of accepting the path towards eternal truth. So, you Arjuna, you take this advantage and go to the public and there you declare with boldness that My devotee who is given wholly towards Me, though apparently, outwardly, he may be doing something wrong, but he won't be destroyed, he'll be saved. Na me bhaktaḥ. No destruction for My exclusive devotee, his life is ensured. Go to the public and declare, and you take the benefit of becoming, by this declaration you will get that benefit, that you will become saintly and you will have the chance of the acceptance of the spiritually eternal peace. Whoever will understand will have the courage to declare that My exclusive devotees are never ruined. They get this chance in their turn and very soon they'll also come to this path and they will attain the eternal peace."

Am I clear?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It is told there.

...

He has got that appreciation, that exclusive devotion. Everything is meant, everything is for Itself and not for any other part. We may obey or disobey the laws of the provincial and separate interest, may do or not do. But we must obey the rules "For Itself. Everything For Him."

That is the main rule, all others are subsidiary. We may carry on or may not carry on, but we must carry on our duty towards the centre. That is the all-important factor in every case.

"And one who can appreciate that and boldly assert that to the public, he must have got some substantial feeling in the matter. And he's sure to survive to improve his future condition very soon, and he will get that path of eternal peace, that is Myself."

That is the underlying meaning. Sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja. That is the highest quality in every part of the whole, that everyone must be dedicated towards the Centre, even crossing his dutifulness in respect to other environments, positions. And one who can feel this, appreciate this, and assert this, he will also soon get such position, because his inner heart can appreciate and there is something of the realisation in that path. So that will also come to victory very soon and the public will also see that he is also coming in this path of ananya-bhajana, exclusive adherence towards the call of the Absolute Centre. That is all in all. And these things, kṣipram bhavati dharmātmā, dharma means moral, dutiful, father, mother, country, society, all these things, humanity, all these dharmas, duties.

"But neglecting all these if one keeps up his straight relationship with Me, he will be considered not committing any fault. He's in the line of sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja, he's doing right. And one who can appreciate this he will also very soon be converted in the same class. That is the value."

Devotee: This is a new light of your explanation Mahārāja, of your revealed explanation.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Devotee: _____ kṣipram bhavati dharmātmā _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Śaśvac-chāntiṁ nigacchati _____ [?]

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ śaśvac-chāntiṁ nigacchati.

Devotee: _____ [?] Mahārāja, this sort of explanation. But other Guru vargas take...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "Not only who is following the exclusive devotional path, but who can appreciate this, he will no sooner be a member of this school."

Devotee: How others have explained it, other Guru vargas, general explanation, it is your specific explanation...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sādhur eva sa mantavyaḥ, samyag vyavasito hi saḥ. Kṣipram bhavati dharmātmā. They will say that what lack, he's in a sādhana course, but when he'll be mature all these things will disappear. That is it may disappear or may not disappear, that is my question. But develop sarva- dharmān parityajya. _____ [?]

Devotee: Rūpa Goswāmī Prabhu has already given definition of that.

dṛṣṭaiḥ svabhāva-janitair vapuṣaś ca doṣair na prākṛtatvam iha bhakta-janasya paśyet [gaṅgāmbhasāṁ na khalu budbuda-phena-paṅkair brahma-dravatvam apagacchati nīra-dharmaiḥ]

["Being situated in his original Kṛṣṇa conscious position, a pure devotee does not identify with the body. Such a devotee should not be seen from a materialistic point of view. Indeed, one should overlook a devotee's having a body born in a low family, a body with a bad complexion, a deformed body, or a diseased or infirm body. According to ordinary vision, such imperfections may seem prominent in the body of a pure devotee, but despite such seeming defects, the body of a pure devotee cannot be polluted. It is exactly like the waters of the Ganges, which sometimes during the rainy season are full of bubbles, foam and mud. The Ganges waters do not become polluted. Those who are advanced in spiritual understanding will bathe in the Ganges without considering the condition of the water."] [Śrī Upadeśāmṛta, 6]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hmm. Rūpa Goswāmī has seen, has given description. Just as the Ganges water is seen to be filthy, but externally. Externally filthy Ganges can it not purify? It can. Externally filthy Ganges water, the purifurcatory capacity of Ganges water has got no concern with external filthiness. Good scent or foam and any mud connection that cannot remove the purifying tendency and capacity of the Ganges water.

So the Vaiṣṇava, they may have physical and mental defect, but Vaiṣṇava means the ātmā, in ātmā they're a purifying agency, the purest, normal factor in the world. But externally, whatever may be seen there, like that foam and dirt in the Ganges water. The purifying capacity of the Ganges water cannot be disturbed by any foam or any dirt mixed with the water. That is something separate. That spiritual capacity does not depend in any way on these material, foreign things or capacity. So Vaiṣṇava, he may be seen as a little greedy, some a little excited easily, all these things. Physically also, one may be blind, another may be deaf, another may be lame. "Why a Vaiṣṇava will be a lame man? Why he can't hear well?" But these things won't do. That Vaiṣṇava, that saintly characteristic is independent of the physical.

The Vāsudevavipra he was a leper, in Mahāprabhu's Southern tour, in Kurmakṣetra, a leper Vāsudeva, he was a great devotee. And in the physical conduct also if any worm is falling on the earth from his sore he's putting the worm back into the sore so it didn't die. And also suffering from leprosy but he was a devotee cent per cent. Mahāprabhu found him and that leprosy disappeared when He embraced him. In this way.

Sanātana Goswāmī when coming back to Purī from Benares, or Vṛndāvana, then, by the contact of the bad water in the jungle he had some sores on his body. Mahāprabhu used to welcome him and he pushed back, "Don't touch this body of a sinful man. So many itches and sores are oozing this bad odour, all these things, don't touch me." Mahāprabhu forcibly embraced him.

Then one day he told that, "I should leave the place, or I should invite death, falling before the wheel of the Jagganātha cart."

Then Mahāprabhu, when He heard He chastised him. And then again forcibly embraced, and those things disappeared, the good body came out immediately. In this way.

Mahāprabhu told, "Sanātana, you are a Vaiṣṇava, your body may not be so defective. Vaiṣṇava 'prākṛta' kabhu naya, it is Kṛṣṇa's test to Me. I'm a sannyāsī. Whether I have got any difference in the recognition in My dealing with the Vaiṣṇava, 'between the show is here, this defect is there in the Vaiṣṇava so I must keep him aside,' Kṛṣṇa is testing Me. Only for that purpose it is seen. And your body is already pure. Only to test the public Kṛṣṇa has created this. And if I cannot see it then I'll be deceived by Kṛṣṇa. So it is nothing, it is nothing but a mere show. Your body's as pure as anything. You are a Vaiṣṇava, devotee of Kṛṣṇa. This is only apparently shown to serve some purpose of the divinity of Kṛṣṇa. And where there is vaiṣṇavatara, saintly devotedness, there can never be such things. Only to test My devotion Kṛṣṇa has sent you in this condition to Me."

So He embraced and showed that he's as pure as anything. Hare Kṛṣṇa. He may be or may not be, still, the principle is this, that our duty is wholesale dutifulness towards Kṛṣṇa. That is only necessary.

In the ordinary sense the gopīs, they're also sinners, they're crossing the laws of the society and the śāstra so they're sinners. But they hold the highest position of purity for their exclusive devotedness towards Kṛṣṇa and none else. Even at the risk of so much, crossing morality, they cannot help themselves but to serve Kṛṣṇa cent per cent and they're considered to be the highest devotional ideal. But that sort of devotion is not very cheap.

Anyone in this world may say, "go on in taking that advantage," that won't do. The devotion must be there and there will be some measurement of the devotion. Anyone, he will pass in the name of exclusive devotion, but sahajiyā, that cannot be allowed.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Mahārāja, two new devotees have come from America.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: New devotees? Today?

...

Devotee: ... Is that like we can try to follow in the footsteps of Sanātana Goswāmī while chanting, while taking the Name? Once I heard you say that we should surrender to the Name and allow the Name to take us wherever He wants.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh yes. That means sevonmukhe hi jihvādau.

[ataḥ śrī-kṛṣṇa-nāmādi na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiḥ
sevonmukhe hi jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty adaḥ]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrva-vibhāga, 2.234]

To be in the spirit of service, dedication to the Name, what does it mean? Surrendering means to get impetus from that quarter to regulate me. And there, the connection will be supreme. Supreme means He does not come to me as a servant, subservient, but as a master. His connection means the connection of a master. He'll regulate me. As much as I shall come nearer to Him I shall feel His command and His master-hood that I am fully regulated by Him, to every natha, impure, every natha. Name connection, to get the connection of the Name or anything of the Supreme, that means to be regulated by Him. Otherwise I am subject and that is an object, that is an experience of māyā.

Do you follow? The criterion is there. "One will find that he's humbler than humbler, and he's only an instrument to the hands of that universal force of Me." That is the criterion, and not that I'm a subject and I'm enjoying the sound and feeling some sentiment within me. And some sort of shivering and the hairs are standing on end. These external symptoms have no value. The real thing is that, "as much as I'm entering into the command of Him, and as much as I can think that I'm helpless of the helpless. Only an instrument in His hand, everything for Himself, that must be 'die to live,' we must keep it in mind, 'die to live.'" This ego must be dissolved and another new ego from within will spring up. It means such thing in reality. The test is there, that I'm being handled by Him. Gradually more and more. "I'm His servant, nitya-dāsa, servitor. And He's kind enough to regulate me to its highest intensity. He's my Lord, everywhere, everything is under His control." That sort of transformation must come within.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

jayati jayati nāmānanda rūpam murarer, viramita nija dharma dhyāna pujyadhi yatna [katham api sakṛdāttam muktidaṁ prānināṁ yat, paramāmṛtam ekaṁ jīvanaṁ bhuṣanaṁ me]

[Sanātana Goswāmī says, "Let ecstasy in the service of the Divine Name be victorious. If somehow we can come in contact with that sound, nāma rupaṁ murāreḥ, then all our other activities will be paralysed; we will have no necessity of performing any other activity. Our many variegated duties will have no importance to us at all if we can achieve the service of the Divine Name of Kṛṣṇa."]

[Bṛhad-Bhāgavatāmṛtam, 1.1.9]

Nija dharma, duty, as we find in the direction of the varṇāśrama, our duty to the god, to the world, to the environment. Dhyāna, meditation about anything and everything. Pūjā, the arcana of the Rāmānuja section. Jñāna, of the Śankara and other sections, and duty of the Jains, karma-kāṇḍi, everything will be off. Katham api sakṛdāttam muktidaṁ prānināṁ yat. Anyhow if we get the grace of the Divine Name our liberation is effected, unconsciously, muktidaṁ prānināṁ yat, but that is not the real gift of the Name. Muktidaṁ prānināṁ yat paramāmṛtam ekaṁ jīvanaṁ bhuṣanaṁ me. And it comes to show that that is one with Kṛṣṇa and He's the Lord of your life, and the ornament, everything in your life is He, that Kṛṣṇa, that Name. The Name and the Kṛṣṇa Himself, the figure, the colour are one and the same inseparably They're one. And that is the Lord of your heart. And the ornamental necessity in you also comes from there, that is everything to be found in Him. The Lord of your life and also the supplier of all external activities to you also is He. Jīvanaṁ bhuṣanaṁ me. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Wholesale transformation to Kṛṣṇa's satisfaction, and die to live. Die as a member of your family life, or country life, or human life, social life, religious life, so far, die there. Ha, ha. Disappear completely from there and fit into another world. Live, try to have your life in another plane, exclusively. Exclusively try to float in another plane with full life, full service of Kṛṣṇa consciousness, transformation, real adjustment. This is we're all maladjusted in this universe. Proper adjustment is the adjustment in the respect of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. He's the Supreme. We're all subservient. Everything for Himself and we're to follow that course wholesale. He's beauty, He's love, He's affection, He's ecstasy, above justice, and above any energy also, power, exertion. No amount of exertion, no amount of decision can give Him, only surrender, devotion. Internal sincere taste for Him, that is qualification. "I want Him from the core of my heart." That is the real qualification. "I want Him and Him alone." That is the qualification, want and you'll have, the simple way. Ha. ha. Want and you'll have. But want sincerely and not superficially, but from the inner core of your heart. You want Him, you'll have Him. This is the general, easy, simple, natural way to attain Him.

No good deeds from your present plane can help you, but the association with them and inner things. The heart is sealed, that ego, that must be broken, and the inner flow will come out. And that will recognise where is the plane to love and to mix, where is his home. Back to God, back to home. The ahaṅkāra, that is ego, that must be broken and the inner flow will come out.

Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.21, & 11.20.30]

All doubts will be cleared. Just as a child jumps to the mother's lap can recognise that she's my mother, intuitively, like that. That inner flow will come out and select, "Oh, this is my home plane. I'm child of this soil. I'm floating externally here and there and suffering from reaction."

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Hmm. Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So Gopīnātha is prayojana, that is ultimately we take shelter there, we're ordinary. Though our position mainly in the Govinda, rūpānuga, there. But anyone ordinarily wants Vṛndāvana he'll have position in the most magnanimous and gracious acceptance of Kṛṣṇa as gopī in the rasa. Gopīnātha represents the rasa līlā, the wide circle in the mādhurya rasa, dancing, chanting. That is Gopīnātha. And select few direct in Gopīnātha. And Madana Mohana, only Rādhā Madana Mohan, where there's none, no other gopī also when They're alone, Kṛṣṇa, Madana Mohan. Sambandha is there. ...but what for? Not for any material purpose, but for the highest purpose, for Kṛṣṇa consciousness. External adopt-ability was very, very generous, very, very broad. But internal position was firm and fixed in the highest position. And he came with the widest sādhana to take the Name, His worship. And other forms eliminated. Only through sound we can cultivate, with the help of sound. But that must be genuine source, not any sham thing, not imitation but genuine thing. Only through sound, sound is enough. Only sound connection of Kṛṣṇa is enough, but it must be Kṛṣṇa sound, Kṛṣṇa conception.

Autocrat. Beauty but Autocrat. So degree of surrender you are to consider. No limit of surrender because going to surrender to the Autocrat, no limit. One side surrender, another side Autocrat. Now think what to do. You are to die to live. If you really want to live you'll have to die as you are, a wholesale death. Have you got such boldness? So die to live. That is all right, no compromise, you'll have to die. And die for what? To sacrifice, to satisfy the Autocrat. That is Beauty. And thereby you'll attain your best attainment by your degree of death, ha, ha, ha, as you are. What is this? Who will come for what, with such risk?

Hare Kṛṣṇa. The most optimistic person, he may come. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. I've one question. In Braja we see that there are many Mūrtis of Dauji and They're always blackish. But in the Bhāgavatam tenth canto we see that it says that Dauji is white colour. But we always have black Mūrti.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say? Who is he?

Dhanvantari dāsa: Dhanvantari dāsa.

Devotee: In Vṛndāvana there are many Śrī Vigraha of Śrī Baladeva.

Dhanvantari dāsa: He understood, he understood. Dauji. And They're blackish colour. But He's whitish in the Bhāgavatam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. Yes.

Dhanvantari dāsa: So I'm not understanding.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You may not understand. Here Keśava Mahārāja also made Kṛṣṇa in white colour, and in all our Maṭhas, Rādhārāṇī a golden colour, or all white stone colour. Do you see? But our eye in the reading of this physical eye, this black and white and red, has got no relation with that sort of black and golden and white. We're to understand that. Do you follow?

Dhanvantari dāsa: Yes. It is a physical thing.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Rādhārāṇī was golden, Kṛṣṇa was black. That does not mean that the black in the physical eye. So something nearer approach, by the help of the nearer approach you're to realise what is in the original. These are all approach towards that. The whiteness that this eye can see it has got no relation with that whiteness, and so on, so on. So we should not lay much stress on this physical experience. It is above, transcendental. Somehow some nearer impression is being given. Not this black, this white, this golden, this red, it is something else. Extreme case I'm giving to you, whether you can follow.

When in Manipur there was a revolt in the British period. There was one General Chichandragit [?]

Dhanvantari dāsa: One what?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: One General of Manipur State by name Chichandragit [?], he made some conspiracy against the British rule, and he used to prepare bombs and other things in the temple compound. Just as the chiefs are now demanding. So British got some scent and sent a General to inspect the matter, for inspection. But Chichandragit [?] General he did not allow that gentleman to enter the temple compound. But he forcibly tried to enter and he was killed, murdered there. At this the British were confident there must be some conspiracy, they sent military. And then the temple and the Deity was smashed by cannon shot, whole temple and Deity was demolished.

Now our Guru Mahārāja's comment on this. "The Śrī Vigraha we're to understand, that the Śrī Mūrti is one and the same with Kṛṣṇa, Rādhā-Govinda temple, Kṛṣṇa. And without the slight sanction of Kṛṣṇa not even a creeper can move, a straw can move. Everything, whatever happens by the wish, sweet will of Kṛṣṇa. And why this temple was smashed by cannon shot, and Kṛṣṇa He sanctioned that? Without His sanction nothing can happen. So Kṛṣṇa sanctioned to shoot His Own Deity there that was established and was being worshipped."

What is the reason? Do you follow? Eh?

Dhanvantari dāsa: Yes. I follow the point. What is the reason?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Why Kṛṣṇa willed to shatter His Own Śrī Mūrti there in Manipur? Without Kṛṣṇa's will nothing can happen. And His Own Vigraha was shot to pieces. What is - how? Our Guru Mahārāja told that, arcye viṣṇau śilā-dhīr guruṣu nara-matir vaiṣṇave jātī-buddhir

[viṣṇor vā vaiṣṇavānāṁ kali-mala-mathane pāda-tīrthe ʼmbu-buddhiḥ

viṣṇau sarvveśvareśe tad-itara-sama-dhīr yasya vā nārakī saḥ]

[Śrīla Vyāsadeva states in Padma-Purāṇa: "Anyone who considers the worshippable Deity of the Lord to be made out of wood, stone, or metal; who considers the Vaiṣṇava Guru to be a mortal man; who considers a Vaiṣṇava to be limited by the confines of caste, lineage, or creed; who considers the holy foot-wash of Lord Viṣṇu or a Vaiṣṇava to be ordinary water, although such water has the potency to destroy all evils of the age of Kali; who considers the Holy Name and mantra of Lord Viṣṇu, which vanquish all sins, to be common sound vibration; and who considers the God of gods, Lord Viṣṇu, to be merely on the level of the demigods - such a person is a diabolical devil."] [Padma-Purāṇa] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 13.94]

Bhauma ijya-dhīḥ.

[yasyātma-buddhiḥ kuṇape tri-dhātuke, sva-dhīḥ kalatrādiṣu bhauma ijya-dhīḥ yat-tīrtha-buddhiḥ salile na karhicij, janeṣv abhijñeṣu sa eva go-kharaḥ]

["One who identifies his self as the inert body composed of mucus, bile and air, who assumes his wife and family are permanently his own, who thinks an earthen image or the land of his birth is worshippable, or who sees a place of pilgrimage as merely the water there, but who never identifies himself with, feels kinship with, worships or even visits those who are wise in spiritual truth — such a person is no better than a cow or an ass."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.84.13]

In Bhāgavatam and Padma-Purāṇa it is mentioned that what really we do worship that is not stone, that is not wood, or any mineral. When generally we think that it is stone, it is mineral, it is wooden, that conception was shut down in a moment, demolished. Do you follow?

Dhanvantari dāsa: Hmm. Yes. We should not take it externally, the external is finished.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That external possibility of external conception of the reality, that had been demolished. So we should not give much importance into the external representation of things. It is gradually taking me that side. In this way it has been arranged.

Dhanvantari dāsa: Catching the spirit.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah.

ānukūlyasya saṅkalpaḥ, [prātikūlya-vivarjjanam / rakṣiṣyatīti viśvāso, goptṛtve varaṇaṁ tathā.
ātma-nikṣepa kārpaṇye, ṣaḍ-vidhā śaraṇāgatiḥ / evaṁ paryyāyataś cāsminn, ekaikādhyāyasaṅgrahaḥ]

["The six limbs of surrender are as follows: 1 - To accept everything favourable for devotion to Kṛṣṇa. 2 - To reject everything unfavourable for devotion to Kṛṣṇa. 3 - To be confident that Kṛṣṇa will grant His protection. 4 - To embrace Kṛṣṇa's guardianship. 5 - To offer oneself unto Him. 6 - To consider oneself lowly and bereft."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 22.100]

It is towards that, not that very thing. In this way we're to accept. Then the red complexion or - we must not make too much here in the experience of our senses. It is something like, but not as we have our sensual experience, not, but towards. Helpful, favourable. In this way we're to see things.

Dhanvantari dāsa: Like giving an idea.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. In gradual process we're being taken to them. We cannot but read material things, we're fully surcharged in and out with material conception. And to take out from that material conception some sort of material help is necessary. But that does not mean that what is given, extended to us, that is the thing. We're to go further and further to have the real representation.

Dhanvantari dāsa: Very nice, very nice.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

loke vyavāyāmiṣa-madya-sevā, nityā hi jantor na hi tatra codanā
vyavasthitis teṣu vivāha-yajña,-surā-grahair āsu nivṛttir iṣṭā

["Everyone is naturally inclined to have sex, eat meat, and drink wine. There is no need for the scripture to encourage these things. The scriptures do, however, give concessions to people who are determined to do these things. The scriptures therefore grant a license to enjoy sex by allowing sexual intercourse with one's lawfully wedded wife at the proper time of the month. They grant a license to eat meat to those who perform a certain kind of sacrifice, and a license to drink wine to those who perform the Sautramani sacrifice. The purpose of granting these licenses for sense gratification is only to restrict these activities and encourage people to give them up altogether. The real intention of the Vedic injunctions regarding sex, meat-eating, and wine-drinking is to make one abstain from these activities."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.5.11]

Just as a professor he's helping a boy to study, the professor has got much knowledge, but the boy not so much advanced in knowledge. So by instalment he will say when teaching geography, 'Sun is fixed, and the planets are all moving around the sun.' Again in higher study of astronomy or geography he will have to say, 'No, sun is also moving.' But if he says that to the boy, the boy will be perplexed.

So by instalments teachings are given to us by the śāstra, not wholesale at once, by instalment.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Dhanvantari dāsa: I have another question of a different subject. That in the Caitanya-caritāmṛta purport our Prabhupāda says that, "If a sannyāsī falls down, the only prāyaścitta is to drown himself in the triveni." But I'm thinking that there must be more understanding to this situation. It's one statement, a blanket statement, it's only prāyaścitta, drowning in the triveni.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is the standard has been given there, but the adjustment may be according to that ideal. In the time of application, according to the different type of cases, the different adjustment should be made. That is a general example is given. But particular application of the case may differ.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Dhanvantari dāsa: Guru Mahārāja. One more question please. I was reading Śrī Guru And His Grace recently, and it's challenging some of my...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You are reading, but we have not read it.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? Anyhow you may ask your question.

Dhanvantari dāsa: Some of my former conceptions are being altered by this, about the Guru Paramparā. Of course some say that it's coming down by dīkṣā, but we understand it may also come by śikṣā or by sat saṅga. But I was thinking previously that just like a chain is as strong as the weakest link in the chain. So if in the sampradāya one of the Gurus is not so qualified, then the disciple will not go beyond the qualification of the Guru. He will not rise higher than his Guru. But apparently that is not the fact. The sampradāya is not like a chain, exactly.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hmm? What does he say?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: If in the sampradāya one of the Gurus is weaker, if in the sampradāya one of the Gurus is not so strong as the others, then maybe the chain will suffer, or not.
_____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] There are many Gurus?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. If one is not so strong, will it cause deviation, in the message? Like that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You may apply the spiritual matters in ordinary cases which we understand properly. Suppose a combination of merchants. _____ [?] Of the merchant syndicate or something like.

Vidagdha Mādhava: Association.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Association of the merchants, so many members there are. One may understand that mercantile approach little less. Then how will it affect the association? In ordinary case also we can understand to certain, there also this common sense may be applied.

Dhanvantari dāsa: Hmm. Very good.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Educational syndicate, merchant association, then this military _____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Regiment.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All may not be equal, some higher, some lower. And what will be the effect there, we may apply that to these spiritual things.

If a blunt headed merchant he's the supreme, chairman of the association, and at his instruction everyone moves then that will lose in business. Or even in a neglected position one idiot merchant in neglected position then by the vote of the others he will also go on in any way he can.

The difficulty is this, that when we do not come into real conception of the spiritual substance there all these troubles come in. It is all vague, all imagination, all risk. But if we can feel that this is spirituality, and this is mundane, then we can make choice for our own interest.

Why I'm out? You're Catholic, why you've become Protestant? You're Christian, why you have come to be Islam? That Mohammed he was a wrestler [boxer], he became a Muslim, that Mohammed Ali or someone. Why have you come from Christianity to Kṛṣṇa consciousness? What for? What makes you justify leaving your born birth religion has taken you to Kṛṣṇa consciousness? What is that thing? You'll apply that. And in Christianity also, all the bishops they're all of same standard?

Everywhere there's gradation, wherever we go, in every walk of life we're to select the superior thing, everywhere, which is suitable to me according to my capacity. I'm going by rikshaw, another by motor, he can provide that, he can go by taxi, but I shall have to go, and some, many are walking.

So adopt-ability depends on our own sincere selection of the truth. The risk is with me.

You've heard of Casabianca?

Dhanvantari dāsa: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "The boy stood on the burning deck, whence all but him had fled."
[This is the first line of a poem called Casabianca by the English poet Felicia Dorothea Hemans]

In a fight many may fly away out of fear, but one may stand to fight, knowing fully well that he'll have to die. But still he holds the higher principle, "I won't go back, I shall die here." You appreciate whom? And that is also not every case. That foolish affinity to that order is also not very good. If I go back then I shall be again able to attack the enemy. That consideration also may be there. So deṣa-kāla-pātra as you told, it should be judged. Sometimes to become coward, that is to become brave. So practical application in different cases will fetch different result. On the whole the sincerity.

[pārtha naiveha nāmutra, vināśas tasya vidyate] na hi kalyāṇa-kṛt kaścid, durgatiṁ tāta gacchati

["O Arjuna, son of Kuntī, the unsuccessful yogī does not suffer ruination either in this life or the next. He is not deprived of the pleasures of the heavenly planetary systems in this universe, nor is he denied the chance to personally see the Supersoul in the divine realm. This is so, O dear one, because a person who performs virtuous actions never becomes ill-fated."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 6.40]

We must be sincere, to our activity, to the outside, and none can defeat me. I'm my enemy. Enemy is not outside. The worst enemy is within me. If I do not like to deceive me none can deceive me. For the time being it may seem that one is deceiving me, but never, none can deceive me, anyone, none. The culprit is within.

Because we cannot see the real path, so we do not go, is it the problem? Knowing fully well that this is good, but still we can't do that. A hundred times I try to go but I fall down. Who is responsible? That is a row to create, to deceive ones own self. 'This is this, this is this.' The heart will tell plainly that what is real need in me, what I want. The combination, the majority, that is everywhere.

Animalism, then rationalism, then wisdom, then spiritualism. Elimination and advancement. Who comes to eliminate, the company? We're all animals, then rational animal, then wise man, then virtuous man. In this way elimination and acceptance. At ones own risk one is to take. The quarrel and misunderstanding, that is not the real cause. Inner sincere adopt-ability that is responsible for every progress.

Sada haya gaura siksa buliya hoibe [?] If you're simple and sincere you'll be able to understand what advice Gaurāṅga has given to you, it will be plain to you. A bad workman quarrels with his tools.

[vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ sadbhir, nityam adveṣa-rāgibhiḥ]

hṛdaye nābhya nujñāto, yo dharmas taṁ nibhodhata
[Manu-saṁhitā, 2.1]

Heart's approval, inner approval, that is final. Imposing from outside, how much value it may fetch in ones sincere acceptance? A man may give his head but not his decision. Eh?

...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: ...enter the International Society For Kṛṣṇa Consciousness, ISKCON, and after preliminary purification become most repentant for their previous illicit activities. They are shocked when they realise how they gave up the personal association of God to pursue the useless forms created by Māyā." This question, he has quoted this. "Many people have come to ISKCON, sinful people, and after purification they repent. And they're shocked when they realise how they gave up the personal company of God, to pursue the useless form of māyā." So this question of 'gave up the personal association', the old question.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: If anyone had real personal connection, is it possible for him to give up? That is the question? Eh?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. That old question.

[na tad bhāsayate sūryo, na śaśāṅko na pāvakaḥ] yad gatvā na nivartante, tad dhāma paramaṁ mama

["My supreme holy abode is that place which the surrendered souls reach, never to return again to this deathly plane. Upon going there, one never returns to this material world. Neither sun, nor moon, nor fire - nothing can illuminate that all-illuminating supreme abode."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.6]

Then Kṛṣṇa's statement in Gītā is false. This problem.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then some possibility that word will be used, avoiding the possibility of our connection with Kṛṣṇa. Eh? We've come so far into the dense part of māyā. From direct connection, direct service of Kṛṣṇa, one cannot come to this māyā. But from taṭasthā he had the possibility to go up, but without going that side, he has come this side, he may remain like that. Do you follow?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. But this means, according to this statement, before taṭasthā we might have had personal company of Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That may not come under reasoning.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Svarūpe sabāra haya, golokete sthiti. Everyone in his internal real position he's in connection with Kṛṣṇa. But from there he has come here, that is another thing. If we're to say so, then it is by the līlā, flow of the sweet līlā of Kṛṣṇa, and coming and going. That is another plane. But general plane, from the taṭasthā we have come. And by the help of the sādhus we can avoid our present position and enter into that company.

Devotee: What should be the case, or should be the understanding in the case of the brāhmaṇa assistant of Caitanya Mahāprabhu who was captured by the Bhaṭṭahāris? When the Lord was travelling in South India He had one brāhmaṇa assistant. And this assistant he was somehow deluded by the association of these gypsies.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We're to accept this, that Caitanya Mahāprabhu showed by His personal assistant the possibility of such concern and danger. To show the possibility of such deviation He made it a play to teach us. Satahari [?] dāsa, then Kālākṛṣṇa dāsa, the dangers may come in such forms. To show this Caitanya Mahāprabhu by His own persons has given us the suggestion, that it is possible, beware. Beware of the danger. It is possible that from such stages one may be enticed by māyā. So don't believe you too much, don't trust you too much. Even in connection with God's temple, we have seen, we have heard rather, that in a temple a pūjārī is worshipping in the temple, engaged, within the temple he's writing a love letter...

83.12.15.A_83.12.19.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "You Yourself put question, and You made me to answer Your question. That as I'm Guru and You're disciple. This is very peculiar. Whatever You like You may do that. You are omnipotent. Within You are sending the answer, and outwardly You are making enquiry. Ordinary people won't follow that. They'll think that Mahāprabhu He learned all these things from Rāmānanda. But really I feel that You are sending within the answer, and outwardly You are as a seeker You are making questions."

Mahāprabhu in His last talks told, "Why you are afraid so much?"

kibā vipra, kibā nyāsī, śūdra kene naya, / yei kṛṣṇa-tattva vettā sei guru haya.

["Whether a person is a brāhmaṇa, a sannyāsī, or a śūdra, if he knows the science of Kṛṣṇa, he is to be accepted as Guru."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.128]

"You are afraid of being placed in the position of My Guru. But whoever he may be if he knows really Kṛṣṇa then he's Guru. Outwardly he may be a brāhmaṇa, or a sannyāsī, a gṛhastha, or even a śūdra, anyone outwardly. But within if anyone has got that wealth, the knowledge of Kṛṣṇa, he's really Guru. Why you are feeling so much inconvenience?"

In this way some conjecture, that He's always Guru. Sannyāsa Guru also gave the mantram. "Is it suitable for the sannyāsī?" In this way He gave mantram to the ear of the sannyāsa Guru and then heard from him. Here also Kavirāja Goswāmī and other devotees said, "Just as the ocean sends gases to form cloud, and when the cloud becomes rain it falls to the ocean." Just like this the talk of Rāmānanda and Caitanya. From Caitanya inspiration going up to the sky to Rāmānanda, made the cloud. Rāmānanda is cloud and Caitanya Deva is the ocean. Cloud draws water in the form of gas, and then again it rains over the ocean.

["Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, who is known as Gaurāṅga, is the ocean of all conclusive knowledge in devotional service. This cloud was filled with the water of all the conclusive purports of devotional service and was empowered by the ocean to spread this water over the sea of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu Himself. Thus the ocean of Caitanya Mahāprabhu became filled with the jewels of the knowledge of pure devotional service."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.1]

Rāmānanda is compared with the cloud, and Caitanya Deva is compared with the ocean. The cloud is made of drawing water from the ocean, and again raining over the ocean. So Rāmānanda internally drawing inspiration from Caitanya Deva, and externally as a cloud he's raining to Caitanya Deva, giving, distributing those things to Caitanya Deva.

In this way the devotees have seen themselves and _____ [?] in that light. He's coming from ocean and again falling in the form of rain coming. Kṛṣṇa. Outwardly Caitanya Deva is hearing, putting questions and hearing answers, so he that gives the answer is in the position of Guru, and who is enquiring in the position of disciple.

But here the nature of the disciple is something else, that He knows everything. "Further, go further, go further, little more." In this way He's guiding. "This is almost finished. Still if anything please say." In this way the enquirer as if He knows everything, in such a posture it has been distributed.

But still Rāmānanda is afraid. "Oh, people will say that You have come, really You are describing everything in me, and outwardly You are posing like a disciple. I don't relish this thing."

Then Mahāprabhu, "You don't care for that. Anyone can become a Guru if he's already with the capital of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Formerly, anyone he may be, it does not matter. Kṛṣṇa consciousness is the wealth, and one who has got that he's the heaviest."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Vidagdha Mādhava: Guru Mahārāja. In Lord Gaurāṅga by Śiśir Ghose, the English translation is perhaps awkward in some places. Because he describes Mahāprabhu going into trance at different times, and at that time Kṛṣṇa taking possession of His body. And then He would speak in a different way, and then...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I don't follow you.

Vidagdha Mādhava: I see.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who else, to explain him?

Vidagdha Mādhava: This one book Lord Gaurāṅga by Śiśir Ghose...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Lord Gaurāṅga.

Vidagdha Mādhava: ...there's one English translation, and in this English translation Śiśir Ghose describes Lord Caitanya as being possessed by the Supreme Personality of Godhead, by Kṛṣṇa. And sometimes going, this possession is leaving, and fainting, Mahāprabhu faints and becomes normal again.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Vidagdha Mādhava: He's describing Mahāprabhu becoming fully manifest as Kṛṣṇa and speaking as Kṛṣṇa. And then fainting and then returning to his normal condition as Nimāi. He's describing as if a spirit is possessing Mahāprabhu and leaving. He's describing that kind of situation.

Devotee: It's kind of a māyāvādī conception, that He attains...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I want to hear the original expression, what he has told.

Vidagdha Mādhava: OK. I can get that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Vidagdha Mādhava: So, Guru Mahārāja. I'll read you a short part of this book.

"This is the initiation of Nimāi. And there was a halo around Nimāi at this particular initiation. And He addressed His mother with exceeding gravity. I'm leaving this body. I shall come again. The body I'm leaving behind is your son whom you should tend with great tenderness when I'm gone." So saying, Nimāi made an effort to bow to His mother, but before He could fully perform this act He became unconscious. The boy then to all intents and purposes seemed dead. Śacī, alarmed, sprinkled water on His face, called Him loudly by His name, and by this and other means succeeded in restoring Him to consciousness. As soon as Nimāi had fallen into a swoon, the light which had shone from His body left Him, and the halo which had surrounded His head disappeared. And with it disappeared His awe-full and reverential inspiring aspect. Śacī was relieved to find her son restored again to His natural state."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? The last line?

Vidagdha Mādhava: "Mother Śacī was relieved to find her son restored again to His natural state."

And he makes one footnote about the statement of Nimāi that, "The body I'm leaving behind is your son whom you should tend with great tenderness when I'm gone." He footnotes, "This may either mean, always take care of the body of your son, or revive Him when I leave this body, for He will fall into a swoon."

This is only one example, there are many. "Where Mahāprabhu is shining like a thousand suns, in the house of Śrīvāsa Paṇḍita. But these manifestations last for some time and then going away. And sometimes Mahāprabhu falling unconscious at the end of the manifestation."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We do not admit that Mahāprabhu had any body of flesh and blood. But He could show anything and everything. That was a show, to Śacī Devī, and not reality. Not body of flesh and blood, and He left it, and again came and entered into it and made it active, it is not like that.

So Kṛṣṇa also showed like that in different places that He was present - when He left His body, the arrow thrown by the Jarābad, and blood oozing. And Kṛṣṇa's body was burned. All these things are māyā.

Sītā Devī was taken away by Rāvaṇa, this is all māyā, Mahāprabhu told.

Because His body is purely of consciousness. Only He has the special power to make a show, of a spiritual body to the plane of material existence, to communicate with us. But that is not His real body. To communicate.

["Although My eternal form is transcendental to birth and death, and I am the controller of all beings, I appear within the world in My original form, by My own sweet will, extending My internal potency of yoga- māyā."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.6]

When a transcendental personality comes to appear in this world through the ordinary course of this world, but it is all a show. He controls these material laws by His spiritual laws. And then in that way they come here and connect with us and deal everything with us in our layer. But in spite of this not a tinge of matter is in Him. The spirituality can appear in the grossest substance in this world. He can connect, but this gross element cannot connect there. He can take any shape, to be intelligible and approachable by us. But still He's not to be captured by the eye, or touched by the hand, or the voice heard by the ear. He can manage to connect with us, but still

He retains His spiritual existence cent per cent. And He can do, to communicate with us, He can show that as if He has come to our level, but that is all show.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. In that connection when Rāya Rāmānanda was talking with Mahāprabhu...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hmm?

Devotee: When Rāmānanda Rāya was having his discussions with Mahāprabhu he said that, "Whatever I'm saying it's coming from You."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh. "You're giving inspiration, and I'm giving out that feeling. It's a very wonderful thing that You're speaking from within me and You're hearing. You're putting the question, and the answer You're inspiring in me, and I say what You want me to say, and You're hearing. It's a peculiar position I've got." Rāmānanda says. "You're listening and You're speaking through me, so You're establishing a rapport."

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.1]

Clouds are the product of the water of the ocean. And the ocean water becomes gas and forms in clouds. And again cloud means transformed into rain the ocean receives that. That example has been given. From ocean through cloud coming to ocean.

"So You are in me. You're putting some questions, and You're inspiring me with the answer, and I'm putting that thing in Your, as reply to Your question. So coming from You and again going to You. The gesture of Your putting question is such. What is that? What is them? Then what is them? You know everything, still You want to hear it from my lips."

"This is external. This is superficial. Go deeper. Go deeper. This is all superficial. Yes, we can begin with this. Go deeper, more."

"Your suggestion is such that You know everything - only You want to be spoken by my mouth. You're putting questions in such a fashion that You know everything. "Go, little more, little more," so everything known to You. The gesture, the nature of Your putting questions to me clearly shows that You're well versed in everything. Only You want it to come through my lips.

"So this is external. Go forward. This is also superficial. Go deeper. Then yes, it is. Then next, it is good. Further. It is better. Go little more. Yes, it is the highest. Now, how to attain this? Please speak to Me."

In this way everything known to You, but You're pushing me to pass Your opinions through me. A peculiar type of question and answer. One who listens He knows everything. And one who advises he's an instrument in the hand, a doll in the hand of one who's listening. Peculiar things, very sweet it seems."

So a bhakta, a devotee's doing, actually Lord does through him. The Lord does through a devotee, they have no separate understanding. They're almost instrumental, still holding some special individuality, they want to be an instrument. "I have no original position. Whatever He wants me to do I like to do that." Such dazzling scene was created, the example was created, that ordinary people they're also talking in their home about Caitanya Deva. They forgot to discuss about their family affairs. Strī-putrādi-kathaṁ jahur viṣayiṇaḥ.

Śāstra-pravādaṁ budhā. Those persons... ke?

Devotee: _____ [?] Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: They're quarrelling with the different purpose in the śāstra. "Oh, śāstra says this." Another says, "No, no, the śāstra purport is this." The third man, "No, no, the real meaning will be that." This sort of quarrel was stopped for the time being when Caitanya Deva came with loving expression of the transcendental realm. They stopped for the time being their quarrel, the different types of meanings of the scripture.

Yogīndrā vijahur marun niyamaka-kleśaṁ. And the yogīs who were very much busy in controlling their breaths, prāṇāyāma, pratyāhāra, the so called processes of yoga, for the time being they left that. And actually took up, actuated what he has taken in this quarter. This very wonderful thing for which we shall take trouble to control over the breath and reach some stage of mystic consciousness. A very wonderful thing Śrī Caitanya Deva has brought into the world.

Vijahur marun niyamaka-kleśaṁ tapas tāpasāḥ. Those that are fond of austerity and penance, they also stop their campaign. "What is the necessity of embracing so much voluntary pain on the body and mind, and to search after some happiness in future life?" This austerity and penances they also gave up for the time being, their endeavour to that cause, tāpasāḥ.

Jñānābhyāsa-vidhiṁ jahuś ca yatayaś. The sannyāsīns, the renunciants, they gave up the study of the Vedas, Upaniṣads, and to get by heart all these ślokas etc. The study of the revealed scriptures, that was also stopped for the time being. The students stopped their study of the higher scriptures.

Jñānābhyāsa-vidhiṁ jahuś ca yatayaś caitanyacandre param, āviṣkurvati bhakti-yoga. When Caitanya Deva came out with some higher display of the devotional love divine, all the departments were affected. And more or less they were charmed and left for the time being their own campaign, and looked at what Śrī Caitanya Deva was taking in the country at that time.

In this way he has, this Prabodhānanda Sarasvatī, so many things, very, very beautiful poems.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura. Nitāi Gaura. Nitāi Gaura.

Prema, love, wholehearted dedication, the whole divine.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

In love divine no possibility of any selfish appeal. Selfishness completely eliminated. Still it seems to be selfishness but that is all God centred, His interest centred. Different centres but still all on His behalf. So many working places, so many centres on His behalf. Fully eliminated from any special interest, or no interest. Self interest and no interest, both should be condemned, and God interest should be placed in that. All agents of the Lord Supreme. The Lord of different type, the Lord of love, and charm, beauty, ecstasy, joy. Be a member, try to have membership in that spirit, in that domain. Everyone become an agent of divine love. Selflessness and also no interest-less. Bhukti-mukti-spṛhā, piśācī.

["How can the joy of holy devotion appear in the heart as long as it is haunted by the ghosts of desire for exploitation and renunciation?"] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 2.22]

They have been compared to the ghost, she-ghost, two aspirations, either to enjoy or to renounce. These two functions have been condemned like a she-ghost. Relieve yourself from her hands, these two ghosts, witches, be free. Then you'll be able to understand what is service divine. Two enemies, to work, anomaly, or to retire. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. But very difficult.

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 1.17]

Such devotion is very valuable and very rare to meet with.

jñānataḥ sulabhā muktir bhuktir yajñādi puṇyataḥ
seyaṁ sādhana-sāhasrair hari-bhaktiḥ sudurllabhā

["By practice of enlightenment, jñāna, liberation is attained easily enough. By pious work such as sacrifice, yajña, etc, worldly pleasure in the next life is attained easily enough. But devotion for the Supreme Lord, Hari bhakti, is very rarely attained."] [Mahādeva] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 1.36]

By pure knowledge we can get mukti, we can attain mukti, by culturing about the basic knowledge of the environment. But all reactionary so give it up. Disconnect yourself with everything what is tempting you and binding you with the reaction, give up the charge. Jñānataḥ sulabhā muktir bhuktir yajñādi puṇyataḥ. And also good enjoyment we can have by performing so many sacrifice in the karma-kāṇḍa. The offerings to the local agents, they will carry enjoyment for you, as a reaction. You'll be much satisfied, you'll attain much satisfaction with this mundane sacrifice. Seyaṁ sādhana-sāhasrair hari. But by thousands and thousands of processes to acquire real devotion, that is very rarely found. No pure agent is found in this world. What is devotion proper, to know that, to ascertain that is very, very difficult, from this plane of life.

Raghupati Upādhyāya says. Kam prati kathayitum īśe, samprati ko vā pratītim āyātu. "To whom should I say, and who will trust in me, in my words, in these tales, that the damsels of Vraja they're object of hunting of the Absolute, Beauty? The Absolute Beautiful He has come to hunt after the damsels of Vṛndāvana, eh? It's a ludicrous thing. To whom should I venture to speak all this nonsense? And who will believe in these delirious statements?"

kam prati kathayitum īśe, samprati ko vā pratītim āyātu

["To whom can I tell it, and whoever will believe it, that the Supreme Absolute, Param Brahman, the Paramour of the damsels of Vraja, is enjoying in the groves on the banks of the Yamunā?"]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.98]

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...has come to search after the peace, a hint is there. After Śrī Caitanya Deva has come, and when He will preach this in some original way, then people may come to put their faith in such action, that the Absolute, He's hunting after the girls of Vṛndāvana. When Caitanya Deva will come and He will set an example by His personality, and will preach in such a way that then people will be able to put faith in such statement, otherwise not. For him, it is impossible, for a tiny brain, or tiny heart, to think of so high things. And also, yasyālinde paraṁ brahma.

[śrutim apare smṛtim itare, bhāratam anye bhajantu bhava-bhītāḥ
aham iha nandaṁ vande, yasyālinde paraṁ brahma]

[Raghupati Upādhyāya says: "Those who fear rebirth in this world may follow the advice of the Vedic scriptures - others may follow the Mahābhārata - but as for me, I follow Nanda Mahārāja, in whose courtyard the Supreme Absolute Truth plays as a child."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.96]

That Paraṁ Brahma, the highest of the high, He's crawling in the compound of Mahārāja Nanda. Yasyālinde paraṁ brahma. These idle statements will have no value in the world. No gentleman, no scholars will be able to put faith in such statement. 'That Paraṁ Brahma He has no other duty, He has come and crawling on the veranda here. And He's stealing and eating the butter from Nanda's house. He has no other serious activity and engagement. He has come to do all these childish things. It's futile.'

But when Caitanya Deva came and supplied the basis, the ground, the plans, and from this karma, the elevation, nor renunciation, all these grave things were pushed down. And put in the highest rank the simple affection of the gopīs, how it is, why it is capturing the heart of the highest, by His own personal example. Then people will come to put faith - it is possible.

kṛṣṇera yateka khelā, sarvottama nara-līlā, nara-vapu tāhāra svarūpa

["Lord Kṛṣṇa has many pastimes, of which His pastimes as a human being are the best. His form as a human being is the Supreme Transcendental Form. In this form, He is a cowherd boy. He carries a flute in His hand, and His youth is new. He is also an expert dancer. All this is just suitable for His pastimes as a human being."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 21.101]

The most ordinary things in this human nature, that is in the proper ideal of the highest quarter. In the highest quarter of the Absolute a play is going on, and that is similar to this human. Aprākṛta. Everyone will take it as a human thing, but it's not so. This is the fun. The human system is created when the ideal of the highest position in the Absolute it is created. So very similar, but it is here in the mundane, and that is there in the highest quarter. Only similar but not same, because the materials are different. The colour is almost the same but matter is quite different. One is highest sacrifice and another is crude sensual-ism. But this human social play, form, is not to be blamed, it is the highest. This has been told. Kṛṣṇera yateka khelā, sarvottama nara-līlā, nara-vapu tāhāra. Very similar, the pastimes of the highest quarter they're very similar colour with this human society. Very befitting. At the same time there's much apprehension that we may forget, we may take this as that. That sahajiyāism. Aprakṛta-rasa-sata-dushani. Written by Guru Mahārāja, and being translated by Akṣayānanda Mahārāja.

["The creeper of devotion is born, and grows to pierce the wall of the universe. It crosses the Virajā river and the Brahman plane, and reaches to the Vaikuṇṭha plane. Then it grows further up to Goloka Vṛndāvana, finally reaching to embrace the wish-yielding tree of Kṛṣṇa's Lotus Feet."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.153-4]

Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa, Satyaloka. So many planes of subtle enjoyment, enjoying tendency. Then Virajā then Brahmaloka, towards excelled renunciation. Then Paravyoma, a routine and controlled process of service towards the Supreme. And then gradually comes Vṛndāvana, Goloka.

So very difficult. Come so far, now difficult. We come very far, far away from the home, but still that is our hope. This is the hope, the hope is there, that that is our home. But we have come so far, far away. Back to home, back to Godhead, back to home. Home means home comfort can only be found there, and we're quite at home. That heart's approval. "I do not want anything further. All loving atmosphere. Everyone will take care of me. Every atom of the whole will take care of me." Home means this, that without any paying, without any remuneration, every atom in the environment will take care of me. That is home. All affectionate, every atom on all sides of me are affectionate, to take care of me, my interest. That is home. And not to pay for that. _____ [?] Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. What Nārada paid that was not sufficient, even Vyāsadeva, but Śukadeva had to intervene. One Śuka was necessary to represent such thought. Śuka-mukhād amṛta-drava- saṁyutam.

[nigama-kalpa-taror galitaṁ phalaṁ, śuka-mukhād amṛta-drava-saṁyutam

["O expert and thoughtful men, relish Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, the mature fruit of the desire tree of Vedic literatures. It emanated from the lips of Śrī Śukadeva Gosvāmī. Therefore this fruit has become even more tasteful, although its nectarean juice was already relishable for all, including liberated souls."]

Then the test passed the examination, amply. It must have to come through Śuka whose indifference to this world is more than a story. Young man of sixteen, no trace in his look or understanding of any man and woman, boy and girl. No trace in his movement or in his look or any attempt from him.

When it came through his mouth to this world then people had some respect. "Yes, there may be. A man who's taste is fully drawn from the charm of this mundane world when he's young, then there must be something. Let us enquire."

A Śukadeva was necessary to inaugurate this Bhāgavata truth to this mundane world.

Otherwise followers did not care to give it admission. "Eh? This filthy thing filled with idea they're going to ascribe over the highest conception of the Paraṁ-Brahman. They want to carry these filthy ideas to that Paraṁ-Brahman. Are we fools to accept such proposal?"

But when Śuka came and he gave impression, "You know me, who I am, what is my aspiration, what is my ideal. I'm charmed by that transcendental, loving pastimes of the Lord. It is on the highest plane." Śukadeva told.

And again, Śrī Caitanya Deva came with His brightest scholarship, which could not be found in debt. And He declared that, "That loving devotion is the highest quarter of our attainment." And He showed through His life, proved how it's possible.

Then people had some easy faith, "That yes, there may be existence of such high love divine. Love may be the highest. The highest quarter of existence is love. No dirt, all good, all purity, no dirt, all purity."

Hare Kṛṣṇa.

This Raghupati Upādhyāya, a devotional scholar in Tirhuta, met Śrī Caitanya Deva and told, "Those that are very much afraid of death and mortality, very earnest to get out of the mortal pain, let them run after searching the Vedas, the Purāṇas, the so many scriptures, Mahābhārata. They're all afraid of their future, or of their eternal mortality. I don't care for that. I'm not afraid of any death. Bhava-bhītāḥ. To come to the world to suffer. I'm not going to enlist my name among those that being afraid of the mortal influence of the world run after this Bible, this Koran, the Veda, the Purāṇa, all these things. But I'm astounded to find what is the position of Nanda."

Devotee: Mahārāja. _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "I'm dumbfound to find the Paraṁ Brahma may be so closer, so affectionate, so loving. Though I'm not afraid of my - of the jaw of death - but I'm attracted by the positive aspect of Paraṁ Brahmā. That He comes so nearer to our heart, we can have Him in such an intimate way, is it possible? This is a charming thing. I cannot evade this thing, I can't avoid this. I'm not afraid of mortality, of destruction. But this positive aspect is attracting me very much, that He can come so close to our heart that we can have Him in every way. Even through the so called senses also we can have Him is wonderful."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Senses are created only to misdirect us, eh? These things have no positive and some happy conception of their existence, eh? No! The Vaiṣṇava-padāvali, of course the highest stage. "Every atom of My body is crying to have a touch of the corresponding atom of the Lord. Every atom in My body has got its optimistic position." It is possible. Every atom in me is crying for the corresponding atom of the Lord's feet divine. It is possible. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari bol. Such is the gift of Śrī Gaurāṅga Deva. Prati aṅga lāgi kānde, prati aṅga mora. My connection with the Supreme Entity is such that every atom in my body is crying to have an embrace of the corresponding atom of my Lord. Gaura Hari bol. No further. I stop here.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...that will gradually reveal in the heart of the devotee, in the Name proper. Spiritual Name that uses, not this worldly rūpa, colour, or feeling. But the Name will produce some peculiar cinmaya rūpa, the spiritual substance. Sphirite canmukhe nanam sphiranam [?] After that the qualities will come from that, the Absolute relativity. From the relativity of the transcendental sound the figure will come, and from the relativity of them both the quality will come. Again from the same relativity paraphernalia must have to come. And then the pastimes between them that will also come. And the devotee who's taking the Name he will gradually find himself there in some quarter, serving position. That is a course.

[ataḥ śrī-kṛṣṇa-nāmādi na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiḥ]

["Because the name of Kṛṣṇa is identical with Kṛṣṇa Himself, and on the absolute spiritual platform, Kṛṣṇa's name, form, qualities, and associates, cannot be appreciated by the material senses. However, when one engages the tongue in chanting the Holy Names of the Lord and tasting the remnants of the Lord's food, Kṛṣṇa gradually reveals Himself to the purified senses of that devotee."]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrva-vibhāga, 2.234]

But that Nāma from the physical to the spiritual, if there is śaraṇāgati and also serving attitude, then you'll take to that spiritual realm, gradually. The progress will be that type, that life.

And under the inspiration of the devotee and the Lord Himself, in any stage one may come in the preaching field also. That is also to preach the nobility, the divinity, divine character of the Holy Name. Saṅkīrtana, Nāma saṅkīrtana. The cultivation of the sound God. Book writing also cultivation of the sound. Sound God _____ over everything and everything, sound transcendental. If we come in touch with the transcendental sound then that won't allow us to sit idle, that will inject energy within us and maybe will make us active. That is also service of the Name, to preach. Kīrtana means to preach, to assert the divinity of the transcendental sound, some Nāma saṅkīrtana. Nāma, the Name is one and the same with the original Godhead, Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa and His Name is not separate. Acintya bhedābheda.

The Name will suggest, will bring us to His other respective positions and aspects. Beginning is the sound, then entering into the domain of līlā, through gradual process. The sound will draw the internal aspect of the sound, and enter the room of the house, make us see anything and everything. From far away He represents Himself in the terms of sound. And the sound will invite you to approach nearer and nearer. And then gradually we can have, to see, to hear, try to have Himself got there. Everything we get, sound comes, to ask us to go to Him, to go back to Godhead, the sound comes.

"Come and see Me. Realise Me. I'm everything of you. Try to understand Me."

The sound through Name, in the scripture also, sound, one sound, but what is one? The Name is all important. In the mantram or in the scripture, so many things are mentioned. But if instead of Kṛṣṇa we put there Kālī, and if instead of Kālī we put there God or Allah, then everything will be taken to that. But if we put Kṛṣṇa, scripture producing, preaching so much things, "Do this, do this, do this, do this." But do this work for the satisfaction of whom? For the satisfaction of Allah, or God, or Kālī, or Śiva, or Kṛṣṇa, it will change, wild change, revolutionary change. So Name is all important. And without anything, go on taking the Name of Kṛṣṇa, it will suffice to take you nearer to Him. So the mantram also has been discussed, that so many words they're there, but the centre may be Kṛṣṇa, or Kālī, or Śiva, or anyone, it will take you there.

"Take me, take me, take me. Take me to India. Take me to London. Take me to America. Take me."

So that is all important. America. If I say, "America, America," I can't say anything else.

Then some person will say, "He says America, he wants America. Oh. You're to take this ship, or you're to take this plane. If you do not know anything you'll only pronounce 'America, America, America.' Then people will come to help you. Oh, America, he says America, he wants America. Oh, you go this way, and get the plane and go to America.'

"I want to go, I want to go, I want to go." Where, it's not mentioned. If you put then, "I want to go to Calcutta, I want to go to Japan, this is limited," Oh, he'll go there.

In this way the Name is all important, in the mantram, everywhere. Ke?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: If we conceive ourselves to take the Name, to culture that spiritual sound, then _____ [?] first it will purify, the Name will purify our heart. There are so many desires, these will all be brushed aside, and only the Name will stand. Then the rūpa, figure and colour will come. Not mundane, not as we find in the scripture, or in the idol, not that. The spiritual colour will come, spiritual figure will come, then the quality, then the paraphernalia, and then the līlā. And when the līlā will flow you will find that you have got also a position there, somewhere. This is the proof.

But who is to believe this, eh? Who preaches this he's also mad, and who accepts this he's also mad, all abnormal. This ignoring the present reality of the civilised world, and running after phantasmagoria. Eh? Kṛṣṇa, He's so, He's God, He's of such spiritual type.

yā niśā sarva-bhūtānāṁ, tasyāṁ jāgarti saṁyamī
[yasyāṁ jāgrati bhūtāni, sā niśā paśyato muneḥ]

["While spiritual awareness is like night for the living beings enchanted by materialism, the self-realised soul remains awake, directly relishing the divine ecstasy of his uninterrupted spiritual intelligence. On the contrary, the wakefulness of materialistic persons addicted to sense enjoyment is night for the self-realised person who is completely indifferent to such pursuits. The realised souls, indifferent to the mundane, are ever joyful in the divine ecstatic plane, while the general mass is infatuated by fleeting mundane fancies devoid of spiritual joy."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 2.69]

What is night to one is day to another. The world of the present civilisation is night to us, and we want to awake in the day of Kṛṣṇa's līlā, Vṛndāvana. We ignore this, as night we don't like to look at, it's all in darkness. We may awake in the day of Vṛndāvana. But that is mania. What is mania to one is reality to another. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. I've heard that Gaura līlā and Kṛṣṇa līlā they coexist in the transcendental plane.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, coexisting. Sometimes when the enjoyment within His own group that is Kṛṣṇa līlā. In a particular stage He's playing with His own group. But when He's out to give it to others it becomes Gaura līlā. Only the fixed group they will avail of this ecstasy, that is Vṛndāvana. Why should not the outsiders be allowed to taste of this? When this is added to Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa then it becomes Gaura. And with the company of Nityānanda-Balarāma He's out to manage things in such a way that the outsiders also have chance to enter into that plane and have new fortune. That is Gaurāṅga, magnanimity is added to beauty, magnanimity, mahā-vadanyāya.

incarnation, even Kṛṣṇa Himself, because You are bestowing freely what no one else has ever given - pure love of Kṛṣṇa."] Rūpa Goswāmī is composing this praṇāma mantra. Namo mahā-vadānyāya. The great magnanimous personage I bow down to Him. Mahā-vadānyāya. Why? Kṛṣṇa-prema-pradāya te. He has come to distribute the highest nectar in the creation, so He's Mahā, He's great, magnanimous, because He has come to distribute that love divine. Kṛṣṇa-prema-pradāya te. Who is He? Kṛṣṇāya. He's Kṛṣṇa Himself. Kṛṣṇa- caitanya-nāmne. And He has taken the name of Kṛṣṇa Caitanya, that He will produce Kṛṣṇa consciousness in the heart of the world and all.

And He has not that black colour, but He has come in a yellow glow _____ [?]

Devotee: Golden.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yellow, golden, garb. Why this is? Oh. Rādhārāṇī is also there, mixed and combined with Kṛṣṇa. So Both have come in the name of Kṛṣṇa Caitanya to distribute Their Own internal jewels, to scatter them, to distribute them at large to the ordinary public. Oh. The great Lord, I bow down to Him. Such magnanimity is possible, eh? He has come to enlist members, to recruit members for His own family affairs, eh? He will recruit us and take me in, and allow to work in His own family service. So magnanimous He has come here. Ke?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Badrinārāyaṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. What is audārya līlā?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Audārya means generosity, dār. Mādhur means sweet. Audār when He becomes very much kind to distribute to others, that is audārya, kindness, generosity, magnanimity. That is audārya. Audārya means in a giving mood, not only in a fixed circle, but it must be distributed to a greater boundary, audārya. Audārya means one who gives enough. Mādhur he tastes himself, within his own. Audār he gives it to public.

Devotee: Gurudeva. A devotee he may relish the two things, by internally participating in Kṛṣṇa līlā as you say, and externally by pracāra?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: There are mainly three kinds. One group are very fond of serving within. Another group they're very eager to give to others. And another group who wants to engage in both the līlā, here also, there also, they have their tendency. When they're engaged within the circle, very deeply they do that. And when they find that the Lord wants to distribute to others, there also begins to help that līlā with whole heart. Gaura līlā, Kṛṣṇa līlā. Some have special attraction for the mādhurya līlā. Some have special attraction for the audārya līlā. And there are some who partakes in both of them - they find satisfaction. When they engage themselves in a particular līlā - self forgetful, he's engaged fully there. And again when by the wish of the Lord is given to another, he forgets everything and deals it cent per cent engagement there. It is possible.

Devotee: ...those two līlās, mādhurya and audārya, they're existing in the transcendental plane, simultaneously existing in the transcendental plane?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. What is not in the transcendental that cannot come here. What is not in the cause cannot come in the effect. In effect we see we'll have to trace that within the cause, there. In the transcendental plane it is there, because they're fully conscious. Not only conscious Vraja, but conscious of Ayodhyā, Vaikuṇṭha, and Devī Dhāma, fully. They know that there are so many devoid of this, only selected few in Vṛndāvana, and outside Vṛndāvana there are so many. They should also be given chance, in this way.

Devotee: So preaching is all over?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. The preaching - only the outer expression of His internal will, because He wills, so we like to preach. His will is at the bottom of everything.

Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Devotee: Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja is asking if Nityānanda Prabhu is audārya līlā?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: Baladeva in audārya līlā?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Audārya līlā. Nityānanda Prabhu's jurisdiction in general resurrection, in general. But in mādhurya rasa, where mādhurya rasa is concerned, there Rādhārāṇī's department is there. And Nityānanda Prabhu in another form as Anaṅga Mañjarī, He enters the camp of Rādhārāṇī, mādhurya līlā. Nityānanda Prabhu is represented there as Anaṅga Mañjarī. And in Jāhnavā here.

Devotee: Jāhnavā?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! Anaṅga Mañjarī. Yogamāyā. In Rādhārāṇī's camp Baladeva represents Himself as Anaṅga Mañjarī. What does he want?

Devotee: Ha, ha. He said that "How is that?" We read yesterday in your book, that in mādhurya rasa Baladeva is represented as Anaṅga Mañjarī.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: So Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja is asking "How is that?"

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha. This is the fact.

Devotee: Ha, ha.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Just as Baladeva is brother of Kṛṣṇa, Anaṅga Mañjarī is younger sister of Rādhārāṇī. Intermingled. Jñāna, bala, krīya, ca. The three principles, thinking, feeling, and willing. Though we can understand them in different ways, still they're interconnected, not separate three wholes. Three combined becomes one whole. Three phases, and they're not completely separated, they're intermingled in some way or other. Both, out and in, they're both out and in, within them.

...

Devotee: Lately me and Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja we've been a little curious to know something about Lalitā and Viśākhā, especially Viśākhā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Lalitā Devī exclusively given to the cause of Rādhārāṇī. And Viśākhā Devī more considerate towards Kṛṣṇa. Though she also espouse the cause of Rādhārāṇī, but still she has some consideration for Kṛṣṇa, in the management and administration of the inner relationship of Both Rādhārāṇī and Śrī Kṛṣṇa. Sometimes negotiation between Them, sometimes when there's reaction, they're to serve for Their particular cause of līlā, pastimes, helping hand.

Lalitā Devī she does not care for Kṛṣṇa so much, for the interest of Kṛṣṇa so much. She's always proud with the righteousness of Rādhārāṇī's side, life. And for that sometimes she ventures to chastise Kṛṣṇa, finding its necessity to keep up the dignified position of Rādhārāṇī. Rādhārāṇī's dignity, she's always very careful for that.

And Viśākhā is moderate nature, and she also considers the case of Kṛṣṇa and represents His cause to Rādhārāṇī and to Lalitā, to effect Their union, minimise Their difference. All these things in līlā, nature.

But both of them they're in the camp of Rādhārāṇī.

There's another camp of Candrāvalī, so many other small groups also.

But main group of Rādhārāṇī, Lalitā, Viśākhā, they're main sister attendants of Rādhārāṇī. And they manage the department and the group of Rādhārāṇī. Innumerable departments, innumerable persons are serving in that department, their Master, Mistress.

Eh? What do you say?

Devotee: And Rūpa?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Rūpa is under Lalitā, in the lower camp, mañjarī camp of less aged, their age is less, not so much advanced as Lalitā, Viśākhā. But they're small, they're younger, and the service suitable to the younger group is given to them. And Śrī Rūpa Mañjarī is the leader of them, of the younger group in the line of Rādhārāṇī. She enjoys the confidence of Rādhārāṇī in the administration of the lower group and in their services. And speciality in them that they, if any advanced aged sakhī, they don't think it good to enter into the room where Rādhā-Govinda Both, and none else, these mañjarīs, the younger girls, they're allowed to enter at that time in that room where Rādhā-Govinda only the Both, none else there. The advanced aged sakhīs they do not enter there. But the younger group They may send for their service. So in some way the younger, the mañjarīs, they enjoy greater confidence in the mādhurya lila when Rādhā and Govinda and none else they're allowed to enter. But advanced aged friends of Rādhārāṇī they can't enter at that time. Or, they do not enter out of some etiquette, courtesy.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Rūpānuga. These are very higher things, and naturally we want to have them, then we shall have to wait while crossing different planes of service. But from far we can see in some hazy way that it is there. It is there on the top, and from here if we can progress regularly, one day we shall climb up to that plane. In this way we can discuss. The sahajiyās they're engaged in those things only, in the physical plane imitating, imitation. But we do not have any faith in that. We want real, to follow reality in its own course, considering that there are so many stages between these two. Kṛṣṇa jñāna is the highest. How? So many other stages of consciousness and that must be passed on. So many stages and they're all superior to us at present.

A servant will enter into the land of masters, all masters. Big or not, low or high, but all masters. When we're crossing the masters of the lower group, to be connected with the masters of the higher group, and they're to go on according to their direction. In this way they're all venerable. Vaikuṇṭha, Paravyoma, very subtle, very touchy, still the development cannot be denied. Spirituality as a whole is superior to us, our existence. Still it is possible, by the order of Kṛṣṇa we can enter into that, and pass through that, only for the interest of Kṛṣṇa. Not otherwise, never otherwise. Only for the interest of Kṛṣṇa we can enter that domain which is made of higher materials than I am. We must be, such consciousness within us. Only for the interest of Kṛṣṇa we can pass through that holy and holier land. Otherwise we can't go over that land.

Some genuine interest there must be for Kṛṣṇa, then they'll invite us, welcome us. "Yes. You can render this service to Kṛṣṇa so you're welcome. Go over there." Sympathetically they will allow us to pass through them. "You have got the visa so you're allowed to pass, but only due to visa. In the interest of our country you are allowed the visa, so we should allow you to go. That similar attitude, otherwise no one can, without visa none can enter, because there's no certainty that he'll not do any harm to the country. Not allowed." So that is there, "Yes. You have got the certificate of your Gurudeva who is acquainted with such and such. With this certificate you can go, we allow you."

In this way to pass through the higher spiritual realm. In one, in interest with the higher plane, common interest. To have common interest with the interest of the higher plane, then we may be allowed to have. We must have that sort of interest within, genuine interest for that.

Devotee: Mahārāja. _____ [?]

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...holy, most holy. You can understand that? Eh?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And why?

Devotee: Why?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah, what for?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Why is there holy, more holy, and holiest?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The very fundamental principle of holiness, and degree of holiness. Eh? The principle of holy, or the degree in holiness, what is the cause, you think?

Devotee: I think there are gradations everywhere in the world.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, gradation. The gradation for which? Why they are so, gradation?

The interest of Kṛṣṇa. The gradation of the divinity should be considered, measured, in the interest of the satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa, and His devotees. Kārttika māṣ, Kārttikī. Kīrttikā is the mother of Rādhārāṇī. And Kārttikī - so one of the names of Rādhārāṇī is Kārttikī, the daughter of Kīrttikā. So kārttika is representing Rādhārāṇī. And then mārga-śīrṣaḥ, next after kārttika, mārga-śīrṣaḥ, representing Kṛṣṇa. Māsānāṁ mārga- śīrṣo ’ham.

[bṛhat-sāma tathā sāmnāṁ, gāyatrī chandasām aham māsānāṁ mārga-śīrṣo ’ham, ṛtūnāṁ kusumākaraḥ]

["Of all the mantras in the Sāma-veda I am the Bṛhat-sāma mantra which is uttered in prayer to Lord Indra, and of mantras in perfect prosody I am the holy Gāyatrī mantra. Of the months I am the foremost, Agrahāyaṇa, and of the seasons I am spring."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 10.35]

In Gītā you will find Kṛṣṇa says, "Of all the months I am mārga-śīrṣaḥ."

And just before mārga-śīrṣaḥ there is kārttika. What is kārttika? Kīrttikā, from Kīrttikā nakṣatra this name has come, and Kīrttikā, coming as the shadow of Kīrttikā, mother of Rādhārāṇī. So Kārttikī, Sanātana Goswāmī has explained this in Hari-bhakti-vilāsa. The Kārttikī, one of the Names of Rādhārāṇī, the daughter of Kīrttikā. So we consider that to be the purest month, representing the connection anyhow of Śrī Rādhārāṇī.

Devotee: In Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu it is explained that if one practices bhakti in Vṛndāvana during kārttika even if he's not very sincere he will get the chance to become sincere. It is so much maṅgala.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh! But genuine connection of Vṛndāvana is very difficult to have, so Navadwīpa was necessary.

...

...such was the age, and he wanted to devise some sort of language and alphabet etcetera.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: What's Viṣṇupriyā's position?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Devotee: Viṣṇupriyā, Mahāprabhu's wife.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. Potency. Mahāprabhu. Gaura-Nārāyaṇa - when connection with Viṣṇupriyā, at that time Mahāprabhu is Nārāyaṇa, not Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa combined, from that aspect. Viṣṇupriyā-Gaurāṅga. Viṣṇupriyā-Lakṣmī. Śrī Bhu, two kinds of potency, Śrī Lakṣmī and Bhu, līlā. Two potencies of Gaura -Nārāyaṇa...

83.12.22.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...Nāma Saṅkīrtana. That is Yuga Avatāra. Every Kali-yuga That comes. But Rādhā-Govinda combined, Gaurāṅga, that is another. That comes only once in Brahmā's day.

aṣṭāviṁśa catur-yuge [dvāparera śeṣe, vrajera sahite haya kṛṣṇera prakāśe]

["At the end of the Dvāpara-yuga of the twenty-eighth divya-yuga, Lord Kṛṣṇa appears on earth with the full paraphernalia of His eternal Vraja-dhāma."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 3.10]

The twenty-eighth Kali-yuga. Thousand.

sahasra-yuga-paryantam, ahar yad brahmaṇo viduḥ
[rātriṁ yuga-sahasrāntāṁ, te 'ho-rātra-vido janāḥ]

["A day of Lord Brahmā lasts for one thousand catur-yugas and his night is of the same duration. Persons who know this have the true conception of day and night."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 8.17]

[One yuga (age) in the time calculation of the demigods = the four yugas or one catur-yuga in the time calculation of mankind, or 4,320,000 years.]

In Bhagavad-gītā. Sahasra-yuga-paryantam, ahar yad brahmaṇo viduḥ. One day of Brahmā contains thousand of catur-yugas. Every catur-yuga comes only Yuga Avatāra to preach Nāma Saṅkīrtana. And only twenty-eighth catur-yuga comes, in Dvāpara also, Svayaṁ-Bhagavān Kṛṣṇa, and Rādhā Svayaṁ-Rūpa. And also that Kali-yuga Rādhā-Govinda-milita. Not every Kali-yuga that combination comes.

Four yugas makes one divya-yuga. Satya, Tretā, Dvāpara, Kali, these four yugas combined makes one divya-yuga, or the heavenly yuga. And one thousand such heavenly yugas, that is four thousand yugas, makes one day of Brahmā.

So only in the twenty-eighth number the Rādhā-Govinda-milita Mahāprabhu, and Svayaṁ-Bhagavān Kṛṣṇa, Svayaṁ-Rūpa, in Vṛndāvana comes, not all Dvāpara or all Kali. Every Dvāpara or every Kali comes only Yuga Avatāra. In Satya-yuga to preach meditation. Dhyāyato viṣṇuṁ, tretāyāṁ yajato makhaiḥ.

[kṛte yad dhyāyato viṣṇuṁ, tretāyāṁ yajato makhaiḥ dvāpare paricaryyāyāṁ, kalau tadd hari-kīrttanāt]

["Whatever result was obtained in Satya-yuga by meditating on Viṣṇu, in Tretā-yuga by performing sacrifices, and in Dvāpara-yuga by serving the Lord's lotus feet can be obtained in Kali-yuga simply by chanting the Hare Kṛṣṇa mahā-mantra."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 12.3.52]

And to teach sacrifice in Tretā-yuga, and arcana in Dvāpara-yuga, and kīrtana in Kali-yuga. That is the yuga-dharma, and every Kali-yuga comes to preach saṅkīrtana. But the Purī līlā, Puruṣottama līlā, Radha-bhava vibhavita, the earnest separation for Kṛṣṇa, it is not found there.

So Viṣṇupriyā, she's the partner of yuga Gaura-Nārāyaṇa, when Mahāprabhu gives Hari Nāma to the people. Ha. Peculiar things, inconceivable.

And in mādhurya rasa there is Gadādhara, Gaura-Gadādhara. Though Rādhārāṇī combined, still, something like shadow, external, that is Gadādhara. Bhāva Mūrti. Heart drawn. Kṛṣṇa draws the very substance, the heart of Rādhārāṇī, and Rādhārāṇī represents as Gadādhara. He's always attracted by Gaurāṅga and running after Him. As in the wealth of his heart the gist, the nectar of his heart has been taken away by Kṛṣṇa. Empty hearted he's running, following after Gaurāṅga, helplessly, helpless. And the very gist of his heart has been captured by Kṛṣṇa and He has become Gaurāṅga, and he represents only the frame, running after Gaurāṅga, silently. This is the position of Gadādhara. Gaura-Gadādhara in bhajana-mārga.

And Gaura-Viṣṇupriyā, viddhi-mārga, Nārāyaṇa, Lakṣmī Nārāyaṇa.
Peculiar things. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: And Lakṣmīpriyā?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Lakṣmīpriyā is also like Viṣṇupriyā...

Devotee: Same.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...in the similar, two potency.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. And when in every other yuga, Yuga Avatāra performs the līlā of Mahāprabhu in Navadwīpa?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: But not in Purī?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In every Kali-yuga. But not full of...

Devotee: In Purī?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Purī also He may go, but He will preach Hari Nāma, and not about Rādhā- Govinda līlā, the vipralambha of Rādhārāṇī, of Kṛṣṇa as Rādhā. That is absent. Hari Nāma Saṅkīrtana He preaches everywhere.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: And Tulasī Mahārāṇī?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? Tulasī?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Tulasī also has two aspects. One with Nārāyaṇa, the Śālagrāma-śilā Tulasī. Then another internal representation in Vṛndāvana, in Kṛṣṇa līlā some function. Tulasī, Vṛndā.

Devotee: Can we consider that Tulasī although many is one?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Devotee: Tulasī although many, we see in our imperfect vision...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: With Nārāyaṇa, one phase. Then in Vṛndāvana another function, internal. Mainly with Nārāyaṇa, the peculiar function as mañjarī in Vṛndāvana.

Devotee: So although we see many Tulasī plants, Tulasī is actually one?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Plant, under Nārāyaṇa as Śālagrāma, and Tulasī plant, they come in the surface that way.

Ha. No end of the search enquiry, infinite. Only as much help according to our capacity we may try to grasp as much as possible. All infinite. To try to know much about them that is useless, because unfathomable. We can't make them the object of our knowledge. All adhokṣaja, unknown, unknowable. Only a slight connection we may have by Their Grace. It's not that we shall finish them and put within our fist. That is offensive. Ke?

Devotee: Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja.

Devotee: Sometimes when we're out in the preaching field, we have to deal with this kind of mentality.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We're always to see that this is not approachable by our knowledge. Our tiny knowledge cannot capture those infinite conceptions. That is the basis.

jñāne prayāsam udapāsya namanta eva, [jīvanti san-mukharitāṁ bhavadīya-vārtām
sthāne sthitāḥ śruti-gatāṁ tanu-vāṅ-manobhir, ye prāyaśo 'jita jito 'py asi tais tri-lokyām]

["Oh Lord, Oh Unconquerable One, those devotees who, completely giving up all attempts on the path of jñāna of attaining the non-differentiated platform known as Brahma by hearing the transcendental narratives of Your pastimes, which emanates from the lotus mouths of the mahā-bhāgavat sādhus and pass their lives by engaging their body, mind and words in pure devotion, easily conquer You (they easily get Your transcendental association), although You are the most difficult to attain in the three worlds."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.3]

Ha, ha. That is not to come within the cage of our knowledge. Ha, ha. A basic truth is this. So give up your vanity about knowledge, that you will know everything, you will finish everything. It is all Vaikuṇṭha. Vaikuṇṭha means it is unlimited, they're all unlimited. We venture to approach the unlimited area, we must keep it in mind. So it's not possible that like a tiger I shall put in a cage and show to the people.

As Napoleon was caught and put in a cage and he was taken through the roads of London. So Napoleon was posing in such a way that nothing happened seriously. And he used to talk with the public in a most friendly way. Then the British found that he's creating a danger, infusing the spirit of independence into the subjects. Then took him away and put into the cell, St Helena, that island. So to put Napoleon in the cage and to make a show, as a fun in the public, it's not possible.

These Vaikuṇṭha affairs, that means we may have by their grace, and we must be satisfied with that, grace. We're not masters of that land. We're not masters of them that we can tackle them in any way we like. Then if we have such temper we'll have to wander in this mundane land where we can make other things objects of our research laboratory. It is not so. In the research laboratory also we cannot finish anything to the end. Analysis, analysis, analysis, go on.

tam akratuḥ paśyati vīta-śoko, dhātuḥ prasādān mahimānam ātmanaḥ]

If we want to seek, search for the smallest, no end. Analyse, analyse, analyse, analyse. Atom, proton, in this way it goes on. And to the big, bigger side also like that, no end. Only in the middle we can have some knowledge, and we can do with that, must be satisfied with some middle knowledge. Not extremely subtle, nor extremely big. It's always only in a limited circle we can work.

"But it's better to serve in heaven than to reign in hell." This is the underlying principle, the better. Not like Satan, "It's better to reign in hell than to serve in heaven." No, the opposite. "Better to serve in heaven than to reign in hell." That principle we're to carry out. We want to be servitors to the higher existence, and never we shall be lords of the lower creation. That is the main principle of life. Mix with the higher, associate with the higher, though it is a type of service that is more paying. And to lord it over the lower creation, apparently it may be a very happy thing, but when the reaction will come we shall have to repent.

Gaura Hari.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Yesterday I was reading in Caitanya-caritāmṛta, and at one point...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I don't follow what you say.

Devotee: Yesterday I was reading Caitanya-caritāmṛta, and specifically when Lord Caitanya Mahāprabhu is about to leave for South India. And He says that, "I'm going alone to look for Viśvarūpa." His elder brother. So I venture myself to take this that to look for Viśvarūpa one has to go alone.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That was a plea. Really He wanted to preach Himself, to distribute His grace to so many places, outwardly in the form of preaching Hari Nāma. And He expressed to some place that, "I like to go in search of Viśvarūpa."

But that was a plea, that ordinary people may accept that, "Yes, it is a legitimate cause." They did not like His absence. They were not granting His tour.

So He told like that, "That I must go for search of Viśvarūpa."

Then the friends thought, "Oh, of course, that should be done."

So that was a plea.

Only when He went to Pandapur there Śrī Raṅga Purī, who was a follower of Mādhava Purī, who visited Navadwīpa along with his Guru Mādhava Purī, when he met Him, this new sannyāsī Caitanya Deva, he told that, "Where do you come from?"

Mahāprabhu told that, "From Navadwīpa, Bengal."

"Oh. Navadwīpa, Bengal. There is one ideal gṛhastha Jagannātha Mīsra. With my Gurudeva Mādhavendra Purī we were guest in his house, he's very hospitable. And we took there a particular curry of mocha, the plantain flower, and that was very, very tasteful. The wife of Jagannātha Mīsra she's a very, very good cook. And they have most earnestness to serve the guest, specially the sannyāsīns. And one of his sons he took sannyāsa and he lived here, and he disappeared here in this Pandapur."

That Śrī Raṅga Purī gave this news to Śrī Caitanya Deva.

Then Śrī Caitanya Deva gave, told, or answered, privately, in a private talk, that, "I'm son of that Jagannātha Mīsra, and Viśvarūpa was My elder brother. I come from..."

"Oh. You come from that house, that very happy, religious household there."

Śrī Raṅga Purī told, in Pandapur, Maharastra. Perhaps in Maharastra, or Nagpur, somewhere there, or Karnatak? Pandapur, Maharastra perhaps.

There He met Śrī Raṅga Purī who gave this information that, "Viśvarūpa disappeared in this tīrtha, holy place. And he was the son of Jagannātha Mīsra of Navadwīpa. And You are his younger brother?"

"Yes."

A private talk took place of the two sannyāsīns there.

"The Śacī Devī is like a mother to the sannyāsīns. She has much affection, specially for the saints, and very expert cook, and with much earnestness she satisfies the saintly guests."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Nine?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Yes. Mahārāja. [26:32 - 26:50?] Mahārāja, this mantram...

Badrinārāyaṇa: This is called the Śrī Śrī Gaura Pariṣada Caritavali, by Haridāsa, Harikṛpa dāsa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I do not know him.

Badrinārāyaṇa: He's a disciple of Ananta Vasudeva.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh. So we do not accept him as authority.

What was written about Prabhupāda that during his stay there was a Sarasvatī-jayaśrī, that is considered to be authentic, Sarasvatī-jayaśrī, that book. And these books compiled by Ananta Vasudeva when he left Prabhupāda.

...

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Devotee: To be cultivated.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: To be cultivated?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It depends on the stage of realisation. How far one should be intimate to different stages of bhajan. In the service there are different stages, and according to realisation, and also the Supreme Will, Supreme Order, one is to adjust. Who are supposed that in the Vṛndāvana service, Lalitā, she becomes Svarūpa Dāmodara. Viśākhā becomes Rāmānanda Rāya. Rūpa Mañjarī becomes Śrī Rūpa Goswāmī. So according to the realisation. These are fully realised souls. They're also playing different parts of duty.

And in the case of the sādhaka, according to their stage of realisation they will accept. In the beginning to take the Name of the Lord. And also to preach the grace of the Name, of Mahāprabhu, devotee, all these things. And to reach, and also to think, the highest end of life, our goal, is there, somewhere in the high infinite, which we do not realise fully. But our prospect is there. But at the same time - "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread." We must be attentive to that truth. That is the goal of our life, but I must not march in such a foolish way that I'll be finished in the way.

A military general finds his goal to approach the capitol of the enemy camp. That is in his end, destination, but he must make progress very carefully, so that he may not be nipped in the bud in the middle.

Goal is there, but I must considerately and carefully I must march towards that goal. If I'm out of consideration then I'll be nowhere. Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So considerate progress in the realisation of the higher goal, that will be our goal. But we must make progress carefully, leaving no enemy in the back. In the gradual and sure process we must march. That is devotion. Rādhā-Govinda līlā, or Nanda-Yaśodā, Kṛṣṇa, Bala-Gopāla, all friendly Kṛṣṇa, whatever it be, but that must be approached carefully. Conquering the nearest outside environment I must march. That is,

ādau śraddhā tataḥ sādhu-saṅgo' tha bhajana-kriyā tato' nartha-nivṛttiḥ syāt tato niṣṭhā rucis tataḥ athāsaktis tato bhāvas [tataḥ premābhyudañcati
sādhakānām ayaṁ premṇaḥ prādurbhāve bhavet kramaḥ]

["In the beginning there must be faith. Then one becomes interested in associating with pure devotees. Thereafter one is initiated by the spiritual master and executes the regulative principles under his orders. Thus one is freed from all unwanted habits and becomes firmly fixed in devotional service. Thereafter, one develops taste and then attachment. This is the way of sādhana-bhakti, the execution of devotional service according to the regulative principles. Gradually spiritual emotions manifest and intensify, then finally there is an awakening of divine love. This is the gradual development of love of Godhead for the devotee interested in Kṛṣṇa consciousness."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, 1.4.15-16]

This is the method of making progress further towards the high. This scientific advice we must try to utilise. Otherwise our too much hurriedness may be our own enemy. Whatever progress I shall do I must consolidate my position there, again I shall go and consolidate myself. In this way the progress should be made towards the highest goal, to Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, and Mahāprabhu also.

Gaura līlā is also there. Gaura līlā is more safe. To approach through Gaura līlā to Kṛṣṇa līlā that is the most advisable and most safe way. Kṛṣṇa has come here as Gaurāṅga to advise us how we shall go towards Him. Because there is much possibility of committing offences against Kṛṣṇa līlā, but less offence in Gaura līlā. It's especially arranged for the fallen how to take them up towards the high position. Gaura līlā is designed for the fallen souls like us, to take us to that high destination. So through Gaura līlā we must try to approach Kṛṣṇa līlā. That will be found. And there we shall find our pleasure, enjoyment, joy, both in Kṛṣṇa and Gaurāṅga līlā similar.

Mādhurya rasa is all capturing rasa, all accommodating, but that is very high type which accommodates all sorts of rasa, most valuable. So though we want that, but we must be very careful that we can enter really mādhurya rasa and not this similar thing, this kāma, this worldly thing. That is perverted reflection here in this world, the friend, the parent, and the mādhurya rasa, all here reflection. And I must not be very eager to catch things here and we shall make statement that 'I have got that thing, transcendental.' We must not accept mundane and give a statement that 'I have got some transcendental truth.' And there's the difficulty and danger.

We must not be too confident in our own self, so that I shall have to lose everything, and only collect some offences in the meantime. The road is clear, clearly shown to us. Śraddhā, bhajana-kriyā, anartha- nivṛttiḥ, ruci, all these steps have been given to us to go to that transcendental realm. So I must not be traitor to my own self. Only for the fame, the glory, that 'I'm a big man, a big sādhu, I've finished all these things,' that will be all suicidal to ones own self. 'I've got everything within me. I'm a big man. I'm an Ācārya of the highest order.' To get some position and fame I must not risk my own life. _____ Ke?

Devotee: ...the field of my duty, those things are more or less existing in the mental plane. To conceive like that is māyāvāda?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hmm? I don't follow.

Devotee: For example, I am at this moment I'm here with you. Hmm?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: And sometimes to my mind it may come the idea of Venezuela, and the temple, and the disciples. Hmm? What is the actual substantial existence these things?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It may come, but in consideration of a part of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. In terms of Kṛṣṇa conscious value, that will be transformation. It was in my mind, so many things, a part of my mental thought. But the land of exploitation that must be transformed into part of dedication, devotion. I'm to serve them. Whatever will come to my mind I shall think that I must serve them with Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Nirbandha, kṛṣṇa-sambandhe. Everything - not in connection of exploitation, nor renunciation, but whatever paraphernalia may come in my mind that must have some tinge of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. That is, Kṛṣṇa is everywhere. And I shall try my best to behave with them in that relationship of Kṛṣṇa consciousness, taking the centre everywhere, taking my Lord, wanting to establish the Lordship of my Lord everywhere. Kṛṣṇa is our Lord, your Lord, my Lord. He's the Lord to me. He's the goal of our life. We all should be a serving unit in His holy feet. Nirbandha, kṛṣṇa-sambandhe. You are my friend if we together can serve Kṛṣṇa. In this way. Nothing should be exploited, nor should be renounced, but everything should be connected with Kṛṣṇa consciousness, the service of Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa consciousness means service of Kṛṣṇa. We cannot have Kṛṣṇa in any other attitude but service, wholesale service, the holiest form of service, perfect form of service, where self surrender is the basis. We shall try to see anywhere in connection with Kṛṣṇa.

Sarvatya kṛṣṇe ramurti kari jal mal sei dehki te paya yara rakhina ramore [?]

If the dirts from our eyes removed then we shall be able to see everywhere the connection of Kṛṣṇa, the Lord of my heart. He's the Lord of everywhere. We're in a family, in a sweet family we all are, and well connected, helping one another in the service of the Lord of our heart. That should be the feeling of visiting anything and everything. Whatever we'll come in connection with, but everything must be transformed into Kṛṣṇa consciousness. That is, Kṛṣṇa is our Lord, with whole heart we must try to satisfy Him. With this idea, anywhere, everywhere.

Transformation, wholesale transformation must begin with us, in our mental system, of lives together. Mental experience also is vast, from our previous - something in the coating and some left in the depth of our mental plane. But the wholesale transformation is necessary. Otherwise, what is artificial cover within us that must evaporate and our innate function will come out, in other words. This is all artificial and concocted. All these things will vanish and my internal relationship with Kṛṣṇa will accommodate the whole environment. That is the meaning, all Kṛṣṇa interest, everything Kṛṣṇa interest.

Back to God, back to home, back to Godhead, all back to Godhead. God centred, not any other centre, not country centred, or nation centred, or man centred, woman centred, nothing. All Kṛṣṇa centred. Rādhā- Kṛṣṇa, or Gaurāṅga-Nityānanda, all similar things. If we go to one part They'll take us to other parts also. Surrender to Nityānanda - Nityānanda will take to Gaurāṅga. Gaurāṅga and Rādhā-Govinda all embrace us. In this way we shall try sincerely. As much as we can command our sincerity, our free will, we shall try our utmost. The rest on Him, leaving on Him. We must try with what is our own capacity and position, but the rest depending on His good will. Guru, Vaiṣṇava, Kṛṣṇa, Mahāprabhu, Nityānanda, the rest They will take care of. As much as possible I shall what I can command I shall come with that thing to Them, will try.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

["I offer my respectful obeisances unto Mādhava, Who is the Personification of transcendental bliss. Today we have come here for some divine purpose we assembled, we gathered here. Specially those that have come from far away, the foreign countries. What for? What for? Because we got some extraordinary hope of fulfilment of our life. That has attracted us here.

Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura Goswāmī Mahārāja, he sent his men to the foreign countries in an organised way to approach those that were supposed to be at the top of the present civilisation, to attract them towards the topmost spiritual conception of the world hitherto known to humanity.

Spiritual hope has been brought down to this material world several times now and then amongst human beings. But that was of different type. The Buddhist, the Jains, the Christians, Mohammedans, and so many type of call in the name of spiritual conception has been hitherto extended to our view.

But India, by the decision of the Supreme, is generally thought to be the abode of spiritual gifts. In a very systematic way difference of religions, religious conceptions of different shades have been given here. As much as culture about spirituality is seen to take place in India, so much we do not find in other countries of the globe.

And the writings about spirituality reached its most extensive magnitude in the hand of Vedavyāsa, Kṛṣṇa-Dvaipāyana, Vedavyāsa. Whose āśrama was in Badarikāśrama. So far no person in human form has given such a great magnitude of writing of different thoughts, especially the religious thoughts. So much, there is no two opinions about this. Such a great volume of writings can never be found, even nearby also not found in the whole of the world. That so much writing about different thoughts of humanity, including that of religion. This Mahābhārata, Purāṇa, Vedānta, Veda, Upaniṣad, so many.

And last of all Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, and there was some speciality. In the beginning, in the very introduction here the Vyāsadeva, the greatest recognised writer in the whole of the world, who could represent innumerable types of thoughts in the human society, and even further. Even if it's possible for us to know even representing the animals and the vegetable kingdom. But in the introduction of Śrīmad- Bhāgavatam he has given an impression, that generally sādhus are of two kinds, matsara, nirmmatsara. Nirmat-sarāṇāṁ satāṁ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.1.2] Exhaustively eliminating self interest.

Self forgetfulness. We find these words in Bible also, or the commentators on Bible. Self forgetfulness. But what is self forgetfulness in reality, that has been given there. Self forgetfulness, not a lip deep expression, but in reality what is total self forgetfulness, it is in surrender. Surrender, and surrender to whom? Surrender to some authority, who provides for our material life, our bread, butter, our health, our resources, even our knowledge, all these things.

"Not for this, but for Himself. For Himself. For the Whole, for the Centre, for the Reality. Complete surrender, nirmat-sarāṇāṁ satāṁ. Only those who can know what is surrender, it is, this Bhāgavata instruction is only for them. Others won't understand what I'm going to say, to give in this book, the last production of mine."

Die to live, in a general way, die to live, śaraṇāgata. Then after death of all possible life of all other conceptions, what will be the possible condition of us? Die. If we merge into all conscious ocean, that is also to die to live. Live there in the tomb, unknown ocean, merged, that is also. But not that. That is also - ego is not fully eliminated, selfish conception is not fully eliminated there.

Then? When we're to see in the ocean of consciousness, personality, Vāsudeva, then our real surrender begins.

bahūnāṁ janmanām ante, jñānavān māṁ prapadyate vāsudevaḥ sarvam [iti, sa mahātmā sudurlabhaḥ]

["After many, many births, the knowledgeable person (who happens to attain the association of such a pure devotee) finally comes to understand that the whole universe of moving and stationary being is of the nature of Vāsudeva alone, inasmuch as all are subordinate to Vāsudeva. Having grasped this conception, he surrenders unto Me. Know such a great soul to be extremely rare."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 7.19]

Spiritualists when they find that the Reality, the Absolute Truth, the Whole, that is of personal character, gets out of impersonal conception. Personal character, then our head bends there. Here begins śaraṇāgati. Before this no śaraṇāgati, no surrender possible, geocentric conception does not vanish. Heliocentric conception of the spiritual prime cause begins from Vāsudeva conception. Here it begins, only, in a hazy way. Then if we can develop ourselves in this line we're to find that there is potency. That Person is not inactive, but that big personality, the Infinite Personality is active. And how? He has hierarchy, a group, extended self, so many, administration in that realm, all these things. He's the owner of all power, owner of all power He is. I'm an infinitesimal part of His potency. Then what? That is a land of - that is the sphere of calculative duty. I have got my duty to do there, and then there I can have my satisfaction of my life, fulfilment of my life in His service. I can feel from innermost part of my heart. But it does not end there. In our inner hankering we find that wholesale engagement with the environment, the corresponding side of the Absolute is not satisfied there. Gradually we're to follow - the inner suggestion of our heart of different types of engagement with...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...love, that becomes most satisfactory to anyone and everyone. And very shortly I'm saying this. Then the affectionate service, the question of affectionate service, that we find within us. Innate inspiration to serve the Supreme, and we can gradually find that is beautiful, and loving, ultimate reality. Ultimate reality is the store of love and affection. Sweetness we find. All of us anyhow or other we're searching after sweetness, a sweet life, and we can find after all a sweet land. Sweet land, everything is sweet.

madhuraṁ madhuraṁ vapur asya vibhor, madhuraṁ madhuraṁ vadanaṁ madhuraṁ
madhu gandhi mṛdu smitam etad aho, madhuraṁ madhuraṁ madhuraṁ madhuraṁ

["O Lord Kṛṣṇa! The beauty of Your transcendental form is sweet, but Your beautiful face is even sweeter. The sweet smile on Your face, which is like the sweet aroma of honey, is sweeter still."]
[Kṛṣṇa-Karṇāmṛtam, 92]

Sweetness. We can find that we're all searching after sweet things. And there is a domain of sweetness.

Vyāsadeva in Bhāgavatam he discovered for us that land of sweetness in Vṛndāvana. And he distributed to the scholars of them, historical scholars of that age, through one whose credit was unchallengeable, Śukadeva Goswāmī. That sweetness is in the prime cause of the whole, and we can take part there in that līlā. In that līlā we can take part.

So Śrī Caitanya He took up this cause exclusively. "That you human beings you need not waste your time running hither thither. But go straight to the last treatise of Vedavyāsa, Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, where the Absolute has been given to us as the sweetest guardianship."

And also that we believe that that very sweet Absolute came as Śrī Caitanya Deva to permit us, to give us admission into His own land, direct. The sweet Absolute is told of mainly two aspects - positive, negative. Rasa-rāja mahābhāva. And both combined came Śrī Caitanya Deva to give us admission, and to call us for that land of sweetness. And also at the same time the sweetness is being distributed in the other side of that land, Goloka. Navadwīpa and Vṛndāvana, side by side. In one portion it is being tasted in the group, and another it is being distributed to the public.

And all these things we're given in this present age of scientific civilisation, verging on atheism. Our Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Prabhu he was bold enough to preach, to distribute such thought to the whole of the world. As Vyāsadeva in his last book he gave the highest conception of the Absolute, Śrī Caitanya Deva drew it and announced in the world that 'this is such' with His paraphernalia. And also details He has given with help of the Goswāmīns. How that attainment, how to live, everything in details has been given. I'm very shortly going on. And that thing in this age of scientific civilisation of almost atheistic character, Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura he came to give the highest thing to the world, and he began to distribute this.

And finally we found that A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja he showed a great success in this matter to distribute to the whole of the world. So we're indebted to him so much. And we see so many faces from the distant parts of the world only by his grace, A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja. If we've got any real affection and devotion towards our Gurudeva we cannot but be grateful to that great messiah Bhaktivedānta Swāmī, who fulfilled the object of our Guru Mahārāja Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī to such a great extent, cannot but. But at the same time we must think that we may not forget the standard, the reality, for which he tried, and Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura also.

And we're to find in Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura in his good will for this propaganda. And in a very scientific way he has distributed the teachings of Śrī Caitanya Deva, Ṭhākura Narottama, and Rūpa, Sanātana, Śrī Jīva Goswāmī, Kavirāja Goswāmī, through these messiahs, the real fulfilment, the whole fulfilment of our whole life in this world of death and birth.

Every second, every moment, lives are coming and going, coming and going. Even we do not know that we go and come, we go and come, we think that we go forever and not to come. How many of us can remember our previous birth? Very few, almost none, who can remember their previous birth, and he may have faith that again after this life I shall live. This practical faith

- very few. We're all challenged by the death, the whole universe. Now the civilised world is also under alarm that if atomic war begins then the whole world will be crushed into ashes, reduced to ashes. Such apprehension.

But if we can have real faith in immortality of soul, beginning with Socrates, and then Christ and others. And fulfilment of full life in Śrī Caitanya Deva's teachings and Bhāgavatam, that we can love. We love a family life, and in toto we can have such eternal and fully conscious spiritual divine life. The wholesale can be divine - ised, transformed into divinity. The sweet life what we can aspire, we can imagine, that can be realised.

kṛṣṇera yateka khelā sarvottama nara-līlā, nara-vapu tāhāra svarūpa

He carries a flute in His hand, and His youth is new. He is also an expert dancer. All this is just suitable for His pastimes as a human being."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 21.101]

We're told that human form of life is the highest in this creation, because in the absolute quarter such model is existent. So similar life we can have in the spiritual highest quarter, sweet family life. We can hope to have the all controller, the all harmonising principle, as our beloved, our guardian, our children, and so on, we can have. In one word 'friendly' life. Loving friendly life that can be spiritualised. This human society has been formed after that model which is existing in the highest quarter.

This has been given by Vedavyāsa, and Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanya Deva and His followers. This is a new thing. Twenty four hours we may be engaged in spiritualism. Not that in a week we shall go to the church and put some prayer to the Lord. He's far away - not such. But twenty four hours we can have a fully engaged life of high spiritual order and taste. It is possible. This is not to be found anywhere.

And this idea Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura he wanted to push to the whole world. "Why people won't accept this?" He came with such force. "They're running after phantasmagoria, after misconception they're running. Why this reality which is very near to his inner heart, why they should not accept this? They must accept. They must accept this, they must recognise this as their own inner wealth. Why shouldn't they do? If we can push properly then everyone will eagerly come to accept this, that we can live a family life with the Supreme Lord, the Sweetest Absolute. Sweetest life of such type."

With this idea. When he first established a centre in London, one Mahārājah Adiraja Burdwan [?] he told, "Who is such a bold man that in this place of high material civilisation he wants to push the doctrine of love in the machine? Who is he who has got such courage that he wants to transform these machines into loving agents? What sort of boldness he has got? Who is that gentleman?" So they were astounded to think that in mechanised civilisation he wants to inundate everything with affection and love, in place of higher mechanism.

With such life and such grace and such prospect and magnanimity our Guru Mahārāja came to this world. And so many persons were attracted by his grace. And now of course we're still trying to stick to his holy feet for our own benefit, and for the benefit of those that come to us to take this. And also others that may not come, all may be converted into his disciples, or may be indebted to him for their fulfilment of their highest benefit in life.

With this I want to close my conversation, discourse today.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Do you like to say something?

Pramāṇa Swāmī: Nama oṁ viṣṇu-pādāya kṛṣṇa-preṣṭhāya bhū-tale ...

In this way we can see by the grace of Śrīla Prabhupāda, Śrīla Śrīdhara Deva Mahārāja, how the line, in that line the pure teachings of Mahāprabhu is coming down to give us His Grace. The Grace of Lord Caitanya is our only shelter because in His Grace that we can find the real fulfilment of our life. Very deep in our selves we have found a need. And trying to satisfy this need we've been going on searching after the religious teachings in the world. First in the lap of Christianity, then by the grace of our Guru Mahārāja Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Prabhupāda, we came to the call of Mahāprabhu's teachings. And that which was originally planted in our heart as a small seed, and was somehow or other left in a very small condition like a small plant needing to be taken care of. At the present moment it's being very expertly handled by the hands of Your Divine Grace. And that love that attracts us to the feet of our Guru Mahārāja, that same love we find today at your holy feet. And we can see that that same love it must have been there at the feet of Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda Paramahaṁsa Parivrājakācārya Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Ṭhākura. And we can only pray in this auspicious day that that boundless mercy in past maintained your elder devotees at the feet of His Divine Grace, that same grace may be showered upon us so that we can also maintain our faith at your holy feet. And in that way carry out the message of Lord Caitanya Mahāprabhu all throughout the world for the glory of our sampradāya. So we thank you very much Mahārāja for this opportunity.

Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura, what he has come to give, this highest form of bhakti, is not to be found anywhere. And it has spread its wings even to the western countries, the mleccha countries, attracting any and everyone to this Holy Dhāma. The spiritual master he never disappears, he's also present in his disciples. So by some unknown fortune we've had the grace of being in the association of his most dear disciple Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja. And in this way we can catch some little glimpse of who he was, or who he is eternally. This is the highest thing we're speaking about. We're not speaking of something of a lower section. Only the greatest scholars are able to appreciate and cultivate this highest reality. So we do find ourselves very fortunate to be able to sit at the lotus feet of our Gurudeva and in this way we can learn something. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

[Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Very few can remember about their previous life.]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Jñātisya [?], a Sanskrit word there is jñātisya [?]. There are some, very few, who can remember their past birth.

Here, a few days before, one Bengali gentleman, Mr Banergee or so, he, in order to prove transmigration of soul, he began to collect the name of those persons who could remember their previous life. And he found and mentioned names of several persons.

He tested that one person is here, he says: "In my previous life I was there, and there is an almirah [chest, wardrobe] and there are some things stored by me. I want to have them."

And it was tested and found it is so. Such cases, several cases he enlisted. So birth and rebirth is proved here. Whether there is rebirth, birth after birth, it is proved by this instance scientifically.

"In my previous birth I was so and so. Let me take there. I kept these things in my almirah."

In this way a few examples were found in India. About twenty years or so ago I found one gentleman he was after this campaign, the birth and rebirth is there. They are told as jñātisya [?] They can remember, they have previous recollection of life incidents. Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I also heard that during that second great war some head and some body, one head is all right and that body is all right, and after cutting, and one head of a particular man was connected with the body of a particular man. And it was in the hospital under the care of the doctors they were well connected and they lived. And they tested that the brain of the man that was guiding his life. Whose head was connected with the body of another, the body had no value, but the man whose head was taken, after the connected body is fully cured, told that, "I have left my things there, I have such and such things here." He could tell, the head. An Italian head connected with a French body. Italian head, according to the head he told that "My father, my brother, my things, my wife, all these things." According to the head.

I saw in paper. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja is asking, "How is that ātmāsamiksa begins?"

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ātmāsamiksa begins? It is the results of the previous actions, previous sukṛti. The same thing to be traced. Ātmāsamiksa of different type. The elevationist, salvationist, then dedicationist, all may have their different types of ātmāsamiksa. "Who am I? Who am I?"

Elevationist, a karmī, he also may have ātmāsamiksa according to Jaimini and others. "If we do in this and this way then I shall flourish. I shall live long in good health, in good mind, with good enjoying life. In the karma-kaṇḍa."

Then the salvationists, Buddhists, Śaṅkara, their ātmāsamiksa will be of another type. "This is not the world to live in happily. So I must retire from this mortal life." This sort of ātmāsamiksa there.

But these are artificial according to us. Our ātmāsamiksa, of the devotional school is otherwise. Though the same question, "Who am I?" I am not only a factor of this material world. Neither a factor of the taṭasthā, that is only mere tiny soul in the world, but above that there is a huge world, Vaikuṇṭha, Goloka. There, ātmāsamiksa is of another type. From the sukṛti gathered from different lives they will come to find that, "No, there is God. I have some relation with Him and I must get His service. A life of service is the elevated form of life. Renunciation and elevation in this life that is not satisfactory."

So different types of ātmāsamiksa. The ātmāsamiksa of the devotees, the perfect form of ātmāsamiksa, self-analysis, self-search, that comes from sukṛti as it is told ajñāta-sukṛti, jñāta-sukṛti, then it flows over the surface as śraddhā. "There is One, if we can successfully connect with Him properly, then I shall be best benefited." That will develop in that way.

Does he understand my language, statement? The same thing, ajñāta-sukṛti, jñāta-sukṛti, then śraddhā.

bhaktis tu bhagavad-bhaktasaṅgena parijāyate sat-saṅgaḥ prāpyate puṁbhiḥ sukṛtaiḥ pūrvva-sañcitaiḥ

["Actually we can recognise a sādhu by sukṛti. Apparently we can know him from the śāstras, the scriptures, because the śāstra helps us to know who is a sādhu, and the sādhu gives us the interpretation of the śāstra. So sādhu and śāstra are interdependent, but the sādhu holds the more important position and the śāstra has the secondary position. The living śāstra is the sādhu, but to know who is guru, who is sādhu, we are to consult the descriptions given about them in the scriptures. The symptoms of the sādhu, both of the guru as well as the disciple, have been written in the Bhāgavatam, in the Gītā and in the Upaniṣads."]

[Bṛhan-Nāradīya-Purāṇa]

Ajñāta-sukṛti, jñāta-sukṛti, that accumulated gives birth to what is śraddhā. Śraddhā means the faith that if I do my duty towards the centre then the whole is fed, whole is served. Put food to the stomach whole body is served. That sort of knowledge comes from the sukṛti that is ultimately by the grace of the divine agents.

Just as when by accident a man fallen on the street, no knowledge. Some good persons come with a need to help him. Then by their treatment, by their nursing, if he has got some knowledge, then he will say, "Oh, I am so and so. Please take me to my home and they will take care of me." That man, getting consciousness by the nursing of the street persons, he will say, whenever his knowledge will come, "Take me to my home." He will cooperate with them, or they may take him to hospital. When the consciousness will come he will say, "I am so and so, please inform them, they will take care of me." Again he may be unconscious, but whenever consciousness comes only he will suggest.

So, the jīva is moving unconsciously, whenever particular conscious will comes with the help, first help when unconscious, first help will come from the outsider. Then when consciousness comes, he may begin to help himself, self help will come. So after sukṛti, śraddhā will come, then self help will begin. Before that, sukṛti, that in an unconscious condition only the passers by in the street they can help him. But when he has got his consciousness then he may help his own cause. Before that it is not possible.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. One should always wait for revelation to come down? Or also one should make some effort towards?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Effort in the proper line in submission with the superior efficient persons. Whimsical effort won't bring much success everywhere. Effort in the proper channel that will be effective, will be of use, otherwise, whimsical action won't produce much good result. Regulated action is necessary, always, and regulation must be by the experts. *Vaiṣṇava anugatya he*_____ [?], Vaiṣṇava, Guru, Ācārya, anugatya, śāstra, regulated effort is necessary to attain success. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. What should be the sannyāsīs bhajan?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sannyāsī?

Devotees: Bhajan.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sannyāsī bhajan?

Devotee: His worship. The bhajan of a sannyāsī, which nature should be?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhajan? What do you mean by bhajan?

Badrinārāyaṇa: What is the nature of the bhajan of the sannyāsī?

Devotee: The nature of his worship.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. Sannyāsī means kāya-mano-vākya, thought, word, deed. Tridaṇḍa sannyāsī. One who has controlled these three aspects of him and engaged them in the service of the Lord. Thought, word and deed, kāya-mano-vākya. By word he will speak only for the cause of the divinity. He will labour with hand, leg, whatever, body, wholly engaged in the service of the Lord. Body, kāya, mano, and mind, he will think only in the interest of the Supreme Lord. Three aspects, one who has dedicated to the service of the Lord, he's tridaṇḍa sannyāsī.

vāg-daṇḍo 'tha mano-daṇḍaḥ-stathaiva ca [yasyaite nihitā-buddhau tridaṇḍīti sa ucyate]

["One who accepts the rod of chastisement for the speech, mind, and actions, and who keeps his senses in check with that rod of chastisement is known as a tridaṇḍī, or one who has accepted the threefold rod of chastisement and renunciation."] [Manu-Saṁhitā, 12.10]

He has controlled these three. He has punished, daṇḍa means punishment. He has punished these three aspects of him, and engaged them in the service of the Lord. Not for exploitation, not for gratification of his own senses and mind. A sannyāsī is he who has renounced the worldly connection and engaged himself in the service of the Lord. He's a sannyāsī. He has devoted himself wholesale to the service of the Lord. Not for his own sense gratification, nor the gratification of his mental concoction. There are so many scientists that have controlled their senses from all sorts of worldly pleasure, and engaged in the laboratory. But they're not called sannyāsī, not bhajan. Must be connected with the Supreme. That For Itself. Reality is For Itself. And he must live a life in consonance with reality, for the central cause, dedicated to the central cause. Retiring from selfish adventure and engaging himself for the central cause.

sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja
ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

To surrender everything to Him, and want His cent per cent service, and the Lord will come to help him, so that he may give up his whims, tendencies towards other things and can easily concentrate towards Him. He'll also come if he surrenders to Him, "Please utilise me," from the core of his heart, and He will come to help that he may utilise for Him. That is bhajan, bhajan means not bhoga, and bhajan means sacrifice, self dedication, bhajan. To give, to sacrifice. Bhogan means to satisfy him, and bhajan means to dedicate, sacrifice.

[mama vartmānuvartante, manuṣyāḥ pārtha sarvaśaḥ]

["As a person takes refuge in Me, I accordingly respond to him. Being the ultimate goal of all philosophies and doctrines, I am the objective to be attained by all. Certainly, O Pārtha, all men follow My various paths."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.11]

As one conducts himself towards Him, He also makes Himself with such reaction, similar reaction comes to give. The soul is giving him to the Lord, Lord also giving Him to the soul, visa versa.

Bhajan, do for the interest of another. Generally meaning to serve, bhajan means to give, to serve, to sacrifice. And bhogan to take, to enjoy. Bhogan and bhajan, bhajan to give, bhogan to take. Bhogan means to consume, and bhajan means to sacrifice. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

...

Devotee: Lord Caitanya instructed Nityānanda Prabhu to preach about Rādhā and Govinda.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Devotee: Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu instructed Nityānanda Prabhu to come to Bengal and preach the glories of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa. But instead of doing that, Nityānanda Prabhu He started preaching the glories of Gaurāṅga Mahāprabhu.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: And Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja is asking that how He did that?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh. Mahāprabhu came to give Rādhā-Govinda bhakti, but devotion to Kṛṣṇa in the line of Rādhārāṇī. To help Rādhārāṇī in the service of Kṛṣṇa. For that Mahāprabhu came. And Nityānanda Prabhu found that "If I can give, I can make one to surrender to Gaurāṅga, Gaurāṅga is Rādhā- Govinda Himself, you may not speak it to others. Automatically he'll get Rādhā-Govinda very easily."

Gaurāṅga left Kālākṛṣṇa dāsa. "That he was going astray. Anyhow I have collected him from the south. And now, you all gave him to Me for My attendant, I have anyhow taken, and I now make him free. I don't require him any further."

Then Nityānanda Prabhu did not deject him. He gave him some engagement. "Go to Śacī Devī and say that Mahāprabhu after two years tour safely arrived in Purī. This news you say." He engaged him in service.

Nityānanda Prabhu He realises fully that anyone if connected with Gaurāṅga his life is ensured. Gaurāṅga is Rādhā-Govinda, sometimes combined, sometimes separate. Sometimes Both combined, searching, mutual interest. And sometimes being separated They're performing līlā. Deha-bhedaṁ gatau tau. Even we can't say - it is in the eternal world - Who is first, Who is second. Whether Gaurāṅga first, Rādhā-Govinda after. Or Rādhā-Govinda first, then combination is after. Both eternal.

[rādhā kṛṣṇa-praṇaya-vikṛtir hlādinī śaktir asmād

As the Predominating and Predominated Moieties, Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa are eternally one, with separate individual identities. Now They have again united as Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya. This inconceivable transformation of the Lord's internal pleasure-giving potency has arisen from the loving affairs of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa."] [Caitanya-caritamrta, Ādi-līlā, 1.5]

Svarūpa Dāmodara says, "What is Caitanya Deva? Rādhā-Govinda combined. He's searching for Himself in the mood of Rādhā." That wholesale searching of Kṛṣṇa for Himself when combined. And sometimes They divide Themselves and They want to search Their union with another. Rādhā searching union with Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa searching union with Rādhā, when separated, sometimes. And sometimes combined, then Kṛṣṇa searching Himself in the mood of Rādhā. The two classes of līlā in the eternal highest quarter. Rasa-rāja mahābhāva. The searching and the searched, searching object and the searching function, the function of searching and the object of search, these two things. This is līlā.

And when combined, as the māyāvādī says, "If Both combined it will be a static thing." No, it becomes Gaurāṅga, that He's searching Himself in the mood. It is dynamic always, never static, according to Vaiṣṇava philosophers. The Absolute is dynamic. When Both sides, Both halves combined, Both Moiety. Negative Positive combined, then also dynamic, not a static. Searching Himself - that is His movement, always dynamic, vilāsa, and never static, stagnant. Hegelian philosophy is also of that type.

Devotee: By Your Grace we can have a glimpse of life.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hmm?

Devotee: By Your Divine Grace we can get a glimpse of life.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: By paramparā, guru paramparā. In the line He wants to express Himself. We can have that clue.

What is that śloka? I forget. What is the beginning I can't definitely remember the beginning of the śloka.

Caitanya Deva is none but Kṛṣṇa, but mixed with the mood and halo, mood and lustre, nature and lustre, of Rādhārāṇī.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Caitanyākhyaṁ. _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Beginning?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh. Rādhā kṛṣṇa-praṇaya-vikṛtir. Yes. Not Śrī Rādhā - but Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa praṇaya-vikṛtir. What is Rādhā? Kṛṣṇa has three potencies mainly. Kṛṣṇa and His potency, three potency, jñāna, bala, krīya, ca. Sat, cit, ānanda. Ānanda, hlādinī. Hlādinī is ānanda. So...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...of love of Kṛṣṇa. Rādhārāṇī, hlādinī śakti. The main potency of Kṛṣṇa is hlādinī, that which makes happy, makes pleasing. So eternally connected with Kṛṣṇa, Both cannot be separated.

["I worship Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, who is Kṛṣṇa Himself, enriched with the emotions and radiance of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī. As the Predominating and Predominated Moieties, Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa are eternally one, with separate individual identities. Now They have again united as Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya. This inconceivable transformation of the Lord's internal pleasure-giving potency has arisen from the loving affairs of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa."] [Caitanya-caritamrta, Ādi-līlā, 1.5]

So that is coexistent with Kṛṣṇa, so sometimes the potency and the owner of the potency become one. And sometimes They bifurcate and becomes two and begin Their pastimes. Sometimes closest and sometimes far. In Vṛndāvana līlā we find Both divided, and Gaura līlā we find combined. Because one cannot exist without the other. Kṛṣṇa, the cit śakti, Vāsudeva, jñāna śakti, the feeler, the enjoyer, and Rādhārāṇī the enjoyed, hlādinī, enjoyed and enjoyer They're automatically one and same. Sometimes They come very close, then becomes Gaurāṅga. And sometimes They divide and They begin Their pastimes.

That is the meaning of that śloka given by Svarūpa Dāmodara who is considered to be Lalitā Sakhī in Vṛndāvana. That They cannot be thought out separately, always They're connected, sometimes very closer, and sometimes little far begin Their pastimes. In Vṛndāvana we find They're divided and They're making pastimes. In Navadwīpa They're combined and searching Himself and distributing to others.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. By the grace of Guru one can realise himself.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Devotee: By the grace of Śrī Gurudeva one can come to realise himself, can come to understand, ātmāsamiksa, to the highest degree. And he can find himself in Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa līlā, or he can find himself in Gaurāṅga līlā?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In both the līlā, but tending more towards one, some group. And some tending more towards another. And some in the midway. Three classes amongst them. Some more addicted to the separate pastimes. And some more addicted to the closer, Gaurāṅga. And some in the middle, both this side that side also. This is found. Some wants more to see Gaurāṅga līlā, they're very eager to find Gaurāṅga līlā when Kṛṣṇa Himself in the mood of Rādhā searching Himself and distributing to others. Very fond of serving that līlā. And another group when They separate Themselves and begin Their pastimes and to help in that affair, another group is more attracted. And there's a third group who likes this and that also, mainly. Then there are so many sub-divisions.

Devotee: So if somebody is partaking mostly in Gaurāṅga līlā, if somebody is mostly attracted to Gaurāṅga līlā he's at the same time partaking of all the pastimes of Rādhā-Govinda līlā? They're all also in Gaura līlā?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. In a different percolated way. Just who serves Rādhārāṇī she's serving Kṛṣṇa the best. Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: How? Rādhārāṇī can render highest form of service to Kṛṣṇa. So another may not be trespasser between the Two will help Rādhārāṇī. And his energy will be utilised by Rādhārāṇī for the service of Kṛṣṇa, that man will be best benefited. Can you follow, no?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Because his energy when it comes in the hand of Rādhārāṇī is being more qualitatively better and being utilised to Kṛṣṇa and fetching more gain to that man. Can you follow?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So also here, by serving Gaurāṅga līlā, Both combined, he may serve the most. And it depends on the sweet will of Those, Both. So it can't be said definitely because according to Their necessity it will be designed. And it cannot come under law because They're above law. Their whim, any moment demanding anything, and that should be supplied. That's not a stereotype stale thing under law. Independent, every second They're having new demand and new pastimes. Nava-navayana. Every moment new, ever new, that does not become old. Always above law.

And we should not try to bring Them under law, that is above law. This is the primary thing we must keep in our mind. That we'll put Them under law and I shall read the law, understand the law, and I shall get Them in the cage? It is not like that. Always free. Only we can have a glimpse towards, some glimpse, some spark towards the Whole, that we may expect.

Dig-darśana, towards this, He's this side. Not within this cage we can say. So far we can say 'this side.' Śrutibhir vimṛgyām. All the revealed scriptures are showing the direction, 'He's in this direction.' That much they can assert. Big philosophers, the theistic philosophers, or scholars, or devotees, they give some glimpse, some ray to us. 'Go this side, this direction.'

Of course, Baladeva Vidyābhūṣaṇa has written when he was singing the grace of Rūpa, Sanātana.

"That the Rūpa, Sanātana, what type of devotion, devotee they were?" hastastha ratnadhi vat [?] Just as a jewel is within the palm of one man's hand and he can show it this side, that side, every side, in this way. Rūpa, Sanātana, they showed that ecstatic jewel, that transcendental jewel, Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, in that way. This side, that side, as if a gem within the fist they could show. By the grace of Them, they're so favourite of the Supreme Lord that they could do so."

Sanātana Goswāmī when writing he said, "What am I? A tiny soul. And I'm writing about the harem of Kṛṣṇa? That this queen was this type, this queen this nature, this and that. What a fallen poor soul I am, like a dust of the earth. And I'm dealing, I'm giving descriptions of the beloved queens of Kṛṣṇa in the harem. But believe me my friends, someone is forcibly conducting my hand and making me forced to write, not myself. Please believe me." He said. So that is the matter.

Kavirāja Goswāmī also said, ei grantha lekhāya more 'madana-mohana' [āmāra likhana yena śukera paṭhana]

["Actually Śrī-Caitanya-caritāmṛta is not my writing but the dictation of Śrī Madana-mohana. My writing is like the repetition of a parrot."] [Śrī-Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 8.78]

"What I'm saying here it is not mine. I'm like a parrot. The Madana-mohana is forcing me to say I'm saying."

It is He expresses Himself through them. A quite surrendered soul is instrumental in that affair. He can, yam evaiṣa vṛnute.

[nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena
yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām]

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. When the living entity begs the Lord for His mercy, being desirous of His transcendental loving service, then the Supreme Lord reveals His self-manifest form directly before him."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] & [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.3.2]

He can give Himself, none else. He can only give Himself. Those that are saying about Him they're ultimately saying that. "That I'm mere instrument. He's doing through me, I can feel."

When Mahāprabhu saying to Rūpa, Sanātana, He also says like that. "Something passing through Me to you Sanātana. I feel that Kṛṣṇa, as He is, He's in the sound, He's passing through Me thought. Some thought is passing through Me through some sound and He's embracing you. I do not know the meaning that is passing through Me." In this way. Vyāso vetti na vetti vā.

[aham vedmi śuko vetti, vyāso vetti na vetti vā
bhaktyā bhāgavataṁ grāhyaṁ na buddhyā na ca ṭīkayā]

[Lord Śiva says: "I know the true purpose of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam; Śukadeva, the son and disciple of Vyāsadeva, knows it thoroughly, and the author of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, Śrīla Vyāsadeva may or may not know the meaning. The real purpose of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam is very difficult to conceive and can only be known through bhakti."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 24.313]

Sometimes the Guru may not feel what's passing through him to a particular disciple, he may not know. It is also possible. Vyāso vetti na vetti vā. Vyāsa, through whom so many divine scriptures have come, he may not know the full meaning of that. He can control, the Absolute, everything in His hand. Everything is under His control. He's using A.B.C. according to His own whim, and they cannot but do so.

mukam karoti vācālaṁ panghum langhāyate girīm
[yat kṛpā tam ahaṁ vande śrī gurun dīna-tāranam]

["I offer my respectful obeisances unto Mādhava, Who is the Personification of transcendental bliss. By His mercy, a blind man can see the stars in the sky, a lame man can cross mountains, and a dumb man can speak eloquent words of poetry."] [Bhavārtha Dipikā, maṅgala stotram, 1]

If He likes, a dumb man may speak, be an orator. Mukam karoti vācālaṁ panghum langhāyate girīm. A crippled man can cross the mountain. Yat kṛpā. His grace is such miracle. Miracle of all miracles. Adbutkrāma. His every stride is wonderful, every movement is beyond our conception and law. He's such.

And we have come to know Him, to understand Him. We have left everything. Nothing in the world has any charm for us. We want to know that unknown thing. Our mania, not to search the concrete things what can be had, but what can never be had, our mania is to search after that. The unknown and unknowable. Adhokṣaja. Who always keeps all the senses, the instruments of knowing, under Him. Always His existence always transcending the layer of our understanding. It is His sweet will. Sometimes suddenly He may come, appear, and give some impression "I'm so," then withdraws, we're helpless. Still our mania to search after Him. We may not have, does not matter. Still we must not lose our energy in the search of so many trashes, so many brickbats and fossils. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Gurudeva. Whatever glimpse of such a high truth one may have, may have had in the past, to remember that it is no good, no?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sometimes yes, remembering also good. And that remembrance also lives on His will. If He likes He can make him forget everything. All Rights Reserved. So we're slave, after all we're aspiring after slavery, the position of a complete slave. He may make or mar. He may efface me if He likes. His position is such. Wholesale with Him, nothing with me. And only I want that my submission to Him, that is the truth. He's all in all, I'm nothing of the nothing. Still, I want His consciousness, His association. That is enough for me, that my Lord, that I'm connected with some magnanimous great divine hope. That is all, Kṛṣṇa dāsa.

More rakhi madhi sukhe thakur vedam [?] "Their every right at the expense of us They may enjoy, Rādhā-Govinda." That should be our aspiration. "Let Them go on with Their pastimes happily, making me or doing away with me. If dealing death to me is necessary for Their free pastimes, I want to go forever." That sort of surrender we should try to have, try to reach to that standard. "That He has every right over me, deface me."

And we're told by the spiritual scholars that is the highest position of having Him. Those that are so much forgetful for Their pastimes, really they live in the high order. So much intensity of self sacrifice comes - takes us nearer to Them. So much self abnegation takes nearer to Them, self surrender takes nearer to Them. That is die to live. Die to live. Ha, ha. If you want to have a real life you'll have to die as you can conceive yourself to be ever in this world. And all your so called prospects, you will die, then your real figure will come out in pristine glory. Die to live. So as much as we can we're to embrace death. Ha, ha. Death in connection with Him of course.

Self effacement. The renunciation school they also want to efface them, but that is another thing. That has no connection with the positive truth. They want to retire into darkness, no consciousness. And here the sacrifice is conscious sacrifice. To welcome death for the satisfaction of the Universal pastimes, the positive connection. This death of the Vaiṣṇava school has got positive background. And the renunciation, self abnegation of the Buddhist and Śaṅkara school no positive background, not hunting for the satisfaction of the Whole, not that, the difference. This death is a positive death, and that is some negative.

Positive death, I die for a good cause. Just as a soldier dies for the cause of the country, the patrons die for the country. And the guṇḍā they also die for selfish quarrel. Both may be brave. But one for some exploitation, because can't exploit, there's hindrance in the exploitation he's risking his life. And here, the risk for the cause of the Universal līlā has a positive background, just no death. Death means highest form of emancipation, a free - they rather enter into the most confidential group of the servants. Suicidal squad, just as suicidal squad they hold the highest patriotism. So here the devotees they're like suicidal squad, they're dependable. In time of need for the pastimes they're ready to be martyred for that. So in the highest rank they hold the service, positive. Nitāi Gaura...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] It's clear?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Anything else? Eh? You?

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] In ordinary sense Hare in vocative, sambodanay, Hare. Kṛṣṇa Who is attracting through affection, through love, attraction. Kṛṣ means attract, and ṇa means to give pleasure, satisfaction. Kṛṣ ṇa, two parts in the word Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣ means who attracts, and ṇa means who in reaction gives some satisfaction, is Kṛṣṇa.

And Hare means who can deliver us from all environmental difficulty, and wholesale who can capture me, Hare. Who can capture me, captivate me, who can swallow me wholesale, who can embrace me, welcome me. And as a part of Him He can accommodate in His family.

[bhaktyā mām abhijānāti, yāvān yaś cāsmi tattvataḥ]
tato māṁ tattvato jñātvā, viśate tad-anantaram

["By the potency of that supreme devotion, he is able to completely know My nature of Almighty Lordship and majesty (aisvaryamaya-svarupa). Thereafter, acquiring the perception of his divine relationship with Me, he enters into a group of My intimate personal associates, whose nature is non- different from Mine."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.55]

And in Bhāgavata.

martyo yadā tyakta-samasta-karmā, niveditātmā vicikīrṣito me
tadāmṛtatvaṁ pratipadyamāno, mayātma-bhūyāya ca kalpate vai

["One who is subjected to birth and death attains immortality when he gives up all material activities, dedicates his life to the execution of My order, and acts according to My directions. In this way, he becomes fit to enjoy the spiritual bliss derived from exchanging loving mellows with Me."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.29.34]

Ātma-bhūyāya kalpate. "He's accepted within My family."

Hare. From the all attraction from outside, and also our inner heart also is captured by Him, Hare, Kṛṣṇa.

And Rāma means who can please me, please us. Rāma. And Hare, another meaning is Harā. In higher realisation they find Hare Kṛṣṇa means Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa. Harā. Harā, Who can capture everything, even Kṛṣṇa, the mind of Kṛṣṇa. He's also attracted. So though negative, She can attract the positive side, He or She can. So Her name is Harā, Who can captivate, or capture everything, including Kṛṣṇa. She can attract Kṛṣṇa by Her negative qualification. That means surrender, surrender to the extreme for the service of Kṛṣṇa. That is Her quality. So Hare Kṛṣṇa means Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, Rādhe-Kṛṣṇa, Rādhe-Kṛṣṇa.

That means we may not approach direct to Kṛṣṇa - there we'll be loser. Just as if we can get the best benefit of the sun if we're a little distant. Otherwise if we're nearer we'll be burned to ashes. So as jīva our position will be in some respectable distance with Kṛṣṇa - that is behind Rādhārāṇī. The first Predominated principle, negative, She will be on our front, and from our particular position behind Her, then we can get our best benefit. Very closer we won't be able to tolerate that and to get properly, we'll be loser.

Adjustment, question of adjustment is necessary, the all important. According to my position and the position of the Whole, where, in what group, and in what service I shall be adjusted in what place. Proper adjustment, religion is proper adjustment. Svarūpa. If internally I'm able to serve in the cooking department, but if I go in the dressing department then I'll be loser. According to my capacity I should be adjusted where the maximum service will be drawn from me.

So Harā, Hare Kṛṣṇa, the final, the highest play is possible between Those Two. Predominating Moiety and Predominated Moiety. Negative half, Positive half. And we're on the negative side, and from the back of the negative side, properly adjusted, we can render our highest service and we can have also our best interest. Am I clear? Eh? What do you say? Eh?

Hare Kṛṣṇa, Hare means in general Hare means,

Haran kari pap haran kari tap haran kare _____ [?] [30:35 - 31:20?]

Have you any question?

Devotee: Yes. You have been talking about this Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: So somebody suggested to me like that will be easier to worship Rādhikā, Rādhā, than Kṛṣṇa, as the devotees says, that it is easier then. So how to serve? How are we to do it?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I can't follow. Badrinārāyaṇa Prabhu?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He says that "Someone has suggested to him that the worship of Rādhā is easier than the worship of Kṛṣṇa." So he's asking, "How to worship Rādhā?"

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not so easier, but more dignified. More dignified, and also it is in consonance with our personal position. She's also of same nature. She's also serving Kṛṣṇa. And we're also servant. So serving we shall get more help from Her how to serve Kṛṣṇa. In that way it is easy. But it does not mean that it's easy means direct service to Kṛṣṇa that will be more profitable, not that. But by direct service to Kṛṣṇa we rather become loser. And if we do service through Rādhā, Rādhikā, then we become gainer.

Do you understand that?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Suppose one is an expert cook, his cooking may satisfy many. And if I go to cook my cooking may not satisfy others. But rather if I do some subordinate help to a good cook, I help her and she'll cook, then my energy will be well utilised. Do you understand? If I go to myself then it will not be better. But if I allow who knows to cook better, well, and I give some supply to that person, then my energy will be utilised more, proper utilisation. My energy will be properly utilised if I help the best cook, than I go forward and try to cook, because she's the expert and I'm not expert. So I'll be best benefited by helping another.

So Rādhārāṇī She can serve Kṛṣṇa best than any other servitors. And so if I go to serve Kṛṣṇa direct then it will be below standard. Rather, if I help Rādhārāṇī in Her direction, "Do this and that," that will be really worthy of service towards Kṛṣṇa, through Her, when it will pass through Her. So it is more profitable to follow the direction of Rādhārāṇī than to approach Kṛṣṇa for direct service. Indirect service that brings me more, because by the hand of the superior expert my energy is best utilised. This is the principle.

Am I clear?

Devotee: Yes, very clear. Follow the directions of Rādhārāṇī.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So Rādhā-dāsya has been recommended than our direct service to Kṛṣṇa. It won't satisfy Kṛṣṇa very much. But if I help Rādhārāṇī for rendering Her service my energy will be best utilised to serve Kṛṣṇa when passing through Her. Whatever defect is there She will make it perfect and my energy will reach to satisfy Him, very well. This is the goal.

Devotee: So all glories directly to Rādhārāṇī, not Kṛṣṇa. Then how to serve Rādhārāṇī?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Service of Rādhārāṇī is not very easily obtained. First there must be transformation in general way towards Kṛṣṇa. And when we shall be within the area of Kṛṣṇa's special mercy then Kṛṣṇa will adjust us in our proper position. "Go there, go there, in this way, go." That will be your - Guru, Kṛṣṇa, will help us in that matter. "Try to secure for that particular service in that particular group. That will be best help, beneficial to you." In general towards Kṛṣṇa.

Kavi sri caitanya more kore mana daya kabe ami paibe vaisnava pada chaya [?]

By the grace of Caitanya Deva then we get the service of Vaiṣṇava. Vaiṣṇava service is more higher. Generally people may admit the existence of the Supreme Lord. "I'm in direct communication with Him." But when he attains some sort of service then next his attention is drawn towards Vaiṣṇava. When one has tendency to serve Kṛṣṇa, or God, then he's of lower class. When he reaches middle class then his attention has come to serve the Vaiṣṇava. By serving Vaiṣṇava I can utilise my energy best, than my attempt to serve Kṛṣṇa direct.

Mad-bhakta-pūjābhyadhikā [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.19.21] "The service of My servant that is of higher grade, than direct service to Me."

So generally it is easy to be attracted towards God. But to be attracted towards Guru and other Vaiṣṇavas it is more difficult. And only when we attain some real position and status into the service world, then only we can revere Vaiṣṇava. Otherwise some apprehension comes within us, "I shall serve my Lord. Why another thing will come between us?" But afterwards when really we enter into that domain we shall feel that a real connection, direct connection with God, that will be less productive to me. And if I can see through a Vaiṣṇava my vision, my attempt will be more realistic.

Just as that is the telescopic system. At present I may think that a particular thing and my eye there is some barrier, the spectacle. The spectacle enhances and helps me to see more clearly. So in the telescope, many hindrances, many glasses, but they all help us when a distant thing can be seen only with the help of telescope.

So the Vaiṣṇava they're seen - Mahāprabhu Himself said, tad dāsa-dāsa-dāsānāṁ dāsatvaṁ dehi me prabho. Gopī-bhartuḥ pada-kamalayor dāsa-dāsānudāsaḥ. "I'm the servant of the servant of the servant of the servant." We find that the Vaiṣṇava they say like this. "I'm not in direct service to Kṛṣṇa." In general, but particularly they say, "The servant of the servant of the servant."

There are so many guardians, they're not barriers. Vaiṣṇava, so many Gurus, śikṣā Guru, dīkṣā Guru, they're all well wisher, they're all guardian. They're thinking good of me. So I'll be benefited by accepting so many guardians. And they help in different ways how we can feel the Supreme Lord, they help us to understand. So though they're barriers, apparently, but that is not barrier, that helps our sight, just like glass.

Do you follow?

Devotee: Hmm.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So in general we may have some attraction towards Kṛṣṇa, but in particular when we find special attraction for Guru and Vaiṣṇava, śikṣā Guru, we're more elevated. This we're to understand. So in Bhagavad-gītā and many places says, ye me bhakta-janāḥ partha, ne me bhaktaś ca te janāḥ

mad bhaktānāṁ ca ye bhaktās, te me bhaktatamā mataḥ

[Kṛṣṇa says, "Those who worship Me directly are not real devotees; real devotees are those who are devoted to My devotees."] [Ādi-Purāṇa]

"If you love me, love my dog." If one can love ones dog then it's sure he loves the man more. So if I regard your son, then you'll be satisfied and the son will be satisfied. But if I try to satisfy you, neglecting your son, then son will not be satisfied, and your satisfaction will be less. But if I satisfy, serve your child, then the child will be satisfied - moreover you'll be satisfied more than direct respect to you. This analogy you may think of.

So I'm serving the servant of the Lord. Why? My service, my devotion is so much deep to my Master that I can adore His servant also. So to adore the servant of the Lord that means the depth of my serving temperament towards the Lord is greater. Then I can adore His subordinate and servant.

Devotee: _____ [?]

83.12.29.B_83.12.30.A

Devotee: ...accept us before we can render some service to him. So it is not just you serve, you have to serve proper person. Because in the past I've been meeting so many so called spiritual masters and I didn't find satisfaction with them. I didn't find till now a spiritual master, I'm still searching for a proper one. So it's a thing that we have to be accepted also by someone who's really bona fide like.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ke bolchen? Badrinārāyaṇa Prabhu.

Badrinārāyaṇa: He says that in searching for Gurudeva, we also have to be accepted by Gurudeva. He's been searching and he's met so many bogus gurus, but also to find a proper Guru and to be accepted by him.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: If we're sincere in our attempt to come nearer the Supreme Entity then He will also come down to meet me. He will also try to come to me. And so,

ye yathā māṁ prapadyante, tāṁs tathaiva bhajāmy aham
[mama vartmānuvartante, manuṣyāḥ pārtha sarvaśaḥ]

["As a person takes refuge in Me, I accordingly respond to him. Being the ultimate goal of all philosophies and doctrines, I am the objective to be attained by all. Certainly, O Pārtha, all men follow My various paths."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.11]

His dealings towards us of three type. General, as we want, so He grants, according to our demand, our want, He gives accordingly. Another, if we want His devotion, sometimes He gives us salvation, and avoids. We find. Muktiṁ dadāti karhicit sma na bhakti-yogam.

[rājan patir gurur alaṁ bhavatāṁ yadūnāṁ, daivaṁ priyaḥ kula-patiḥ kva ca kiṅkaro vaḥ
astv evam aṅga bhagavān bhajatāṁ mukundo, muktiṁ dadāti karhicit sma na bhakti-yogam]

["Śukadeva Gosvāmī continued: My dear King, the Supreme Person, Mukunda, is actually the maintainer of all the members of the Pāṇḍava and Yadu dynasties. He is your spiritual master, worshippable Deity, friend, and the director of your activities. To say nothing of this, He sometimes serves your family as a messenger or servant. This means He worked just as ordinary servants do. Those engaged in getting the Lord's favour attain liberation from the Lord very easily, but He does not very easily give the opportunity to render direct service unto Him."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 5.6.18]

Ye yathā māṁ prapadyante, tāṁs tathaiva bhajāmy aham. This is the general rule, as we desire so we have. As we hanker from Him, He also comes in that way, this is general. But two particular, what are they? One, if I want Him, His service, He avoids and gives us salvation and says, "You have got better, go away."

And another also, ami bhaje magay visay shuk amrta chaday vishmagay sei bara mukha ami _____ [?]

"He's sincere, he does not know what to want, he wants something else. But in that case finding in him sincerity, I teach him there. Why do you want this? Rather, want this, it will be better for you. Don't want this worldly pleasure, you want My service."

That is also His dealing. So according to our sincerity the variety is in the corresponding side. He's the knower of our innermost heart, so as we deserve so we have, in general. Not clear?

Devotee: It's clear, yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Clear, all right. We find in the śāstra three process by which we can meet Him, we're dealt by Him.

ama sei visay magay sei bara mukha amay vijya sei murkha visay kana jiva satyan amrtadiya bhulay eva [?]

When He's graceful from His inner heart, finding my sincerity. I do not know, I'm not sufficiently trained, and I do not know what to beg from Him. But my heart is pure and sincere and should be rewarded by His affection. He finds that and He removes my ulterior motives, and as a teacher He comes to me and says, "Don't want this. You want My service." That is also seen.

And sometimes the asura, the demonic character, they anyhow somewhere advised they come to have His service, devotion. Then in that case He avoids him. Though formerly he's all right, but materially he's lacking so he's avoided. "No, no, take this mukti. Why do you beg Me, My service? You take mukti. Go away."

And in the general case, "As anyone wants Me I approach him in a corresponding way."

These three things we find in the śāstra, and we must try to understand that, ultimately according to our own sincerity, śraddhā, faith. And the cause of this faith is sukṛti, that is of two layers, jñāta-sukṛti; ajñāta- sukṛti.

'śraddhā' - sabde - viśvāsa kahe sudṛḍha niścaya, kṛṣṇe bhakti kaile sarva-karma kṛta haya

["Śraddhā is confident, firm faith that by rendering transcendental loving service to Kṛṣṇa one automatically performs all subsidiary activities. Such faith is favourable to the discharge of devotional service."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 22.62]

If I can serve Him everything is done, everything good is done. The service to the whole is done, duty to the whole is done, if I can serve Him. This is śraddhā, and this comes from sukṛti. Sukṛti is of two layers, and the beginning, the first layer, that is ajñāta-sukṛti, then jñāta-sukṛti.

Ajñāta-sukṛti, we do not know, but His agents are moving everywhere. Anyhow my energy is utilised by His agent for His service. And that comes in terms of sukṛti in me. I have got a flower garden, some agent, a real sādhu, came and took some flowers and served with that flower his Lord. I may not know, but my energy is utilised by him for the service of the Lord. In reaction I get something, I acquire something thereby, unconsciously.

And then when that is accumulated to a certain degree, then, though I've not got much attraction for the Lord, but still, seeing some sādhu, "Oh sādhu, saint, come, be guest in my house today." Or I'm giving something. "Do service of your Lord." Conscious, sukṛti, but not direct he's wanting the service of God, or God.

Then this accumulated to a particular degree produces śraddhā. What is śraddhā? If I know one, whole may be known. If I get one, whole is got. This peculiar faith. The centre, the commander, the proprietor of everything, whatever we see, He is, personal. Then we, with śraddhā, then we find where is that person, where is that type of sādhu, who are searching after such thing by knowing which everything is known, by getting which everything is got. Where are those persons? I mix with them and try to realise my ideal with his help. And when I'm mixing with such type of persons that are in this way, there when I find most holding highest position then I try to accept him as my Guru, my guide. The best of my experience, the saint whom I think to be the highest, as much as I can understand, then I accept him as my Guru and put me at his disposal. 'Whatever I shall do, please, you should take me towards my Lord.' In this way connection with Guru happens.

First, śravaṇa-daśā, varaṇa-daśā, sādhana-daśā, āpana-daśā, prapanna-daśā. First trial we're hearing from him, from another, ABC, so many sādhus we're hearing.

Then varaṇa-daśā, śravaṇa, varaṇa. Then we try to have recognition of the divine group through anyone. So many agents are there whom I shall think to be the best. According to my conscience I shall surrender me to him, to his direction, this is varaṇa-daśā.

Then sādhana-daśā, then when I get his acceptance, then he'll ask me on behalf of the Lord, he gives some program, "Do this, do this." And I go on doing that, śravaṇa, kīrtana, smaraṇa, vandana, etc, that is sādhana-daśā. This is third stage.

Then fourth stage is āpana-daśā. Gradually I can feel myself that this is the highest position. Under the guidance of this group, in this particular line of service, this is my point. I have got that, svarūpa-daśā.

Then prapanna-daśā. Then finally he's detached from this relativity and enters finally that connection. And also he's able to give things to others also. He attains the position where from he can give things to others, prapanna, he can give. These are the stages of sādhana.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] svarūpa-siddhi and vastu-siddhi _____ [?] _____ [?] Discontinuation of any consciousness of any environment, suṣupti. _____ [?] With some vague conscious attitude one ceases to live any individual life. _____ [?] With the dissolution of the mental system there is no existence, that is Buddha nirvan, prakṛti nirvan.

And the Śaṅkarācārya nirvan - "As regards my individual personality it is finished. But one conscious atmosphere is there which is reflected in different glass or any water that was showing so many reflections, so many separate persons. One sun, but in every water pot you'll find another sun, glass you'll find another sun. With the dissolution of the glass and the water, no sun. But the sun is there." This is Śaṅkara.

And according to Buddha, "No sun is there. Only it has come anyhow in the glass. With the dissolution of the glass everything disappears." This prakṛti nirvan, and brahma nirvan.

Then, according to Rāmānuja and Vaiṣṇava section, "What is told by Śaṅkara as brahma nirvan, they find their individuality there in the sun. Within the sun, within that reflection _____ [?] That is also a sphere.
_____ [?]

A mass of light is approaching, They marked. Then when it came nearer They found there is a figure. More near They found that there is a masculine figure. Then very near They found Devarṣi Nārada is coming.

Rāmānuja also told that the bird is - bird has entered the - has become one with the jungle in the mountain. _____ [?] The bird disappeared in the jungle. That does not mean that the bird is finished. If we can go there then we can say 'the bird is there.' It is out of my sight but it is there. His wife, child, is also there, he's taking some food there. All these things.

So brahmapur, the spark of brahma, the pratibimba has come, but its original is there in that locality. If we can enter that luminous sphere, that brahma, that cetan, then we'll find that everything is there in the original position. And here it's extended into the reflected part. This is Rāmānuja.

[16:45 - 26:00 ?]

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: [26:57]

Śrī Kṛṣṇa-Caitanya, Prabhu Nityānanda, Śrī Advaita, Gadādhara, Śrīvāsādi Śrī Gaura-bhakta-vṛnda.

After pronouncing this five group name of Mahāprabhu, Pañca Tattva, the group of five, then you will count in this bead.

Hare Kṛṣṇa, Hare Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa Kṛṣṇa, Hare Hare, Hare Rāma, Hare Rāma, Rāma Rāma, Hare Hare.

These beads. Now both of you attentively listen to me. The counting must begin from the bigger beads and it will go towards the smaller, and again it will return in the back line. Between the big and the small there is one giant bead which is named as Sumeru, that must not be crossed. But from the bigger side to the smaller, again returns from the smaller to bigger. In this way, not in this way. Then when counting, this finger is supposed to always ooze something bad, gas. So this must not touch the beads, this will be outside. And with help of the middle finger and the thumb the beads should be counted.

Generally we shall try at least to count sixteen rounds. In very particular case at least four rounds. If no time, engaged severely in the service, or severely ill, then of course at least we shall try to count four rounds. We should not keep the mālikā fasting. No counting means no food to the mālikā, no service means no food. So at least some sort of counting should be undertaken. Now, so this should be put into the bag, and in this way the finger will be out.

Now, there are ten offences against this counting of Hari Nāma. We shall try to avoid them. It is mentioned in Padma-Purāṇa. [Brahma-Khanda, 25.15-18, 22-23] [& Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 17.69-75]

Satam ninda namnah paramam aparadham vitanute. If we abuse, we put blame on the Vaiṣṇava, sādhu, of the saints, if we criticise them, we cast our blame on them, then the Name becomes dissatisfied.

Because, yatah khyatim kathamu sahate tad-vigaraham. The Vaiṣṇava, the agents of Kṛṣṇa, Nārāyaṇa, they're always trying to distribute Name and to take the fallen souls up towards higher region. And those agents that are supposed to come to approach me for my good and I begin to abuse them, then it's suicidal. So the Name cannot tolerate that the very preachers, very givers, very distributors, they will be attacked and blamed. So Vaiṣṇava ninda, sādhu ninda.

But the worshippers of other demigods they're not considered as sādhu. Because they're for temporary motive, they approach the so called demigods, for the time being post holders in some management in this world. So worshippers of them are not counted here. At the same time we're not very eager to abuse any god, and any man. And we shall be indifferent to them, and praise the Vaiṣṇava and try to serve them.

So, then the second is śāstra ninda, the abuse of the scripture. Scripture means those scriptures that these are all that Kṛṣṇa or Nārāyaṇa devotion. So many other scriptures that are recommending to worship so many demigods, or country, or something else, they're not counted here. Only the śāstra, the scriptures that reveal to us about Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead, those scriptures must be shown proper reverence, not abused.

Then third is guroravajna, not to look at the Guru, the Spiritual Master, who is giving me admission, to see him as a mundane man, person. If our approach towards the Absolute is sincere, then the Absolute is also approaching to me. And through whom His connection is being established formerly, he should be considered as the representative of the Absolute. The Absolute has come, Kṛṣṇa has come in such figure, He's present as His representative man is doing help to me for my sincere hankering to attain Him. So the Guru should not be seen as ordinary man and Vaiṣṇava only, but representative of the Supreme Lord. Though he apparently seems to do in a human way, but as the Ganges water, the Śrī Mūrti, from the ordinary aspect that is either stone or wood. The Ganges water is only water. But the purifying capacity of the Ganges water is something else. That is not in the conceivable apparent sight of the thing. That is something transcendental, it is there. In this way we're expected to look to Guru.

Then also, sivadi devata. Śiva, Śakti, there are others, so many gods, but we must not blame them, must not abuse them. They're appointed servitors of Kṛṣṇa. And Kṛṣṇa is only the Supreme-most Absolute and they're all subordinates. In this way we're to look after them.

Then fifth is namno balad yasya hi papa-buddhir, that arthavad. We must not indulge us in finding dictionary, 'what is the meaning of the word Kṛṣṇa?' Kṛṣ - ṇa, one who attracts He's Kṛṣṇa. Attracts and gives some joy. He's Kṛṣṇa in the dictionary. Or Hari, Hari means many meanings. Hari means lotus. Hari means water. Hari means servant. Hari. I won't try to run after the meanings that are found in this mundane dictionary. But the Supreme thing that He can express, give His own meaning. The word has got its own meaning. And by trying, the word will show His internal existence, internal position to me. The word is Supreme, it is spiritual word, and not any ordinary. So Nāma, arthavad, different meanings, consulting dictionary and grammar, we won't try to approach to get different meanings. That is Absolute, and that can express His own real self. And I must go on with serving attitude, and the Name will express Himself what He is or not.

Then namno balad, papa-buddhir. Then it is mentioned in the scripture that so much sin one Name can remove, no man can have the capacity of committing so many sins, so much sin. The magnitude of sin cannot be so big that one Name cannot finish them into ashes. 'So let me commit sins day and night and I shall take one Name and all the sins will be finished.' If with this attitude we go to take Name we commit offence against the Name. Because there our inner tendency is to cleanse, to make Him our servant. 'I shall do sin and the Name will come and cleanse them', to engage the Name as a servant to cleanse me. So that attitude, to take the Name with that sort of attitude, 'that whatever sin I may commit I'm taking Name and everything will go away.' With this attitude we must work. He's my Master. I shall try to serve, to satisfy Him, and not engage Him only to cleanse me - I shall continue. Then it will be offence against Name.

Then also _____ namadah [?] One who is not fit, not sufficient proper faith, and I'm giving forcibly, 'take this Name.' He has no regard, no śraddhā, no faith, but I'm trying to force, to serve some other purpose of my motive, that will be bad. One who has śraddhā, if one has real faith, sincere faith, he can be helped with giving this Name. And also, we must not be eager to become a Guru, to collect some men after me. To gather some manpower I'm giving Name to anyone and everyone, without considering the position. That is offensive.

Then, _____ [?] There are many good activities. 'Yes, you are taking the Name of the Lord, it is not bad. But there are many other process also to go towards the Absolute. One can take Name, another is wandering through the holy places, another is making gift and donations to the public. So many ways to purify oneself and to make him fit to do the service of the Divinity.'

No. There is the highest. None, no other means can come to be compared with the Name. The Name is the substance Himself represented in the sound. And especially to the sinners and the men born in the iron age, it's especially meant by the Absolute to be the highest curative and highest method of approaching the Absolute. It has special recommendation and power, this Name, for Kali-yuga people especially.

So there may be other type of methods to approach towards purification. But none of them in comparison can come to the Name of the Lord, the sound aspect. Divine sound, transcendental sound aspect of the Lord, this is the most gracious and most befitting the fallen souls to take them up.

Then, one must not have too much attraction for anything. If there is any that must be uprooted. Just as if there is anchor and the boat in force, the boat will surround the anchor. The anchor must be taken out, and then the boat will be allowed to go to its destination.

So the Guru is there to guide the boat, but the anchor if anything that must be taken off. And surrender, we must take the Name by surrendering to him, that my best benefit is there. Our best interest is in Kṛṣṇa, is in the Absolute, my relationship with the Absolute. With this idea with open mind we shall take the Name, and the boat will go gradually. The Name will draw towards Him.

And another, the last of the ten is yah pritirahito. We must not think that that is very dreadful, Kṛṣṇa, the Absolute. No. That is friendly, that is my home. I'm long acquainted within with that substance. That is my home. I'm going to the friendly circle, and not any grave unapproachable and dreadful thing, or something like very grand that I can't mix with them. No. Very homely, friendly circle. The Lord, Kṛṣṇa, He's in friendly relation with us. And there, so many are there, they're also like so many friends of our inner heart we shall find. That is I'm back to God, back to home, back to Godhead. My Name will take me there. With this idea we shall take.

There are other, four, nāmābhāsa, if we commit them, then we may attain renunciation, the mukti, liberation, but not direct participation in the service. They're sānketyaṁ, parihāsya, stobha and helanam, four kinds of indifferent position. 'I do not like this position of enjoyment, but at the same time I have no intense hankering for the serving life in the transcendental service.'

83.12.30.B_84.01.08.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...Bhāgavatam, you might have found, that when the last time of Ajāmila came, three messengers from the Yāmadūtas of dreadful figure appeared just before him in coma stage. And he was frightened to find them, in the coma stage. They're forcibly trying to take his mental body forcibly towards that mental judge, the Yāmarāja, in the mental world.

Then he found, little before, that his youngest son whose name was Nārāyaṇa, there. For help he wanted to take the name of Nārāyaṇa. Calling, "Nārāyaṇa. Furious persons have come to attack." But when going to take the name of Nārāyaṇa he thought, 'These are strong enough to do away with this little boy Nārāyaṇa. What he will do with them? No comparison."

Then Nārāyaṇa, this Name, He gave him an idea, a peep into the Lord Nārāyaṇa. His mind from the boy went to the Lord, Nārāyaṇa. And no sooner, four messengers came down from Vaikuṇṭha, like Nārāyaṇa servants. And they faced those Yāmadūta messengers of the Yāmarāja who is the judge of this mundane activity here. There was a fight, and they were defeated and they were forced to retire, and they went away.

And this Ajāmila he saw all these things in coma stage like a dream. Then all his previous mental impulse and tendencies finished. He got up and thought, 'Oh. What is these matters? These Yāmadūtas furious, and these mild and grand appearance, these Vaikuṇṭhadūta, they had fight and they've released me for the time being from their clutches.' And his previous tendencies, his attraction for the family all finished. He woke up and went straight to Haridwar and began 'Nārāyaṇa, Nārāyaṇa.' And after some time when he finished, the four Vaikuṇṭhadūta came and took him towards that direction, Vaikuṇṭha.

This is sānketya. He began one thing, but something, another came in its turn, retinue, sānketya nāmābhāsa.

Then there are other kinds also. One is taking the Name of Kṛṣṇa, 'Oh.' In a merry sport one may utter, 'Oh. You are taking Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa. Yes, you may take. See what is the consequence. Kṛṣṇa will take you.' He may cut joke of taking the Name of Kṛṣṇa may be nāmābhāsa. When cutting jokes by uttering the word, the Name of Kṛṣṇa, sometimes nāmābhāsa may come and he may be liberated from the mundane tie.

Then another, sānketya, parihāsya, stobha. Sometimes we use symbolic way. When playing on the mṛdaṅga and others we use 'Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa, Hare Kṛṣṇa,' as a matter of some symbol. 'Hey Kṛṣṇa.' That symbolic representation we may use. By that also we may get liberation.

Then helana, sometimes negligently we may take. We're rising from the bed in the morning taking the Name. 'Hare Hare Kṛṣṇa.' In this way, not very regardfully, or faithfully. But there also I can attain nāmābhāsa, that is liberation. But not participation in the direct service of the Lord.

So this nāmābhāsa should be avoided, and the nāmāparādha, the offences also should be avoided.

Then how to proceed? Always aspire after the service of Kṛṣṇa and His own persons. With this idea go on taking the Name. Then you'll feel the progress in no time, that you're being drawn towards that. Kṛṣṇa consciousness will rise within you. A wholesale transformation will come within your mental system. Kṛṣṇa centred, not body centred, or country centred, or society centred. But Kṛṣṇa centred transformation wholesale will begin and go on, until gradually you'll find that you're in a particular happy position in the transcendental world.

So now you go and bow down to those Vaiṣṇavas you find here. And go to the temple veranda, and there take a few rounds of Name, as I told from the big towards the small. And then finishing four rounds you may take some anukalpa on Ekādaśī day...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...have any clash with ISKCON. As much as possible I want to avoid any clash. But when one finds untenable, their connection untenable, so at the risk that is caitya- guru, the Guru within. Guru outside, mahanta-guru. And Guru within, caitya-guru, Guru who is living within us, giving suggestion in the spiritual matters. So you appeal to Him, appeal to Nityānanda Prabhu, the general Guru, representative of the general Guru tattva. Appeal, pray to Him for proper guidance. That is above all.

The conscience that took me to Swāmī Mahārāja whom I accept to be the absolute spiritual guide, I can rely on that. The conscience that took me to him, I can rely on that conscience sincerely. But avoiding external clash as far as possible.

One gentleman came to me, perhaps from Rāmeśvara Mahārāja, Mukundamālā or someone. Then Rāmeśvara Mahārāja he called for explanation from me. "Why have you accepted him? It is beyond Vaiṣṇava courtesy that one should capture another's disciple." He gave a letter.

'You see me and I shall explain.' Then when he came I told plainly that 'he had some complaint against you.' And I examined as much as possible, and I was satisfied that is sufficient to disregard you. And I find in his earnest appeal I approached to help him. That is my explanation to you. I don't think that you are a perfect gentleman. Gradation. You are all so many students. I consider you to be students. I consider myself also a student. And there is gradation. That you have declared yourself, your committee has declared yourself to be an Ācārya and you have become perfect - ha, I don't, I'm not a fool to accept that. I have got some knowledge about the principle of devotion. For long time I'm in cultivation of that, so I feel that I have some knowledge. It is not possible to finish the whole, it is infinite. But some substantial position where from I can judge to certain extent what is what in the spiritual world. And what I've done, I've done with my clear conscience. I don't consider your body is perfect, and you are all perfect Ācāryas. You are kaniṣṭha adhikārī, madhyama adhikārī, uttama adhikārī, so many considerations. We have got some practical experience of theoretical education also in that matter, so we're not guided by any hoax. Some substantial position we must have in our spiritual faith.'

[prapadyamānasya yathāśnataḥ syus, tuṣṭiḥ puṣṭiḥ kṣudapāyo 'nughāsam]

["As with every mouthful an eater feels the threefold effects of his satisfaction, his stomach being filled, and his hunger being dispelled, in the same way when a surrendered soul serves the Lord he realises devotion of three natures simultaneously: devotion in love, the personal appearance of the Lord who is the abode of love, and detachment from all other things."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.2.42]

These are the three signs must come within a devotee. Bhakti, the tendency towards the service will increase. Pareśānubhavo, somewhat conception about Kṛṣṇa, about the spiritual truth, one must possess. And anyatra viraktir, and withdrawn from any other ambitious things of the world. Kanak, kāminī, pratiṣṭhā, withdrawal from all these negative sides, and participation in the positive side. And also with acceleration the tendency to approach towards the truth, that will increase with exploration. All these things are there.

Otherwise it is not anarchy, that by certificate. Why did you come, leaving Christianity, to Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇavism? What led you to come here? There also so many certificates. The Catholics, their monks they have got their certificate. And why have you crossed that and jumped into a new theological conception? What is the reason? All these things. On the basis of that I'm done.

Devotee: The main thing my wife is fearing that there might be some reaction, for going to Sudhīra...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Don't feel very impatient, and don't hurry. But take time, think soberly, and ask your conscience, her conscience, sincerely. Appeal to Nityānanda Prabhu and Swāmī Mahārāja 'what am I to do?' Only to the form or to the material? The form is one side, and the substance is on the other side, we're to consider over that. The formality, the committee, all these things, but committee for what? Committee to work for particular principles, for particular truth, substance. The valuation of the committee will depend on that. There are no want of any committees in the world. But because there is the committee and so it is the absolute, that cannot be the consideration in the case of the truth. When committee is subservient to the truth then that committee should be allowed, as long as they're connected with the truth. Valuation will be according to that. No want of committees in the world. But committee for what purpose? How much the committee is true to the spiritual fact, that is for consideration. So,

sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja
[ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ]

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

Before that,

[śreyān sva-dharmo viguṇaḥ, para-dharmāt svanuṣṭhitāt]
sva-dharme nidhanaṁ śreyaḥ, para-dharmo bhayāvahaḥ

["It is better to carry out one's own duties a little imperfectly rather than faultlessly perform another's duties. Know that even death is auspicious in the discharge of one's duties appropriate to his natural position in the ordained socio-religious system, because to pursue another's path is perilous."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.35]

Don't leave your position, remain there firmly, hold your position. That means don't allow you to go down. Then if there is necessity go forward. When that chance will come you must take courage and push towards the front, towards the truth, higher truth. Life is elimination and acceptance, elimination of the bad. Progress means elimination and new acceptance. Otherwise what is progress? Progress means elimination and acceptance, both. But not elimination for the lower order, but for the higher order. We must eliminate and we must go forward. But we must be cautious also that we may not go down. Leaving the present position we should not allow ourselves to go down. But to go forward we must take strong stand there in that position. Just as a general does, where he puts his army he may consolidate his position so that he may not be pushed back. But whenever he gets the chance - go forward. So sva-dharme nidhanaṁ śreyaḥ, don't leave your position, die, do or die. Then when the chance will come go forward, do or die. So life is progress, and progress towards spiritual. From lower to intermediate, from intermediate to higher, in this way. Always we're in a progressive world.

But śaraṇāgati is the basis, śraddhā, faith. Association with the impurity, what we consider to be impure, of lower level, my association with that will hamper my cause. Sat saṅga, good association is indispensable for our progress in our life, sādhu saṅga. Association can change us. We're already vulnerable, so bad association will take us down with greater speed. Good association will help us to go up. So association, sādhu saṅga association, Vaiṣṇava. And that is very hard to find a good association in the Vaiṣṇava world. Everywhere good association is very rarely found. It is not in the market that we can purchase this. Ha, ha. It's very, very rare.

Devotee: Is that based on sukṛti Mahārāja that one gets good association?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Good association. The first is sukṛti, then sukṛti developed comes to śraddhā, then śraddhā takes us to proper association. And with continual association we select our Guru. Then we accept our Gurudeva we go on according to that.

But in very rare case if we're very unfortunate sometimes we have to leave Guru. But that sort of curse should not come in anyone's fate when one is bound to leave Guru. But still it may come to any person, such misfortune may come. But that is very bad luck and we should not look at that such unfortunate thing, but still it is there. So before we accept anyone as Guru we should be very strong in our judgement before acceptance. Our decision may not be faulty, treacherous. So when we come to Guru, before that we must be very, very firm in our understanding. Because after we surrender, to come back it is very unhappy and detrimental to the cause. But if such case occurs we must have to do.

guror apy avaliptasya, kāryākāryam ajānataḥ / utpatha-prathipannasya, parityāgo vidhīyate

["A guru who is addicted to sensual pleasure and polluted by vice, who is ignorant and who has no power to discriminate between right and wrong, or who is not on the path of śuddha-bhakti must be abandoned."] [Mahābhārata, Udyoga-parva, 179.25]

If such unhappy incident also is there then in that case we're to come back. That such disaster may not come in anyone's fate, we shall pray to the Lord. But before we accept any Guru we must be quite confident.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Devotees: _____ [?]

Devotee: When you come to Navadwīpa - when someone like myself comes to Navadwīpa, I like doing kīrtana and bhajan, but when I come to Navadwīpa I hear so many kīrtanas and bhajans where they're playing so many instruments, harmonium. Making, chanting the Holy Name very long, like that, and it seems very attractive.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We do not do that. Our Guru Mahārāja did not introduce this. Swāmī Mahārāja might have accepted there, because he had to modify according to the stages where he had to preach. Loke vyavāyāmiṣa-madya-sevā. According to the conditions _____ [?] But in our position our Guru Mahārāja did not allow any other instrument. Because what is not in the cause is not in the effect.

Mahāprabhu came from the ideal of that world here, and what He introduced that is eternal partnership that had. And what is not found in His kīrtana we generally do not accept that. This khola, karatāla, all these things He used. 'And the civilisation was in want, no harmonium was created at that time, so He ignored.' We don't take it in that way. Everything in perfect form in Goloka, His paraphernalia, instruments, everything is there in full. And He came down with His own paraphernalia. And we adore that. And what is not found there, such things we don't like. But sometimes,

[vyavasthitis teṣu vivāha-yajña,-surā-grahair āsu nivṛttir iṣṭā]

["Everyone is naturally inclined to have sex, eat meat, and drink wine. There is no need for the scripture to encourage these things. The scriptures do, however, give concessions to people who are determined to do these things. The scriptures therefore grant a license to enjoy sex by allowing sexual intercourse with one's lawfully wedded wife at the proper time of the month. They grant a license to eat meat to those who perform a certain kind of sacrifice, and a license to drink wine to those who perform the Sautramani sacrifice. The purpose of granting these licenses for sense gratification is only to restrict these activities and encourage people to give them up altogether. The real intention of the Vedic injunctions regarding sex, meat eating, and wine drinking is to make one abstain from these activities."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.5.11]

To take up it is necessary to make progress by instalment. So some experts may allow something wrong to continue for some time. And then afterwards he'll say, "Leave this and take pure things." In that case according to deṣa-kāla-pātra, the time, and person, and local necessity, some provision may be given by some experts for some time. And then he will, after some time he'll say, "It's better to give up these things." It may be in some places.

But we say in Mahāprabhu's time that is the ideal. And what was not used at that time, we do not like to use those things. That is our contention. Our Guru Mahārāja did so and we accept that in toto. Harmonium was invented during his time but he did not allow it. And we also could understand in that way. Mahāprabhu He's perfect, His paraphernalia, His environment is perfect. So what is most suiting to the purpose, that was with Him, everything. And that was not in want in anything, which is found today in so-called civilised world. So we do not allow all these things. To introduce something more, to add something more to the perfect ideal, that is not our liking. That is perfect we shall try to understand how that is the most perfect stage in saṅkīrtana.

Why flute was selected by Kṛṣṇa to be a playing instrument in the first order, not other things? What is the speciality of the flute of Kṛṣṇa, and not other things? And why shingha [?] for Baladeva, not the flute?

These things to be considered, with the stage and the suiting paraphernalia, that is to be understood particularly. This suits the best there, that suits that stage best. In this way we're to understand the gradation everywhere.

Devotee: If someone wants to learn the mṛdaṅga, we know some teachers they teach many, many, many mantras. But how much is actually required for one who's trying to become pure devotee, śuddha bhakta...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We're not expert in that department, so with a general idea we move on. In mṛdaṅga, or _____ [?] we do not know much. That may come automatically when our svarūpa siddhi - when we shall reach that position.

During the time of the war, in Calcutta in a public place, the British constructed one military dress, and told, underlying there was, this was written, "Accept this dress, and the dress will teach you what you'll have to do. The dress will say that what you'll have to do. You please put on this military dress, and the dress will say what you're required to do."

So when we shall reach the particular paraphernalia and our svarūpa siddhi, that will automatically supply everything in me. The circumstance will make me fit. My duty is to go up. And the soil will be my teacher, the paraphernalia, environment will be my teacher, through gradual process. And that will be the best to nurture this, the ornaments, and everything, the dress, and the soil. Otherwise will be misfit.

Rāma, Rāma.

Devotee: When one is doing bhajan and kīrtana, what should be his attitude, his meditation?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha. Meditation not much effective. Only we shall try - śaraṇāgati we shall, almost the whole attention should be concentrated to śaraṇāgati, surrender.

Once, one gentleman, a zamīndār, took Hari Nāma from our Guru Mahārāja and asked, "While I shall take to count the beads, what should I think in the mind? Any portrait of Kṛṣṇa? Or any Śrī Mūrti anywhere? What should I - how I can engage, utilise my mind at that time while counting the beads?"

Guru Mahārāja answered. I was present there. "Mind has nothing to do in the supra-mental region. Mind he use this like a vulture, mind is like a vulture. Always vulture goes to the cremation ground. So mind and other senses they will try to fall on that thing and make it mundane, a cremation ground, that is all mortal. They have got all mortal experience, the mind, the eye, etc, the ear, everything has mortal experience. So whenever you will take the Name, other senses including mind, they will try to make it a mortal field. With their prejudice and experience of the mortal world they will fall on it, and will make it a cremation ground. Don't allow that. Only consider that I've got some spiritual things, or sound, which is completely otherwise from this mortal world. And that sound will gradually evolve, spiritual figure, or colour, rūpa.

namnastam sravanam anta karana suddatvam apeksam [?]

Jīva Goswāmī says. "When by taking the Name, concentrating over the Name, I have got it, spiritual sound from my Gurudeva, this is transcendental. And waiting how the effect may come down in me. With such expectant attitude we shall go on counting. And never pining ourselves down in this mundane. But rather expecting something new, transcendental experience."

Then the colour will come, figure, the rūpa will come. Then after that from rūpa will come guṇa, quality, relativity. From that relativity it will come down from above, from over the soul. The ordinary plane of experience, the mental plane, the plane of the reason, the plane of soul, plane of Supersoul - in this way the subtle planes are there. So it will have to come down with my expectant attention. Just as a particular bird always expects rain. The cātaka, they do not take any water on the floor, neither river, nor lake, nothing of the kind. But only rain water, they always try to have rain water. So our attitude should be...

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] So expectant for some transcendental experience we shall go on. And from the first, from the sound the rūpa will come, from rūpa _____ [?] the quality will come from that relativity. Then paraphernalia will come, then the pastimes will come. And we shall find that my self as a unit is there, not this self mundane, but my soul has got a serving position there in that plane. In this way we're to be reinstated in our home.

So mind may not be allowed to indulge in its own speculative line.

Devotee: So whatever service we're doing we should have the anticipation of some higher realisation to come down.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So the stress is always given in this that do under a bona fide Vaiṣṇava, whatever you do. The direction, if you get from the higher, you'll be benefited. You see there are raw materials. Raw materials if it's in the hands of expert it can produce miracle. Otherwise raw materials are raw materials. So we have got raw things, and higher utilisation or proper utilisation of them is necessary. And that can come from higher transcendental region. As much as higher direction will come and we shall live, surrender to its disposal, we'll be more and more benefited. This is the scientific life.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi. _____ [?]

Devotee: _____ [?]

...

Devotee: ...chanting the Holy Name, or can it come when one is rendering some other type of service?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, some other also, when Vaiṣṇava sevā, Guru sevā. What is done under the direction of the Vaiṣṇava that has got another, transcendental value. I'm reading myself, and I'm reading by the order of a Vaiṣṇava. Anyhow recentralisation is necessary. We're wrongly centralised. Recentralising is necessary. And in other words real spiritual centralising is necessary. We must be Kṛṣṇa centralised. We're already we're different, partial centralised. But all must be For Itself. One ended, Kṛṣṇa ended, Kṛṣṇa ending towards Kṛṣṇa's satisfaction. So this ego must be demolished, for separate interest, local interest. The enquiry for local interest, that ego must be dissolved. And we shall try to find that within the Kṛṣṇa centre ego is there. That is the positive side we're to develop or find out within us.

So, to take the Name, to hear Bhāgavatam, that can be, that may be dharma, artha, kāma, mokṣa, any, according to its end purpose. But when it's done only for the interest of Kṛṣṇa then it's devotion. I'm reading this book, not to get any fame by delivering lectures to the public, then it will not be devotion reading the book. I'm reading the book because my higher Master he wants me to do this. This line should be found and should be followed. That whatever I'm doing, not for my interest, but for the interest of my Master, whatever I do. That will have spiritual character. That is progress towards Kṛṣṇa, towards centre. Centre interested we shall try to do anything and everything.

Otherwise taking the Name, or scripture, all may be false if it's not for the central interest. For selfish interest also we may use all those apparently devotional forms. Some may be sahajiyā, some will be trader and they will have to go to hell, a reaction. Anyhow, for the interest of Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa conception. So it is very imperative necessity, exclusive necessity, that we should come in contact with a real Vaiṣṇava who has got Kṛṣṇa interest in his heart. Wholesale converted into Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Kṛṣṇa consciousness means Kṛṣṇa centred, for the satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa consciousness, Kṛṣṇa centred means for His satisfaction.

We have got, every one of us, our separate satisfaction. We're running after that, in different shades of life. We're to eliminate them, and to convert, to find out, in other words, find out our innermost tendency, home tendency that is moving towards Kṛṣṇa's satisfaction. That is to be found out in our innermost part of our heart. That is there, home. Home consciousness is within us, it is the innermost. And Kṛṣṇa's home, that is, He's our Master. We're in one family with Kṛṣṇa. Everyone is busy to satisfy Him.

Yaśodā whipping Kṛṣṇa, but her heart is wholesale converted to Kṛṣṇa's interest. But formally what she's doing apparently it may seem she's against the interest of Kṛṣṇa, but it's not so.

His Divine Grace Śrīla Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...this apathy to Kṛṣṇa, their punishment, it is so. It is so innermost thing and undetectable by ordinary brain. So whipping to Kṛṣṇa can be the interest of Kṛṣṇa to the best. His will, He wants to show in that way His līlā.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That has got its peculiar characteristic. But the primary necessity is Kṛṣṇa's concern, Kṛṣṇa's interest. A peculiar thing, it is Goloka. In Vaikuṇṭha it is not so crooked, it is simple. But in Goloka it harmonises everything, Goloka, full-fledged centre. That harmonises everything, good or bad, what is considered very nasty in our moral consideration, that is also harmonised there. He's such good. Kṛṣṇa consciousness can accommodate everything. Only one thing, for His satisfaction, the autocratic sweet will.

Artheṣu abhijñaḥ svarāṭ, in the introduction of Bhāgavatam [1.1.1] "What I'm going to describe in this book, in Bhāgavatam, that is the substance, gist is given in the beginning, in three ślokas. There is one, artheṣu abhijñaḥ svarāṭ. The meaning, the purpose of every existence is known only to Him. And who is He? He's svarāṭ, He's autocrat, despot. Truth is such, highest conception of the truth is such, absolute good. No consideration, no good or bona fide consideration from me can reach that standard. Absolute good is such. So autocracy must be with the absolute good. And that is the holiest conception we can ever think of. Absolute good, full power there, absolute good, no law to bind down absolute good. Then that would be suicidal. He's svarāṭ. Svarāṭ means autocrat. He Himself is emperor, without apparently having any consideration for any other, apparently. Nitāi.

Devotee: Mahārāja. Is the worship of Gaura-Nitāi and the worship of Mahāprabhu by Himself is that also a different rasa? Worshipping Mahāprabhu by Himself along with Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: To Nityānanda Prabhu, that is to consolidate the ground, the foundation. Then that will help us to make further progress. But speedy progress without good foundation, that may invite reaction. So foundation is from Nityānanda Prabhu, from Gurudeva, that foundation may not go away. Nitāiyer koruṇā habe. [the mercy of Nityānanda Prabhu], that is the primary necessity. In this way. And the highest in the service of Rādhārāṇī. Beginning from Baladeva, Nityānanda, sādhu, Guru, all these things, Vaiṣṇava, and culminating there. This is philosophy of Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇavism, to be reinstated as a part of servitor in the highest degree, not to be one as to receive the service, but to render service.

Two Moiety, Predominating, Predominated. Predominated Moiety is negative śakti, is prakṛti, śakti, servitors, serving. And the service receiver that is another side. Our best interest will be according to our constitutional position, that we shall attain our highest position in the servitors line. Predominated Moiety. And not to consider ourselves one with the Predominated Moiety, negative side. Not predominating, positive, but predominated, negative. Our best interest is there.

Devotee: For someone who is just now taking up the devotional life, just starting, he's recommended to worship Gaura-Nitāi instead of Mahāprabhu by Himself?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, that will be more safe and helpful. More attention should be given here and that automatically will take us up. We shall invest all our energy possible towards Gaura-Nitāi, Nitāi-Gaura. And automatically we shall find that we're being lifted towards higher level. There also Gaura-Nitāi and also Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa.

yathā yathā gaura padāravinde, vindeta bhaktiṁ kṛta puṇya rāśiḥ
tathā tathot sarpati hṛdy akasmāt, rādhā padāmbhoja sudhāmbhu-rāśiḥ

[Caitanya-candrāmṛta, 88]

You invest here, just as to the Bank of America and it will go there, something like that. Your investment in Navadwīpa will take you to Vṛndāvana. Automatically you will find you are there. How the company has carried you there, it may be unknown to you. Automatically you will find that you are in that rasa. You devote all your energy here. Such arrangement is there. Yathā yathā gaura padāravinde, vindeta bhaktiṁ kṛta puṇya rāśiḥ. Those who have got much sukṛti they will give the suggestion from inside that invest whole to Gaurāṅga. And the author he says, Prabodhānanda Saraswatī, yathā yathā gaura padāravinde, vindeta bhaktiṁ kṛta puṇya rāśiḥ

tathā tathot sarpati hṛdy akasmāt, rādhā padāmbhoja sudhāmbhu-rāśiḥ

You will find automatically the whole thing has been offered to the divine feet of Rādhārāṇī. And She's accepting us in Her confidential service, giving engagement. "You have got good recommendation from Navadwīpa. Yes I look at it, I immediately appoint you in this service." Something like that.

Devotee: Mahārāja. When the jīva soul reaches perfection in the line of Rūpa Goswāmī, worshipping Lord Caitanya, does he worship, in the spiritual world, does he worship Lord Caitanya and Kṛṣṇa simultaneously, when he's giving his service to...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, both is one and same, but two different phases of one and same thing. One is Kṛṣṇa līlā added with magnanimity, self distribution. When Kṛṣṇa tasting that highest ecstasy with His own paraphernalia in Vṛndāvana, and when that has been planned that it must be given to others also, to the public, then it becomes Navadwīpa. These two are simultaneously existing, both these līlās, not one is previous, another is future. But simultaneously they are there, two tendencies, one, to taste within the paraphernalia; another department at the same time that others may get it, such arrangement. That is Gaura līlā. Amongst the paraphernalia, the servitors, there are three types. One more addicted to Kṛṣṇa, another more to Śrī Caitanya, another almost equal, both sides, they're equally addicted. But there's a special group also who are more inclined towards Krsna līlā, and some more inclined towards Gaura līlā, distribution, audārya, magnanimity is there little more. And neutral also, in the middle also there are some. So differentiated character is there, a differentiated character is always maintained. All equal that is brahma- nirviśeṣa. There is gradation, always, hierarchy, group, department, variety, vaicitra, to the infinite.

Devotee: We see in the Gauḍīya Maṭha Mission that Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa is worshipped along with Mahāprabhu Mūrti separate. And when our Prabhupāda came to America for us he established Gaura-Nitāi.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh. That is elementary. Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa is little higher conception. Maybe if we approach very hurriedly, the steps may be omitted. We may take the lust to be the love, the opposite. Kṛṣṇa satisfaction that is love, and separate self satisfaction that is lust. Similar, but opposite distance, greatest distance. So as a primary, Gaura-Nityānanda, that is more helpful to us. Kṛṣṇa-Balarāma, more helpful, and Rādhā-Govinda is higher study.

Devotee: Is the worship of Mahāprabhu higher than worship of Mahāprabhu and Nityānanda? Because in Gauḍīya Maṭha we see Mahāprabhu by Himself.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Because there, in consonance with Rādhā-Govinda, One. So in crude form Rādhārāṇī, the highest is also introduced there with Gaurāṅga, audārya, magnanimity. No possibility of any selfish sensualism to enter into, the sannyāsī type, devotee type. But if we're to analyse we shall find Kṛṣṇa in the form, in the garb of Rādhārāṇī.

When the Two becomes One, according to the philosophers, when negative, positive become one, that becomes non-differentiated impersonalism.

But Vaiṣṇava philosophy says that Both when combined, the personality is not lost. But in the garb of negative, the positive is searching Himself. When Both are One, then it will be that in the mood of the negative, the positive Himself is converted and searching His own self, when One.

But the other parties, they'll say it becomes brahma, positive and negative becomes one and that is a non-differentiated thing which cannot be detected in any way, and no qualification, all unknown and unknowable.

But Vaiṣṇavas say when the Two become One, He's searching himself in the mood of the highest negative. The searching mood, the searched, who is to be searched, He's searching Himself in the mood of the highest searcher. That will be when One. It is the underlying philosophy.

That won't come to equilibrium. Positive and negative, when they mix together, creates equilibrium.

But Vaiṣṇava philosophers say no, dynamic character is always maintained, no equilibrium.

Devotee: ...go out and preach about Gaurāṅga.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. So by the grace of Nityānanda we may have our attraction for Śrī Gaurāṅga. And if we get the grace of Gaurāṅga we get everything to the highest degree, and safely. And if we go avoiding Gaurāṅga directly towards Rādhā-Govinda, there's much difficulty. He has come to recruit us Himself. Kṛṣṇa Himself and Rādhārāṇī Both combined, They Themselves have come to recruit us. So that is the safest way. If avoiding that we try to achieve Them by some other way, that will be more or less artificial and defective, naturally.

Devotee: So we must serve a Vaiṣṇava who is serving Lord Nityānanda and Lord Caitanya, to be connected.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh, then we're in safe position. Nityānanda Prabhu's mercy sometimes exceeds that of Śrī Caitanya Deva. Caitanya Deva sometimes cannot accept those fallen, by accepting whom will create some bad precedence. So He had to consider about their status, position, and other things. But Nityānanda Prabhu's mercy does not care for any unfavourable circumstance, so lavish. And almost blind, as if grace is blind, does not differentiate much between the sinners of different degrees, all-embracing. And His recommendation Mahāprabhu can't dismiss. That is the connection we're given to understand. Whom Mahāprabhu rejected, Nityānanda Prabhu gave him shelter. And gradually Mahāprabhu had to accept him afterwards. So the magnitude, the circumference of the grace of Nityānanda is the highest. That is the solace for us, the most fallen souls, they have also some place there.

ye yatha patita haya, tava dayā tata tāya, [tāte āmi supātra dayāra]

[Śrīla Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura says: "Your grace is given in accordance with the necessity of those who really deserve it. In that consideration, I have some claim. I am fallen of the fallen, the most fallen, so I have some claim to Your grace."] [Gīta-mālā, Yamunā-bhāvāvali, 19]

His plan is something peculiar. Who is the most fallen, hit him.

Like Napoleon. Napoleon, he attacked the strongest portion of the opposite party, his policy was that.

I heard from history that once France and Austria, Hungary, were in a long continuous war. Then Austria was gaining ground and France had to come back. Then France appointed Napoleon, a new, young general, made him general and sent him to the Austrian front.

And the Austrian soldiers had to come back. Then the king of Austria he called for the general. "You were gaining ground, now you are losing. What's the cause, what is lacking in you now? You were advancing and now you are retreating. What's the cause?"

The experienced old generals, they answered, "Because the new general has come in the French side and he does not know the war policy. So we have to retreat."

"What is this? He does not know the laws of battle, war, and so he's gaining, and you know and you have to come back?"

"Yes sir."

"Why?"

"So far, the war policy was this, that one must attack the weak part of the opposite. But this man is so rash. He must attack the weakest part. And we arrange our army in such a way, weak part and from the strong part we shall capture him. That was the general law of our war. But this man, in the beginning, he attacks the strongest portion. And everything is perplexed. We have to come back. He does not know these old tactics."

Devotee: Form breaker.

Sridhara Maharaja: The strongest. So Nityananda Prabhu wants to capture these most sinner, as our Guru Mahārāja told.

Once I went to Kṛṣṇanagar court for some cause in the missionary affairs.

One of the big pleaders, two, three were there. "Swāmīji you come to the court. We feel ashamed. You holy persons, you come to this court fighting amongst you. But do you not feel shy? We feel, we're ashamed that our sādhus they have come to court. But you don't feel any shyness?"

I answered that, "We're saints of different type. Generally we have got such understanding that a saint, he will fly away from this world of māyā and he will go to some solitary place and enter into some cave, and there he will engage himself in meditation or something like that. Generally Indian sādhus they preach like that. 'Give up everything, come to a solitary place, to the jungle, forest, cave, and engage yourself fully to understand about Godhead or something.'

But our Guru Mahārāja is of another type like Mahāprabhu, Nityānanda Prabhu. He wants to attack this māyā. Totalitarian war, like a general, he wants to crush the whole māyā.

"Why this misunderstanding, misconception? All, everything belongs to Kṛṣṇa, Īśāvāsyam, it is simple, plain, and a straight thing. And we shall think 'no, this is for me, this is for him, this is for him.' This misconception, why it will stand here at all? Crush the whole thing. Whole thing, attack and crush, kīrtana. Kīrtana means to preach, preach against this misconception, wholesale misconception, preach against, soldiers, you go, door to door. All Kṛṣṇa consciousness, Kṛṣṇa interest, Kṛṣṇa conception. It is for Him, you will be saved. This truth is plain and simple. Why you should not understand this. Try to capture them, to release them from this misconception, misunderstanding. And they are suffering from reactions."

So we do not care for anything. Everywhere, in the court also, the śāstric vicar must come. Ordinary laws you are dealing in the courts. Here also let Kṛṣṇa consciousness come as your fodder and gradually it will capture you. In this way, we're not afraid of anything.

Kālīsthana, Calcutta. A solitary loving Vaiṣṇava, he asked our Guru Mahārāja, "Why do you remain at Calcutta? That is the place of Kālī, Kalaha, that is the fighting for self-interest, so acute. Leave that, come to the Dhāma."

Guru Mahārāja he prepared that place of Kālī, that is the quarrel, the place of quarrel with self interest. Quarrel with all, quarrelling for self-interest. He selected that place.

"I want to represent Mahāprabhu's creed in an extremely contaminated place, I prefer. And I want to capture them." So he wanted to send men towards the west. "The easterners, they are now captured by the glamour of the western civilisation. So western civilisation must be crushed first. Then the glamour of the eastern people will vanish and then all will come to join the divine love campaign, the love of the Lord."

We have got so high position in some most respectable quarter. And we're now fodders of the Yāmarāja, the god of death. All this civilisation is after all the fodder to death as this atomic energy is threatening. Yesterday in this radio, I heard one gentleman is representing that if the atom bombs are thrown as they are at present, then the whole world will be reduced to snow stage of the world, snow, ice. The whole heat will be drawn away, vanish, and the cold, that snow age, coldness will come down and every life will be finished, even including the trees. That ice, snow period will come down at once, if the bombs are used. The heat, oxygen, will be finished and that snow period, that iceberg will come. And so much so, coldness, that even the trees will also be finished, what to speak of animals and human beings. So threatened by such jaw of death is coming to devour us. So only Kṛṣṇa consciousness, our soul consciousness above this mortal world. It does not want any world to, it can live in the moon, in the sun, everywhere.

nainaṁ chindanti śastrāṇi, nainaṁ dahati pāvakaḥ / na cainaṁ kledayanty āpo, na śoṣayati mārutaḥ ["Weapons cannot pierce the soul, and fire cannot burn him. He can neither be moistened with water, nor dried by the air."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 2.23]

Na cainaṁ. The water cannot make it rotten, fire cannot burn, the air cannot attract heat from it, in this way. Nainaṁ chindanti. No weapon can cut it asunder. Nainaṁ chindanti śastrāṇi, in Bhagavad-gītā. Nainaṁ chindanti śastrāṇi, nainaṁ dahati pāvakaḥ. In this way, the soul is such, you are to find out that you are that soul. You are to get back your identification that you are above this mortality. You find yourself. And soul has got its environment also, soil. You are soul, so many souls, and soul has got its own soil, own plane to live. And also higher planes with so much prospect. It is as real as the sun, as the day we see. So you want to guide you there. That is the only duty a man should have in this mortal world. All else, all other attempts are all futile, bogus, suicidal. Only to take soul towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness, that is the real friendly activity. All other energising is bogus.

Devotee: Could that possibly happen what they are saying? Could that possibly happen what the scientists are saying?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. This is through faith we can find our own self, the consciousness. Without consciousness what value we have got, this body or eye or this? Whatever modified consciousness, consciousness in its degraded condition, still if you can try to concentrate it without consciousness, nothing remains to us.

indriyāṇi parāṇy āhur, [indriyebhyaḥ paraṁ manaḥ
manasas tu parā buddhir, buddher yaḥ paratas tu saḥ]

["The learned proclaim that the senses are superior to inert objects, the mind is superior to the senses, and the faculty of resolute intelligence is superior to the mind. And he who is superior to the intelligence is the soul himself."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.42]

If we're devoid of the senses, minus the eye, the nose, the tongue, the ear, then have I got any world? If all the senses withdrawn, then have I got any world, external world? Nothing, no conception. No feeling, no sound, no sight, then what remains? Nothing remains. Then again the mind is there. If mind is absent, these senses do not work at all. The eye, though see, 'Oh, I was unmindful, I did not mark it.' The seer, receiver is mind, the subtle thing. And manasas tu parā buddhir. And indriyebhyaḥ, reason, judicious faculty is higher. Without this, this mind has got no value, you'll be a madman. So intelligence is the substantial valuable thing within us. Without that our life we cannot feel anything else. Without judgement we may be blindfold, something like that. No self consciousness, no consciousness of self interest, nothing of the kind, if intelligence is drawn out of us. Then, buddher yaḥ paratas tu saḥ. Then go further up, that is your self is there, the soul, a particle of light, knowledge. If that is withdrawn, the whole body, mind, everything; body is physical, mind is subtle, but if soul is withdrawn, the body, mind, nothing. It is all dead matter, nothing. No feeling, no conception. So, the soul, then the Supersoul, in that way you try to find out your own self. Who are you? You are not this flesh and blood. You try to find out within you, and within scripture, or in association with the sādhus, know thyself.

This is a concrete thing. This is not concoction, not imagination, not indulgence in mere philosophical, this is dire necessity. How to live, how to dismiss mortality. Every moment I'm being attacked. I'm in the clutches of mortality. This is the fact, to every one of us, that mortality is every moment encroaching me as I am, as I think myself to be, at present, always mortality is coming to swallow me. This is the problem, common problem and the deadly problem to all. And we must face it, have to face it. We shall have the courage to face it, to save me and to save others, in that way. This is a concrete necessity. We can't dismiss it. We're all fools. The danger is there and I'm ignoring it. What does it mean? I'm a madman. Next moment I'll be its prey, and I'm sleeping over this problem, a coward.

...and He's no other but Kṛṣṇa Himself. We feel, we hear, the jingling of the nipur, that is the feet ornament, ankle. We just hear that jingling of that ankle of Gaurāṅga. He's no other than Kṛṣṇa. He's going away, and Navadwīpa is enveloped, is swallowed by darkness, deep darkness. What are you doing my friend? Let us all go and try to bring Him back here. The jewel of Navadwīpa is going away."

That is the day, this day, in the early morning, crossed the river by swimming, at three o'clock or so. Swimming, then ran towards Kāṭwā. Hare Kṛṣṇa. In this winter season, no care of any cold, went away. So much heat in His mind, in His body and mind. So heated by one side, by the love of separation of Kṛṣṇa.

And another side, "I shall have the duty of preaching to the world about Kṛṣṇa devotion."

The call of that duty, that energy, actuated Him to get out of Navadwīpa, and to go to stand before the public with the love of Lord Kṛṣṇa. To be distributed to the length and breadth of the world. That call of that sort of duty for the public, and also the hitch of affection for Kṛṣṇa. Does not care for anything - running. Separation for Kṛṣṇa. Vipralambha, viraha. All tasteless. The call of Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

84.01.15.B_84.01.18.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...so much is his, so much it is created for the national cause. So many atomic bombs, so many soldiers, ready to devote their life for the national interest. What little this mortal prosperity, what does it mean? Trifling, nothing. And eternal wealth, eternal good to the eternity, what sort of energy we should collect for that? So much good to all, such a high degree of welfare to be distributed to the all. To get back their own home, to take these misguided people, to take them towards their home, sweet, sweet home. That sort of call came in His mind.

"All these vagabonds, they should be taken to their own home and guardian." This sort of duty arose in His mind. "They all should be taken to their home. They're wandering like so many beasts in the jungle without knowing what is good, what is bad. Always engaged in competition to bite one another. They say they're civilised. Jungle animals are biting one another and trying to live at their cost, at the cost of the other fellow members in the jungle. As a human, more efficiently they're following the same chart, same program. At the cost of other nations, they want the same. What is this? A civilised jungle."

What is civilisation then? Civilisation loses its meaning. Civil means gentle. Is this gentleness? Only in a body what individually we may do, they're proud that they're doing that in a body. In the name of nation everything is purified. These fools. The jungle habits, if it can be performed in a form of nation, then it is justified. The fools dictionary. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

To help, half truth is more dangerous than falsehood. So half help, misguided help, that is more dangerous. That is to direct ones attention towards wrong thing.

[veda nā māniyā bauddha haya' ta nāstika] vedāśraya nāstikya-vāda bauddhake adhika

["The Buddhists do not recognise the authority of the Vedas; therefore they are considered agnostics. However, those who have taken shelter of the Vedic scriptures yet preach agnosticism in accordance with the māyāvāda philosophy are certainly more dangerous than the Buddhists."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 6.168]

In the name of religion, if we preach atheism, that is more dangerous than an ordinary straight atheist. So in the name of civilisation, we're doing which is shameful to the animal of jungle, and not half truth. That giving food and clothing and so called education to the public, that is a very good thing, no.

Not less than to take them home. That is what is necessary. Home comfort. There is expression 'home comfort', means very sweet. And home means mother, father, they know the real necessity of the child. Child may not know. But the home knows what is his real interest. Home means father, mother, so many affectionate relatives, they know more than the boy who is interested. To guide one towards home, unconsciously the atmosphere will come to help, render real help to us, that is home. Back to God, back to home. To take us all, these wanderers in the streets, to collect them and to take them home.

That was the duty of Mahāprabhu, taken by Him.

Devotee: Mahārāja, sometimes in preaching we find it very difficult because they don't want to go back home, sometimes. So how does a devotee keep trying?

Sridhara Maharaja: By hook or by crook, any means. That depends upon the capacity of the guide. Anyhow to take them home. He knows what is home comfort. The child may not know. He may be crazy. He may run this way, that way, not towards home. And that is the rub. That makes the case complex. Otherwise it would have been very simple. So anyhow to manage. The responsibility on the guide. And according to their capacity the real effect comes to help him. That is a special capacity and also the inspiration, delegation of the Lord, both combined makes the specific characteristic in Ācārya.

Rank is but the guinea stamp, man is the gold for that. So many administrators there may be, district magistrate, judge. But rank is one thing and the man is another thing. So his inner capacity and also the delegation, both combined, that is effective, both things combined. The personal characteristic of the preacher and also the delegation, delegated power of the Lord, both combined. As much power, how much power is delegated there, and this combined combination produces the desired result.

Mahāprabhu recommending to Svarūpa Dāmodara, recommending Rūpa Goswāmī to Svarūpa Dāmodara. "He's the fittest person to deal with the devotional scriptures. So I have delegated, I have inspired him, delegated My ability to him. You also do." He's requesting Svarūpa Dāmodara also. "Whatever you have got, you please transfer in him. He's a very worthy person. He can manage it and he can distribute it very well. So I have given all My suggestions to him. And you also give to him. And he will produce it in a very befitting way and distribute this devotional scripture, he will prepare."

Devotee: We know the Ācārya, that Kṛṣṇa is coming through the Ācārya.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Coming means His power, His delegated power. Kṛṣṇa means His potency. Kṛṣṇa and Kṛṣṇa's potency almost one and the same. His potency, He's extending His potency.

Devotee: Mahārāja. It says in śāstra that by a moments association with a pure devotee that one can reach the highest perfection.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, highest perfection. Perfection in the infinite is a relative term. Ha, ha, ha. Perfection of course is in the infinite. Ha, ha, ha, ha. Kṛṣṇa is perfect, that is also, Svayaṁ-Bhagavān Kṛṣṇa. Then Prabhāva-Prakāśa, Prabhāva-Vilāsa, different types of Kṛṣṇa also. And Kṛṣṇa on the side of Rādhārāṇī, the fullest Kṛṣṇa, perfect Kṛṣṇa is there. The gradation in Kṛṣṇa also, what to speak of human beings and devotees, gradation is always there.

We're limited beings, so we're encouraged to look to the whole, try to catch the infinite. As much as you can, we're encouraged to see in the Ācārya that is the highest teacher-ship there. What is our capacity? If we use our utmost, try our utmost, still, how much we can extend ourselves? We're encouraged, whatever seen, that is the absolute. With this consciousness, go forward. When you will reach there, then also you will find something more, go forward.

We may think the sun is very near, but if we start our journey, begin our journey, 'Oh, it is here, go further, it is here, go further.' To catch the moon for the child, the moon is nearby. 'I'm getting it for you my boy, don't cry, very near.'

The scriptures do, however, give concessions to people who are determined to do these things. The scriptures therefore grant a license to enjoy sex by allowing sexual intercourse with one's lawfully wedded wife at the proper time of the month. They grant a license to eat meat to those who perform a certain kind of sacrifice, and a license to drink wine to those who perform the Sautramani sacrifice. The purpose of granting these licenses for sense gratification is only to restrict these activities and encourage people to give them up altogether. The real intention of the Vedic injunctions regarding sex, meat-eating, and wine-drinking is to make one abstain from these activities."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.5.11]

By instalment, but the fullest encouragement should be given to the child. "Finish this school." Then when that is finished, 'no, there is another, college.' To collect whole of his energy. In this way, encouragement, encouraging, go, so far, not more. When he will go he will find his own taste and go further, go further. No finish. As much the progress, as much the despair, disappointment.

"I do not get anything. So sweet, so sweet, I do not get any, any drop."

When you see Me crying in separation, I am just falsely exhibiting a demonstration of My great fortune. Indeed, not seeing the beautiful face of Kṛṣṇa playing His flute, I continue to live My life like an insect, without purpose."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.45]

As much as advanced, and they're in consciousness of the infinite, they think themselves as nothing, infinitesimal. The infinite is so big, so big, the infinite means. As much progress he makes and finds that further more. I did not know that infinite is so big, no circumference. Everywhere centre, nowhere circumference. In Meyer's Essay we read.

Devotee: It is eternally going on, this process.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Going on, but it is the lake of nectar, no law. No possibility of being looser. Because I'm not reaching the extremity so I'm lost? No, no. More tasteful, more energy giving, more hope giving, encouraging, one can't leave. I have not attained anything but still he can't drop his journey. He's sure to go more, more. That is the characteristic. Sweetness also, also infinite character sweetness. As much as sweetness we have, he wants more sweetness. In this way everything is infinite, Vaikuṇṭha. Kuṇṭha means limit, no kuṇṭha, no limit, unlimited. Vaikuṇṭha means unlimited.

From the narrow selfish conception, we're to merge into wider conception of the universal whole. We think that we shall lose our position. But when we identify with that ocean of nectar, no, we're not losing position. Rather we're in progress of acquiring higher position. So go further, higher position. Die to live. We feel in the process as much we're eliminating, losing our position, elimination of the position and progress, that means progress. To go forth means progress The test is there. We get more, more life. Die to live. So called death is encouraged by the gain of the life, vitality. The more we die, the more we live. We can feel, we can't leave the campaign. We can't abandon because the inner feeling is there. Raso 'py asya, paraṁ dṛṣṭvā nivartate.

["Although the person of gross corporeal consciousness may avoid sense objects by external renunciation, his eagerness for sense enjoyment remains within. However, inner attachment to sense objects is spontaneously denounced by the person of properly adjusted intelligence, due to his having had a glimpse of the all-attractive beauty of the Supreme Truth."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 2.59]

The experience of higher ecstasy encourages us to go further.

bhaktiḥ pareśānubhavo viraktir, anyatra [caiṣa trika eka-kālaḥ

Anyatra, viraktir, viraktir means abnegation, our devaluation of something, viraktir. And higher valuation in the front, pareśānubhavo, conception of higher gain in the front. And what we eliminate in the back, that is devalued, we can understand that that is more valuable than we live. Bhaktiḥ pareśānubhavo. Progress means some experience of gain, losing the stale position and to gain the better, new, encouraging acceptance. Elimination and acceptance. Acceptance of the higher, elimination of the lower. And we stand guarantee and witness to that, ourself. Hṛdaye nābhya nujñāto. [Manu-saṁhitā, 2.1]

Our heart's approval is there, to give us guarantee. Go further.

Devotee: Mahārāja. So many Vaiṣṇava devotees have started the path, long journey back to Kṛṣṇa, but somehow were checked. So how do we...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Everyone is trying to get more pleasure or happiness, but many failing. Then, what should we do? We should not try to get pleasure? All pleasure hunting, every point in the existence including the trees, creepers, animals, man, woman, everything here is searching for happiness. But apparently we see that many failing. Then should we stop there? Can we stop there? We can't. The urge to get greater pleasure, happiness, that is a constant thing. We can't leave that. Even it is in the stone, in the fossil also, but that is very, very meagre, covered. The very substance means search for pleasure, sukha, it cannot be eliminated. Any existence cannot be devoid of this, that searching for pleasure, for self- satisfaction. It is inherent, the most universal thing. As the substance existing, so its tendency to get happiness in way of freedom, or knowledge, love, anyhow progress is inherent quality, it can't be avoided.

The environment will force every atom to go ahead. Temporarily we may think, I won't do that. But that is not the real nature of things. Nature won't allow to stop, idle. For some time the negative aspect may come, take rest. Making progress sometimes to take rest is necessary. So sometimes it may be seen, but that is also a progressive position. Rest is also that the mahā-bhāgavata, they're told to be always engaged in service of Kṛṣṇa. When they're sleeping, that is also for the interest of Kṛṣṇa, taking rest. Then with more energy he can serve. So rest, the sleep also counted in the service, because taking rest we can give more energy. So rest also within service, something like that.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Who is he?

Devotees: Navadwīpa Prabhu.

Navadwīpa Prabhu: I have my daughter with me, I have to take her back to Māyāpur, she's a little restless.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All right. A little prasādam.

Navadwīpa Prabhu: I'll be back tomorrow morning Mahārāja.

Devotee: Mahārāja. When a devotee attempts to preach, say in the west or any dangerous situation, does he get more protection from Mahāprabhu?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Of course, according to his sincerity, according to his need, his purity of purpose, all these things. Preaching for Mahāprabhu, and not for his own name and fame, or any other acquisition. The purity of purpose. And then the preaching of different kinds, in primary stage, in higher stage, different phases is there. Primary schools there are many, but higher education colleges are few.

Devotee: _____ [?]

...

Devotee: ...journey to Kṛṣṇa but he stops for some reason. Is that due to his past karma or offences committed while performing devotional service?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: May be. Ha, ha. It is difficult to have the proper conception of that hindrance, bad karma. Because hankering, intensity of the hankering is so great that always in the retinue that impression comes in, that I have bad karma, bad luck. In the highest position also, I have got bad luck.

Rādhārāṇī says, "My durdaiva-vilāsa, only the fruit of my bad karma, that I'm in lacking the union of Kṛṣṇa. He has left Me. Kṛṣṇa is not to be blamed. He's all right, He's all attributed. Only for this separation, something is responsible, what is that? This is My bad luck."

So it is continuing in different shape to the highest. It is also a type of Vaikuṇṭha, that union in separation, is another type of getting the Lord. By feeling his want, earnest necessity. Earnest necessity, that is also a kind of gain, to find earnest necessity for a particular thing. That is not easily got. Follow?

Devotee: Hmm.

...

Devotee: Sometimes we see the devotee looses that desire to attain Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. That is little dangerous. Not to have hunger, that is the sign of the bad health. Hunger is good health, a sign of good health.

Devotees: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. _____ [?] [31:48 - 32:57 - microphone difficulties]

...it originates, understanding and the power exercising that comes from separate existence, consciousness of separate existence. Otherwise spontaneous activity is there. Without knowledge just like computer, automatic activity is there, jñāna śūnya bhakti. But it is in proper way, harmonious way. Harmony also comes there from there. Rather it is same with harmony, jñāna śūnya bhakti, dedication, automatically spontaneously doing things. Self-dedication, no possibility of any cheating, robbing, or any division, or any law, any justice necessary there. Automatically movement going on smoothly, properly, harmoniously, without causing any disturbance to the, it is quite healthy, wholesome movement. No clash is expected from that sort of movement, spontaneous, holy, holy movement. No cause of any complaint in that plane, perfect movement. But everything is there, and very sweetly performed, but all spontaneous, no calculation, no justice, nothing necessary. Where there is culprits, there judge is necessary.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Spontaneous flow of love, perfect, desirable, most desirable. Thing good in itself, it is good, it is all good, absolute good, all good. No room of any suspicion or any alternative possibility. No apprehension, smoothly going on.

And those that apparently incompatible it seemed, that is also necessary for its own purpose. Actuated by love. Mother also punishes the child. What is at the background? The good will for the child, in this way. Yaśodā chastising, whipping the son, so cruelty. And Absolute is crying. That is līlā. No feeling of any animosity. It is the outcome of the love, in different form, harmless. Not only harmless but health producing, wholesome.

What we - dynamic equilibrium. What is harmless we may think in the equilibrium stage. But if equilibrium can be dynamic, producing no disturbance, that is harmony. Harmony is movement but possessing the innocence of the equilibrium, healthy, harmony.

Devotee: So bhakti is then a gift given, but subjective endeavour is still necessary.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhakti is a gift of which, gift of whom? Bhakti is self-existent, bhakti. Bhakti with Bhagavān, with God it is self existent. His function, His nature, His halo pertaining to Him, is coexistent with Him. The original whole is an organic whole. Different potency coexisting. The whole is an organic whole, not that something is producing another thing. It is eternal, organic, harmonious organism.

Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: How is śraddhā related to inner experience?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Śraddhā is positive and the experience in the negative side, when we're misguided, the question of experience comes. When experience stops, knowledge of experience stops, śraddhā arises and the experience vanishes. Experience is a knowledge, we're subject there, we acquire, we're subject. But we're object in śraddhā. When śraddhā begins we try to find that we're object, not subject. In the area, in the domain of śraddhā we have got object...

84.01.23.B_84.01.25.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I want this, not any hypocritical or political colour. From the core of our heart if we want, there is that sort of justice, response from the quarter of the domain of love. Domain of love, that is generous enough to deal with the newcomers, welcome the newcomers. Because that is infinite, no bankruptcy is there. That if so many enters the bank our food will be - the scarcity of our food, no possibility of that. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Mahārāja. How does tolerance and discrimination cooperate?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: They may help us if the right connection we get. They are qualifications to help our progress, but the connection with the truth, which side? They will help our progress, but in any way if we're connected with a good thing they will help us for the attainment of the good. Tolerance and discrimination. Discrimination is in the front, tolerance in the back, they are good assistance. But discrimination in which plane? Discrimination may take place in different plane, but it must have a connection with the higher plane, discrimination. Discrimination should be right, in the right plane. Judgement, discrimination from our side, but it depends on the favour of the other side, and it must have that connection. So surrender, and then, He will come to approach us, to take us up. Anyhow we have to persuade the highest authority to favour us. Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Our attitude will be such as to invite the higher authority to accept us, does not depend so much on our part. Our submission, surrender, our hankering, the negative side. I cannot discriminate, make that object of my discrimination. That will be always super-subject. I cannot make that the object of my discrimination. Do you follow?

Devotee: No.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is super-subjective. So my position, attitude, will be such that the higher authority may come down to my level, and to help me, to favour me. So discrimination will reach to self-surrender. Surrender is necessary to attract the attention of the higher. Everything depends on Their sweet will. He's autocrat. His sweet will is everything. To attract that sweet will towards me, to increase my negative side, that is attraction. To attract His favour. The problem like this. Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All our attributes, our qualifications, will be of negative character, to press our position that 'I'm in the worst need. With out that, I can't stand, I'm helpless. I can't without Your favour.' That sort of hankering, earnestness, necessity, that will help us. In other words, we're to improve our negative characteristic, and the positive will be attracted - in that way.

And our subjective character only will be as His agent. He will inspire us to do this and that, I may go to do that and use my discrimination in carrying out His order. And not any original discrimination is possible for me to have. I may be subject when to carry out His order, of the higher officer of the Supreme Lord. There I may use my discrimination about the lower arrangement. But towards the higher, of the submission, surrender, obedience, allegiance, unconditional slavery, slave mentality will help us. That 'we're so low,' then the supply will come from the high. 'I'm in want,' then the supply may come from the high.

Am I clear?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Always this tenor of thought should be maintained: high and low, subjective and objective. And that is not under rule, that is autocrat. These are the data we must keep in our mind always. Sweet will, how to draw the attention of the higher; that is the problem. Only by proving to Him in a bona fide way, that I'm the worst needy.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. In Śrī Īśopaniṣad one mantra says that knowledge and nescience should be cultivated side by side. What does this mean?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: In Śrī Īśopaniṣad there's one mantram that says that knowledge and nescience should be cultivated side by side.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Knowledge and?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Nescience, darkness, nescience.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Nescience? Science and nescience? Nescience means ignorance, and science means knowledge. And how?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Should be cultivated side by side?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where is it?

Devotee: I'll go and get it.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Truth and māyā, truth and falsehood should be cultivated side by side? Where is it mention? Out of māyā we shall try to find out, out of ignorance we shall try to find out knowledge.

Another Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Sometime we're hearing in the society that this Kali-yuga will be destroyed when Lord Viṣṇu will come as Kalki Avatāra.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. As the Kalki Avatāra will come He will destroy the leaders, so many leaders of the black government, black dealers. And then the Satya-yuga will begin, then the time will take its own course towards a more higher form of life. Just as after summer, rainy season begins; then after winter, summer begins. In this way revolving. Satya, Tretā, Dvāpara, Kali - again Satya, Tretā, Dvāpara, Kali. In this way. According to the general karma of the masses, the collective people, according to their karma is revolving in this way. The social condition revolves in this way. It is the rule of everything, that after some individuals and some other comes to take place, in this action, reaction, in this way. In everyday, your mind also, sometimes your mind is in good position, sometimes in bad position, again that is end, again sometime good thoughts come. In this way, nothing is continuous but it is revolving. In a cyclic order it is moving. So according to the consequence of the mass deeds, deeds of the masses, the environment changes. Satya, Tretā, Dvāpara, Kali, the condition of the society varies in this way.

Devotee: And Lord Viṣṇu take these all ten incarnations all over ages.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All over the ages. In Satya the four - Matsya, Kūrma, Varāha, Nṛsiṁha. Tretā - Paraśurāma, Rāma, and Vāmana - three. And Dvāpara - Balarāma and Buddha. And Kali is one - Kalki.

Devotee: Kalki means He will come as a man or as...

Sridhara Maharaja: As a man. He will take birth in U. P., near _____ [?] Viṣṇuyasaśā. In a family of a brāhmaṇa who's name is Viṣṇuyaśā. And He will come, an extraordinary personality and all the demons will be killed by Him mainly. And then a reaction will begin again towards the religious life, virtuous life. A turn will be taken, in general. That is described there. [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 12.2.19-20]

Ah! what is that Īśopaniṣad ?

Badrinārāyaṇa: This mantram of Śrī Īśopaniṣad [11] is, vidyāṁ cāvidyāṁ ca yas, tad vedobhayaṁ saha / avidyayā mṛtyuṁ tīrtvā, vidyayāmṛtam aśnute Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is the meaning?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Translation is given by Swāmī Mahārāja. "Only one who can learn the process of nescience and that of transcendental knowledge side by side can transcend the influence of repeated birth and death, and enjoy the full blessings of immortality." [Śrī Īśopaniṣad, 11]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: One is negative another is positive. To know that this is false and to leave that, and this is true and to accept that. Do you follow? To cultivate about falsehood and the truth, this is false, we must rejected it, this is truth I must accept it - in that way. To know the bad, to culture the bad - this is bad and to reject, for rejection, and to culture the truth - for acceptance. That is meant here. The defect of māyā should be analysed. 'Oh, this is māyā, this is bad, this is hopeless, this is undesirable, to avoid this, we know, we shall try to, and not culture to have it. And the science, the knowledge, we shall try to attain it.' We shall try to understand the bright side of that and to accept more and more towards truth. One negative another positive. To know a man he's a dacoit, he's a rogue; and then to avoid him. And he's a saint, he's a good man, to accept him - in that way.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. There was one German philosopher who said, who taught, "Learned ignorance is necessary to reach the goal." Learned ignorance in Latin is Docta Ignorantia.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We may have the bright side, jñāna śūnya bhakti, noble ignorance. Not to go to calculate in this world but to surrender. Ignorance, jñāna śūnya bhakti, to lose our faith in calculation, in our subjective capacity of calculation, and to surrender to the higher. Jñāna śūnya bhakti, we may take it like that. Only one point you say, what is meant by that I don't know. But that may be utilise in this sense. Learned ignorance, that when learning understands its own limit, that 'I'm finite, my learning is also finite. It cannot make me bona fide enquirer about the infinite. So, it is better to surrender to the infinite, and let Him work in me for my best.' That submission - surrender. Surrender to the infinite; that is the highest reach of the learning. That, 'I can't know, I can't know. If He makes Himself know to me; then I can know, otherwise not.' It may mean that.

Devotee: He actually said, "God is inconceivable by thought. He can only...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, by our subjective enquire.

Devotee: Only intuition...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Only devotion, and His Grace. God can be known by His grace. So the cultivation of knowledge that won't give Him. That is a failure for the knowledge of investigation about Him. His Grace can give Him. To come to this idea, and then do away with the knowledge, to make much of the knowledge - stopped. Knowledge has got its limit, and the faith - when knowledge fails, faith develops, begins.

Devotee: This same philosopher also told...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who is he?

Devotee: Cusanus. Nicholas of Cusa - (aka Nicholas Cusanus) He lived 15th century. (1400-1464)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: 15th century.

Devotee: Great saint in Catholic Church. He was a Cardinal, a Bishop.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where, Rome?

Devotee: Yes. But German, in Rome. He was mediator between religions, between Muslims, and Christians, and Jews.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The knowledge fails and faith develops. Develop faith and give up the hope in knowledge. Laboratory, research laboratory cannot give you God.

Yuri Gagarin when he went in the sky, an old lady enquired when he came down. "Have you seen God there?" Ignorant lady asked him, "Have you seen God? You went so high."

But that gentleman was an atheist, he told, "Oh, God is in horse drawing our cart. What do you think about God? We have utilised God in our service."

"We are so proud of our knowledge, our research science, we have forced the God to serve us." The boast of science says that. "We have engaged God in our service. We're above God, superior to God. God is our creation. A creation of a particular half-mad section. God."

Devotee: Cusanus also told that, "In God the opposites coincide. Opposite, smallest and greatest come together in God."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Bridha samanan tasmin na cityam [?] Not only good, bad, but even anti parties are also harmonised, everything harmonised in Him. Good, bad, friend, enemy, everything is harmonised and accommodated there. And they lose their poison, all becomes good. All accommodating, all harmonising, all adjusting principle in Him. Direct, indirect. Thesis, antithesis, synthesis.

Devotee: He was also mathematician. "Mathematics are related to God. Point and line are two opposites. Point is infinitesimal small and line is infinite."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Line, plane, solid. Line also only length. Infinite points accommodated in a line, infinite line accommodated in a plane, infinite number of plane is accommodated in a solid.

[28:18 - 29:00?]

...

...for it self, for the centre. Selflessness to the extreme. Selflessness not in extreme conception of renunciation, that is only mere withdrawal from the negative side. But there is a positive side of divinity, self-giving, and take it to the extreme it will go to Krsna, the autocrat. He'll absorb everything. He's the only enjoyer.

Our Guru Mahārāja in his famous poetry, duṣṭa mana! tumi kisera vaiṣṇava? "My wicked mind, how you claim to be a Vaiṣṇava?" That is the heading of the poem written by our Guru Mahārāja, Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī. "Oh my wicked mind, how you can think that you are a Vaiṣṇava proper?" There he has one line, kāminīra kāma, nahe tava dhāma, tāhāra mālika kevala "yādava." "The enjoyment, the pleasure that we get from the association of the ladies that is only reserved for Kṛṣṇa and for none else."

Ha, ha. [From Vaiṣṇava ke? Who is a Vaiṣṇava? Mahājana-racita gītā, from Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 3.24]

One gentleman came to enquire. "What do you mean by this expression?"

"That what I mean it is clear there."

"Then, where is our position?"

"You have no position."

Clear answer. None to enjoy but only Kṛṣṇa. It is reserved for Kṛṣṇa only, Kṛṣṇa conception. As in other places, Vaikuṇṭha, that is also subservient tendency; not so much so, as in Kṛṣṇa līlā.

Three things. Nārāyaṇa is the master of kanak, money, wealth, aiśvarya. The whole wealth, energy, belongs to Nārāyaṇa. And the whole pratiṣṭhā, that is credit, belongs to Gurudeva, Baladeva, Rādhārāṇī. And the whole lady pleasure reserved only for Kṛṣṇa. Three things.

It is very hard to crack the nut, to understand. Then, we will come to realise our position, then where are we? Who are we? If these three things reserved for these Three Principal Entities of the highest order, then what is our position? Our secondary position in the objective side. We're wealth, we may be supplier to Kṛṣṇa in that respect.

And pratiṣṭhā, all coming from Gurudeva. The main capitalist, original capitalist is Gurudeva, Baladeva, or Rādhārāṇī, in the original position. And we're making transaction of His property. We're like small industrialists. From big industrialist we take delivery of the articles and we take it to the market for ordinary sale. But if that Kṛṣṇa consciousness we spread, we're in that position. From Gurudeva we take the articles and sell it in the market. Kṛṣṇa kathā, everything, holding secondary, subordinate position.

We're but a part of potency and not the owner of potency. Part of potency. We're potency in our selves. So, no freedom of enjoyment with us, we're to supply. The master of potency, He's to enjoy the potency, He's master. And we're so many particles in the potency. So our position is to be enjoyed, is to be subservient to the higher. And there lays our real svarūpa, means intrinsic identification, and if we can reach that place we shall get our maximum. That is what is Vaiṣṇavism in a nutshell. Not enjoyer, but to be enjoyed. Not positive, but negative. Not predominating, but predominated. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

These broad things we're to understand, and then we're to study in details what is there. Three things. To give up enjoyment and to give up renunciation, that means infinite, ocean. To give up enjoyment and to give up renunciation; two plenary fundamental things we're to avoid. And the necessary third plane, is the plane of service, which is possible after self-dedication, self-surrender. Through self-surrender we can come in connection of that plane. It's difficult to understand, and more difficult to begin and follow. But it is there, it is possible. And Hegel comes to help us very much. "For Itself. Everything For Himself." That is the plenary movement, and we must join that. Ha, ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

ahaṁ hi sarva-yajñānāṁ, bhoktā ca prabhur eva ca
[na tu mām abhijānanti, tattvenātaś cyavanti te]

"I'm the enjoyer of everything in this world. Yajñā means sacrifice. Everyone may sacrifice, and it is for Me, I'm the recipient, you see. This is your position, to Me."

One of our Godbrothers, Vasudeva Prabhu, he used to say sarcastically, in sarcastic way that, "Let us go on in harmonised way. You do and I take. You supply, you cook I shall eat. You serve I shall accept. Let us join in this. _____ [?] Let us work in combination. You labour and I enjoy."

Prakṛti, puruṣa, is like that. One enjoyer another supplier.

kārya-kāraṇa-kartṛtve, hetuḥ prakṛtir ucyate
puruṣaḥ sukha-duḥkhānāṁ, bhoktṛtve hetur ucyate

["Material nature has been delineated as responsible for the cause of the domineering force of the senses, and the effect as the material body; and the (conditioned) soul himself is known to be responsible for his accrued happiness and unhappiness."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 13.21]

Just as in Sāṅkhya philosophy, pangu andha, a blind and a crippled, the both combined going. Cripple he has got eye, and blind man he has got limbs. The blind man can move, but he cannot see the way. The crippled man with eye he is, he takes position on the shoulder of the blind man, and says, "Go this side, go that side," like a horse, horseman. Sitting over the horse, say 'horse go this side, that side.' So both, a man, but one is blind another is eyed but crippled.

The puruṣa is crippled, and prakṛti is a blind man with full energy to move, but he cannot guide. So guide is puruṣa, he can see the consciousness. The consciousness, intelligence, that is guide. And the energy, blind energy, that can move, work. So both combined things going. This is the Sāṅkhya philosophy, ponganda, pongu and andha. Andha is prakṛti, and pongu is puruṣa - no activity there, but it is a spark, knowledge, but no other energy. So, pongandha.

So puruṣaḥ sukha-duḥkhānāṁ, bhoktṛtve hetur ucyate. He has consciousness, he can feel what is pain and pleasure. Pain and pleasure feeling in the consciousness, but that is inert, passive, something constant and staying in the same place. And activity for him to be done by some other energy. So, puruṣaḥ sukha-duḥkhānāṁ, bhoktṛtve hetur ucyate. And kārya-kāraṇa-kartṛtve, hetuḥ prakṛtir ucyate.

This is the conception of the lower side of things. But prakṛti does not evolve consciousness like fossilism. But on the other hand, both is in consciousness. No necessity of movement for the soul - is possible here. Soul is inactive, indifferent, passive, in this enjoying plane. That is another original conception. Soul does not take place in the negative side, it is meant for positive side. But accepting soul in the background the prakṛti works on his behalf.

Our Guru Mahārāja gave an example that, "The proprietor is minor and the managers they're taking the advantage of the minority of the proprietor, and they're looting and enjoying the state." Something like that. Soul is, the baddha jīva, soul is like a minor's position. So soul, he cannot control these revolting managers. He only should have a contact of another major soul. Then with the help of the major soul, he can subdue his managers, and then he can get the lordship on his own property. So minor's position, in the baddha jīva, a fallen soul's position is like a minor proprietor, helplessly. He's doing nothing, managers are doing everything, but using his own, in the name of this proprietor. So soul is inactive, non-cooperating, but they're working on behalf of the soul - the ego - and soul as if he's in the side of them, apparently.

But if his interest, real interest inside is roused by another major soul who is connected with Paramātmā, with Bhagavān, then he'll find his own field there. He'll control the senses and utilise them in the service of the Lord. He'll say "For Itself. Everything for Kṛṣṇa, not for me...

84.01.25.B_84.01.26.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So it is justified that,

sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja
[ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ]

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

"Give up all your duties possible, and come to Me. Duty, good or bad, whatever you can conceive from your present position, give up everything, exhaustively, ungrudgingly, and straight come to Me, I'm everything to you." This is Kṛṣṇa consciousness. "You belong to Me, you are My property. Just as you think your slave, you can say that you are master of your slave, or anything, any property, so you are property or slave to Me."

And by that idea, that is the truth, and by accepting that truth you will live, die to live, you'll be gainer, you'll come in normal position. At present, abnormal position, you're suffering from thinking sham master of. 'I'm monarch of all I survey. I'm monarch of all I survey" That idea, that ego is the worst enemy to you.

Service in general, then there is scrutinizing service of different type, śanta, dāsya, sākhya, vātsalya, mādhurya. And that is also calculative, then spontaneous, in this way. And the hierarchy in the developed condition are there, the details are there. And in the mādhurya-rasa, Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi, written by...

Nīlamaṇi, nīlamaṇi, maṇi, Kṛṣṇa, nīlamaṇi. Maṇi means possessing wonderful potency, capacity, maṇi. Wonderful, inconceivable. The owner of inconceivable power, maṇi, which can produce any amount of gold, but it does not have any change in it, that is maṇi. And nīlamaṇi, the colour is blue, not detectable very easily. And ujjvala, ujjvala-rasa, that means mādhurya-rasa, ujjvala-rasa, another synonym for mādhurya. So nīlamaṇi, when in mādhurya-rasa, that is ujjvala-nīlamaṇi, ujjvala-rasa. Ujjvala-rasa, super fine; super, all surpassing. Bright, surpassing all brightness, the brightest, the brightest nīlamaṇi where we find Him in consorthood. Consorthood, and that also without any consideration of any law. Consorthood the autocrat. Autocrat consorthood; ujjvala-nīlamaṇi.

And what is His nature? How His līlā, His dealings? That is mention in a book written by Rūpa Goswāmī. And the name of the book has been given as Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi. And the first part of devotion in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu. From the beginning, beginning of an ordinary civilised life, a religious life, he has taken to śanta, dāsya, sākhya, vātsalya. The mādhurya-rasa, highest, that's in another book which is named Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi. Nīlamaṇi in its highest lustre. Ujjvala means lustre, highest lustre; that nīlamaṇi, in consorthood. And how is His characteristic, and how also He plays with His paraphernalia in the mādhurya- rasa, that has been described in details in Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi, that book named Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi.

Even the scholars, so called scholars of the literary department, they're dumbfound to find how that has been analysed so finely in this book, so finely and elaborately. Subtle points has been taken in, and in an organised way they have been distributed there, in that book.

Muhyanti yat sūrayaḥ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.1.1] The great scholars they become dumbfound when they come to such statements. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Muhyanti yat sūrayaḥ. Bhāgavata, the promise of Bhāgavatam in the beginning, in introduction, this warning, this caution is given to the scholars. "You'll all be dumbfound when you will have to come to this plane. No scholarship will flourish here. Muhyanti yat sūrayaḥ. Not ordinary, sūrayaḥ. The great scholars, they won't be bona fide to enter, they won't be considered fit to enter this plane, it is so mysterious to all. Only the surrendered souls they can understand and feel this. Outsiders, keeping them as a subjective enquirer, research member; they can't have any entrance here. It is superior, superior, subjective realm. Super-subjective realm.

Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. [08:35 - 10:05 ?]
Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.
Jaganda [?] Prabhu, that boy who come from ISKCON, how he's behaving?

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...first to go anywhere, and to enquire who is a religious man in this side, in this locality. And then to approach that so called religious man in the locality, then try to talk with him. Then if he's not sympathetic, then to enquire, 'Who are the persons you know who maybe sympathetic to this sort of learning and instructions?' To get some name, and then approach to them with some pamphlets or books or invitations, letter or something. And to invite him to the centre, and seek his sympathy. Because it is only for the, it's dependent on the collections of the public, religious public. In this way to begin, and to approach everyone and to try to get some few more names from them. Wherever we shall go, ABC, we shall ask them, 'Give some name known to you who has got such sympathetic mind towards such movement.' In this way, to the field, to extend the field, and then go. Some may be permanent subscriber, some may give some instalment help. In this way he will be known to the society and place and able to go on.

When Acyutānanda came here, after six months - nine months perhaps he stayed here. After six months I thought that I must utilise him. I sent him in a party to Calcutta for collection with other brahmacārīns. But Acyutānanda did not take part there. After reaching Howrah station he went to some place and when these people are returning anyhow he managed to join them, came here. Then, knowing about his manners, I asked him, "What do you want? You won't be utilised for any other centre except your Gurudeva?"

He answered straight. "Yes."

"Then, I shall recommend you to Mādhava Mahārāja. Go to Calcutta and stay there, and try to meet persons, they're educated English knowing people, and gradually you will create your field."

Then I asked that present ISCKON position, in that Vṛndāvana, between Dāmodara Mahārāja and Goswāmī Mahārāja, a vast land, you try to secure a land there. And he did that. And in the meantime Jayapatāka also came and both combined they secured a land there, and now this ISKCON has come.

So, he went according to my advice to Calcutta and began to see the capitalists, the advocates, the judges, securing their name and gradually began to canvass.

So as a beginner generally should do in that way. The heart within and God overhead. Unknown, everything is unknown. And to begin with, with heart within and God overhead, to approach anywhere, anything to be begun like that. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. [15:27 - 15:42 ?]

...

Depression, due to old age. So janma-mṛtyu-jarā-vyādhi [Bhagavad-gītā, 13.9]. Like disease, jarā, infirmity also like a disease, apparently. Hare Kṛṣṇa. In the beginning, when health it is all right, when one part can't work due to disease, other parts come to help him. But in jarā, infirmity, when one part is unable, than he requires help from another part, he also wants that, 'I want help from you.' So in jarā, infirmity, just the opposite, none approaches to help another part. So the whole organism succumbs.

Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura compared it to this Yadu-kula saṁvāda. They revolted against one another. When passing away they showed this practice. Before this every unit was helping another unit, but at the time of passing, everyone revolted against another. And showing this dramatic play and They went away, disappeared from this world.

This is the custom, or this is the fashion of this mundane world, the very nature. This is the very nature of this mundane creation, that at the time of greatest need everyone will deny his service, because he's in the same position. But just before when growing everyone comes to help another, and when going, then just the opposite. And the Yadu-kula showed this example to the world. That when going out this will be the nature of every unit. They won't approach, they'll demand a mutual help, but none will be able to supply. All in want of energy. The whole is withdrawn, the life is being withdrawn, energy is being withdrawn from backing, in general. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: But at heart, Guru Mahārāja, you're younger than all of us.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa. You feel like that. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

The grosser side becomes more, more attack by mortality, mortal influence. And inner side are less attacked. But only for the want of the cooperation of the lower side, the inner side cannot work in old age. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Mana, buddhi, intelligence, then soul. Soul is evergreen, it does not die. Soul, eternal, constant. So it is said in Upaniṣad and Gītā, if once we can find, we can meet our soul, then a diametrical change comes in our life. "Oh, so highly qualified things here I am. I was considering that this perishable body, this flickering mind. I'm there, dislocating my self there? They're all trespassers, and some anomic tendency. I'm soul, I have no necessity of all these things. Without that I can live. No food necessary from this jurisdiction. Independent. So wonderful existence I have got. In reality I'm so noble, so high, so good."

Diametrical change comes here, and he tries to enter. That is what is necessary; that we are soul and which is independent of matter. Then this atomic energy have nothing to do with us. We are such transcendental existence. The atomic threatening, or any other, no threatening. The lightning, the thunder, the earthquake, all troubles only limited to this body which is a foreign carcass, a foreign representation, a concocted representation of me, of mine. A proper my-self is there, in such high level. If we can really have a touch of that, our own identity, that soul independent of matter, then revolutionary change comes in his mind. Then his attempt to go upward becomes quite genuine.

Otherwise, it is suspicious, doubtful. "Yes, let us try, I'm hearing, of course, a good prospect, by intelligence I can follow something. Let us try." But hesitating progress. But when one comes to the plane of ones own soul, that "Here I am. Oh! Then all false conceptions so long like a dream, finished. I'm to start a new life, in the new prospectus, plane, to go up." In this way. And soul is nearby, we can try to find out, if we can eliminate this, follow the process of Upaniṣad and the Gītā.

manasas tu parā buddhir, buddher yaḥ paratas tu saḥ]

["The learned proclaim that the senses are superior to inert objects, the mind is superior to the senses, and the faculty of resolute intelligence is superior to the mind. And he who is superior to the intelligence is the soul himself."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.42]

First we're to understand that our senses are the all important. If senses are removed, all world of our experience is nothing to me. Only through senses the existence of the outside world is to me. Minus senses, eyes, ears, all these things, no world to me.

Then, what is the mind, saṅkalpa, vikalpa, I want this, I avoid this, I don't want this, rāga-dveṣa. Enemy, friend, this is mind. What is that in me? To enquire within, what is that element in me what seeks for friend and avoids enemy? Where is He? Is it in me? Sometimes it comes, then, otherwise it is hiding. I must find out where it does exist. My mind, by what substance it is made of? To try, to get, to approach, to analyse, all these things.

Then having some idea, then to go to the reason. Where is that reason? Mind demands something, reason says don't take that, don't eat that. What is that principle in me, that fine thing? What is its nature, existence? We shall try in our introspection to find it out substantially.

If that is possible, then the next, starting towards soul. What is that soul which makes possible the reason to act, mind to want, and also our senses to connect with things? That spark of knowledge, a drop of knowledge, where is that soul in me? What position does he hold? I want to see him face to face. Then in this way we can - if like lightning, a lightning touch he can come in introspection to the soul, then the whole world, the conception of the whole world will be turned diametrically in different light.

'So this is undesirable! These are undesirable, only thrust on me. So many enemies have come in the garb of friends, they're all enemies, anyhow entrapped them. And now they say unavoidable friendship with them, without that we can't live. But it's all hoax.'

Then from soul, the point of that wonderful knowledge. And the knowledge, the ocean of knowledge. And more efficient and efficient from the other side, in the subjective area, how to come in connection and associate with that. The very trend of life will be changed, and a total change will come in our search, in our standard of prospect in life. It will take the real shape, concrete shape of devotion. The search after the higher, higher sphere. The searching the higher and higher sphere, and how to enter there?

The opposite. Yes, Milton told, "It is better to reign in hell than serve in heaven." But we shall have experience of just the opposite. "It is better to serve in heaven than to reign in hell." The opposite. To serve in heaven it is highly superior than to reign in hell. Ha, ha.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

The question of energy is in the, is important in the mortal world, but in the constant, eternal world, this sort of energy has got no value. No value. That is eternal. It is a substance eternal, not trifling thing, always breaking, always disappearing, always disappointing. Not treachery, it is constant. Such thing is possible without feeding, without taking medicine, taking rest, thing can go on. The labour for to earn bread, then to get medicine, then leisure, all these things not necessary at all when things are of eternal value, permanent things. And all these problems at once eliminated at one stroke. Which is making us busy, madly busy, that will be, that can be eliminated at one stroke, easily and hatefully. Such is the plane. And I'm a member of that plane. Then what to do? That will be our problem, how to approach the higher realm?

We will read, "If you want to go, superior subject, then you will have to have a visa." That means you must be utilised by them. In other words slavery. Then, fine, finer, finer realm, you will have experience: more, more, fine, towards slavery, at the cost of slavery. But yes, mastership here in the mortal world, that is a curse, and slavery in that world, that is a boon. We'll be able to understand, experience.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. What do you say?

Devotee: If somebody has taken initiation from somebody who is not very much advance in spiritual life, is it possible for the disciple to surpass his Guru?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not so easily, but if very serious condition it may be allowed.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. All right, I take leave of you now.

...they brushed aside the undesirable things concerning enjoyment and renunciation, they're brush aside, cleansed. Hmm, what is the beginning he told?

Badrinārāyaṇa:

naṣṭa-prāyeṣu abhadreṣu, [nityaṁ bhāgavata-sevayā
bhagavaty uttama-śloke, bhaktir bhavati naiṣṭhikī]

["By regular attendance in classes on the Bhāgavatam and by rendering of service to the pure devotee, all that is troublesome to the heart is almost completely destroyed, and loving service unto the Personality of Godhead, Who is praised with transcendental songs, is established as an irrevocable fact."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.18]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Naṣṭa-prāyeṣu abhadreṣu. Abhadra means impure, undesirable. When they're going to be completely vanished, naṣṭa-prāyeṣu, when almost they have disappeared, at that stage.

Nityaṁ bhāgavata-sevayā. By our association, serving association with bhāgavata grantha and devotee. Sādhu and śāstra. Bhāgavata means bhāgavata samandhya, pertaining to Bhagavān, that is God, Kṛṣṇa. And that is bhāgavata śāstra, as well as bhāgavata means bhakta. Nityaṁ bhāgavata-sevayā.

Bhagavaty uttama-śloke, bhaktir bhavati naiṣṭhikī. Then, that niṣṭhā or nairantaja, that is the continuous connection with God consciousness comes out from within. The interrupting elements coming out of renunciation and enjoyment they vanish. And the continuous flow within, the connection with the Kṛṣṇa consciousness pure, that comes out. The covers vanishes. These are two covers: that is, exploiting tendency, as well as renouncing tendency.

bhukti-mukti-spṛhā yāvat, [piśācī hṛdi varttate
tāvad bhakti-sukhasyātra, katham abhyudayo bhavet]

["How can the joy of holy devotion appear in the heart as long as it is haunted by the ghosts of desire for exploitation and renunciation?"] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 2.22]

anyābhilāṣitā-śūnyaṁ, jñāna-karmādy-anāvṛtam
[ānukūlyena-kṛṣṇānu-śīlanaṁ bhaktir uttamā]

["One should render transcendental loving service to the Supreme Lord Kṛṣṇa favourably and without desire for material profit or gain through fruitive activities or philosophical speculation. That is called pure devotional service."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, 1.1.11] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19-167]

Karma and jñāna, the exploiting spirit, and jñāna means leading to liberation. That knowledge they're covers. They're not proper elements, a part within us, of our soul, of our real entity, they're only covers. Those, they're uncovered, and the continuous flow within, with Kṛṣṇa consciousness that comes out. Niṣṭhā, niṣṭhā means nairantaja, continuous.

ādau śraddhā tataḥ sādhu-saṅgo' tha bhajana-kriyā
tato' nartha-nivṛttiḥ syāt tato niṣṭhā rucis tataḥ
[athāsaktis tato bhāvas tataḥ premābhyudañcati
sādhakānām ayaṁ premṇaḥ prādurbhāve bhavet kramaḥ]

["In the beginning there must be faith. Then one becomes interested in associating with pure devotees. Thereafter one is initiated by the spiritual master and executes the regulative principles under his orders. Thus one is freed from all unwanted habits and becomes firmly fixed in devotional service. Thereafter, one develops taste and then attachment. This is the way of sādhana-bhakti, the execution of devotional service according to the regulative principles. Gradually spiritual emotions manifest and intensify, then finally there is an awakening of divine love. This is the gradual development of love of Godhead for the devotee interested in Kṛṣṇa consciousness."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, 1.4.15-16]

Niṣṭhā means nairantaja, continued. We can find out when the covers are driven, then we find that inner continuity of flow with Kṛṣṇa connection of us. That is, naiṣṭhikī bhakti appears. That is bhakti-bhāva, uttama-śloke, uttama-śloka, uttama, udgatan tamo yasmat. Where from the ignorance has been exhaustively eliminated. Uttama, by whose connection all sorts of ignorance, tāma means ajñāna, andhada, nescience, that has been completely driven out. _____ [?] Tāma means ignorance, nescience. That is completely cleared, cleansed. Bhaktir bhavati naiṣṭhikī. Then on the basis of niṣṭhā, that is the continuous flow, more progress in the positive side, asakti, then bhāva, then prema, in this way the inner aspect of devotion will gradually come out. And we shall be able to dive deep into reality. Which may be considered as death in the external world. Die to live. We shall enter into the inner side more and more. _____ [?]

...

Badrināràyaṇa: Prāyeṣu, he says that...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Prāyeṣu is gradually, nearly, almost.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Almost to nil. Why is it almost to nil?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Badrinārāyaṇa: Naṣṭa-prāyeṣu abhadreṣu.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Naṣṭa-prāyeṣu abhadreṣu.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Nityaṁ bhāgavata-sevayā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. Why not fully, he said?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Why not fully, yes, why not fully?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is gradually.

naṣṭa-prāyeṣu abhadreṣu, nityaṁ bhāgavata-sevayā
bhagavaty uttama-śloke, bhaktir bhavati naiṣṭhikī

The development, its description is given there, the gradual development. Naṣṭa-prāyeṣu. When such stage comes; when all the undesirabilities almost finish, then we can have a real peep into the thing. Just as when like the early morning, sun is not there but darkness dispelled. In morning the darkness has been removed but sun has not yet risen. Gradually. It is like that. Naṣṭa-prāyeṣu. At one stroke nothing can be finished. There is a process of sādhana, means to end. Gradually, slowly, according to the capacity of the devotee, his endeavour, his sādhana, gradually the development comes to appear. Naṣṭa-prāyeṣu. When all the, almost the darkness has been finished. I started for a particular place when almost the darkness disappeared, but sun not yet risen. Something like that. Naṣṭa-prāyu abhadra. Abhadra means...

Badrinārāyaṇa: Inauspiciousness.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhadra means gentle, abhadra means non-gentle, non-gentle symptoms. They all vanish. That is abnormal, abnormal and not gentleman-like tendencies. Exploitation is not gentleman-like, it is a mean attempt to exploit the environment, meanness. So abhadra, this is not gentleman-like. Non- gentlemanly like tendencies, gradually disappear, almost disappear, and we make further, further progress. It is like that. Not all of a sudden at one stroke everything is cleared, it is not. According to our bhajana, sādhana, our attempt, it will gradually, the undesirability will vanish, go away. And by different stages we shall reach the goal, passing different stages from higher to higher, higher to higher, in this way.

Ādau śraddhā tataḥ sādhu-saṅgo' tha bhajana-kriyā tato' nartha-nivṛttiḥ. This has been analysed by Rūpa Goswāmī and given that these are the steps. Ādau śraddhā tataḥ sādhu-saṅgo' tha bhajana-kriyā, tato' nartha-nivṛttiḥ, tato niṣṭhā. Niṣṭhā means continuous connection. Then, in the positive direction, after niṣṭhā, the negative side eliminated. When niṣṭhā came negative side eliminated, we come to abscissa, and then in the positive side we're to make progress.

Then āśakti, bhāva, prema. Within prema - sneha, mana, praṇaya, rāga, anurāga, bhāva, mahābhāva. In this way goes to the topmost place. Mahābhāva means Rādhārāṇī, which is never found anywhere. That intensity of bhakti, what is found in Her, that is not found anywhere, that is mahābhāva. Up to that, it will, it goes.

84.01.30.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...mostly of them had been turned, to another mood as to distribute to the public in a gradual process. The līlā pastimes there within the camp. And here, how that can be given to the public at large, entrance, admission into that līlā. That is in Navadwīpa, audārya, audār, generous, magnanimous. That is within the fold. And here, how it can be distributed to others in scientific way. That is the difference. Mādhurya, audārya, sweetness and sweetness mixed with generosity or magnanimity, sweetness, magnanimous. Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes. And Jagannātha Purī?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Purī, mainly Dvārakā and with modification also to accept the most fallen, specially through prasādam.

patita-pāvana jagannātha sarvveśvara, vṛndāvana-candra sarvva-rasera ākara

["Lord Kṛṣṇa is the purifier of the fallen souls, the Lord of the universe, the Lord of all beings, the moon of Vṛndāvana and the origin of all rasas."] [The Songs Of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, p 92]

In Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's, the 108 names of Kṛṣṇa he's writing in this way. Dvārakā līlā adjusted to recruit the most fallen. And afterwards they may be member in Vṛndāvana. Both mixed, Dvārakā līlā and Navadwīpa līlā mixed. Patita-pāvana here also and in Purī also, but here Vrndavana and Navadwīpa, and there Dvārakā and Navadwīpa. And Vṛndāvana suppressed there. When He comes to that Guṇḍicā, there the connection of Vṛndāvana expresses itself. Otherwise in the temple that is Dvārakā.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Parivrājaka Mahārāja: Guru Mahārāja. The verse vṛndāvanaṁ parityajya sa kvacit naiva gacchati, that Kṛṣṇa never leaves Vṛndāvana, so how is that we understand the other manifestations of Kṛṣṇa, in Mathurā, in - that is different Kṛṣṇa?

[kṛṣṇo ʻnyo yadu-sambhūto yaḥ pūrṇaḥ so ʻstyataḥ paraḥ vṛndāvanaṁ parityajya sa kvacit naiva gacchati dvibhujaḥ sarvadā so ʻtra na kadacit caturbhūjaḥ gopyaikayā yutas tatra parikīḍati nityadā]

["The Kṛṣṇa known as Yadu-kumāra is Vāsudeva Kṛṣṇa. He is different from the Kṛṣṇa who is the son of Nanda Mahārāja. Yadu-kumāra Kṛṣṇa manifests His pastimes in the cities of Dvārakā and Mathurā, but Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the son of Nanda Mahārāja never at any time leaves Vṛndāvana, even for a moment. That original Personality of Godhead Kṛṣṇa who is Svayaṁ-Bhagavān always manifests two arms. He never manifests four arms. He is always by the right hand side of the foremost of gopīs, Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī, and He never leaves Vṛndāvana."] [Laghu-Bhāgavatāmṛta, Pūrva-khaṇḍa, 165] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 7.42]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Svayaṁ-Rūpa, the most original conception of Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa in His highest degree He's Svayaṁ-Rūpa, only in relation with Rādhārāṇī. Then Prakāśa-Vilāsa, next grade Prabhāva- Prakāśa, with other gopīs. Vaibhava-Prakāśa Balarāma, and Prabhāva-Prakāśa other Kṛṣṇa - Kṛṣṇa when He's cooperating with other gopīs than Rādhikā. He's always confined in Vṛndāvana. When Kṛṣṇa is going to Mathurā, two-handed, He's equal to Vṛndāvana Balarāma. When four-handed sometimes in Mathurā then He's Vaibhava-Vilāsa. In this way Kṛṣṇa has been, as if the measurement in Kṛṣṇa. The Kṛṣṇa Svayaṁ-Rūpa and Prabhāva-Prakāśa and Vaibhava-Prakāśa, these three phases of Kṛṣṇa is confined only to Vṛndāvana, nowhere else. Not Dvārakā or Mathurā. But when He comes as Mahāprabhu it's sometimes Gaura-Nārāyaṇa when inaugurating saṅkīrtana in general. But when engaged in union in separation of the intensity of Rādhārāṇī, that is that Svayaṁ-Bhagavān Kṛṣṇa. Anywhere connecting with Rādhārāṇī, Svayaṁ-Bhagavān, highest degree. Highest degree of serving entity in Rādhikā, and highest degree of recipient of that service in Svayaṁ-Bhagavān Kṛṣṇa. Positive and Negative in its extreme conception, then coming in lower degree, power, deviation.

Devotee: So when Mahāprabhu was performing saṅkīrtana, that was not _____?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mahāprabhu's saṅkīrtana in general He's not Svayaṁ-Bhagavān: Yuga-Avatāra, duty of Yuga-Avatāra. This is sometimes Kṣīrodakaśāyī. But in one day of Brahmā, aṣṭāviṁśa, the twenty eighth day of Brahmā, Svayaṁ-Bhagavān Kṛṣṇa comes as Mahāprabhu. And He gives us the highest degree of separation mentality. How it will be, Svayaṁ-Bhagavān Kṛṣṇa, His separation by Rādhārāṇī, mutual separation how it can be? Here He comes to teach that. Not in all Kali-yuga but only aṣṭāviṁśa catur-yuge, twenty eighth Kali-yuga, He comes, Kṛṣṇa Himself. In other ages of Kali comes generally to inaugurate Nāma saṅkīrtana. Of course whose end is to Vṛndāvana līlā. But Vraja līlās connection in separation that is not interfered or handled with here in Navadwīpa, in all Kali-yuga no. Only once in Brahmā's one day, sahasra-yuga, or aṣṭadas-manu, aṣṭāviṁśa catur-yuge, twenty eighth Kali. Four yuga of our calculation, that makes one deva-yuga, and such thousand deva-yuga, that makes one day of Brahmā. And twenty eight such deva-yuga, Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa combined Mahāprabhu comes.

[aṣṭāviṁśa catur-yuge dvāparera śeṣe, vrajera sahite haya kṛṣṇera prakāśe]

["At the end of the Dvāpara-yuga of the twenty-eighth divya-yuga, Lord Kṛṣṇa appears on earth with the full paraphernalia of His eternal Vraja-dhāma."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 3.10]

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. In the Satya-yuga was there different classification of races of mankind, or was there just one race?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In the beginning of first catur-yuga there are only two races, haṁsa, paramahaṁsa. Then from the beginning of Tretā this catur-yuga came, brāhmaṇa, kṣatriya, vaiśya, śūdra. Hence, it is going on in that way. Paramahaṁsa and haṁsa. The Rajaput kṣatriya here, generally called the hun, hans, and the Germans they're also called huns. "Furious Frank and fiery Huns." Hans means haṁsa _____ [?] That may come, the original word may be haṁsa. Haṁsa, paramahaṁsa.

The most original race in India. When India did not spread out that time so far, but it was on the top of the Himālaya. Himālaya was not so high previously. It is rising and rising. Previously Himālaya was lower, and Himālaya rising area and India also increasing from the seashore, and men are coming this side.

Then we find in Bhāgavatam during the reign of Ambarīṣa Mahārāja, always sacrifices, hundred at least; that was, that took place on the banks of Sarasvatī. And the Sarasvatī river we find near Badarikāśrama. Sarasvatī is flowing, entering into Ganges near Badarikāśrama. So during the reign of Ambarīṣa, the Sarasvatī, two sides of Sarasvatī, that was inhabited by the main people of India. That was lower, habitable. Now, there is higher, more cold, and people are coming down to this side.

So, and the Caspian Sea, they say that it is Kaśyapa-rāja, Kaśyapa. Kaśyapa was the father of the gods, this worldly gods. As the Caspian Sea is supposed to have some, his home there.

And Swāmī Mahārāja is of the opinion that by the pressure of Paraśurāma, Who was about to do away with the kṣatriyas, some of the kṣatriyas fled towards Europe - the Germans are of that stock. He told like that somewhere. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Huns, at least they're of similar mentality with Indians, near mentality.

When Hitler in his time, he ordered two things revolutionary. "Ask the ladies to go home and give good sons and they'll be rewarded." Another, he ordered sterilisation of the diseased persons. "I want good children in Germany, not for any sensual pleasure. I can help. I cannot give indulgence. And marriage not for sense pleasure, it is to produce good children. I want that. You ladies, go home, give me good children, I shall reward you." And that sterilisation.

I had talk with, in Karachi I was at that time preaching in Karachi. There was one Englishman, perhaps district magistrate, I had a hot discussion with him. I supported Hitler at that time. We like this, praja- naschasmi-kandarpa, a marriage only to produce good children, not for sense satisfaction. It is Indian type of thought.

"So Germany should be filled up by good children and not rubbish." But he used them anyhow only for fighting purposes. And his nature to, his dealings towards Jews, that also cannot be tolerated, we hear, very cruel. But that was the reaction of the first great war. In the time of Kaiser the Jews, they betrayed Kaiser we were told. So Hitler he wanted to eliminate them from Germany anyhow for that previous betrayal. We were told like that. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Thousands of years ago, what was the Vedic influence in continents like China, Russia, or Africa, or Australia, other countries?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Some influence we find from the Mahābhārata and other previous books. We're told that Dhaumya, who was the priest of the Pāṇḍavas, he came from China. So Chinese also came to Vedavyāsa, Vyāsadeva, for the study of the Vedas, we can conjecture from that.

Vedic, Veda means revealed truth. And the revelation according to the, in accordance with the capacity of the recipient. Recipient in different parts of the world, their capacity, revealed truth. But anyhow India was selected the main place of revelation. The first religious book in the world we're told, as the modern scholars say, that the Ṛg-Veda is considered to be the oldest book, religious book in the world, they say. But our tradition is that the religious connection in India is from the most ancient time.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. In Manu-saṁhitā we find, Brahma-varta, Brahma-asidesh, Ārya-varta [?] First Brahma-varta, that north-west part of India, that was the centre of Vedic culture. High centre near Badarikāśrama or so. Kurukṣetra, Punjab, that is within, Brahma-varta. Then Brahma-asidesh, up to Allahabad, Prayāga, Gaṅgā- Yamunā confluence. Then Ārya-varta, the whole of Northern India. Afterwards Vedic culture went towards south, after Agastya Ṛṣi it is told. They're Dravidians, they're Tamil Veda, they respect more that Tamil Veda than this Sanskrit Veda. Tamil language and Arabic language have similarity. So Tamil had connection with Arab, and we're told that the mahadvesa, that the land is floating in the sea.

We're told that America was connected with Africa, and by some earthquake or so they separated. They say that there are trees that are found on the west side of Africa and the eastern side of America. And also the shape of the land like that; and there are also some mountains, hills, and half part broken this side Africa, half part on the American side. The Atlantic came out in the middle by some earthquake, and separated America and Africa. They've told like that.

And in mythology we find that Moon and Mars, they came out of the Earth.

divya shankatusa dharmam kirodavarna sambhavam [?]

The Moon, some modern scholars also say, the Moon was in some part of Pacific ocean. And that is _____ [?] by some explosion or so, like rocket send a portion, so the island it put like sputnik towards the sky. And now that is Moon. And dharani garbha sambhutam [?] We find in the praising song of this mangala, Mars, that the Mars is born from this Earth. It is mentioned in Purāṇa, in India, Indian Purāṇa.

Dharani garba sambhutam, vidyat punya samat plavam [?]

Its lustre is like mass of lightening. The Mars also born from Earth, and the Moon also a part of the Earth, from the sea it might have been an island here. These are the mythological references, when they say that we're floating, the country or land floating on the sea.

So, dharamanga sanstan [?], at the time of Śukadeva, he's giving in Bhāgavatam the description of this land in the Earth. That is not according to the present geography, so some say that is all false. But it's not fixed thing this land conception, not a fixed thing. That has been, by some modern scholar it has been ascertained: it's all floating. Sometimes going away, and sometimes coming near.

But my position is all subjective evolution. The shower is there. We have no independent position. We're holding relative positions in all conceptions of knowledge. Like hypnotist, as He shows us we have to see that, helplessly. Helplessly.

Even the eclipse. Soni, the Saturn has been expressed in mythology, that Saturn is the son of the Sun. Sūrya-putra, the child of the Sun. Saturn. Then, so many reference about the planets. Then eclipse, lunar eclipse, chayaya garbha sambhutam [?] Soni, the Saturn, has been told to be come out of the chaya, shadow. Sun and shadow. Father is sun, and mother is shadow. From there sprang out this planet Saturn. Chayaya garbha sambhutam, vande bhutva samescaram [?] And some divine quality is there to be traced in Saturn: it has been told somewhere. And as I was going to say, that eclipse, lunar eclipse, solar eclipse. What is that? The materialist will say that one comes between and can't see as material body of the other come in between. But in the highest spiritual sense, that is a part of our experience. A magician may show many things like that. So that is also subjective. Subjective evolution can show us anything and everything, as He wishes. The whole is designed and destined by the Absolute. Designed as well as destined. And the key is always in His hand.

Divya-rūpa in Bhagavad-gītā, Kṛṣṇa showed Arjuna different types of His expression. It is all true, like hypnotism. The hypnotism, that is a form of science: rather, the highest layer of science. As the higher subject wants to see, to show the lower subject, lower subject is compelled to see that only, not anything else. All objective experience is dependant on subjective existence, and subjective existence depends on the sweet will of the highest, Who can design and destine. So root of everything is to be searched from the absolute cause, prime cause of the universe. And He's free, and He has got His sweet will, līlā. As He likes, not responsible for anything. Responsible by law; but law is coming out of Him. He's master of law, creator of law, He's Autocrat.

So, we're told the autocrat is loving. There is love, affection. So appeal to that side. Give up everything, appeal to the sweet Autocrat. Prepare yourself to live under the rule of the sweet Autocrat. We must prepare ourselves for that sort of life. He's the master in all respects, but He's sweet, He's good. Not that we shall go home, sweet, sweet home, we will be autocrat there. Of course, a sort of autocracy is also there, just as a son, he may claim to his mother, 'I won't do this, you must do this.' That is also relatively true, but ultimately we should be prepared to the life, real life, under the guidance of the Autocracy. But we must not be afraid of hearing the name of Autocracy, because He's all good, all affection, all love. The fact is this. He does not care for us. But, He's not dependant on us, but we're His part, His servants, then we can stay there comfortably. Not coming in clash with Him, either by the force of knowledge, or by dint of any acquired power, we must not go to challenge the environment. But we shall try to read the environment coming from such a friendly route.

The whole teaching amounts to this, that we shall try our best to find the environment friendly to us, affectionate to us. And if we can change our mood in that way, we shall find that really it is so. Only our whimsical temperament creates quarrel and difference; otherwise it is all good. To correct yourself, not the environment. Environment is not to be blamed, correct yourself. Everything is meant for good to you. It is so designed that everything is good for everyone. Only misreading internal spirit that is coming from a vulnerable free will; that is the cause of all nescience, that ego, so,

kṣīyante cāsya karmāṇi, mayi dṛṣṭe 'khilātmani]

When that ego is dissolved, the ego of your special favouritism dissolved, the flow, inner flow will come and select his own soil. 'Yes, quite happy.' The consciousness of separate interest, if that ego dissolves, then the flow will come, that is, bhidyate means that seal is broken of the heart, seal, heart sealed. And the universal heart within us is sealed by the separate interest, and the hṛd that is broken. The natural flow from the heart will come and find a plane of its own home, then everything will be clear. All difficulties will be removed. Chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ. "Oh, this is my home, I want nothing else." No doubt, no suspicion. Positive knowledge is possible only at that time. And, kṣīyante cāsya karmāṇi, all obligations, relative difficulties will vanish. We're told like that. That ego, that the consciousness of separate interest. In different persons, different society, different groups - the tree, the bird, they are so many, infinite number of self-interest ego. When they dissolve totally everything is all right. Separate interest, provincial interest. Identify you with the whole, and live in the interest of the whole.

That is, and there also, separate interest, separate unit is possible, in that plane also, that is in Vaikuṇṭha, Vṛndāvana. So many egos there, but they're eternal and in the interest of the Universal wave - that ego. And this ego, our created ego, created by the interest of our special freedom, a consciousness of separatism, that is another, this world. And in the middle, the renunciation, and then the positive participation in the interest of the universal plane. There are also so many egos. That inner ego of this whole, that is to be, that will be there, won't be broken. Individuality has not been sacrificed to be a non-differentiated infinite mass, like Brahman, where ego cannot be traced. Ego, negative ego is found this side, and positive ego is found on the other side. Only in the middle, in the margin, there is no ego. Ākṣara, kūṭastho 'kṣara ucyate. The marginal line.

[dvāv imau puruṣau loke, kṣaraś cākṣara eva ca / kṣaraḥ sarvāṇi bhūtāni, kūṭastho 'kṣara ucyate uttamaḥ puruṣas tv anyaḥ, paramātmety udāhṛtaḥ / yo loka-trayam āviśya, bibharty avyaya īśvaraḥ]

["In this world, there are two kinds of souls: the fallible and the infallible. All beings from Lord Brahmā down to the lowest stationary life-forms are known a fallible (as they have deviated from their intrinsic nature). But the personalities who are eternally situated in their divine nature are known as infallible (personal associates of the Lord)."] ["But totally distinct from both these types of souls, there is a Supreme Person who is known as Paramātmā, the Supersoul. He is the Supreme Lord. Entering into the three worlds in His eternal form, He maintains all beings in the universe."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.16-17]

But this ego of separate interest is painful, and that ego engaged in the service of the Absolute, in the same tune; that is desirable in different groups. This is Vaiṣṇava dharma, in the serving. In the serving plane, the part of the serving plane, there is also ego, fair ego; and here is unfair ego. We're to understand that principle. Plurality is not to be blamed, but plurality in harmony, that is desirable. And fighting with one another in different groups, or in different personal interest, that is bad. The pastimes requires plurality, unity and plurality pastimes. But must be in consonance, all must be faithful to the highest, and not competitive, work in competition with the highest.

"I am monarch of all I survey. It is better to reign in hell than to serve in heaven."

These maxims have created difficulty. Nitāi.

[pārtha naiveha nāmutra, vināśas tasya vidyate]
na hi kalyāṇa-kṛt kaścid, durgatiṁ tāta gacchati

["O Arjuna, son of Kuntī, the unsuccessful yogī does not suffer ruination either in this life or the next. He is not deprived of the pleasures of the heavenly planetary systems in this universe, nor is he denied the chance to personally see the Supersoul in the divine realm. This is so, O dear one, because a person who performs virtuous actions never becomes ill-fated."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 6.40]

What is good that...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Badrinārāyaṇa: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All right. Nitāi. Our Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi prabhu is silent. Where is he?

Ujjvala-maṇi [?]: Here. Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam is coming down from Goloka Vṛndāvana. But then why, what is the importance of so much detailed information about the universe, this land, and this planet?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: They're suiting us, that it may suit us. Just as our Tīrthapāda says that 'I'm using intoxication only to mix with the people that are prey to intoxication.'

yad yad ācarati śreṣṭhas, tad tad evetaro janaḥ [sa yat pramāṇaṁ kurute, lokas tad anuvartate]

["The general masses imitate the ways of great men. They follow whatever the great personality accepts as the right conclusion."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.21]

The Kṛṣṇa, He came here and He also lived like us. What was the necessity? That to be one of us, and it will be favourable for Him to preach amongst us, if He accepts our customs.

So Bhāgavatam, there are so many stories about this mundane world. It is only to make that acceptable for us. By the examples and by the stories, to attract our attention and to help our understanding, and that has been dealt in that way, in Purāṇa.

In Veda, reveal scriptures of the original type; they do not take any such help. Command, "Do this." Why? What for? No mention. Just as the command of the army commander. "Do this." No rhyme and reason. This is Veda.

And the Purāṇa, Purāṇa type of advices, like it has been compared like a friend. "Oh, this one, that was a particular man. He did in this way and he got such benefit. You do, you'll also get." In a friendly line Purāṇa comes to advise us.

And Smṛti, bhagni, just as sister to the brother, she requests something. So Śruti śāstra, in our daily life is mixed there advices of the Vedas. "Eat this; don't eat this. Don't go there; do this." All these things, like a sister, affectionate sister, Smṛti comes to advise us.

And the Kavya, the epic, also here, like a wife, affectionate wife, in a sweet tone comes to help us. "Do this; don't do this, I request, never go there." All these things.

So Veda is commanding. Purāṇa is friendly. Smṛti is sisterly. And the Kavya as if from an affectionate wife, very sweet way it wants to advise us for our good.

So Bhāgavata is Purāṇa, but Bhāgavata has been called not only Purāṇa, but it has got signs of many things. Satati Śruti. Bhāgavata has been told, Śruti, Veda. Sometimes commanding like Veda. Then it has been told Itihāsa.

sarva-vedetihāsānāṁ, sāraṁ sāraṁ samuddhṛtam

[" 'The essence of all Vedic literature and all histories has been collected in Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam.']

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 25.145]

It has got also the symptom of the Purāṇa, Mahā-Purāṇa. Then Smṛti. Evam nrinam kriyam yoga [?] How the daily practices should be God-ward, it has been mentioned like Smṛti. Vede kriya yoga sarvesam [?] Smṛti, tantra. And also, Śruti, Purāṇa, Smṛti, and, another something. So combination of many types of scriptures and advices we find in Bhāgavatam. As if Purāṇa is describing, relating the story of many persons, the Prahlāda, this, that; to help us accepting the path of devotion. In this way, from all sides.

So Jīva Goswāmī, when he has accepted Bhāgavata only as the authentic basis of his writings, he has proved all these things. "Why I have accepted Bhāgavatam to be the only guiding śāstra, scripture? Because Bhāgavatam has got all these signs. It plays the part of Śruti, Smṛti, Purāṇa, Tantra, everything is found in Bhāgavatam; so I have accepted Bhāgavatam."

Jīva Goswāmī has mentioned evidence of ten kinds. Pratyakṣa, anumāṇa, inference and the experience, so many analogies, ten kinds of evidence. Then eliminating, showing defect to all other points, only accepted revealed truth and artha vakya.

Then he has come, "What are the sources of this revealed truth and artha and this Veda, Purāṇa?" In this way. And he has accepted, "If we get, why Purāṇa? Veda is very difficult to understand. So with the help of the Purāṇa, that is the interpretation of the Vedic genius, we shall take their help. In this way, we find in one book, only in Bhāgavatam, all of these symptoms."

So Bhāgavatam should be the basis of all our arguments and enquiries, Jīva Goswāmī told. In Sat- Sandarbha, or Bhāgavata-Sandarbha, he has taken from Bhāgavatam and put the whole thing in a logical way. Thus - Tattva-Sandarbha, there he deals epistemology, what will be proof and non-proof? To analyse, what should be the real authority, real proof. And not any tale or any fable. What will be, that has been dealt in Tattva-Sandarbha - the first part of Sat-Sandarbha. Then the second,

[vadanti tat tattva-vidas, tattvaṁ yaj jñānam advayam]
brahmeti paramātmeti, bhagavān iti śabdyate

["Learned transcendentalists who know the Absolute Truth call this non-dual substance Brahman, Paramātmā or Bhagavān."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.11]

Brahmā-Sandarbha is called Bhāgavata-Sandarbha. Paramātmā-Sandarbha. And what is Bhāgavata- Sandarbha, that is Kṛṣṇa-Sandarbha. These three and epistemology are the four, and one is Bhakti-Sandarbha - means to end. And then the last is Priti-Sandarbha, the object of our life. That is prema, love, what is love. He has dealt with all these six things very scientifically.

Tattva-Sandarbha, that is "What is the guarantee that I shall say that will be true?" That has been dealt there. Mana means epistemology in English, epistemology. What is right what is wrong, how to know, the discussion about that. Epistemology. Truth and falsehood, how to know, how to differentiate, what is the guarantee there? Then he takes Brahman - all accommodating aspect; then Paramātmā - all permeating aspect; then Bhagavān, Kṛṣṇa, that is the object of our life. What are we searching for? What is the object? What for the whole movement is meant? Bhāgavata, bhajanīya. There is some substance which attracts naturally our service. We like to serve Him; such is His personality. Such personality, such thing, such substance is in existence, that attracts our service naturally from the core of our hearts. That is Bhāgavata-Sandarbha.

Then Bhakti-Sandarbha, how to reach there. And Priti-Sandarbha, what is the highest attainment? What is the reward in our life, highest reward, fulfilment of our life? In this scientific way he has dealt the whole thing, in Sat-Sandarbha, Bhāgavata-Sandarbha. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Did Vyāsadeva write all the Vedic literature. The Upaniṣads...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. Vyasadeva has compiled. Vedavivag, making adjustment: Ṛg, Yajur, Sāma, Atharva, he only grouped. This will be Ṛg-Veda. This Sāma-Veda. This Yajur-Veda, meaning the sacrifice. Sāma-Veda, this chanting. And Atharva-Veda, this ordinary, some mundane things about the _____ [?]

Badrinārāyaṇa: Treatment.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The physician-ism, then this astrology, something mundane; what we may think, comes from - that forms a part of the Veda, that is Atharva-Veda. And Yajur-Veda is sacrifice mainly. And Sāma-Veda in singing mainly, chanting. And the Ṛg-Veda, very short sentences of advice direct, without rhyme or reason. "Do this. Do this. Do this." Just as a father says to his young child, without rhyme and reason. "O you boy, do this; do this." Father or mother, the guardian, gives suggestion to the small young child. Ṛg-Veda, generally deals like that. And Vyāsadeva has compiled them; separated in four groups.

Devotee: Did Vyāsadeva compiled the Upaniṣads also?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Upaniṣads are also a part of the Veda, tirobagh [?] what deals mainly about knowledge. Not about sacrifice of any practices, but discussing about intellectualism. Intellectual dealing of the Veda, that is in Upaniṣad. Jñāna-pradhāna, mainly dealing about knowledge, analysis of knowledge. And not practices of yajña, and what you will eat, what you will not eat; not all these things, but only discussion about knowledge. And this,

sarvopaniṣado gāvo, dogdhā gopāla-nandanaḥ
[pārtho vatsaḥ sudhīr-bhoktā, dugdhaṁ gītāmṛtaṁ mahat]

["All the Upaniṣads are like a cow, and the milker of the cow is Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the son of Nanda. Arjuna is the calf, the beautiful nectar of the Gītā is the milk, and the fortunate devotees of fine theistic intellect are the drinkers and enjoyers of that milk."]

["All the Upaniṣads are the cow personified, and the cowherd boy Śrī Kṛṣṇa is their milker. The son of Pṛthā is the calf personified, this ambrosia of the Gītā is the super-excellent milk, and the highly intelligent virtuous souls are its tasters."]
[Śrīmad Bhagavad-gītā, The Hidden Treasure of the Sweet Absolute. Page 331 and 332]

And the Gītā is the gist of all the Upaniṣads given by Kṛṣṇa. The substance of all the Upaniṣads is given in Bhagavad-gītā. Sarvopaniṣado gāvo. As if all the Upaniṣads are like a cow. Dogdhā gopāla-nandanaḥ. And the Kṛṣṇa, gopāla-nandanaḥ, the cowherd boy, He's milking the cow, Upaniṣad. And finding this milk, and the scholars they're drinking, in this way. And Arjuna is like a calf. Arjuna, the calf put into the udder. Arjuna is the cause of drawing the water into the udder like calf. And Kṛṣṇa is milking. And the scholars are drinking. And the cow is representing the Upaniṣad. In this way they've been figuratively presented in Bhagavad-gītā, chanting this praise of Bhagavad-gītā-Māhātmyam. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Devotee: Sometimes you use the expression 'light year'. Does that means you accept what is behind or is it just example?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. Light year. When we're, from jñāna śūnya bhakti we come to jñāna, individual knowledge. When from intelligence we come to mind. From mind we come to the experience of the five things: the earth, water, air, ether, all these, heat, fire, all these things, they all come from mind, when coming towards gross side. And when pralaya enters, then whole thing enters into mind. And when the creation, creation from the fine things these gross things are evolved. When, from the mind the gross things are evolved, then comes two things: the deṣa and the kāla. What helps us to understand coexistence, that is space; and succession, that is time. Helps us, the knowledge of succession, there we find the basis as time, kāla. And coexistence generally, that is space, deṣa, kāla. And the thinker is pātra, person. The subject, the space, and time, when we come to experience the, come down to the world of experience. But time is, it has got relative position. We're human beings, our experience of time is something else. There are so many insects, that in our one hour their hundred generations is passing away. They - our second may seem to them one year. And in the Brahmaloka, Brahmā in the similar mentality.

sahasra-yuga-paryantam, ahar [yad brahmaṇo viduḥ
rātriṁ yuga-sahasrāntāṁ, te 'ho-rātra-vido janāḥ]

["A day of Lord Brahmā lasts for one thousand catur-yugas and his night is of the same duration. Persons who know this have the true conception of day and night."] [One yuga (age) in the time calculation of the demigods = the four yugas or one catur-yuga in the time calculation of mankind, or 4,320,000 years.]

[Bhagavad-gītā, 8.17]

Our thousand yugas consist one day. So relative position, of time and space. According to our capacity, our jurisdiction of the vision, and jurisdiction of the hearing, we find a great portion. But who has got more fine sight, and more fine hearing, they will find our position very small. And there are also so many worms, they can see and they can hear very little, they'll find their world only very less. So, what was your point?

Devotee: Time. If you accept the conception behind the expression 'light year'?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Light year. So, light-year means, the speed of lightning that is in a second, it goes to seventy five hundred miles or something like that in a second. And that light-year, in a year, how much it can go? That is light-year. So the speed of light is very high, so there are things which cannot be measured by inch, foot and all these things; light-year has been taken as the standard of measurement of the distance. Lightning, speed of light is in a second so much, and in a year, how much distance it will cover? So, twelve years light-year, that start is twelve years, light-year. That, how much distance will be in my calculation? The second, then in hour, how much distance covered? Then in a day, then in a month, in a year; that lightning speed can go how far? That has been taken, just as millimetre, metre, then kilometre; in this way for our convenience we use small and big. That also in the factor of time, and also space, bigger things and smaller things used for our convenience. That is a technical word, light-year. Light-year, the greatest standard to measure the distance.

Now, the present modern scientists say there, the measurement of distance of the highest type is in light-year terms. That is a material thing. But infinite, of the distance of any amount of light-year, it is only a part in the infinite, a smallest part of the infinite. Infinite cannot be reached in this, by the measurement of light-year, where everywhere is centre, nowhere circumference. So light-year cannot give any idea of infinite. Who is everywhere, in His case light-year is failure.

Once, when first I came to this side, some religious tendency, one of my advocate cousins, to discourage me from the way of religious life, he told that one gentleman he came from the Brahmo society and he gave a lecture. And there he mentioned that "There are light-year is so. So many stars at the distance of so many light-years; such is the conception of the infinite. And there are more stars whose light has not yet reached here in this earth. So infinite is how big? And we are small, a smallest part of the infinite. If there is any God, has He got any time to think about us? So, give up all those mania." Ha, ha. He wanted to say. "If there is any God at all, has He got any time to give His attention to the smallest part in the world?"

Then I answered him, "Can you say where there is no God? Is there any space where there is no God?" He was silenced. "He's everywhere. He's beyond infinite, and He's in every atom, present in every atom. Can you say that, 'This place is non-God?' Everywhere He is." Tad dūre tad v antike.

[tad ejati tan naijati, tad dūre tad v antike tad antar asya sarvasya, tad u sarvasyāsya bāhyataḥ]

["The Supreme Lord walks and does not walk. He is far away, but He is very near as well. He is within everything, and yet He is outside of everything."] [Śrī Īśopaniṣad, 5]

He's nearest and He's farthest, both eternally is He. So everywhere, all attention, it is He, and nowhere.

mayā tatam idaṁ sarvaṁ, jagad avyakta-mūrtinā
mat-sthāni sarva-bhūtāni, na cāhaṁ teṣv avasthitaḥ.

["In an unmanifest manner, I pervade this entire universe, and everything conceivable is situated within Me - and yet, I am not situated within that total entity."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.4]

"I'm everywhere, I'm nowhere. Everything in Me, nothing in Me. Try to find out My peculiar position, what am I? I'm independent; though I'm everywhere - all pervading, still I'm independent."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. So here I close.

...

Devotee: ...in ajñāta sukṛti, and then goes to jñāta sukṛti, then to sādhu saṅga.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Śraddhā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Mahārāja, he's asking if the path of devotion begins from ajñāta sukṛti, to jñāta sukṛti, to śraddhā, sādhu saṅga.

Devotee: So the question is, I heard from Viraha Prakāśa Mahārāja that there are anarthas or obstacles in the path of chanting Hare Kṛṣṇa. So I asked him about these anarthas and he's telling me that he really doesn't know, and I'll have to make the question unto your feet.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Anartha-nivṛtti.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Separated interest, separate cause. Kṛṣṇa consciousness is causeless, that is, no beginning, and apratihatā, that is, no end. No beginning, no end. The central flow, or vibration, or wave, or any separate interest, consciousness, that is anartha. Artha means necessity, what is not my necessity, but posing to be necessity by separate, based on separated consciousness, interest - that is anartha. To get out of the trap of separate interest that is misleading, and to learn to have the infinite reading, reading of the infinite. That is what is necessary; to identify with the universal flow, universal wave. But we're carried out by different waves of separated interest consciousness. That is anartha, which is not necessary for us. Only necessity, to merge in the wave of universal interest. It is for Itself, for Himself.

ahaṁ hi sarva-yajñānāṁ, bhoktā ca prabhur eva ca
[na tu mām abhijānanti, tattvenātaś cyavanti te]

["-Because I alone am the enjoyer and rewarder of all sacrifices. But since they cannot know Me in this way, they again undergo birth, disease, infirmity, and death."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.24]

"I'm the only enjoyer of all these sacrifices or movements in this world. I'm the only enjoyer and everything belongs to Me, unconditionally."

That is, God's position is such, He's paramount, and the highest harmonizing centre.

And we must all submit cent percent to Him. Any deviation from that, that is anartha. Anartha means meaningless, which has got no meaning. Meaning, purpose serving, is only to have that universal wave, have connection with the universal movement. Anything besides that, that is anartha, apra-yojaniya, undesirable, unnecessary. It will serve no purpose, anartha. We're in connection of anartha, the undesirable things, which won't serve any real purpose to my cause.

My real cause, cause of my life, my satisfaction of my existence will be found only in the connection of the universal wave of the whole absolute. That is Kṛṣṇa consciousness, the most universal, fundamental wave. We have to catch that. There our goal, our satisfaction, the fulfilment of our life is only to be found there, in that layer, that plane. Not this superficial plane of nationality, or family interest, or social service, all these are provincialism.

And to stop ones own movement, that is samādhi, to do away with his own existence, that is also suicidal, renunciation. We're to give up enjoyment as well as renunciation. Evil doing and also strike, both to be given up. In a nation, so many workers, they're doing something wrong against the principle of the law; that is bad, not law abiding, hooliganism, that is also bad. At the same time to go on strike, won't work, no work, that is also bad.

Only to work in the interest of the country, that is good. From this we're to learn, from local we must go to universal interest, for the absolute. Not any local interest, however greater it be in magnitude. Self-centred, or family-centred, or village-centred, or province-centred, or humanitarianism, anything, that is a part of the infinite. So we're to understand things in general way, it is such. The technical words: anartha-nivṛtti, bhāva, āśakti, all these, all covers; covered by this understanding. Do you follow, No?

Devotee: Yes.

Another Devotee: Mahārāja. Why does Guru and Kṛṣṇa not accept our service?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. We're not fit. If Guru is right, then they do not accept me, we're not fit to serve. We do not understand ourselves. We do wrong, and that is not in accordance to the harmony. So Guru cannot accept discord. He's trying to harmonise, if anything, he finds that this cannot be harmonised, he's reluctant to come into harmony, then he'll dissociate. That he won't come to harmonise, he does not understand the necessity of harmony, he's unfit.

Devotee: Then what can make such a person fit?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Fit? In that case, the unknown nature, by the flow of the nature he'll be punished, and his apathy will be decreased to certain extent. And some help unconsciously he'll imbibe from some other quarter.

Devotee: Unconsciously?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Purification in the school, and purification in the prison house, two kinds, and various kinds of purification. And in the prison house also, different kinds of purification in a jail, in a prison house. Concentrated in a camp alone, sometimes whipping, and sometimes according to the classification of the crime, punishment comes and purifies him. And then education, the schools, colleges, they educate. Then religious association; they also try to educate, different types of members dealt in different schools, all for instruction, not for any retaliation, not for any jealousy.

Everywhere in the nature we find only with the idea of purifying things happen. So we're advised to see that all is all for the best. "Severe punishment coming to me. Yes, it is necessary for my purification." Our attitude becomes like that, in very short time, we're relieved from all sorts of punishment and go to the higher level. Ultimately everything coming from the supreme authority, and He has got no grudge for any person, any unit. Only for purification He has to deal different punishment and education and association, all these things. Do you understand?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. Again you will repeat the same thing in another way. Try to understand it.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

With the help of sound divine Mahāprabhu asked us, advised us to purify our selves. But the sound should be genuine, transcendental, Kṛṣṇa consciousness, real wave. And the minimum demand from us for our purification in this age of controversy. Kali means kalah, quarrel, controversy. Everything is to put some doubt. "No, I won't like to hear it without any proof." Very suspicious mind.

So, take the advantage of the sound, and the very minimum demand is necessary from us, and very generous in transformation. At least with some faith. The minimum demand, minimum admission fee is śraddhā, faith. That if I do this, if I attend this saṅkīrtana, then everything will be done. That underground faith must be there, that it will help me. There is hearty cooperation, sincere cooperation with the Kṛṣṇa consciousness agents, that can purify very cheaply.

Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

The minimum demand from us, to have this faith, that "This movement of Kṛṣṇa consciousness will purify us. If I attend this everything will be done." Such sort of generous, wide conviction. Then sincere cooperation with them, that can help us in very short way. The cooperation with the divine sound, sound aspect of the Supreme, is easily approachable for the beginners. Then from that many other aspect of the infinite will come to our understanding. The beginning with the sound aspect of the universal consciousness, sound aspect, is easily approachable. Others will come in retinue gradually. But our approach must be sincere, hearty. That we're under troubles and need this, will give us a real relief from all troubles together. It will put end to all the troubles which I'm experiencing now, and also which I may have to experience in future...

84.02.05.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: [00:00 - 03:00 ?]

We go to judge in the case of others. "Why he should receive causeless mercy? He has got so many defects. So many - very anti-attitude, disqualification. Why he should be accepted or given any chance?"

But for us we want that. "Don't come to judge, then I have no hope my Lord." So jñāna śūnya bhakti. "If You come to judge I have got no hope. Please grant grace, then I can hope. We approach You to offer me to make progress towards You, if You become very lenient, not to find fault with me."

But at the same time, in the same breath, we utter, "Why this man, disqualified, he should get any grace? Why he will get some mercy, affection?"

That is hypocritical in us and that causes a great deal of difficulty within us, suicidal. That is suicidal. So, Vaiṣṇava ninda, Vaiṣṇava aparādha. Those that are accepted by Him, and gradually he will be purified, but we're very eager to point out faults in him. That is more dangerous for our own progress, suicidal. In my case I want something higher, but in the case of others we can't tolerate the same behaviour of the Lord. That is a very difficult position. Generally that is the basis of Vaiṣṇava aparādha.

Who has been accepted by the Lord, and gradually purifying him, and we give much attention to what is still left, difficulties still left in him, very particularly comes to our attention. And what is then, the result is that I shall, that will be transferred to me. These are the realities of the experience in this line. That if I mark especially the fault of another devotee, that will be transferred to me. It happens, our experience, and also from the śāstra we have seen this. So, one must be very careful, not to make any remark, generally, about the practices and activities of another Vaiṣṇava.

Only in the case when he's given, he's empowered by the Supreme. Just in the case of his disciples, to correct his disciples, with a guardian's sympathetic eye. He can detect, he can mark the defects and will help him to remove. There must be some affectionate heart within. He wants to - not jealousy, or anything of that type, but with good will, wants to remove, from the affectionate guardian. That is to some śikṣā Guru, or dīkṣā Guru. From that position one may detect the fault of the students of this line, and help him sincerely to get out of that.

But otherwise, if we're attracted by those faults, that will come to us, and we shall have to pay for that, as a practical thing. And also, based on reason also, and scriptural advices. We must be careful. It is also warned in the Vaiṣṇava literature that you must be careful about Vaiṣṇava aparādha. That comes from the jealous spirit of competition or jealousy. That is very detrimental to our spiritual life. So we all must be very careful.

Not specially attracted by any defect. If it comes to my eye, I may refer to the higher authority, "I doubt, that this is the case with that gentleman," so refer. But if we make too much, either in opposition or in any other, that will be transferred. "I'm devouring. My mind is coming in touch of that fault." In that he's devouring it as food, and that is contaminated to this critic. Anyhow it's entering into the mental system of the critic, and it must get its satisfaction from there as reaction. So, very - like trade secret, this is also the secret of our devotional life. We must be aware, and must be very careful about these practical difficulties in the path of our life. So we have been recommended, tat te 'nukampāṁ susamīkṣamāṇo, [bhuñjāna evātma-kṛtaṁ vipākam

hṛd-vāg-vapurbhir vidhadhan namas te, jīveta yo mukti-pade sa dāya bhāk]

["One who, in the hope of achieving Your grace, goes on enduring the inauspicious fruit of his own karma, and passes his days practising devotion unto You in every thought, word, and deed - such a person is heir to the land of freedom: he attains to the plane of positive immortality."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.8]

This calculation, the judgement, the faculty of judgement has been discouraged. That your standard of measuring things that won't stand there. So, jñāna śūnya bhakti, you're to learn new alphabet here. In the devotional school you're to come in connection with a new alphabet; old alphabet won't do. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. Give up all the pride of your past experience. Your knowledge out of experience of the mortal world, won't do here, won't be applied here.

This is in the case of infinite, autocratic goodness, all these things. In our mouth we speak all these, we pronounce all these big things: absolute good, absolute truth, all these things. But we're not knowing about the characteristic of that. So revealing Himself, we must carefully note His nature.

So jñāna śūnya, give up the pride of your own experience, and on the basis that you will go to judge things. But it's not like that, a new law here. And the land of autocrat, and goodness, we're to think. So jñāna śūnya bhakti, first step, that to give up all the pride of our previous experience, and to begin a new life. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. The laws of the infinite, not the laws of this finite world - as a subject I acquired.

I shall have to enter that domain as an object of the subject. He's the subject, and I'm the object here, possessing a particle of the spirit there. And that is also at His sweet will. Any time I may be dispossessed. That is not in the democratic government, but in the mad monarchy, or some dictatorship. To live in the land of dictatorship and not in the democracy and law. So,

jñāne prayāsam udapāsya namanta eva, [jīvanti san-mukharitāṁ bhavadīya-vārtām
sthāne sthitāḥ śruti-gatāṁ tanu-vāṅ-manobhir, ye prāyaśo 'jita jito 'py asi tais tri-lokyām]

["Oh Lord, Oh Unconquerable One, those devotees who, completely giving up all attempts on the path of jñāna of attaining the non-differentiated platform known as Brahma by hearing the

transcendental narratives of Your pastimes, which emanates from the lotus mouths of the mahā-bhāgavat sādhus and pass their lives by engaging their body, mind and words in pure devotion, easily conquer You (they easily get Your transcendental association), although You are the most difficult to attain in the three worlds."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.3]

And to try our best to find mercy, grace, kindness, pity, everywhere. Because whatever the dictator is doing, it is all good. We're to be trained like that. He's the highest dictator without fault. So we may or may not understand, but it must be helpful for us, whatever is commanded by the dictator. So no law on which we shall base our judgement and give remark. So our remark is absolutely not only useless but it is faulty, injurious. Such consciousness we're to acquire, and it is not unreasonable. Jñāne prayāsam.

Newton told that, "I'm only collecting pebbles on the shore of the ocean of knowledge." Ha, ha, ha.

He was a man of this world, still, he had the sincerity and courage for this statement.

"Even knowledge infinite is on the outside ocean; and I'm on the shore collecting some pebbles."

So even in reference to the knowledge of this world, if it is, can be stated, what to think about that knowledge of infinite, unknown and unknowable. Unknown and unknowable. We must have courage, just as Columbus, he brought his ship to the shore of America, he had the courage. So, to float our boat, little boat in the ocean of unknown and unknowable, and the laws will be of that type. Laws of the higher ocean, that may not be applied in the strait, or in the local sea.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Thoroughly new thing we're to study, and the revealed truth. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. If we go to measure the infinite with the law of finite; then it will be hopeless for us to go that side to try. We're to imbibe, think purely of that land, that standard, of the unknown world.

svayaṁ samuttīryya sudustaraṁ dyuman, bhavārṇavaṁ bhīmam adabhra-sauhṛdāḥ
bhavat-padāmbhoruha-nāvam atra te, nidhāya yātāḥ sad anugraho bhavān

["O Self-revealed One, You are bhakta-vāñchākalpataru, the wish-fulfilling tree of the devotee. The great devotees surrendered unto Your Lotus Feet, who have crossed over this ghastly insurmountable ocean of mundanity, have left the boat of Your Lotus Feet in this world (in the guru-paramparā or in the line of Revealed Truth, Śrauta-panthā) - because, they are greatly affectionate to all beings."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.2.31]

One devotee says in Bhāgavatam. Svayaṁ samuttīryya sudustaraṁ dyuman. What is insurmountable ocean. Svayaṁ samuttīryya. One who has crossed that insurmountable ocean. Svayaṁ samuttīryya sudustaraṁ dyuman, bhavārṇavaṁ bhīmam adabhra. That dreadful ocean with dreadful waves and so many animals - water animals. Bhavārṇavaṁ bhīmam adabhra- sauhṛdāḥ. But the saints, that by Your grace cross that ocean, they again send back that boat. The boat, which is compared with the lotus feet of the Lord. By the help of the lotus feet of You - the infinite Lord, absolute - they cross this ocean by the grace of Your holy feet. Again that boat they send back here, for others to cross the same ocean. Their experience about the ocean, and how? In which way they crossed? And what difficulty? Where? They again - Your devotees are so magnanimous, after using the boat of Your holy feet, they cross, then again send them back for us.

Svayaṁ samuttīryya sudustaraṁ dyuman, bhavārṇavaṁ bhīmam adabhra-sauhṛdāḥ. Because their friendship for the people is very white and pure. Bhavat-padāmbhoruha-nāvam atra te, nidhāya yātāḥ sad anugraho bhavān. And You, at the, You are always in favour of those devotees. So, my dear request, You can't refuse; You allow Your lotus feet again to come this side, and take others towards that, to cross."

The knowledge is our enemy, because this knowledge in this world all misleading. The basis is misleading, however spacious it may be. But it is the negligible part of the infinite. So all misleading, misrepresentation we have collected, gathered, pushed in our brain. All, full of misleading, māyā, misunderstanding. So that is our enemy, we have to clear them off, and put fresh things, which is indented from the other world, by pure sources. But theoretical thing is one, and the practical thing another.

Rūpa Goswāmī says in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, where there's bhukti...

jñānataḥ sulabhā muktir [bhuktir yajñādi puṇyataḥ
seyaṁ sādhana-sāhasrair hari-bhaktiḥ sudurllabhā]

[Mahādeva says: "By practice of enlightenment, jñāna, liberation is attained easily enough. By pious work such as sacrifice, yajña, etc., worldly pleasure in the next life is attained easily enough. But devotion for the Supreme Lord, Hari bhakti, is very rarely attained."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 1.36]

By cultivating our knowledge of soul we can attain mukti, that is emancipation, liberation from this miscalculation easily. Though it is not so easy, still comparatively, easily one can renounce everything, considering the wicked nature of the environment. Elimination, elimination, elimination, all elimination. Then just to reach to thing like sound sleep. Sound sleep, that is mukti, permanent sound sleep. Jñānataḥ sulabhā muktir.

Bhuktir yajñādi puṇyataḥ. And we can gather our things of enjoyment by yajña, altruistic action. If we take altruistic action, then as a reaction, they will come back to me for my satisfaction, pleasure.

But seyaṁ sādhana-sāhasrair hari-bhaktiḥ sudurllabhā. But our real devotion to Hari, that is not so easy. Sādhana-sāhasrair. A thousand types of aspirations and practices, still it is sudurllabhā, may or may not be acquired. Because, that is friendship with the autocracy, to acquire friendship with the autocracy. Our enjoyment, that is labour and live. If we give some labour, loan to another, that may come back to me. So by the help of my labour, and distribution of that labour, we can easily get future enjoyment. And also by practising our disgust, sincere disgust with the present mortal environment, we can encourage our ego towards salvation - that is complete renunciation, cutting off all connection with the environment. Just like sound sleep, samādhi. But to have affectionate connection with the autocratic infinite, that is hardly to be acquired, nor answered.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Hari-bhaktiḥ sudurllabhā. And the gradual process how one can acquire that, that also traced in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu of Rūpa Goswāmī.

kleśa-ghnī [śubhadā mokṣa-, laghutā-kṛt sudurllabhā
sāndrānanda-viśeṣātmā, śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā]

["Uttamā-bhakti, the purest devotion, is the vanquisher of all sin and ignorance, and the bestower of all auspiciousness; liberation is belittled in the presence of such devotion, which is very rarely attained, the embodiment of the deepest ecstasy, and the attractor of Śrī Kṛṣṇa Himself."]
[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 1.17]

If we come in the line of devotion proper, the first result we shall experience, kleśa-ghnī, that all the afflicting tendency in our mind, gradually diminish, because we do not want them; our sincere negligence to them, kleśa-ghnī.

Śubhadā. Then so many things, the proposal of subtle, finer happiness will come, to perhaps to dissuade us from this path, śubhadā.

Mokṣa-laghutā-kṛt. The third result we shall trace, that mukti, mere renunciation, the result of renunciation, that is relief from the negative side influence; that is being considered to be very small achievement. The mere withdrawal from the negative side that is not much. This consciousness will awaken in you. Mokṣa-laghutā-kṛt.

Sudurllabhā. If we only can feel or experience that the goal of renunciation is not much, it is of lower order, then you will get bhakti? No, no certainty, no guarantee. Still it is far from you. Mokṣa-laghutā-kṛt sudurllabhā.

Sāndrānanda-viśeṣātmā. Then if anyhow by chance you come in connection with that thing, that reality; then you'll find some fundamental awakening of happiness. That infinite happiness is approaching you, approaching towards you.

Śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā. Still if you can continue your devotional activity in a proper line, then you will find, "He's coming to you as Kṛṣṇa Himself." In the conception of Kṛṣṇa consciousness, the Kṛṣṇa concept, He's coming to you - as Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa means, embodiment of all desirable types of ecstasy, the full. That is approaching - or you are being allowed to have His nearer conception, for your fulfilment of your devotional activities of life. In this way things progress.

So die to live. Dive deep into reality. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. That is the world of surrender, the area of surrender is so high, noble, great, and fulfilling. That can come, that can only take us in the plane of love, affection. If we hope to see and to live in that plane of affection and love, not only this mundane affection and love, but the love of the absolute. Then complete surrender, at His disposal, at His mercy; complete surrender to His mercy.

The reaction comes as love. Your highest contribution of faith towards Him, then He will be awakened, and will come to accept you, in His lap. So no risk no gain. And risk towards the whole, devotion proper. Not sum total of some activities, or some sort of studies, no. Practically it is concerned with the soul, the inner existence of us. Giving and taking must take place from the innermost part of our heart, to play with that thing. Not superficial knowledge, or this bodily labour, or mental labour, they're all superficial. The dealing of the heart to heart, and that is wholesale, because there is no immeasurable world, and no death; eternal.

So, jñāne prayāsam udapāsya, our moha, our mania for knowledge, and for worldly energy, bodily or mental energy; and the knowledge about so many falsified things, we're proud of that in this world. But He can withdraw everything. The scientist has discovered, invented a particular law, but if He will withdraw from there, it will be nowhere. The backed by His will. So many things are there.

"Let there be water." There was water. "Let there be light." There was light.

If we can find some faith in this, then, what? Everything designed and destined by Him. So what is the utility of some provisional incident? He may make or mar. The law may be changed into opposite, by His will, sweet will. The origin of the world is such independent designer.

Like a great hallucination master, magic, or hypnotist. Hypnotism, that is also a very negligent part. The greatest hypnotist, everything depending on His mental strength. He can show anything and everything.

The blind Dhṛtarāṣṭra, when He was ordered, "You remove my blindness, I'd like to see Your great, noble figure others are seeing."

"No, no. Blindness not necessary to be removed. Only I say and you will see Me."

Without His removing the blindness, Dhṛtarāṣṭra saw, by His will, His order. "Yes. You can see Me with blindness, being blind." Being blind he could see.

Then, what sort of sight is He? By His order. So eyes are not indispensable to see Him. Or our mental preparation backing the eye; that is also not. He ordered, "You see Me," he could see without eyes. Without the mentality of sight, he could see. He's janmandha, he's blind from the birth. He has got no idea of any colour, any figure; because he's janmandha, he's born blind. But still he could see, by His order. His position is such.

And if we try to approach Him, then what sort of attitude, or mentality we should - our earnestness we shall approach Him? What will be the fare to make journey towards that land? It is easy, it is difficult. Easy because it is our in-born tendency from within, it is home. But now we're far from home. It is home, my own thing; so there is hope that I may reach there once. It is my home. I won't find satisfaction anywhere, so I must have to go there - my home. But I'm far off from the home comfort. That is the difficulty, I have lost them.

Any questions on this? Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi prabbu?

Jñāne prayāsam udapāsya. Scholarship is poison. Are you ready to admit this? No?

Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What you have gathered that is all nonsense. He, he, he. Eh?

Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi: I know, unfortunately. It is my great misfortune.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. They're plodding in the mud. So all misrepresentation. Knowledge of misrepresentation, filled. The bag is not filled with money but filled with some brick-bats. The brain tax filled-up with all misleading things. Are you ready to admit this? Not so soon. What do you say? So much importance you have given, or any of us, not only I'm referring to you. But many of us boast of our knowledge, our experience. But the bhakti school is hammering, putting the hammer on the head of knowledge, jñāna. That is rather, ignorance is better than knowledge. Can you accept that? Knowledge is more dangerous than ignorance. Because they're comparatively proud; and they're more confident that 'I'm holding higher position.' To remove them from that position is very difficult. Qualitatively in this world, they're in higher position than the ordinary labourers, holding high position. So they're confident that, 'I'm in superior position.' So to remove him from that proud position it is more difficult, than to remove a man, ordinary labourer, from his ignorance. It is easy. It is easy to educate a non-educated person, but to educate an educated person it is more difficult. He has firmly fixed himself there that, 'This is superior thing.' He won't budge an inch from that position so easily.

So, tar madye visyayetu bu balo, sango nahe mage konokal [?] Ordinary persons, misguided souls in the ordinary street, their company is little better. But the company, the influence of the so-called scholars, that is more dangerous. That sort of subtle poison is very difficult to remove. They're proud, 'I know, I hold a higher position than the ordinary mass.' That sort of ego, that fine ego, is very difficult to remove. Ordinary persons they think, 'Yes, we're culprit.' And so also ordinary religious man, 'Eh, I'm a religious man.' It is very difficult to remove his so-called religion, so-called faith. This is the practical experience, and also advice of the śāstra.

[veda nā māniyā bauddha haya' ta nāstika] vedāśraya nāstikya-vāda bauddhake adhika

["The Buddhists do not recognise the authority of the Vedas; therefore they are considered agnostics. However, those who have taken shelter of the Vedic scriptures yet preach agnosticism in accordance with the māyāvāda philosophy are certainly more dangerous than the Buddhists."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 6.168]

Half-truth is more dangerous than falsehood. Half-truth is more dangerous than falsehood. Vedāśraya nāstikya-vāda. Atheism in the garb of theism. Just as in Śaṅkara, māyāvāda, so 'ham. That 'I'm the highest substance, the authority, or the law,' that is non-differentiated, like zero - that cannot assert. Then, no question that, 'I'm among the creation, I hold the higher position; it is possible for me. There is no God. Automatically, holding highest power, and everything highest, that is God - there is no such thing. Ultimately it is unknown and unknowable substance, a region like that. And wherever there is awakening, as human wise men, we hold the highest position. But if we're to admit God then we have nothing, we're His created object, we're play-dolls, we have nothing. As soon as I've admitted God then we're dispossessed of everything, we're only a play-doll at His hands, so everything gone. So much renunciation is not possible to admit. I'm the authority, absolute authority. That means I'm nowhere, such self-abnegation is not so cheap.'

Any question?

Devotee: What can help an intellectual to develop śāstric vision?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The other aspect, other sleeping aspect will be awakened, and then it will vanish, the cover will vanish automatically. Intellectualism cannot be utilised. But that causeless wealth within, eternal, that should be...

84.02.05.B

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...practical aspect, that will break down, evaporate. Karma, jñāna, they're only foreign things, foreign cover.

vāsudeve bhagavati bhakti-yogaḥ prayojitaḥ
[janayaty āśu vairāgyaṁ jñānañ ca yad ahaitukam]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.7]

If anyhow with the help of the scriptures and the devotee, His agents, saints, we can develop our devotion, bhakti, then the proper knowledge, and proper apathy towards the worldly substances will follow. That is, healthy knowledge, proper knowledge and healthy energy will come to follow him, if the real thing within awakens. Adjusted with that, not this knowledge or this energy, that is another. Energy, that the capacity to work, to move; and the knowledge, to have conception; that will be the effect in the retinue of your devotion. Sambhanda jñāna, what is what? A new world will awaken within him, that what is what? Misreading will evaporate, misreading will retire, and the proper reading will be evolved from within. Sambhanda jñāna. "I am so and such and such to my Lord, and to these Lord's friends, Lord's lovers, all these things. And what sort of knowledge, and what sort of movement should be mine in this environment, new environment." In that way, readjustment will come from within. This will have to retire, this knowledge and this sort of energising will retire; will have to go away, like darkness.

Misconceptions may be utilised, only while proper conception has come, "In this way you are misconceiving things." When the professor will say, "Your proper conception is this; but did you misconceive this thing in that?"

"Yes sir, I thought like that."

"Now?"

"Now I see the real thing is this. This is not mine, I am, what to speak of mine, I also belong to Kṛṣṇa, My Lord."

'I am monarch of all I survey,' or 'everything is enemy to me, apathetic to me.'

"I woke one morning and found myself famous."

[Thomas Gray, 1716-71, English poet, wrote one poem, "The curfew tolls the knell of parting day." In the evening he wrote this poem, which got sent to the newspaper. And when he woke next morning he's finding so many gentlemen have come to visit him. "I woke one morning and found myself famous."]

The wholesale gone. Everything belonging to Him. I am not master, even I am a slave, I am not holding the position of a master. What to speak of having, possessing so many properties. Even I am a property to another possessor. And the calculation must begin from that plane, and a new land will be found.

Amar laohitrani [?] "I do not belong to me, what to speak of world will belong to me, and that aspiration. And that sort of aggression, I shall conquer the whole world by the atomic energy." False notion, suffering, human intellect, thinking that he's holding the highest position, challenging to God. "God is only a superstition, only an imaginary thing." Wholesale, radical cure. Amar laohitrani [?] "I do not belong to me; I have my eternal master."

But slave mentality. "Gauḍīya Maṭha is spreading slave mentality to the country. This is most objectionable. This will destroy the military spirit of the land. So they can't be encouraged to spread slavery. That they are none. They do not belong to him, the country does not belong to him, no interest, eh! What are they? Go hence, and live in the Vaikuṇṭha, if you have. We won't allow you to spread this poison into the country."

What shall you say? Ha, ha. We may come down to Bhagavad-gītā. Ha, ha, ha, ha. Kṛṣṇa supported war, ha, ha, ha, but not from this standpoint.

["O Bhārata, whenever there is a decline of religion and an uprising of irreligion, I personally appear, like a being born in this world."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.7]

"Sometimes the world is so much thickly attacked by the atheistic influence, that I have to come down again to reestablish some sort of religious environment here. And the dread enemies are killed, and the good thinkers are given certain relief in their life. I have to come."

Badrinārāyaṇa: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who is there on the other side?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Vidagdha Prabhu.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Vidagdha Mādhava: Vidagdha Mādhava dāsa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Taking such dangerous position.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Badrinārāyaṇa: No risk no gain.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Devotee: Mahārāja. About two weeks ago, a young Gurukula boy that I knew, ten years old, was killed in an accident, and he shouted, "Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa." Someone so young, what will be his destination?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Young or old, in the level, in the plane of flesh and blood, that is no qualification no more. His mentality is to be examined. In particular place may have some nāmābhāsa.

When Gandhi was shot twice at a time, from few yards, two, three yards distance in the chest, "Ha Rāma, Ha Rāma, Ha Rāma," he told. And he fell, his spectacles were thrown; then within half an hour he had to pass away. But he pronounced "Ha Rāma, Ha Rāma." He was going to deliver a religious lecture, a lecture, but his mentality was full of this national progress. It will work in that plane, on behalf of that nation building, sometimes.

So what was his mentality? Sometimes nāmābhāsa may come, not śuddha-nāma. A peculiar particular case it is possible. It depends on the mental system, of course outer acquaintance, the inner awakening, its relation towards Kṛṣṇa.

When Mahāprabhu, before His sannyāsī, one day He was taking the name of "gopī, gopī, gopī."

And one tantric he came to give some confrontational advice to Him. "Paṇḍita. Oh you scholar, you know the śāstra. You're taking the name of gopī, gopī. What is the effect, good effect of that? You may take Kṛṣṇa Nāma. It is mentioned in the śāstra that if you take the Name of Kṛṣṇa you may get some benefit; we find in the śāstra, many Purāṇas. But why do you take the name of gopī, gopī?"

Mahāprabhu collected a rod and began to attack him. "You fellow, you are coming from the opposite camp. You come to convert into the followers of Kṛṣṇa, eh?" He began, He ran to beat him, to give him a good beating.

He fled, and then began a conspiracy to give a good beating to Mahāprabhu. "He may be a child of the noble family. We're not less, hold not less position than He. We're also coming from a good society, and a good family. And He will come to punish us, to beat us? We shall also see how to beat Him."

Then Mahāprabhu took another course.

korila pippalikhanda kapha nibārite, ulatiyā āro kapha baḍila dehete

"Oh, I came to make the drastic treatment of the cold, catching cold. But I see that what I came to give, that has opposite reaction. _____ [?] The highest type of medicine I administered, but I find that the patient is such, that this is increasing his disease, then what to do? I came to work-out relief for the people, and the people they're standing against Me, the well-wisher, the relief giver? Then, what may be the remedy of them?" Then He took another course. "I shall become sannyāsī. They think that I'm one of them. They have come from respectable family, I'm also coming from respectable family, so one of them. But I must have to take another chance to help them." So, He went to take sannyāsa.

What was your question? I forget.

Devotee: That Gurukula boy.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh, Gurukula boy, yes.

So taking the name of "gopī, gopī," and neglecting Kṛṣṇa. When He was advised to take the Name of Kṛṣṇa, He was enraged. What is the underlying thought there? "Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa," we may take the Name, but the underlying, the background, the underlying purpose, that should be judged. But still some effect there may be sometimes, not always.

_____ [?] A hog is attacking a Mohammedan and the Mohammedan says, "Ha rama, Ha rama!" "Ha rama" means that hog. In the other side, Ha rama! - "Oh, alas. That is a hog coming to attack me." But anyhow, that Rāma came to him, and had some influence. It is possible.

Valmiki, "ma-ra, ma-ra," he could not pronounce in direct way, take the Name of Rāma. But Brahmā and Nārada came to prove the efficacy of Rāma Nāma. It is mentioned in the śāstra.

Sahasra nama vistabhya rama nama _____ [?] "Thousandfold result we can find from Rāma Nāma. Then this Ratnākara Dasyu he's the most notorious type of dacoit, a heinous person, let us make experiment over him." So asked him to take Rāma Nāma. They tried, but Rāma Nāma never comes, he could not pronounce. Then they said, "ma-ra, ma-ra."

"Yes, ma-ra, ma-ra."
"Go on, ma-ra, ma-ra."
"Ma-ra, ma-ra, ma-ra."
This is just the opposite of Rāma. Then, after sometime, "Take the Name of Rāma."
Then he could. "Rāma, Rāma."

In this way, the mental plane, the attitude with which we're to accept, and the latitude we can conceive, the quality we can conceive depends on that. Because, Vaikuṇṭha Nāma, Nāma is infinite and the Nāma is equal to the thing whose, to the substance Whose name is that. The sound, sound aspect, is one and the same with the original aspect of the thing - that is Vaikuṇṭha Nāma. Here in this world a man may be blind, but his name may be Padma-lochan, lotus-eyed, but really he's blind. The name and the figure they may be different. But in Vaikuṇṭha, in the infinite world it is one and the same.

So nāmāparādha is there; nāmābhāsa is there. By nāmābhāsa we can get some relief from this worldly bondage; and by nāmāparādha we may be more entangled in this māyāic world. So,

Nāmākṣara bahiraya batu nāma kabu naya [From Jagadānanda Paṇḍita's Prema-vivarta] This ordinary, this physical sound, cannot represent the real name which is supernatural, that is, its own aspect.

eka kṛṣṇa-nāme yata pāpa hare, pātakī sādhya nāhi tata pāpa kare

["No sinner can commit as much sin as one Name of Kṛṣṇa can destroy."]

"One Name of Kṛṣṇa can remove so much ignorance that a man has got no power to commit so much sin."

But what is that Name? We're taking that Name so many times, but we do not get only one Nāmas, only the result of one Name. So this ordinary name, this superficial, this māyāic name and that Name has got great difference. That Name is one and the same with Him, and that comes down to our level. We cannot take it by the dint of our tongue on the lip. Not lip-deep, heart-deep. And beyond heart also, human heart, it reaches to the land of Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa comes here; the Name Kṛṣṇa, He comes through the heart in the lip, in the tongue - that is Kṛṣṇa Nāma. Kṛṣṇa in the form of sound, He's coming down from the transcendental world into my heart, and from heart, controlling all my nervous system, He's coming to the lip and dancing there. That is Kṛṣṇa Nāma. The initiative is in the transcendental world, and not production, produced from the physical plane, not that sound. The spiritual sound, spiritual reality has to come down to this plane. He can come down, but we cannot go up there easily. He's super-subject, and we're object to Him, so we cannot interfere with His independence. Only by the negative, by our attraction, by our surrender we can attract Him to come down to our level.

ataḥ śrī-kṛṣṇa-nāmādi na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiḥ
[sevonmukhe hi jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty adaḥ]

["Because the Name of Kṛṣṇa is identical with Kṛṣṇa Himself, and on the absolute spiritual platform, Kṛṣṇa's name, form, qualities, and associates, cannot be appreciated by the material senses. However, when one engages the tongue in chanting the Holy Names of the Lord and tasting the remnants of the Lord's food, Kṛṣṇa gradually reveals Himself to the purified senses of that devotee."]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrva-vibhāga, 2.234]

It is not a production of our senses. Sevonmukhe hi jihvādau. When we're very, with intense serving attitude, jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty, He Himself comes down attracted by our serving nature, which is out of His grace. And then He can influence this element and produce sound, and there is dancing there. That is the Nāma, Vaikuṇṭha Nāma, real Name. We cannot produce. Our sound of our production, physical or mental production, that is not He. He's separate, and He can come everywhere, in any form, in any plane, controlling them.

[ajo 'pi sann avyayātmā, bhūtānām īśvaro 'pi san]
prakṛtiṁ svām adhiṣṭhāya, sambhavāmy ātma-māyayā

["Although My eternal form is transcendental to birth and death, and I am the controller of all beings, I appear within the world in My original form, by My own sweet will, extending My internal potency of yoga-māyā."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.6]

"When I come here, by the force of My internal potency, I remove this external potency's influence, and appear anywhere and everywhere; this is forced back."

When that aeroplane, flying over on the sky, it removes the air, wind, and forcibly passes. So by removing this influence of the material things, He has to come with His own force here, to appear.

Prakṛtiṁ svām adhiṣṭhāya, sambhavāmy ātma-māyayā. "I have got my own potency, and by the power of that potency I remove this gross potency here, and live and move here, and act here."

The law of this nature cannot apply on Him. He has got special power, with the help of that He subdues the law of this nature, and He come here, there, whatever He does, with His own potency. Wherever He goes, the nature, the law of this nature withdraws from that place, and gives His way.

84.02.05.C
[same as 84.02.05.A]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...should he receive causeless mercy, he's got so many defects, so many very anti attitude, disqualification. Why he should be accepted or given any chance?"

But for us we want that. "Don't come to judge, then I have no hope my Lord." So jñāna śūnya bhakti. "If You come to judge I have got no hope. Please grant grace, then I can hope. We approach You to offer me to make progress towards You, if You become very lenient, not to find fault with me."

But at the same time, in the same breath, we utter, "Why this man, disqualified, he should get any grace? Why he will get some mercy, affection?"

That is hypocritical in us and that causes a great deal of difficulty within us, suicidal. That is suicidal. So, Vaiṣṇava ninda, Vaiṣṇava aparādha. Those that are accepted by Him, and gradually he will be purified, but we're very eager to point out faults in him. That is more dangerous for our own progress, suicidal. In my case I want something higher, but in the case of others we can't tolerate the same behaviour of the Lord. That is a very difficult position. Generally that is the basis of Vaiṣṇava aparādha.

Who has been accepted by the Lord, and gradually purifying him, and we give much attention to what is still left, difficulties still left in him, very particularly comes to our attention. And what is then, the result is that I shall, that will be transferred to me. These are the realities of the experience in this line. That if I mark especially the fault of another devotee, that will be transferred to me. It happens, our experience, and also from the śāstra we have seen this. So, one must be very careful, not to make any remark, generally, about the practices and activities of another Vaiṣṇava.

Only in the case when he's given, he's empowered by the Supreme. Just in the case of his disciples, to correct his disciples, with a guardian's sympathetic eye. He can detect, he can mark the defects and will help him to remove. There must be some affectionate heart within. He wants to - not jealousy, or anything of that type, but with good will, wants to remove, from the affectionate guardian. That is to some śikṣā Guru, or dīkṣā Guru. From that position one may detect the fault of the students of this line, and help him sincerely to get out of that.

But otherwise, if we're attracted by those faults, that will come to us, and we shall have to pay for that, as a practical thing. And also, based on reason also, and scriptural advices. We must be careful. It is also warned in the Vaiṣṇava literature that you must be careful about Vaiṣṇava aparādha. That comes from the jealous spirit of competition or jealousy. That is very detrimental to our spiritual life. So we all must be very careful.

Not specially attracted by any defect. If it comes to my eye, I may refer to the higher authority, "I doubt, that this is the case with that gentleman," so refer. But if we make too much, either in opposition or in any other, that will be transferred. "I'm devouring. My mind is coming in touch of that fault." In that he's devouring it as food, and that is contaminated to this critic. Anyhow it's entering into the mental system of the critic, and it must get its satisfaction from there as reaction. So, very - like trade secret, this is also the secret of our devotional life. We must be aware, and must be very careful about these practical difficulties in the path of our life. So we have been recommended,

hṛd-vāg-vapurbhir vidhadhan namas te, jīveta yo mukti-pade sa dāya bhāk]

["One who, in the hope of achieving Your grace, goes on enduring the inauspicious fruit of his own karma, and passes his days practising devotion unto You in every thought, word, and deed - such a person is heir to the land of freedom: he attains to the plane of positive immortality."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.8]

This calculation, the judgement, the faculty of judgement has been discouraged. That your standard of measuring things that won't stand there. So, jñāna śūnya bhakti, you're to learn new alphabet here. In the devotional school you're to come in connection with a new alphabet; old alphabet won't do. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. Give up all the pride of your past experience. Your knowledge out of experience of the mortal world, won't do here, won't be applied here.

This is in the case of infinite, autocratic goodness, all these things. In our mouth we speak all these, we pronounce all these big things: absolute good, absolute truth, all these things. But we're not knowing about the characteristic of that. So revealing Himself, we must carefully note His nature.

So jñāna śūnya, give up the pride of your own experience, and on the basis that you will go to judge things. But it's not like that, a new law here. And the land of autocrat, and goodness, we're to think. So jñāna śūnya bhakti, first step, that to give up all the pride of our previous experience, and to begin a new life. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. The laws of the infinite, not the laws of this finite world - as a subject I acquired.

I shall have to enter that domain as an object of the subject. He's the subject, and I'm the object here, possessing a particle of the spirit there. And that is also at His sweet will. Any time I may be dispossessed. That is not in the democratic government, but in the mad monarchy, or some dictatorship. To live in the land of dictatorship and not in the democracy and law. So,

sthāne sthitāḥ śruti-gatāṁ tanu-vāṅ-manobhir, ye prāyaśo 'jita jito 'py asi tais tri-lokyām]

["Oh Lord, Oh Unconquerable One, those devotees who, completely giving up all attempts on the path of jñāna of attaining the non-differentiated platform known as Brahma by hearing the transcendental narratives of Your pastimes, which emanates from the lotus mouths of the mahā-bhāgavat sādhus and pass their lives by engaging their body, mind and words in pure devotion, easily conquer You (they easily get Your transcendental association), although You are the most difficult to attain in the three worlds."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.3]

And to try our best to find mercy, grace, kindness, pity, everywhere. Because whatever the dictator is doing, it is all good. We're to be trained like that. He's the highest dictator without fault. So we may or may not understand, but it must be helpful for us, whatever is commanded by the dictator. So no law on which we shall base our judgement and give remark. So our remark is absolutely not only useless but it is faulty, injurious. Such consciousness we're to acquire, and it is not unreasonable. Jñāne prayāsam.

Newton told that, "I'm only collecting pebbles on the shore of the ocean of knowledge." Ha, ha, ha.

He was a man of this world, still, he had the sincerity and courage for this statement.

"Even knowledge infinite is on the outside ocean; and I'm on the shore collecting some pebbles."

So even in reference to the knowledge of this world, if it is, can be stated, what to think about that knowledge of infinite, unknown and unknowable. Unknown and unknowable. We must have courage, just as Columbus, he brought his ship to the shore of America, he had the courage. So, to float our boat, little boat in the ocean of unknown and unknowable, and the laws will be of that type. Laws of the higher ocean, that may not be applied in the strait, or in the local sea.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Thoroughly new thing we're to study, and the revealed truth. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. If we go to measure the infinite with the law of finite; then it will be hopeless for us to go that side to try. We're to imbibe, think purely of that land, that standard, of the unknown world.

svayaṁ samuttīryya sudustaraṁ dyuman, bhavārṇavaṁ bhīmam adabhra-sauhṛdāḥ
bhavat-padāmbhoruha-nāvam atra te, nidhāya yātāḥ sad anugraho bhavān

["O Self-revealed One, You are bhakta-vāñchākalpataru, the wish-fulfilling tree of the devotee. The great devotees surrendered unto Your Lotus Feet, who have crossed over this ghastly insurmountable ocean of mundanity, have left the boat of Your Lotus Feet in this world (in the guru-paramparā or in the line of Revealed Truth, Śrauta-panthā) - because, they are greatly affectionate to all beings."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.2.31]

One devotee says in Bhāgavatam. Svayaṁ samuttīryya sudustaraṁ dyuman. What is insurmountable ocean. Svayaṁ samuttīryya. One who has crossed that insurmountable ocean. Svayaṁ samuttīryya sudustaraṁ dyuman, bhavārṇavaṁ bhīmam adabhra. That dreadful ocean with dreadful waves and so many animals - water animals. Bhavārṇavaṁ bhīmam adabhra-sauhṛdāḥ. But the saints, that by Your grace cross that ocean, they again send back that boat. The boat, which is compared with the lotus feet of the Lord. By the help of the lotus feet of You - the infinite Lord, absolute - they cross this ocean by the grace of Your holy feet. Again that boat they send back here, for others to cross the same ocean. Their experience about the ocean, and how? In which way they crossed? And what difficulty? Where? They again - Your devotees are so magnanimous, after using the boat of Your holy feet, they cross, then again send them back for us.

Svayaṁ samuttīryya sudustaraṁ dyuman, bhavārṇavaṁ bhīmam adabhra-sauhṛdāḥ. Because their friendship for the people is very white and pure. Bhavat-padāmbhoruha-nāvam atra te, nidhāya yātāḥ sad anugraho bhavān. And You, at the, You are always in favour of those devotees. So, my dear request, You can't refuse; You allow Your lotus feet again to come this side, and take others towards that, to cross."

The knowledge is our enemy, because this knowledge in this world all misleading. The basis is misleading, however spacious it may be. But it is the negligible part of the infinite. So all misleading, misrepresentation we have collected, gathered, pushed in our brain. All, full of misleading, māyā, misunderstanding. So that is our enemy, we have to clear them off, and put fresh things, which is indented from the other world, by pure sources. But theoretical thing is one, and the practical thing another.

Rūpa Goswāmī says in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, where there's bhukti...

jñānataḥ sulabhā muktir [bhuktir yajñādi puṇyataḥ
seyaṁ sādhana-sāhasrair hari-bhaktiḥ sudurllabhā]

[Mahādeva says: "By practice of enlightenment, jñāna, liberation is attained easily enough. By pious work such as sacrifice, yajña, etc., worldly pleasure in the next life is attained easily enough. But devotion for the Supreme Lord, Hari bhakti, is very rarely attained."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 1.36]

By cultivating our knowledge of soul we can attain mukti, that is emancipation, liberation from this miscalculation easily. Though it is not so easy, still comparatively, easily one can renounce everything, considering the wicked nature of the environment. Elimination, elimination, elimination, all elimination. Then just to reach to thing like sound sleep. Sound sleep, that is mukti, permanent sound sleep. Jñānataḥ sulabhā muktir.

Bhuktir yajñādi puṇyataḥ. And we can gather our things of enjoyment by yajña, altruistic action. If we take altruistic action, then as a reaction, they will come back to me for my satisfaction, pleasure.

But seyaṁ sādhana-sāhasrair hari-bhaktiḥ sudurllabhā. But our real devotion to Hari, that is not so easy. Sādhana-sāhasrair. A thousand types of aspirations and practices, still it is sudurllabhā, may or may not be acquired. Because, that is friendship with the autocracy, to acquire friendship with the autocracy. Our enjoyment, that is labour and live. If we give some labour, loan to another, that may come back to me. So by the help of my labour, and distribution of that labour, we can easily get future enjoyment. And also by practising our disgust, sincere disgust with the present mortal environment, we can encourage our ego towards salvation - that is complete renunciation, cutting off all connection with the environment. Just like sound sleep, samādhi. But to have affectionate connection with the autocratic infinite, that is hardly to be acquired, nor answered.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Hari-bhaktiḥ sudurllabhā. And the gradual process how one can acquire that, that also traced in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu of Rūpa Goswāmī.

kleśa-ghnī [śubhadā mokṣa-, laghutā-kṛt sudurllabhā

sāndrānanda-viśeṣātmā, śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā]

["Uttamā-bhakti, the purest devotion, is the vanquisher of all sin and ignorance, and the bestower of all auspiciousness; liberation is belittled in the presence of such devotion, which is very rarely attained, the embodiment of the deepest ecstasy, and the attractor of Śrī Kṛṣṇa Himself."]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 1.17]

If we come in the line of devotion proper, the first result we shall experience, kleśa-ghnī, that all the afflicting tendency in our mind, gradually diminish, because we do not want them; our sincere negligence to them, kleśa-ghnī.

Śubhadā. Then so many things, the proposal of subtle, finer happiness will come, to perhaps to dissuade us from this path, śubhadā.

Mokṣa-laghutā-kṛt. The third result we shall trace, that mukti, mere renunciation, the result of renunciation, that is relief from the negative side influence; that is being considered to be very small achievement. The mere withdrawal from the negative side that is not much. This consciousness will awaken in you. Mokṣa-laghutā-kṛt.

Sudurllabhā. If we only can feel or experience that the goal of renunciation is not much, it is of lower order, then you will get bhakti? No, no certainty, no guarantee. Still it is far from you. Mokṣa-laghutā-kṛt sudurllabhā.

Sāndrānanda-viśeṣātmā. Then if anyhow by chance you come in connection with that thing, that reality; then you'll find some fundamental awakening of happiness. That infinite happiness is approaching you, approaching towards you.

Śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā. Still if you can continue your devotional activity in a proper line, then you will find, "He's coming to you as Kṛṣṇa Himself." In the conception of Kṛṣṇa consciousness, the Kṛṣṇa concept, He's coming to you - as Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa means, embodiment of all desirable types of ecstasy, the full. That is approaching - or you are being allowed to have His nearer conception, for your fulfilment of your devotional activities of life. In this way things progress.

So die to live. Dive deep into reality. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. That is the world of surrender, the area of surrender is so high, noble, great, and fulfilling. That can come, that can only take us in the plane of love, affection. If we hope to see and to live in that plane of affection and love, not only this mundane affection and love, but the love of the absolute. Then complete surrender, at His disposal, at His mercy; complete surrender to His mercy.

The reaction comes as love. Your highest contribution of faith towards Him, then He will be awakened, and will come to accept you, in His lap. So no risk no gain. And risk towards the whole, devotion proper. Not sum total of some activities, or some sort of studies, no. Practically it is concerned with the soul, the inner existence of us. Giving and taking must take place from the innermost part of our heart, to play with that thing. Not superficial knowledge, or this bodily labour, or mental labour, they're all superficial. The dealing of the heart to heart, and that is wholesale, because there is no immeasurable world, and no death; eternal.

So, jñāne prayāsam udapāsya, our moha, our mania for knowledge, and for worldly energy, bodily or mental energy; and the knowledge about so many falsified things, we're proud of that in this world. But He can withdraw everything. The scientist has discovered, invented a particular law, but if He will withdraw from there, it will be nowhere. The backed by His will. So many things are there.

"Let there be water." There was water. "Let there be light." There was light.

If we can find some faith in this, then, what? Everything designed and destined by Him. So what is the utility of some provisional incident? He may make or mar. The law may be changed into opposite, by His will, sweet will. The origin of the world is such independent designer.

Like a great hallucination master, magic, or hypnotist. Hypnotism, that is also a very negligent part. The greatest hypnotist, everything depending on His mental strength. He can show anything and everything.

The blind Dhṛtarāṣṭra, when He was ordered, "You remove my blindness, I'd like to see Your great, noble figure others are seeing."

"No, no. Blindness not necessary to be removed. Only I say and you will see Me."

Without His removing the blindness, Dhṛtarāṣṭra saw, by His will, His order. "Yes. You can see Me with blindness, being blind." Being blind he could see.

Then, what sort of sight is He? By His order. So eyes are not indispensable to see Him. Or our mental preparation backing the eye; that is also not. He ordered, "You see Me," he could see without eyes. Without the mentality of sight, he could see. He's janmandha, he's blind from the birth. He has got no idea of any colour, any figure; because he's janmandha, he's born blind. But still he could see, by His order. His position is such.

And if we try to approach Him, then what sort of attitude, or mentality we should - our earnestness we shall approach Him? What will be the fare to make journey towards that land? It is easy, it is difficult. Easy because it is our in-born tendency from within, it is home. But now we're far from home. It is home, my own thing; so there is hope that I may reach there once. It is my home. I won't find satisfaction anywhere, so I must have to go there - my home. But I'm far off from the home comfort. That is the difficulty, I have lost them.

Any questions on this? Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi prabbu?

Jñāne prayāsam udapāsya. Scholarship is poison. Are you ready to admit this? No?

Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What you have gathered that is all nonsense. He, he, he. Eh?

Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi: I know, unfortunately. It is my great misfortune.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. They're plodding in the mud. So all misrepresentation. Knowledge of misrepresentation, filled. The bag is not filled with money but filled with some brick-bats. The brain tax filled-up with all misleading things. Are you ready to admit this? Not so soon. What do you say? So much importance you have given, or any of us, not only I'm referring to you. But many of us boast of our knowledge, our experience. But the bhakti school is hammering, putting the hammer on the head of knowledge, jñāna. That is rather, ignorance is better than knowledge. Can you accept that? Knowledge is more dangerous than ignorance. Because they're comparatively proud; and they're more confident that 'I'm holding higher position.' To remove them from that position is very difficult. Qualitatively in this world, they're in higher position than the ordinary labourers, holding high position. So they're confident that, 'I'm in superior position.' So to remove him from that proud position it is more difficult, than to remove a man, ordinary labourer, from his ignorance. It is easy. It is easy to educate a non-educated person, but to educate an educated person it is more difficult. He has firmly fixed himself there that, 'This is superior thing.' He won't budge an inch from that position so easily.

So, tar madye visyayetu bu balo, sango nahe mage konokal [?] Ordinary persons, misguided souls in the ordinary street, their company is little better. But the company, the influence of the so-called scholars, that is more dangerous. That sort of subtle poison is very difficult to remove. They're proud, 'I know, I hold a higher position than the ordinary mass.' That sort of ego, that fine ego, is very difficult to remove. Ordinary persons they think, 'Yes, we're culprit.' And so also ordinary religious man, 'Eh, I'm a religious man.' It is very difficult to remove his so-called religion, so-called faith. This is the practical experience, and also advice of the śāstra.

[veda nā māniyā bauddha haya' ta nāstika] vedāśraya nāstikya-vāda bauddhake adhika

["The Buddhists do not recognise the authority of the Vedas; therefore they are considered agnostics. However, those who have taken shelter of the Vedic scriptures yet preach agnosticism in accordance with the māyāvāda philosophy are certainly more dangerous than the Buddhists."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 6.168]

Half-truth is more dangerous than falsehood. Half-truth is more dangerous than falsehood. Vedāśraya nāstikya-vāda. Atheism in the garb of theism. Just as in Śaṅkara, māyāvāda, so 'ham. That 'I'm the highest substance, the authority, or the law,' that is non-differentiated, like zero - that cannot assert. Then, no question that, 'I'm among the creation, I hold the higher position; it is possible for me. There is no God. Automatically, holding highest power, and everything highest, that is God - there is no such thing. Ultimately it is unknown and unknowable substance, a region like that. And wherever there is awakening, as human wise men, we hold the highest position. But if we're to admit God then we have nothing, we're His created object, we're play-dolls, we have nothing. As soon as I've admitted God then we're dispossessed of everything, we're only a play-doll at His hands, so everything gone. So much renunciation is not possible to admit. I'm the authority, absolute authority. That means I'm nowhere, such self-abnegation is not so cheap.'

Any question?

Devotee: What can help an intellectual to develop śāstric vision?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The other aspect, other sleeping aspect will be awakened, and then it will vanish, the cover will vanish automatically. Intellectualism cannot be utilised. But that causeless wealth within, eternal, that should be...

84.02.05.D
[same as 84.02.05.B]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...practical aspect, that will break down, evaporate. Karma, jñāna, they're only foreign things, foreign cover.

vāsudeve bhagavati bhakti-yogaḥ prayojitaḥ
[janayaty āśu vairāgyaṁ jñānañ ca yad ahaitukam]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.7]

If anyhow with the help of the scriptures and the devotee, His agents, saints, we can develop our devotion, bhakti, then the proper knowledge, and proper apathy towards the worldly substances will follow. That is, healthy knowledge, proper knowledge and healthy energy will come to follow him, if the real thing within awakens. Adjusted with that, not this knowledge or this energy, that is another. Energy, that the capacity to work, to move; and the knowledge, to have conception; that will be the effect in the retinue of your devotion. Sambhanda jñāna, what is what? A new world will awaken within him, that what is what? Misreading will evaporate, misreading will retire, and the proper reading will be evolved from within. Sambhanda jñāna. "I am so and such and such to my Lord, and to these Lord's friends, Lord's lovers, all these things. And what sort of knowledge, and what sort of movement should be mine in this environment, new environment." In that way, readjustment will come from within. This will have to retire, this knowledge and this sort of energising will retire; will have to go away, like darkness.

Misconceptions may be utilised, only while proper conception has come, "In this way you are misconceiving things." When the professor will say, "Your proper conception is this; but did you misconceive this thing in that?"
"Yes sir, I thought like that."
"Now?"
"Now I see the real thing is this. This is not mine, I am, what to speak of mine, I also belong to Kṛṣṇa, My Lord."

'I am monarch of all I survey,' or 'everything is enemy to me, apathetic to me.'

"I woke one morning and found myself famous."

[Thomas Gray, 1716-71, English poet, wrote one poem, "The curfew tolls the knell of parting day." In the evening he wrote this poem, which got sent to the newspaper. And when he woke next morning he's finding so many gentlemen have come to visit him. "I woke one morning and found myself famous."]

The wholesale gone. Everything belonging to Him. I am not master, even I am a slave, I am not holding the position of a master. What to speak of having, possessing so many properties. Even I am a property to another possessor. And the calculation must begin from that plane, and a new land will be found.

Amar laohitrani [?] "I do not belong to me, what to speak of world will belong to me, and that aspiration. And that sort of aggression, I shall conquer the whole world by the atomic energy." False notion, suffering, human intellect, thinking that he's holding the highest position, challenging to God. "God is only a superstition, only an imaginary thing." Wholesale, radical cure. Amar laohitrani [?] "I do not belong to me; I have my eternal master."

But slave mentality. "Gauḍīya Maṭha is spreading slave mentality to the country. This is most objectionable. This will destroy the military spirit of the land. So they can't be encouraged to spread slavery. That they are none. They do not belong to him, the country does not belong to him, no interest, eh! What are they? Go hence, and live in the Vaikuṇṭha, if you have. We won't allow you to spread this poison into the country."

What shall you say? Ha, ha. We may come down to Bhagavad-gītā. Ha, ha, ha, ha. Kṛṣṇa supported war, ha, ha, ha, but not from this standpoint.

yadā yadā hi dharmasya, glānir bhavati bhārata

["O Bhārata, whenever there is a decline of religion and an uprising of irreligion, I personally appear, like a being born in this world."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.7]

"Sometimes the world is so much thickly attacked by the atheistic influence, that I have to come down again to reestablish some sort of religious environment here. And the dread enemies are killed, and the good thinkers are given certain relief in their life. I have to come."

Badrinārāyaṇa: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who is there on the other side?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Vidagdha Prabhu.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Vidagdha Mādhava: Vidagdha Mādhava dāsa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Taking such dangerous position.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Badrinārāyaṇa: No risk no gain.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Devotee: Mahārāja. About two weeks ago, a young Gurukula boy that I knew, ten years old, was killed in an accident, and he shouted, "Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa." Someone so young, what will be his destination?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Young or old, in the level, in the plane of flesh and blood, that is no qualification no more. His mentality is to be examined. In particular place may have some nāmābhāsa.

When Gandhi was shot twice at a time, from few yards, two, three yards distance in the chest, "Ha Rāma, Ha Rāma, Ha Rāma," he told. And he fell, his spectacles were thrown; then within half an hour he had to pass away. But he pronounced "Ha Rāma, Ha Rāma." He was going to deliver a religious lecture, a lecture, but his mentality was full of this national progress. It will work in that plane, on behalf of that nation building, sometimes.

So what was his mentality? Sometimes nāmābhāsa may come, not śuddha-nāma. A peculiar particular case it is possible. It depends on the mental system, of course outer acquaintance, the inner awakening, its relation towards Kṛṣṇa.

When Mahāprabhu, before His sannyāsī, one day He was taking the name of "gopī, gopī, gopī."

And one tantric he came to give some confrontational advice to Him. "Paṇḍita. Oh you scholar, you know the śāstra. You're taking the name of gopī, gopī. What is the effect, good effect of that? You may take Kṛṣṇa Nāma. It is mentioned in the śāstra that if you take the Name of Kṛṣṇa you may get some benefit; we find in the śāstra, many Purāṇas. But why do you take the name of gopī, gopī?"

Mahāprabhu collected a rod and began to attack him. "You fellow, you are coming from the opposite camp. You come to convert into the followers of Kṛṣṇa, eh?" He began, He ran to beat him, to give him a good beating.

He fled, and then began a conspiracy to give a good beating to Mahāprabhu. "He may be a child of the noble family. We're not less, hold not less position than He. We're also coming from a good society, and a good family. And He will come to punish us, to beat us? We shall also see how to beat Him."

Then Mahāprabhu took another course.

korila pippalikhanda kapha nibārite, ulatiyā āro kapha baḍila dehete

"Oh, I came to make the drastic treatment of the cold, catching cold. But I see that what I came to give, that has opposite reaction. _____ [?] The highest type of medicine I administered, but I find that the patient is such, that this is increasing his disease, then what to do? I came to work-out relief for the people, and the people they're standing against Me, the well-wisher, the relief giver? Then, what may be the remedy of them?" Then He took another course. "I shall become sannyāsī. They think that I'm one of them. They have come from respectable family, I'm also coming from respectable family, so one of them. But I must have to take another chance to help them." So, He went to take sannyāsa.

What was your question? I forget.

Devotee: That Gurukula boy.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh, Gurukula boy, yes.

So taking the name of "gopī, gopī," and neglecting Kṛṣṇa. When He was advised to take the Name of Kṛṣṇa, He was enraged. What is the underlying thought there? "Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa," we may take the Name, but the underlying, the background, the underlying purpose, that should be judged. But still some effect there may be sometimes, not always.

_____ [?] A hog is attacking a Mohammedan and the Mohammedan says, "Ha rama, Ha rama!" "Ha rama" means that hog. In the other side, Ha rama! - "Oh, alas. That is a hog coming to attack me." But anyhow, that Rāma came to him, and had some influence. It is possible.

Valmiki, "ma-ra, ma-ra," he could not pronounce in direct way, take the Name of Rāma. But Brahmā and Nārada came to prove the efficacy of Rāma Nāma. It is mentioned in the śāstra.

Sahasra nama vistabhya rama nama _____ [?] "Thousandfold result we can find from Rāma Nāma. Then this Ratnākara Dasyu he's the most notorious type of dacoit, a heinous person, let us make experiment over him." So asked him to take Rāma Nāma. They tried, but Rāma Nāma never comes, he could not pronounce. Then they said, "ma-ra, ma-ra."

"Yes, ma-ra, ma-ra."

"Go on, ma-ra, ma-ra."

"Ma-ra, ma-ra, ma-ra."

This is just the opposite of Rāma. Then, after sometime, "Take the Name of Rāma."

Then he could. "Rāma, Rāma."

In this way, the mental plane, the attitude with which we're to accept, and the latitude we can conceive, the quality we can conceive depends on that. Because, Vaikuṇṭha Nāma, Nāma is infinite and the Nāma is equal to the thing whose, to the substance Whose name is that. The sound, sound aspect, is one and the same with the original aspect of the thing - that is Vaikuṇṭha Nāma. Here in this world a man may be blind, but his name may be Padma-lochan, lotus-eyed, but really he's blind. The name and the figure they may be different. But in Vaikuṇṭha, in the infinite world it is one and the same.

So nāmāparādha is there; nāmābhāsa is there. By nāmābhāsa we can get some relief from this worldly bondage; and by nāmāparādha we may be more entangled in this māyāic world. So,

Nāmākṣara bahiraya batu nāma kabu naya [From Jagadānanda Paṇḍita's Prema-vivarta] This ordinary, this physical sound, cannot represent the real name which is supernatural, that is, its own aspect.

eka kṛṣṇa-nāme yata pāpa hare, pātakī sādhya nāhi tata pāpa kare

["No sinner can commit as much sin as one Name of Kṛṣṇa can destroy."]

"One Name of Kṛṣṇa can remove so much ignorance that a man has got no power to commit so much sin."

But what is that Name? We're taking that Name so many times, but we do not get only one Nāmas, only the result of one Name. So this ordinary name, this superficial, this māyāic name and that Name has got great difference. That Name is one and the same with Him, and that comes down to our level. We cannot take it by the dint of our tongue on the lip. Not lip-deep, heart-deep. And beyond heart also, human heart, it reaches to the land of Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa comes here; the Name Kṛṣṇa, He comes through the heart in the lip, in the tongue - that is Kṛṣṇa Nāma. Kṛṣṇa in the form of sound, He's coming down from the transcendental world into my heart, and from heart, controlling all my nervous system, He's coming to the lip and dancing there. That is Kṛṣṇa Nāma. The initiative is in the transcendental world, and not production, produced from the physical plane, not that sound. The spiritual sound, spiritual reality has to come down to this plane. He can come down, but we cannot go up there easily. He's super-subject, and we're object to Him, so we cannot interfere with His independence. Only by the negative, by our attraction, by our surrender we can attract Him to come down to our level.

ataḥ śrī-kṛṣṇa-nāmādi na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiḥ
[sevonmukhe hi jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty adaḥ]

["Because the Name of Kṛṣṇa is identical with Kṛṣṇa Himself, and on the absolute spiritual platform, Kṛṣṇa's name, form, qualities, and associates, cannot be appreciated by the material senses. However, when one engages the tongue in chanting the Holy Names of the Lord and tasting the remnants of the Lord's food, Kṛṣṇa gradually reveals Himself to the purified senses of that devotee."]
[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrva-vibhāga, 2.234]

It is not a production of our senses. Sevonmukhe hi jihvādau. When we're very, with intense serving attitude, jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty, He Himself comes down attracted by our serving nature, which is out of His grace. And then He can influence this element and produce sound, and there is dancing there. That is the Nāma, Vaikuṇṭha Nāma, real Name. We cannot produce.

Our sound of our production, physical or mental production, that is not He. He's separate, and He can come everywhere, in any form, in any plane, controlling them.

[ajo 'pi sann avyayātmā, bhūtānām īśvaro 'pi san]
prakṛtiṁ svām adhiṣṭhāya, sambhavāmy ātma-māyayā

["Although My eternal form is transcendental to birth and death, and I am the controller of all beings, I appear within the world in My original form, by My own sweet will, extending My internal potency of yoga-māyā."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.6]

"When I come here, by the force of My internal potency, I remove this external potency's influence, and appear anywhere and everywhere; this is forced back."

When that aeroplane, flying over on the sky, it removes the air, wind, and forcibly passes. So by removing this influence of the material things, He has to come with His own force here, to appear.

Prakṛtiṁ svām adhiṣṭhāya, sambhavāmy ātma-māyayā. "I have got my own potency, and by the power of that potency I remove this gross potency here, and live and move here, and act here."

The law of this nature cannot apply on Him. He has got special power, with the help of that He subdues the law of this nature, and He come here, there, whatever He does, with His own potency. Wherever He goes, the nature, the law of this nature withdraws from that place, and gives His way.

84.02.07.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Generally this day we observe as the day of worshipping the goddess of learning. Sarasvatī pūjā. The goddess of learning. She's considered to be one of the potencies of Nārāyaṇa, Sarasvatī. Sarasvatī, bap [?] sound, potency of sound. Which may be used generally in two ways. In Upaniṣad we find, devi devi dita vesh, para ca para ca [?] Śabda-brahma, two potency, the sound potency of two kinds: śabda-brahma, transcendental sound, and the ordinary mundane sound.

So medium of mundane sound we receive mundane education and we impart mundane education to others. So many transactions are done through mundane sound. And there is another sound, transcendental sound, that comes to help us to be out of this misunderstood aspect of the world. We're at the present living in the misunderstood aspect of the world, misleading, according to our special interest and position as an exploiting unit. We're engaged in transaction through the sound, and that is the measure of sound we're binding us with this material achievement.

But there is another transcendental sound which carry from the real conception of things from the transcendental standpoint to us. What we see it is not so. Everything belongs to the supreme centre. Try to read in that way, otherwise you'll be frustrated, you'll have to change your position. And according to the change of your position you'll find that you have misread them previously.

If you have a birth of a tiger, then you'll see the human body, however great he may be, you'll see only food; your food. You won't be able to recognise him as a genius, as a Newton, or Einstein, or Alexander, or so. The tiger will see his food in the men.

So all misconception, what is what? So another type of sound, śabda-brahma, Veda, or the revealed scripture, they come to relieve us from this misunderstanding of misreading of the world, wholesale. And to put us, help us, to put us in the other world. Other world is God centred. What is existing, what is his particular position in conclusion with the interest of the centre?

So, devi devi, para ca para ca [?] Apara means mundane, para means transcendental. Transcendental sound can come from the person who has got transcendental realisation. From that plane vibration will originate from the deepest plane, and that vibration will be effective. Effective to deal us in such way that we can get relieve from this mundane reading of things around. That will also come.

Words may be the same, but the potency within - just as the homoeopathic globule, all globules similar, but according to the potency inside the result will differ. So the sound may be the same, but from what plane the sound is originating, with what potency? That will help us to work out relieve within us. The mental system will have transformation: to see, to understand, to hear, what is what. Wholesale change will come. Revolutionary change will come in the mental system. So, one: māyā, misunderstanding, and another: truth, paravidya - that will help us to get relief from all prejudices, local prejudices, and will take us to the universal reading of the things aside, things around us.

So in this way, this day generally, birthday of Sarasvatī. Generally people are interested with mundane learning, goddess of learning.

...

This day is the birthday of Viṣṇupriyā Devī, Gaura-Nārāyaṇa's potency. When Mahāprabhu comes to help in the relief of this mundane world, through the sound, the universal sound, Hari-Nāma saṅkīrtana, Viṣṇupriyā comes to help Him in that campaign.

When Mahāprabhu took sannyāsa, Viṣṇupriyā was left at home, very young age. But cent per cent faithful to that, her husband. And after His departure and He took sannyāsa and went away, Viṣṇupriyā faithfully as she lived in the house left by Him and took the Name of Kṛṣṇa.

And we're told that for counting she used some rice, and as many rice was collecting by the counting she boiled them and dedicated them to Nārāyaṇa, and she used to take that only, that quantity. After offering to the Lord, she used to take, so gradually emaciated. In this way she lived her life.

When she was fourteen then only Mahāprabhu left, took sannyāsa. And after that the whole life she lived making penances, penance full life she lead. And after Śacī Devī departed her brother was her guardian.

And she ultimately had one Mūrti, Vigraha of Mahāprabhu, and used to worship Him as husband-God, Mahāprabhu. And that is being continued here in that Mahāprabhu's house from Viṣṇupriyā's time. Mahāprabhu.

So this day of the year is connected with her holy memory, and it will help us greatly to take us towards Śrī Caitanyadeva. And we may get the grace of Viṣṇupriyā Devī if we honour in her name the time and discuss about Him. She will be propitiated, and Śrī Caitanyadeva - Gaura-Nārāyaṇa also will be propitiated with us. And it will be a step forward towards our transcendental march.

...

Today, then again the day of Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi, he also appeared in this day, Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi. He's considered to be Vṛṣabhānu Rāja, the father of Rādhārāṇī. In Varṣāṇā, Vṛṣabhānu, Varṣāṇā in Vṛndāvana we find, Rādhārāṇī's father's home. He came here from Chittagong, and he was a brāhmaṇa, Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi, the title of his scholarship, he was born there.

And apparently he was a man of luxury habits. He had a house in Navadwīpa. Previously, by the holy Ganges, all mostly who could provide they used to have some house on the banks of the holy Ganges. Sometimes they used to come here, and regularly took bath in the Ganges. And then lived in this holy place for some time and then again went to his own home for his livelihood. So Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi had a house in Navadwīpa.

Gadādhara Paṇḍita you know was the representative of Rādhārāṇī Herself, here in Gaura līlā. Young boy, he's younger than Mahāprabhu. Mukunda Datta, one of the followers of, appreciators of Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanyadeva, he also came from that quarter, from Chittagong. He knew Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi to be a man of high religious type. Religious means Bhāgavata type, Kṛṣṇa bhakta. But outwardly he was a man who lived a life of luxury, well-to-do man, zamīndār of small type. He came to Navadwīpa.

And Mukunda Datta knew because he came from the same place, he came to Gadādhara Paṇḍita. "Will you go to see a Vaiṣṇava, do you like to have darśana of a Vaiṣṇava?"

"Yes, yes." Gadādhara Paṇḍita said.

From his childhood he was very fond of Vaiṣṇavas, Kṛṣṇa Nāma. So much so when Mahāprabhu came from Gayā, and he had much liking about Mahāprabhu, Caitanya, Gaurāṅga, Nimāi Paṇḍita. But he was very afraid of Nimāi Paṇḍita. Nimāi Paṇḍita whenever he found Gadādhara He used to tackle him with this and that, words and thoughts, that quarrelling, apparently quarrelling with him with some question or other.

So after coming from Gayā, Śrī Caitanyadeva, He expressed His devoted aspect. Then one day He's saying, "Gadādhara, from the very childhood you are a devotee of Kṛṣṇa. But My days all wasted in this discussion of the grammar and the literature, mundane. But you Gadādhara, My friend, your life is very successful - your fulfilment of life. From the beginning you are fond of Kṛṣṇa Nāma."

So from the beginning, Gadādhara at his heart, he wants Kṛṣṇa.

And Mukunda Datta asked him, "Will you go to see a Vaiṣṇava who has come from far away?"
"Yes, yes, I shall go, take me there."
So Mukunda Datta took Gadādhara to that Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi.
Gadādhara found, "What sort of Vaiṣṇava is he? He's in a rich and on a bedstead sitting. And the pipe smoking, and the pipe is also very rich type pipe. And he's got his beautiful curled hair on the head, and so many valuable paste are also smeared there. A very rich and fond of luxury, a man is sitting in the bedstead smoking. And he has taking me to him?" So at heart he was, he found disappointment. "What type of Vaiṣṇava he has taking me to have darśana?"
Mukunda Datta could guess that, and he told - he was very sweet singer, Mukunda, he with the sweet tone he pronounced this śloka from Bhāgavat.

aho bakī yaṁ stana-kāla-kūṭaṁ, jighāṁsayāpāyayad apy asādhvī lebhe gatiṁ dhātry-ucitāṁ tato 'nyaṁ, kaṁ vā dayāluṁ śaraṇaṁ vrajema

["How astonishing! When Pūtanā, the wicked sister of Bakāsura, tried to kill child Kṛṣṇa by offering Him deadly poison on her breasts, she reached a position befitting the Lord's nursemaid. Could I ever have as merciful a shelter as that of Lord Kṛṣṇa?"] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 3.2.23]

This śloka was chanted by Mukunda in a very sweet tone.
Then that created a wonderful effect in Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi. "Oh!"
The meaning of this śloka you know.
And Bhāgavatam says, "To whom should we approach without Kṛṣṇa? Who is so very kind, so very gracious, limitless grace in Him? Why? The bakī, the Pūtanā came to kill Him in a treacherous way, taking the garb of dhātri. With motherly garb she came to kill Him, and Kṛṣṇa gave her the position of a motherly type, of some of the group of the mother, helping mothers. So gracious the Lord, and on leaving Him where should we go for our own good?" That is the meaning.
Bakī yaṁ stana-kāla-kūṭaṁ. "In her breast she painted some high poison, and came to suckle the boy Kṛṣṇa. So treacherously in the garb of the motherly affection came to murder boy. And she was given the so high position as the attendant of His mother. In the motherly group she was, she had upliftment there. So grace, so mercy, no consideration of the work, of the activity, the action, no judgement, so much mercy. And leaving that kind-hearted, gracious Kṛṣṇa, where should we go to take shelter, to get help?"
Jighāṁsayāpāyayad apy asādhvī, lebhe gatiṁ dhātry-ucitāṁ tato 'nyaṁ, kaṁ vā dayāluṁ śaraṇaṁ vrajema. So this entered the heart of Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi and began to vibrate, and produced such course there he was stunned. Then shivering began, then some madly gesticulation. And began to scratch his head, scratch his dress, and began to take convulsion and by the grit of his teeth. Where that tobacco, and the rich bedding and his dress he tore and began to roll on the ground and began to cry. Kaṁ vā dayāluṁ śaraṇaṁ. "Except Him whom shall we go to take shelter under holy feet?" Began to chant, and began to roll in the bed, and in the floor.

Then Gadādhara thought, 'Oh, what? I have committed a great offence in my mind, thinking that he's not a Vaiṣṇava, who has got such a fashionable dress and style. But really what a great Vaiṣṇava is he that the memory of Kṛṣṇa, how wonderful effect came in him.' Then Gadādhara Paṇḍita came out. "Mukunda I have committed offence against the great mahā- bhāgavata. What will be my fate? I neglected him in the beginning. I committed offence. I think if I take mantram, become disciple of him, then he'll forgive all my offences. That is the only way to get out from this Vaiṣṇava aparādha. No other way. So I shall have to ask my Master Gauracandra, Gaurāṅga, Nimāi Paṇḍita about this." Anyhow they came out and Gadādhara Paṇḍita took the permission of Nimāi.

Nimāi Paṇḍita, He's chanting suddenly, "Puṇḍarīka bap, Puṇḍarīka, Puṇḍarīka bap."

None knew that Puṇḍarīka has come from Chittagong to Navadwīpa but Nimāi Paṇḍita is taking his name, "Bap Puṇḍarīka" in the mood of Rādhārāṇī's father - bap. "Father Puṇḍarīka, father Puṇḍarīka." Nimāi Paṇḍita chanting like this, in the mood of Rādhārāṇī.

Then when this offer came to Him, "Yes, yes, very good proposal. At once go."

He's Rādhārāṇī, Gadādhara Paṇḍita, he's representing Rādhārāṇī here in this līlā. So father, Rādhārāṇī's father, Puṇḍarīka, the Guru. Guru is like father, and the śiṣya like child. So Mahāprabhu at once approved and Gadādhara Paṇḍita took initiation from Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi, who was none but Vṛṣabhānu Rāja, father of Rādhārāṇī. And Gadādhara was also incarnation of Rādhārāṇī in Gaura līlā.

...

Once, Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi was very friendly to Svarūpa Dāmodara - Lalitā Sakhī in this līlā - Svarūpa Dāmodara. When he visited once Puruṣottama, Purī, one of his characteristics was that he did not take bath in the Ganges. At night he approached Ganges and took some water and put on his head. At daytime he did not come to the Ganges. He could not tolerate that so many person they will come and dive and they will spit there and make dirty the water. That is pure, holy water, and they're using in such a wrong way. And when the people generally observed fasting he used to take some Ganges water to purify. That was his custom.

Then when he went to Purī he had some - feeling, his sentiment was little - received some check. He felt some pain in his heart that the priestly servants of Jagannātha, they generally used the cloths for Jagannātha which is not very cleansed. When the cloth is prepared some sort of this rice water...

Devotee: Starch.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Boiled rice water is necessary for paste purpose. So, and that is considered to be little untouchable, impure. So when it should be given to the Deity, that must be cleansed in the water. So in Purī that was not the custom, practice. They with that rice juice, mixed, painted with rice juice, that sort of cloth they used for Jagannātha.

And Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi he could not adjust that. "What is this?" Took some offence against those servitors of Jagannātha.

That night he got a dream, that Jagannātha, Balarāma, Both are coming to him in dream, and are giving slaps in both the cheeks. "You have come here to detect the defects of My servitors, eh? What is this?" They began to, Both of Them is giving slaps.

And the dream was so intense, that when he rose in the morning he found both the cheeks, there's inflammation there. And his first intimate friend was Svarūpa Dāmodara, he was expressing that, "Such is the case with me Svarūpa Dāmodara my friend. I had this objectionable feeling in my mind against these servitors, so Jagannātha and Balarāma They have punished me in this way, see." While showing him both cheeks.

So such is, was the nature of Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi. Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi in one word, he, the father of Rādhārāṇī, that incarnation, he came here as Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi we're told. That is sufficient to, for us, what sort of reverence and devotional mentality we should show to this day, the birthday of Puṇḍarīka Vidyānidhi. A slight connection of this day will help us a great deal in our advancement towards the spiritual world.

The third - two, three, and the third, this is the day also, the birthday of Raghunandan Ṭhākura. You know near Kātwā there is a place named Śrīkhaṇḍa, there was a Kavirāja family. Kavirāja means doctor, this ancestral doctor Śrī Kavirāja. He _____ [?] medicine, and in that line generally they're practising this medical treatment, Kavirāja. So Raghunandan, there was one Mukunda Kavirāja, notable, even the kings called for him for treatment, and his son was Raghunandan.

He was a bachelor, whole life, he's also told as the incarnation of Pradyumna. Very beautiful figure, extraordinary beautiful figure, and very fond of dancing. And from the beginning he was of course, naturally devotee. So much so, that Mukunda Kavirāja, Mukunda Ṭhākura, they had their ancestral Deity in the house. When Mukunda went outside Raghunandan was a growing boy, and very recently perhaps got a sacred threat and admission for worshipping.

The father leaving home, asked the boy, "Raghunandan, I'm going out, perhaps I won't return on time. You please worship the Deities and you feed Them. Bhogam, you must offer bhogam for Their food, the Deities, feed Them." That was his expression. "Please, you try to feed Them, my Deities."

He went away, away all day. And Raghunandan's mother she cooked so many things and gave it from outside the temple of the Deity and asked Raghunandan to feed the Deity.

Raghunandan went inside. When the worshipping going on generally doors are shut. And the closed doors Raghunandan was offering and prayed to the Lord, "You take this dish I'm offering, You eat them."

But Mūrti did not answer, did not came to... He began to cry. "My father will rebuke, because requested me to feed You, and You are not taking food. I'll be punished. You have to take this food."

The sincere boy began to cry in such a way that Kṛṣṇa had to come and to take the dish, the food. He was satisfied and came out.

The mother came to remove the prasādam. "What is this? All empty."

"No, the Deity has taken. You asked me to feed Them. The Deity has taken."

"You boy, you have eaten this! Deities never eats, we offer Them, everything remains, and we take the prasādam. You wicked boy! So rogue you have grown that you have taken all these things?"

"No, no, I have not taken."

"You have taking it. It is impossible you foolish boy. You want to make a fool of me? It can never happen."

He began to cry. "No, I'm speaking the truth."

"Then when your father comes I shall ask him to punish you."

In this way Mukunda came, Ragunandan's mother complained. "Your boy has grown to be such a rogue and he says the Deity has taken."

He also put to his father, "Yes, Deity has taken. He did not take in the beginning, but I began to cry, so Deity came and took."

"Is it true?"

"Yes. It is true my father I don't speak lie."

"Can you show me?"

"I shall try."

So he was given chance of worshipping, and one day stealthily his father could see the Deity has taken food.

So such type of devotee was Raghunandan Dāsa Ṭhākura. And he, when in saṅkīrtana he used to dance it was a charming scenery, even attracted Mahāprabhu Himself. And during the Jagannātha Ratha-yatra seven groups, special groups began to sing and to chant and to dance. In one party from Śrīkhaṇḍa Raghunandan was the dancer.

So this is the day connected with the memory, holy memory of that Raghunandan Ṭhākura. He's considered to be Pradyumna Avatāra. And many things are also connected. I'm going on shortly, touching. It is also a saying, that he, in the, there is a tree called this Jambu tree, and according to his wish everyday this kadamba puspa have to come in that tree for the worship of his own Deity. So many miracles are here connected with him.

Then, the fourth devotee, Raghunātha Dāsa, whom you know, he came from this Kṛṣṇapur, somewhere here in Hoogly district at present. He came in the kāyastha caste. His father was a very rich man. About nearly five hundred years ago his father, two brothers only one child, father, two brothers, only child one, Raghunātha. Father and uncle, they were owner of a zamīndār state. At that time it was fetching twenty lākhs. Twelve lākhs to be paid to the king and eight lākhs profit they had, net income. Net income was eight lākhs and the gross twenty lākhs. Only one child in the family, so adorable.

Mahāprabhu after sannyāsa - they heard the name of Mahāprabhu. They had closer connection with Advaita Ācārya. And also they used to help all the paṇḍits, Sanskrit scholars and their tols, their schools. They had their annual contribution to all the superior scholarly persons of the time in Bengal.

When Mahāprabhu took sannyāsa, and from Ramakeli went back to Advaita bhavan, Raghunātha Dāsa came and saw Him, and he became half mad in love of Kṛṣṇa. And the charm of Mahāprabhu, His beauty, and His personality, and His devotion, His preaching, His advices about devotion to Kṛṣṇa, melted his heart thoroughly. Mahāprabhu could understand. He did not leave Mahāprabhu.

But Mahaprabhu told him, "Go home. Don't be over enthusiastic, control yourself. Keep your divine love for Kṛṣṇa within your heart, don't express it outside, don't advertise. A time will come very soon when Kṛṣṇa will make His way for you, very soon. You go now. Don't have any external show, but keep it within your heart."

"sthira hañā ghare yāo, nā hao vātula / krame krame pāya loka bhava-sindhu-kūla

["Be patient and return home. Don't be a crazy fellow. By and by you will be able to cross the ocean of material existence."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 16.237]

"Gradually the chance will come to help you. Wait and go home.

84.02.07.B_84.02.09.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "You are a son of a rich man. Manage to do the feast here for My followers."

He managed that. Nityānanda Prabhu was very __ [?] blessings. "Very soon your bright day is coming."

And He also addressed His followers, "Look at this young boy, he has got immense wealth. Everything what is required for a young man for enjoyment, profusely, everything with him, but he does not like them, does not like them. Kṛṣṇa's grace has come down in his heart. He does not like anything, but he's mad for going out from the home of this material danger, and to become a beggar, street beggar for Kṛṣṇa, he has become mad. Just to see to this ideal, high ideal devotion, attraction, love of Kṛṣṇa has made him mad. He's very, very fortunate. This royal dignity and this prosperity does not, cannot please him."

Then anyhow he went home. And one day while all were watching he don't go to the harem but he began to stay outside. Father and other guardians, they thought that his condition has become very grave. So, ten persons were engaged to guard him. "Any moment he may go out. Ten persons enlist."

One day, the early morning, their family Guru Yadunandana Ācārya, suddenly entered the house. And finding Raghunātha in the outhouse, he meet him and requested that, "I'm going out for some important business. But my Deity there is none to worship, so please ask that brāhmaṇa gentleman to serve my Deities for a day or two during my absence. Please request in my name to do this."

Then, he gave this advice and went away, and Raghunātha also went, followed him. And the guards saw that he's going, he's following the family priest, family Guru, so did not interfere.

Raghunātha on the way requested the Guru, "You go in your own business. I shall go alone to request the gentleman to do the service during your absence."

He also went away, and Raghunātha took that advantage, perhaps requested that man, and he went away, in the opposite direction. He knew that whenever they'll find that "Raghunātha is not coming home, where has he gone? They know that I shall go to Purī, they'll send men towards the way of Jagannātha Purī." But he went the opposite direction, Raghunātha, opposite direction. "That they will come, very soon men will come to search me." Opposite direction, the whole day in opposite direction. Then in the evening, went to some milkman's house and a little milk he begged and took, and passed the time there in the cowshed. Then in the morning he began to start towards Purī.

These people - "Where is Raghunātha? The guards said he went with the family Guru, but in his house he's not there. Where has he gone? He must have left for Purī." Then so many men ran to that side but they could not find him, they came back.

And Raghunātha tactfully he managed to go. Twelve days, day and night he began to walk towards Purī. Only three days taking some food, other days no food was necessary. He was fed with divine love, surcharged. Only three days, out of twelve days, three days he took something, here and there.

And when Raghunātha enquired where Mahāprabhu is, already he heard in that house - Gambhīrā, Kāśī Miśra bhavan. He went there and fell flat, just in the compound, and just before Mahāprabhu. The attendant of Mahāprabhu - Govinda, he told that Raghunātha has come and introduced to Mahāprabhu.

"Yes, look after him. He has come with great difficulty without food, he's only walking, walking. Take care of him for few days, then he will mange for himself." That was the direction of Mahāprabhu.

From that day, for few days perhaps he took prasādam there, after that he began to beg. In the gate of the Jagannātham, then in the chatram began to beg.

The parents thought that is impossible to take him here, they did not make any other attempt. But they sent one brāhmaṇa, two servants, and some money. "Go and hire a house, and see that my son may not die without food, try to feed him at least. And hire a house and try to keep him there, and at least some food you will manage to give him."

They tried their best. But Raghunātha he was eating, begging, he took not. He invited Mahāprabhu for two years to take food there. By his request Mahāprabhu took food, took prasādam there for his satisfaction. After that Raghunātha left that idea. "That this only to purchase some name and fame. Mahāprabhu is not pleased to have such prasādam." In this way.

Then Mahāprabhu put him - Svarūpa Dāmodara was the most favourite attendant of Mahāprabhu and a good scholar also. Raghunātha was also scholarly, he was a scholar, afterwards we find from his writings. Beautiful poetry in Sanskrit he has written for us afterwards. So Mahāprabhu gave him in charge of Svarūpa Dāmodara.

"Svarūpa Dāmodara, I request him to take charge of you, and he will advise you what will be necessary for your devotional life."

But suddenly one day Raghunātha approached Mahāprabhu. "Why You have managed to take me out of my house, my home? And what is my best benefit? If You please say through Your own words then my heart becomes satisfied."

Then Mahāprabhu in nutshell told,

[grāmya-kathā nā śunibe,] grāmya-vārtā nā kahibe / bhāla nā khāibe āra bhāla nā paribe]

["Do not talk like people in general or hear what they say. You should not eat very palatable food, nor should you dress very nicely."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 6.236]

[amānī mānada hañā] kṛṣṇa-nāma sadā la'be / vraje rādhā-kṛṣṇa-sevā mānase karibe]

["Do not expect honour, but offer all respect to others. Always chant the Holy Name of Lord Kṛṣṇa, and within your mind render service to Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa in Vṛndāvana."] [Caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 6.237]

"I have given you in charge of Svarūpa Dāmodara. He knows, he's qualified even more than Me. Still if you want to hear something direct from Me then I say that don't indulge you in this worldly talk, or attend worldly talks. These mundane matters you try to avoid your best.

Grāmya-vārtā nā kahibe / bhāla nā khāibe āra bhāla nā paribe. And don't eat delicious dishes. Whatever will come of itself, ordinary food, that you will take.

And, amānī mānada hañā kṛṣṇa-nāma sadā la'be. Always try to take the Name of Kṛṣṇa, with this attitude, amānī mānada, that you'll give respect to others but don't expect any respect from others, anyone. You'll be humble, but don't expect any respectful dealings from others - don't, never aspire after. In this way you'll try to take the Name of Kṛṣṇa constantly.

And, vraje rādhā-kṛṣṇa-sevā mānase karibe. And in the mind, in the inside, you'll try to serve Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa in Vṛndāvana. As if mentally you're in Vṛndāvana and you're rendering service to Rādhā- Kṛṣṇa līlā. This is My advice, main advice to you."

And then again He took his hand and put into Svarūpa Dāmodara's hand. "I'm giving you in charge of Svarūpa Dāmodara. He's the best spiritual guide, teacher, and he'll take care of you." In this way.

And when Raghunātha entered that Purī, he reached Purī and stayed there, Mahāprabhu stayed sixteen years still. Sixteen years Mahāprabhu was in appearance there, and Raghunātha was there. After sixteen years Mahāprabhu departed.

And Raghunātha left Purī and went to Vṛndāvana, thinking that, "I shall, what to get I have got. But only I want to have a view of Vṛndāvana Dhāma and then I'll leave this body from Govardhana." He thought, "I shall try to mount in the highest peak of Govardhana and from there I shall fall down to the ground, and necessarily I shall, my body will die." With this idea he went to Vṛndāvana.

But there he came in touch of Sanātana Goswāmī and Rūpa Goswāmī, and found the beginning of a new life. "What is this? Mahāprabhu has not departed. Mahāprabhu is living in them."

Rūpa, Sanātana was a delegated power by Mahāprabhu to teach this real devotional current got from Him, in a new light. And they were asked to draw it from different scriptures to prove that what Mahāprabhu taught them, that is the very gist and the purpose of all scriptures. Vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo.

[sarvasya cāhaṁ hṛdi sanniviṣṭho, mattaḥ smṛtir jñānam apohanaṁ ca
vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo, vedānta-kṛd veda-vid eva cāham]

["I am situated (as the Supersoul) within the heart of all souls, and from Me arises the soul's remembrance, knowledge, and the dissipation of both (according to his karma, or action in the mundane plane). I am the exclusive knowable (ecstatic) principle of all the Vedas. I am the author of the Vedānta - Vedavyāsa, the expounder of the knowable meaning of the Vedas. And certainly I am the knower of the purport of the Vedas."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.15]

As in Bhagavad-gītā. "The fulfilment, the attempt of every revealed scripture is to show Me, that I'm the highest centre, I'm the Absolute."

"Kṛṣṇa is the Absolute, try to prove this. What I say to you, you try to prove from the help of the different scriptures and historical reference. By any means try to prove that Kṛṣṇa Svayaṁ-Bhagavān, Vraja līlā, Vṛndāvana līlā is the highest achievement for us."

And that was begun by them, those two brothers. And Raghunātha came in their connection, association, and found, "Oh, Mahāprabhu is here!" He could not, he left the idea of leaving this world and joined them as a disciple, of Rūpa, Sanātana, in their connection.

Mahāprabhu gave order to Sanātana Goswāmī that, "My followers are very poor, helpless. If they come any time in Vṛndāvana you're to look after them. Caretaker, you'll have to be caretaker of all My poor disciples, whoever will come to Vṛndāvana."

Appealing to Sanātana Goswāmī. And Rūpa took the charge, took care.

Raghunātha was so self-forgetful. He was in the Rādhā Kuṇḍa one day, sitting, taking Name, one tiger came and it took, drinking water by his side. He does not care.

Sanātana Goswāmī suddenly reached there, and his view saw that incident. "What is this?"

He, Raghunātha used to live under a shade of a tree.

Then Sanātana Goswāmī requested, "It is my order, you should construct a hut, a cottage, and live there. Don't disobey my request. I entreat you to do this."

Then from that time he managed to construct a small cottage and he used to live there.

His abnegation, this vairāgya was incomparable. The vairāgya, the abnegation, indifference to the worldly enjoyment, was of very high degree, of both Sanātana, Rūpa, all the Goswāmīs. But Raghunātha he surpassed all. When he was in Purī, sometimes in the beginning begging prasāda from the gate of Jagannātha temple. Then sometimes in the chatram where generally the beggars are given by the rich fellow, in some way prasādam distribution, free distribution of prasādam. Then he found that, "I'm taking what is due to others karma." Where the Jagannātha prasāda which is not sold, that is given to the cows of Jagannātha. But when it is so much stale, that emitting bad scent, the cows also can't eat, that prasāda of Jagannātha he used to take and washing by sufficient water and putting some salt, he used to take that.

And Mahāprabhu heard this. And one day when he was taking that prasāda Mahāprabhu approached and suddenly took something to eat, Mahāprabhu. "Oh! I have tasted many types of prasādam of Jagannātha. But so sweet prasāda I have never taken anywhere!"

So what is the taste in the prasāda? Not mundane. So much faith, so intense faith in the prasādam. The rotten things which, applying little salt he's taking and giving, and he's the son of a kingly style family.

In Vṛndāvana also when Raghunātha went, in last days he used only to take one pot of this - mata [?]

Badrinārāyaṇa: Buttermilk.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: When the curd mixed with water and some movement it produces something - mata, go mata, buttermilk or something. He used one pot of buttermilk and passed his days. That is not possible for a man of flesh and blood. They're really persons come down from the other world, so it was possible for them to show the ideal of abnegation in different ways, the vairāgyam. It is not possible for ordinary human beings of flesh and blood to observe such degree of abnegation; then he will die. But he created the standard, the ideal of such vairāgya, Raghunātha.

And he studied the production of Rūpa Goswāmī, of the highest type of rasa, mādhurya rasa. And he appreciated the very acme, the highest object, what is the divine service, the culminating point of divine service - that is Rādhā dāsya. So he's called prayojana Ācārya. Sanātana Goswāmī generally conceived by the paravati [?] by the Ācāryas of the later days as sambandha jñāna. What is what? What is our position in this world, and what is what? Sambandha. My position is where in this hierarchy, spiritual hierarchy? That was explained more clearly by Sanātana. And then, what should we cultivate and how to attain to that end? That was mainly given by Rūpa Goswāmī. In the domain of love, how we can attain fulfilment of our life? Rūpa Goswāmī. And what is particularly the highest point of our attainment? That was very strongly shown by Raghunātha Dāsa, Rādhā-kantha. In his famous śloka he says.

āśābharair-amṛta-sindhu-mayaiḥ kathañcit, kālo mayātigamitaḥ kila sāmprataṁ hi tvaṁ cet kṛpaṁ mayi vidhāsyasi naiva kiṁ me, prānair vrajema ca varoru bakārināpi?
[Vilāpa-Kusumāñjali, 102]

This śloka has given us the conception of our highest attainment in the school of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu. What is that? He says, he's addressing to Rādhārāṇī.

"Oh, my mistress! My, the Lord of my heart. Āśābharair-amṛta-sindhu-mayaiḥ. From long time, from long, long time I'm waiting with great patience to have Your mercy. Āśābharair-amṛta. And that is so sweet to me I cannot avoid it. It is heart melting, heart attracting, heart gracing. It is so deeply touching me I can't avoid Your service connection. Amṛta-sindhu-mayaiḥ kathañcit, kālo mayāti. Anyhow I have managed to come, so long time, so long way. I'm impatient now. Be gracious.

Kathañcit, kālo mayātigamitaḥ kila sāmprataṁ hi, tvaṁ cet kṛpaṁ mayi vidhāsyasi naiva kiṁ me. If You are not propitiated, not gracious with me, then I have got no hope. I have come to the end. My present life will be finished here. Even so much so, that what I shall do with this Vṛndāvana? Vṛndāvana is of no use to me. Kathañcit, kālo mayātigamitaḥ kila sāmprataṁ hi, tvaṁ cet kṛpaṁ mayi vidhāsyasi naiva kiṁ me, prānair. What is the utility of my life, living? It is useless. What is this, for my existence it is useless, it will come to end, no utility. And even this Vṛndāvana, this Vṛndāvana is also not for my liking. I don't, I can't love this Vṛndāvana which is associated with this līlā, vrajema.

What to speak, even I can't relish the company of Kṛṣṇa. What can I do without You? Without You even Kṛṣṇa has no meaning in me. I can't tolerated Him. In my life I can relish neither this environment, not even Kṛṣṇa. If He Himself comes to grace me, I can't relish that, without Your connection. So please be gracious with me. You are all in all. Without You, to get, to achieve Kṛṣṇa consciousness, that is not Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Your position is such, so great and so beautiful, in Kṛṣṇa līlā. You are the centre of all the līlā of Kṛṣṇa. So without You I can't conceive any life, any living. And even the Vṛndāvana and anything else. I extremely surrender to You for Your grace my Mistress."

In this way, Rādhā dāsya. Our best fulfilment is in the service of Rādhā, because Rādhārāṇī can fully attract Kṛṣṇa, grace of Kṛṣṇa, She can only. The other half who can draw the maximum rasa, ecstasy from Kṛṣṇa, and who are in quantity as well in quality. So those that are serving Rādhārāṇī, in their remuneration of service to Rādhārāṇī, they get the highest type of qualitative of rasa from Kṛṣṇa. That cannot be had in any other channel. And what comes through Rādhārāṇī that is of the highest quality. So the service of Rādhārāṇī, that should be our summum bonum of life. This was announced clearly by Raghunātha Dāsa Goswāmī Prabhu, and who is considered to be prayojana Ācārya. That he's the guide to show us what is, where is our best fulfilment of life - Dāsa Raghunātha.

So by coming in connection with this day, and by our discussion, try our poor attempt to discuss with all these things, we may be benefited in our achievement towards our goal. Dāsa Goswāmī.

Then, these are the days of advent of these mahātmās.

...

Now we come to Viśvanātha Cakravartī. This day, his day of disappearance from this world, day of disappearance. Viśvanātha Cakravartī. About two hundred years after, Viśvanātha Cakravartī came. He composed the commentary of Bhagavad-gītā, elaborate commentary of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, and many other books to help these devotees who came afterwards in this sankalpa. A big Ācārya he was. Many things he has dealt in his own way to make understandable, to approach properly towards the śāstric dispensation of Rūpa, Sanātana, and others, Bhāgavatam, like that. Viśvanātha Cakravartī Ṭhākura. And by his grace Baladeva Vidyābhūṣaṇa also composed the commentary of Vedānta, Govinda-bhāṣya. So there are many things to be read. Viśvanātha Cakravartī was born in the Nadia district, just on the, near the Ganges, from Devagram or somewhere. And comes from brāhmaṇa family, high family, and he himself was a great scholar of Sanskrit. He came in the line of Narottama Ṭhākura, and he gave us extensive scriptures to help, to know very precisely and very elaborately to know about the pastimes of Mahāprabhu, as well as Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, Vṛndāvana, Navadwīpa. The Guru Paramparā we chant...

saṁsāra-dāvānala-līḍha-loka-, [trāṇāya kāruṇya-ghanāghanatvam

["The Spiritual Master is receiving benediction from the ocean of mercy. Just as a cloud pours water on a forest fire to extinguish it, so the Spiritual Master delivers the materially afflicted world by extinguishing the blazing fire of material existence. I offer my respectful obeisances unto the lotus feet of such a Spiritual Master, who is an ocean of auspicious qualities."] [Śrī Śrī Gurv-aṣṭaka, 1]

...comes from him, and many things come from him. He has written notes. Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu-bindhu. Rūpa Goswāmī has written the ocean of the rasa of Bhakti-rasāmṛta- sindhu, and he says one drop of that. Then Sanātana Goswāmī Prabhu's Bṛhat-Bhāgavatāmṛta, he says one drop here, kona, kirana-bindhu. And Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi, the jewel of supernatural world - Kṛṣṇa in mādhurya rasa He has got kirana-bindhu, kirana, one ray, particular ray of that. And then many booklets he has, and poetry he has composed for us to... And Mahāprabhu's aṣṭa-kālīya-līlā. Just as Rūpa Goswāmī Prabhu has given aṣṭa-kālīya-līlā, twenty four hours service engagement with Kṛṣṇa, Rādhā-Govinda. Viśvanātha Cakravartī has given us in Caitanya līlā twenty four hours of engagement in the service of Mahāprabhu, he has given. So he has done a great service to the sampradāya and to distribute his mercy towards us - Viśvanātha Cakravartī Ṭhākura.

...

Then another two Godbrothers, one Bharati Mahārāja and one Parvata Mahārāja, our senior Godbrother sannyāsī disciples of our Guru Mahārāja, they also preached.

That Bharati Mahārāja was very popular, his preaching style was very charming and capturing. We appreciated his preaching in the beginning very much, attractive.

And Parvat Mahārāja was also one of the earliest disciples of our Guru Mahārāja. He was born in this Svarūpa-Gaṅgā, on the other side of the Ganges here.

And he saw Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura also chanting. He was born in a house, the next house where Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura lived for some time _____ [?] And from his childhood he saw Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura and chanting his names.

He told to me, "In early morning Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura he was chanting Hare Kṛṣṇa mahā-mantra just as one is calling a man who is far off. Living: a man calling another man. In this way, living way, he was calling Kṛṣṇa. And he was old, and attacked with some rheumatism. In His sweet will. And there was one cement chair was constructed, and he was walking and when he felt fatigued he used to take his seat." Perhaps that is also there now. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura.

And in early age he went to Prabhupāda and took shelter under him. He was posted in Purī, Jagannātha, for a long time, Bhakti-kuṭīra, appointed by Prabhupada, taking prasādam and living in Purī, Jagannātha, Bhakti-kuṭīra, as a protector of that house. Then when Prabhupāda begin his preaching life he came and became a sannyāsī. In Uddala he established a Maṭha, no, Orissa, and preached there specially in the...

And when in the lifetime of Prabhupāda he used to preach in the whole of Bengal and outside also.

One thing I remember about preaching, he's talking with - I'm a newcomer in the Maṭha - he's speaking to another gentleman. "I want to preach in that quarter." Some east Bengal now.

They told, "Oh! You have come to preach here? Do you know there is one siddha-mahātmā? On the side of that particular river there is a person who is regarded as siddha-mahātmā. He has attained the highest end of life. Have you seen him? You have come here." And he's saying.

I told him that, "There is many siddha: this alu siddha, that potato boiled, another meaning of siddha is boiled. I have seen many siddha, this potato boiled, this other boiled, this, that boiled, so many boiled things we have already."

"What do you say? You are insulting us! Yes, yes!"

"This is not insult. This view of all those siddhas they know nothing. What Mahāprabhu has said that is the highest. All other proposals are trash, and these nasty things. We have come from a great mahātmā to carry to you the highest summum bonum of life of Mahāprabhu, Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam etc. We do not care a fig for all these cheaters in the garb of religion, they're cheating the people."

That was the preaching way, or method of preaching, style of preaching of Gaudiya Maṭha in those days, forceful. So, as I have got capacity, I try my best to represent to you what I know little about these mahātmās. And I pray that they may be propitiated with us, and we may get some favour from them. With this prayer I stop here.

vāñchā-kalpatarubhyaś ca kṛpā-sindhubhya eva ca

mahā-viṣṇur jagat-kartā, māyayā yaḥ sṛjaty adaḥ [tasyāvatāra evāyam, advaitācārya īśvaraḥ]

["Lord Advaita Ācārya is the incarnation of Mahā-Viṣṇu, whose main function is to create the cosmic world through the actions of māyā."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 6.4]

Kṛṣṇa has got His various Avatāra. Avatāra. Avatāram. Come down. Kṛṣṇa conception is the highest. There is also differentiated character in Vṛndāvana, Dvārakā, etc, Mathurā. Then again in Vaikuṇṭha, come down, same thing coming down, approaching towards māyā, misconception. From the spontaneous pastimes coming down in Vaikuṇṭha in constitutional method, to deal with the kingdom of spiritual, purely spiritual realm. There is also Caturvyūha, then other twenty four functional Gods, all spiritual - fully. Then He has got this Avatāra, Daśa Avatāra, Līlā Avatāra, Vaibhava Avatāra, Puruṣa Avatāra. Puruṣa Avatāra are three: with permanent function, one in the back of the whole māyāic creation, at the back of the whole misunderstood world. Kāraṇārṇavaśāyī. Then next there are so many brahmāṇḍa, and the back of each brahmāṇḍa Garbhodakaśāyī. Dvitiya Puruṣa. Patam Puruṣa, Dvitiya Puruṣa. And third, at the back of every jīva consciousness, Paramātmā, Kṣīrodakaśāyī. Three types of Puruṣa Avatāra. They're all connected with this misunderstood part of the whole. Vaibhava Avatāra, or Matsya, Kūrma, Varāha, etc, ten. Yuga Avatāra, Haṁsa, Yajña, Kṛṣṇa, Gaurāṅga, Yuga Avatāra...

Devotee: So I was trying to understand that about these different kinds of dīkṣā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But this is not new. This Hari Nāma dīkṣā, and then ordinary dīkṣā means this Gāyatrī. Brahmā Gāyatrī and that Pañcarātrika dīkṣā, after that dīkṣā this Brahmā Gāyatrī dīkṣā, along with that. And then sannyāsa. Three. They say that Pañcarātrika dīkṣā and Gāyatrī dīkṣā, two different? Three, first means Hari Nāma, second, what they told?

Devotee: Brahmā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Brahmā Gāyatrī. And then?

Devotee: Then they told Vaiṣṇava.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then Vaiṣṇava dīkṣā? But our Guru Mahārāja - the Brahmā Gāyatrī dīkṣā and this Vaiṣṇava dīkṣā, that was at one time. Vaiṣṇava dīkṣā.

Devotee: Pañcarātrika dīkṣā is also Brahmā Gāyatrī?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Pañcarātrika dīkṣā not Brahmā Gāyatrī. Gāyatrī vaidik dīkṣā. Pañcarātrika dīkṣā they call it Vaiṣṇava dīkṣā. Generally some recognition is given to the caste brāhmaṇa.

Have you heard the name of Korana? In America?

Devotee: Korana? No.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's proving, or researching a particular thing. He says, "If I can get one cell from the body of Napoleon then I can make many Napoleons from different cells."

Just as from the vegetable kingdom there is that sugar candy, and many parts may be taken. In potato also, many sprouts come, and if we cut them to pieces then one sprout may produce one potato plant.

So also in human body there are many cells, and from every cell in a scientific way we can get the man whose body cell it is.

Devotee: Hmm, cloning.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The mentality, the vigour, everything is contained in the every particle by which the body is constructed.

So some importance is there in the bodily succession, general, but there is exception. So those that come from a śūdra or mleccha body that is generally considered impure. From their ancestors they were not preparing particular rites and these customs following so the impurity is there.

And the smārta section, the Śaṅkarite interpretor, many of them, and some of the Madhva School Vaiṣṇava, they also admit that. That by Hari Nāma the purification of the subtle body is effected. But the karma which is attached to be suffered or enjoyed in this particular body, that cannot be purified by Hari Nāma, by anything else. All the karma, this action which we have done in our previous life they are classified, kūṭaṁ bījaṁ phalonmukham.

[aprārabdha-phalaṁ pāpaṁ kūṭaṁ bījaṁ phalonmukham
krameṇaiva pralīyeta viṣṇu-bhakti-ratātmanām]

["The four types of sin known as aprārabdha, kūṭa, bīja and phalonmukha are gradually eradicated for persons exclusively attached to devotion for the Supreme Lord Viṣṇu."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu]

First prārabdha and aprārabdha. The karma, the action which has been attached to be enjoyed or suffered in this body, that is prārabdha. And which is deposited to be experienced in future, that is aprārabdha. It's begun, and not begun. Prārabdha means which is begun already, and aprārabdha which is left out for future. Again, which is left out for future that is also divided into three. Kūṭaṁ bījaṁ phalonmukham. In Hari-bhakti-vilāsa [?] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu] we can find all these details collected from different scriptures by Rūpa Goswāmī. Kūṭaṁ means undetectable portion of our past action which we cannot read. What are the activities, what are the results contained there in a very fine way, in microscopic way how we can't detect that.

Just as we're told now that in Japan they're preserving a library where the letters of the book cannot be read by the ordinary eye - with microscope. So composed by smallest letter so many books in a small encyclopaedia only in a small book. It is they're accommodating in their library, the smallest composition which cannot be read by ordinary eye. Microscopic glass is necessary to read the books.

So kūṭaṁ, which is undetectable, like a plane of action. And gradually that will come out and they will demand their satisfaction, kūṭaṁ.

Bījaṁ. Bījaṁ means which is detectable, more clear, actions more clear, that is bījaṁ. We can understand that 'this is the seed of that plant, this is the seed of that plant.' That is bīja means seed, which is detectable. 'This is the seed of particular action. This is the seed of another, the murder, and this blackmailing, this is that.' So many that can be detectable.

And phalonmukham, there are others who are waiting to get their realisation very soon, demanding. "The next chance I must get." This is aprārabdha.

And prārabdha which has got their satisfaction in this body. These are the divisions.

But they say, the Vedic scholars are generally of this opinion that what is prārabdha, already begun to be experienced in this body, that cannot be changed. It is out of hand. And others which are reserved for future, that may be finished by our good action, good activity. We may not have to undergo all these reactions.

But the Vaiṣṇava School, this Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇava, they say this prārabdha can also be removed. What is already attached to be experienced in this body, that also can be removed only by Hari Nāma - by no other means. Only Kṛṣṇa Nāma, Hari Nāma, can purify one which is already begun to be experienced in this body. So he may be purified. A śūdra, mleccha, can by properly taking Hari Nāma, then he may be converted into brāhmaṇism. It is possible by Hari Nāma. They have given quotations from different places, and by their analysis of the meaning of those quotations they're saying that they may be free from the prārabdha karma which is already begun to be experienced in this life. Now the śloka from Bhāgavatam.

[bhaktyāham ekayā grāhyaḥ śraddhayātmā priyaḥ satām]
bhaktiḥ punāti man-niṣṭhā śvapākān api sambhavāt

["I, who am dear to the sādhus, can be reached only by devotion born of unalloyed faith. Even a dog-flesh-eating outcaste who dedicates himself to exclusive devotion for Me is delivered from the influence of the wretched circumstances of his birth."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.14.21]

Śva means kukur [?] dog, even the dog eaters, that is the lower section, they also can be purified from their lower birth. Another, yan-nāmadheya-śravaṇānukīrttanāt, yat prahvaṇād yat smaraṇād api kvacit śvādo 'pi sadyaḥ savanāya kalpate, [kutaḥ punas te bhagavan nu darśanāt]

[Devahūti says: "O Lord, if he just hears Your Name, then chants it, offer You obeisances and remembers You, even a person born as a dog-eating outcaste instantly becomes eligible to perform the Soma sacrifice; to say nothing of the purification of those who see You directly."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 3.33.6]

Those dog eaters and lowest class people, they can be immediately purified by taking the Name of the Lord. Now Jīva Goswāmī is again giving commentation to this. Yes, the prārabdha is gone. You note it very attentively. Savanāya kalpate, the kalpa, the Sanskrit word is used ishadonya [?] Indra kalpa, he's just like Indra but not Indra proper, a little less. Kalpate, savanāya kalpate. He becomes purified to such a standard as he can perform the sacrifice which is reserved only for the brāhmaṇas. Kalpate means little difference. So here Jīva Goswāmī has given his own commentation. What is the little difference? That his prārabdha gone, and he attains the position of a boy of a brāhmaṇa.

But the boy is not allowed for this brāhmaṇa yajña until and unless he's given the sacred thread. That is also, a saṁskāra is necessary. Janmanā jāyate śūdraḥ - by birth everyone is impure, but only by saṁskāra, but who will be fit for saṁskāra? Only the brāhmaṇa boy. Now, he reaches the stage of brāhmaṇa boy, and not the brāhmaṇa. Then when that saṁskāra is given to that brāhmaṇa boy, from any caste he may come, taking Hari Nāma, he should be considered as brāhmaṇa boy. And again when that Gāyatrī saṁskāra, the brāhmaṇa saṁskāra is given, then he gets the recognition of a bona fide brāhmaṇa and he can do the yajña and Śālagrāma arcana, all these things.

So, the Hari Nāma, taking the Name of the Lord, of course in a proper way we're to suppose, then his karma vanishes, and body purified, he's considered to be a brāhmaṇa boy. And then when the sacred thread is conferred to him he'll be eligible for all activity.

This is the scientific position. So that Pañcarātrika dīkṣā may not be necessary. Hari Nāma is sufficient. Still, the brāhmaṇa saṁskāra, the Gāyatrī, Vedic saṁskāra, that is given. And Pañcarātrika dīkṣā also given to help him to a greater degree.

Just as one gets a university scholarship, and there is also district scholarship also there, that comes to help him. His university scholarship is all important, but some subservient appreciation also comes to enhance his position, something.

The Hari Nāma circle, purifying circle, is the greatest circle, from the lowest to the highest. And the Pañcarātrika help is a circle within the circle - it will help to take the Name and other things. So without it also one can do.

But there are so many brāhmaṇas and karma-kāṇḍīs who think that they're not given sacred thread they're lower. So they commit offence, so save them. And also a man who is taking the Name he thinks 'No, brāhmaṇas are bigger, we're less positioned holders.' His abhimāna, his ego, also must be helped to go higher. "Yes, I'm more than a brāhmaṇa, so I shall have to become very careful about my movements, about my eating, and other things." To help the person that he must not go below the standard of an ordinary purificatory section. And at the same time the society will also be warned to deal with these persons who are taking the Name of Hari, that they're taking exclusively given to the chanting of the Name of Hari so they're above brāhmaṇa.

This system was introduced by our Guru Mahārāja, extensively, conferring sacred thread. That is to give the position of a brāhmaṇa outwardly. Inwardly a Vaiṣṇava is above brāhmaṇa, in calculation from the inner side. But from the outer side also he created this particular society, that a Vaiṣṇava who is exclusively given to Kṛṣṇa consciousness is not less than a brāhmaṇa but more than that. To establish this position of the Vaiṣṇava in the society. And also to encourage him that, "You must not go down. You're taking the Name of Hari, exclusively given to Kṛṣṇa consciousness. You're to maintain your position in the external way, in such way that even the brāhmaṇas, Vedic school, they have some reverence. Must be cautious in your dealings and in your practices." And the society also, "Don't underestimate these persons that are exclusively given to Kṛṣṇa consciousness." In this way he formed.

But Mahāprabhu did not introduce this. Rūpa, Sanātana, and others, followers, they did not care to take any sacred thread. And also, in the sannyāsa system of the varṇāśrama, Śaṅkara and others, when they take sannyāsa they give up the sacred thread to the fire. No necessity of sacred thread, they're above that, above brāhmaṇa. But their creed is 'we're one with Brahman.' But here is the infinite difference. A Vaiṣṇava, however higher, he'll say, "I'm the slave of Kṛṣṇa, and the slave of the slaves of the slave of Kṛṣṇa." But here they say, "We're the highest entity identified." So this is māyāvāda, they're fully prey to misconception, misreading of the revealed scriptures, Veda. That is the position.

So, in Manu saṁhitā [2.260] we find three class of birth.

mātur agre 'dhijananaṁ dvitīyaṁ mauñji-bandhane tritīyaṁ yajña-dīkṣāyāṁ dvijasya śruti-codanāt

Mātur agre 'dhijananaṁ. First we get the body from father and mother, from the parents. Dvitīyaṁ mauñji-bandhane. The second is by getting sacred thread in a brāhmaṇa family. Tritīyaṁ yajña-dīkṣāyāṁ. The third, then again take this Pāñcarātrikī-dīkṣā, to help him more progressively. This is in Manu-saṁhitā - three births. A man has three births to be a brāhmaṇa. First birth from the parent body. The second, mauñji-bandhane, that is Gāyatrī, Vedic dīkṣā.

"Try to have your reading from the example as have been set by the Veda. According to the revealed truth, try to - what your experience says, don't believe them - but what the revealed truth says, wants you how to read the environment, you try to follow that. Don't survey your environment with your own fleshy ear and eye, but with some scientific education you try to see things aside."

So science is also mundane, but the revealed truth says to us to see things in another way. "This is not for me, but this is all for the Supreme Authority. We're a particle of that. Try to see in this way, read things in this way, read your environment in this way. Everything belongs to the centre and we're a part of that organic whole, and your duty should be ascertained accordingly." This is Vedic process of reading things aside. And ordinary, "I'm monarch of all I survey." Everything we want to utilise for our purpose. This is mundane. So, dīkṣā, divyaṁ jñānaṁ yato dadyāt, kuryāt pāpasya saṅkṣayam

tasmād dīkṣeti sā proktā, deśikais tattva-kovidaiḥ

["The process by which divine knowledge (divyaṁ jñānaṁ) is given and sins are destroyed is called dīkṣā by the highly learned scholars who are expert in spiritual affairs."] [Hari-bhakti-vilāsa, 27]

What is the meaning of the word dīkṣā? Dīkṣā means the process by which divya-jñāna, means transcendental knowledge is imparted to a person, that is dīkṣā. New eye, upanayana. Upanayana means new eye is given to a person. The eye with which you are seeing, that is not correct seeing. But the eye is given from the Vedas, as Gāyatrī. From this time you try to learn your environment in a different way. That is, you're not one. Gāyatrī dīkṣā.

Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa, Satya. What you experience, the world of your experience, that is evolved from consciousness. Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ. Bhūr means this world of this flesh experience, the eye, ear, etc. Bhuvaḥ means mental aspect of the same. In this way the finer, finer, conceptions of the things. And what is the cause of such experience? Our consciousness, soul, the light within us. So with the help of that we can only read things aside, around us.

Savitur, Vareṇyam. And there is another realm which is venerable to this gross world of conception. Another venerable, worshippable realm is there, more fine, and there is a world, a plane, where God with His paraphernalia lives there. And they're all serving the centre, that is the norm there. They're quite known, fully known to the members that are living in that world that the centre is all-in-all. And we must obey the central authority, there we can thrive. That is proper life.

All these things, there is another world in the finer and finer area, above our soul, Supersoul area. All these things, the Gāyatrī comes to help us. "Don't think where you live by the experience of your fleshy senses, that is not all. But there are other planes of life and you must have recognition of them, and to prepare your programme of your life according to that.

"You cannot divorce those possibilities of different existence of planes. Prepare yourself properly for the whole world. Although at this moment you cannot have any experience of them, super-experience world there is world and you must prepare yourself for that. Otherwise you will have to meet failure in your life, not good success you'll get, you can attain in this life."

So that is dīkṣā, divyaṁ jñānam. Some transcendental knowledge is imparted to the man who is depending on his experienced knowledge, knowledge drawn from his perception. This is dīkṣā.

The Hari Nāma dīkṣā is the most central and simple. That there is one sound aspect of Him, you come in touch with that, and go on cultivating the sound aspect of the Whole, of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Only with the connection and cultivation of the sound aspect of Him you can go to the highest centre. That is Hari Nama; and the mantra, with some particular arrangement with the Name. Name must be there. "And particular, I'm casting me, throwing me, for the satisfaction of Him."

The mantra is couched in this way that, "I'm throwing myself for the satisfaction of my Supreme Lord." That attitude helps us to take the Name, how, with what attitude we should go on taking the Name. Sevonmukha – that we're dying for real life. Die to live. Sacrifice means 'die to live.' It is throwing oneself. The process of surrender has been given in the mantram.

You can make - advance in taking the Name in what process? You must throw yourself to the fire, and your present ego of experience that will be destroyed and the inner ego will come, and that will be more helping to you to take the real Nāma and to approach towards the real plane where Kṛṣṇa, your Lord, is living; to go to home. These are the things in dīkṣā.

Devotee: Sometimes our Guru Mahārāja used to say that in this lifetime one can be perfected and then at the end of this lifetime, go back home, back to Godhead. And sometimes he said that...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It is very rarely found that in this one life, single life, from this plane one can reach the highest plane. Very rarely found. But generally lives together required, if in a real process. Then there may be setback also. If one commits Vaiṣṇava aparādha and some Nāma aparādha then it may be detained again and again. It's not such a cheap thing. But still, there is possibility that if properly guided a proper soul may attain in a single life the highest position. It is not impossible.

Devotee: Sometimes he told that where Kṛṣṇa is having His pastimes within this material world, then that devotee will take birth there and he'll be trained according to how to serve to Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What do you say? That is to live in Vṛndāvana. That may help to certain extent, but more helpful this Navadwīpa. Because there's possibility of committing offences. We can misread, we can take this lust as love. We can misidentify our enjoyment as devotion, prema, possibility is there. Otherwise we shall become sahajiyā, they're imitating everything, only living in the land of what we see by our senses? It has been told that the Dhāma is aprākṛta, Dhāma is not material, not to be experienced by our senses. We must try to live in that Dhāma, Dhāma proper – cinmaya, that is fully conscious area.

So if we really do not want to deceive us then we're not ignore the steps by which we're to go there. But still, some help there will be, but Vṛndāvana is for the higher. There we can get some inspiration by the side, but if we're not sincere then we may commit - as attending Kṛṣṇa līlā, so also Kṛṣṇa Dhāma - we may commit offences and that will hurl us down.

Rather, Navadwīpa Dhāma - there also aparādha possible but very less, it will help us, for the sādhaka. "That I'm not so high. I'm not holding such high position as they were in Vṛndāvana. Our position is too low." So,

'kṛṣṇa-nāma' kare aparādhera vicāra [kṛṣṇa balile aparādhīra nā haya vikāra]

["There are offences to be considered while chanting the Hare Kṛṣṇa mantra. Therefore simply by chanting Hare Kṛṣṇa one does not become ecstatic."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 8.24]

The Name, the Dhāma, everything, there is consideration of offences; and less consideration of offences is in Navadwīpa Dhama. It's more liberal. But anyhow, the most important factor is that sādhu saṅga, the superior guide. Narottama Ṭhākura has written, tīrtha-yātrā pariśrama, kevala manera bhrama, sarvva-siddhi govinda-caraṇa [dṛḍha-bīśwāsa hṛde dhāri'mada-matsarja parihāri', sadā kara ananya bhajana]

["The struggle to travel to various holy pilgrimage places is simply the mind's mistake, because to make spiritual advancement all one actually needs is the lotus feet of Lord Govinda. Abandoning pride and envy, and with firm faith in your heart, always worship Lord Govinda without deviation."] ye tīrthe vaiṣṇava nāi, se tīrthete nāhi yāi, ki lābha hāṭiyā dūradeśa?

[Śrī Prema-bhakti-candrikā, 2.5]

yathāya vaiṣṇava-gaṇa, sei sthāna vṛndāvana, sei sthāne ānanda aśeṣa [Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura said] "Where is Vṛndāvana? A stage of realisation, that is Vṛndāvana, the highest stage of realisation is Vṛndāvana, there. Or this physical Vṛndāvana if we take it and we commit so many offences according to my habit then I shall have to go down mentally."

So sādhu and śāstra should be our guide. Only in that account we can go to Vṛndāvana, or anywhere and everywhere. But guiding star must be our Guru, always to guide me, what is what, say to me. As long as I'm, my self is not rising to that stage, I'm always under need of a guide, what is what, what is Vṛndāvana."

Vṛndāvana is not a physical eye experience. It is not in the world of our flesh experience. It is higher and higher. Through the śraddhā, through faith, we're to begin our journey towards subjective, super subjective area. That is Vṛndāvana proper, Kṛṣṇa proper. It is not to be found in anything physical. He can come here, sādhu, higher plane can come in the gross, but it is not easy for those that are living in the gross plane to rise up to the higher. They can come, an agent can come, and they can help to take us there. But without the help of the agent it is not easy to go by our own experience to that higher and higher plane. So always sādhu saṅga. If we go to Vṛndāvana we must have a guide. He will always caution me. "Don't see this in this angle of vision. You try to see it in this angle of vision, not that." In this way a guide, sādhu saṅga, that is the most important factor in the life of a bona fide seeker after truth. And next, śāstra, revealed scriptures.

In Bhagavad-gītā there are so many classifications according to - in three classes: sāttva, rāja, tāma. The lowest kind of knowledge says what is not that, forcibly says, "No, this is that." This is tāma guṇa. "I'm this body, I am." Tāma guṇa. And the rāja guṇa there is doubt, 'Oh, this may not be that. My conjecture, my experience may not be perfect." And in sāttva, the last of course, what is the thing, to understand that properly. So knowledge is of different stages.

To think that Vṛndāvana is in my eye experience, in my ear experience, in my touch experience, in the mundane, that is not Vṛndāvana. Vṛndāvana proper is in the Supersoul area. And our ātmā, soul, can only go; not this body, mind, etc. Otherwise what is the necessity of the sādhana, means to the end? Die to live. What are these things? Dīkṣā - throw yourself to the Vedic doctrine; give up your own knowledge of experience and invite the revealed estimation of the environment. What is this? To leave this world of our mundane experience and to go to the transcendental world.

Anyhow that must be effect, that journey. Without that journey a short cut is not necessary. Short cut with the help of a proper guide, without loosing much, wasting much time, we can go shortly to there. And also if I had some experience of previous life to that effect, that may help us to shorten the journey of this life.

Who is he?

Devotee: Kiranatha.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You went to see that āśrama at Kalna? Nakula Brahmacārī. And afterwards his name was given by Mahāprabhu as Nṛsiṁhānanda. Nṛsiṁhānanda after meeting of Mahāprabhu, and previously he was Nakula Brahmacārī. And his birthplace was nearby Kalna, some place. Where two or three sahajiyā, perhaps Vasudeva's followers are there in charge - who are disciples in the Vasudeva Prabhu's line. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari.

Devotee: They say that without receiving that siddha-praṇālī that the perfection is not complete, the journey is not complete.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Let them do so. That is, they're representing the sahajiyā school.

Our Guru Mahārāja has written several poems. Prākṛta-Rasa Śata-Dūṣaṇī – 'A hundred blames, defects, in the sahajiyā process of thinking.' Innumerable, but he has put a hundred points, that these are the defects in their process of advance. Mainly, they're very easy purchasers, they're not prepared to pay the real cost, price, not real price, easy purchasers. The death blow to them is this.

vaikuṇṭhera pṛthivy ādi [sakala cinmaya, māyika bhūtera tathi janma nāhi haya]

["The earth, water, fire, air and ether of Vaikuṇṭha are all spiritual. Material elements are not found there."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 5.53]

In the beginning.

upajiyā bāḍe latā 'brahmāṇḍa' bhedi' yāya ['virajā,' 'brahmaloka,' bhedi' 'paravyoma' pāya tabe yāya tad upari 'goloka-vṛndāvana' / 'kṛṣṇa-caraṇa'-kalpavṛkṣe kare ārohana]

["The creeper of devotion is born, and grows to pierce the wall of the universe. It crosses the Virajā river and the Brahman plane, and reaches to the Vaikuṇṭha plane. Then it grows further up to Goloka Vṛndāvana, finally reaching to embrace the wish-yielding tree of Kṛṣṇa's Lotus Feet."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.153-4]

It must cross the different subtle layers of this brahmāṇḍa - world of experience, gross and subtle. Then Virajā, the extremity of the jurisdiction of māyā, misconception. Then Brahman conception, the halo of the real world, transcendental world. Then Vaikuṇṭha. Vaikuṇṭha means, 'virajā,' 'brahmaloka,' bhedi' 'paravyoma' pāya. Paravyoma is a sphere of consciousness. What is that Paravyoma? Jīva comes from taṭasthā loka, marginal position, abscissa, jīva, and he's to go through higher planes whose soil is more valuable than he himself. Can you follow? Vaikuṇṭhera pṛthivy ādi sakala cinmaya. What is Vaikuṇṭha? There the soil, earth, water, tree, everything is of purer consciousness than the person who is going to enter there. Can you think?

Devotee: "Land of Gurus." You wrote one chapter. In one of your books you talked about 'land of Gurus.'

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. They're all Guru, they're of superior value. By creation they're of superior position. And I'm to pass over them.

Just as I give some example. That for the service, if necessary, then we put our foot on the throne of the Lord, and then do some service, and then come and then bow down, give our obeisance, and then come out.

So we're to stay there, enter and stay in a soil which is made of a stuff which is more valuable than my own self. Just as a slave when serving the emperor, he may go to his bed, where even his near and dear also cannot hesitate to go. He can, only for service. So only for the service, for the necessity of the highest, that we can pass through that soil. It is not an easy thing, inconceivable. So the fools rush in where angels fear to tread.

Vaikuṇṭhera pṛthivy ādi sakala cinmaya. Properly we have to understand. Jīva comes up from the taṭasthā, marginal potency, a part of the marginal potency. He's to enter into the higher plane.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The scientific reading is there. Aparā śakti - this gross world, parā śakti - jīva, and antaraṅgā śakti is above, and we're to enter into antaraṅgā. This marginal potency is to enter into antaraṅgā śakti. That is Paravyoma, and the highest quarter Vṛndāvana, Goloka. It is not easy, a funny thing. It is there.

So service. Exploitation and renunciation, and another is dedication. And dedication is the world where dedication is the proper world, normal world. And there are gradations, and according to our inner tendency of serving the particular we can be allowed there, all around, all reverential soil. We're to go there. It is impossible - only possible by the grace, kṛpa. And that is called kṛpa - His Grace, His free will. He's autocrat. And rāga, anurāga, affection - affection does not come to calculate between big and small. It's very generous. Only through affection and through love it is possible to expect to go there one day. It is not so easy.

When the Jayatīrtha began to show so many sentiments, the Jayapatāka and others came to me. "Jayatīrtha is showing so many signs of higher bhāva, sentiments, are they true?"

"Never!"

Mahāprabhu says that, "I'm hankering for a drop of real prema. I have not yet got that. Then, I'm weeping, shedding tears so much, crying 'Kṛṣṇa Kṛṣṇa', but that is all hypocrisy. Because the positive proof is here that without Him I'm living. I did not disappear, dissolve. I'm living, I'm eating, I'm taking bath, I'm sleeping. This is proof positive that I have no genuine love for Kṛṣṇa, a drop." Mahāprabhu Himself says that.

Such valuable thing and we think we're masters of the same in one day, overnight! Fools, deceivers, self-deceivers! In the positive way it can never be attained. Only in the negative way we can have some conception. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura says,

vicakṣaṇa kari', dekhite cāhile haya, [haya ākhi-agocara]

"Suddenly a flash came. Whenever I tried to have a view of that, it disappeared - withdrawn."

In this way, in some negative way, we can have some idea. Whimsically He may come, and suddenly I may feel, "Oh! Some experience of the higher kind of knowledge and love - what is this? But only if I go to cast my eye that side - nothing."

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Do you want to die? Then come to live. Ha, ha. Wholesale dissolution - which is within our experience, ever. That Hegel's words helping a great deal, 'die to live.' What is concrete, valuable thing, cast into fire, for some hope which is non-understandable, which is unknown and unknowable. Sacrifice means that. Sacrifice gives that suggestion.

This ghee, the valuable stuff of our eating, we're pouring into fire. And there is some smoke - the effect, that is being burnt in the fire and smoke is created - that will create a healthy atmosphere. More oxygen or something like that we may imbibe that and get help. This is not proper but help - this is ridiculously saying like that.

Unknown, be disgusted with your known world, knowledge known pleasure - everything. Die to live. All risk, no gain. And when we reach the destination to certain extent, then all gain, no risk. What I risk that is all concoction, misunderstanding aspect. The misconception only I put into fire, and I've got proper conception, reality. What was unreal that was put into fire, and what is real I have got that. So die to live means this.

"I'm monarch of all I survey." Here, we're all monarch, we're habituated to become a monarch. Whether I'm a monarch or non monarch, still our tendency, we want to be monarch. All of us want to be monarch.

And there is another reactionary school, "I do not want anything - nothing I want. Only I want sleep, dreamless sleep. That is the most valuable thing in our experience - the complete cessation of this life."

These two aspects - enjoyment or exploitation, and renunciation, both these aspects must be eliminated, and a third plane should be found to live in. That is life of a gentleman, a life of dedication, a life of duty, not to any part but for the whole. "I live for the whole, and that whole is a part of Lord Kṛṣṇa, the lover, the beautiful." In that way we're to understand and to march towards that.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Infinite is His one position.

athavā bahunaitena, kiṁ jñātena tavārjjuna
viṣṭabhyāham idaṁ kṛtsnam, ekāṁśena sthito jagat

["But Arjuna, what is the need of your understanding this elaborate knowledge of My almighty grandeur? By My fractional expansion as the Supreme Soul of material nature, Mahā-Viṣṇu (Kāraṇārṇavaśāyī Viṣṇu), I remain supporting this entire universe of moving and stationary beings."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 10.42]

"Arjuna, the infinite of your conception is in My one negligent part. I am so. The infinite of your conception is in My one part. I'm so big."

Then what to do? Ha, ha. "I've got Kṛṣṇa of my own - a picture in my own mind, I've got Him. Kṛṣṇa is a picture, a reflection of a picture in my mind. There is Krsna."

The whole forms His one part, and I'm going to get Him? My only solace that I'm going through His agent. He has sent His agent to recruit me, and that is my hope. He has sent His men to recruit me. He's so kind, so benevolent. That may be my hope, and I must be thankful to that. Not traitor to His agent, we're to see that we must not play treachery with His agent, that thereby we commit treachery against us.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.
All right, then I close here. Vāñchā-kalpatarubhyaś ca.
Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Prabhupāda kī jaya!
Śrīpad A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!

You are all his contribution. Swāmī Mahārāja brought you here, attracted you to this side. And I have got some opportunity to serve you in this way. Gaura Hari bol. Willingly or unwillingly, I'm forced to do some service in that line, what was so wonderfully and tremendously done by Swāmī Mahārāja. His preaching towards the foreign countries is an inconceivable thing. So I say śaktyāveśa avatāra, some supernatural transcendental power, grace of Nityānanda, entered into him. And as instrument to his Lord he has done such tremendous work as to attract your attention towards the creed, the culture of Mahāprabhu Caitanyadeva. Śrī Gaurāṅga's gift attracted your attention.

Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura could see this, and our Guru Mahārāja began in his mild way. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura saw that it's self-evident the world's intelligentsia cannot but be attracted by such a plain, simple and dignified gift of Mahāprabhu. The conception, so magnanimous conception of their position foretold by Mahāprabhu, cannot but be accepted by the sincere intelligentsia of the world. He could see this general truth. And Guru Mahārāja began, and Swāmī Mahārāja successfully done.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

His will working, after all. The Divine will working. It is not in the jurisdiction of the lower subordinates of this world, subordinate gods or agents.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

To be attracted by this - die to live. Reality is for Itself. To sacrifice everything 'for Himself.' We are 'for Himself.' Our prospect is in His service. All our prospect is in His service, but in the highest degree it is loving service – service of affection, without any calculation of loss and gain. Above that, in the area of love and affection, beauty, charm. We're members there, our prospect is there. It is offered to us above justice, above knowledge, jñāna śūnya bhakti. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

If Caitanyadeva is considered as a human being, then also so much intense affinity towards the highest we have never seen in any history of the world. So much intensified mentality towards that highest conception of Absolute. Self-forgetfulness. The Christians also say, self-sacrifice in Socrates, self- forgetfulness in Christ. But the degree of self-forgetfulness that was shown in the life of Śrī Caitanyadeva that is never to be conceived, or to be seen, if we think of Him as a human being.

Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura told in his biography that, "When I came to study Bhāgavata and Śrī Caitanyadeva in the beginning, I thought, why an exceptional scholar like Caitanyadeva He supported the debauchery of the Supreme Lord as the highest end of life in Vṛndāvana? What's the reason? How's it possible? It's impossible. A high scholar like Him, one of the highest, brightest scholars. He ultimately supported the debauchery of the Absolute, the stealing, this debauchery, all these things, of the Absolute. He supported that to be the highest religious creed. How is it possible? Then I began to pray. Oh Lord reveal to me this fact, I can't follow." Then he told that "The flash came; and with that, this also came that Caitanyadeva is Kṛṣṇa Himself. He's revealing Himself, the clue to the scientific position of His own character as Kṛṣṇa."

Why? In the highest sense He's Autocrat, above law. He's the owner of the whole, above law. He's absolute good. We must not forget that He's absolute good, everything belonging to Him. We put forth that we have got some claim over the environment, but over me, 'I belong to me' - this is false. I'm not an independent factor in this world. I'm a part and parcel, and I belong to someone, I have got my master. Everything belongs to Him and without any condition. Unconditionally every atom belongs to the controlling centre. And that is love and goodness. Where is the objection? No cause of objection can evidently stand if we can really find what is the real position and nature of the Cause - Absolute Good, Love.

Love means, centre of love means who lives by distribution; not by absorption, but by distribution. That is love. By tendency of distribution, distribution, giving. Prema means that, and that is the highest good.

Mother forcibly taking the child to her breast. What is this, is it bad? The child is crying for milk, he does not know what is the solution to the pain of hunger within the belly. Then is this force, or it's affection?

Gaura Hari bol. We're under so much suspicion, māyā, misunderstanding, misrepresented part of the world, engrossed so much under its press, that we cannot think what will be the conception of truth and goodness. We're so far from the standard of goodness and truth, that we cannot understand what should be the real symptom of goodness and higher existence. So fallen. As Satan says, "It is better to reign in hell than to serve in heaven." That is generally the outcome of our life of experience here. We want to reign in hell rather than serve in heaven. But just the opposite will be really helpful to us.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari. Die to live.
Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

dīkṣā-kāle bhakta kare ātma-samarpaṇa, sei kāle kṛṣṇa tāre kare ātma-sama
[sei deha kare tāra cid-ānanda-maya, aprākṛta-dehe tāṅra caraṇa bhajaya]

["At the time of initiation, when a devotee fully surrenders unto the service of the Lord, Kṛṣṇa accepts him to be as good as Himself."] - ["When the devotee's body is thus transformed into spiritual existence, the devotee, in that transcendental body, renders service to the lotus feet of the Lord."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 4.192-3]

Previously I told what is dīkṣā. The process by which divine knowledge is imparted, the knowledge of the infinite world is imparted to the finite. What is that process? Dīkṣā-kāle bhakta kare ātma-samarpaṇa. In that process the necessary parts are this, that a beginner who has come, the candidate will fully surrender to a knowledge that is coming to be imparted to him. Ātma-samarpaṇa.

Sei kāle kṛṣṇa tāre kare ātma-sama. And Kṛṣṇa accepts him as His own. He wholly ignores him, the disciple who has come to the knowledge of infinite, he's requested, it's necessary for him to give up all his knowledge of experience, fully, perfectly, clean-handed Naked, he will be prepared to accept the higher knowledge, and the higher knowledge will absorb him as His own. Bhakta kare ātma-samarpaṇa. Sei kāle kṛṣṇa tāre kare ātma-sama.

Sei deha kare tāra cid-ānanda-māyā. From that time he gets a conception of another body, not this body of flesh and blood or the mind. His ego becomes coloured by the higher knowledge. He hopes for another personification of his own. Kṛṣṇa tāre kare ātma-sama, sei deha kare tāra cid-ānanda-māyā.

And aprākṛta-dehe tāṅra caraṇa bhajaya. And in that body he can serve Kṛṣṇa, not this body of flesh or the mental body which is drawn from the experience of this world. These are unfit. Only the new body, inner body that comes in contact with that - that body is eligible, that ego, can enter there and serve. And by the grace, always by the grace, not as a matter of right. But the grace is so lenient that they may think that, 'It is my right.' But really, in taṭasthā-vicāra, if we, eliminating relative position, if we go to tackle with the absolute conception, then we'll think that we're unfit. Only through grace we're given this position.

Apparently Yaśodā is whipping Kṛṣṇa. Her position is superior to Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa is under her control. A relative position. But from the absolute conception Yaśodā is none but a servitor, a servant of Kṛṣṇa. Absolute position. But relative position is such. His grace. In this way, not so different, because that potency also belongs to His own. And sometimes He Himself is controlled by that fine potency - pleasure.

[sādhubhir grasta-hṛdayo, bhaktair bhakta-jana-priyaḥ]

[The Lord tells Durvāsā: "I am the slave of My devotees; I have no freedom apart from their will. Because they are completely pure and devoted to Me, My heart is controlled by them, and I reside always in their hearts. I am dependent not only on My devotees, but even on the servants of My devotees. Even the servants of My devotees are dear to Me."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 9.4.63]

He says in Ambarīṣa vākya, "As if I'm independent, I'm dependent to My devotees, as if I've got no independence." 'As if.' Iva means "As if I've got no independence, I'm dependent on My devotees."

That is His posing. Devotion is such. His potency, peculiar, particular potency, devotion, is so powerful that sometimes it works over His own will. But that devotion to Him, submission, obedience to the master is so intense that the master becomes subservient to the servant - through affection.

"He does so - at My beck and call he can give his life. And how should I deal with him?"

Automatically, the master's heart goes for him. That is love, prema. Śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā.

[kleśa-ghnī śubhadā mokṣa-, laghutā-kṛt sudurllabhā
sāndrānanda-viśeṣātmā, śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā]

["Uttamā-bhakti, the purest devotion, is the vanquisher of all sin and ignorance, and the bestower of all auspiciousness; liberation is belittled in the presence of such devotion, which is very rarely attained, the embodiment of the deepest ecstasy, and the attractor of Śrī Kṛṣṇa Himself."]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 1.17]

Śrīla Rūpa Goswāmī - "The highest and most superior capacity, qualification of devotion," - he has written - "śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī, forcibly that devotion can draw Kṛṣṇa towards the devotee, though He's absolutely independent. The bhakti has got, self-sacrifice to the extreme has got, sacrifice, or service, loving service has got so much high power the Lord becomes friend. And in different ways He comes to meet His devotees."

Asvatantra iva dvija. "Though I'm free, but still as if I'm not free, I'm dependent on My devotees. Sometimes I feel like that."

This is independence proper. Absolute means this. Absolute does not mean that mercilessly He's bruising everything under His feet. But there is love, embracing, all interest is represented there because He's got love, the Lord of love. So our fortune, our luck, is represented there in Him. The transaction of love and affection is such. He's so great.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Yes, now I retire. Nitāi Gaura.

Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

[1) He (of divine form) came forth from the birthplace of the golden lotus - the ocean of the mellow of divine consorthood. His large, merciful eyes dispel (the suffering souls') fear and proclaim (the surrendered souls') victory. His tongue (constantly) vibrates the whole Earth planet with Śrī Kṛṣṇa saṅkīrtana, his beauty resplendent in the robes of the Sun's radiance (saffron) that purifies the universe and dispels the suffering of material existence. On his Holy Day of Advent, I (again and again) bow down unto that beloved associate of Śrī Vṛṣabhānunandinī, and the servitors of his lotus feet.

2) The devotees surrendered in pure devotion are eternally protected at his lotus feet. He is worshippable by the pure souls endowed with sincerity and good fortune, and he accepts (even) those who obstruct the service of Śrī Hari, just to rectify them. As the very fountainhead of mercy upon all mobile and immobile beings, he crushes the inauspiciousness of the whole universe. On his Holy Day of Advent, I (again and again) bow down unto that beloved associate of Śrī Vṛṣabhānunandinī, and the servitors of his lotus feet.

3) Like a miracle, his body moves with a joyful elegance and charm beyond the world's understanding, fulfilling the artist's aspiration. (Or, dancing in pastimes transcendental to the world, his artistic form incites divine love's hankering). His intellect surpasses that of (even) the demigods, and he is nobility incarnate as the commander in-chief of the Vaiṣṇava sannyāsīs (tridaṇḍi-yatis). The sādhus of profound intellect describe the nature of his personality as meticulously in the line of Śrī Sanātana, Śrī Rūpa, and Śrī Raghunātha, and they speak of him as being on the same plane as Śrī Jīvapāda (being superbly replete in perfect theistic conclusions). On his Holy Day of Advent, I (again and again) bow down unto that beloved associate of Śrī Vṛṣabhānunandinī, and the servitors of his lotus feet.

4) On the bank of Śrī Rādhā Kuṇḍa at Svānanda Sukhada Kuñja, he is devoted to the service of his Beloved, and (furthermore) he is greatly endeared to the divine damsels of Vraja headed by Lalitā. He is most favourite to Kamala Mañjarī who is pre-eminent in Vṛndāvana, and with the glorious qualities of Guṇa Mañjarī he builds the residence of Śrī Hari. On his Holy Day of Advent, I (again and again) bow down unto that beloved associate of Sri Vṛṣabhānunandinī, and the servitors of his lotus feet.

5) He is immaculate joy incarnate, or, he is the graciousness or the joy of Vimalā Devī. He manifested the pastimes of his Advent at Puruṣottama Kṣetra in the holy land of Orissa, and he revealed his pastimes of delivering the fallen souls and extending his mercy upon them (by awarding them the gift of divine love) at the 'new isles,' or Navadvīpa. Circumambulating Gaura Dhāma in the same way as traditionally done at Vraja Dhāma and Puruṣottama Dhāma, he continuously propagates - the loving desire of Vraja, the divine abode of Vaikuṇṭha, and the holy name of Kṛṣṇa. On his Day of Holy Advent, I (again and again) make my obeisance unto that dear associate of Śrī Vṛṣabhānunandinī, and the servitors of his holy lotus feet.]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: [00:00 - 08:43 ?] In the Upaniṣad there is a line, hy utkale puruṣottamāt.

[sampradāya vihīnā ye mantrās te niṣiphalā matāḥ
ataḥ kalau bhaviṣyanti catvāraḥ sampradāyinaḥ
śrī-brahma-rudra-sanakā vaiṣṇavāḥ kṣiti-pāvanāḥ
catvāras te kalau bhāvyā hy utkale puruṣottamāt]

["If someone receives a mantra from a Guru who doesn't come in a bona fide sampradāya that mantra will have no potency and will be fruitless. Hence in the age of Kali there will arise four founders of sampradāyas, namely Śrī, Brahmā, Rudra and Sanaka. These four Vaiṣṇavas are the sanctifiers of the earth. Their four respective sampradāyas will arise from the Supreme Personality of Godhead in Utkal (Orissa)."]

[Padma Purāṇa]

In the province of Utkal, and from the place Puruṣottama Jagannātha, some flow of higher truth will come, will spring up from there. And the personages of higher thinking they understand that Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī he appeared there in Puruṣottama. And what sort of nectar wave he flowed in Orissa, in Bengal, in India, and afterwards in the whole of the world. The clue of the highest attainment or fulfilment of our life has been given by him. Not to be followed by blind faith, but on the basis of comparative ontological study. Eliminating all possibility of doubts and suspicion about the highest goal of all the jīva, not only a few handful of human beings but the whole creation. Wherever there is life their concern, how comprehensive utilitarianism, not only a handful of human beings, but the whole globe, whole animation world is concerned. Where there is life there is thirst after happiness, pleasure, ecstasy, their all concern comes from this program. "Specially human beings, come and get your fulfilment. Back to home. Sweet, sweet home. And what is the symptom of the home? What are you, yourself? Try to find out your own real self. And from there you can trace what should be your home."

["The knot in the heart is pierced, all misgivings are cut to pieces and the chain of fruitive actions is terminated when I am seen as the Supreme Personality of Godhead."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.20.30]

The knowledge what is going on in the human society at present, they're not dependable. So we cannot depend on this sort of knowledge which is collected from our experience. Experience is limited, and the knowledge that we draw from experience, that cannot but be limited. So the unlimited also has got a relation with the limited - and we're to find out that. The Unlimited, He has got some relation with limited, and that is genuine, cannot but be genuine. Anyhow we're to trace that thread, where the unlimited, the faultless, wholesale truth, that is coming in search for me. That is coming to fulfil my object. Anyhow that plane should be traced, sought and traced and found and understood. And that is the only hope. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas.

[nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena
yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām]

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. When the living entity begs the Lord for His mercy, being desirous of His transcendental loving service, then the Supreme Lord reveals His self-manifest form directly before him."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] & [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.3.2]

We're faulty, but faultless area is there. And when anything will come from that side we shall brush everything aside, and wait, and earnestly try to receive that current, that flow. That type of temperament is to be created, to be trustful for the revealed truth. Limitation, limitation, then defect, defect, all full of so. Hierarchy - one research coming another research going down - not eternal. So there is eternity in the background, and that eternity comes to our help. And anyhow we're to try to find out that connection, that absolute truth.

He has got, the Absolute has got in Him, interest for us also. So we're to search only for that. It's not our necessity only, but in the Absolute also such necessity exists. Otherwise how He can be absolute? My interest is in Him. Everything represented in Him. So we shall learn to depend on Him, that side. Śrauta siddhānta, that is coming, that is revealed truth. Self effacement and self surrender, and then we can imbibe that truth within our heart. And we can find our home there.

Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam says, bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś. It is necessary to dissolve your ego, which is made of so many actions, reactions, in this world. Product of experience, faulty, limited experience, you have gathered one ego, a centre of your knowledge, of your interest. Your ego means a centre of your own limited understanding interest. That must be dissolved. Separate interest searching must be dissolved. And then we'll find a flow coming from inside. And that can recognise the universal plane, wave. Only the negative attachment has made our lot hard, negative side. That should be dissolved, and the positive should be allowed to come out, and the positive will recognise the positive. Bhidyate hṛdaya. Jñāna śūnya, so called jñāna, so called knowledge means knowledge of experience of limited persons. We must get rid of that. And we shall surrender to the good, fundamental plane of natural flow.

"Come to nature. What man has made of man." Wordsworth. [From Lines Written in Early Spring]

Man, you have created your misfortune by your selfish thinking of separate interest. Dissolve that, cure yourself of that, and you'll find the broadest plane. Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ. All doubts will be cleared. Doubt is a disease. Intuitive knowledge is there. Doubt only another side of the competitive school. Where there's knowledge of experience there cannot but be doubt on the other side, suspicion. It cannot be perfect.

But there is a plane of consciousness where, which is not acquired by any selfish, or separate interest, that is universal. That has got the power to make known to us that that is absolute knowledge. This knowledge of experience can't prove what is absolute. But Absolute Himself can prove that He's Absolute. Absolute knowledge, absolute plane, you'll find only, do away with the negative side. As a mushroom they have grown within you. Only be saved from your so called friends at the present plane of your interest. Then you'll find the Absolute. The negative side should be dissolved and you'll find yourself in the positive plane.

Chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ, kṣīyante cāsya karmāṇi. And the dues and the loans that you have incurred, that will be in no time finished. And you'll be quite at home. You won't be, you won't understand that you were in bondage in prison house some time before. Even that sort of reference will also be eliminated. Back to God, back to home.

Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, Śrī Caitanyadeva, and Śrī Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī, he came with such universal good of the whole creation. Veda, Upaniṣad, there is also these things, revealed truth.

Vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo [Gītā, 15.15] - Śrutibhir vimṛgyām [Bhāgavatam, 10.47.61]

All the revealed scriptures they're only marking towards that direction. Śrutibhir vimṛgyā. They're only marking that the truth is in this side - Absolute Truth this side. From far away they're showing the direction. Śrutibhir vimṛgyā. So all the revealed scriptures, their nature is to show the direction, that truth is this side, Absolute Truth is this side. More or less that has been expressed by different scriptures. Of all the revealed scriptures, Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam is considered to be the most lofty.

And from there, basing there, Śrī Caitanyadeva came and showed to the needy that, "Your home is such, and try to come to home. Everything will be - all your demands you'll find satisfied more than you can conjecture, you can dream even in your present stage."

So Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Ṭhākura pushing away many mushroom proposals for the fulfilment of life. They're rushing to create trouble in the jīva soul. They're to set aside them. And with clarion call he had to announce that the Bhāgavata's truth, the Kṛṣṇa consciousness is the highest which can satisfy all our fine and real and happy demands. Unique position he had. He had to fight with many existing proposals, and to establish this Kṛṣṇa consciousness is the final fulfilment of our life.

So we have gathered here in his birth day today to show our some respects towards that great Ācārya who came for all of us, for the best benefit for all of us. We shall try to show our gratitude towards him, thereby we shall do real service to our own soul.

And he also liked that everyone coming to him they should also convert themselves to a preaching centre of Kṛṣṇa consciousness, of Gaurāṅga consciousness, Śrī Caitanya consciousness. And thereby their own best interest consciousness is there.

So if anyone likes to say something about him you're invited to do so. Of course in short, I won't be, if you'd like to continue for long time you may do. But I feel tired, old man, I shall have to go very soon, almost immediately from here. Govinda Mahārāja. _____ [?]

One thing I omitted unfortunately the name of Śrīpad A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja. For whose gracious activity and preaching we see these foreign faces who have come to Kṛṣṇa consciousness, and Gaura consciousness, and Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī's preachings and talks. To understand and to carry it to the length and breadth of the world. So we should like to adore their presence here.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: [00:00 - 07:25 ?]

...

Devotee: [07:27 -28:38] I will try to say something to glorify this beautiful festival to Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura. Almost we don't have anything to say after this beautiful speech of Govinda Mahārāja. Anyway, even though we don't know Bengali, we could see that he was, through his heart delivering these words to praise our Param Guru Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura. So it's our fortune to participate here in this festival meant for glorifying His Divine Grace.

We're feeling that we're just a very humble insignificant soul which has been fortunate to participate with his assistants. The Spiritual Master and the Ācārya when he comes to this world, when he appears in this world, and manifests himself and his activities, so he always receives the assistance he always comes with his devotees. Some of them are his eternal associates, and also some souls that he recruits from this camp, from this world. So we're feeling very fortunate.

We have not in our hands, in our life, anything to repay this immense gift which he has given us. We could not have the grace or the opportunity to have his personal relationship, his saṅga. But anyway he allows us by his immense will of bringing all the souls to Kṛṣṇaloka with Lord Kṛṣṇa. He's allowing us to participate, to associate with his intimate associates, as His Divine Grace Śrīla Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Mahārāja, and Śrīla A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Prabhupāda.

So in this age of Kali-yuga it is said there are so many bad qualities. Kaler doṣa-nidhe rājann. In the Bhāgavatam [12.3.51] we hear that this present age where we're living it's all an immense ocean of bad qualities. Mainly we cannot find, we cannot trace even nothing good. Wherever we see, wherever we put our eye, our vision, or wherever we try to endeavour for getting something, we'll just reach an immense ocean of inauspiciousness, nescience. That means that an ocean, it's giving that example because an ocean is a vast, very big amount of water. So it's so big that almost it comprehends everything. So in that way this Kali-yuga is giving us an example of a vast ocean, not of salty water as we're accustomed, but of these so many bad qualities, inauspiciousness.

Because mainly people are engaged in so many illicit activities. Illicit activities means, not to cultivate these fortunes of life, this aim of the human life, but mainly just to sleep, mate, defend, just to make these animalistic activities. So some part of the population are engaged in those low class activities, without transcendental aim at all. And another also, another section of the human life are engaged in some cultivation of mundane knowledge, jñāna, speculative knowledge about the Absolute Truth. They want to reach with their very tiny brains they want to reach the infinite. And still there's another kind of section which practices so many yoga practices just with the aim of getting some control over the subtle elements of this mundane world. So all of them form, all of them gather, form a very big nescience, ignorance, about the welfare of the human society, which is meant for the jīva, for the soul which is within this body.

So this Kali-yuga is an ocean of so many wrong philosophies which direct the individuals to the wrong direction. Instead of going to looking towards his own fortune, these unlimited amount of jīvas they go astray, misled by all these different apa-siddhānta philosophies. Which do not agree with the devotional school to glorify Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa, propagated by Śrī Caitanyadeva. So the other quality of the ocean is that when you're within it, you're almost in a helpless position. It's such a big amount of water surrounding you that you cannot have any hope that you will be saved. So that is the real situation, position, of the jīva soul within this age of Kali. There is so much inauspiciousness, so much ignorance around it that they're almost in a helpless situation.

So only by the grace of those stalwart devotees, only by the grace of the will of Kṛṣṇa, this hopeless situation can be given up, can be made aside. And promote a very beautiful, a very expansive, a very hopefully future within Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

Kaler doṣa-nidhe rājann asti hy eko mahān guṇaḥ. And even though it is said in the Bhāgavatam, even though there's so many inauspiciousness in this age of Kali, there is one good thing. Just one good thing which is so pure, transcendental, divine, which is so charming that can make the counterpart to all the inauspiciousness in the environment. And this very good quality has been given, kīrttanād eva kṛṣṇasya. This kīrtana, this Hari kathā, has the only very good quality to get out, to be relieved from this horrible situation of Kali-yuga.

So Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura Prabhupāda he came with that aim. He came to give us this Kṛṣṇa kathā as the only means to save our selves. As Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja was speaking in his speech. And also to give it to others. Ones who are getting some nectar from this Kṛṣṇa speaking, then it will be natural feel a tendency to give it to others. Kīrttanād eva kṛṣṇasya. There are so many kīrtanas, there are so many information around the world, so many news.

We heard from Govinda Mahārāja some verse of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam which is meant, those words which are not meant to glorify Kṛṣṇa are just a place where these black birds get, where these low class people are engaged in. Just uselessly speaking, speaking which will not give any fortune to our real self, any benefit at all.

So in the other side there's so many words which really can give to our own self, all the fortune we're seeking for. And those words are the ones which are connected with Kṛṣṇa. Only He, because He's the Absolute, so He can in a very absolute way bring peace to us, bring satisfaction to our unlimited hankering.

So Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura came and established this preaching movement in an organised way. Previously we have not seen so much of this in our sampradāya, but with him we start seeing that this combined effort of preaching reached almost every corner of the world. So he came to give sādhu, Guru, and śāstra. Not just whimsically devotion, but devotion under the proper guidance, under superior Vaiṣṇavas which really have got the proper conception of surrendering their lives to God, to Caitanya Mahāprabhu. So he came to give us this Hari kathā. He came to give us this sādhu, Guru, and śāstra. To have the proper vision how to advance, how to develop our faith, our devotion towards God, towards Kṛṣṇa.

And another very important factor in his preaching was that he came and he make aside by his powerful explanations of the śāstra, of his conceptions of bhakti, he came and made aside so many misconceptions. So many spread so called religious movement, which in the name of Vaiṣṇavism, or in the name of Nityānanda vaṁśa, or in the name of different groups were preaching the so called devotion to God. So Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta established this very revolutionary change in the devotional path by preaching according to śāstra, Guru, and sādhu. That was he create so much - some of the members of all these movements were antagonistic against him. They were criticising him due to that he didn't allow anyone to use the teachings of Mahāprabhu and His intimate followers. His intimate followers came and by the order of Gaurāṅga Mahāprabhu compiled so many books, so many devotional śāstras, to enhance, to give the benefit for the human race. So using them in the wrong way, these different groups, these different so called religions or devotional movements start just using them for their own benefit, for selfish purpose.

Dharmaḥ projjhita-kaitavo 'tra paramo nirmat-sarāṇāṁ satāṁ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.1.2] It's explained that religion has to be completely free from any kind of personal, selfish wishes. We have to surrender to God, not for anything in return, just because we want the experience of His service, just because we want to be satisfied serving Him. Even though we're not at all getting anything in exchange, we'll sacrifice our life to serving Him. So that is established in all the devotional śāstras. But due to the influence of the environment of the time, of this nescience of Kali-yuga, so many of the original purports of the śāstras, and also the śāstras compiled by His followers were lost.

So Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta being trained by his great Ācārya and great soul, almost without precedent Śrīla Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, came and preached in a very revolutionary way. These words, this Śrīmad- Bhāgavatam kathā, this Kṛṣṇa consciousness kathā, it is meant certainly to create this revolutionary change in the impious life of the human beings. We're not going to take some arms, some guns, to make this revolutionary change. It has been that by the purity we'll get enough force to change if we can be like an instrument of the will of all these great Ācāryas. So it will be possible for them working through all the different devotees to make this revolutionary change and establish Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura - I've been acquainted with that phrase or remark he did once when he explained, "The only famine in this world is this Kṛṣṇa kathā." There's no such thing like famine of foodstuff, or famine of gold or jewels, or dress or cloth. All these matters are given very profusely, very prominent by the good planet Earth. Bhūmi is giving so much foodstuff, so much shelter, so much cloth in the way of cotton or silk. So many things are being given. But the only famine, the only lack, which really makes this world horrible is this Kṛṣṇa kathā. So Bhaktisiddhānta Mahārāja came and struck by his furious preaching, by his devotional and intense wish to help all these hopeless human race, he came and made these revolutionary changes.

So unfortunately I was explaining in the beginning we didn't have the opportunity to be close, to participate closely in the activities of such a rare soul, such a devoted soul in the service of Bhagavān Caitanyadeva. But he has been in his merciful heart he has been so compassionate towards everyone that he created this association of sādhus, namely Gauḍīya Maṭha. So among these sādhus, among these followers, to bring prevention, to bring help to the newcomers. To the persons who were also hankering for understanding what is the human life. What does that mean? What I have to do with my human life? Who am I? Who is God? What is my relationship with Him? So that was his compassion.

This day we're celebrating his appearance day, the day when he came in the vision of the eyes of these human beings. Also he has now departed from this world and we cannot have any more his personal, his vapu form, his personal manifestation. But he was so compassionate, as I was saying, because he has given us the opportunity to meet, to allow us at least the opportunity, to render some service to his compassionate associates, to his followers and devotees.

So we're right now at the Śrī Chaitanya Sāraswat Maṭh under the guidance of Śrīla Guru Mahārāja, of Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja. And we feel that we've found a very extremely rare shelter in our path towards devotion. In our devotional path we've got the grace of such a sacred soul who participated personally in the movement of Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura. So Guru Mahārāja, Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja has said that this idea was conceived by Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura in the beginning. And later on it was executed in such an extraordinary way by Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura. And in his final days he says Swāmī Mahārāja, His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Prabhupāda, our Guru Mahārāja, brings all these things - will of Bhaktisiddhānta and Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura to every corner of the world.

So as a westerner devotee we feel that the fortune has been shown, has been spread in so much degree upon ourselves that we can have now a connection with both of these saintly persons, A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Prabhupāda and Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja. We find ourselves infinitely fortunate, and with empty hands to give something to him, to Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura in this day. And also to give something to his most dearest followers who are now keeping his compassionate eye ambition upon our insignificant souls.

So the desire of Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Mahārāja is still in the air, is still in the soul of so many devotees, of so many members of the saṅkīrtana movement inaugurated by Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu. And whoever will be sincere enough will have the opportunity to come and take that shelter.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol.

[28:38 - 30:33 ?]

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...must be of the proper standard. Then the transaction, that is imparting the divine knowledge from one to another, that will be genuine. Otherwise everything may be false, adulterated.

divyaṁ jñānaṁ yato dadyāt, [kuryāt pāpasya saṅkṣayam
tasmād dīkṣeti sā proktā, deśikais tattva-kovidaiḥ]

Proper conception of the Absolute is imparted from one to another, and that is dīkṣā, the divyaṁ jñānaṁ. We're suffering from imperfect knowledge, imperfect estimation, and experience, and view, of the world, of the whole, and so we have succumbed. So universal knowledge, "What is my position in the organic whole?" That is to be understood. "What is my highest fulfilment of life, how I can attain that?" All these things. Sambandha, abhidheya, prayojana. "Where I am? And what is my relation with the whole, the environment? And what is my fulfilment of life, and how I can attain that?" These things are given in the knowledge through dīkṣā.

They may be of different kinds, Islam, Christianity, so many other creeds also in India and other places. They think and they do according to their understanding and realisation. But Kṛṣṇa conception has been told to be the most absolute conception of the whole, purest of the type. How we're to know, that is dīkṣā. Why Kṛṣṇa consciousness, why Reality The Beautiful, is the highest entity? And not knowledge, nor power - neither power nor knowledge is guiding the whole, but the beauty, harmony. Beauty is harmony and that is guiding the whole. This is Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

And if it appeals to my heart then I shall accept that. And I have a comparative study. "Why not power?" Generally accepted. "Why not justice, knowledge?" That is the ultimate thing which deals with the whole. "Why affection, love, is the highest entity?" All these things to be understood. Dīkṣā, divya jñāna. Transcendental knowledge, the knowledge of the whole, divinity. According to our own fortune and understanding, sukṛti, we shall be able to catch this. All may not.

Naturally there are different classes according to karma. There are trees, animals, insects, so many different layers of creation. In human beings, the moralist, then those that have faith in God, theist, atheist, so many classifications. But gradually we're to follow the development towards the truth.

Hegel says, "Die to live." If we're to have a proper life we'll have to die as in so many egoisms, ego. There are so many egos in so many animated positions, different types of ego, and the wholesale ego should be wholesale demolished. In this way we're to do. It's not easy thing, but it is there, and we're to follow, understand it gradually.

But anyhow our inner conscience is to be trusted. Which took me here, we shall appeal to that consciousness, inner guru, caitya guru, we shall ask. "You took me here, eliminating my past connection with other conceptions of religion to Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Now I'm in such position. What I was told I see some deviation there. What to do? I shall go to enquire the scripture, the precedence also. In such cases what the śāstra will come, the scripture will come to dictate. And what are the precedences in such cases, previous Ācārya how they have dealt with such case? We're to enquire that and consult with our inner understanding and to accept.

Devotee: I haven't heard of such an example of an Ācārya falling down from the principles.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He says Mahārāja, he hasn't heard of any example of an Ācārya falling from the principles, previously.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: There in,

guror apy avaliptasya, [kāryākāryam ajānataḥ / utpatha-prathipannasya, parityāgo vidhīyate]

["A guru who is addicted to sensual pleasure and polluted by vice, who is ignorant and who has no power to discriminate between right and wrong, or who is not on the path of śuddha-bhakti must be abandoned."] [Mahābhārata, Udyoga-parva, 179.25]

...and what is their case. Bhiṣma is one of the mahājanas, one of the twelve spiritual personalities. The position of Bhiṣma is there, and he told Paraśurāma about this. "That I find that you have come down, your attraction for the lower things, so you do not maintain your proper position. I can't...

Devotee: Paraśurāma?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Paraśurāma.

Devotee: Isn't Paraśurāma an incarnation of...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, but śaktyāveśa. Śaktyāveśa Avatāra, sometimes that inspiration, the descent of the Lord comes for some time and that may be withdrawn.

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: When Rāmacandra...

Devotee: This happened to Paraśurāma?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That happened to Paraśurāma. That śaktyāveśa power was withdrawn. So at that time when Bhiṣma accepted him he was not an Avatāra, and so he could be rejected by him.

And Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura also dealt in Harināma-cintāmaṇi as you said about. "How can I revere, one whom I had to revere as the Lord Himself. Ācāryaṁ māṁ vijānīyān [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 1.46] In the same line with the Lord. And when I see something objectionable there, then how can I show pure reverence to him? It will create some difficulty in my mind."

Mahāprabhu wanted to respect that Godbrother of His Gurudeva, Bharati Gosai. But He found when He went to show him His respect, He found that he's in the garment - in a deer skin. Some skin he had utilised as his dress. Then He could not accept him in that position. "Who is Bharati? Who is _____ [?] He asked, knowingly.

Then, another, one of His companions told that, "He's Bharati Gosai."

"No, no. Why Bharati Gosai will be clad in animal skin?"

"You do not recognise Bharati Gosai."

Then Bharati Gosai could feel it, could understand that it's not acceptable by Śrī Caitanya. And he wanted to give up that skin dress.

Then when Caitanyadeva could feel it, then He sent for new _____ of cloth, and that was given to Bharati Gosai. And Bharati Gosai leaving that skin dress he took that cloth dress of the sannyāsī, saffron. Then Caitanyadeva went to him and bowed down His head, as a Godbrother of His Gurudeva.

But this is not a very serious thing. This king dress, or this cloth dress, not much difference. But still Caitanyadeva could not accept him, to show His respect as Guru means Godbrother, Guru's Godbrother. Respect also not absolute, and the difference is also not very great, skin dress and cloth dress. Still, He could not accept deviation.

"That a Vaiṣṇava sannyāsī why should he use a skin dress which comes from the animal camp? That's not considered to be pure for the Vaiṣṇava sannyāsī."

So this least deviation He could not tolerate. That was His practice and His advice to others.

Us also, in that line. So here the intoxication and other objectionable association with the ladies that is gross and more filthy. And we can't accept any Ācārya having any such connection.

Devotee: So then the question is, what happens if he rectifies himself, just like Lord Caitanya's Godbrother?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: When he should be in our hand we shall try our best _____ [?]

Devotee: So what is the position of a disciple if his Spiritual Master that he's given up rectifies himself?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! Rectify, that is not my duty. If we may pray to the higher authority, to Kṛṣṇa, others. "That if You try You may change Your man. He did so much service to you. Now why such heinous things have happened there? Oh Lord, please purify him. We can't tolerate...

84.02.23.B_84.02.26.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...but have you met with Him, within you, what kind of thing that is? Try to find out that, how it is. Then, manasas tu parā buddhir.

[indriyāṇi parāṇy āhur, indriyebhyaḥ paraṁ manaḥ
manasas tu parā buddhir, buddher yaḥ paratas tu saḥ]

["The learned proclaim that the senses are superior to inert objects, the mind is superior to the senses, and the faculty of resolute intelligence is superior to the mind. And he who is superior to the intelligence is the soul himself."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.42]

Go further one step. Find out your own reason. What is reason? Vyavasāyātmikā buddhiḥ [Gītā, 2,41]

This mind says, "I want this, I don't want that." And buddhi says, "Don't want this, don't want this thing, don't go there, take your seat." The faculty of judgement, that is more higher. Because, without a man is not endowed with the faculty of judgement, like a madman he will wander here, there, idiot, has got no value of life. So, that is within you. In the time that reason comes but where does it lead, with what method that is made up? We don't know, we do not care to know.

There world, senses, then mind, then intelligence, judgement, reason, and then go further, up. That is your soul. What is that characteristic of the soul? That he makes everything feel-able, helps to feel.

Just as light can show, so the soul is showing everything. The light, torch light is given. Sun ray coming, then we can see. Soul can feel, can see, we can hear, we can do anything only because the background there is that light. A particle of light, a particle of knowledge, that is your real self, soul.

Just as it has been told that the moon is covered by the clouds.

na rarājoḍupaś channaḥ, sva-jyotsnā-rājitair ghanaiḥ ahaṁ-matyā bhāsitayā, sva-bhāsā puruṣo yathā

["During the rainy season the moon was prevented from appearing directly by the covering of the clouds, which were themselves illumined by the moon's rays. Similarly, the living being in material existence is prevented from appearing directly by the covering of the false ego, which is itself illumined by the consciousness of the pure soul."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.20.19]

Vyāsadeva is describing the rainy season. But how the rainy season's night he's giving description? "The moon is covered by the cloud, in the rainy season, at night." Vyāsadeva, he's a spiritualist, and he's giving an example of the higher, higher level. These ordinary things he's given. Higher things should be giving example of the lower world, but here, the example is given from the higher world for lower purpose. How the rainy night he's describing. He says, "The moon is eclipsed by the cloud." And what do we find there? He says here in a peculiar way, "The cloud is covering the moon. By the light of moon the cloud we see." This is the peculiarity. "By the light of the moon we're seeing the cloud. But that cloud has covered the moon, we can't see." So also he says, Sva-bhāsā puruṣo yathā. Ahaṁ-matyā bhāsitayā, sva-bhāsā puruṣo yathā. "Just as the soul, covered by mental system, mental system is felt only by the light of the soul. By that knowledge, but this has covered the soul, the mental system, like cloud. Cloud has covered the moon or sun. But cloud is seen by the light of the sun or moon. How? The soul is covered by your ego. The whole mental system has covered the soul. But by that light the mental system, whatever, you can feel, you can see. Sva-bhāsā puruṣo yathā."

All light is not - without light, no world. Without soul, no world. Not light, not anything else, but the soul is at the bottom of all knowledge, all expression. Because there is soul, though anything, you can feel, you can hear, you can touch, you can know, if that centre of feeling is withdrawn then nothing. That is all in all. If that is taken, all dead matter. In Gītā, kṛtsnaṁ lokam imaṁ raviḥ.

[yathā prakāśayaty ekaḥ, kṛtsnaṁ lokam imaṁ raviḥ
kṣetraṁ kṣetrī tathā kṛtsnaṁ, prakāśayati bhārata]

["O Bhārata, as one sun illuminates the entire universe, so does the knower of the sphere of action, the Supersoul, illuminate the whole universe (and the souls within it); and so does the knower of the sphere of action, the soul, illuminate the entire body."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 13.34]

Just as the sun is giving birth, so to say, to the whole world we feel. The sun is giving birth. In darkness, nothing. Sun or light, the moon or anything light. Light withdrawn all dark, so something like that. The soul. Gītā says the ātmā is the real sun or light. With-taken, no feeling, nothing, no feeling, nothing remains. Whether it is, whether it is hard or soft, or bright or dark, nothing, no kind. Sweet or sound or harsh, no question. Only because the background is that feeling. The feeler is there, ātmā. In the higher, subjective way, it is going, higher from higher.

Then from ātmā there is Paramātmā; go further step, in the subjective line, super subjective. There may be Paramātmā, drāṣṭā, jñāta. He's seer. I'm to be seen. This objective world I can see. But that is so subtle, I cannot see Him. He can see me. In this way, drāṣṭā, dṛśya. Seer, seer-ism, or hearer-ism, in everything, it is going towards higher centre.

In that way there is Vāsudeva, Vaikuṇṭha, Goloka, all in that direction, super subjective. Subjective evolution. And, we can go if we, we're to cross our soul's area towards Paramātmā and higher subtle existence, then as a slave we're to go, the visa begins. Passport up to soul, from, indriyā, mana, buddhiḥ, then we come to soul, the passport finished.

Now, if we want to go further, so the salvationists stop here. Buddha, Śaṅkara, who are searching for salvation, liberation, they're finished here. Then, the Vaiṣṇava says, visa is to be secured, if we want to go further in the higher aspect of the world, visa. What is the underlying principle of visa? That I must be utilised in Their cause, then only visa will be granted, otherwise not.

So if we accept slavery, that is higher, with such substance I'm made of, that is made up with higher substance, to enter there, that the necessity of the higher call of duty. As a coolie I may be recruited there. In the lower place, we may feel undesirable something, demand.

But when our inner soul will awaken, we'll feel that it is comfortable to search interest of this country. This is my home. Then the burden of the sense of duty, labour, all will vanish. And with my own interest I shall work there, anurāga. As much I shall identify me with that I shall find that I'm inner awakening soul, that I'm really a member of that plane. And everyone is friendly. Everyone is trying hard to satisfy others, in the interest of the centre. Centre is so magnanimous and high, and so friendly to all of us, this harmony.

Such is Kṛṣṇa, the Reality the Beautiful. Reality the Beautiful, sat-cit-ānanda. As far as I remember, Martinau, or some philosopher, a good linguist also, he told that translation of ānanda, Reality the Beautiful, that was his term. Ānanda means beautiful, beauty, sundaram. Satyam, śivam, sundaram. Sundar is rasa, means beauty. Love means beauty. Love, another conception of love is beauty. Beauty is love. And that is rasa, that is ānanda, happiness, expressing everything, one and same. The most desirable. Above power and above all calculative knowledge. We're searching really that thing - may not be conscious of that, but our heart is only searching that thing. Mahāprabhu, Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam and Mahāprabhu came to make us know that thing.

Vasudeva Gosh he said, "If Gaurāṅga did not appear, then how could we live? So high prospect he has taken for us. Without that the life was as if a dead thing. So much property He has discovered within us. Our worth, real worth of us, He has given known to us. Such a friend, such a master, such a magnanimous leader. Without Him, how could we exist at all?" Vasudeva Gosh.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. I stop here. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Devotee: ...they are giving me some instructions. So our Guru Mahārāja told us that actually Cāṇakya Paṇḍita said, a wise man...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who are you, your name?

Devotee: Kironasa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Swāmī Mahārāja's disciple? What they told?

Devotee: He told that a wise man can take knowledge even from a foolish person. Just as one can take gold from a dirty place. But at the same time there's another instruction, sarpocchiṣṭaṁ yathā payaḥ, that if we hear from wrong persons, avaiṣṇavas, then there'll be an opposite effect.

[avaiṣṇava-mukhodgīrṇaṁ, pūtaṁ hari-kathāmṛtam śravaṇaṁ naiva kartavyaṁ, sarpocchiṣṭaṁ yathā payaḥ]

["Just as milk touched by the lips of a serpent has a poisonous effect, that Hari kathā, which is vibrated by non devotees, is poisonous. Both those who speak it and those who hear it will suffer from the effects of poison."] [Padma Purāṇa] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 2.39] & [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 6.16.33, purport]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is the anomaly? A wise man may take both direct and indirect method of teachings. So a man who is conversant, who has got real knowledge, he learns things in both ways, somewhere direct and somewhere indirect. Sarpocchiṣṭaṁ yathā payaḥ, that will be indirect. And sādhu saṅga that will be direct, positive side. And that is negative side, there is no Hari Nāma. Sarpocchiṣṭaṁ, avaiṣṇava-mukhod, that is māyā. Māyā to avoid, you will learn to avoid something and to accept something. Proficiency will guide him.

This is, just as the avadhūta, somewhere in Bhāgavatam [11.8.22-44], learning something from a prostitute. The prostitute is waiting for client whole night. Men are passing through the street and she thinks, 'Oh, this man may enter my house, my room.' He's gone away, another comes. 'Oh, this will come.' Then he also passed away. In this way the night is almost passed. Then disappointed she went inside and began to have a sound sleep. From there also he learned something. Sukhaṁ suṣvāpa piṅgalā. The name of that prostitute was Piṅgalā. Sukhaṁ suṣvāpa piṅgalā. Disappointed that, āśā hi paramaṁ duḥkhaṁ, nairāśyaṁ paramaṁ sukham yathā sañchidya kāntāśāṁ, sukhaṁ suṣvāpa piṅgalā

["Material desire is undoubtedly the cause of the greatest unhappiness, and freedom from such desire is the cause of the greatest happiness. Therefore, completely cutting off her desire to enjoy so-called lovers, Piṅgalā very happily went to sleep."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.8.44]

The prostitute came to this conclusion. "I was suffering from anxiety. Oh, this will come, this will come, this will come, a great anxiety and suffering. Now night almost passed, I'm disappointed." And finally retired. Āśā hi paramaṁ duḥkhaṁ. That our hope, I want this, I want that. I want that, I want that, this is the disease of the person. Nairāśyaṁ paramaṁ. I do not want anything. This stage of mentality is the basis of our real pleasure or happiness. Yathā sañchidya. Coming to this conclusion, that prostitute woman, at the last part of the night had a good sleep, no anxiety.

So from this also there was something to learn, but in the indirect way. Or they have got such a vision, deep vision, that they can see the inside of the thing, what is what. Pierce through the mundane waves and find out other things.

vana dekhi' bhrama haya – ei 'vṛndāvana', [śaila dekhi' mane haya – ei 'govardhana'
yāhāṅ nadī dekhe tāhān mānaye – 'kālindī', mahā-premāveśe nāce prabhu paḍe kāndi']

["When Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu passed through the Jhārikhaṇḍa forest, He took it for granted that it was Vṛndāvana'. When He passed over the hills, He took it for granted that they were Govardhana."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 17.55]

When Mahāprabhu coming in connection with any jungle, it at once gives Him the recollection of Vṛndāvana. If He finds any hill, at once comes into His mind the idea of Govardhana. If any river, at once excites the recollection of Yamunā and Kṛṣṇa vilāsa.

But ordinary people they can't have such instruction from ordinary thing. So, it depends upon the person whether he will learn from anywhere or everywhere. Avaiṣṇava-mukhodgīrṇaṁ. Sometimes nāmābhāsa, one is cutting jokes with another man. "Oh, taking the Name of Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa." But that may help another gentleman, a devotee. "Oh, he's also saying Kṛṣṇa." May excite real vibration there. So avaiṣṇava- mukhodgīrṇaṁ, that cannot affect the man of highest position. They see the deep things. For ordinary people, for the madhyama adhikārī, these considerations there must be. They must come to a Vaiṣṇava and hear from him, not from other persons who is not Vaiṣṇava, generally. Avaiṣṇava-mukhodgīrṇaṁ. And what the other alternative told? One side avaiṣṇava-mukhodgīrṇaṁ, another side, what he told?

Devotee: Second question? They're telling about namasrta and namagraha.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: One side they say avaiṣṇava-mukhodgīrṇaṁ and other side?

Devotee: Other side is to take knowledge from any place.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Knowledge from any place. The knowledge from any place, that is not meant for the madhyama adhikārī. That is uttama adhikārī. Uttama adhikārī who is in the highest position, he can take knowledge from any place. But ordinary persons like us they should try to take knowledge from the real sādhu, from real Vaiṣṇava. Do you follow, clear, no?

Devotee: Yes. Therefore I'm coming here.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So from a real source, we shall try to take upadeśa, not everywhere.

asādhu-sange bhai "kṛṣṇa nāma" nahi haya ["nāmākṣara" bahiraya batu nāma kabu naya]

["O brothers, the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa is never to be found in the association of those who are unsaintly. The external sound of the Holy Name is never the Name proper."] [Prema-vivarta] [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 17.55] & [Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja's collection of ślokas, 313]

With the association of those that are not saint we cannot find real Kṛṣṇa Nāma. Nāmākṣara bahiraya batu. The external sound, superficial sound may come out, but not the substance.

Or you have seen the homoeopathic globule? But globule is not the medicine. In homoeopathic treatment, all the medicines externally of similar type, some white globule. But the globule is not the medicine. The medicine, the potency is within. One globule, all similar to see, but one is nux, another is aconite, another is another medicine, in this way.

So the external cover of the sound, ordinary sound, that may not be Kṛṣṇa, may be nāmāparādha, nāmābhāsa. Ākṣara, ordinary sound, not Vaikuṇṭha, not spiritual sound. Where sound is surcharged with spiritual knowledge, feeling, that is Kṛṣṇa Nāma, there is Kṛṣṇa. And the superficial imitation of Kṛṣṇa Nāma is not Kṛṣṇa, nāmākṣara, this mundane sound. And there'll be difference between mundane sound and spiritual sound. A man who has got his spiritual life within, when he speaks about Kṛṣṇa, his words are surcharged with spiritual substance.

You see, there was one doctor tale is there. A doctor he had his dispensary and he saw many patients; administered also medicine. One day it was found, the doors are opened in the dispensary, the doctor is absent. One monkey he has entered. Monkey, they're good imitationist, entered, and taking seat on the chair of the doctor, he's also imitating the doctor, medicine this side, that side, the monkey. But the monkey's treatment is not that of the doctor. The inner side is absent. External side is there, imitation.

So also the spiritual dealing must be under the physical attempts. So Kṛṣṇa is not only mundane sound, Kṛṣṇa Nāma, it is something else. Just like that homoeopathic globule, only a white pill. So it is necessary that we must take the sound from a bona fide Guru who has got spiritual realisation. In whose words are surcharged with spiritual substance. It is necessary. Otherwise it will be all in vane, only cultivation of mundane sound. So,

[sādhu saṅga kṛṣṇa nāma ei matta jai] vaikuṇṭha nāma grahaṇam aśeṣāgham haraṁ vidun

["The Holy Name must be taken with the attitude of service to the saints. Serving means die to live; to throw oneself wholesale for the higher existence."] [Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja's collection of ślokas, 414]

So it is said in the śāstra that you will take the Name identified with Infinite, Vaikuṇṭha Nāma. The Name, the sound which has got connection with infinite, not mundane limited sound of the limited world. Do you understand?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So ordinary person, a student, he must come to a real professor who will be able to educate him; not anywhere and everywhere. It is general. And a man of high intelligence, he can even discover something from the ordinary happenings, ordinary incident, he can find out higher truth. Just as when Newton found that apple is falling from the tree, the suggestion came, 'Oh, earth is drawing it, attracting it.' Ordinary people see that apple falling but no such suggestion comes, 'The earth is drawing, attraction, gravitation.' He discovered, invented, gravitation. Gives new light to an expert, higher brain. So higher spiritualist, they can have new thing from the opposite, apparently opposite paraphernalia. But for ordinary persons, it is not possible. They should go to a proper place.

It is mentioned in Upaniṣad, in Bhāgavatam, Bhagavad-gītā, that how, with what attitude, a disciple will approach the Ācārya. And if his qualification is there, not a bogus Ācārya, but a real Ācārya, who has got practical and śāstric knowledge about the truth. We must approach a real doctor to cure a disease, not a quack, imitating doctor. It is common sense. So you have got thirst after spiritual knowledge, then we must go to a spiritualist, proper. Not avaiṣṇava-mukhodgīrṇaṁ, that will cause harm to me, that imitationist Ācārya. It is common sense.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. The progress is possible when real transaction is made. Sometimes that is also very hard. A good professor, but the student is not up to mark, then the professor can't do anything. So students and professors, both must be qualified, then the scholarship can be imparted.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Are you satisfied with the answer?

Devotee: Yes. The second question is that they were telling me about namasrta and namagrahi. But I don't want to hear from them about it. I want to hear from you about this.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Namasrta and namagrahi. Namagrahi, what is the meaning?

Namasrta, one who has got the Name from proper Gurudeva, who has surrendered to the service of the Name Divine. That is namasrta.

And namagrahi; agrahi and namagrahi, one who is thirsty to get the Name; earnest to have the Name from the Guru, and not yet got. That may be, perhaps. A difference is there. One who has got the real Name from the Guru and he has got proper life to cultivate in his own way. The seed is there, the land is prepared to sow, but it is not sown. The seed not sown in the land, but land is well-cultivated, that may be namagrahi.

And when the land is well cultivated and the seed also sown there, very soon the sprout will come out. That is namasrta. Namasrta, who has already got the seed, the land has got the seed, it is already sown in the field.

And namagrahi, it is tilled and well cultivated, but not seed sown yet there, prepared to be sown. That may be namagrahi, who has got earnestness for the Name but not yet got. That may be namagrahi. Namagrahi - it has got only seed, but not nurturing, that is watering and all these things. And one who is taking the Name, already he has begun his cultivation. That is by watering and also weeding, remove the weeds, all these things, nurturing. That may be namagrahi, one who is taking the Name properly.

And namasrta, only has got the connection of Guru, but not practising the same, as yet. That may be, according to the word. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Do you follow, no? Nitāi. Anything else?

Vasudeva: I have a question.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is that?

Devotee: I was recently reading through an atlas of universal astronomy. It comprised the latest findings of our modern astronomy. So in it they elaborately explained about different planets, and the galaxies, and even groups of galaxies. And the most astounding was their photographs of the sun and moon and Jupiter etc.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who is he?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Vasudeva.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vasudeva. What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He's not finished yet.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not yet finished?

Badrinārāyaṇa: No.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He says in astronomy or something, influence of the planets over a man, over the living souls here, and God? Eh?

Vasudeva: It was a book that I read.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Books, there are innumerable, that does not matter.

Badrinārāyaṇa: What's the question?

Vasudeva: The question is, that it made me wonder how I should take such a book?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Every man has got his wonder in his own department. Whether those wonders are necessary at all, that is the question. Wonder everywhere, in his own way.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Even how they should be accepted.

Vasudeva: Is it a complete fabrication due to their cheating? Or is it actually the result of their observations?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Even within the atom there is wonder, endless wonder. An atom, every smallest thing contains infinite wonder. The wonder is not in the objective, but wonder is real in the subjective world. Wonder can produce wonder. The highest wonder is God Himself, Who can design and destine everything. All wonders can be designed and destined by the Absolute Cause, He's Lord. Do you follow? Eh? Wonder of wonders, Who can produce, Who can design and destine all wonders.

āścaryavat paśyati kaścid enam, āścaryavad vadati tathaiva cānyaḥ
āścaryavac cainam anyaḥ śṛṇoti, śrutvāpy enaṁ veda na caiva kaścit

["Some see the soul as astonishing, some describe him as astonishing, and some hear of him as astonishing, while others, even after hearing about him, cannot understand him at all."]
[Bhagavad-gītā, 2.29]

In Bhagavad-gītā, āścaryavat paśyati kaścid enam, one jīva soul. Āścaryavad vadati tathaiva cānyaḥ. They're others there are who say, "Oh, it is most wonderful." Āścaryavat paśyati kaścid. Who comes to have a glimpse of the soul he's astounded. Who goes to describe him, he's also astounded. Āścaryavad vadati tathaiva. Who comes to hear, he's also astounded.

āścaryavat paśyati kaścid enam, āścaryavad vadati tathaiva cānyaḥ
āścaryavac cainam anyaḥ śṛṇoti, śrutvāpy enaṁ veda na caiva kaścit

Even hearing, none can estimate it, what it is, it is such wonder. Wonder, in the hypnotiser, in the subjective realm. Wonder. Everything - a child when grows up, according to the growth, the child sees anything and everything as wonder. Newcomer, new things means wonder. A little more distant. That is wonder. And when we, by calculating step by step, we reach the - dealing with that thing, that is no wonder. Otherwise, everything is wonder. Everything is wonder. The talk, the sound, everything is wonder. If we have our brain to study, then everything, we can find wonder. In the atom also, in the sun also, in the polar system, everywhere there is room for research and wonder; finding out wonder. Room for research in different department they will check out. And when successful, "This wonder I have come out from this research." Ha, ha. But this is nothing, all these wonders are nothing.

Yasmin vijñāte, when we'll come to know that the source of wonder, that the absolute is autocrat. Absolute is whatever He wills. As Bible - "Let there be water." There was water. "Let there be light." There was light. The creator of the wonders. His will, supreme will, is at the root of everything. Whatever He likes He can do. And how many liking you can count? Our puppy brain, how many wonders they can think or accept or feel. So, wonder. Who can create all wonders. Our brain is limited. Everything is wonder to us. What is wonder to one, that is nothing to another. Sometimes wonder to such genius, human genius, it may be ordinary thing to a bird, or an insect. It is quite known to him, a worm or insect, and it may be wonder to a genius and a scholar. So what is wonder? Wonder of all wonders that He can create wonder. Ha, ha. His creation is wonder. We're to find out that source.

yasmin vijñāte sarvam evam vijñātam bhavati [yasmin prāpte sarvam idam prāptam bhavati]

["By knowing Him, everything is known - by getting Him, everything is gained."]

If you can know Him, everything is known. If we have Him, everything is got. More wonder, there can be anything? By knowing which we can know everything and anything. Anything more wonder than that? This is the centre wonder. And try to know that, find out that. Search for that, knowing which we can know everything. There will be no wonder. If we know anything and everything, by knowing one, there will be no wonder. Yes, He can do anything and everything, a new thing. We're limited being, no end of wonders. Every phase, when it is shown, it is wonder. A stale thing, that also may be shown in such a way that it will seem to be wonder.

And He wants jñāna śūnya bhakti, He wants us to relief from that search of wonder. "Don't go that side. That is a satanic side. That will show wonder and capture you there, from your duty."

Wonder means knowledge. It comes within the jurisdiction of knowledge; wonderful. "I have knowledge, higher knowledge." But jñāna śūnya bhakti says, śuddha, devotion, pure devotion says, "Leave up that satanic aspect of the thing. You are master, you'll be charmed by seeing new wonder every moment."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...the chance of coming very near to Him for His satisfaction, service. Don't allow yourself to be benumbed by so many exhibitions of wonders. That is misguided. No end. So, as much as a subject you are a tiny point. As a subject, how much you can survey? Almost nothing. Your subjective existence is very meagre and lower type. How much you can survey?

Infinite wonder. Wonder of wonders. Give up that wild goose chasing, and accept the right direction. You have got your duty, your fulfilment of life. Exhibition won't satisfy, you will have to eat something to get satisfaction of the food. Only to be a prey to an enchanter, a witch, that is not fulfilment of your life, to supply the food of the witch, or hypnotist. You are not meant for that. Higher purpose you have got in your life. The wonder produces you some sort of satisfaction. But that is far more less quality. By service of Kṛṣṇa you will get satisfaction within you thousands times higher type in quality. Then you can satisfy attending so many wonders, wild goose chasing. Leave that, jñāna. Try to enquire and know and taste the prema, the love, the affection, the beauty.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Eh? What you are asking, the answer is going towards that. No? Is missing the point? You say that you did not finish your question. Is it?

Devotee: The actual question was - this was one side of the question. The answer you gave.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: There was another side; my answer has not covered your question?

Devotee: Well, should I understand, for the purpose of preaching, sometimes it is useful to know whether this...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: As an analogy, standard for the lower purpose, for the facility of the infant class, something is necessary, some example necessary which is not true. The professor knows that this is not true. But still this sort of example must be given to the child, half-false, half-truth. Then again he will save him from that conception. Suppose the astronomy will say, for the beginner, sun is fixed, planets are moving around the sun. Then higher astronomy will come to say the sun with all its paraphernalia, it is moving around another higher star. In this way. But in the beginning that is not said. He'll be puzzled, students will be puzzled. So in this way it is going up and up, according to the standard and capacity of the students. So half-truth, which is a falsehood also taken as truth.

loke vyavāyāmiṣa-madya-sevā, nityā hi jantor na hi tatra codanā

["Everyone is naturally inclined to have sex, eat meat, and drink wine. There is no need for the scripture to encourage these things. The scriptures do, however, give concessions to people who are determined to do these things. The scriptures therefore grant a license to enjoy sex by allowing sexual intercourse with one's lawfully wedded wife at the proper time of the month. They grant a license to eat meat to those who perform a certain kind of sacrifice, and a license to drink wine to those who perform the Sautramani sacrifice. The purpose of granting these licenses for sense gratification is only to restrict these activities and encourage people to give them up altogether. The real intention of the Vedic injunctions regarding sex, meat-eating, and wine-drinking is to make one abstain from these activities."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.5.11]

Because they can't understand the whole truth, so by instalment they should be supplied the truth. The instalments not the full truth. By instalment one fourth, half, one tenth, in this way that is taken help for the child, for the human being, by instalments. What is being given, that is not the full truth, partial representation. And gradually he will be able to make progress. And in this way, no end is there, no end.

A line has got no end. Infinite number of points a line can contain. And a plane can contain infinite number of lines. And a solid can contain infinite number of planes. All infinite. Line all infinite, plane also infinite, solid also infinite. But solid is greater infinite who can contain any number of planes. Plane can contain any number of lines. And line can contain any number of points. They're infinite in their own way. Infinite is such. So space, time, energy, they're infinite in their own way. But all infinite of our conception is in a part of the whole.

Kṛṣṇa says, "Arjuna, whatever you can conceive, that forms only a small part of Mine, I am so."

athavā bahunaitena, kiṁ jñātena tavārjjuna
viṣṭabhyāham idaṁ kṛtsnam, ekāṁśena sthito jagat

["But Arjuna, what is the need of your understanding this elaborate knowledge of My almighty grandeur? By My fractional expansion as the Supreme Soul of material nature, Mahā-Viṣṇu (Kāraṇārṇavaśāyī Viṣṇu), I remain supporting this entire universe of moving and stationary beings."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 10.42]

"Only in My one negligent part I contain all the conception of all your infinite. I am such."

So jñāne prayāsam [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.3], keep up the line of searching in this way. Searching necessary, but method and that way are different. The prime cause of everything, Brahma, Paramātmā, Bhagavān, in this way. Three branches opened in the beginning. Brahma, all comprehensive aspect, all-permeating aspect, and all-creating and designing aspect. Then there is another, all-loving, all-fulfilling aspect of the whole. Fulfilment another department. The fulfilment of every unit, that has been accepted as the highest. Who can give fulfilment of everything. That is raso vai saḥ, fulfilment of life, the giver of fulfilment of everything, that is conceived to be the highest.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Beauty, charm, love, affection, that can give fulfilment. Not knowledge, nor energy, master of power. Power cannot give fulfilment, energy, prakṛti. Neither knowledge can give fulfilment. But affection can give you fulfilment, love.

That is told by Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanya Deva. "We're all in earnest want of affection, sympathy, love, beauty, charm, harmony. That is our innermost hankering." This is said by Caitanya Mahāprabhu. "You are there. All your enquiry only coming out of the dissatisfaction within you. If you get that, all enquiry will stop. You have come home." That is His statement. In Bhāgavatam that is also stated.

na te viduḥ svārtha-gatiṁ hi viṣṇuṁ, durāśayā ye bahir-artha-māninaḥ
[andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās, te 'pīśa-tantryām uru-dāmni baddhāḥ]

["Persons who are strongly entrapped by the consciousness of enjoying material life, and who have therefore accepted as their leader or guru a similar blind man attached to external sense objects, cannot understand that the goal of life is to return home, back to Godhead, and engage in the service of Lord Viṣṇu. As blind men guided by another blind man miss the right path and fall into a ditch, materially attached men led by another materially attached man are bound by the ropes of fruitive labour, which are made of very strong cords, and they continue again and again in materialistic life, suffering the threefold miseries."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.31]

Prahlāda Mahārāja said, "They can't understand the fulfilment of our life, the stalk of their life is in Your holy feet. Svārtha-gatiṁ hi viṣṇuṁ. The real interest of everything is only getting fulfilment in Your connection. You are the fulfilment of everything. Those that are wandering aimlessly this side, that side, attracted by this thing and that thing, they do not know that Your holy feet is the only goal of satisfaction. Na te viduḥ svārtha. Bahir-artha-māninaḥ. They're captured by the external, superficial glamour of so many things they're coming in contact. Durāśayā ye bahir-artha-māninaḥ, andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās. There are so many guides and leaders, they're also eagerly taking more of them this side, that side, to show different types of charm. Durāśayā ye bahir-artha-māninaḥ, andhā yathāndhair. Just as one blind guides another blind, their position is like that. Andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās, te 'pīśa-tantryām uru-dāmni baddhāḥ. And they're tied tight by the illusory misconception of things here."

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. - Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Mahārāja. Yaśodā has one question.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yaśodā. She's Sarvapalak's wife?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Yes. The Pāṇḍavas, with Draupadī, did they enter heaven in their present body, with their physical body? Did they all enter, or did one enter? And where did they enter, the Pāṇḍavas and Draupadī?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Entered after departure?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Different type of show. Really, as Kṛṣṇa, He had no material life, but He can show this material life to our material eyes, but really that is not material. His devotee is also of that type, they show their material existence. They can withdraw in different plane, as in different creation. This flesh and blood, they can show the body as we find in the dream, mental body of similar type. As I find by the physical eye, at mind's eye also we can see the same. That is also a plane of feeling, meeting, playing. In this way there are so many subtle planes, and our life also made up of that sort of fine materials.

So really, from the absolute standpoint, Pāṇḍavas they're parṣada of Kṛṣṇa. They had not material life, all show, and show also of different type. Yudhiṣṭhira Mahārāja, he could maintain his - this fleshy life, as we say - in the heaven. But others, Draupadī and the other four brothers, they had to give up their external life here, cover, then to go in a subtle body to heaven.

In heaven also there was Duryodhana. That ordinary person by attending war in heroic way they were rewarded with heavenly life. And there Yudhiṣṭhira Mahārāja found them, Arjuna and others, who are devotee of Kṛṣṇa. And Duryodhana, anti devotee, all found there. Yudhiṣṭhira Mahārāja in his, as if mundane body, or so called spiritual body that can live here, he went that state and found them there. But that is also heaven, we can acquire by good action, but not by pure devotion. That is Vaikuṇṭha, more. That is also mentioned there, very suppressed way.

Then, Yudhiṣṭhira Mahārāja met also Arjuna and Kṛṣṇa in some other way and brothers also, in that way, in Goloka, in Kṛṣṇaloka. There their real representation is there in līlā. Kṛṣṇa līlā is all eternal. What was shown here, Kṛṣṇa līlā with the Pāṇḍavas, the Dvārakā Kṛṣṇa līlā, that is also eternal. Sometimes comes down here in the mundane plane for exhibition, to attract us that side.

So now, what is your question? Say, repeat it. Ask her.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Mahārāja. In Goloka, how are the Pāṇḍavas represented?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In Goloka, as we saw here, as Vṛndāvana is represented, so in Dvārakā līlā is represented there. And in Dvārakā līlā connection this Mathurā, Dvārakā, the Pāṇḍavas, all these are played there. Such design of drama is played there.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]
Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hmm? What do you say? Goloka, Goloka līlā, in Goloka līlā, yes.

Badrinārāyaṇa: In Goloka, how are they represented?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Whatever līlā is shown by Kṛṣṇa, here we find everything is there. Everything is in the original plane, and that is drawn down here to show us here. Different types of Kṛṣṇa līlā, in Vṛndāvana, in Mathurā, in Dvārakā, everywhere, that is there, intact. The finest plane, it is there. There is also gradation. The Pāṇḍavas, sākhya līlā. Then Dvārakā. Dvārakā Kṛṣṇa, Mathurā Kṛṣṇa, superior, Vraja Kṛṣṇa superior. Then Kṛṣṇa with the gopīs, that is more higher, in this way more high.

Gradation there, but on the whole that is all in Goloka. Goloka means that is full solid circle, Goloka. Everything is there and can be explained by that peculiar, wonderful centre. If it's drawn from that centre, measured, everything is accommodated there, nothing to be eliminated. That is Goloka, which can give harmony to everything, whatever diversity, or incompatibility we may conceive. Everything, absolute good, absolute harmony, in His connection everything is good. He can give harmony to everything, even stealing, this debauchery, everything in His connection becomes best. That is the conception of the highest harmony. Even māyā is harmonised there, that is also utilised. Speaking lie, māyā, misunderstanding, misconception, that is also utilised, harmonised. Absolute is such. Infinite is such. And no deception, deception is rather gain. What we think to be deception, deceived party, deceiver, both gainer there.

I heard first from my Guru Mahārāja in Benares, one māyāvādī had come to discuss with him, and that example came, nrsingha prasena bhavabit simgha jambavatar [?] One lion killed Prasena. Prasena perhaps brother of Satrājit - killed him, singha, and took the jewel (syamantaka). In that case our Guru Mahārāja is saying that in that killing that singha is also feeling happiness, and who is killed - Prasena, he's also feeling happiness, both parties. It is such because real killing is not possible in that plane, that is eternal, only a play.

Just as in a drama, one is killing, murdering, another is murdered. But sometimes we appreciate the murdered than the murderer, in his attitude of being murdered. But no murder is there, in the drama none is murdered really, but they show. But the show is such that sometimes part of the lowest man collects greater appreciation.

The king's play and the sweeper's play, a sweeper may get more applause, more appreciation. And the king may not have so much appreciation.

So the playing is eternal, no death, but the play is there giving satisfaction. It is something like that.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Līlā. So it is called līlā. Not this evolution of this world, dissolution, creation, and death, not that. It is līlā, play. Play, sweet will. Wave, no beginning, no end. The natural fundamental wave playing in this way. And it is satisfactory to every atom of that plane, giving fulfilment, distributing fulfilment to every atom there. That is the fundamental play of the Supreme, of the absolute world, conception of the world. It is something like that. What we can speak about that more?

Śrutibhir vimṛgyām [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.47.61] The revealed truth, revealed scriptures are only showing the direction 'that He's in this side.' That cannot be caught under the fist. Infinite. So we come this side, this side, this side. Śrutibhir vimṛgyām. Not only not possible for these ordinary books here, but the revealed scriptures of different types, lower, higher, they're also showing 'this side, not this.' Such is the thing. Finite, infinite. Absolute and relative.

Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. So I stop here with your permission.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...deepest vision of everything is everything for Kṛṣṇa, for none else; the deepest and most permanent view of everything. They wonder, how people can concoct different vision of different interest. Really it is everything for Kṛṣṇa's purpose, Kṛṣṇa līlā is going on. And they say in their own interest, "Oh, this is this thing, that thing,' so many thousands of things they say. But it is only one, all līlā of Kṛṣṇa, for His satisfaction, for absolute good. Everything for Himself. By Himself and for Himself. Advaya-jñāna.

And according to our own special and peculiar interest we're trying to view things, read things in our own way. This is all misleading. We're misreading, mis-estimating things around us. Only one aim, one object of every movement here - to satisfy the Absolute Autocrat. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Harmony is there, real existence is there. And misreading, mis-estimation, all temporary, local. Temporarily that will have to die. Nation interest, country interest, solar system, earth interest, the sun interest, all will have to die. Only the absolute consideration is eternal. No end and no beginning. Eternal. Ahaitukī, apratihatā. Causeless, there is no beginning. Causeless means no beginning. And apratihatā, there is no end, none can check, there is no end. No beginning, no end; eternal pastimes of the whole infinite.

Devotee: Mahārāja. Why do devotees call Kṛṣṇa Puruṣottama?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Puruṣottama, that is, Who is the highest conception of a Puruṣa. Puruṣa means predominating temperament. Predominating and predominated, two halves. Śakti - predominated; śaktimān - the possessor of the potency, is predominating. Puruṣa means predominating, consumer. And potency means which is consumed, which is utilised, enjoyed. Enjoyer and enjoyed. Puruṣa is enjoyer.

kārya-kāraṇa-kartṛtve, hetuḥ prakṛtir ucyate
puruṣaḥ sukha-duḥkhānāṁ, bhoktṛtve hetur ucyate

["Material nature has been delineated as responsible for the cause of the domineering force of the senses, and the effect as the material body; and the (conditioned) soul himself is known to be responsible for his accrued happiness and unhappiness."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 13.21]

In Bhagavad-gītā. Bhokta, enjoyer. Puruṣa is the cause of enjoying. Enjoying aspect is Purusa. And enjoyed aspect is prakṛti, potency. Putama [?] Puruṣa, means so many jīva are tiny enjoyers. But the absolute enjoyer Who is the supreme-most enjoyer is Kṛṣṇa, Puruṣottama. He's enjoyer of all enjoyers. The whole enjoyment represented by Him. And the whole enjoyed aspect represented by Rādhārāṇī. Līlā Puruṣottama is one of the names of Kṛṣṇa, Līlā Puruṣottama. As in Bhagavad-gītā.

[yasmāt] kṣaram atīto 'ham, akṣarād api cottamaḥ / ato 'smi loke vede ca, prathitaḥ puruṣottamaḥ

["Because I am transcendental to the fallible souls and also superior to My infallible eternal associates, My glories are sung in the world and in the scriptures as Puruṣottama, the Supreme Person."]
[Bhagavad-gītā, 15.18]

"I am above this changing aspect of the world and unchanging aspect of the world."

Constant aspect and changing aspect, two aspect here we find. The background and within that background, movement, He's above both of these aspects. Kṣara, akṣara. Kṣaram atīto 'ham, akṣarād api cottamaḥ / ato 'smi loke vede ca, prathitaḥ puruṣottamaḥ.

"So the scriptures and the people call Me the highest enjoyer, proprietor."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Puruṣottama.

Aranya Mahārāja: Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta, when he received, when he took the order, the dress of a sannyāsī, and he also took the sannyāsa mantram, he didn't take formally sannyāsa from anyone. So, someone might say that, in such a time that one might not need to receive formal initiation to go on in his spiritual life. What is the necessity of formal initiation?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī, what did you say?

Aranya Mahārāja: When he took the dress of a sannyāsī he didn't have any sannyāsa Guru.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He took from his own Guru, he was Bābājī, above sannyāsī. From the photo of his Guru, he took, as done by Rāmānuja. Rāmānuja also took sannyāsa from the photo of his Guru, it is mentioned. And he did so, tridaṇḍa sannyāsa of the Rāmānuja School. It was not in continuance in Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇava. He introduced it from Rāmānuja sampradāya who took from Bhāgavatam, tridaṇḍa sannyāsa, tridaṇḍī, formerly. And following the example of Rāmānuja he took sannyāsa from the photo of his Gurudeva, who was Bābājī. Bābājī is considered to be above sannyāsī. So sannyāsa is included there in Bābājī, real Bābājī. The pseudo bābājī, we do not take care of them. Do you follow?

Aranya Mahārāja: Yes. That I understand. But also in his particular circumstance, because there was no suitable person to take sannyāsa from, then that could be justified. But some might say because he didn't actually take sannyāsa from a living person, that would give credence for us to also.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: When he got inspiration of sannyāsa, at that time he did not find any suitable Guru, Vaiṣṇava. So he had to take from a photo of his Gurudeva. He wandered through Vṛndāvana and put a strike on his forehead with the palm. "In such a holy place, Vṛndāvana, I came, I could not find a true Vaiṣṇava here." That was his impression there, and that came from his mouth, conclusion. He could not find a true Vaiṣṇava in the whole of Vṛndāvana and Navadwīpa. Such standard of Vaiṣṇavism he could conceive, he had in his mind, in his heart, only Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura and Gaurakiśora Bābājī.

But at that time he did not feel any inspiration of preaching. After they departed, he was thinking 'What to do?' Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura only - Gaurakiśora Dāsa Bābājī his Gurudeva told, "You need not try for any preaching. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura śikṣā Guru, he was of such tendency. You must preach to certain extent and take care of the Yoga-pīṭha, Mahāprabhu's birthplace, all these things."

In the beginning, he thought he would not partake in any propaganda work. He'll go on with his own life of bhajana, and the discussion, cultivation, reading of the scriptures, writing. This way he'll pass his life. But he got some inspiration from inside, irresistible. "That you're to preach, you're meant for that." So, he had to think, 'I shall preach. How I shall do, what is my duty?'

At that time suddenly found that one piece of paper, he's appealing to the Lord, Mahāprabhu, 'What sort of preaching You want from me?' When that preaching tendency became irresistible in his heart, 'then what should I do?' He was fervently appealing and also intensely thinking. He found that a leaflet carried by wind came on his front. He took it, collected, and found there Mahāprabhu is advising Sanātana. "Do all these four things." It is written there. That portion, that in a torn piece of some book that was carried by the wind on his front and he took it, when he was thinking, 'how I shall begin preaching?' And there the four points Mahāprabhu advised Sanātana.

sri murti prakasa, sri vigraha prakasa, lupta tirtha prakasa, bhakti sastra prakasa _____ [?]

Aranya Mahārāja: Places of pilgrimage, books, Mūrtis...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

[Sri Chaitanya: His Life & Associates, p 171] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 4.97]

Four things Mahāprabhu advised to Sanātana. "Do this." And that piece of paper came. So he took it that the divine arrangement what Caitanyadeva advised Sanātana to do, 'I'm also to follow that, by this chance coincidence event.' So he was thinking of beginning in that way. At that time some devotee came to him and gave proposal of establishing centre at Calcutta. And gradually he began there, preaching centre. Own centre in Māyāpur, he had a place already, he used to preach scriptures. Now preaching by accepting brahmacārī and giving sannyāsa, and the initiation to the gṛhastha, in this way...

84.02.28.B_84.03.01.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...then in this way, and try to have the conception, and maintain in the inner most heart that one day you'll be rewarded with your, with the Loving Couple's service there. The fulfilment is there. We're to reach there. All our attempts is meant to reach in that plane, mānase karibe, foster in the heart of your heart.

[amānī mānada hañā kṛṣṇa-nāma sadā la'be] vraje rādhā-kṛṣṇa-sevā mānase karibe

["Do not expect honour, but offer all respects to others. Always chant the Holy Name of Lord Kṛṣṇa, and within your mind render service to Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa in Vṛndāvana."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 6.237]

But externally you'll do these things, this program, mānase karibe, in the heart of heart you will foster your destination in that plane. That does not mean that that so high ideal you'll take Him down to this human plane. In your mental plane you'll drag down that Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, Hare Kṛṣṇa, conceived to be the highest plane.

muktānām api siddhānāṁ nārāyaṇa-parāyaṇa / sudurlabhaḥ praśāntātmā [koṭiṣv api mahā-mune]

["O great sage, among many millions who are liberated and perfect in knowledge of liberation, one may be a devotee of Lord Nārāyaṇa, or Kṛṣṇa. Such devotees, who are fully peaceful, are extremely rare."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 6.14.5] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.150]

There are so many liberated souls and so many self fulfilled souls, siddha, whatever they like they get that. They also cannot approach properly towards Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa plane, for worshipping plane. So it is not meant that that will be brought down here in the human sensual experience. But the barrier is in the middle. No satisfaction of the tongue, no care for the popularity of this world. This is in the middle.

Then higher from that, this plane, when one has got no least attraction for this mundane. Amānī mānada hañā kṛṣṇa-nāma. And then no mixing with the worldly topics, all these things, then you will try to cultivate in your inner mind. In the middle, all these things that won't allow that mind to come to mix with this mundane mind.

Vraje rādhā-kṛṣṇa-sevā mānase karibe. Mānase, and you'll foster in the innermost compartment of your heart that Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa. Don't indulge in talking Them to the public, or listening as it is going on in the public. That is secret of the secret, keep it in mind, that is our goal. And in external life you observe all these formalities what I say. If you have any respect for Me, regard for Me, then My advice to you is this.

Don't mix with human society ordinarily. And don't try to have a comfortable life, or praise or popularity from the public. And take continuously the Divine Name with such attitude. And fix in your highest object in Rādhā- Kṛṣṇa līlā. Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa līlā, the absolute fundamental vibration of love, without caring any law or anything of his own. Samāj, śāstra, law, and svajan, anyone of his own friends, sacrifice of all friendship and sacrifice of all consciousness of purity. Above that the Absolute Thing, Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa.

Svajanam ārya-pathaṁ ca hitvā, bhejur mukunda-padavīṁ.

[āsā maho caraṇa-renu-juṣām aham syām, vṛndāvane kim api gulma-latauṣadhīnām
yā dustyajaṁ svajanam ārya-pathaṁ ca hitvā, bhejur mukunda-padavīṁ śrutibhir vimṛgyām]

["The gopīs of Vṛndāvana have given up the association of their husbands, sons and other family members, who are very difficult to renounce, and they have sacrificed even their religious principles to take shelter of the lotus feet of Kṛṣṇa, which are sought after by even the Vedas. O grant me the fortune to be born as a blade of grass in Vṛndāvana, so that I may take the dust of those great souls upon my head."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.47.61]

The peculiarity is there in Rādhā kaiṅkaryyaṁ, in the leadership, the highest conception, even among those that have a life of the gopīs in Vṛndāvana. Does not care for any of their friends or any of their advices. No advice and no friendship can come within, interfere in relationship with the Absolute. That will be, you'll keep in your mind. That sort of absolute surrender to the Absolute Good is demanded from you. That is your highest aim, aspiration, goal. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Here I stop.

He's teaching, "I'm higher and you are lower, I want to teach you that is pralāpa - that is delirium in Guru. That is a delirious condition that he comes to punish his disciple. That is delirious stage."

As Mahāprabhu says to Sanātana Goswāmī, "What is passing through Me to you Sanātana, that is like a delirium to Me, some mysticism. I can't understand them properly. But passing through Me to help you, I feel only this much. So I'm talking the meaning of which I don't know - delirium. I'm an instrument to some disease. Delirium means one is talking aimlessly being victim of a particular disease tendency. Here also I feel that I'm talking under some influence, not sensibly." Vyāso vetti na vetti vā.

[aham vedmi śuko vetti, vyāso vetti na vetti vā
bhaktyā bhāgavataṁ grāhyaṁ na buddhyā na ca ṭīkayā]

[Lord Śiva says: "I know the true purpose of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam; Śukadeva, the son and disciple of Vyāsadeva, knows it thoroughly, and the author of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, Śrīla Vyāsadeva may or may not know the meaning. The real purpose of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam is very difficult to conceive and can only be known through bhakti."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 24.313]

Even Vedavyāsa while he has given, written, to the world, he may or may not know. Such independent character of the Absolute, transcendental means such. He's never a monopolised property or object of trade to anyone, He's always free.

He makes - just as Arcā-Mūrti, a man made figure, ordinarily, but it's not so. It's coming in the way where the Absolute is controlling their sense, their mind, their hand. They're instrument when He's coming here, controlling everything, that is Arcā. Arcā, descent of the Absolute in this mundane plane to help the lowest class of devotee.

But it is He, the Jagannātha of Mahāprabhu having darśana and shedding tears like anything. What is that? Only man made wooden doll? Ha, ha. What is that? He's coming. Who can understand that by this process the Lord has come to the lowest class to help them, to draw them gradually in His own place. Arcā-Mūrti.

So the controller is everything. A man is going in a palanquin, so many men are carrying. In the ordinary sense those men are carrying this man forcibly. But a fine brain can understand the man within the palanquin, he's going, forcing these human bodies to observe, to follow his own direction, he's going to his own chosen place. Not that these men are carrying him wherever they like, it's not like that. He's going on their shoulder, not the men are robbing him to this place or that place. When a motorcar is carrying, some ordinary children may say the car is carrying all these persons. But sensible man will think man is going by the car. So the controller is to have all importance.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Pralāpa. Mahāprabhu says, "Sanātana, pralāpa, what I say that is delirium like to Me. Kṛṣṇa is giving Me some, sending some grace through Me, but I do not understand that fully."

Infinite cannot be understood by the finite, then it is not Infinite. To be the agent of the Infinite is not so very easy thing, the carrier, the mediator, of the Infinite thing. If he thinks that I'm producing these words or these meanings, then it's not Infinite. I'm instrument, I'm made instrument. He's coming through me, engaging me. In that line we can hope to have His association, whether listening or talking. His independence, His supremacy, is always to be admitted cent per cent. Then we can come in connection with Him. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari bol.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Many of the disciples of Swāmī Mahārāja, they could not go along with the administration of ISKCON, came to me. I asked them to put their complaint to the ISKCON committee. When that was ignored then I asked them to do that jointly, and if that is also ignored then they may combine themselves and begin as in something like relief work. Those that are going away from ISKCON they should be combined and go on in the line of Swāmī Mahārāja. And will help those that want to be under Kṛṣṇa consciousness but can't obey the present ISKCON.

With that conception that Mahā-maṇḍala was built, the origin is there. Some of them wanted to be absorbed with me, but I did not agree. That my temperament is not so. I've got no capacity of conducting big organisation, so you look after your own self. Those that like Kṛṣṇa consciousness but cannot obey the present administration, all such people come together and work conjointly, helping those that are coming out of ISKCON, or outside. With that conception this Mahā-maṇḍala was founded. And at that time I wanted the president, Akṣayānanda Mahārāja was made president, and Jayatīrtha vice president but he went away. In this way it was organised, first, and now going on slowly. Then Mādhava Purī Mahārāja, then that Sudhīra Goswāmī. And there are so many others they've got their name, little difference, but they'll associate in Mahā-maṇḍala and by the help of one another they'll go on. In this way it was conceived and it's going slowly.

I'm old, I'm about to pass away. So to hear from me direct, interested persons are coming to me, not giving so much importance to Mahā-maṇḍala. But after my departure they may combine there, having their common foundation, they may work on together, by the sweet will of Kṛṣṇa. Man proposes God disposes. I'm creating some foundation outside ISKCON which may help those under Kṛṣṇa consciousness but out of ISKCON. They may find some cooperative body there with mutual help. If they like it will go on. I want to be independent.

When my proposal was such in the beginning, Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī told that, "You are just like the birds when their plume, the plumage or what...

Devotee: Growing, the wings.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! "Not fully grown, but flown from the nest, to try then how to fly. So you're doing like that." He accused me in that sweet way. Ha, ha. "That you're casting us, we've come to you, and you're throwing us far. Still we shall see goodness in you, like the bird, only you're throwing to teach self help within us, to develop self help. All right, as you like." In this way he remarked and went away and having his own.

Caru Swāmī he was also very earnest in this affair. Now he's little far away. He went to America to speak something in favour of me, and reported when came back that, "I found that Sudhīra Goswāmī has begun already very strongly in favour of you. With the help of the tapes that he's collected from the temple where you're in charge. And he's copied those tapes from that temple, and with the basis of that he has begun to preach in your favour very strongly." I was reported that by Caru Swāmī. But now Caru Swāmī himself has almost withdrawn from me. Of course he says that, "I have no apathy, I have every sympathy." But still for the sake of the order of ISKCON he's keeping aloof, I'm told.

Devotee: Gurudeva. You've said that I'm a blunt speaker. So now I'm going to speak something very bluntly. That there are some complaints that the Mahā-maṇḍala, the same complaints that some members made against ISKCON, that they themselves stand accused of the same thing.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Maybe, maybe. Is it not possible that everyone may be accommodated in an organisation? There may be some difference. That does not mean for one or two another organisation will be constructed, or the old organisation should be demolished. It does not necessarily mean that. We're trying, but there also may be defects, everywhere there may be defects. So there may be some who cannot agree with the two, ISKCON and the Mahā-maṇḍala, such persons also there may be.

There are so many people who have no recognition of God even, the atheistic people. There are sections amongst the atheists also. Immoral atheist, moral atheist, imaginary theistic moralist, so many classifications there may be. Not all accommodating organisation is possible. According to the quality there will be difference. But that does not mean that organisation has no value at all. Value, but it is, may not be perfect here. Qualitative difference there may be.

Uddhava put a question to Kṛṣṇa. "Why so many groups in the name of religion? Why not one and universal?"

Kṛṣṇa told, "In the beginning of the creation, about religion, I told it what is the conception of your religion and truth, I transmitted to Brahmā, and I'm the subject matter of religion. But from Brahmā so many disciples came and they were taught, and according to their own mental position there was difference in their conception. When they delivered in their turn some modification is seen. And then from disciplic order one disciple to another, A.B.C, modification is going on, the mental colour of the disciple's modification. And now we find what was one in the beginning, now so many, in the name of same religion, same source, but now it's all so many difference.

And there are others grown from this soil in the ascending method. Descending method also modified according to the capacity of the disciples. And there are some ascending methods grown, concocted conceptions of religion, so there's a jungle now. Some lay stress in donation, some in love of the country, some humanitarian work, some penance, some pilgrimage, some meditation, some on the study of the scriptural compilations. So, so many different, one giving stress in one thing, in this way the variegated. So variety according to the capacity of the receivers, it cannot be avoided, it will be."

"And so," Kṛṣṇa says, "When the variety is too much, or the formality and the substance, real life almost vanished, then I shall have to come again and to give restart of the proper religion."

yadā yadā hi dharmasya, glānir bhavati bhārata
abhyutthānam adharmasya, tadātmānaṁ sṛjāmy aham

["O Bhārata, whenever there is a decline of religion and an uprising of irreligion, I personally appear, like a being born in this world."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.7]

"Again I come to set right everything in a normal way. I shall have to come, or to send some, My own strong agent to this world to set right everything in normal position. This is the world."

And I'm told that Parivrājaka Mahārāja he cannot be accommodated anywhere. You are independent spirit, whimsical man. He cannot work with anyone.

Devotee: If I say something...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I have already that report.

Devotee: Yes. You know the other day you spoke harshly about forcing initiations in regard to one of the ISKCON Gurus. So Parivrājaka Mahārāja he also spoke against some persons forcing initiations in the Mahā-maṇḍala. So I think there's some talk against him in this regard.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? What does he say?

Aranya Mahārāja: He's saying that in ISKCON there's some Gurus who are being accused of forcing people to take initiation from them. So similarly in the Mahā-maṇḍala some of the Ācāryas are seemingly forcing people to take initiation from them.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Forcing people to take initiation?

Devotees: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where? In Ireland one proposal came - one information came to me, that they're preaching outside and also inside ISKCON. Then I requested him, "Don't try to preach within ISKCON, preach outside, and those that are out of ISKCON. And don't approach anyone who is already within the administration of ISKCON."

That letter anyhow was found by Satsvarūpa Mahārāja, and he wrote a letter in the name of Akṣayānanda Mahārāja - the letter is here. "That we're very satisfied to see that Śrīdhara Mahārāja has given instruction to his followers not to encroach upon us. So if you maintain such peaceful position we'll be very much happy and no quarrel may remain between the two parties." The letter came the other day.

So I have never said - always I'm against aggression, only do relief work. That who are wounded in the fight, who came to attend ISKCON but could not do anyhow, could not remain under their rules, government. But they've got reverence for Mahāprabhu, Kṛṣṇa consciousness, Swāmī Mahārāja. Try to help them, they may not be allowed to go astray without any care. Try to take care of them because to have faith in Kṛṣṇa consciousness is of the very high order, a spirit which is very high. So they have come to participate in so higher theological truth and they'll lose that position, that is difficult to tolerate for the lover of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. They have come to love Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanyadeva, and for slight reason they'll go undetected towards downwards, that may not be allowed to go unnoticed.

So I asked them for relief work. They have come so far, and because they cannot obey the orders of ISKCON, whom I consider to be the novelists, newcomers, not of very settled up position in the spiritual world. But are beginners, newcomers, not consolidated position in spiritual knowledge or realisation. So they may not go away.

There are many important members also. Just as one Hiranyagarbha perhaps, or Pradyumna, they came with some complaint against ISKCON. I requested ISKCON in the beginning, "Please take care of them, hear them patiently, and what are their grievances, and try to remove that." I appealed to them. But they did not pay much attention. In the beginning little attention, then gradually they ignored. And these people are coming.

Then I asked, "Form a body and try to have the redress of your wrong. If not, then you combine yourselves and go on with another organisation. Try, but don't allow those that came so far to Kṛṣṇa consciousness unnoticed and uncared-for." That was the basis of this conception of Mahā-maṇḍala.

Now by the will of Kṛṣṇa I'm too old. And I've not also such nature as to work on with many big organisation or so - not so qualified I am. Only I can give some advice what I have gathered in this my life in connection with Kṛṣṇa consciousness as preached by our Guru Mahārāja. And by my Godbrothers and Gurudeva also had some appreciation of my understanding into Kṛṣṇa consciousness. So when people come to me, whatever I know I try to give, do some help to them. But not very enthusiastic to have a big organisation. I'm not fit for that.

So our Guru Mahārāja told me, "You are ease lover." Ha, ha. "You can do, but you don't do. Ease lover." That was his conception about me. "You should have done with more energy and more spacious working field, but you don't do. You do not give you wholesale for the service of Mahāprabhu. You are ease lover." He did not tell all these things but this is the meaning - ease lover meaning. Ease lover, different term given greater service but you do not do."

So I'm of that type. So I don't find any capacity to work in a greater, wider field. Though I think that I have some knowledge about the conception and advice of Mahāprabhu. I differ from many, thereby I understand that what they say I shan't agree, I've got my own feeling and realisation, I'm strong there. Clearly none can assail, and move me from my position of conception about the Gauḍīya truth.

Devotee: So you're known as Bhakti Rakṣaka for that, the Guardian of Devotion, Bhakti Rakṣaka, the Guardian of Devotion, you're known for that.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Guardian of Devotion. Guardian of Devotion published by Dhīra Kṛṣṇa Prabhu, Sudhīra Goswāmī Mahārāja, he has published one paper I heard, Guardian of Devotion. Bhakti Rakṣaka my name given by Guru Mahārāja. Gate Keeper, ha, ha, I'm gate keeper of the world of devotion. Because Śrīdhara, when he selected my name as Śrīdhara he pronounced several times, bhakti-eka-rakṣaka. Bhakti-eka-rakṣaka because Śrīdhara Goswāmī has been accepted as the protector of the devotional school. And bhakti-eka-rakṣaka, this term used by Jīva Goswāmī, bhakti-eka-rakṣaka śrīdhara, Śrīdhara Goswāmī.

Mahāprabhu also told, > śrīdhara-svāmi-prasāde 'bhāgavata' jāni [jagad-guru śrīdhara-svāmī 'guru' kari' māni

> śrīdharānugata kara bhāgavata-vyākhyāna / abhimāna chāḍi' bhaja kṛṣṇa bhagavān]

["By the mercy of Śrīdhara Swāmī, one can understand the meaning of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. For this reason he is the Guru of the whole world, and I consider him My Guru."] ["You should explain the Śrīmad- Bhāgavatam by following the version of Śrīdhara Swāmī. Giving up all false ego, you should worship Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-lila, 7.133,136]

[Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 2.31]

"The true interpretation of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam and Gītā in the devotional school has been given by Śrīdhara Swāmī."

So when our Guru Mahārāja, just before giving sannyāsa to me, he selected my name Śrīdhara. Then what will be the other part of the name? Bhakti-eka-rakṣaka, bhakti-eka-rakṣaka. But bhakti-eka-rakṣaka not three words, four words. So bhakti-eka, eka, that is eliminated, bhakti-rakṣaka was retained by him in my name. Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara. And that was taken from Jīva Goswāmī's adjective to Śrīdhara Goswāmī. So that was my name.

So generally, ha, ha, our Godbrothers they indulge in giving such interpretation. "You are protector of the devotional school. Gurudeva has given you such name." Ha, ha. They say like that.

Devotee: So Gurudeva. You were speaking before - there are many types of persons in the world with different mentalities. So how much freedom in the field does a preacher have without being, without coming into deviation, without making deviation? What is the difference?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: They'll do as a student. I told when there was some difference in meeting with the ISKCON members that 'I think you are so many students, not professors. And also I consider myself also a student and not a professor.' It is infinite, the knowledge is infinite, devotion is more than that, so we're all students.

Jayapatāka came when they were having a resolution that they should not mix with me, Jayapatāka came and told, "Mahārāja. Please forgive that I may not commit Vaiṣṇava aparādha."

Ha, ha. I told him, "No, no. No fear of committing Vaiṣṇava aparādha, I'm not a Vaiṣṇava."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "I want to be a servant of the Vaiṣṇava. My position is this, to aspire after the position of a servant of the Vaiṣṇava. I'm not a Vaiṣṇava. So you may rest assured...

84.03.01.B

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And it is intelligent to say like that because it is infinite. Ha, ha. A fool may say that 'I have got a position.' The truth is autocrat. And what is our position if we really live in the kingdom of autocracy? What position we may have? Nothing. And to have the proper conception that 'No position I have got,' that is rather something, because that is the truth.

As Newton told that, "I'm more wise than you all because you say I've finished the knowledge. And I think that I'm only collecting some pebbles on the infinite shore of the ocean, so I'm wiser. I consider myself wiser than you. You think that knowledge can be finished, but I think that I've not yet begun properly to study what is knowledge infinite." So it is like that.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Still we shall have to do our duty, to be sincere. Whatever little knowledge I know I must try to help with that. A particular medicine by using which I feel that my health is improved from particular disease, then I can recommend that to another. "Oh. You have got this disease, you use this medicine, it will help you." In that common sense. "The disease is of this nature, and the medicine of this type, and what I've used I feel that I'm in the curing stage." I may recommend that sincerely to others also of same disease.

In that way preaching will go on. Preaching means not that I know fully. The preaching, that is sādhana, preaching means kīrtana, śravaṇaṁ kīrtanaṁ, this is all sādhana, means to end, sādhana. Śravaṇa, kīrtana, listening, then preaching, that is also sādhana, means to end. But that is not that one has reached the end and he's distributing his own wealth - not like that, sādhana. And if one's in a preaching line then he'll have the chance of higher listening.

We had that experience. When we were engaged in preaching, then there were so many points came where we could not find satisfaction when giving answer. Then when the chance came for listening we imbibed answers of that type. We could collect answer replies proper, appropriate answers to those points thereby. In this way it's developed, no end. No end, only the fools rush in where angels fear to tread.

Mahāprabhu says, "I do not know anything. I do not, I cannot give anything, even a drop I have got a touch in My tongue, a very small, even a drop."

In this way it is such, it is infinite. So we must not be proud of any position. And still it is, we're living in the reign of our autocracy, we must be conscious of the fact, always wakeful to our own position. But still I must obey the order, I'm doing so. That does not mean I've come to obey the order then I'm omniscient and omnipotent. I'm like that, a carrier, agent, I'm an agent. Agency may be withdrawn any time, though generally that is not possible, but still we have such consciousness.

Mahāprabhu says to Advaita Prabhu that, "The prime minister of a king, by whose order so many culprits may be hanged, and by the order of king that officer also may be hanged." To Advaita Ācārya Mahāprabhu's advice. "The higher officer by whose order so many the capital punishment is granted, and by the order of the king that officer he also may be given capital punishment."

It is so, not relatively but from the absolute standpoint it is such. But still it is true that the devotees also they gather some confidence and power delegated to live to them, but it is of that nature, delegation.

One ordinance can take away all the powers of the whole government, one ordinance. In the second great war a time came such in England. All the individual ownership was taken by the state, irrespective of any, whether lord and the man in the street. Every right of everyone was taken away by the state in England when they apprehended that Hitler may jump any moment into England at that time. Anyone may be vacated, may be ordered to vacate his own palace, own kingdom, everything. The whole power came to the authority once.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa Kṛṣṇa. Hare Hare. Hare Rāma Hare Rāma. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

But only a suggestion of good will for the outskirts Mahā-maṇḍala was conceived. Now if good men come there it may go on, if not may not go. What I can do? I with some good will I gave suggestion to this. If aggrieved party may join and may work conjointly in an organised way. That was my object.

Devotee: Gurudeva. I have a question. Do you think it conceivable that the Mahā-maṇḍala and ISKCON may some day cooperate?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: If such time may come it may be possible. If such favourable time comes they may cooperate, or even they may merge. No vow of anti propaganda, no feel like that, if they have mutual understanding. According to their capacity they will do.

I think the little peculiarity may be in Mahā-maṇḍala that I have generally told about the comparative position of different rasa, śanta, dāsya, sākhya, vātsalya, mādhurya - and mainly mādhurya rasa. Because in all our mantram in the Guru paramparā is all in mādhurya rasa. Guru paramparā, the Gurus are all in mādhurya rasa, and other rasas are subsidiary. But it is not so much clear in ISKCON propaganda. This may be a little peculiarity one can notice. All rasas are subsidiary, assisting, but main thing is mādhurya rasa, the service of Kṛṣṇa in the mādhurya rasa, consorthood. Kṛṣṇa as consort. Fatherhood in Christianity but consorthood in Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇavism, that is the highest realising aspect.

And there is also something peculiar which is known as parakīya. That means absolute, without having any respect for any other relationship in the environment. All other relationships with the environment may be ignored while we consider our connection with Kṛṣṇa, all others may be ignored. That is parakīya means this, independent of all other obligations to the society and to any religious conception. In our connection with Kṛṣṇa it is absolute. Absolute to such a degree that ignores all other connections with the environment, any obligation. This means parakīya consorthood, the wholesale surrender which can ever be conceived.

That is given supreme position in Mahāprabhu's teachings in Vṛndāvana. Kṛṣṇa is like that. No other question will be allowed to come to enter in our relationship with Him. It is absolute. This is laid much stress on, in the teachings of our Guru Mahārāja, and also it is understood by me. But this sort of spiritual education and preaching may be dealt by instalments. All may not have the capacity of grasping such higher position in the devotional school. May be dealt by instalments, but our aim should be there. But we may not consider us to be qualified to practically accept that position. It is always to be respected on our head, high above, but object is such. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Mahārāja. You were saying that Swāmī Mahārāja did not stress this. He didn't have time to stress this rasa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He said that Swāmī Mahārāja did not have time to stress on this mādhurya rasa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Maybe, he did not do because the westerners all on a sudden to give all these things there may be possibility of being misunderstood. So the śāstric scholars also, the scholars of revealed scriptures, they also have accepted such position, that the whole thing must not be delivered to the child, in the spiritual world. By gradual instalment that should be given. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Gurudeva. Is the nature of bureaucracy to become stagnant? Because in any organisation there is some bureaucracy.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bureaucracy has facility and also some difficulty, both we're to tolerate. Bureaucracy, that should be there, but bureaucracy may be moral and sometimes immoral.

The king is compelled to meet the subjects through the bureaucracy, but if bureaucracy is adulterated then the king's position is bad, to the subjects. So necessary for the intelligent man, the spying system, to look at the activity of the bureaucracy, whether they're discharging their duty properly. The relationship with the subjects and the emperor, through bureaucracy the king comes to the subjects, to the people. And the people also approach the king through the bureaucracy. But bureaucracy is vulnerable, so the spy system, and there may be also difficulty. So we're to accept all these things into account.

So varṇāśrama is the first bureaucracy - Indian conception of varṇāśrama, that is the bureaucracy system, well organised bureaucracy. The brāhmaṇas who are indifferent to this worldly aspiration, and brahman conception who are generally given to truth and knowledge, they're in the front rank. And next the organisers, the kṣatriyas. They're marching from nescience to science, from ignorance to knowledge, the whole nation marching. And in the front those that appreciate spiritual consciousness, they're in the front, the brāhmaṇas. And then the organisers, then next, third, the financier, and the fourth, free labour hand. In this way the nation marching from ignorance to knowledge. Varṇāśrama system is a well established bureaucracy system here in India, in general.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Mahārāja. Sarvabhavana Prabhu and Navadwīpa Prabhu has come from across the river.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where are they?

Badrinārāyaṇa: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanyadeva, He could not give recognition to bureaucracy, varṇāśrama. He introduced a short-cut policy. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. No recognition for any energy or any knowledge even. But independent of both of them He recommended another way towards loving region, loving land of Vṛndāvana. He told that only we're to gather, anyhow we're to gather some unit of love. Love in its smallest position as ruci, taste. Taste is the unit of love. So no knowledge, no power, can give that thing. Proper taste, faith, proper taste. So that can be gathered from anywhere independent of this bureaucracy. That general laulity, that is another unit, different type of unit, cannot be acquired by ordinary course of life.

kṛṣṇa-bhakti-rasa-bhāvitā matiḥ, kriyatāṁ yadi kuto 'pi labhyate
tatra laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ, janma-koṭi-sukṛtair na labhyate

["Pure devotional service to Kṛṣṇa cannot be obtained by performing pious activities even for millions of births. It can be purchased only by paying one price: intense eagerness. Wherever it is available, one must purchase it immediately."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.70]

Even in the different order of transmigration in different course and movement of the world it may be possible that one...

Suppose when there is revolution, a highly valued gem, that may be found only with a kooli [?] if there is revolution in the kingdom. Very precious thing may be found with a kooli [?] In course of revolution things are scattered here, there, is something like that.

That in this brahmāṇḍa, according to karma so many souls are moving this side, that side. They're lost, they're losing their society, going to another society, in this way. So whoever got that spacious thing in the course of such movement in their life, regular, irregular, the ruci, the taste for Kṛṣṇa consciousness, for Kṛṣṇa, that is the highest thing to be appreciated.

And with that capital one can associate with such persons who have got taste towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness. And in their company you go on with serving attitude, śravaṇa, kīrtana, etc, and you'll get, independent of knowledge and power. He may be a poor man, he may be an ignorant man. May be a poor man, may be devotee, he can easily understand. But he's an ignorant man, not wise man, still he may be a devotee.

Jñāna śūnya bhakti. No necessity, jñāna, knowledge has got no part to play in the life of devotion proper. It is, independently can come and take a person. That is only taste, faith, śraddhā, taste for the thing, ruci. It will take you in the domain of love. No knowledge, no calculation, no reason necessary. From the beginning it is beyond reason. Reason has nothing to do with it, it has got its own reason.

Jñāna śūnya bhakti He recommended. Whether a brāhmaṇa, that is some man of some hazy spiritual conception. That Kṛṣṇa conception is the highest conception of spiritual world. But the beginners of the spiritual consciousness may not know that, they may misguide in other direction. So the love is the highest quarter in our realisation. And from there if any agency has distributed some sort of unit here and there scattered in the world, and if we can come in connection with that we can go direct through our tastefulness towards that. No knowledge, and no energy, no power, nothing of the kind necessary.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Devotee: He travelled for six years and preached, just giving that pure Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. Ah. No organisation, systematic was made. But His devotees they all connected with one another though living independently, physically, but they had some association and cooperation. You may say that organisation, or may not give that name, does not matter. But sampradāya was there, all important members having faith in the creed and preaching of Caitanydeva, they had some association and mutual cooperation we can see. Rūpa, Sanātana, there in Vṛndāvana, they're also had some respect on Sanātana Goswāmī. And here also Śrīnivāsa Ācārya, Śyāmānanda, Narottama, Viracandra Prabhu, they had some intimate connection amongst them, and consulting they used to take any action. Of course at that time the smārta sampradāya, so-called Vedic Hindus, they were against their propaganda.

This was very revolutionary - Mahāprabhu. No caste, no creed, anyone who has got a little faith in Kṛṣṇa consciousness, he's above all. He may be of lower caste, he may be ignorant, he may be woman or man, a child or old, does not matter. Only who has got faith, who has got some taste for Kṛṣṇa līlā, he should be recognised as a devotee and should be respected. He possesses the capital, he's in possession of the capital, that love for Kṛṣṇa, he's the capitalist.

Who has got possession of knowledge, yoga, vibhūti, all these things, are outcast. They can show some magic to the foolish mass, but no real basis of the soul's highest real fulfilment. Those things have got no fulfilment, only half way they will stop. Now showing magical performance and charming the ordinary people, but they won't stay.

The highest fulfilment of life is only in the taste for Śrī Kṛṣṇa. The seed is there. The seed of a big banyan tree is small, but it can produce the big banyan tree. So the smallest taste for Kṛṣṇa consciousness, that has got relationship with the highest fulfilment of life. And other acquisition, they'll go, show some glamour to some distance, and then they'll vanish, they'll disappoint the followers. The highest fulfilment of life, inner hankering of all and every unit in the world is for love.

And not for knowledge, not for any power, or any magical display. That is all outer tendency in our mind, to acquire money, to acquire name, fame. The world will vanish, then what is the value of the name and fame in the world? The whole globe will vanish and again come into existence. The name and fame - but still for fame and name, for the valour and all these things we're captured so much, but they're all misguiding Satanic things.

Only real satisfaction of our whole heart can be had in Kṛṣṇa consciousness. All others are betrayers, they'll betray us one day, and others, any time they'll betray us. Because our heart's thirst, innermost thirst of our heart is for divine love. If we can understand this, then wherever that may be found I shall run to that place. Not to this present glamour and show of the present world in different direction. They've got no value in the ultimate race of life.

[andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās, te 'pīśa-tantryām uru-dāmni baddhāḥ]

["Persons who are strongly entrapped by the consciousness of enjoying material life, and who have therefore accepted as their leader or guru a similar blind man attached to external sense objects, cannot understand that the goal of life is to return home, back to Godhead, and engage in the service of Lord Viṣṇu. As blind men guided by another blind man miss the right path and fall into a ditch, materially attached men led by another materially attached man are bound by the ropes of fruitive labour, which are made of very strong cords, and they continue again and again in materialistic life, suffering the threefold miseries."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.31]

Prahlāda Mahārāja says: "They cannot detect that their innermost hankering is towards Viṣṇu, towards Kṛṣṇa. They're charmed by the covers of things, so many different covers. They're running towards the dazzling appearance of the covers and not the substance within. The real substance of the whole world is that Kṛṣṇa consciousness, that is love, Kṛṣṇa prema. That is the substance protected within the cover, the shell outside. Bahir-artha-māninaḥ. They're making much of the external aspect of things, and not the innermost substance, the very life of the existence. And that is Kṛṣṇa, love, Kṛṣṇa, divine love. That can only give fulfilment to one and all, everyone. They do not know it, so they're running towards this and that, a thousand things, captured by the dazzling of the witch, a Satanic display, by enchantress, witch, māyā. Māyā means the play of the witch, which by her dazzling display misguides our heart. We must save from that sort of glamour."

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Not a question, not a problem of this life, but lives together. Variegated life, variegated creation, from the tree, from the stone, to the demigods, we're only going up and down in this way. The common thread within, that inner love, satisfaction, divine love, that can satisfy, nothing else. This is given out in Bhāgavatam, and Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanyadeva.

And Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura told, "That this is so plain truth, the divine love we want from our innermost heart, so plain truth, that the world very easily will understand in a short time that that is the only goal of every soul. And they'll all come under the banner of Śrī Caitanyadeva, leaving other religious formal sections."

And to ignore this physical aspiration, in Christianity and in many religions it has been accepted, that nothing to aspire after here. But what to aspire after, the positive side, Bhāgavata has given clear conception, Śrī Caitanyadeva, it is Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Kṛṣṇa. Twenty four hours engagement with God, that is nowhere found in any conception of religion in the world, ever found, come to this world. Twenty four hours engagement with Godhead, and that God is only Kṛṣṇa, and it is possible only in the line of consorthood. Twenty four hours deep engagement with Him.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. To preach, to speak such a big thing in a small mouth. Ha, ha, ha.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi. Nitāi. Hare Kṛṣṇa. _____ [?] To have a dream, to see a dream, that one has become a king, or master of crores, while lying in a torn bed sheet and is living like that. Ha, ha. So big position holders are there, so many. Ha, ha.

Kuṭīra. But in India, generally high flow of knowledge came only from the cottages, in the forest, ṛṣi, research scholars of high spiritual order. Plain living, high thinking. The land India, a land of plain living and high thinking.

When I first came in connection with Guru Mahārāja in Calcutta, and I heard the discussion over the thoughts given in the Upaniṣads, it came to my mind - in ancient days what was discussed and cultivated in the cottages in the forest, in the caves of Himālaya, that has come in the business town like Calcutta. At the heart of Calcutta, the business town, there that link has come. That thing is being distributed here, in Calcutta, so busy, full of business and material competition of higher, and there that thing is being discussed here. So what is the peculiarity, revolutionary thing?

Then gradually I came to know that he's empowered, authorised, to do so. He has come with the idea of a totalitarian war, to crush the māyā, the misconception about the environment. Īśāvāsyam [Śrī Īśopaniṣad, 1] All energetic movement should be stopped, and only Kṛṣṇa consciousness should spread, everywhere. That will save the souls, and not the money transaction, or any political transaction, or anything else can save the souls. Only Kṛṣṇa consciousness, the Vedic culture can save so many, all souls, including the trees.

With this great conviction he came to give a crushing push to the humanity of the present age. Not to retire to the particular cave of Himālaya and there to begin meditation for his own. But a power delegated by Mahāprabhu he has come like that. Don't care for this, the glamour must be exposed of the present civilisation. The charm of present civilisation should be exposed, nakedly, and must be driven away from the society, at least from the human beings. Hare Kṛṣṇa. So it is found in Calcutta, not in a cottage in the Himālaya, but in the business centre here and there, begun a finishing fight.

So Swāmī Mahārāja also went to the west with that banner in hand. Ha, ha. He told so boldly - one of the psychologists saw his photo - "With this photo I find that it's fearlessness to the extreme, in Swāmī Mahārāja." In the League of Nations, what's it known now?

Devotees: League of Devotees.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Now? United...?

Devotees: United Nations.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. "So many dogs are barking there. As dogs they quarrel with one another seeing other things, so these material properties in their eye, and like so many dogs they're barking, in that United Nations." This statement was boldly given out by him. Is it not _____ ?

Devotee: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "The dogs are barking there." So all the so-called important persons...

84.03.01.C

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "Awake, arise." Uttiṣṭhataḥ jāgrataḥ [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.3.14] Awake and be mindful of your own interest, the interest of your heart of heart. Shake off all these sham necessities that are coming to bite you like dogs, shake off them. Don't admit any demand, but only one demand, for Kṛṣṇa.

["The knot in the heart is pierced, all misgivings are cut to pieces and the chain of fruitive actions is terminated when I am seen as the Supreme Personality of Godhead."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.20.30]

"If you can come in My connection, all sorts of wants will go, vanish."

"I have got You, I don't want anything else my Lord." That is the end of life. Not that "I want this, I want more, more, more, more." This - the servants of death.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Badrinārāyaṇa: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh! Ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa. So I close here my friends.
Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

...

One lākh paisa. There in the beginning they collected in the tram, in the way, in this way, in the beginning. He told, "Only I want one lākh paisa."

Then when that Bagh Bazaar Maṭh was constructed by one gentleman, expense was three lākhs, then one devotee told to Guru Mahārāja, "One day you wanted one lākh paisa, now more than one lākh rupees have come to you."

Guru Mahārāja told, "What I wanted, that's not yet come. Why? I wanted one paisa from one man, so one lākh of men I wanted to serve by sukṛti. By distributing sukṛti to them connection - Kṛṣṇa consciousness connection to one lākh of persons, that was my view.

So they're using their energy blindly, and that energy is leading them, they do not know what side. But invincible Kṛṣṇa consciousness, if that is connected with anybody, other will go away. Sometimes pain and pleasure, that will be finished, but this is permanent connection. Ultimately this connection will survive one day and will be sure to attract him to Kṛṣṇa consciousness. So anyhow try to create sukṛti around the world where you live, sukṛti. That sukṛti, that is unconsciously his energy is utilised in the service of Kṛṣṇa. That is accumulated then it produces śraddhā, faith. What is the faith? That if Kṛṣṇa is served everything is served. If food is put into the stomach whole body is served. That idea."

yajñārthāt karmaṇo 'nyatra, [loko 'yaṁ karma-bandhanaḥ

["Selfless duty performed as an offering to the Supreme Lord is called yajña, or sacrifice. O Arjuna, all action performed for any other purpose is the cause of bondage in this world of repeated birth and death. Therefore, remaining unattached to the fruits of action, perform all your duties in the spirit of such sacrifice. Such action is the means of entering the path of devotion, and with the awakening of true perception of the Lord, it will enable you to attain to pure, unalloyed devotion, free from all material qualities (nirguṇa- bhakti)."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.9]

"With this idea go door to door and collect something, beg something, and connect with Kṛṣṇa consciousness. All those jīvas will be unconsciously benefited. What? How? What sort of benefit they cannot conceive now. Those who have got real faith in Kṛṣṇa consciousness they'll know the value of a small drop of energy if given Kṛṣṇa connection, that is permanent character. Others are flickering, that is finished, merit, demerit, finished by our pleasure and pain. But Kṛṣṇa consciousness connection that's never to be finished, that will only draw to Kṛṣṇa. No other effect that will produce. So give Kṛṣṇa consciousness to one and all." That was his view. "Door to door beg, and distribute Kṛṣṇa consciousness, the primary unit of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Unknowingly get some portion of his energy and connect with service of Kṛṣṇa through the devotees. So the widespread Kṛṣṇa consciousness. With that theory the collection may be."

One day he told that, "So many gentlemen have come to me, who left their own property at home without any care. I have engaged them for collection from door to door. Why? Have I done wrong? No! Both sides will be benefited. How? One side he'll get connection with Kṛṣṇa consciousness, and another side they will have - be practised in their vision that everything can be utilised for the purpose of Kṛṣṇa. Whatever we experience by our eyes, or nose, or touch, or mind, or intelligence, whatever we come to, that must have Kṛṣṇa connection. In other words we shall try to view the environment in terms of Kṛṣṇa and His service - no other. How everything is adjusted with Kṛṣṇa consciousness and nothing else, that will awaken within us gradually."

Nirbandhaḥ kṛṣṇa-sambandhe.

prāpañcikatayā buddhyā, hari-sambandhi-vastunaḥ mumukṣubhiḥ parityāgo, vairāgyaṁ phalgu kathyate.

[anāsaktasya viṣayān, yathārham upayuñjataḥ nirbandhaḥ kṛṣṇa-sambandhe, yuktaṁ vairāgyam ucyate]

["That renunciation which is practised by those desirous of impersonal liberation and rejects things in connection with Śrī Hari, thinking them to be material, is called phālgu-vairāgya, external or false renunciation."] ["That renunciation in which there is no attachment for the objects of the senses, but in which everything is seen in relationship to Kṛṣṇa and all things are engaged in His service is called yukta-vairāgya, or practical renunciation."] [Padma-Purāṇa] & [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrva-vibhāga, 2.125-6]

That sort of vairāgya, indifference, has got no value, only temporary, which is acquired by only the spirit of renunciation, that is not permanent. But if you can connect anything and everything, and see in terms of interest of Kṛṣṇa consciousness, a permanent solution with them. Not only they'll not do any harm to you, but they'll remind you, excite you about the service of Kṛṣṇa, they'll render positive help.

vana dekhi' bhrama haya – ei 'vṛndāvana', śaila dekhi' [mane haya – ei 'govardhana'
yāhāṅ nadī dekhe tāhān mānaye – 'kālindī', mahā-premāveśe nāce prabhu paḍe kāndi']

["When Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu passed through the Jhārikhaṇḍa forest, He took it for granted that it was Vṛndāvana'. When He passed over the hills, He took it for granted that they were Govardhana."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 17.55]

Whenever you'll see forest - "Oh, Vṛndāvana." Any mountain, "Oh, Govardhana." In this way. So yukta vairāgya, not to leave anything, but to utilise everything for Kṛṣṇa consciousness, for the interest of Kṛṣṇa. Then the world will be Vṛndāvana to you, all Kṛṣṇa conscious. Fulfilment of life is there, not by exploitation, never by renunciation also, only adjustment with Kṛṣṇa. That is what's necessary, that there is the fulfilment of life.

So collection means to collect energy, and in return to that give Kṛṣṇa consciousness. This is reality. And also to help ones own self, the service of Kṛṣṇa, Vaiṣṇava, and to be acquainted with every point of the environment in connection of Kṛṣṇa and His satisfaction.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Achar. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. _____ [?] Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Purnānanda gone back?

Devotee: Yes Mahārāja. He already went back Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Govinda Mahārāja.

Devotee: I had some very inspiring experiences in the streets of Calcutta. One was I met an elderly gentleman, he spoke to me spontaneously and then finally told me that he had attended a lecture given by Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Ṭhākura. And this was very inspiring to hear. Because he told how fervently he had preached. And he also told that his brother had accepted initiation.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where?

Devotee: His brother, by Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where did you find him?

Devotee: In Ulṭā Ḍāṅgā.

Badrinārāyaṇa: What's his brother's name?

Devotee: Unfortunately I had not asked - I have his address, this gentleman, he's not initiated this gentleman who spoke with me. He was a teacher at the school.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is his age?

Devotee: Probably seventy five. And he gave the definite address, the place where Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta Prabhupāda spoke, lectured. For me this was very inspiring, just to hear some result, it was still in this persons memory very strongly.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You forgot his name?

Devotee: I didn't ask his initiated name, but I got his address.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is his address?

Devotee: It's near our Maṭha, next to our Maṭha in Calcutta. I don't have it with me right now, but I have it in my room.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: In one book by [Walter] Eidlitz [aka Vāmana dāsa], his book is Krishna Chaitanya, His Life and His Teachings. Eidlitz speaks about one gentleman who was previously a High Court Judge in Calcutta. And he was preaching in Benares. And he didn't give the name. So I thought I would like to know perhaps if you know who this was. He was a famous High Court Judge, he used to quote Shakespeare all the time, that's just what he said.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You have noted the names in your notebook?

Devotee: No. The name was not given of this personality.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: You were speaking about giving sukṛti. And the people they find it easier if we give them prasādam, then it's easier for them than if they give something. If we go to ask donation from them it's harder for them to give. Do they get more benefit for that? Or is that sukṛti the same?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say? Eh?

Devotee: He's asking, does a person get benefit more by giving them prasādam, or by taking money from them? He thinks that, he's saying that he feels it's easier.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: More by taking money. Prasādam, there may be offence, you may commit offence against taking prasādam, aparādha. He may not take in a proper mood. So if it's not in the spirit of service, regard, respect, then there may be offence against prasādam. Sevā aparādha. And what you have collected from him and is taken to a proper Vaiṣṇava who will be able to utilise and give connection with Kṛṣṇa, that is sure. His energy, knowingly or unknowingly is coming to Kṛṣṇa connection. And if you give prasādam he may not take in a proper mood. He may hate, he may mix with other things and then take, there may be chance of mal service. Prasāda sevā, that is a kind of service. To take prasādam, not consumption, consumed, but as serving, to honour the prasādam. Prasāda sevā, to serve the prasādam. Everything, whatever is connected with Kṛṣṇa, only in a mood of service that should be rendered. Then sukṛti, then śraddhā. Sukṛti developed into śraddhā, and that śraddhā according to its degree he will take prasādam with such mood, honourable mood, very earnestly, reverently, lovingly. And according to that the consequence will come. Do you follow? Eh?

Devotee: Hmm.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sevā aparādha, there is possibility. But there's no possibility of aparādha in the sukṛti, in the primary. Because only you collect something, he does not know very well for what purpose you're taking. You're taking and it is utilised by the agent for the service of Kṛṣṇa and he's getting benefited, by smallest contribution. Sometimes heavy, and large contribution, that is also risky. They may not give with śraddhā, so that may not fetch such sukṛti or devotion. So smaller collection that is more safe. They do not care for that small part, so neither hatred nor contempt may be possible there, in sukṛti, that is the unit, safe unit in the primary section. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: In book distribution, distribution of transcendental literature, it happens sometimes that...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sometimes may be reactionary.

Devotee: If a book is given with false promise...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Books given, then the Śālagrāma, then the Giridhari, the Arcā-Mūrti, the mālā, if they're not treated - if hatefully or they're with misbehaviour, mishandled, then there's the possibility of bad, good or bad, according to their utility, their use. The manner of their use, that will fetch good or bad for them. If they hatefully neglect then some apathy acquired about that thing, aparādha.

Devotee: So would it be better for the person to not...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Here, once Bhāvānanda was given by some of his disciples or someone, Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, a book which was compiled by Prabhupāda. Very selected evidences from different books, very useful for the preachers. Generally what a preacher wants to tell to the audience about Guru Tattva, Gaura Tattva, Nitāi Tattva, Kṛṣṇa Tattva, all chapter by chapter collected there. Specially meant for preachers.

But Bhāvānanda when that was given, "Is it Swāmī Mahārāja's books?"

"No. It is Gauḍīya Maṭha."

He trampled under feet. It reached my ear. Then I asked through - I sent word to Bhāvānanda, you have done great wrong, great offence. So you try to publish that book very carefully and regard-fully. Otherwise this sort of treatment to such śāstra will have a disastrous end on you.

I was told that he was trying at that time to publish that book in a good way. But if it's finished or not I do not know.

So a man like Bhāvānanda, as an ācārya, he's trampling down over this book which contains high thoughts, and very favourable for the preachers. And very adored by our Guru Mahārāja, and his Guru also. But such was his misfortune he had to do that.

So if books are used, śāstra - whether you know I do not know - there is a custom when one will read the book he will worship Bhāgavatam, he'll worship flower, Tulasī, candan, and then open the book and read. This is the custom this side.

Mahāprabhu says that, "Bhāgavatam is Kṛṣṇa Himself." He's speaking to Sanātana Goswāmī. "Why don't you think that every letter of Bhāgavatam is Kṛṣṇa Himself? It is infinite, every letter is infinite, Kṛṣṇa Himself."

So if it is such and we neglectfully treat with them, what effect will come? So generally, according to the class of the audience we should say like that, which may be acceptable in a favourable way, and not misconceived. Sisye adhikari ya nistha saguna pare [?] So adhikār vicar, capacity. Whatever we're to do, in other circles also, if higher study is given to a young infant class it won't produce any effect, but misconception, misunderstanding. So everything has got its - according to classification, the distribution of knowledge, devotion, everything, according to their merit that they may utilise it. And for misuse if we do anything, that will fetch some bad reaction.

In special cases that is - we see to be occurred. Just as Nityānanda Prabhu approached Jagāi, Mādhāi. He had that power, He faced the opposition, got hurt, blood shedding, still He stood and converted him. He did not come back. But if anyone and everyone approaches so many Jagāi, Mādhāi, who have got no power to convert them, then they'll be lost. According to the capacity one will go and will be able to educate, help successfully others. So adhikār vicar is everywhere, the classification, the merit.

na buddhi-bhedaṁ janayed, ajñānāṁ karma-saṅginām [yojayet sarva-karmāṇi, vidvān yuktaḥ samācaran]

["The scholarly proponents of the path of knowledge must not confuse ignorant, attached men by deviating them with the advice, "Leave aside action, and cultivate knowledge." Rather, controlling their own minds, the learned should perform all the various duties without desiring the results, and in this way, subsequently engage the common section in action."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.26]

In Bhagavad-gītā. Who do not understand jñāna, or bhakti, or yoga, only karma, you will speak to them karma with modified way that it may fetch - have connection to devotion, by gradual process, in general.

And by sukṛti, when it's developed into śraddhā, and śraddhā has also gradation.

So when properly placed, properly utilised, both the land and the seed, to produce for higher production, the land and seed, both is important. If only on the stone we spread some seed it will be useless. And no living seed but dead seed I may spread in the well cultivated land, that also won't have any desired result. Both the field and the seed - seed must be genuine, and the field must be prepared for production.

So śraddhā, so it is mentioned in the scripture, both the symptoms of disciple as well as symptoms of Guru. The Guru must be such and the disciple must be such, then the effect will be produced. So that is happy, otherwise create śraddhā, to create śraddhā to sukṛti, consciously, unconsciously, a small part of his energy, try to utilise, that is the basic work. No ill feeling, ill feeling is avoided, so some sort of marginal activity, that will develop into some positive or negative preparation.

O brāhmaṇa! Such are the glories of the holy name. However, if one chants the syllables of the holy name for personal benefit, for material wealth and followers, or out of greed, or in the association of atheists, such offensive chanting will not soon produce the supreme goal of life [Kṛṣṇa -prema]. [Padma Purāṇa, Brahma-khanda, 25.24] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 17.65]

If it is cast, tac ced deha, deha, that our body consciousness is very intense. Dravina, greed for money is extreme, dravina. Janata, love, affinity for the flesh and blood very much. Tac ced deha-dravina janata. Or a popularity seeker, wants to be popular, name, fame. Tac ced deha-dravina janata. Lobha, very much greedy to eat this meat, wine, all these things. Dravinajani-talobha-pakhanda-madhye. Or the atheist of the atheist type, too much atheistic. Na phala-janakam sighram evatra vipra. If rightly done also, then it may produce fruit after a long, long time.

So generally the dealings should be fair. Both the parties should be considered. Disciple, the learner, receivers, and the givers, both parties should be genuine. Then the transaction will be very fruitful. Otherwise to help them in an indirect way that is sukṛti. Without his notice you are skilfully doing something beyond his consciousness, injecting some medicine, something like.

Ha, ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Mahāprabhu.
So I shall go in. I want to retire now from you.

...is always threatening us to make us their prey. So we're always in danger. Death is threatening us, both individually as well as collectively, in general. But try to save yourself, not only save, but save and flourish. Try to get a successful flourishing life. This is reality. Under the threatening circumstances of the war of atom bomb, this really can save us substantially. The reality is this, in the age of atom bomb how we can survive, we can live, our existence, our prospect, may not be hampered in any way. That is being cultivated from the centre of Mahāprabhu, Gauḍīya Maṭha.

bhārata-bhūmite haila manuṣya janma yāra / janma sārthaka kari' kara para-upakāra

["One who has taken his birth as a human being in the land of India [Bhārata-varṣa] should make his life successful and work for the benefit of all other people."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 9.41]

If you've got a birth in the Indian culture, then spread it like anything, and save the world from...

You're not only fodder to the cannon, or to the atom bomb, you are something more. Your noble self is within. Try to get it back from within this cage, encasement. Both subtle, mental system, as well as this physical body. You must try to get out from these two cages, and there you'll find your eternal own self. You are really there. These things are mal representing you, the mental ego and the physical body. That is not your true acquaintance.

Really in soul you are - you have your proper self, and that is very promising and hopeful. Only try to tackle that part of your self, and that is very laudable part within you. You yourself are that thing. Know thyself, find out thyself, from the burial ground. We're buried under matter. Get out of the burial ground, and move freely in your home atmosphere. This is true, this is realistic.

The human culture has got no value in the animal society. They can't understand that there is intelligence, reason, all these things, the calculation, the education, all these things. It is not possible for the animals to understand. But humans, they can understand.

So we may not understand, ordinary human beings, there is a plane of soul, there so many souls can live happily. But those that are in that plane, this is very easy for them to know and to make known to others. So when we can attain anyhow to that position by the help of the superior persons, they can come down to take us up. Then when we have a touch of that plane then we can think that that is real, and what we think to be concrete truth in this world - all evaporate, false. All false, all māyā. Only soul and Supersoul, and the area of that plane, that is real, that is just proof, that is change proof, so-called change. That is pain proof plane, and we can live happily.

And God is not some trouble that will be thrust on our head. He's a friend, He's guardian, He's friend. He will look after all our benefit, independent of our understanding. So to go to have the darśana, the vicinity of the Lord, that does not mean that a heavy guardian is there, and if we go there we shall lose our independence, our free movement. It's not like that. Very friendly, and very useful, and in all respects that will be most desirable from our heart, that way. So it is told as home. Back to God, back to home. Home comfort, like father, mother, they take care for us when we may not take care for us. But there are so many that are taking care for us. In such a plane we must try to live.

Janma-mṛtyu-jarā-vyādhi [Bhagavad-gītā, 13.9]

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Why this māyā? Who created this māyā?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha, ha. Who created? It comes from misunderstanding, misrepresentation, misreading. Due to weakness of the understanding of the soul, this position they're placed in, māyā. Māyā means misreading, misunderstanding, false estimation of a true thing. And that is possible only when our consciousness is not perfect. We become prey to that sort of - some shade of knowledge or something, māyā. Mā - yā, what is not, we're prey to that knowledge, that is māyā.

In a normal life there is no māyā. But just as one enters into intoxication, first out of curiosity, but then gradually gathers some momentum from that sort of activity. Very fine thing to detect in introspection. His vulnerable position, then the possibility of his freedom, vulnerable freedom. Freedom is very valuable thing. Consciousness means free, and devoid of freedom that means fossil-like thing. So freedom is desirable, but when freedom is weak it can select right and wrong. The alternative must be there. So many they're taking the right course, and there may be others that may be wrong course. It depends on the free choice of the weak particle of consciousness, which is endowed with freedom. With that possibility we have come in the world of misconception - what is not that.

We can't see that everything is controlled by the centre. We have got some taste that 'I can also control.' We feel indulgence to control our environment, and there we enter into māyā.

Power seeking nature, that is in very crude form with us, that takes us into this world. The ambition of controlling, 'That I shall control some atmosphere.' Without the serving attitude I want to control some environment, without serving the environment. For that fine position this māyā comes, individually and collectively.

In one place a sādhu is sitting by your side and he's above māyā and we're in the māyā. So it is individual case, māyā. Taking seat side by side, one may be a prey of māyā, another may be free of māyā. So māyā is not such a substance that it covers so many. So that stage of power seeking, of controlling the environment, from that ambition, however small the particle may be, it is the origin of māyā.

And Mahāprabhu says that, "If the whole māyā is withdrawn, then Kṛṣṇa's administration does not suffer in any way. It is in svarūpa śakti, it will go on in it's pristine glory."

Just as if any day of freedom or so, all the prison houses may be abolished. But still next day we'll find so many persons are coming again to enter into prison, like that. All are healthy, no hospital is necessary. Hospital is very beneficial, but because there's disease. No disease, no necessity of hospital. This is indirect position of the truth.

And here, the seed is that we want, as a particle of consciousness, we want to control over our environment. And from that spirit we have to enter into misconception, what is not. We have come to do that. It is so powerful, now we can find in the world that in a combined way they're threatening to crush - one nation wants to crush another nation. The control of power, and the very smallest starting was like that. And now we find in the midst of in a national conception.

And also, jīvo jīvasya jīvanam [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.13.47] One is eating another to save himself in such a position. This is māyā. In its proper state, soul, they may not have to eat and then to live. There also is eating, but this is another way, in a way of service. And no consumption or death is caused by that eating.

These we're to hear, and try to understand, and to take position in that happy soil. That is what is sādhana, means to end. The end of life is all satisfaction. And at present we're in the land of all dissatisfaction. And with the help of some agents we can go to that higher position, the land of all satisfaction. And here, no satisfaction, in the competition everyone wants to devour another, wants to emulate himself at the cost of others. This false notion. How to develop, how to improve ones own self, no idea. What is proper improvement of life, that is unknown to us at present. Material aggrandisement is conceived as improvement, the false notion. So we're to get relief from this false notion, understanding, to hear and hear, and to take and to understand. And to take our position in that plane. Slowly and surely we're to make progress from nescience to science, from pain to pleasure, from ignorance to knowledge. Nescience to science, from pain to pleasure, from false to truth. And our real thing to have identification of ones own self, what is he.

'ke āmi,' 'kene āmāya jāre tāpa-traya' [ihā nāhi jāni -- 'kemane hita haya']

[Who am I? Why do the threefold miseries always give me trouble? If I do not know this, how can I be benefited?"] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 20.102]

Who am I? Why I suffer? And what is the relief? These are the principal problems of life.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

84.03.11.A

Devotee: How is it Guru Mahārāja that with all our physical knowledge of the sciences, we are not enquiring of the sciences of the soul? How is it that in this land of Kṛṣṇa where the sādhus and saints have been preaching science of the soul, and the science of reality, even in this very country, in India, we're aspiring for material prosperity? How we're deluded more and more? And where is the way out?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Devotee: He's asking why...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Why in India...

Devotee: Why in India there's no interest...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...which is supposed to be the bed of spiritual health, why we find there this trouble? Is this his question?

Devotee: Yes. There's no interest in spiritual culture, more interest in material culture now.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. Why? So, we're to eliminate the point of geography from our mind.

When Schulze [Sadānanda dāsa] came here he told that, "I have not come in political or social India, but I have come in spiritual India."

So geography must not be taken into account in these things. The standpoint will be of another type.

When Mussolini came in power, he abolished this geographical division of province, districts, and police stations - according to... He divided the country not geographically but industrial basis - that iron business, gold business, or food supply, one department. And a sort of office, or hierarchy, in that way. The food department concerned with the whole of Italy. Then business department divided into various ways, but all concerning the whole of Italy. No geographical division - he abolished.

So also, we're to look what is, India means not this physical India. But India of knowledge, Upaniṣad, that sort of India. And Bhāgavata darśana is equal to everyone. The highest plane has got no partiality, it's open to all. The most universal centre is open to all, mleccha, brāhmaṇa, all of equal value to that universal centre, all eligible. A brāhmaṇa may not be eligible, and at the same time a mleccha may be eligible. It is done in a universal basis. The preference or partiality is not seen in jñāna śūnya bhakti in the plane of love.

In the consideration of kamal chali padma locan [?] there is a proverb in Bengali. That it is so noble, love is so noble, that a blind boy seems to him, appears to him like a good lotus eyed boy.

It is such. Impartial, unprejudiced, open to real truth, so no partiality. Anyone may have, but that has got sukṛti, that lobha, earnestness, sincere hankering for the truth, that is the general qualification there, no other status.

[05:22 - 14:22 ?]

Devotee: You were speaking that India is not a geographical entity, but it's a spiritual concept. So I'm here enquiring why the land of spirituality is _____ [?] in material prosperity, or material advancement, and not spiritual enrichment? We were discussing about this.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The geographical means that is, what is surveyed by our material, or that māyāic interest, guided by our māyāic interest, that is material. Otherwise there is universal happy conception of Navadwīpa speciality, Vṛndāvana, Goloka, Vaikuṇṭha, is there.

But Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura has written, you may see, that, māyāja. It is covered by a net of māyā. We cannot see what is Dhāma proper. We're in the Dhāma, Navadwīpa, there is Ganges. That aparādha, offence, that, by misconception cannot connect, allow me to have connection with the proper thing.

[16:00 - 16:13 ?]

He's everywhere, then why not so many souls are getting Him? What is the cause? He's everywhere, everything in Him, and He's everywhere. This is the peculiar position of Him.

mayā tatam idaṁ sarvaṁ, jagad avyakta-mūrtinā
mat-sthāni sarva-bhūtāni, na cāhaṁ teṣv avasthitaḥ.

na ca mat-sthāni bhūtāni, paśya me yogam aiśvaram [bhūta-bhṛn na ca bhūta-stho, mamātmā bhūta-bhāvanaḥ]

["In an unmanifest manner, I pervade this entire universe, and everything conceivable is situated within Me - and yet, I am not situated within that total entity."] ["And again, that is also not situated in Me. Just behold My inconceivable simultaneous one and different (acintya-bhedābheda) nature as the perfect, omnipotent, omniscient originator and Lord of the universe! Although My very Self is the mainstay and guardian of all beings, I am not implicated by them."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9. 4-5]

"I'm everywhere, everything in Me. I'm nowhere, nothing in Me. And try to understand My mystic position, acintya-bhedābheda."

But I'm to conceive that He's not to come under the conception of law produced by us. Above that, always above, acintya-bhedābheda. He's everywhere, He's nowhere. Everything in Him, nothing in Him. How you'll explain that?

And He gives warning. Paśya me yogam aiśvaram. "Try to understand what is My peculiar mystic position with this world."

[17:40 - 17:54 ?]

It is always His sweet will is above all. We may say 'this is this, this is that, this is a thousand things,' we may describe and give their proper position. But His sweet will is above all. He's autocrat. His autocratic position, that must be taken into account, above all. Law comes from Him, and He's not under law. Law maker, designer, and destiner, everything designed by Him and destined by Him. He's so free position, so Absolute position He's got. Not to be taken under law which is created for us.

So with open mind we're to search about Him.

Devotee: May I submit, those who are born incarnate, born in this planet, they're also subject to these material laws?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No.

Devotee: Kṛṣṇa also deserved to die, because of His acts.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He can show any way. They're also controlled by Him.

Just as the government's officers are controlled by the higher. Sometimes they're given power to go on in a certain way, but some special order may come to ask them to take a new policy. The possibility is there. Law for general, but there's special process also, necessity also.

And this is infinite, not a static, stagnant, finalised whole, but infinite, progressing infinite.

One Dr. of philosophy told me that, "It's very difficult to understand the freedom of the jīva soul and the omniscience of the Supreme Lord. If He's omniscient then He already knows the future of the jīva, then how jīva may be free? Whatever free action he may take, that is already known to the omniscient God, then how we can say he's to be free?"

Ha, ha. I told him just in his own coin. The God is free, God is not only omniscient, but He's free also. How do you conceive His freedom and harmonise it to His omniscience? So freedom and omniscience can go together. We're to conceive like that. If His freedom can go with His own omniscience, then how not the jīva's freedom will go with His omniscience? It is possible. Omniscience is not a final conception of a stagnant thing.

Devotee: _____ [?] Even Brahmā _____ [?] he's also subject, governed by the laws.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Brahman may have different meanings. Here Brahman the part of consciousness, jīva. Here by Brahman meant the part of consciousness. Brahman really it is halo of the Vaikuṇṭha, of the Infinite, the outskirts of the Infinite, of the marginal position of finite and Infinite. This māyā, and truth and false, the margin, meeting point. Taṭasthā jīva, taṭasthā means margin, the meeting point, buffer state. Virajā and Brahmaloka.

brahmaṇo hi pratiṣṭhāham [Bhagavad-gītā, 14.27] aksaraṁ brahma paramaṁ [Bhagavad-gītā, 8.3] dvau bhūta-sargau loke 'smin [Bhagavad-gītā, 16.6] dvau bhuta-sargau loke 'smin [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 14.1] kṣaraś cākṣara eva ca [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.16]

Two kinds of creation we find here, created things, kṣaraḥ, ākṣara. Kṣaraḥ sarvāṇi bhūtāni, [Bhagavad- gītā, 15.16], what is always in this movement, undergoing movement. And ākṣara which is constant, and within movement.

And kṣaram atīto 'ham, akṣarād api cottamaḥ. "What is My position? I'm beyond both of them. The constant, the background, and what is being moved in this world, I'm above that."

[yasmāt] kṣaram atīto 'ham, akṣarād api cottamaḥ
ato 'smi loke vede ca, prathitaḥ puruṣottamaḥ

["Because I am transcendental to the fallible souls and also superior to My infallible eternal associates, My glories are sung in the world and in the scriptures as Puruṣottama, the Supreme Person."]
[Bhagavad-gītā, 15.18]

"So I'm told as the highest enjoyer, or highest Personality, Puruṣa."

Kṣaraḥ, ākṣara. Kṣaraḥ sarvāṇi bhūtāni, and kūṭastho 'kṣara ucyate [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.16]
That undetectable cause of this moving world at the background of this what cannot be distinguishable, what is what. It's in such position.

So our karma has been also classified in this way, kūṭaṁ bījaṁ phalonmukham.

[aprārabdha-phalaṁ pāpaṁ kūṭaṁ bījaṁ phalonmukham
krameṇaiva pralīyeta viṣṇu-bhakti-ratātmanām]

["The four types of sin known as aprārabdha, kūṭa, bīja and phalonmukha are gradually eradicated for persons exclusively attached to devotion for the Supreme Lord Viṣṇu."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu]

Phalonmukha, those seeds that will sprout very soon. Kūṭaṁ bījaṁ, bīja, which can be understandable that this is the seed of that particular tree, or particular creeper. And kūṭaṁ, the seed is in such condition that you cannot detect that what sort of seed it is, what is its future, it's in such undetectable position. So many karma. In our mental system a portion is of such type that it cannot be detected that what sort of karma which we did in our previous life and that is reserved there in very fine way.

We're told that Japan has introduced a sort of microscopic type, a big book can be - in a very small book many things cannot be placed there, encased. In a library, encyclopaedia, big book, in a small booklet it is, so microscopic types are there. In ordinary eye none will be able to read that book.

So kūṭaṁ, there is a portion in our mind in the background what is not possible to detect that what consequence of what action is there, undetectable. Gradually that will develop to get its satisfaction from us.

[27:27 - 28:16 ?]

ye 'nye 'ravindākṣa vimukta-māninas, tvayi asta-bhāvād aviśuddha-buddhayaḥ
āruhya kṛcchreṇa paraṁ padaṁ tataḥ, patanty adho 'nādṛta-yuṣmad-aṅghrayaḥ

["O lotus-eyed Lord, although non-devotees who accept severe austerities and penances to achieve the highest position may think themselves liberated, their intelligence is impure. Although they may rise to the level of impersonal Brahman realisation, they fall down from their position of imagined superiority because they neglect to worship Your lotus feet."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.2.32]

[28:28 - 43:30 ?]

84.03.22.B

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

aṅgāni yasya sakalendriya-vṛtti-manti, [paśyanti pānti kalayanti ciraṁ jaganti ānanda-cinmaya-sad-ujjvala-vigrahasya, govindam ādi-puruṣaṁ tam ahaṁ bhajāmi]

["I worship Govinda, the primeval Lord, whose transcendental form is full of bliss, truth, substantiality and is thus full of the most dazzling splendour. Each of the limbs of that transcendental figure possesses in Himself, the full-fledged functions of all the organs, and eternally sees, maintains and manifests the infinite universes, both spiritual and mundane."] [Śrī Brahma-saṁhitā, 32]

All the parts of His figure they have the capacity of doing any and every function necessary. So every part of Bhāgavatam, every word in Bhāgavatam, in the sight of Mahāprabhu, representing Kṛṣṇa Himself.

It is told that when Prahlāda was taken to the paksala [?], to the primary school, and asked 'what is this letter?' 'This is kor' [?] Prahlāda was beside himself. Kor, that took him to the memory of Kṛṣṇa, took Prahlāda to Kṛṣṇa - kor.

After returning from Gayā when Mahāprabhu went to take the class of the students, He can't - explain to the students about anything. Wherever He wants to begin He finds the suggestion of Kṛṣṇa conception so intense that He's overflowed with feeling, sentiment. 'Kor, kor, Kṛṣṇa, Kor, Govinda.' In this way wherever He goes He's full of Kṛṣṇa consciousness is attracting so intensely He becomes paralysed - Mahāprabhu. To teach the students became simply impossible. Wherever He wants to assert Himself, He's searching about the meaning, or explaining about the meaning, He's overwhelmed, He's _____ [?] in such consciousness of the Lord that He becomes overpowered, can't make any progress.

The students were perplexed. "What high type of study we got from this Nimāi Paṇḍita was unparalleled in this Navadwīpa." Which was the famous seat of learning at the time. "But Nimāi Paṇḍita has got such a stage of mind that He can't teach us in a proper way." In a body they approached Nimāi Paṇḍita's primary professor Gaṅgā Dāsa Paṇḍita. "You please see Nimāi Paṇḍita and recommend for us a sober study as we had beforehand from Him."

So Gaṅgā Dāsa Paṇḍita told, "You call Him to me, in my name you call Him to see me."

And when it reached Nimāi Paṇḍita He came to see Gaṅgā Dāsa Paṇḍita.

Then Gaṅgā Dāsa Paṇḍita asked, "Your students came in a body to me and complained that after returning from Gayā You are not carefully teaching them. And they do not like to go to any other professor. They say that, 'We won't be satisfied with the guidance of any other professor but Nimāi Paṇḍita. But His condition is such that He's unable formerly. He can't concentrate His mind."

So Gaṅgā Dāsa Paṇḍita asked, "You go and become sober and help them in their study. You went to Gayā, what does it matter? But why do You neglect Your study? Your forefathers - were they not devotees? You have become only devotee? They're also devotees but they continued - it is the duty of a brāhmaṇa to extend the Vedic knowledge to all. So You should not neglect this teaching."

Then Mahāprabhu, to satisfy him told, "Yes. I shall try My best," to carry out his order. "And I don't find any scholar in Navadwīpa, by the grace of your feet dust, that they can approach to Me. I can conquer anyone and everyone, by the grace of the feet dust of your noble self, in this way."

But it was not possible. Then one day Mahāprabhu flatly admitted, "My boys, I'm trying My best to teach you in the standard I did previously. But it is not possible any longer for Me to continue My teaching in previous ways life. I'm always conscious of a young boy playing on His flute. And He's drawing My whole self towards Him. I cannot remain in My own sober conscious aim. My whole aim is taken away by the charm of that flute sound, so it's impossible. I beg pardon of you all. Here I stop My professorial life. And let us have a Kṛṣṇa saṅkīrtana, chanting the Name of the Lord, with our full heart."

So He began Kṛṣṇa saṅkīrtana. Hari haraye namaḥ kṛṣṇa yādavāya namaḥ [From Śrīla Narottama Dāsa Ṭhākura's Nāma-saṅkīrtana] Heart felt chanting. And the boys also joined. Then gradually there the kīrtana began here with the students. In the school with the students the first chanting began with Mahāprabhu.

Hari haraye namaḥ kṛṣṇa yādavāya. "I cannot contain Myself but singing this a natural flow, uncontrollable flow, coming in My heart, words. I'm a prey to such sentiments. I can't do otherwise. Let us do." Some joined and some went away to study in another school.

So the appreciation - superficially we're to depreciate the environment. Janma-mṛtyu-jarā-vyādhi [Bhagavad-gītā, 13.9], the mortal aspect, the stagnating aspect. But the harmonious aspect is within, deep. If we can touch that the fulfilment comes in such a degree it captures our heart that we can't stand. But to become a helpless prey to that charming flow of the deepest nature in praise of majesty of the Supreme Existence. He's so sweet, He's so charming, He's so beautiful, that we cannot imagine. Our tiny heart cannot contain that - overflowing. We're in search after fulfilment, after love, sympathy, but in that plane we cannot accommodate as much flow of love and sympathy we find around. Rather, we're lost there, in that. Such, there is dearth of fulfilment, dearth of ecstasy or happiness here, we're living in a world of famine of ecstasy. But there is ample, sufficient, infinite supply, that we forget everything - in the midst of ocean.

Mahāprabhu says in His Śikṣāṣṭaka, prati-padaṁ pūrṇāmṛtāsvādanaṁ. What is that?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Sarvātma-snapanaṁ.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sarvātma-snapanaṁ. Then?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Paraṁ vijayate.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Āmbudhi, there is one mention.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Ānandāmbudhi-vardhanaṁ.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ānandāmbudhi-vardhanaṁ. We'll find we're in the midst of an ocean of ecstasy, happiness, or pleasure, whatever you say. In the ocean, and that is also increasing, ever increasing with new phases. We're there. After taking the Name in a proper way, if we're in real progress we shall find that we're in the midst of an ocean of joy, and that is ever increasing. Ānandāmbudhi-vardhanaṁ. Prati-padaṁ pūrṇāmṛtāsvādanaṁ. It's ever new, not stale, new taste coming. Prati-padaṁ pūrṇāmṛtāsvādanaṁ. Sarvātma-snapanaṁ, at the same time, every part of the whole figure is being purified. Generally by enjoying here we acquire some reaction. By exploitation some dirt is also collected ___ peculiarity. Sarvātma-snapanaṁ. All dirts are being taken away - characteristic of śrī-kṛṣṇa-saṅkīrtan. And let it flow without any hindrance in the whole of the creation.

["The Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa cleanses the mirror of the heart and extinguishes the fire of misery in the forest of birth and death. As the evening lotus blooms in the moon's cooling rays, the heart begins to blossom in the nectar of the Name. And at last the soul awakens to its real inner treasure - a life of love with Kṛṣṇa. Again and again tasting nectar, the soul dives and surfaces in the ever-increasing ocean of ecstatic joy. All phases of the self of which we may conceive are fully satisfied and purified, and at last conquered by the all-auspicious influence of the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa."] [Śikṣāṣṭaka, 1]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: May I ask a question Mahārāja? We hear much about sambandha jñāna, but when does abhidheya begin?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Abhidheya, means to end.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: What is the difference between abhidheya and sādhana?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Abhidheya, the root meaning of abhidheya - abhidhan. Abhidhan means dictionary, abhidhan means name, abhidheya. What is the purpose of the scripture, abhidheya means what the scripture's meaning, what the scriptures want, what sort of meaning the scriptures want to give us, abhidheya, abhidhan. Abhid means complete, perfect. What the scriptures want to give us perfectly, the real aim, the real object of the scriptures, what they want to say to us. Abhidheya. Abhidhan means dictionary, the meaning of the sound. The sound that's contained in the scriptures, what they mean, want to give us, that is the original meaning of the word abhidheya. The sādhana, what is their recommendation for us, what they want to give to us. They want to say that, tad vijijñāsa, tad eva brahma.

[yato vā imāni bhūtāni jāyante, yena jātāni jīvanti
yat prayanty abhiṣamviśanti, tad brahma tad vijijñāsa]

["The Supreme Brahman is the origin and shelter of all living beings. When there is creation, He brings them forth from their original state, and at the time of annihilation, He devours them. After creation, everything rests in His omnipotence, and after annihilation, everything again returns to rest in Him."]
[Taittiriya-Upaniṣad, 3.1]

Enquire about the prime cause of the environment, and you are also included in that. What is the advice of the revealed scriptures for you, try to find out that. Abhidheya. Yes, you are not satisfied, you are searching for something. But what is the answer coming from the revealed truth, how to reach the object of your search? Everyone is searching, but what is the recommendation of the revealed scriptures towards you, towards searching men? Do this!

What is that thing? Only one, and first answer is Oṁ, Praṇava. The general answer, Oṁ. Yes! A big yes. What you are searching for that is. That is, one word, that is. Then, if that is, how to attain that? Hear from me. That is abhidheya, means to end. What you are searching that is the end of your life, all of your life. You are searching something, everyone, but you're not getting that. So only one word answer from the revealed scriptures will come. Yes. What you are searching that is existent, and approach in this way. The abhidheya is coming to us in that way, to answer our automatic, inner question. Search, search for Śrī Kṛṣṇa, search for Brahman, vedava-vastu, the greatest thing. Yato vā imāni. Yasmin vijñāte sarvam idam. "By knowing Whom everything is known. By getting which everything is got. You do it." Encouraging - do it in this way. First,

Ācāryavān puruṣo veda ["Only one who has a Guru can know the truth."]
[Chāndogya-Upaniṣad, 6.18.2] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 1.2]

You want one bona fide teacher, professor, and you're to approach him. And the teacher also must have such qualifications. This is the way of transaction for satisfaction of your search.

tad vijñānārthaṁ sa gurum evābhigacchet, samit paniḥ śrotriyaṁ brahma niṣṭham

["One who wants scientific knowledge about the Supreme Truth must approach a bona fide Guru and offer him everything required for sacrifice. The Guru must be fixed in the truth, having heard it from a genuine source."] [Muṇḍaka Upaniṣad, 1.2.12]

The Guru must be śrotriyaṁ brahma niṣṭha. Śrotriya, he has knowledge about the scriptures, and brahma niṣṭha, he has a practical life of the same. Not intellectual, but practical life, and also he can impart the Vedic knowledge advices to others that capacity of Veda. Such Guru he goes.

Abhigacchet, samyak- gacchet - not with a return ticket. If you've finished all your prospects in this world of mortality, you go to him to search for your life interest, and forever. Not to come back and begin these stale things again, but go with all sincerity, wholehearted search.

Samit paniḥ. Abhigacchet samit paniḥ. At your own cost, at your own responsibility, you must go with all articles necessary for the purpose, samit. Samit means this, at least in common it is surrender. Abhigacchet, that also surrender, samit also that surrendering. The samit means generally the fuels for the sacrifice, samit means yajña kāṣṭha, the fuels which are necessary for the sacrifice. Sacrifice means to cast the valuable thing into the fire, to be reduced nowhere. Ha, ha. Concrete things in your consideration you'll be ready to put into fire, and it will go away, you won't be able to trace anything about that. Yajña, yajñārthā, yajña, that is to give once and for all, without anything returned from there. It will be transformed in such a way, the valuable thing put into the fire and it's reduced to ashes, which does not come to help you in your display.

So when you want to get the visa you should not have much concern for the passport. What is real here, that is going to be reduced to ashes. So with this risk you will approach wholesale, with complete retirement. Samit paniḥ. Samit. Praṅipāta, praśna, sevā. The full confidence, then honest enquiry, then sevā - that the desire to be utilised. To be utilised, and not to acquire anything for the utilisation of his own purpose, but to be utilised for the cause you're searching after. These are the samits, samit paniḥ. Śrotriyaṁ brahma niṣṭham. And to a proper person you must go, then the real transaction will begin. Otherwise if rather false then the result will also be such like that. And in Bhagavad-gītā - also in Bhāgavatam,

[tasmād guruṁ prapadyeta, jijñāsuḥ śreyaḥ uttamam]
śabde pare ca niṣṇātaṁ, brahmaṇy upaśamāśrayam

["Therefore any person who seriously desires real happiness must seek a bona fide spiritual master and take shelter of him by initiation. The qualification of the bona fide guru is that he has realised the conclusions of the scriptures by deliberation and is able to convince others of those conclusions. Such great personalities, who have taken shelter of the Supreme Godhead, leaving aside all material considerations, should be understood to be bona fide spiritual masters."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.3.21]

Śabde, pare. Who has got skill in the Vedic culture, revealed scriptures, and also pare, which is the object of the sound, of the scripture, that. That is one who'll have some practical and theoretical knowledge. Śāstric knowledge and practical experience, anubhuti, his conception. Not only the śāstric knowledge but some conception of the proper thing. Śabde pare ca niṣṇātaṁ, brahmaṇy upaśamāśrayam. And brahmaṇy in Veda, literature, upaśamāśrayam, and that all questions, all attempts, become satisfied, attain fulfilment. That is the real position of the thing, that all your enquiries will be stopped, all your inner hankerings they will find their end. No more charm will be left for the place you are leaving back. That sort of transaction you are to make. And in Bhagavad-gītā also, tad viddhi praṇipātena, paripraśnena sevayā / upadekṣyanti te jñānaṁ, jñāninas tattva darśinaḥ

["You will be able to attain all this knowledge by satisfying the enlightened spiritual master with prostrate obeisances, relevant enquiry, and sincere service. Great souls who are most expert in scriptural knowledge and endowed with direct realisation of the Supreme Absolute Truth will teach you that divine knowledge."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.34]

Jñāni and tattva darśi, that śabde pare ca niṣṇātaṁ. And praṅipāta, paripraśna, sevā. Praṅipāta, to take final leave from this world of mortality, no charm here. Paripraśna, honest enquiry - that all the doubts must be placed open and they'll be satisfied, cleared, wholesale. The march will be wholesale, total march. The enquiries may come in the way and that must be satisfied, and the unhesitating march, total march. Paripraśna and sevā, that is the main point, you're going to serve, not to enjoy. Taste for service, that is the real unit of our realisation. By serving we live, and by enjoying we lose. This underlying tendency must be there within, then the march will be sincere, otherwise it may be an imitation.

So that is the general way to show what is the means. And that has been analysed how it comes. First sukṛti, ajñāta-sukṛti, jñāta-sukṛti, underground. Then on the surface it becomes śraddhā, faith. What is the faith? That if we put food into the stomach the whole body is fed, it is possible, it is not impossible, if we tackle one point the whole can be tackled. Sarva-dharmān parityajya. In this principal we must have some faith. From that foundation we're to start up towards God enquiry, or God achievement, the achievement of the whole. The fundamental requirement is this, that must be genuine, faith, śraddhā. That if I know anything, everything is known. One thing. If I get one thing, everything is got. There is such possibility. It is not absurd, that getting one we get everything, it is not absurd. This basis must be, have a strong position in our heart. The foundation will be that, otherwise everything will be a false progress. The foundation must be of this character, by achieving one we can achieve everything, knowing one we can - that this stanza is given, putting food into the stomach the whole body is fed. And there is justification.

sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja
ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

The justification, that sort of faith, that is the movement. Then we shall begin our journey from there, that faith. _____ [?] sādhu saṅga, eliminating others we shall go to get association of the sādhu. Saṅga, the association of the higher means to surrender to him, and what he says to accept that. So service begins, the land of service, self dissipation, self distribution, that sort of beginning. Sādhu saṅga. There the topics are discussed elaborately in details. Everything comes within, so many questions on this or that, and that is being satisfied and solid progress is going on in their path. Sādhu saṅga, śravaṇaṁ, kīrtanaṁ, bhajana-kriyā. Then what is the result, what is the consequence of sādhu saṅga? This śravaṇa, kīrtana, smaraṇ, vandan, infinite numbers of ways that is cultivation about the Supreme Entity.

That begins to hear, it is not any blind faith, to indulge in blind faith, no. But from every aspect we may discuss about Him. He's not afraid, the theistic faith is not afraid of being charged or demolished by this ordinary reasoning of this mortal world. He's not a vulnerable thing. He can accommodate all the points of this mortal world and many more. So he's not vulnerable at all, and not afraid of being challenged by this ordinary intellect of the so called scientific brains. So, śravaṇaṁ kīrtanaṁ viṣṇoḥ, smaraṇaṁ pāda-sevanam arcanaṁ vandanaṁ dāsyaṁ, [sakhyam ātma-nivedanam.

iti puṁsārpitā viṣṇau, bhaktiś cen nava-lakṣaṇā kriyeta bhagavaty addhā tan manye 'dhītam uttamam]

["Hearing about Kṛṣṇa, chanting Kṛṣṇa's glories, remembering Kṛṣṇa, serving Kṛṣṇa's lotus feet, worshipping Kṛṣṇa's transcendental form, offering prayers to Kṛṣṇa, becoming Kṛṣṇa's servant, considering Kṛṣṇa as one's best friend, and surrendering everything to Kṛṣṇa - these nine processes are accepted as pure devotional service."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.23-24]

Different phases that culture begins of the Absolute with sādhu saṅga. Then bhajana-kriyā, tato' nartha- nivṛttiḥ syāt. Then all alternative questions are gradually, automatically eliminated - useless. They seem to be useless. Anartha-nivṛttiḥ, that our artha, what is not, artha means which is our necessity. And anartha means unnecessary, undesirable things that may be within our composition, that gradually they're all eliminated. Then the search becomes a pure search and one complete unity, the search. All doubts, suspicions, and other tendencies that can deviate me from that path, they're gradually all wholesale eliminated. That is anartha-nivṛttiḥ, no artha, anartha, which is not desirable, undesirable things are exhaustively eliminated. Anartha-nivṛttiḥ. Only oneness of quest, of search, of going ahead, that remains.

Then ruci. After that we can hope to find a real taste for the thing, ruci. Before this we may have some tendency, have some liking within us that that is not reliable. As long as the anartha is - some anartha may come out from the unknown quarter of the foundation and take me, drag me down towards that direction. So the weak taste which I had at that time, that is overpowered. But when the anartha, these unnecessary, undesirable things are completely eliminated, then if I find ruci, the taste for the thing, that will be helpful.

Or I may be drawn by the sahajiyā association, the false ruci. Then by that attraction I may be led astray. That sort of ruci, the taste, that 'I have good taste for the mādhurya rasa, I can be in that this moment without losing any time.' All these things, not reliable. After continued consciousness of Kṛṣṇa, then if any ruci comes, that is reliable. And that sādhu saṅga, śravaṇa, kīrtana, that will continue.

And then āsakti, the stage of āsakti. The difference between ruci and āsakti - ruci is the taste, and āsakti is the developed form of taste. Which, if any time I feel absent minded about my cause it creates some pain and reaction. 'Oh! Somehow I have lost. So much time I have lost. I was engaged in some other thought.' Though it's not 'some other' because it's above anartha-nivṛttiḥ, niṣṭhā, oh, niṣṭhā, anartha-nivṛttiḥ. When the anartha, the undesirables go, then the stage of niṣṭhā. Niṣṭhā means nairantaryya, the continuous attempt. And āsakti, ruci, taste, and then the āsakti, though not away from the object of attempt, still he's so much alert about his own higher interest, sometimes he thinks, 'Oh! I have lost, I wasted my time without utilising properly. I feel some pain.' That is the stage of āsakti.

Then comes bhāva bhakti, just like the stage of bud of the flower. And what is the sign, what is the symptom of that stage, has been described in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu. When one reaches this bhāva bhakti stage, now he's safe, and his condition becomes such. What are they?

["For those in whose hearts the bud of true devotional feeling (bhāva-bhakti) has sprouted, these feelings follow: 1-They feel forbearance and tolerance, and with serenity of mind (kṣānti), they remain undisturbed, whatever be the circumstances; 2-They don't like to waste any time, and are eager to utilise their time in the remembrance and devotional service of the Lord (avyartha-kālatā); 3-They are detached from mundane, material things and the objects of the senses (virakti); 4-They are humble and completely free from pride and false prestige (nirabhimānitā); 5-They live in full hope of receiving the Lord's mercy with firm faith that Bhagavān will be attained (āśābandha); 6-They are always eager and anxious to serve (samutkaṅṭhā); 7-They always taste nectar when taking the Holy Name of the Lord (nāma-gāne-ruciḥ); 8-They have a natural inclination for the recital of the attributes of the Lord and love to tell of the Divine Qualities of the Lord (tad-guṇākhyāne āsaktiḥ); and 9-They love to live in the Holy Abode of the Lord where the Lord lived, e.g. Mathurā, Vṛndāvana, Navadwīpa, etc. (tad-vasati-sthale prītiḥ). These nine are called anubhāva, subordinate signs of ecstatic love."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, 1.13.11 & 1.3.25-26]

One who has attained the stage of a bud, then the flower will come, and then the fruit. So the stage of a bud, then these symptoms inevitably are present there. What are they? Kṣāntir. Kṣāntir means kamar [?] If there is any loss, some worldly loss, or gain, such news comes to him, 'let it go.' Let it go. Kṣāntir. 'I don't mind it.'

When Parīkṣit Mahārāja got that curse, and he went to his kingdom, and he was repenting. 'Why I went to insult the brāhmaṇa for some bogus plea? That the guest is not attended by the head of the āśrami, why I went?' And then the news reached to him that he's cursed, that he'll have to meet death within a week. He told, 'Yes. All right. It's all right.' Such a great loss did not, could not disturb him. Before this he was repenting in that way. "What I have done, let my kingdom be finished, let my resources may be lost, may be burned, all these things. Kṣāntir...

84.03.22.C

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...cannot disturb his mind. When there's loss of any type cannot disturb the balance of a devotee. Kṣānti. The death of the son, or the destruction of a kingdom, or anything, any news of separation or destruction cannot disturb him.

Avyartha-kālatā. And another - he's very particular that a moment, a second, may not go unattended, unnoticed, but attending to Kṛṣṇa consciousness. A moment may not be lost, that will seem to be a great loss to him. Avyartha-kālatā. Every second must be utilised. This sort of mentality will come in him.

Virakti. And if anyone will come with some other topic to him, he'll try to avoid. "This is unnecessary, this is painful." Virakti. "I don't want all these topics, nationality, leadership, politics, all these things."

Māna-śūnyatā. If anyone incites him - 'let it be done.' He doesn't find insult is doing some harm to him. "I'm not ready to give proper response attack, fighting for that, not ready. He has done, he has said, insulted me, let it be done. Yes, I'm to be insulted, I'm so low, all these things." Māna-śūnyatā.

Āśābandha. Kṣāntir avyartha-kālatvaṁ viraktir māna-śūnyatā, āśā-bandhaḥ. Then he'll foster a kind of hope, "Yes, I must have a successful life. Kṛṣṇa is gracious, He will, His grace I must have." He'll foster such prospect in his future devotional life.

Samutkaṇṭhā. And at the same time, "So long I'm trying, but still I do not find any real position in the plane of devotees. What is my position? It's not reliable. The reliable position of a devotee I've not acquired so long. When should I get that? Let that position that I shall have the darśana, the chance of serving Kṛṣṇa, or His higher devotees, when that day will come?" Some sort of impatient waiting. Samutkaṇṭhā.

And nāma-gāne sadā ruciḥ. Always he'll find some taste for singing the Name of the Lord. The Name of the Lord will be very much tasteful, and relief for all the troubles. Sadā ruciḥ.

Āśaktis tad-guṇākhyāne. And he'll feel much pleasure when talking about the Divine Qualities of the Lord and His devotees. Guṇākhyāne.

Prītis tad vasati-sthale. And he'll find some peculiar liking to the place of His līlā, the Dhāma, vasati-sthale.

gaur āmāra, ye-saba sthāne, koralo bhramaṇa raṅge se-saba sthāna, heribo āmi, praṇayi-bhakata-saṅge

["All those places where my Lord Gaura-sundara travelled for pastimes I will visit in the company of loving devotees."] [From Śrīla Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's Śaraṇāgati, Śuddha-bhakata.]

[The Songs of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, p 37-38] & [Songs of the Vaiṣṇava Ācāryas, p 53]

"Wherever my Gaurāṅga went, where Kṛṣṇa went, or notable devotees went, I shall have some ardent likeness to visit those places. And to have my recollection about the divine līlā - that encouragement from the incidents that occurred in those places. In this way I shall have some peculiar attraction for the places where the Lord and His devotees came and lived and spread about His pastimes, His particular attraction for those places."

Āśaktis tad-guṇākhyāne prītis tad vasati-sthale. Āśaktis tad-guṇākhyāne. And special attraction to describe about the divine qualities of the Lord and His devotees. "He's so, such and such."

In the Bhakti- rasāmṛta-sindhu so many qualities have been given to us. The ordinary jīva has got fifty kinds of qualities, very meagre. And there are so many [demi]gods they may have fifty five. And Nārāyaṇa has got sixty qualities in full. And in Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead, Svayaṁ-Bhagavān, sixty four qualities in full. Then we shall try to understand all these qualities and analyse them, in this way.

āśaktis tad-guṇākhyāne prītis tad vasati-sthale, ityādayo 'nubhāvāḥ syur jāta

[kṣāntir avyartha-kālatvaṁ viraktir māna-śūnyatā

These and similar qualifications will be seen in a devotee who has attained the level of bhāva bhakti, that is the stage of a real bud. And the bud means it will develop very soon into flower, and the scent will attract Kṛṣṇa towards that heart. Śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā. In another place Rūpa Goswāmī has written in another way development of bhakti.

kleśa-ghnī śubhadā mokṣa-, laghutā-kṛt sudurllabhā / sāndrānanda-viśeṣātmā, śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā

["Uttamā-bhakti, the purest devotion, is the vanquisher of all sin and ignorance, and the bestower of all auspiciousness; liberation is belittled in the presence of such devotion, which is very rarely attained, the embodiment of the deepest ecstasy, and the attractor of Śrī Kṛṣṇa Himself."]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrvva, 1.17]

These are the stages of bona fide devotion. What are they? Kleśa-ghnī. By its first strike it will demolish, it will kill all the afflictions that we feel from the present mortal environment. Then that will be finished. Kleśa-ghnī. Then many auspicious things will come to help us in our progress.

Śubhadā mokṣa-, laghutā-kṛt. We'll be able even to look down to the conception of liberation, or mere emancipation, and liberation from the negative side, that will lose charm for us. Mokṣa-, laghutā-kṛt.

Then sudurllabhā, there also we do not attain - after we reach the stage of eliminating from our ideal the liberation or emancipation, then also it is not very cheap. We're to pass for some time to enter into the positive conception of the thing. Sudurllabhā.

Sāndrānanda-viśeṣātmā. And what is its positive attainment, conception? It is a class of infinite magnitude, joy, ecstasy. Sāndrānanda-viśeṣātmā. The ātmā, or soul, will come in touch of an infinite character of joy. Just as we have a vision of the ocean when we go on the shore, or just as when we cast our eyes at the sky at night, so many stars and infinite sky. So the soul will come in closeness of an infinite ocean of joy. I may be lost there. It's such infinite joy. My particle, I'm a particle, and if that I come in connection of this huge ocean of joy I'll lose myself. Sāndrānanda-viśeṣātmā. In the relativity of such ecstatic feeling will come.

Śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā. Then these are the effects of devotion, what devotion contributes to us. After this, Śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā. This type of devotion will attract Śrī Kṛṣṇa by his side. From the ocean of joy we'll find the charming personality - as Bilvamaṅgala says in his experience.

madhuraṁ madhuraṁ vapur [asya vibhor, madhuraṁ madhuraṁ vadanaṁ madhuraṁ
madhu gandhi mṛdu smitam etad aho, madhuraṁ madhuraṁ madhuraṁ madhuraṁ]

["O Lord Kṛṣṇa! The beauty of Your transcendental form is sweet, but Your beautiful face is even sweeter. The sweet smile on Your face, which is like the sweet aroma of honey, is sweeter still."

[Kṛṣṇa-Karṇāmṛta, 92]

māraḥ svayaṁ nu [madhura-dyuti-maṇḍalaṁ nu, mādhuryam eva nu mano-nayanāmṛtaṁ nu venī-mṛjo nu mama jīvita-vallabho nu, kṛṣṇo 'yam abhyudayate mama locanāya]

["My dear friends, where is Kṛṣṇa, who is Cupid personified, brilliant as a kadamba flower? Where is Kṛṣṇa, sweetness Himself, the sweetest nectar for my eyes and mind? Where is Kṛṣṇa, who loosens the hair of the gopīs? He is the supreme source of divine bliss. He is my life and soul. Has He come before my eyes again?"] [Kṛṣṇa-Karṇāmṛta, 68]

"What do I feel? Māraḥ svayaṁ nu. The most charming experience what we find in this world in sexual pleasure, similar to that it is all attractive. Leaving aside all calculations, all consciousness, it is giving me a call of finer attraction. Māraḥ svayaṁ nu madhura-dyuti-maṇḍalaṁ nu. Very sweet halo I find, not this material. Madhura-dyuti-maṇḍalaṁ nu. Mādhuryam. What should I say? Rather it is the very gist of sweetness, what more I can say, I have ever found, ever experienced. Mādhuryam. Nayanāmṛtaṁ nu. What is this? It is coming before my eye like an ointment, capturing my eye, attracting my eyes wholesale. The sight aspect is wholly captured, nayanāmṛtaṁ nu, like nectar on my eyes it is coming to me. Nayanāmṛtaṁ nu. Māraḥ svayaṁ nu madhura-dyuti-maṇḍalaṁ nu, mādhuryam eva nu mano-nayanāmṛtaṁ nu.

Then fully converted into another plane. Venī-mṛjo nu. First capturing the eye with the extraordinary colour and figure, beauty. Capturing the heart by the way of beauty, then venī-mṛjo nu. What He's doing? He's rubbing very softly my - he's converted into mādhurya rasa, and finding that Kṛṣṇa is softly rubbing the hairs, venī-mṛjo nu. Mama jīvita-vallabho nu. Then he found that He has become my Lord of heart.

Venī-mṛjo nu mama jīvita-vallabho nu, kṛṣṇo 'yam abhyudayate mama locanāya. Bilvamaṅgala says, "In this gradual process He captured me."

So śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī ca sā. This bhakti, this is the power of the devotion that ultimately he will attract Kṛṣṇa and put in his side. This is the process. Then this bhāva bhakti, after that prema bhakti, when the bud of the flower it grows into full flower, blossoming. Then sneha, mana, praṇaya, rāga, anurāga, bhāva, mahābhāva. That can be analysed into so many stages when he enters the real domain of divine love. According to different rasa the constituent parts are there in such way. Sneha, mana, praṇaya, rāga, anurāga, bhāva, mahābhāva. Then mahābhāva is only in Rādhārāṇī - nowhere. And bhāva may come to vātsalya rasa and to certain portion of sākhya rasa. All others may come to dāsya rasa also, sneha, mana, praṇaya, may come. But bhāva and mahābhāva - mahābhāva only in one place, and bhāva in vātsalya and selected sākhya rasa, just as Subal. Subal can get bhāva stage sometimes for his connection with mādhurya rasa. And vātsalya rasa that also has some particular connection with mādhurya rasa, so there is also bhāva in higher agency. And all others may be found common.

This is the sādhana bhakti beginning from śraddhā and coming to prema bhakti sādhava. In this way it has been given to us. And before that śraddhā, there is sukṛti, when unconsciously our energy is utilised by the sādhu for the purpose of the service of Kṛṣṇa, the Lord. That is ajñāta sukṛti. And when ajñāta sukṛti is collected to certain considerable stage we find some inclination to utilise our energy through the devotees of Kṛṣṇa here. But we do not want to take participation direct into the service, devotion of Kṛṣṇa, that we feel. That is also sukṛti, and that sukṛti sufficiently accumulated it creates śraddhā. 'That all may be eliminated, and if I take to only one duty, everything, my life will get fulfilment thereby.' From there śraddhā begins and he then gets out of his association, and searches for the association of the sādhus only, those that are culturing about Kṛṣṇa. And then by that association and culture, gradually in this path the devotion of Kṛṣṇa begins, develops, and attains the stage of prema, divine love. And his object is fulfilled gradually in different rasa.

So here I stop today. Nitāi. Nitāi. Jaya Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda...

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Mahāprabhu advised Gadādhara Paṇḍita, "Śrīnivāsa will come very soon to you, and you please teach him Bhāgavatam."

And when Śrīnivāsa went, after the departure of Mahāprabhu, Gadādhara Paṇḍita remained for some time, and Śrīnivāsa went to him.

Then he told that, "My Lord has ordered me to teach you Bhāgavatam. But this book you can't, won't be able to follow. This is by the tears many letters have been washed away, you won't be able to follow. So get another good book from anyone, by my name from Narahari Sarakāra of Śrīkhaṇḍa, and then I shall teach you Bhāgavatam - carry out the order of my Lord."

So we're told that by the tears when he was reading the book, tears fell down from his eyes and that damaged the letters of the book. So, āśru-pāyanaiḥ pūjayan. When Gadādhara Paṇḍita lived there he did such help to his Master, and as well as he was worshipping Bhāgavatam with the - instead of flowers, only by the tears of his eyes he used to worship Bhāgavatam. Such Gadādhara Paṇḍita may be my only object for fulfilling my purpose what I'm going to do in this book in this way.

nīlāmbhodhi-taṭe sadā sva-virahā-kṣepanvitaṁ bāndhavaṁ
śrīmad-bhāgavatī kathā madirayā sañjīvayan bhāti yaḥ śrīmad-bhāgavataṁ sadā sva-nayanāśru-pāyanaiḥ pūjayan
gosvāmi-prabaro gadādhara-vibhūr-bhūyāt mad-ekā-gatiḥ

["On the shore of the broad blue ocean, Gadādhara Paṇḍita used to read Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam to Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, Who was suffering from the great internal pain of separation from Himself (Kṛṣṇa). Gadādhara Paṇḍita supplied the wine of Kṛṣṇa līlā to intoxicate his afflicted friend and give Him relief. As he read, tears would fall from his eyes like flower offerings onto the pages of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. May the pleasure of that brilliant personality, Gadādhara Paṇḍita, the best of the Goswāmīs, be my only object in writing this book."] [Composed by Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja] [The Golden Volcano Of Divine Love, p x, xi]

[23:53 - 26:05 ?]

Devotee: Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja. So this verse about Gadādhara Paṇḍita, that is one of many verses you've written for an introduction to a book about Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! Introduction. Many ślokas are there, but where it is at present I forget. May be somewhere. Vedavyasa rsi asesa semasi ausesa yat [?] So many things I forgot.

[27:20 - 27:50 ?]

Devotee: Also this next book, you've given a title, about Mahāprabhu, Śikṣāṣṭakam, you've given the name Golden Volcano.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! Śikṣāṣṭakam. Golden Volcano. Divine Lava. And the query, He's lava, love, die to live.

Devotee: Ha, ha, ha. Can you repeat that again. Title.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In the beginning it is like that is die, that is like lava. But in the end it is live, life, that is it is lava - love, lava. Any connection in root meaning - lava and love? What is the root of lava?

Devotee: Lava I think is an oriental word.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That must be Roman or Greek? Eh? Lava, a Greek word or Roman?

Devotee: Lava is Latin.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Or Hebrew?

Devotee: I thought it was oriental.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Lava, and volcano, lava. So Mahāprabhu, vipralambha, Kṛṣṇa viraha, like a huge fire it's coming out. Viraha duḥkha - dvādaśābda-banhi-garbha-vipralambha-śīlanam.

[śrī-svarūpa-rāya-saṅga-gambhirāntya-līlanaṁ, dvādaśābda-banhi-garbha-vipralambha-śīlanam rādhikādhirūḍha-bhāva-kānti-kṛṣṇa-kuñjaraṁ, prema-dhāma-devam-eva-naumi-gaurasundaram.]

["His pastimes culminated in the Gambhīrā līlā with His closest associates Śrī Svarūpa Dāmodara and Śrī Rāmānanda Rāya. For twelve long years He remained within the fire of deep feeling of separation from Kṛṣṇa, which He relished and discussed with His associates. At the same time He was like an elephant, intoxicated with love for Rādhārāṇī and His being was vibrant with Rādhā bhāva, for He was beautiful Kṛṣṇa Himself illuminated by the beautiful bodily effulgence of Śrī Rādhikā. I sing with joy the unending glories of my golden Lord Gaurasundara the beautiful, the divine abode of pure love."]

[Prema Dhāma Deva Stotram, 54]

He was vomiting painful separation about Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, painful, very painful, can't tolerate. That is banhi-garbha, like fire, so it is lava and volcano. The viraha, Kṛṣṇa bhakta, in Rāmānanda-saṁvāda it is mentioned what is the highest conception of pain.

['duḥkha-madhye kona duḥkha haya gurutara?']
'kṛṣṇa-bhakta-viraha vinā duḥkha nāhi dekhi para'

[Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu asked, "Of all kinds of distress, what is the most painful?" Śrī Rāmānanda Rāya replied, "Apart from separation from the devotee of Kṛṣṇa, I know of no unbearable unhappiness."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.248]

No such intense pain can be found than the separation with the devotee of Kṛṣṇa. So separation from Kṛṣṇa - as much as ecstasy or joy we can have from the association of Kṛṣṇa, by separation so much pain. It is reasonable. By, when in union, as much intensity of joy, in separation so much intensity of pain. So it may be compared with lava.

Mahāprabhu giving out. "Oh! You can't understand under what painful situation you are. Your senses have been all destroyed. Otherwise the separation of Kṛṣṇa, how painful, you can't feel, understand."
Mahāprabhu has shown that, that separation from Kṛṣṇa is so painful, and union is so happy.

So die to live. In the beginning it is lava, fire. But really it is nectar, love. Whether love and lava, coming from the same root. Ha, ha. The volcano. It's intolerable pain Mahāprabhu can't tolerate. Coming out, Kṛṣṇa viraha, how painful it is.

[śrī-kṛṣṇa]-viraha ār sahite nā pāri, parān chāḍite ār din dui cāri

["I am unable to further tolerate this separation from my Lord Śrī Kṛṣṇa and am ready to give up my life in two days or four." [Jhāṅphi-Lophā, Song 7, verse 8] [The Songs Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, page 139-140]

Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura says, "I can't tolerate any longer the separation of Kṛṣṇa. Only perhaps three or four days I shall have to leave this body." Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura says. "Śrī-kṛṣṇa-viraha ār sahite nā pāri, parān chāḍite ār din dui cāri. Within four or five days, three or four days, I shall have to meet death, to leave the body. I can't tolerate this separation of Kṛṣṇa in this life."

So in Śikṣāṣṭaka [8],

āśliṣya vā pāda-ratāṁ pinaṣṭu mām, adarśanān marma-hatāṁ karotu vā
yathā tathā vā vidadhātu lampaṭo, [mat-prāna-nāthas tu sa eva nāparaḥ]

["Kṛṣṇa may embrace Me in love or trample Me under His feet. He may break My heart by hiding Himself from Me. Let that debauchee do whatever He likes, but He will always be the only Lord of My life."]

What sort of feeling is coming out from Him? Like lava, comes a volcano, but it is golden. "We're severed from our Lord and we're living our life. What is this? Inconceivable, that we're living separate life from Whom, Who is all in all in us. Tumi vina kalena nahi hela radha raman [?] Wholesale I belong to Him. He's all in all in me. And I can't see Him. I'm forcibly separated from Him. How can I tolerate?"

So many persons in this ordinary world frustrated in love, so many persons committing suicide, becoming mad, can't tolerate pain. But the pain which is the outcome of the separation of Kṛṣṇa, as represented by Mahāprabhu to certain extent to us, that is compared with lava. But, not injurious like lava.

bahye viṣajvāla haya, bhitare ānandamāya, kṛṣṇa premara adbhuta carite

["The wonderful characteristic of divine love of Kṛṣṇa is that although externally, it works like fiery lava, internally it is like sweet nectar that fills the heart with the greatest joy."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.50]

Externally it works like a poison, but internally it saves the life, makes the life full of joy. Kṛṣṇa premara adbhuta carite. Such is the peculiar characteristic of the divine love of Kṛṣṇa. Suffering.
In English poetry, "Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest things."

["Our sincerest laughter with some pain is fraught;
Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought."]
(The English Romantic poet, Percy Bysshe Shelley, 1792-1822)

Sītā Devī, Rāmacandra _____ [?] So cruel the action that when we go to read that we can't but shed tears profusely. Still, so painful, still we cannot leave reading. We're shedding tears like anything, but still we cannot leave the reading, we go on reading. And so there's a particular form of joy there within that pain. Apparently there's pain, tears falling, but within there's some sort of happiness, we can't leave it. So this is ordinary in us. And what about Kṛṣṇa viraha? It's very painful but we can't leave it. Can't leave it. Within we feel a sort of ecstasy. It is of such type.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.
Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. New faces come, with new resources it will come out. He has got the first class press in the world, German planed press, that is considered to be highest in the press section.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mukundamala Prabhu will go and then publish _____ [?]

Devotee: Mukundamala Prabhu _____ [?]

Devotee: _____ [?] Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: We're taking the treasure, we're trying to plunder the treasure.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gaura Hari. _____ [?] Dreadful.

[39:10 - 41:14 ?]

84.03.23_84.03.26.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: They're sent to help the people, ordinary. And they, without this formal association, in time can find within themselves this development of that sort of knowledge and devotion. So śikṣā guru paramparā, we're to recognise the thing from whatever quarter it may come. If we ourselves are - so many precautions are there, still there is possibility of adulteration. So śikṣā Guru, those that can know the thing, they cannot be deceived. It's previously acquired wealth for them. A formal Guru he has accepted but he himself is a wealthy man, spiritually.

Devotee: Also, Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, if His purpose in taking initiation from a Guru was to give respect to the idea of taking initiation from a Guru, then when He took sannyāsa He took sannyāsa from Keśava Bhāratī who showed himself to be a māyāvādī.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: So Mahāprabhu He came to fight with Śaṅkara and māyāvādī philosophy, then why did He give such honour to someone who was situated as a māyāvāda _____ ?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: For preaching purpose. The māyāvādīs they captured the field. So He had to enter into that school, for preaching purpose. No such Vaiṣṇava preaching was in this side, at that time. So He generally took the garb of a preacher, from the nearest, easy quarter, position. And then began to preach His own doctrine, even to His Guru. When, before He's taking mantram of sannyāsa from Guru, He gave the mantram to His Guru.

"Is it not the mantram I got in dream?"

"Yes, yes, this is the mantram."

He can enforce, in special cases the disciple can enforce the Guru to serve his own purpose. It is possible in peculiar case, extraordinary. He took māyāvāda sannyāsa but He began to sing that tridaṇḍa sannyāsa.

etāṁ sa āsthāya parātma-niṣṭhām, [adhyāsitāṁ pūrvatamair mahaṛṣibhiḥ ahaṁ tariṣyāmi duranta-pāraṁ, tamo mukundāṇghri-niṣevayaiva]

[(As a brāhmaṇa from Avantī-deśa said:) "I shall cross over the insurmountable ocean of nescience by being firmly fixed in the service of the lotus feet of Kṛṣṇa. This was approved by the previous Ācāryas, who were fixed in firm devotion to the Lord, Paramātmā, the Supreme Personality of Godhead."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.23.57] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 3.6]

Guru was converted immediately began to chant and dance with Him. Special cases.

Devotee: Mahārāja. You've told that Śrīla Bhaktisiddhānta gave this brāhmaṇa initiation, and two reasons given.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: First, so that the brāhmaṇa community...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: To the society, brāhmaṇa community, that they should try to understand what is brāhmaṇism. Only according to the awakening of the knowledge of Brahma, Parabrahma, and not mere hereditary, this flesh hereditary is brāhmaṇa. But real brāhmaṇism is here, to make it known to the public.

At the same time, those so called Vaiṣṇava, sahajiyā, they thought, used to think that, 'We have got Vaiṣṇava dīkṣā, but it's not above brāhmaṇa. Our position is not above brāhmaṇa. These flesh brāhmaṇas they hold superior position.' It is not so. And so, they used to generally indulge in many bad practices.

So for them, "That you are brāhmaṇa, above brāhmaṇa, so at least you must observe the holy practices of a brāhmaṇa. You are above brāhmaṇa. Don't allow yourself to go down, the smoking, the fish eating, and other polluted things. At least your external behaviour must be above the standard of the so called brāhmaṇas." This sort of ego was infused in the Vaiṣṇava. "In the society, you don't go down. The brāhmaṇas are masters of the society, and you think that you're their servant class. No! The Vaiṣṇavas are the Guru of the brāhmaṇas. This sort of conviction you have to develop, and also to have such realisation in your own self."

brāhmaṇānāṁ sahasrebhyaḥ satra-yājī viśiṣyate satra-yāji-sahasrebhyaḥ sarvva-vedānta-pāragaḥ sarvva-vedānta-vit-koṭ yā viṣṇubhakto viśiṣyate vaiṣṇavānāṁ sahasrebhyaḥ ekāntyeko viśiṣyate

["Among many thousands of brāhmaṇas, a yajñika brāhmaṇa is best. Among thousands of yajñika brāhmaṇas, one who fully knows Vedānta is best. Among millions of knowers of Vedānta, one who is a devotee of Viṣṇu is best. And among thousands of devotees of Viṣṇu, one who is an unalloyed Vaiṣṇava is best."] [Hari-bhakti-vilāsa, 10.117] & [Bhakti-Sandarbha, 117]

Vaiṣṇava is above brāhmaṇa. You must be conscious of that fact. Otherwise pseudo Vaiṣṇava, the imitation Vaiṣṇava, the so called Vaiṣṇava. Yati Vaiṣṇava, they used to take prasādam from the fish eating brāhmaṇas, fish eating, meat eating brāhmaṇas. They're śakta, and the so called Vaiṣṇavas are taking prasādam in their house. This can't be, go, all these things. Above brāhmaṇa you must be certain, at least brāhmaṇa, in the society. And then your bhajan will go upwards. And to give a push to the social brāhmaṇas. The real Vaiṣṇava is above you. They're not lacking in brāhmaṇism, it is already in them. The Brahma jñāna is lower to Viṣṇu jñāna, not that Brahma jñāna is above and Viṣṇu jñāna is lower.

Devotee: This also brings another question. In some temples the Deity worship is being carried on by persons whom we have differences with, or perhaps they're Gaura-nāgarīs, something like that. Then how should we respect prasādam from that Deity? Or how should we regard it, what they offer as prasādam?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That prasādam, we're to understand whether it is guided under whose direction the things are going on. That will be the question, if the leading person is a genuine man.

In kīrtana also. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura has suggested, "In a saṅkīrtana party if the leader is a śuddha bhakta, the leading person he's a śuddha bhakta, then you can join. Otherwise it will be all Nāma aparādha. You should not join any congregation taking the Name."

So also, if the guiding man he's a genuine devotee, then under his instruction those that are working there, they should be considered as instrumental. By his sanction anyone is entering the temple and worshipping, he's doing through, he's instrumental agent. So the prasādam will be taken, considering who is guiding.

Devotee: Sometimes the devotees go to holy places, like the Gambhīrā and other places. And these places are controlled by sahajiyās. So no prasādam should be taken from there?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That depends upon the realisation of the person. In general, kaniṣṭha adhikārī generally takes. Madhyama adhikārī will consider "Whether I shall take, this is not handled by the proper person," he won't take. And uttama adhikārī he may also take. A slight connection of Kṛṣṇa cannot make any harm. "Yes, it may be done." In this way. Uttama adhikārī he takes mādhukarī from any house. "Kṛṣṇa is giving me." He's not much concerned with the instrumentality. "Kṛṣṇa is giving me this" and he takes.

yo māṁ paśyati sarvatra, sarvaṁ ca [mayi paśyati tasyāhaṁ na praṇaśyāmi, sa ca me na praṇaśyati]

["For one who sees Me in everything and sees the whole creation in Me alone, I am never unseen for him, and he is never unwitnessed by Me - he never fails in thinking of Me."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 6.30]

The mediation position he does not care to look at, as Kṛṣṇa is giving. The instrumentality, no contamination from the instrumental agency. The madhyama adhikārī he considers, 'no, he's not a proper man, not properly offered to the Deity, I should not take here,' the madhyama adhikārī. 'Only formally they're doing, but the spirit is absent here. So if I take this, I mix with them, this will be encouraged, and contamination will come to me. This is not in proper form.' So he will avoid.

Devotee: There's one temple in Vṛndāvana, the Rādhāramaṇa temple, that's under the control of the Goswāmīs coming from Gopāla Bhaṭṭa Goswāmī. So there's one sevāite there whose name is Viśvambhara Gosai. And recently some devotees in United States...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I got a letter from Sudhīra Goswāmī that that Viśvambhara Goswāmī went there, and he's delivering lectures about Mahāprabhu.

Devotee: No. They're asking him to come.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And he wants to come to deliver lectures in Sudhīra Goswāmī's āśrama, whether he can be allowed or not.

Devotee: What is their position?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Position is, they had some connection with Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura and our Guru Mahārāja. They have recognition of śuddha bhakti, so some intimate relation with that temple, Rādhāramaṇa temple, and Gauḍīya Maṭha people.

But not all - afterwards they've deviated. We're to judge on particular cases what is his position. Not that the Goswāmī's son is a Goswāmī, but what is his status, we're to judge then we're to do accordingly. We're to put some test, and then we can know what order of Vaiṣṇava he is, and whether I can mix with him freely or cautiously. Giving some outer respect I may carefully go on in my own way. These things are personal questions.

Devotee: This particular man he's recognised...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Even those that are coming in the order of Swāmī Mahārāja so many going astray. So coming in the order of our Guru Mahārāja Bhaktisiddhānta many may go astray. So if we've got the criterion, the proper thing, the very substance, the truth, then we can understand with whom to mix and whom to avoid. And how much with whom that depends on our own realisation, everywhere.

Devotee: This Viśvambhara Goswāmī he's a householder.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We know.

Devotee: Is that sufficient reason to...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And he was perhaps an educated man, he was holding an important position in _____ [?] University, founded by Bon Mahārāja. Then Bon Mahārāja had a quarrel with him and he wanted to disconnect Bon Mahārāja from his position as founder. So many things I heard. He was pro Hindu Mahā Sabhā. Viśvambhara Goswāmī, I heard his name.

[15:45 - 18:15 ?]

...

Devotee: He's considered incarnation of Satyabhāmā. Can you explain why he wanted to go to Vṛndāvana?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not only Satyabhāmā, that nature of Satyabhāmā. Satyabhāmā is vilāsa Mūrti of Rādhārāṇī. So that bhāma bhāva is a peculiar nature of Jagadānanda.

That was, just as Rāmānanda Rāya is Viśākhā as well as Arjuna, combined, it has been traced.

So Jagadānanda has twofold characteristic, in connection of Rādhārāṇī's line. In Gaura līlā, in Vṛndāvana līlā, and in Dvārakā connection. It is written in Lalitā-Mādhava when Kṛṣṇa went to Dvārakā līlā, some of the gopīs mostly they also had got such sort of transformation to attend the service of Dvārakā.

So Satyabhāmā representing Rādhārāṇī. Candrāvalī representing Rukmiṇī. And Lalitā representing Jāmbavatī. But in lower circles, what was higher, the sentiment had the highest honour in Vṛndāvana, but in Dvārakā that was lower down. And sober consideration that has secondary position in Vṛndāvana in Candrā, that got higher consideration in Dvārakā, in Rukmiṇī. Buddhi pradhana. And the feeling got some, sentiment got some lower status in that level. So many things are there.

Devotee: Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja. Govinda Mahārāja he says you've written one śloka, eka śloka, about Gadādhara Paṇḍita in Jagannātha Purī reading Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. It begins with the word nīlāmbhodhi.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: So I asked him to explain it, but he told me to ask you to explain it.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I was writing, and began to write a book, a brief representation of Śrīmad- Bhāgavata. As Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura he gave Bhāgavatārka-marīci-mālā, the whole gist of ontological aspect of Bhāgavatam in one thousand ślokas. Bhāgavata is supposed to have - though it is announced eighteen thousand, but really fourteen thousand we get. And Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura has represented whole of Bhāgavata principle in a book, Bhāgavatārka-marīci-mālā, in near the hundred ślokas. I had a mind to consolidate more...

Devotee: One hundred lākh...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...to represent three hundred, within three hundred. I began that book but I could not finish. In the beginning I had some introductory ślokas, this praṇāma.

Gadādhara Paṇḍita he used to read Bhāgavatam in Purī Toṭa Gopinātha Temple and where the devotees used to go there and to listen, including Mahāprabhu. Mahāprabhu used to visit Gadādhara Paṇḍita and with His Own party He heard Bhāgavatam from Gadādhara. Gadādhara Paṇḍita was the reader and with Mahāprabhu so many devotees all listeners, audience.

In the introduction I composed one śloka for that. There are many ślokas but one of the ślokas is this.

nīlāmbhodhi-taṭe sadā sva-virahā-kṣepanvitaṁ bāndhavaṁ
śrīmad-bhāgavatī kathā madirayā sañjīvayan bhāti yaḥ
śrīmad-bhāgavataṁ sadā sva-nayanāśru-pāyanaiḥ pūjayan
gosvāmi-prabaro gadādhara-vibhūr-bhūyāt mad-ekā-gatiḥ

["On the shore of the broad blue ocean, Gadādhara Paṇḍita used to read Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam to Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, who was suffering from the great internal pain of separation from Himself (Kṛṣṇa). Gadādhara Paṇḍita supplied the wine of Kṛṣṇa līlā to intoxicate his afflicted friend and give Him relief. As he read, tears would fall from his eyes like flower offerings onto the pages of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. May the pleasure of that brilliant personality, Gadādhara Paṇḍita, the best of the Goswāmīs, be my only object in writing this book."]

I'm inviting the blessings of Gadādhara Paṇḍita, who was a reader of Bhāgavatam where Mahāprabhu was amongst the audience. I invoke blessings from him before I compose this Bhāgavata substantial book.

Nīlāmbhodhi-taṭe. At the shore of that unlimited blue water, nīlāmbhodhi, blue water, āmbhodhi, the ocean, of the sea, just nearby nīlāmbhodhi-taṭe, Nīlācala.

Sadā sva-virahā-kṣepanvitaṁ bāndhavaṁ. Gadādhara Paṇḍita used to read Bhāgavatam to whom? His own friend who is very much affected for His Own separation, sva-virahā. Mahāprabhu is finding great pain from the separation of His own previous svarūpa, Kṛṣṇa viraha, vipralambha. The friend of Gadādhara Paṇḍita Who is suffering from the internal pain due to the separation from His Own self, nvitaṁ bāndhavaṁ.

Śrīmad-bhāgavatī kathā madirayā sañjīvayan bhāti yaḥ. Gadādhara Paṇḍita is shining there, distributing in a form of medicine that, kṣepanvitaṁ bāndhavaṁ, he's applying the wine of the stories of Bhāgavatam, of Kṛṣṇa līlā. kṣepanvitaṁ bāndhavaṁ. Bhāgavatī kathā madirayā. The stories of Bhāgavatam, just like wine, was distributed to that affected friend, Whose pain is for His Self separation, kathā madirayā.

Just as if a patient is suffering acutely, then to help him from the feeling of the acute pain some sort of wine is given to lessen the pain, feeling.

So these intoxicating stories of Bhāgavatam, Kṛṣṇa, gopīs, all these things, that was distributed like medicine to his friend Who was always mad and feeling pain due to His separation - and separation of His Own, none else. Kṣepanvitaṁ bāndhavaṁ.

Sañjīvayan bhāti yaḥ. In this way by distributing these sort of intoxicating stories of Kṛṣṇa līlā who is shining there, Gadādhara Paṇḍita. Nīlāmbhodhi-taṭe. In that broad shore of the broad viewed blue water.

Śrīmad-bhāgavataṁ sadā sva-nayanāśru-pāyanaiḥ pūjayan. And at the same time when Gadādhara Paṇḍita was reading Bhāgavatam, tears used to come down from his eyes profusely.

So much so, that when after - before His departure Mahāprabhu advised Gadādhara Paṇḍita, "Śrīnivāsa will come very soon to you, and you please teach him Bhāgavatam."

And when Śrīnivāsa went, after the departure of Mahāprabhu, Gadādhara Paṇḍita remained for some time, and Śrīnivāsa went to him. Then he told that, "My Lord has ordered me to teach you Bhāgavatam. But this book you can't, won't be able to follow. This is by the tears, many letters have been washed away, you won't be able to follow. So get another good book from anyone, by my name from Narahari Sarakāra of Śrīkhaṇḍa, and then I shall teach you Bhāgavatam - carry out the order of my Lord."

So we're told that by the tears when he was reading the book, tears fell down from his eyes and that damaged the letters of the book. So, āśru-pāyanaiḥ pūjayan. When Gadādhara Paṇḍita lived there he did such help to his Master, and as well as he was worshipping Bhāgavatam with the - instead of flowers, only by the tears of his eyes he used to worship Bhāgavatam. Such Gadādhara Paṇḍita may be my only object for fulfilling my purpose what I'm going to do in this book in this way.

nīlāmbhodhi-taṭe sadā sva-virahā-kṣepanvitaṁ bāndhavaṁ
śrīmad-bhāgavatī kathā madirayā sañjīvayan bhāti yaḥ
śrīmad-bhāgavataṁ sadā sva-nayanāśru-pāyanaiḥ pūjayan
gosvāmi-prabaro gadādhara-vibhūr-bhūyāt mad-ekā-gatiḥ

That is the śloka.

Devotee: _____ [?]

...

Devotee: So this verse about Gadādhara Paṇḍita, that is one of many verses you've written for an introduction to a book about Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! Introduction. Many ślokas are there, but where it is at present I forget. May be somewhere. Vedavyasa rsi asesa semasi ausesa yat [?] So many things I forgot.

[34:20 - 34:37 ?]

Devotee: This next book, you've given a title, about Mahāprabhu, Śikṣāṣṭakam, you've given the name Golden Volcano.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! Śikṣāṣṭakam. Golden Volcano. Divine Lava. And the query, He's lava, love, die to live.

Devotee: Ha, ha, ha. Can you repeat that again. Title.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In the beginning it is like that is die, that is like lava. But in the end it is live, life, that is it is lava - love, lava. Any connection in root meaning - lava and love? What is the root of lava?

Devotee: Lava I think is an oriental word.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That must be Roman or Greek? Eh? Lava, a Greek word or Roman?

Devotee: Lava is Latin.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Or Hebrew?

Devotee: I thought it was oriental.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Lava, and volcano, lava. So Mahāprabhu, vipralambha, Kṛṣṇa viraha, like a huge fire it's coming out. Viraha duḥkha - dvādaśābda-banhi-garbha-vipralambha-śīlanam.

[śrī-svarūpa-rāya-saṅga-gambhirāntya-līlanaṁ, dvādaśābda-banhi-garbha-vipralambha-śīlanam

sundaram.]

["His pastimes culminated in the Gambhīrā līlā with His closest associates Śrī Svarūpa Dāmodara and Śrī Rāmānanda Rāya. For twelve long years He remained within the fire of deep feeling of separation from Kṛṣṇa, which He relished and discussed with His associates. At the same time He was like an elephant, intoxicated with love for Rādhārāṇī and His being was vibrant with Rādhā bhāva, for He was beautiful Kṛṣṇa Himself illuminated by the beautiful bodily effulgence of Śrī Rādhikā. I sing with joy the unending glories of my golden Lord Gaurasundara the beautiful, the divine abode of pure love."]

[Prema Dhāma Deva Stotram, 54]

He was - vomiting painful separation about Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, painful, very painful, can't tolerate. That is banhi-garbha, like fire, so it is lava and volcano. The viraha, Kṛṣṇa bhakta, in Rāmānanda-saṁvāda it is mentioned what is the highest conception of pain.

['duḥkha-madhye kona duḥkha haya gurutara?']
'kṛṣṇa-bhakta-viraha vinā duḥkha nāhi dekhi para'

[Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu asked, "Of all kinds of distress, what is the most painful?" Śrī Rāmānanda Rāya replied, "Apart from separation from the devotee of Kṛṣṇa, I know of no unbearable unhappiness."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.248]

No such intense pain can be found than the separation with the devotee of Kṛṣṇa. So separation from Kṛṣṇa - as much as ecstasy or joy we can have from the association of Kṛṣṇa, by separation so much pain. It is reasonable. By, when in union, as much intensity of joy, in separation so much intensity of pain. So it may be compared with lava.

Mahāprabhu giving out. "Oh! You can't understand under what painful situation you are. Your senses have been all destroyed. Otherwise the separation of Kṛṣṇa, how painful, you can't feel, understand."
Mahāprabhu has shown that, that separation from Kṛṣṇa is so painful, and union is so happy.

So die to live. In the beginning it is lava, fire. But really it is nectar, love. Whether love and lava, coming from the same root. Ha, ha. The volcano. It's intolerable pain Mahāprabhu can't tolerate. Coming out, Kṛṣṇa viraha, how painful it is.

[śrī-kṛṣṇa]-viraha ār sahite nā pāri, parān chāḍite ār din dui cāri

["I am unable to further tolerate this separation from my Lord Śrī Kṛṣṇa and am ready to give up my life in two days or four." [Jhāṅphi-Lophā, Song 7, verse 8] [The Songs Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, page 139-140]

Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura says, "I can't tolerate any longer the separation of Kṛṣṇa. Only perhaps three or four days I shall have to leave this body." Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura says. "Śrī-kṛṣṇa-viraha ār sahite nā pāri, parān chāḍite ār din dui cāri. Within four or five days, three or four days, I shall have to meet death, to leave the body. I can't tolerate this separation of Kṛṣṇa in this life."

So in Śikṣāṣṭaka [8],

āśliṣya vā pāda-ratāṁ pinaṣṭu mām, adarśanān marma-hatāṁ karotu vā
yathā tathā vā vidadhātu lampaṭo, [mat-prāna-nāthas tu sa eva nāparaḥ]

["Kṛṣṇa may embrace Me in love or trample Me under His feet. He may break My heart by hiding Himself from Me. Let that debauchee do whatever He likes, but He will always be the only Lord of My life."]

What sort of feeling is coming out from Him? Like lava, comes a volcano, but it is golden. "We're severed from our Lord and we're living our life. What is this? Inconceivable, that we're living separate life from Whom, Who is all in all in us. Tumi vina kalena nahi hela radha raman [?] Wholesale I belong to Him. He's all in all in me. And I can't see Him. I'm forcibly separated from Him. How can I tolerate?"

So many persons in this ordinary world frustrated in love, so many persons committing suicide, becoming mad, can't tolerate pain. But the pain which is the outcome of the separation of Kṛṣṇa, as represented by Mahāprabhu to certain extent to us, that is compared with lava. But, not injurious like lava.

bahye viṣajvāla haya, bhitare ānandamāya, kṛṣṇa premara adbhuta carite

["The wonderful characteristic of divine love of Kṛṣṇa is that although externally, it works like fiery lava, internally it is like sweet nectar that fills the heart with the greatest joy."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.50]

Externally it works like a poison, but internally it saves the life, makes the life full of joy. Kṛṣṇa premara adbhuta carite. Such is the peculiar characteristic of the divine love of Kṛṣṇa. Suffering.
In English poetry, "Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest things."

["Our sincerest laughter with some pain is fraught;
Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought."]
(The English Romantic poet, Percy Bysshe Shelley, 1792-1822)

Sītā Devī, Rāmacandra _____ [?] So cruel the action that when we go to read that we can't but shed tears profusely. Still, so painful, still we cannot leave reading. We're shedding tears like anything, but still we cannot leave the reading, we go on reading. And so there's a particular form of joy there within that pain. Apparently there's pain, tears falling, but within there's some sort of happiness, we can't leave it. So this is ordinary in us. And what about Kṛṣṇa viraha? It's very painful but we can't leave it. Can't leave it. Within we feel a sort of ecstasy. It is of such type.

...Everything is harmonised. Absolute Good. No thieving, no cheating purpose is there.

If the young boy won't take medicine, but in any way if you seduce him, and help him to devour the medicine, apparently you're doing, you're treating cruelly. But it's for his welfare, so with far sightedness that is not cruelty.

In this way. Absolute Good. And it's all, it's only a drama, like a play, līlā, without causing any harm to anybody, a līlā. Movement is going, showing different formalities, but all meant for drama like thing, not causing any harm to anybody. That is līlā. Rather, distributing pleasure to all.

In a drama one is robbing, another is being robbed, and the audience is enjoying. And both parties, who is being robbed, who is being murdered, or being beaten, and one who is beating in the drama - both parties may be satisfied if their playing tactics are good. If the play is practised in an admirable way, both the parties they're satisfied.

I heard in the beginning when I came, in Benares, Prabhupāda in his talk with another, a Śaṅkarite scholar, he's saying, "Singha prasena _____ singha jambavat avatar." [?] This expression. The lion has murdered Prasena, and took the gem. Prabhupāda was saying that singha he's also satisfied, and who is murdered, Prasena, he's also satisfied. Both the parties, who is murdered and who is murdering, both parties are satisfied. Because there's no real death, no real pain, it's only a līlā, a drama show.

In a drama the aggrieved party may be pleased more, if his play satisfies the audience most accurately. The defeated party, if he can play the defeat in a very charming way, then he's praised. And the victorious party they may be abused, 'That your part has not been played well.' Ha, ha. So it's a drama, harmless thing, it's only giving pleasure. We're to take in that way.

Union in separation. In separation also, the painful separation, there is also undercurrent joy. It is like that. "Sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest things."

["Our sincerest laughter with some pain is fraught;
Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought."]
(The English Romantic poet, Percy Bysshe Shelley, 1792-1822)

In that plane everything is joy. Here, the joy is also painful in the background. Next moment the reaction will come, and it's always in the background, that I'm defeating him but I have apprehension he'll defeat me. So pure joy is not possible here in this plane, the reaction is in the background. And there, just the opposite.

So difference is there, different layers, different interests. Vātsalya rasa, mādhurya rasa, anti.

Yaśodā thinks, 'My Gopāla has been, is more affectionate to these gopī girls.'

And gopī girls they will think, 'Kṛṣṇa is not allowed, always under the inspection of strict eye of Yaśodā, He's not allowed to mix freely with us.'

This mādhurya rasa and vātsalya rasa they're anomic, or enemy to one another. The rasa is such, it is there, and both is necessary to enhance. And in mādhurya rasa also the opposition party is necessary, the Candrāvalī group, the Rādhārāṇī group. In vātsalya, everywhere, such things are. Still, it is all good.

As I told you, the chilli, the bitter, so many things, but if it's made of sugar, really it's all sweet, but showing the form of different type. Something like that.

acintyāḥ khalu ye bhāvā na tāṁs tarkeṇa yojayet [prakṛtibhyaḥ paraṁ yacca tad-acintyasya lakṣam]

["That which is inconceivable can never be understood through the logic and reason of the mind. The very symptom that something is inconceivable is that it is beyond logical comprehension."]

[Skanda-Purāṇa] & [Mahābharata, Bhiṣma Parva, 5.22]

Those that are beyond our reason, don't try to take that within your level, within, cannot be. That transcendental unique characteristic is maintained, that is master, we're servant. The rasa which we shall experience that is masterly, and we're servant like. Not that is object I am subject, it is not that. So this sort of conception always we keep in mind while there.

"He's Master. As He likes He may deal with me in that way. I'm a tiny chap as a play doll in His hand. The waves around all master, may play with me like a child. They're subjective, super subjective. There I am. They're all masterly characteristic. I am there. So I can only feel as they want me to feel it. The key is in their hand."

Ha, ha. In my childhood, generally I did not mix with the boys of equal age. My attachment was to keep company with the superiors.

There my mother was chastising me. "Why do you go and mix with them? Wherever they go you go with them."

But my mother's elder sister she was there. For three years I was with her in childhood in the age of six, seven, eight. And she had no child, she had much affection with me. And she told my mother, "This is a good qualification of your child. Why you are putting objection to that? He's not keeping company with his equal aged boys but superiors. He's keeping company of those, are they blameable, or you appreciate their character?"

"Yes, yes, they're good persons."

"Then your boy is keeping company with the higher levelled person, he's running, following them, and you are chastising. Eh? By that company he's always learning something. They're sober and educated, grown up, more experienced, and your boy naturally is following them so he's imbibing better education from them, than keep company with his equal aged boys."

Then my mother was satisfied.

So to keep company with the higher society, always we may be benefited. So all Guru. I'm servant. All Guru, all superior. I'm the servant. Here, just the opposite. 'I want to be master and everything must serve me, my whim. I'm satisfied if everything is under me.' This is here, and there just the opposite.

We shall try to understand the position. I'm the servant. All masters around. And not formally, but substantially it's so. Then, what will be my position? The further progress, progress, progress, new, newer light, new, new taste will come. And as much as I shall render faithful service, they'll be more satisfied and new things will come in me. Nava-yuvayana. Prati-padaṁ pūrṇāmṛtāsvādanaṁ [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 1] Every step new light and new taste coming to me, perplexing my position. "What is this? I'm perplexed every second by that new taste, new wave, all these things."

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: Guru Mahārāja. In Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's writing, he's describing dāsya rasa, he's given some of the characteristics of dāsya rasa, and some seem to be contradictory. Such as...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, go on.

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: In one place he describes that if the devotee in dāsya rasa has great humility...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hmm. Humility.

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: Yes. And then in another place he describes that the devotee in dāsya rasa exhibits pride.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Pride? Dāsya rasa?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: In the Caitanya-śikṣāmṛtam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Dāsya rasa there is pride?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: He describes that, yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where? How? What circumstance?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: He's describing the characteristics of a personality in dāsya rasa, and in several paragraphs he lists these characteristics. In one paragraph he's listing humility, and in the next one he's listing pride.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Listing pride, or listing humility.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Have you got the original?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: I have but I...

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: Listing pride, one chapter listing pride...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Pride and humility.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: To reference, it is difficult to explain without the reference to the context, where? That may be dealt in this way, that humility as Dāsa Goswāmī and the upper class devotees say that,

sakhyāya te mama namo 'stu namo 'stu nityam / dāsyāya te mama raso 'stu raso 'stu satyam

[Śrīla Raghunātha Dāsa Goswāmī, the greatest exponent of the faith of servitude to Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī, Rādhā-dāsyam, wrote: "I won't allow myself to become fascinated by the proposal of the higher level service as a friend, sākhya. Rather, I shall tend always to do the lower service, dāsya, the service of the servant. I shall not consider myself to be a high-class servitor and I shall always tend to go towards the lower class of service. But He may forcibly take me to a higher service - "No, you are no longer to serve there; now you must serve in this higher category."] [Vilāpa-kusamāñjali, 16]

"I aspire after dāsya rasa, and I give respect to the sākhya rasa." This will be general tendency of the servitors. "I cannot - though from the higher there is some endeavour to take me up into the sākhya rasa, but the man of sākhya rasa he'll think that I'm not so high to serve Him in confidential service. It is better for me to go down and to serve from the dāsya rasa." That is the general tenor of the devotees.

Even Rādhārāṇī Herself says that, "My tendency is always to serve Him. But because His tendency is to enjoy Me I have no other alternative but to surrender Myself to Him. But My tendency is always to serve Him."

That is the general tenor of the whole servitor classes. Now you say a new thing, that in the dāsya rasa there is pride, and in other rasa there is less pride. That also may be explained - I do not know the context, but it may be understood in this way. Because that is higher, dāsya rasa is lower, and friendly, and vātsalya, mādhurya, they're higher, so more submissiveness must be present there. The quality, that is taking them up, because that is the land - the progress depends on the submission, surrender. So surrender must be of more intense character in the higher rasa. So taṭa-stha, that is from outside examination, it may be said - more surrender, less humility. And less surrender, some pride, that is less humility. In that way we may come to explain this. So from both sides in this way we can have conception of the fact. Do you follow?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: Yes, yes. Also it was explaining, Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura was explaining that one of the characteristics is great enthusiasm and strength. In dāsya rasa he was explaining that one characteristic was enthusiasm and strength. And then in another paragraph he said disease, that this was a characteristic.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is the disease?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: In dāsya rasa one of the common characteristics was that the personality was, had disease, was diseased.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I can't follow.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vyādhi. What is not present in other rasa? Vyādhi?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes, vyādhi. That is also in other rasa or not?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: I don't know other rasa, but he's describing dāsya rasa specifically there.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vyādhi, why the question of disease comes here?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: I can't follow.

Devotees: Where does the question of disease come from? Why does he say disease?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Find the...

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: He's giving characteristics of the devotee in dāsya rasa, specific characteristics. And in one paragraph he describes enthusiasm and strength, very strong, enthusiastic in dāsya rasa. And in another paragraph he says disease, that he's commonly afflicted with disease.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Disease, that is unfitness in his body, disease?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: I think - he doesn't explain, but that's what it says.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Disease.

Śrīla Govinda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But it may be conjectured in this way, that sometimes the servitors in dāsya rasa they may think, may be some consciousness of their own capacity. 'That I'm not fit now to serve.' And in the higher rasa self forgetfulness is in more intensity, so they do not discover any time any unfitness in their body or mind. It may be in that light. But with reference to the context it can be understood properly, that it may be in that line. 'I'm unfit, I'm under pollution, I've not taken a bath, not pure.' In this sort of - but in the higher rasa self forgetfulness is so intense that in their mind such sort of trouble never comes up. It may be like that. In that line it may be explained. But I want to see the position, the context, and then I can say correctly, try to say, what is his conception there.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

And Hanumān collected those blue lotus and went to Dvārakā to present Kṛṣṇa. And when Hanumān is passing through districts, sometimes through the air, on the path of the earth, "Jaya Rāma! Jaya Rāma! Jaya Rāma!" is always coming from his mouth.

And when Kṛṣṇa was in Dvārakā He heard Hanumān is approaching. He asked one of the queens, Satyabhāmā, "You just take a figure of Sītā." _____ [?] Then asked Rukmiṇī to take the figure of Sītā. And He Himself took the figure of Rāmacandra.

Then when Hanumān entered he found that Sudarśana is watching on the gate, and he wanted to enter in, Sudarśana opposed. He put his finger within the Sudarśana and suddenly he made his finger fatter and Sudarśana like a ring was on the hand of Hanumān. And Garuḍa in the armpit. And Hanumān entered, "Jaya Rāma! Jaya Rāma!" And Kṛṣṇa became Rāmacandra, and Rukmiṇī, Sītā. Then Hanumān worshipped with those hundred and eight blue lotus Rāmacandra.

Then Kṛṣṇa asked, "What is under your armpit?"

"One bird he wanted to disturb me."

"Oh! He's Garuḍa. Give him up, give him up." Then Garuḍa was let loose.

"What is on your finger?"

"That is one wheel that was opposing me entering here. I shall come to You and he's causing obstruction, so I put him on the finger."

"Oh! He's Sudarśana. Release him, release him."

The Sudarśana and Garuḍa and Satyabhāmā, we're told these three had some pride.

And to check their pride this was design of Kṛṣṇa. "That by Hanumān I shall defeat all three."

Satyabhāmā, she could not take the figure of Sītā, so she was insulted. And the Sudarśana and Garuḍa they thought they're the greatest hero of the time. That was also checked by this līlā of Kṛṣṇa.

So Hanumān, always he wants to see Rāmacandra. He does not like any other figure of Nārāyaṇa so much. Exclusively fond of Rāmacandra. So Hanumān is worshipped. Devotees are worshipped.

[na me 'bhaktaś catur-vedī, mad-bhaktaḥ śva-pacaḥ priyaḥ]

["Even though a person is a very learned scholar of the Sanskrit Vedic literatures, he is not accepted as My devotee unless he is pure in devotional service. However, even though a person is born in a family of dog-eaters, he is very dear to Me if he is a pure devotee who has no motive to enjoy fruitive activity or mental speculation. Indeed, all respect should be given to him, and whatever he offers should be accepted. Such devotees are as worshippable as I am."] [Hari-bhakti-vilāsa, 10.127]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.15.2, purport] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 3.59]

Nārāyaṇa says, "As I am worshippable, My devotees are also so."

Because when the iron is surcharged with fire it can burn, it gets the function of fire. Anything coming in connection with fire imbibes the nature of the fire. So devotees, advanced devotees, when they come nearer to the worshipping area, they also earn the position to be worshipped. Through their worship we can march forward more steadily, effectively, than to approach Nārāyaṇa direct. Bhakta sevā, and they must be genuine devotees. Mad bhakte puja ma hoite para [?]
Mad-bhakta-pūjābhyadhikā [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.19.21] "If you love Me, love My dog."

So when our devotion towards the Supreme Entity is of real spirit, genuine, then we cannot but feel to revere the devotees, advanced devotees. That is a sign whether I've got pure devotion to Nārāyaṇa. This is a symptom, a criterion, that if I can love His devotee properly, and not jealous of devotees, but we love, we revere, we worship devotees, then we're really devotee of Nārāyaṇa.

And if there's any jealousy, "That I want direct connection with Nārāyaṇa. Why these people will come to interfere in the middle?" Then the devotion is not pure, the devotion is adulterated. Devotion can only be pure, the test is this that he can sincerely love another devotee. Then he's a genuine devotee, bona fide. Otherwise there's some defect in his devotion, he has some jealousy for the devotees, that devotee is not pure devotee.

...

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. When we were in ISKCON there was a practice to distribute japa mālā beads before initiation. But I don't think that is...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That was special arrangement with Swāmī Mahārāja, he introduced. But we're not accustomed with that. For his huge campaign he had to make arrangement for many new methods. For distribution or that sale of prasāda, and the extensive distribution of japa mālā. And selling and presenting books, and also thereby to get some money from them. We're told, whether it was in his time or not, to do some business with even objectionable things and to collect funds for the mission. So many things we see in his mission, that it was not in previous time.

Asraddha-dhano-nama [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 17.69-75?] It is one of the ten offences is this, to distribute the Name to whom has got no faith, no śraddhā, to give this. And śraddhā there is definition that when one has attained such stage of consciousness, if I do service, my duty to Kṛṣṇa, everything is done. If one has come to that standard of understanding he may be given this Hari Nāma. Asraddha-dhano-nama-dhan. One of the ten offences. And,

kabhu nā vādhibe tomāra viṣaya-taraṅga, punarapi ei ṭhāñi pābe mora saṅga]

["Instruct whoever you meet in the science of Kṛṣṇa. Teach them the instructions of Kṛṣṇa in Bhagavad-gītā, and the teachings about Kṛṣṇa in Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. In this way, on My order, become a guru and liberate everyone in the land. If you follow this instruction, the waves of materialism within this world will not affect you. Indeed, if you follow My order, you will soon attain My association."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 7.128-9]

We can approach anybody and everybody with the topics of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. "Kṛṣṇa is such, you try to have faith in this. Come and join us." All these things are allowed, but to give them, that person must have a standard of śraddhā, faith.

Devotee: We hear that Viracandra Prabhu, He delivered something like two thousand mlecchas.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! Buddhists. Naranedi [?] The bald, the shaved headed persons. It is a rumour coming down that shaved headed persons and ladies, about two thousand He gave Name. He converted, He gave entrance into the camp. He did so, so very, very generous He was. And it is told that Viracandra He was Viṣṇu Avatāra. Nityānanda's son, He was incarnation. And so He had the special power to convert them by His own force, by giving His own, transferring His own power and capacity to them. A special position He had, He could do. Nityānanda Prabhu could do, could convert Jagāi, Mādhāi, but He's not for all, not for general.

Swāmī Mahārāja did, he had some special power, inspiration he got. I say he's śaktyāveśa, some sort of divine potency came down in him, and under that guidance he worked. Such extensive work he has shown in the world with his miracle. So he could do many things, inspired by some higher potency.

But in ordinary cases we should accept our guidance from the scripture _____ [?]

Devotee: But in our case we should wait until initiation to give the japa mālā?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Before japa mālā we must be confident that he has got palpable faith in him. Sincerely he'll try to go towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness. "Kṛṣṇa is all, He's our only Master. We're His slave." Such conception one must have to certain extent. Ke?

Devotee: Āśrama Mahārāja and Adhokṣaja prabhu. Mahārāja, it's also said,

sampradāya vihīnā ye mantrās te niṣiphalā matāḥ
[ataḥ kalau bhaviṣyanti catvāraḥ sampradāyinaḥ
śrī-brahma-rudra-sanakā vaiṣṇavāḥ kṣiti-pāvanāḥ
catvāras te kalau bhāvyā hy utkale puruṣottamāt]

["If someone receives a mantra from a guru who doesn't come in a bona fide sampradāya that mantra will have no potency and will be fruitless. Hence in the age of Kali there will arise four founders of sampradāyas, namely Śrī, Brahmā, Rudra and Sanaka. These four Vaiṣṇavas are the sanctifiers of the earth. Their four respective sampradāyas will arise from the Supreme Personality of Godhead in Utkal (Orissa)."]

[Padma Purāṇa]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. That is, what is not coming down, sampradāya, association, ha, ha, association of particular. You see, here was one Mr. Gandhi, you might have heard his name.

Devotees: Yes. Ha, ha.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He introduced khada, that is instead of foreign cloth, milled cloth, to remove the poverty of the general public, the people, he recommended very strongly that cherka. Every family, just as the meal, they're not expected to eat in the hotel, but families they must have cooking, preparing food and taking. So cloth also should be distributed in that way. Food and cloth, they must be self supportive in the village. So he introduced this cherka in which the ordinary man and woman can produce thread, and also can produce cloth. Labour for the ordinary persons in the villages, otherwise poverty won't go. So many mills they have taken away their vocation, and now the people are suffering, so he introduced this khada. "Rough cloth produced by the poor villagers, and we must purchase that." He introduced.

Then it so happened that from Japan specially, and other mill owners, they also produced such rough cloth, and began to capture the market in the name of khada.

Then that gentleman had to create one Association, the Khadi Pratisthan. "If you buy khada here and there the Japanese imitation khada will come to take the money to the foreign countries. But if you really want to help the poor you must have to purchase in this particular society, then the money will go to the parts of the poor, the Association."

Do you follow?

Devotees: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So the association, the revealed truth is coming down. Anyone from outside may come and tamper, and modify, but if it's in a particular association, faithful lineage, then outer influence won't be able to penetrate within. So sampradāya is necessary. They'll carefully protect that other ulterior undesirable things may not enter into the sampradāya in the name of religion. They will take care. "I have got from my Guru these formalities, this form, these advices." All these things he'll keep in with much care. In this way by this sort of descent the truth that comes from above that may be kept safe, that may not be tampered from outward forces.

For that purpose sampradāya vihīnā ye, no sampradāya, no succession, but faithful succession to - every company also. The Sunlight Soap - may be imitation, so anything to keep the purity of the starting capital, starting thing, association is necessary. They will take care that outward contamination may not impure the thing. So it is told that sampradāya vihīnā ye mantrās te niṣiphalā matāḥ. Which is not kept in the careful descent of the sincere persons, there might have entered many outward things that are not workable, polluted.

Especially the homoeopathic globules, medicine, how we can know that this is nax, this is that? Only come from reliable shop and reliable manufacturer, then it's easy for us. "Purchase medicine from that company, you'll get the desired result. Otherwise we cannot give any guarantee. There may be much imitation."

So this is necessary that the faithful connection from the beginning there must be. Otherwise no guarantee. The tampering may come and disturb the very purpose. Ke?

Devotees: _____ [?]

Devotee: Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja. So generally we take it that someone must be initiated by a genuine Guru, or Spiritual Master, otherwise mantrās te niṣiphalā matāḥ, there's no result. But we see in the life of Śrīla Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura he did not get initiated until very later in his life. But still, he wrote so many very high literatures.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: There are exceptional cases. Those that have realisation in his previous life.

tatra taṁ buddhi-saṁyogaṁ, labhate paurva-dehikam yatate ca tato bhūyaḥ, [saṁsiddhau kuru-nandana]

["O son of Kuru, within one of the births I have just described to you, that unsuccessful yogī revives, from the practices of his previous life, his intelligence centred in the worship of the Supersoul. Thereafter, with renewed vigour, he again endeavours for the perfection of seeing Him."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 6.43]

So there are persons that are rarely found who have their previous spiritual life. And in time they take some initiation Guru, otherwise also they're agent appointed by the Supreme. His previously acquired knowledge or conception. As Kṛṣṇa also took initiation from Guru, but it was not necessary, but formerly to show the fashion it was done.

His Divine Grace Śrīla Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...his lecture stopped, and he became dumb, no reply. He's going everywhere He is, everywhere. Only we want to have a real eye to see Him. Everywhere He is. There's no place where He's not present, as I told. Is there any place where He's absent? _____ [?]

Still some analogy also given.

Just as the ether is present everywhere, and everything is within it. But still, that thing is not ether, ether is not that thing. Earth and suppose air, everywhere there is air, there is heat, but everything is not fire. Distinction and non distinction of everything. Mahāprabhu said acintya bhedābheda, something common, something different. Distinction and non distinction, with one, with another, this is the general characteristic. Ke?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Teresa from Portugal.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh, a lady? I took her as a man, boy. Such is the condition of my eyes. Ha, ha, ha. And still I'm living. With this also I'm living, I'm seeing, I'm talking, and I'm giving answers to your questions. What sort of man am I?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Divine.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: With so much defect. Ha, ha, ha. So I can't understand a word of that.

Badrinārāyaṇa: You are seeing only ātmā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Only ātmā you are seeing.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mania. I'm living with mania, particular. Search of Gaurāṅga, Kṛṣṇa, Gaura, Kṛṣṇa. That mania has swallowed me.

When I was to die a few months ago I asked Nimāi, where should I go away leaving this body? What do you think?

"You will be perfect there where you are you will be in these gradual - you are talking, you dealing are in thought, as you are dealing now you'll be there." He told.

And Govinda Mahārāja gave some _____ [?] The direct connection with Him is not possible, so Bhaktisiddhānta, our Guru Mahārāja, he told, "Think that you are one step lower. Your Gurus, they're in direct connection with Him, and you, just below the step, and carrying out his order. Don't try to have direct connection with Him."

That was a great help to me. Yes. Our Guru Mahārāja told like that. That is a peaceful position. Otherwise always searching, very fearfully searching but not finding, not satisfied, it's not possible, so that is troublesome. The second step, that is rather peaceful. Go on serving according to his order, thinking that I'm not in direct connection but my Guru is in direct connection. According to his advice I'm going - he's there. That is some peaceful attitude _____ [?] In comparison with the huge infinite, and all the friends departed. They retired under this creed. Bon Mahārāja, Kṛṣṇa Dāsa Bābājī, Yājāvara Mahārāja, Paramahaṁsa Mahārāja.

Very fearfully Nimāi told in that way. And Govinda Mahārāja told in another way. I was pacified, yes, that is the safe position, and it is also given out both by śāstra and sādhu. That take that position, not trying to have any direct connection with Him - little indirectly. Ke?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Goswāmī Mahārāja.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī Mahārāja: Akṣayānanda Mahārāja he'll be coming soon.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Are you thinking about Him?

Goswāmī Mahārāja: Him?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Searching after Him. Kuntī Devī wanted unfavourable circumstances materially, considering that is favourable for His relationship.

vipadaḥ santu [tāḥ śaśvat, tatra tatra jagad-guro
bhavato darśanam yat syād, apunar bhava-darśanam]

["I wish that all those calamities (poisoning, arson, cannibalism, the vicious assembly, exile in the forest, the battle), would occur again and again so that we could have Your darśana again and again, for seeing You means that we will no longer see repeated births and deaths."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.8.25]

Her calculation, she invited danger in life, so that when we're helpless, disappointed, from every difficult direction, naturally our search will go towards Him for solution, under the pressure. Self forgetfulness, surrender, to such circumstances that may be favourable for my spiritual life, to surrender to that circumstance. Anyhow, na vinaśyati [Bhagavad-gītā, 8.20], once coming in connection with Kṛṣṇa, never, no destruction can come. Tatrapi sarva sambandha [?] Any connection, slight connection, that will save you, definitely - question of time. Na vinaśyati, because whatever little connection we get with Him, that is invulnerable to the extreme, nothing can oppose, or crush, destroy that - such quality. Even Vaikuṇṭha connection, Brahman, Paramātmā connection, or similar things also cannot cope with it. It is of such arrangement, such quantity. None can stand fighting against Him. Though very little connection but its nature is such. Ultimately that will conquer the whole area. Others will have to retire, can't stand any competition.

māṁ hi pārtha vyapāśritya, ye 'pi syuḥ pāpa-yonayaḥ

["O son of Pṛthā, low-born persons of degraded lineage, women, merchants, or labourers - they also attain the supreme destination by taking full refuge in Me."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.32]

If any connection with some mal deed, that also - others will be all finished by reaction - but there cannot be any reaction from coming in His connection, no trace.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Nārada Muni _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where do you come from?

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...he lived on the banks of the Ganges, about forty years back. One day he approached me and told, "I have seen Kṛṣṇa."

I told him, Kṛṣṇa is not very cheap thing. Don't say to me, go to some other.

"No, no. I have seen Him. Not only I've seen myself, but I've shown Him to many others here."

His mad talk continued here. I told, we've got some study about what is Kṛṣṇa, how to see, what is the signs, all these, we have cultured something. So not like ordinary man, I have seen Kṛṣṇa and I shall follow you to go and see Kṛṣṇa.

"Yes, I showed so many."

You might have seen some monkeys. So Kṛṣṇa is not a thing that will come here, this eye, this physical eye. Then that gentleman went away. Again, why you are deceiving yourself? You know how is Kṛṣṇa and who can see Him. And after seeing Him what will be the condition? Some general knowledge, you know that how you are troubled by this lust, the anger, the greed, so many things within you. And you say you're a brāhmaṇa's son in a human birth. And you're wasting, deceiving others and yourself. Don't deceive you.

That created some impression in him that day. Then after some days he left everything, that female dress, and cut off his hair, and came. "Yes. What you have said it is true. I'm still a slave of my senses. How can I get the truth? You give me dīkṣā."

But Śrauti Mahārāja was present that day, he stopped me. "Don't. He's a hypocrite. Today he's come to you, again another day he'll go after some other clan. Don't give him" So I avoided him.

So Kṛṣṇa is not so easily to be seen and to be attained, not to be got within the fist.

He's everywhere, He's nowhere. Everything in Him, nothing in Him. He's such.

"I'm everywhere, I'm nowhere. Everything in Me, and nothing in Me. At the same time."

Search for Kṛṣṇa, with this background.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: To maintain ones position, the current is always passing. Within the current to maintain ones position, that also requires some force. But there is also dynamic character, though apparently static. But no progress is progress, ha, ha, specially in relation with the infinite. To maintain ones position in unfavourable circumstance, that is not very easy. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Vipralambha, rather that is more powerful. Vipralambha, the painful harmony, that I'm not having any place in the harmony. A very peculiar thing. The greatest necessity for Him is He. To fulfil the highest necessity, to come to Him, that is to get Him. This is a very peculiar thing.

Once I delivered a lecture in a Madras meeting where the scholars of the Madhva School, they made arrangement for Madhvācārya's birthday or so. They made me president. And Nagaraja Sharma, a professor of the Madhva School, delivered lectures. In the beginning I gave some preliminary lecture, there I mentioned about Mahāprabhu.

tṛṇād api sunīcena, [taror api sahiṣṇunā / amāninā mānadena,] kīrtanīyaḥ sadā hariḥ

["One who is humbler than a blade of grass, more forbearing than a tree, who gives due honour to others without desiring it for himself is qualified to always chant the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa."] [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 3]

A slight touch in his lecture I traced, that to think ones own self to be so mean as the blade of grass and sahiṣṇunā, what may be the achievement there? To think ones own self to be very low, very mean, how can that be the means to attain the higher thing? A slight remark.

Then again in the conclusion, presidential address, I got the chance of mentioning. Who can see himself mean - who is in the relativity of the big. So only the jīva, soul, can think himself very lowest of the lowest when he's having the conception of the great infinite. As much as he'll have some conception of the infinite, cannot but think in comparison, meanest of the mean. So here, realisation is measured by this way, what he'll see. And who can think himself big, he's thinking big, in relativity with the small, he's big and other things are small, he's finished. So when he's living in the infinite, smallest of the small, meanest of the mean, he cannot but think of the real criterion of our improvement towards infinite consciousness. Ke?

Devotee: Viśvānanda.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vipralambha. As much as connection we get of Him, so much our hankering must be intensified. So good, so good, so beautiful, so capturing, so charming, that will be the sign. And in a negative side - 'I have got Him.' Ha, ha. That will be like dream, not normal, abnormal, if you think.

ye kāle vā svapane, dekhinu vaṁśī-vadane, sei kāle āilā dui vairi
['ānanda' āra 'madana', hari' nila mora mana, dekhite nā pāinu netra bhari']

[punaḥ yadi kona kṣaṇa, karāya kṛṣṇa daraśana, tabe sei ghaṭī-kṣaṇa-pala
diyā mālya-candana, nānā ratna-ābharaṇa, alaṅkṛta karimu sakala]

["Whenever I had the chance to see Lord Kṛṣṇa's face and His flute, even in a dream, two enemies would appear before Me. They were pleasure and Cupid, and since they took away My mind, I was not able to see the face of Kṛṣṇa to the full satisfaction of My eyes."] ["If by chance such a moment comes when I can once again see Kṛṣṇa, then I shall worship those seconds, moments and hours with flower garlands and pulp of sandalwood and decorate them with all kinds of jewels and ornaments."]

[Jagannātha-vallabha-nāṭaka, 3.12-13] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.37-38]

When I got Him in dream, not normal position, that seems to be abnormal. He came and He united with me, that is like a dream. The ocean of viraha, separation, it's always unsatisfied. For the time being that wonder is extreme satisfaction. And that may be permanent with that - that others are enjoying Him, and I'm marking it from a distance. This second position, that can be more permanent, and that may be satisfying.

Mahāprabhu when He's giving description that in His samādhi, transcendental condition, He saw that He's in Govardhana, and gopīs and Kṛṣṇa.

"Gopīs are trying to utilise Me for His service, Kṛṣṇa's service, in such a way. And their mood, they're going to be united with Kṛṣṇa and His service. I was seeing with great pleasure _____ [?] Very innermost and purest type of ecstasy I was feeling when I saw that they're maybe one step nearer. Not direct connection with Kṛṣṇa. But connection with gopīs, Kṛṣṇa, will be outsider, onlooker. That can stay something, may come to our view, but one step lower.

And there, the sweet sound of their movement and their ornaments, all these things, how beautiful, I was experiencing. At that time you all took Me to this mundane world by chanting the Name of Kṛṣṇa viraha. By the noise of the sound of Kṛṣṇa, you took My, drew My attention to this plane of affliction. You disappointed Me from that connection, disconnected from that happy connection. In samādhi, as in a dream stage we have got experience, Kṛṣṇa viraha."

So indirect, telescopic system, what is far, far away, only through many differences in between we can have some idea, telescope. Tad dāsa-dāsa-dāsānāṁ dāsatvaṁ dehi me prabho. A peculiar thing, not direct. If I go to see direct I can't see - so far. But only telescopic glass, many set in between, then I can have some idea. Just as the sun, we can see him from a particular distance, but if we want to see him nearer we'll be finished. Approaching towards _____ [?] we'll be finished on the way to see him.

Adjustment is such. Always we'll see from behind the Guru, Vaiṣṇava. Through them we shall have some. So Rādhā dāsya, that is the submission to the greatest seer. Always from behind Her, or in other rasa behind Him, or behind Her, we're supposed to have a sight of Him. That is the strategy.

Yogaḥ karmasu kauśalam [Bhagavad-gītā, 2.50]

Devotees: Skill. Art. Expertise.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In a war the kauśala is used in what term?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Strategy. How to approach.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is the secret of the trade, trade secret, the secret to success. Testing point.

Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. He's everywhere. We can't see Him. How fun it is. Everything in Him, He's everywhere. And we cannot see Him. What is the fun? Really He's the existence of the existence, maintaining all existence, He's at the back of every existence. But that is lost with us.

vraje prasiddhaṁ nava-nīta-cauraṁ, gopāṅganānāṁ ca dukūla-cauram [aneka-jamārjjita-pāpa-cauraṁ, caurāgragaṇyaṁ puruṣaṁ namāmi]

[Who is famous throughout Vraja as the Butter Thief
Who steals the cloths of the cowherd girls
Who steals the sins that a devotee accrues over many lifetimes
I bow to that Lord, the Foremost of Thieves]

[Chaurāgragaṇya-Puruṣāṣṭakam
First of Eight Prayers Glorifying the Best of Thieves
An ancient prayer by an unknown Vaiṣṇava author]
[Radha-Krishna Nectar, compiled by Dasaratha-suta dāsa, p 206]

To steal everything is His habit, ha, ha, stealing, caura. His existence also conceived like a thief. Thief comes, goes, his activity is always undercover, not known, stealthily. Thief's movement is always stealthy. So His nature, His existence is like that. When He comes He comes also like a thief.

One gentleman told, I was a student in Baharampur College, went to hear lecture from some Goswāmī _____ [?] I heard, he told, I remember, "Because He's a thief so we're relieved, we've got some hope."

How? Because we can invite big men, but they may not have time to come. But a thief we try our best to oppose him by erecting walls and barriers and alarms and so many, but still, uninvited, stealthily he comes and finishes his duty. So we're by nature such that there are so many boundary walls that none can enter, God cannot enter. But because He's a thief He enters our heart and captures it. And it's the advantage that He's a thief. Uninvited. We may put thousands of barriers on the way of His coming, but the thief he manages all these difficulties and still comes. Uninvited and finding so many oppositions also the thief comes.

So naturally so many barriers we're accustomed for exploitation, so many barriers there are. Nothing can disturb my exploiting business of different type, so so many barriers are there, then renunciation. But He does not care for all these blockades and He comes and captures my heart. That is our solace that He's a thief. Otherwise we have no hope, we're such. We're in such position that every step there's barrier of saṁskāra, gross and subtle. Superstition, knowledge, conception of separatism, that is guarding us. But only because He's a thief He does not care for all those barriers of any kind and comes to steal my heart.

Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. While preaching, sometimes they ask us, "Have you seen Kṛṣṇa? If you've not seen Kṛṣṇa how can you preach about Him?"

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So, it's very easy to see Kṛṣṇa? Ha, ha. Eh?

Devotee: My stock answer is _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You've seen Kṛṣṇa of your mental doll, giving mental as Kṛṣṇa, there is Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa is not a doll of my concoction, not my eternally forgetful mentality. What is Kṛṣṇa? That is not an easy thing, Kṛṣṇa conception. He's nowhere, He's everywhere, He's nowhere. So we're to take He's nowhere. And because we're searching Him, He's everywhere. The nowhere class also not eliminated. But we're encouraged to think that He's in Guru, Vaiṣṇava. Try to think like that. To me He's nowhere, but to my Guru He's everywhere. We're to hold ourselves in such a subtle _____ [?] And that also always just on the head of my Guru. Guru menasira purna sobha pai sata guṇa [?] When we try to see every step of my Guru then He comes with him. _____ [?] We cannot have any vision direct.

So in Rāmānanda Rāya's talk there he's saying,

ye kāle vā svapane, dekhinu vaṁśī-vadane, sei kāle āilā dui vairi
['ānanda' āra 'madana', hari' nila mora mana, dekhite nā pāinu netra bhari']

[punaḥ yadi kona kṣaṇa, karāya kṛṣṇa daraśana, tabe sei ghaṭī-kṣaṇa-pala
diyā mālya-candana, nānā ratna-ābharaṇa, alaṅkṛta karimu sakala]

["Whenever I had the chance to see Lord Kṛṣṇa's face and His flute, even in a dream, two enemies would appear before Me. They were pleasure and Cupid, and since they took away My mind, I was not able to see the face of Kṛṣṇa to the full satisfaction of My eyes."] ["If by chance such a moment comes when I can once again see Kṛṣṇa, then I shall worship those seconds, moments and hours with flower garlands and pulp of sandalwood and decorate them with all kinds of jewels and ornaments."]

[Jagannātha-vallabha-nāṭaka, 3.12-13] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.37-38]

"When He gave His sight to Me, two enemies came to capture Me. _____ [?] Some sort of ecstatic feeling, and when My heart was captured with some unprecedented pleasure, inestimable pleasure, and they got the upper hand and they disturbed Me having My perception about Him. 'Ānanda' āra 'madana.' Hari' nila mora mana. I was overwhelmed by these two feelings from Me, so I could not have a proper estimation about Him.

If in future I get such chance, then I shall, hari' nila mora mana, dekhite nā pāinu _____ [?] Then when I went to see Him, He's nowhere. But if I get another chance then I shall try to satisfy that time, that the time may not pass like lightening. That time is coming and going like lightening. And that also I was captured by two feelings, and I could not have any proper estimation of Him.

But if second time I get that chance I shall try to satisfy the time, that he may stay for some time. And then I will try to have a conception about Him, if I can fix the time. The time does not stand, it's like lightening, passed."

So Yogamāyā, this relativity, all this external paraphernalia. Raja comes, means it depends on the - for a king to come to some place it depends mostly on his paraphernalia, not so much on him. They will recommend, "Yes, you can go there, it is quite safe." And with dignity he'll be welcomed, reception, all these things. So Yogamāyā, They manage. So we shall rather try to satisfy the paraphernalia. 'He' means He's got a big paraphernalia, high paraphernalia, Yogamāyā.

And He says, "Though I'm independent, still, practically I'm dependent to My devotees. Who has left everything and coming towards Me in Durvāsā's case."

ahaṁ bhakta-parārdhīno, hy asvatantra iva dvija
[sādhubhir grasta-hṛdayo, bhaktair bhakta-jana-priyaḥ]

[The Lord tells Durvāsā: "I am the slave of My devotees; I have no freedom apart from their will. Because they are completely pure and devoted to Me, My heart is controlled by them, and I reside always in their hearts. I am dependent not only on My devotees, but even on the servants of My devotees. Even the servants of My devotees are dear to Me."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 9.4.63]

"As if I'm dependent, I become dependent to My - though I'm independent, I seem to be dependent on the devotees. They have left everything and come to Me. How I can cross them and do anything whimsically?"

So the clever persons, really, who has got some idea of devotion, they'll go more towards the devotee than to Him. Not direct approach. Bhakta-parārdhīno.

And He Himself says, "They can sell, they can take Me to a market and can sell Me."

Mahāprabhu says, about Vāsudeva Datta, "His devotion is so intense that he can sell in the market that Kṛṣṇa. _____ [?] Wherever that Vāsudeva Datta will make marketing about Me, I go there. I'm so indebted and so closely connected with him." So,

[na me 'bhaktaś catur-vedī, mad-bhaktaḥ śva-pacaḥ priyaḥ]
tasmai deyaṁ tato grāhyaṁ, sa ca pūjyo yathā hy aham

["Even though a person is a very learned scholar of the Sanskrit Vedic literatures, he is not accepted as My devotee unless he is pure in devotional service. However, even though a person is born in a family of dog-eaters, he is very dear to Me if he is a pure devotee who has no motive to enjoy fruitive activity or mental speculation. Indeed, all respect should be given to him, and whatever he offers should be accepted. Such devotees are as worshippable as I am."] [Hari-bhakti-vilāsa, 10.127]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.15.2, purport] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 3.59]

kṛṣṇa se tomāra, kṛṣṇa dite pāro, tomāra śakati āche āmi to' kāṅgāla, `kṛṣṇa' `kṛṣṇa' boli', dhāi tava pāche pāche

["Kṛṣṇa is yours, therefore you are able to give Him to others. This is certainly within your power. I am indeed wretched and fallen, simply running after you crying "Kṛṣṇa! Kṛṣṇa!"]

[Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's Ohe! Vaiṣṇava Ṭhākura, 4]

And it's a peculiar thing, he also in his turn, he's also looking after the favour of his own Guru. So telescopic system, and there is reality also. But that does not diminish the value of reality but enhance, that is the peculiarity. So bhakta saṅga. Kṛṣṇa saṅga - to have connection, association with Kṛṣṇa, something abstract, mostly. So the śāstra has given more stress to the association of the devotees. Try to see there in him, in the devotee. That is concrete view, and then śāstra.

sādhu-śastra-kṛpāya [yadi kṛṣṇonmukha haya / sei jīva nistare, māyā tāhāre chāḍaya]

["If the conditioned soul becomes Kṛṣṇa conscious by the mercy of saintly persons who voluntarily preach scriptural injunctions and help him to become Kṛṣṇa conscious, the conditioned soul is liberated from the clutches of māyā, who gives him up."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 20.120]

When there was four Āḷvārs, or three Āḷvārs perhaps, they lived contemporary. Then in a dark night these three met perhaps in some occasion, festival or so, in a temple compound. But they were not known to one another, they heard their name, Āḷvār. Āḷvār means parṣada. Then...

85.05.01.B_85.05.04.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...dark night, and talking with one another. Then they could find they have met their friends by talking in a dark night, though not seeing anyone.

Then one of them told ultimately, "Do you feel the existence of a fourth person here?"

Another said, "Yes, a fourth person is here."

About Whom they're talking, that is the Lord Himself. These three devotees, and one suggested a fourth person, about Whom they're talking, He's also there.

[nāhaṁ vasāmi vaikuṇṭhe, yogināṁ hṛdayeṣu vā] mad bhaktāḥ yatra gāyanti, tatra tiṣṭhāmi nārada

[The Lord Himself says: "O, Nārada, wherever My devotees sing My praises I cannot but be present there."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 4.2.41 & 4.30.35, purports]

They felt in that plane, that line of knowledge, they tried to understand this better. The fourth Person about Whom they're talking, He's present here. And His presence was felt in some other means, way, and that was reality. Just as a scientist in his research laboratory, he can find something what ordinary persons cannot understand. But he's sure in his laboratory, in his machine, this is such, cannot be otherwise. Something like that. And that sort of layer they use in their understanding, there they can feel something. Otherwise all will say, "The devotee can - he finds something in a devotee. They give up everything, all the charm of the world, and go to serve the Guru and the devotee. But ordinary world they ridicule. Oh. They're suffering from mania. And this man was good, but now he's attacked by some mania and running after that thing." That will be there.

ātmārāmāś ca munayo, nirgranthā apy urukrame
kurvanty ahaitukīṁ bhaktim, ittham-bhūta guṇo hariḥ

["Those sages who, being merged in the bliss of the spirit soul, are totally free from the binding knot of mental images - they too engage in the unmotivated service of Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the performer of marvellous deeds. This is but one of the qualities of the Supreme Lord Hari, who charms the entire world."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.7.10]

So especially to establish the reality and dignity of devotion, the _____ [?] those that are very proud of knowledge, they're the greatest enemy. But when anyone of that section goes to devotion gets stability there.

So when Śukadeva, who was, who had his dignified position amongst the jñānīs, that brahma-jñāna, always in connection with conscious mood. He's always living cent percent in the relativity of consciousness, ignoring this world of exploitation. In his eye, no search for any exploitation, but oneness with subjective reality, always subjective reality. He never comes down to see the objective world for exploitation. Always at that level. And when he comes to establish - and that is very similar to some non specified, non differentiated thing, that Brahman - but when he comes to say about personality, about specification, differentiated world, then the jñānīs they gave some attention to his talk.

So Catuḥsana, they're not idolaters, they're not concocting anything. Already have got the broadest idea of the basic fundamental consciousness. And they're going to say about specified things, about the activity, about the relationship with the paraphernalia, then there may be something.

Śukadeva says in that assembly of the higher authorities of different sections of highest realisation.

pariniṣṭhito 'pi nairguṇye, uttamaḥ-śloka-līlayā / gṛhīta-cetā rājarṣe, ākhyānaṁ yad adhītavān,

["O saintly King, I was certainly situated perfectly in transcendence, yet I was still attracted by the delineation of the pastimes of the Lord, who is described by enlightened verses."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.9]

"I'm Śukadeva. You all know that I'm well established in the continued thought of consciousness. And fully eliminated from material representation of plurality. But I was attracted by some cosmos. I was well established in the chaos of non differentiated perception of pure consciousness. But I came, my mind was attracted towards another cosmos. So a cosmos is in the higher association, on the other side, on the higher side of this ordinary general conception of consciousness. And that is not constructed by, or produced by any material things here. There is also earth, there is also air, there is also light, there is also sky, these luminaries, persons living there in that conscious world. In that conscious world also the specification there is in the fullest ecstasy, fullest development, everything. Rather, whatever we find here, everything is in causal position there. And that is very charming, attractive, beautiful, and that captured my heart towards it. So don't think that what I say about Kṛṣṇa līlā it is a part of this mundane world. Don't mistake that. It's something transcendental, supernatural, supra-mental. There is such thing, similar thing, but that is very ecstatic, joyful, and charming. In this way, cid-vilāsa."

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Badrinārāyaṇa: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All right. So here I stop.

...

[08:35 -

Devotee: _____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

17:20 ?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: There was one epic in Sanskrit, written by _____ [?] who was contemporary of Kālidāsa, he has written a verse there.

"What I have written here, that may not be appreciated by the present generation. But still I foster this hope that kāla _____ [?] Time has no end, and _____ [?] and the earth is also immeasurable. So in any time, in any corner of the earth, anyone may come up who will appreciate this epic."

Mahāprabhu has given out the highest thing here. And in any time, in any corner of the world, someone may appreciate.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. And Kavirāja Goswāmī also something told, "I cannot give, but I cannot not give. I should not speak all these things, but I cannot avoid."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Kahibāra kathā nahe [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.83]

[śuddha-prema-sukha-sindhu, pāi tāra eka bindu, sei bindu jagat ḍubāya]
kahibāra yogya naya, tathāpi bāule kaya, kahile vā kebā pātiyāya

["Unalloyed love of Kṛṣṇa is like an ocean of happiness. If someone gets one drop of it, the whole world can drown in that drop. It is not befitting to express such love of Godhead, yet a madman must speak. But even though he speaks, no one believes him."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.49]

Mahāprabhu Himself says, "This is not to be spoken out, tathāpi. Still the mad they cannot check him, go on expressing. Kahile vā kebā. And if it is given out, who is there who will come to put faith in these things? No one will have, no one will trust, no one will have faith, believe such things."

'Oh this is all imagination.' Still, the extraordinary brain...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Tuṅga-vidyā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...you may call him mad, still he'll go on, continuing to say that thing.

Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī. Tuṅga-vidyā is one of the eight friends of Rādhārāṇī. And she's much well versed in music, dancing, etc. Tuṅga-vidyā. And you are her maidservant.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Dāsī. Dāsī means maidservant.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Maidservant, she friend of that Tuṅga-vidyā.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Very wonderful.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: One of the eight bosom friends of Rādhārāṇī. Tuṅga-vidyā.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Very wonderful name.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Tuṅga-vidyā perhaps the Prabodhānanda Sarasvatī in Gaura līlā. He's famous for his sentimental and fervent writing, about Rādhārāṇī, what She has said, He has said.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Mahā bhāgya, most fortunate, you're the most lucky.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Anurādhā says that she's very earnestly serving in different departments. And I ordered her to take care of the cows also.

Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Cleansing the cow house.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: I have seen, when the Vaiṣṇavas take prasāda, after she comes with cloth and cleans. I have seen it yesterday.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. There was one king, Pratāparudra, in Orissa, Jagannātha. On his behalf many requested Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanyadeva, "You please show Yourself once. He's very eager to have a darśana of You."

But Mahāprabhu did not give. But when He found that when Jagannātha is coming out in the chariot, the king, he himself he's brushing, cleansing the way, that attracted Mahāprabhu. "Oh, he sits on the throne, but to Jagannātha he's a sweeper." Now His heart was melted, and a little after that very day embraced that Pratāparudra Mahārāja. A sweeper, mean sevā, which is considered to be very mean service, that is highly appreciated in the higher circle.

So tṛṇād api sunīcena, a soul thinking himself, or herself, so low, who can really think himself very low he's very noble. Only the noble can feel and think themselves to be very low. As one comes in connection with infinite, truly he cannot but see him very small, smallest of the small. So that is the criterion how far one has progressed in his conception about infinite. The proof is that how much he's feeling himself to be the lower and lowest. That is the standard of measuring how much he's made progress towards infinite conception, sambandha jñāna. Who is he in this universe? What degree of real conception he has got about that? One who can think himself very, very low, smallest of the small, then he should be understood by the experts, 'He's a real devotee. He has got real connection with the Lord. So he has become so low, showing himself so mean.'

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Mahārāja Pratāparudra he told,

tava kathāmṛtaṁ tapta-jīvanaṁ, kavibhir īḍitaṁ kalmaṣāpaham
[śravaṇa-maṅgalaṁ śrīmad-ātataṁ, bhuvi gṛṇanti ye bhūridā janāḥ]

["O Kṛṣṇa, the nectar of Your words and the narrations of Your pastimes give life to us, who are always suffering in this material world. This nectar is broadcast all over the world by great souls, and it removes all sinful reactions. It is all-auspicious and filled with spiritual power. Those who spread this message of Godhead are certainly doing the greatest relief work for human society and are the most magnanimous welfare workers."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.31.9]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Unconsciously Mahāprabhu showed, "Who are you that are pouring nectar in My ear?" Mahāprabhu unconsciously embraced him at that time. "You are pronouncing that verse, tava kathāmṛtaṁ. Who are you that's helping me to drink this nectar?" And embraced him, as if unknowingly who is he.

Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī: I have a question. Behind the material form there are many spirits. We can see them and can we communicate also with them? Behind this I see many people, many faces everywhere, and I draw them.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: She says, "Behind the material form there are many spirits. I think I see that behind the material form there are many spirits. So can I communicate with them?"

Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī: Or have any hope?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: "Can I have some hope?" She says.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. They're also getting help.

Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī: I see and I draw.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It depends on their disposition. If they're recipient then from there also they can have help.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Devotee: _____ [?]

Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī: The spirits all fly, also then they're like the sun and the wind and the clouds.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: With what attitude the spirit you come in connection, what attitude they've got?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: She says like the sun and the wind and the moon.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The personality behind the sun, the personality behind wind?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: There are different phases of existence, so that when one comes to siddhi he comes in connection with all those. But without God connection if you indulge yourself in experiencing their association that will be waste of time. Whatever you'll do there must be some interest for satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa and His men. Whatever you do, that must have the interest, the satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa. Otherwise you must not indulge yourself to be charmed by so many different type of visions. There siddhi, yoga siddhi, may take ones own self towards so many phases of the existence of the world. Infinite classes are there.

But our business is with Kṛṣṇa consciousness, eliminating all different conceptions that are found in this material and subterranean, and super material, that is very fine material world. Infinite. There is also Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa, Satyaloka, different planes of conception of the material world. But we're not concerned with that, we're concerned with Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī: So I shall not draw?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Otherwise our lives after lives may be devoted in different aspects of this infinite world, but there'll be no end. No end, search or quest, even of the material - suppose space, or time, whatever you search after, no end. So you must not allow yourself to be misled, misguided, to know about so many things in the creation. It is infinite. You are to withdraw rather from all such tendencies and concentrate yourself only in the service of Kṛṣṇa and His own. So withdraw from the world. Otherwise my spiritual life will be snatched by them and we shall have a birth in those different planes. But Kṛṣṇa is not to be found there in different planes strata of life. Only through the sādhu which is very rarely that connection can be had, sudurllabhā. Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa, Satyaloka. Then Virajā, Brahmaloka, siddhaloka, so many planes of life of subtle experience. But we won't go towards them, eliminating, all elimination. Even eliminating Nārāyaṇa consciousness we shall try to have Kṛṣṇa consciousness only. So many demigods are there, they have got their own sphere, we're to avoid them.

[yadi karibe kṛṣṇa-nāma sādhu-saṅga kara] bhukti-mukti-siddhi-vāñchā dūre parihara

["If you are going to chant the Holy Name, keep the association of the pure devotee and totally abandon all your desires for enjoyment, liberation, yogīc perfections or miracles."] [Prema-vivarta]

All these ultra engagements should be avoided.

anyābhilāṣitā-śūnyaṁ, jñāna-karmādy-anāvṛtam / ānukūlyena-kṛṣṇānu-śīlanaṁ bhaktir uttamā

["One should render transcendental loving service to the Supreme Lord Kṛṣṇa favourably and without desire for material profit or gain through fruitive activities or philosophical speculation. That is called pure devotional service."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, 1.1.11] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.167]

Only concentrate, focus.

When the Pāṇḍavas and Kauravas they were having training from Droṇācārya, then one day to test their education about the weapons, Droṇācārya put a doll of a bird on a branch of the tree. And asked them to pierce the eye of that bird. Then one by one, so many, Yudhiṣṭhira, and Duryodhana, they're all asked, "What do you see? You are to pierce the eye of that bird which is pushed on the branch of that tree. What do you see?"

"Yes, I'm seeing everything."

Yudhiṣṭhira told, "Yes, I'm seeing the bird, whole bird and the tree."

And so many "Oh, we're seeing."

"Oh. Keep your weapons." Then he asked another, "What do you see? It is necessary that you will only pierce the eye of the bird. What do you see?"

"Yes, I'm seeing the bird, the tree."

"Oh. Take off your weapon."

Then Arjuna was asked to pierce the eye, and he was asked, "What do you see?"

"I'm seeing the bird."

"No tree or anything?"

"No, I can't see anything."

"Are you seeing the whole bird?"

"No."

"What do you see?"

"Only the eye of the bird."

"And nothing you are seeing?"

"No, I'm not seeing anything else, but only the eye of the bird I see."

"Yes. You throw the arrow."

So our attention towards Kṛṣṇa will be such, all eliminating. I can't see anything but Kṛṣṇa. And all my energy must be directed towards service of Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa and kāṛṣṇa, His agent. Kṛṣṇa and His agent, I'm seeing them, I can't see anything else. If I see so many things then I'd not be able to hit the mark.

Do you follow?

Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So we shall try as much as possible only to look at Kṛṣṇa and His own, and eliminating all else. Even forgetting sometimes my own body, self forgetfulness to the totality. And not only self forgetfulness, that is the negative side, but Kṛṣṇa remembrance, only looking at Kṛṣṇa and His own. That is the positive side. And self forgetfulness the negative side. All, with everything self forgotten, only Kṛṣṇa consciousness. I even do not feel myself in the service of Kṛṣṇa. That we're to acquire.

Do you understand?

Tuṅga-vidyā dāsī: Yes. But they give me message.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So eliminate all those impressions of past life, or your yoga practice, or this, that. That should be eliminated wholesale, and only Kṛṣṇa consciousness. And that also as represented by Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanyadeva.

Kṛṣṇa is also represented by many. Even the anarchist party they also have reverence for Kṛṣṇa, for Gītā. They get their encouragement from Bhagavad-gītā. 'Life is nothing, death is nothing,' and that is utilised for their anarchism. So that is not Kṛṣṇa consciousness. So many men appreciate the Bhagavad-gītā from different directions.

But as Mahāprabhu has directed us to see Kṛṣṇa we want to see Kṛṣṇa in that type. That type of Kṛṣṇa we want to see. When Kṛṣṇa entered the playground of Kaṁsa where he made some conspiracy to kill Kṛṣṇa, Balarāma, by his appointed hooligans, and Kṛṣṇa entering, different mentality having different estimations about Him.

["O King, Śrī Kṛṣṇa then appeared as a thunderbolt to the wrestlers, as the supreme male to the men, as Cupid incarnate to the ladies, as a friend to the cowherds men; as an emperor to the wicked kings, as a child to His father and mother, as death to Kaṁsa, as the universal form of the world to the ignorant; as the Supreme Truth to the yogīs, as the Supreme Worshipful Lord to the Vṛṣṇis - and along with Baladeva He entered the arena."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.43.17]

In this way. One section looking at Him and feeling something. Some say, "Oh. He's a great wrestler." Some say, "Oh. He's a dreadful thing." The yogīs say, "Oh. We try to have meditation on Him. We're searching about Him and He's that wonderful thing of our meditation." The parents say, "Oh. He's my own child." In this way. And the wrestlers they say, "Oh. He's the God of death approaching towards us." In this way the different sections having different view about Him.

So we want to have a view as Mahāprabhu has given us. As Vṛndāvana, Vraja, His cowherd friends, Nanda, Yaśodā, the gopīs, how they're seeing Him and got, we - our aim is that, the loving, overflowing with love, sweetness. That Kṛṣṇa we're searching after, the object of our search, Kṛṣṇa.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

Today the departure day of Śyāmānanda. He was first initiated into as friend, sākhya rasa, friendly service. But anyhow his fortune was somewhat different.

One day when from Nandagram he's marching towards Kalivan [?] in the early morning chanting the Name of Kṛṣṇa very cheerfully. Suddenly he found that one beautiful girl she's searching for something near the boundary line of the land on the way. Just before that he found one very bright piece of jewellery ornament. He, Śyāmānanda, took that and put into his Hari Nāma choli and going on chanting. Now he found, he cast his eyes back towards that space where he found that jewel, and found a very beautiful girl is searching after something there. Then he went back and approached the girl. "What do you search here?"

"At night when we came to be united with Kṛṣṇa, and going back at that time, our Mistress Rādhārāṇī, some ornament slipped away from Her body. And I'm searching after that."

"Oh. I have got it. Is this it? Does this belong to your Mistress?"

"Yes."

This nipur, the ornament of the ankle, and that was given to her and she disappeared. She put it on his forehead, the girl put that nipur on his brow, forehead, and disappeared suddenly.

Then he had some awakening in the heart from the friend service towards this mādhurya service, the consorthood, suddenly awakened in him. And he approached Jīva Goswāmī, and Jīva Goswāmī gave him dīkṣā...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And Mahāprabhu gave him the charge to look over all the devotees there.

When he went to Rādhā-kuṇḍa found that Dāsa Goswāmī sitting under the shade of a tree, he's taking the Name. And next, about a few yards, a tiger is taking water.

Sanātana Goswāmī approached Raghunātha Dāsa, he suddenly found _____ [?] in his front, fell flat at his feet. "By your order I have come to give some order to you. You please at least build a cottage. Don't stay under the tree. A tiger was taking water here nearby. At least one cottage. This is my request, order to you. I shall send a person to build a cottage for you, and please accept it." So by his order he built the cottage at Rādhā-kuṇḍa. Rādhā-kuṇḍam ihāpi gokula-pateḥ premāmṛtāplāvanāt.

["The holy place known as Mathurā is spiritually superior to Vaikuṇṭha, the transcendental world, because the Lord appeared there. Superior to Mathurā-purī is the transcendental forest of Vṛndāvana because of Kṛṣṇa's rāsa-līlā pastimes. And superior to the forest of Vṛndāvana is Govardhana Hill, for it was raised by the divine hand of Śrī Kṛṣṇa and was the site of His various loving pastimes. And, above all, the super-excellent Śrī Rādhā-kuṇḍa stands supreme, for it is over-flooded with the ambrosial nectarean prema of the Lord of Gokula, Śrī Kṛṣṇa. Where, then, is that intelligent person who is unwilling to serve this divine Rādhā-kuṇḍa, which is situated at the foot of Govardhana Hill?"] [Śrī Upadeśāmṛta, 9]

Rādhā-kuṇḍa, that is very special place for Rādhārāṇī, along with Her friends that special choice there. Other groups do not approach. Candrāvalī has got another place: sakhī-sthalī. That is the place for Candrāvalī's group. And Rādhā-kuṇḍa is for Rādhārāṇī's group.

One day, in his last days, Raghunātha Dāsa Goswāmī used to take one pot of this buttermilk, a small pot constructed by one leaf.

His attendant thought, "He only takes one pot, so if I can have a big leaf, I can prepare a big pot and then he will take some more." With this idea, he searched for that tree with big leaves and found in sakhī-sthalī that there those trees have got big leaves. He took that and with a big leaf prepared a big pot, and filled up with buttermilk he approached Dāsa Goswāmī.

"Oh, where have you found such a big leaf? A big pot you have."

"I found it in sakhī-sthalī."

"Is it?

[Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja perhaps gestured in such a way that encouraged devotees to laugh]

The sentiment may grow to such degree of jealousy. Still, they're the first group of Kṛṣṇa's devotees.

In Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's song, we find, sakhī-sthalī nāhi heri nayane, dekhile śaibyāke paraye mane.

[1) āmi to' svānanda-sukhada-bāsī, rādhikā-mādhaba-caraṇa-dāsī
2) duṅhāra milane ānanda kori, duṅhāra biyoge duḥkhete mari
3) sakhī-sthalī nāhi heri nayane, dekhile śaibyāke paraye mane

1) I am a resident of Svānanda-sukha-kuñja and a maidservant of the lotus feet of Rādhikā and Mādhava.
2) At the union of the Divine Couple I rejoice, and in Their separation I die in anguish.
3) I never look at the place where Candrāvalī and her friends stay. Whenever I see such a place it reminds me of Candrāvalī's gopī friend Śaibyā.
4) I feel pain in my heart when I catch sight of Candrāvalī's girl-friends, for they are opposed to Rādhā.
5) Candrāvalī wants to take away Rādhā's Lord Hari, thus covering the grove of Rādhikā with the darkness of gloom.
6) I never look at the faces of those who are opposed to Śrī Rādhā and Govinda's joyous union.
7) Nor do I find any pleasure in conversing with those who are opposed to Rādhā.
8) Bhaktivinoda has enthusiastically entrusted his soul to the lotus feet of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī.

[Bhakti-pratikūla-bhāva Varjanāṅgīkāra,
Renunciation of conduct averse to pure devotion, song 4.]
[From Śaraṇāgati, The Songs of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, p 32-34]

"We avoid sakhī-sthalī. We don't care to have a look at that, because if we see that Śaibyā - Śaibyā means Candrāvalī's assistant. Just as Lalitā, Viśākhā are Rādhārāṇī's assistants. So Śaibyā, Padma, they're assistants of Candrāvalī, so they're the antagonistic party, they remind her, so we don't, we avoid sakhī- sthalī."

When Prabhupāda continued whole Vraja-maṇḍala parikramā for a month, with thousands, but no camp in the sakhī-sthalī. Even we had camp in Varṣāṇā and Yāvaṭ, not in Nandagram. Ha, ha. Nandagrama is a common place. But we were always on the side of Rādhārāṇī, to show that our camp was established in Varṣāṇā, and the next camp went to Yāvaṭ. And from there we came to visit Nandagrama, the place of Kṛṣṇa. We're always on the side of Rādhārāṇī. Rādhā-Govinda. Without, everything else is intolerable to us.

Dāsa Goswāmī said, bakārināpi. Āśābharair-amṛta-sindhu-mayaiḥ. This last appeal to Rādhārāṇī.

"I want Your favour, at all cost. If You do not favour me I do not want this Vṛndāvana, this, that. Even I do not want Kṛṣṇa Himself, if I do not get Your favour. Without You I do not want any Kṛṣṇa."

Without Rādhārāṇī - that famous śloka, this is Rādhā-dāsya, the highest attainment of the Gauḍīya.

āśābharair-amṛta-sindhu-mayaiḥ kathañcit, kālo mayātigamitaḥ kila sāmprataṁ hi tvaṁ cet kṛpaṁ mayi vidhāsyasi naiva kiṁ me, prānair vrajema ca varoru bakārināpi?

["O Varoru my beautiful, most magnanimous Goddess, my heart is flooded with an ocean of nectarean hopes. I have somehow been passing time until now eagerly longing for Your grace, which is an ocean of ever cherished nectar. If still You do not bestow Your mercy on me then of what use to me are my life, the land of Vraja, or even Śrī Kṛṣṇa who without You, is simply a mighty hero, the destroyer of demoniac forces like Baka."] [Vilāpa-kuṣumāñjali, 102]

"Prānair, even my life, vrajema, this Vraja Dhāma, and bakārināpi, and even that bakāri Kṛṣṇa I don't want. I want You, and then with You I want Govinda."

Rādhā-Govinda, Giridhari, and not Giridhari alone. There is possibility of accommodation of other group, we can't allow that. First we want You, then we want Hari. That is Gauḍīya Vaiṣṇava schools highest sentimental realisation. Gaura Hari bol.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: So Giriraja is above rāsotsavād, govardhanaḥ, ihāpi ?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! From Vṛndāvana, rasa, Govardhana a selected few, and then Rādhā-kuṇḍa is acme, the wholesale. We get Kṛṣṇa whole there. In other places some not wholesale, but prejudiced. Vṛndāvana a common temperament for all the gopīs. But in Govardhana a selected few, qualified, not ordinary, not all, mass. And in Rādhā-kuṇḍa only the special group there.

Gaura Hari. All these things have been heard. We must give all our attention towards _____ [?]
That cannot be acquired - it will come out of itself. Our full aim will be towards the lower part.

sakhyāya te mama namo 'stu namo 'stu nityam / dāsyāya te mama raso 'stu raso 'stu satyam

["I won't allow myself to become fascinated by the proposal of the higher level service as a friend, sākhya. Rather, I shall tend always to do the lower service, dāsya, the service of the servant. I shall not consider myself to be a high-class servitor and I shall always tend to go towards the lower class of service. But He may forcibly take me to a higher service - "No, you are no longer to serve there; now you must serve in this higher category."] [Vilāpa-kusamāñjali, 16]

Our whole attention will be towards service. And Kṛṣṇa's will may take us to the higher standard. We won't be a party to that. Our full attention will be towards the feet. But if He wants to utilise me in any way that is His lookout. That will be the temperament. Tad dāsa-dāsa-dāsānāṁ [dāsatvaṁ dehi me prabho.] Make me servant of the servant of the servant. That will be the real temperament of a real devotee, always going down. But when Kṛṣṇa wills to do anything He may utilise me in any way. That is the temperament.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Badrinārāyaṇa prabhu _____ [?]

[11:00 - 12:33 ?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: He says, "The soul, ātmā, jīvātmā, kesagra śata bhāgasya, how do we explain that, that the soul is so small?

[bālāgra-śata bhāgasya śatadhā kalpitasya ca, bhāgo jīvaḥ sa vijñeyaḥ sa cānantyāya kalpate]

["If we divide the tip of a hair into one hundred parts and then take one part and divide this into another one hundred parts, that ten-thousandth part is the dimension of the living entity."]
[Śvetaśvatara-Upaniṣad, 5.9] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra. 10.8]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It's an analogy. Smallest of the small, smallest particle, smallest unit of the conscious soul, like atom or electron. As atom or electron is considered to be the smallest constituent element, so the soul is the smallest particle of the conscious world. Smallest of the small.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: But that is only an analogy?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! And that analogy is given if one hair breadth - that is the sign of small, hair breadth. And if that breadth that can be hundred times divided into hundred, and again one portion of that into hundred, you may - that is an analogy about the soul affairs. But its nature is sarva vyadhi, all pervading, just light, whatever small, its effulgence is to certain extent. In that sense, acalo 'yaṁ sanātanaḥ, sthāṇur sarva-gataḥ, means that, concentrated in one position but as a spark its halo is such, in that way.

[acchedyo 'yam adāhyo 'yam, akledyo 'śoṣya eva ca nityaḥ sarva-gataḥ sthāṇur, acalo 'yaṁ sanātanaḥ] [avyakto 'yam acintyo 'yam, avikāryo 'yam ucyate tasmād evaṁ viditvainaṁ, nānuśocitum arhasi]

["The soul is indivisible and cannot be burned, moistened, or dried up. He is everlasting, constant, unchangeable, and ever-existent. Nothing can obstruct his passage."] ["This soul is imperceptible, inconceivable, and unaffected by the sixfold mutations (birth, existence, growth, maturity, diminution, and destruction). Therefore, knowing the soul in this way, you can no longer lament."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 2.24-25]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes. So that means the soul is actually much finer than the...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Finer, that is quality is of that kind, like light.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: That is a rough example, rough analogy only.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: As sarva-gataḥ _____ [?] in the sense that has got feeling in the whole of the body. In every part of the body souls _____ [?] that consciousness _____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: In your Gītā, that he can take the body of demigods, humans, _____ [?] all different species, sarva-gataḥ.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sarva-gataḥ.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: All-approaching.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: May be qualified to be posted anywhere and everywhere, as duty. Sometimes Brahmā, sometimes Śiva, sometimes _____ [?] Sarva-gataḥ. And all-pervading, so many there, these particles are innumerable _____ [?] everywhere the particle is present, not one, but similar.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Then a question arises, I was discussing with one friend yesterday, that if every atom, if everything is conscious, in Vedic conception everything is conscious, that means every atom also in the māyā śakti, every atom is also cetan, conscious.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. Yes.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: In the higher conception. Eṣa bhāgavatottamaḥ. Bhagavad bhāvam ātmanaḥ.

[sarva bhūteṣu yaḥ paśyed, bhagavad bhāvam ātmanaḥ bhūtāni bhagavaty ātmany, eṣa bhāgavatottamaḥ]

["A person advanced in devotional service sees within everything the soul of souls, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Śrī Kṛṣṇa. Consequently they always see Kṛṣṇa everywhere and in everything. One who is situated on the topmost platform of devotional service is known as an uttama-bhāgavata."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.2.45]

So every atom in māyā śakti is also jīva.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: So then the danger will come.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Māyā śakti doing service, rendering indirect service to the Lord.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yah. Now somebody will say that jīva has become māyā śakti.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not jīva.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Then what will happen? How to...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Lower than jīva. Jīva is in the rank of śiva, and the potency of śiva is māyā śakti, in general. It is possible only to finite jīva, illusion is possible only with the jīva. Illusion, māyā means illusion. Illusion is possible only with jīva, not above, so under the jīva. False notion, false imagination, that is concerning jīva, not anything higher.

Devotee: Mahārāja. Is the world real or unreal?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. Real, that it is, otherwise just as a disease in a body is real, otherwise why we shall make so much to remove the disease. All the Ācāryas they're trying their utmost to remove māyā, illusion. So Śaṅkarācārya says that illusion is unreal, that is error, that is nothing. But Vaiṣṇava, that is something, otherwise you are trying hard to remove that thing? It is there. _____ [?]

But it is there, it is a particular indirect potency there.

Devotee: It is real but a dream, not concrete substance, but a dream.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: His conception of the truth.

Devotee: As acintya bhedābheda, it is both concrete as well as dream.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Everything comes under that, acintya bhedābheda.

Devotee: So the world is concrete as well as dreamlike, simultaneously?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Dreamlike. Those underlying illusory things seem concrete.

[21:00 - 26:12 ?]

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I'm told that he has purposely avoided.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's his disciple, and also he has published Gītā. And without referring to that and the comparison, all these things, how it can be done so. He has avoided that I was told. When I heard the introduction I found no reference, then I told there's no reference, so I purposefully avoided. So some comparison may come in question. And Akṣayānanda Mahārāja has got some delicate position, he's his disciple. All these things, they told me.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. And so many have been given credit. It's one thing if no one had been given credit, but so many have been given credit.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Who are they? Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, Prabhupāda, all these...

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes, saying this. Without this, and then introduction.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Yes. A few lines would have made a nice introduction.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: See, because Mahārāja, the way it appears - there's an introduction in the book by Govinda Mahārāja, in the Gītā.

Badrinārāyaṇa: There's an introduction in the book by Govinda Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: So his introduction was written in nineteen sixty one, I think. So it's saying in the introduction there are no Gītās available in the devotional school. Do you understand?

Badrinārāyaṇa: At that time.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Right. But this book is being published in nineteen eighty five.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: It just mentions that there are so many Gītās...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Cakravartī Ṭhākura only given in a very remote way, that this knowledge is not ordinary knowledge, jñāna vaisista. Dadāmi buddhi-yogaṁ, jñānī yogena bhāsvatā. That jñāna, after the final stage of devotion then jñāna is, knowledge is being introduced again, jñāna-dīpena bhāsvatā [Gītā, 10.11] How it is possible? Viśvanātha Cakravartī only gave hint, "This knowledge is not ordinary knowledge, it has got its speciality." Only this was mentioned, but what was that, that was not explained.

I have given explanation to that, because his is like jñāna śūnya bhakti, and jñāna is hidden in particular case. Soka moha.

"When they're in separation, extreme pain in separation, at that time I go and show them Myself with clear knowledge."

"Oh! My Son has eaten." When Śacī Devī after cooking very favourite things for Nimāi, then she thought, "Nimāi is sannyāsī. These are very favourite curries I have sent to Him." So she began to shed tears. "Where is my Nimāi? These things are very favourite." Nimāi suddenly appeared and began to eat there.

Aka buli asru bari darinu mayan astre lastre ari jaya korinu vacan [?]

Mahāprabhu says in Purī, "Remind My mother this Dvādaśī day she did such, and I went there immediately and took the prasādam there, from her hand."

Śacī Devī also saw, "Oh! Nimāi _____ [?] that was past. Then, what is that? I had a dream? Nimāi's a sannyāsī. He left home long ago. But what I saw Nimāi is taking food. What is this? Am I mad? Or I've not served anything in the dish? Or any dog or some beast, animal came and left? Or at all I've not served any food here? Have I not cooked?" She going and searching in the dining room. "A little, yes it is there, I have cooked. Then, what I saw?" All these things.

For the time being when they're very madly feeling separation pain, suddenly He appears, shows them, "I am here." Soka moha. For the jñāna, the warning, jñāna-dīpena bhāsvatā, I have explained in that way.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes, wonderful explanation.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Upayānti te, upa and upayānti te. Who have fully attained continuous devotional life, again then I give suggestion towards parakīya. Upayānti te, upa means that, upapati means lover, not wedded husband, lover. So upayānti means this parakīya. That after they achieve the highest acme, even crossing the society, and the śāstric order, they establish a secret relation of the highest connection with the Supreme. There should not be anything between the two. "My Lord and myself, no śāstra, no society should come between us." So that sort of relationship _____ [?]

And I asked Swāmī Mahārāja, "I have interpreted this in such a way."

Swāmī Mahārāja answered, "Yes." Short reply. "What can be the meaning otherwise?"

Because I told him that they have come to the finish of the devotion, again how this is coming.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Very deep realisations.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Ha, ha, ha. Hidden Treasure. Gītā-gūḍhārtha-gauravam, in the vandana Sanskrit.

The very hidden meaning of singing the glory of the very hidden meaning in Gītā. Gūḍhārtha-gauravam. Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes, but only I myself is witness.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: That's enough. Who else can we trust?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But they want to blaspheme me. And you heard the recent flaws against you, Akṣayānanda Mahārāja, and Purī Mahārāja. Suddenly came, that rumour, that they have sent men against
_____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Māre kṛṣṇa rākhe ke, rākhe kṛṣṇa māre ke – [If Kṛṣṇa protects someone, no one can kill him, and if Kṛṣṇa wants to kill someone, no one can save him.]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Badrinārāyaṇa: And all three are here...

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...had consultation with him, and this is approved that this sort of ruling cannot be avoided. That was his opinion. I asked him here. That I have given such interpretation because after the highest trace of bhakti again how jñāna comes here? Jñāna-dīpena bhāsvatā. Who was in the acme of devotional stage, the jñāna-dīpena, the light of jñāna is necessary for them he says, how it is possible?

So Swāmī Mahārāja - Śrīdhara Mahārāja asked him, I have given the way out this way. "Yes."

And another, that upayānti te, after their complete surrendered connection with Kṛṣṇa, then again, dadāmi buddhi-yogaṁ taṁ. "I give them suggestion, upayānti, to come to Me through parakīya rasa."

That also he told, "Without this, what other interpretation can be possible?"

So that is my private talk. You may mention or may not, because they may laugh at you. But some appreciation that this sort of Gītā hidden truth that's coming to the educated public of the civilised world. At the bottom we cannot avoid the gift of Swāmī Mahārāja. Otherwise it was not impossible. He was a man of secluded life and what he thought it was there. _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: The only thing I could add Mahārāja, is that you are a perfect Vaiṣṇava.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] so many pictures are there showing so many people in appreciation of Śrīdhara Mahārāja _____ [?]

The westerners came in connection with Mahāprabhu _____ the divine love mainly through Swāmī Mahārāja. So that is the basis. We shall be thankful, mostly thankful to him. In this way you can adjust.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Nimāi: Something should be mentioned about Swāmī Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mentioned and in a dignified way in one place dedicated to Swāmī Mahārāja something, mainly to compensate. What do you say?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha.

Nimāi: So it can be done now.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: It may be possible.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Nimāi: Please do the finishing into workmanship is all right that none can understand it is added later on.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes. These men who did this book are expert, first class. He did it once in Śrī Guru And His Grace in Malaysia.

Nimāi: _____ [?] Different spheres, galaxies.

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Well this, that's a galaxy. Because it's a science booklet.

Nimāi: _____ [?] Omniscience, name of this pamphlet, booklet, is Omniscience _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Like omniscient.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ultimate _____ [?] of all of us is hopeful, _____ [?], fulfilment, and home comfort. This is assured, we're all right. Svarūpe sabāra haya, golokete sthiti. Self determination, the highest reach ultimately of all of us is there. So this optimistic conclusion is above all. No despair, no disappointment. Whatever threatening from the atomic or neutron bomb, we're distributing this news. And this is inevitable, we distribute to you all, the panic stricken men of the present civilised world. The panic stricken of the present civilised world, "Oh, you come to attend, this is guaranteed, our happy end is guaranteed here." That may be the conclusion. Guaranteed, happy end, fulfilment is guaranteed, ha, ha, and this is such. And the steps are in this way, whatever. Home. Back to God, back to home. None can oppose. Ahaitukī, apratihatā. That fundamental wave underlying, that is, none can oppose. Ahaitukī. That is causeless and none can oppose. Irresistibly we're going towards that goal. So hope, solace, consolation, to the reactionary of the present scientists we're giving. Śṛṇvantu viśve amṛtasya putrāḥ. _____ [?]

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Sons of nectar.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Abhi, abhaya, no fear.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Akuto-bhayam. Harer nāmānukīrtanam. Yoginām̐ nṛpa nirṇītaṁ.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

[etan nirvidyamānānām, icchatām akuto-bhayam yoginām̐ nṛpa nirṇītaṁ, harer nāmānukīrtanam]

["O King, constant chanting of the holy name of the Lord after the ways of the great authorities is the doubtless and fearless way of success for all, including those who are free from all material desires, those who are desirous of all material enjoyment, and also those who are self-satisfied by dint of transcendental knowledge."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.11]

So ultimately abhi, no fear _____ [?] The clarion call _____ [?] No fear. All these threatening, they're temporary, and in the lower stage. And you, your ātmā, you yourself is above that. We have come to give this news to the science stricken people, population, educated population. The consolation to the scientific educated population.

Nimāi: Victims to science.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Victims. Consolation to the abhay vāṇī, the clarion call, or something impressing.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yan-nāma vivaśo gṛṇan. Yad bibheti svayaṁ bhayam.

Nimāi: Āpannaḥ saṁsṛtiṁ ghorāṁ.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Āpannaḥ saṁsṛtiṁ ghorāṁ. This will apply for good. Āpannaḥ saṁsṛtiṁ ghorāṁ. We're very much overwhelmed with the apprehension of destruction.

āpannaḥ saṁsṛtiṁ ghorāṁ, yan-nāma vivaśo gṛṇan
tataḥ sadyo vimucyeta, [yad bibheti svayaṁ bhayam]

["Living beings who are entangled in the complicated meshes of birth and death can be freed immediately by even unconsciously chanting the holy name of Kṛṣṇa, which is feared by fear personified."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.1.14]

Giving the connection, divine sound, by which they can avoid all these things very easily. Immediately they can be above all these threatening things. Only by getting identification of their own proper self, then all is finished. Only try to get your proper identification back, that soul is immortal, it is above all this destructive threatening. Only this point try to catch, and then you're above. And then you've got a life of prospect to march forwards. And this is nothing, a negligible thing - to avoid the threatening of death that is most negligible lower order of proper reading. And your positive life is long, to march towards Goloka, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. And this is, in a negative way that will be, all this dreadfulness will be avoided, in a negative, negligent way.

āpannaḥ saṁsṛtiṁ ghorāṁ, yan-nāma vivaśo gṛṇan
tataḥ sadyo vimucyeta, yad bibheti svayaṁ bhayam

That can give the corresponding threatening to these threatening of the material world. Svayaṁ bhayam. The dread of this scientific conquest that will be benumbed. That will get fear, frightened, the threatening will be frightened itself. Such higher knowledge is there, and such hope of consolation of life of everybody is there. This is useless and ineffective, it is a hoax of illusion, nothing else.

So abhi. Śṛṇvantu viśve amṛtasya putrāḥ _____ [?] You are child of the immortal soil. Try, this is primary lesson to you all my affectionate children, that viśve amṛtasya putrāḥ, that you are immortal, you are child of the immortal soil. So this is the primary teaching of the Upaniṣad. And there are many things to be developed, to get developed knowledge about from the structure underground. Sweet, sweet structure is there. But the primary teaching, to get out of this dread of the threatening of the so called scientific civilisation, and their slaves of scientific civilisation. The threatening of the slaves of scientific civilisation. All your attempts are futile, know you will fight amongst you and you'll be finished. But the real interest of the animation won't be touched in any way by you, it won't be touched. That is rather that will be - get a fresh chance to establish itself in the desert. The dawn of real life is coming on the brain of the present suicidal civilisation.

Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Yes, a very admirable line you have taken here in this short book. And the conclusion will be something like that, that you're guaranteed, ensured, your prospect is ensured. Sweet prospect of your future life is ensured and is of such nature. And nothing can affect that, you are ensured.

Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. So this sort of preaching will only go on for the welfare of the whole animation. All else are redundant, unnecessary.

Devotee: But in this modern age every considerate person denounces evil reactions of science, but they're accepting the properly utilised science.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is māyā. They know it but they cannot forsake it, give it up. So that is māyā.

Devotee: So we denounce even the reaction of misused science, that is cursed. But we accept the bright side of science. And here we have attempted to draw that harmony between science and philosophy. Actually we find some resemblance between philosophy and science.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It is rather opposite to the science. Science wants power and knowledge over the nature. But we're to understand, jñāna śūnya bhakti, everything depends on the sweet will of my Lord. I'm to satisfy my Lord. "Everything in My own hand."

As our Guru Mahārāja told, "A poor girl who's married to a prince, then by that relationship the whole kingdom is under her, within her fist." The girl was poor, but if connected with a king by marriage, then through him, everything within her fist.

That is the position of the potency. The Lord is there, my sweet relationship with Him, that is my only necessity. And everything is within Him, and through that everything must come to His subservient to me. I do not have any direct connection to control this or that potency, all these things. This is jñāna śūnya bhakti. Neither power nor knowledge necessary, only affection to Him under whose control everything is there.

Devotee: But science is reality beyond any calculation.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So jñāna śūnya bhakti's justification is here. Through affectionate relationship with the Supreme, everything comes under you. Otherwise if you try to have independent authority over them it will be futile, like wild goose chasing, so give up. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. Try to connect yourself with an affectionate relationship with the Supreme under whose control everything is there. Thereby you can have control over everything, by affection. Affection rules everything, neither knowledge nor power.

That is the conclusion of Bhāgavatam and Mahāprabhu. And jñāna śūnya bhakti's basis is that. And it's not unreasonable, quite reasonable, how a finite can have control over Infinite. Only with the sweet will of the Infinite that can, and his intelligence and his utility, he'll be best utilised in seeking his friendly connection with the Absolute. And all other energy will be all spoiled, lost. Any other line of improvement will be all loss of energy, foolishness. This is not unintelligible. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...she demon, and the name of Jarāsandha came from her. Jarāsandha he was the father-in-law of Kaṁsa. Jarāsandha. The great fight with Kṛṣṇa-Balarāma. Eighteen times he attacked Mathurā, and Kṛṣṇa-Balarāma had to flee away. Balarāma went to kill him - Kṛṣṇa interfered.

"No, not to be killed by You this time. Bhīma is there to kill him, Jarāsandha." And Balarāma withdrew.

Jarāsandha. _____ [?] a strange plan for performing _____ [?] One lākh of kings he will cut asunder, sacrifice in a yajña. So ninety six thousand already in his prison house, only four thousand remaining _____ [?] small kings or zamīndārs, at that time _____ [?] yajña.

Kṛṣṇa, and Arjuna, and Bhīma, three were there to kill him _____ [?]

Jarāsandha had a capitol well guarded, and an automatic drum also there. Without brāhmaṇa and sādhu whoever will cross over that it will automatically make sound.

So Kṛṣṇa, Bhīma, and Arjuna, in the garb of a brāhmaṇa entered there. _____ [?]

And They arrived there just on the Dvādaśī day, after fasting Ekādaśī, the Dvādaśī day, before pāraṇa They reached his assembly, as his guest. And after feeding the guest then the king will make his _____ [?] When he came to find his guests he recognised Kṛṣṇa.

"Oh. You have come. All right, what is Your proposal? What do You want?"

"We want to fight a duel. We have come - our begging to you is this, that before pāraṇa we want real fight with you."

"All right."

"We are three, who will you select?"

"Why You eighteen times You fled for fear of me? _____ [?] Arjuna, he's like a boy. But Bhīma he's like a proper fighter, real fighter, so he'll do. What type of fight?"

"This gadā." He told.

"All right. Bring two gadā, clubs." And asked Bhīma, "Select one of them."

And Bhīma selected first and then next he took and the fight began.

Kṛṣṇa already told Bhīma that, "He won't die until he's torn asunder."

Two parts of the body joined together. Sandha, Sandhi, Jarā, the she demon. Jarāsandha's father was Bṛhadratha also he had no child. Anyhow one sādhu came, and he wanted for a child, he gave a fruit. "Give it to your queens and you'll have a good son." Then two queens they quarrelled among themselves and that was divided into two, that fruit. So they produced a half, half.

And what that will do, the both parts were sent in the cremation ground, that was under the jurisdiction of that she demon Jarā. She came and found, "Oh, two parts." _____ [?] connected those two into one, and then she found that suddenly the life is coming. Then after some time she found a real boy is produced. Then what to do? "I could not eat this child. Rather, the king is childless, so if I produce this child to him then I may get free food whole life." With this idea she took him to the king.

And king also enquired _____ [?] and he was that, invincible, everything. It was some boon on him that if his two parts are separated then only he'll die, otherwise not.

So Bhīma and Jarāsandha in a duel fight going on, sometimes Bhīmas falling, sometimes Jarāsandha.

_____ [?] Kṛṣṇa again told Bhīma that, "In this way he'll be killed, otherwise not." But Bhīma forgot that. _____ [?] fourteen days passed, fighting going on. Then Kṛṣṇa He showed some sign to Bhīma by tearing...

Badrinārāyaṇa: Straw.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Palm leaf, and Bhīma was reminded. And next chance when Jarāsandha fell Bhīma divided him into two.

Then all those ninety six princes were released, and Jarāsandha's son, his name was Sahadev, he was installed on the throne, and they went away. _____ [?]

And another, Śiśupāla, was also killed _____ two demons [?]

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

What is killing, and what is saving? Ha, ha. It is a play to someone. Being killed may be taken as a fun, without caring, no apprehension, no fear, specially by the kṣatriya school.

Śibi is cutting his own flesh from the body, Mahārāja Śibi. That is another incident, to test him, by the fire god and Indra. One pigeon, and another that _____ [?] vulture class. When the pigeon came and fell on the lap of Mahārāja Śibi, "Please give me shelter."

And then that [eagle] bird came. "It is my food so you can't deprive me of my attached providence."

Then ultimately Śibi told, "I can't leave her because she prayed for shelter to me. And it's the duty of the kings if anyone comes to take shelter they must give it. So I can't leave her."

So ultimately it was decided that Śibi will give as much flesh as it is in the bird, that pigeon. By weighing pigeon, whatever flesh, Śibi from his own body he will give. So pigeon one side of the weighing machine, another side he's cutting flesh from his chest and putting. But as much as he's cutting and putting, the bird's weighing much more. So at last Śibi had to stand himself on the weighing part. At that time of course, flowers were thrown from the heaven, the test finished. So that Indra and Agni they came to test his purity of king's duty.

There are many present also, patriots giving the flesh of his own body without caring for any trouble there. Physical courage, moral courage, spiritual courage, there is classification and there is distinction. Animals also courageous to fight to the last. The brāhmaṇa class they're not inclined to bleed their body, but the kṣatriya class here they're very courageous about it. And that was proved in the case of Karṇa and Paraśurāma.

Karṇa in disguise of a brāhmaṇa went to Paraśurāma to learn _____ [?] or something, in the garb, disguise of a brāhmaṇa. But to expose him, Indra one day - Paraśurāma is sleeping, putting his head on the thigh of Karṇa. And Indra was always partial _____ [?] assuming the form of a worm, and from the earth he pierced through Karṇa's thigh and gave a bite to the head of Paraśurāma. Paraśurāma woke up and found the blood is flowing there from Karṇa's thigh. "What is this?"

"You were sleeping. I did not like to disturb your sleep. But this happened that one worm came from the earth and pierced my thigh and so the blood."

"The worm has pierced through your thigh and still you did not care to wake me about this. You could tolerate so much? You are not a brāhmaṇa. You must be kṣatriya. You have come here in the garb of a false brāhmaṇa. So whatever I have taught you, I'm giving a curse, at the time of your danger those won't come to your help, whatever you learned. You have deceived me."

So brāhmaṇas, generally they're not supposed forbear physical trouble or pain, but kṣatriyas they're meant for that. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's taking different position for future work? Eh? The war of love against the dreadfulness of this human nature. Taking seat, making so many forts. Durgā, fort, fort is being prepared in different places to begin and continue war against material aggrandisement. Learn who are you. You're not owner of your own body. Come to think in this level. You think this property belongs to you, this body belongs _____ [?] of your own position, and then go to attract others. The very root uprooted, not only uprooted, negative side. But the positive side is overwhelming, overjoyed.

So such a great prospect in your life, and ignoring that - Swāmī Mahārāja told, "In New York, big buildings _____ [?] where are they, and what are _____ [?] They've constructed these big sky kissing buildings and they're standing for so many years they'll stand. But what about those who constructed them? Where are they? No definite trace about those builders, where they've gone."

So that is about everyone, buildings standing, but the builder disappeared, finished. Where is he? What about that? So that thorough study, thorough self analysis. Who are you? Where are you? What is your prospect? How to attain that? All these fundamental questions put in your sight and thought.

Adhyātma-vidyā vidyānāṁ.

["O Arjuna, of created objects, beginning with the sky, I alone am the creation, dissolution, and sustenance. Of all wisdom I am the knowledge of the soul, and of the logicians' or philosophers' debate and criticism I am the demonstrated conclusion."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 10.32]

Kṛṣṇa says in Gītā, "I am there, I am there, I am there. Adhyātma-vidyā. I'm present in that kind of study what includes ātmā, the inner study _____ [?] But I represent in them that class of learning which improves his own inner self. That class of learning is Myself. Adhyātma-vidyā vidyānāṁ. Vidyānāṁ, adhyātma, vidyā."

Including the self analysis, self _____ [?] Under the suffering of misidentification, misreading, of everything here, that is māyā. Māyā means misreading, about his own self, or the environment, misreading. And on the basis of that everything is going on. In the beginning, in the play, foundation is misreading, his environment and his own self. On the basis of that so much structures are built.

_____ [?] "Physician cure thyself." And the leaders, "Know thyself." Try to know that. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

First General was Hannibal, an African. Second Alexander perhaps. Third gave generally Julius Caesar. And fourth is considered Napoleon. And fifth not yet established position. I think in future Hitler may have that position in future. He showed some special quality in war, the blitzkrieg, lightening speed. What he did with land they could not cope with his speed, the enemy section. Yante yudha [?] that when he attacked the Belgium and France, the Flanders, the fight in the Flanders. America, Wilson remarked, "Such a great fight has never been fought in the history of the world as it was in Flanders." That is a portion of Belgium and France, that war attack. And that was done in a cyclic order. Tank or some motor carrying soldiers they moved inside the circle and then advanced in this way. When coming they're reinforced and they're going, always fresh soldiers are going to fight with the - that are standing on the war field.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: [Draupadī, in her] most dangerous moment, she's also remembering Gopalā-nandana, in Mahābhārata. He rādhā dvārakā-nātha, he gopī-jana-vallabha.

When Gopalā-nandana comes to see the gopīs, He becomes the maximum generous, covers everything under affection. All affectionate. Gopalā-nandana means all-affectionate. Everything comes within the boundary of His affection, cannot void anyone. But to reach to that standard that is difficult.

Uddhava says, "I want to be one of the grass and shrubs, grass in this place so that I can have naturally the feet-dust of these supernatural young damsels, the divine damsels."

Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Nitāiyer koruṇā habe, braje rādhā-kṛṣṇa pābe. [From Narottama dāsa Ṭhākura's, Manaḥ-śikṣā, 3]

Internal aim towards that high, and externally we shall try to stick to the general service of the Lord.

Heta mālī sece nitya śravaṇa-kīrttanādi jala [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.155, ?]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.162]

The fruit will come down, and from here the mālī he'll taste that. This is the kauśala, the strategy. _____ [?]

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Strategy is the method of success, approach.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The key to the process of action, the guiding principle there. Transcendental.

yā niśā sarva-bhūtānāṁ, tasyāṁ jāgarti saṁyamī / yasyāṁ jāgrati bhūtāni, sā niśā paśyato muneḥ

["While spiritual awareness is like night for the living beings enchanted by materialism, the self-realised soul remains awake, directly relishing the divine ecstasy of his uninterrupted spiritual intelligence. On the contrary, the wakefulness of materialistic persons addicted to sense enjoyment is night for the self-realised person who is completely indifferent to such pursuits. The realised souls, indifferent to the mundane, are ever joyful in the divine ecstatic plane, while the general mass is infatuated by fleeting mundane fancies devoid of spiritual joy."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 2.69]

What is night to particular that is day to another section. What is day to the phenomenal engagement that is night to the transcendental mentality.

[āmi - eka bātula, tumi - dvitīya bātula, ataeva] tomāya āmāya ha-i sama-tula

Mahāprabhu said [to Rāmānanda Rāya]: "I am insane, mad, bāula - pāgala - eccentric. I am one eccentric, and you are another. Therefore, we two are of the same class."
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.291]

To Sanātana.

[śuddha-prema-sukha-sindhu, pāi tāra eka bindu, sei bindu jagat ḍubāya]
kahibāra yogya naya, tathāpi bāule kaya, kahile vā kebā pātiyāya

["Unalloyed love of Kṛṣṇa is like an ocean of happiness. If someone gets one drop of it, the whole world can drown in that drop. It is not befitting to express such love of Godhead, yet a madman must speak. But even though he speaks, no one believes him."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.49]
[See also Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 2.83]

"It is not to be expressed outside, not to be divulged. Still, the bāulas, the eccentrics - so called, they cannot check their ecstasy, they give vent, bāule kaya. And kahile vā kebā pātiyāya. And who are there who will have faith in their words, in their presentation? Though sometimes they cannot check them but to express like volcano, but where are those that will come to believe it? No! It is not so easy to understand, to have faith, to believe it. This expression.

ye lāgi kahite bhaya, se yadi nā jāne, ihā va-i kibā sukha āche tribhuvane

["For fear of them I do not wish to speak, but if they do not understand, then what can be happier in all the three worlds?"] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 4.236]

We're afraid of expressing the truth. We should not express it here and there, everywhere. We should rather be, have control in our tongue. But if we say we're afraid that it will be misunderstood, but they at all do not care to know it, beneath dignity, to try to attempt to understand, to search meaning in our words. Then we're relieved in one sense. Ye lāgi kahite bhaya, se yadi nā jāne, ihā va-i kibā sukha āche tribhuvane. Kavirāja Goswāmī. It will be accepted and misused, mishandled, but they do not care at all. And we're safe there. In one sense, that is our safety, that they do not know. They won't come to this, to give any attention. So though we express it incautiously, but they won't care for it, we're safe from that standpoint.

So Kavirāja Goswāmī's call. Piye viṣa-garta-pāni. Pāiyā amṛtadhunī, piye viṣa-garta-pāni.

pāiyā amṛtadhunī, piye viṣa-garta-pāni, janmiyā se kene nāhi maila]

["Anyone who attains a human body but does not take to the cult of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu is baffled in his opportunity. Amṛtadhunī is a flowing river of the nectar of devotional service. If after getting a human body one drinks the water in a poison pit of material happiness instead of the water of such a river, it would be better for him not to have lived, but to have died long ago."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 13.123]

The water of the nectarean river - the nectar flow is there, one side. And another, the drain water. In human life, coming in contact with Śrī Caitanya and His followers, one can have taste of the nectar drink. But if he misuses this and engages himself in this material exploiting taste, then he's drinking drain water. Janmiyā se kene nāhi maila. He's missing such a great chance. It would have been better that, after birth, he should have died, should have passed away immediately after birth.

Caitanya Avatāra has come and - Oh! Now, what is the, what will be the name of your next book? As I suggested?

Bhakti Sudhīra Goswāmī: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The Search For Kṛṣṇa, Reality The Beautiful, from one side. And another, The Search Of The Lord For The Fallen. And that is in a mad loving mood. You fix what will be the expression, the purpose is this. Search For Kṛṣṇa, Reality The Beautiful, and the opposite, Lord is coming here to rescue His own servants. Lost, home lost, He has come to rescue the home lost, that have lost their home. He has come in search for them, with great, mad affection. With mad affection He has come down to search the home lost and to reinstate them towards home. One short expression to that thought, that just the opposite. He's also coming, they're searching, and He's also coming to search His own servants, who are home lost servants, come to enquire, to reinstate, to rescue. What will be the concise thought of this, the opposite.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari.

Home lost servants, partners, they're His partners of the work, of the līlā. Home lost partners searching together, what will be.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

That will be to introduce Mahāprabhu to the world, this way. That Golden Volcano is one side. Practising Himself He's giving the guidance, what to do, where to go, how to approach. That is one thing. Another, before that He's come to search the home lost servants of His own. To reinstate, and also with, like a _____ [?] with war importance, or something, ke? _____ [?] War emergency, with war emergency type relief work. Relief work with war urgency, He's come to look out affectionately for every lost servant and to reinstate home. And that is our consolation that we may come under it, under His search, we may fall within His search.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja:

kutas tvā kaśmalam idaṁ, viṣame samupasthitam [anārya-juṣṭam asvargyam, akīrti-karam arjuna]

["O Arjuna, why has such illusion overcome you at this critical moment? This is unbefitting a noble man (Āryan). It is an obstacle to the attainment of heaven, and a destroyer of good name and fame."]
[Bhagavad-gītā, 2.2]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Viṣame. Uncommon circumstance. Exceptionally uncommon extraordinary circumstance, viṣame. Not ordinary general circumstance, but it's exceptionally dangerous, opposite circumstance.

kutas tvā kaśmalam idaṁ, viṣame samupasthitam / anārya-juṣṭam asvargyam, akīrti-karam arjuna

"Anārya-juṣṭam. This is not accepted by the man of standard civilisation. Anārya-juṣṭam asvargyam. And it won't give any future prospect. Akīrti-karam. And neither it will give any name, fame, in this world. Neither this world nor other world, none is accepted by the standard civilised person. Kutas tvā kaśmalam idaṁ. Such a mean type of mania has caught you Arjuna, it does not behove you, befitting you, your position."

klaibyaṁ mā sma gamaḥ pārtha, naitat tvayy upapadyate kṣudraṁ hṛdaya-daurbalyaṁ, tyaktvottiṣṭha parantapa

["O son of Kuntī, give up this cowardice, for it does not become you. O great hero, cast off this petty weakness of heart, and arise for battle!"] [Bhagavad-gītā, 2.3]

"Awake, arise!" Like Milton, as Satan suggests. "Awake, arise, from such tāmasic, such ignorant program, what you have accepted. Like a womanly program you've got, trying to follow, cowardly. The program what you say is nothing but cowardice." Ha, ha.

Arjuna already told a good thing, in our calculation. "Rather I shall eat begging, that I collect my food by begging in the street, than to kill these persons whom I revere so much. From the connection of my body, or from my education - Droṇācārya, Bhīṣma, we should revere them, and we're showing reverence to them. And today I shall wound them with weapon and kill them? Eh? What is this? I can't understand such religion, I can't follow. Rather I shall beg from door to door for my living. I can't do this. Please. And my valour is only to kill these revered persons of my own, so that I'm a big hero? Is this reason to kill ones own revered superiors? I can't."

Outwardly of course this is very justifiable decision. But how that was?

"This is body connection Arjuna, selfish connection. But religion, varṇāśrama is based on higher principle of life. This is all weakness, this body connection. You are not this body. You must get out of this body consciousness. So stern and hard practices must be undergone to get out of this. What you say, this is only body connection. 'This is my own, this is my Guru, this is my _____ [?] all worldly consideration. But religion is above that, to get out of this body connection wholesale. Klaibyaṁ mā sma gamaḥ pārtha, naitat tvayy upapadyate, kṣudraṁ hṛdaya. This is only weakness of your heart. Tyaktvottiṣṭha parantapa."

aśocyān anvaśocas tvaṁ, prajñā-vādāṁś ca bhāṣase / gatāsūn agatāsūṁś ca, nānuśocanti paṇḍitāḥ

["O Arjuna, you are mourning for that which is unworthy of grief, and yet speaking words of wisdom. But the wise lament neither for the living nor the dead."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 2.11]

"What is this? This killing and being killed is of lower consideration, material experience. But ātmā, you, your soul, is created for higher plane of life. This body consciousness consideration, good, bad, all false. Good, bad, in body consideration in the plane of exploitation, it is all false. You're to give up wholesale, and then you'll awaken in the kingdom of soul.

Klaibyaṁ mā sma gamaḥ pārtha, naitat tvayy upapadyate. It does not befit you. Kṣudraṁ hṛdaya- daurbalyaṁ. This is all sure weakness of your heart. Tyaktvottiṣṭha parantapa. Give up them wholesale and raise yourself above this level of 'This is mine, this is others' all these things. This is poor consciousness. You must be above. Religion is above that, pure religion. This is all false here, from separate consciousness, all grown from separate consciousness, good, bad. But separate consciousness even, that must be given up forever. The universal flow, that must be adopted. The absolute good, and from that the centre, the absolute good, and there-from the flow is coming. And that must be found out and accepted. That is līlā. And that will feed everyone and give real health. This is all diseased condition. Ha, ha.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Who's there?

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Rāma Rāma. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Ha, ha. Our Gurudeva used to say, "Gītā is the book in the primary class." Ha, ha, ha. "To be read in the primary section, Gītā. And Bhāgavata the structure over that."

...

...pañca sid [?] of the Buddha school, this ahiṁsā _____ [?] all these things, generally appreciated. The pañca sid, ahiṁsā, sattya, daya _____ [?] Once when I had a pilgrimage to Dvārakā, at that time I mentioned in that _____ [?] advertisement, that pañca sid, this was crushed in the wheel of chariot of Kṛṣṇa in Bhagavad-gītā. The pañca sid, it rolled over*, pañca sid*, in the material consciousness, ahiṁsā, sattya, all these things. In Gītā Arjuna represented something like pañca sid. But Gītā, the wheel of the chariot of Kṛṣṇa, that crushed and passed over that, that this has no meaning.

If necessary we shall fight, but the aim of the fight, the object, aim of the fight will be something else, to go to the general flow, crushing all separate interests, extended separate interests. Pañca sid that is extended separate interest. Separate interest, that is a small and big. We're all mad with extended national patriotism, nationalism, socialism, all extended selfishness.

Nothing less than the whole, that is necessary, and that is there, positive. And that can come only from that world, and we're to submit and accept that. We're to enquire how that connection is coming from the infinite towards finite. That is through revealed scripture means that, it's coming from that.

"Accept Me, I'm so and so."

So Veda, Upaniṣad, that is the revealed scriptures are the only means, and the agents, the sādhus. And however greater, no empirical scholars will be relied on. No number of finite can make infinite. Infinite is of its own nature. We're to understand that and we're to, if possible, to give to the outside.

vidvadbhiḥ sevitaḥ sadbhir, nityam adveṣa-rāgibhiḥ
[hṛdayenābhyanujñāto, yo dharmas taṁ nibhodhata]

["We can feel within our heart whether we are gainers or losers. That tasting machine is within us. As we progress in Kṛṣṇa consciousness, our karma, our connection with this material world, will evaporate in no time, and spacious knowledge will come to satisfy us. At that time, we shall feel the object of our life everywhere."] [Manu-saṁhitā, 2.1]

What is religion? That must have to come from up, from the Infinite Quarter. It may be extended to the finite, vidvadbhiḥ, veda-vidbhiḥ, who are proficient in the revealed scriptures. Revealed scripture is the basis, and no man-made scripture.

And Uddhava asking, "Why there is a jungle in the religious world? So many different types, different sections?"

"In the beginning, after pralaya, wholesale dissolution, when again this creation began. What is pure religion I advised it Brahmā the creator, and from the creator it came to different disciples. And according to their peculiar nature they understood in a different way. When they gave delivery there was some modification. In this way, prakṛti-vaicitryāt, the variety in the nature of the recipient, and from one to another, the disciplic order, the variety in the recipient, that has caused the different types of religious conceptions in this world. Now we have a jungle. In the beginning it was one, and it's object teaching, I was the object there, and I advised it to Brahmā the creator. First it was one, but gradually, for the difference between the preachers, mediators, it became different. Today there is a jungle. And also some sprouts came out from the soil in the empirical way. Prakṛti-vaicitryāt and pāṣaṇḍa-matayo' pare. Pāṣaṇḍa-mata means those who do not have any recognition of revealed knowledge and they produce something from this side, that is pāṣaṇḍa-mata. So, pāṣaṇḍa-mata, and twisted revealed advice - that combined has created the chaos in the world of religion. Someone lays stress to this penance, sometimes on ceṣṭa (duty), sometimes on reading scriptures, and some sections donation, relief work - all these different opinions, but in the beginning, it was one."

That is the explanation told to Uddhava by Kṛṣṇa Himself.

[evaṁ prakṛti-vaicitryād bhidyante matayo nṛṇām / pāramparyeṇa keṣāñcit pāṣaṇḍa-matayo 'pare]

["Thus, due to the great variety of desires and natures among human beings, there are many different theistic philosophies of life, which are handed down through tradition, custom and disciplic succession. There are other teachers who directly support atheistic viewpoints."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.14.8]

The general question was? Eh?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja:

śrotavyādīni rājendra nṛṇāṁ santi sahasraśaḥ, [apaśyatām ātma-tattvaṁ gṛheṣu gṛha-medhinām]

[Śukadeva Goswāmī said to King Parīkṣit: "Those persons who are materially engrossed, being blind to the knowledge of ultimate truth, have many subject matters for hearing in human society, O Emperor."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.2]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In Bhāgavata, _____ [?] when Kṛṣṇa is advising - that is dharma.

"Why so many opinions in...

...

kālena naṣṭā pralaye, vāṇīyaṁ veda-saṁjñitā mayādau brahmaṇe proktā, dharmo yasyāṁ mad-ātmakaḥ

["The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: By the influence of time, the transcendental sound of Vedic knowledge was lost at the time of annihilation. Therefore, when the subsequent creation took place, I spoke the Vedic knowledge to Brahmā because I Myself am the religious principles enunciated in the Vedas."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.14.3]

Naṣṭā pralaye, vāṇīyaṁ veda-saṁjñitā. In the complete dissolution, everything finished, then naṣṭā pralaye, vāṇīyaṁ veda-saṁjñitā, mayādau brahmaṇe proktā, dharmo yasyāṁ mad-ātmakaḥ.

Tato marīcādi, and from there - Uddhava Gītā.

...difference in the conception of religion in the world. Without You, none can give proper answer to this question. So I ask You my Lord, explain to me why so many different conceptions of religion in this world."

Then Kṛṣṇa began to talk. "In the beginning it was one, and extended from Me to Brahmā, the creator. And Brahmā began to give vent to this conception and so many came as disciple. And according to their peculiar nature they understood, little modified. Again, when they're delivering to their own disciples, there is some modification. In this way the modification of this world, and then some extra, opposite imitation has grown, mixing the two. Now there's a jungle. But it was one, and I'm the thing of the whole, I'm the aim of all religious conception. Mad-ātmakah. I'm the spirit of religion. Dharmo yasyā."

Vedaiś ca sarvair aham eva vedyo.

[sarvasya cāhaṁ hṛdi sanniviṣṭho, mattaḥ smṛtir jñānam apohanaṁ ca

["I am situated (as the Supersoul) within the heart of all souls, and from Me arises the soul's remembrance, knowledge, and the dissipation of both (according to his karma, or action in the mundane plane). I am the exclusive knowable (ecstatic) principle of all the Vedas. I am the author of the Vedānta - Vedavyāsa, the expounder of the knowable meaning of the Vedas. And certainly I am the knower of the purport of the Vedas."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.15]

"They're all wanting Me to show the object of their quest. Raso vai saḥ. Because I'm ecstasy, and everyone wants that, ānandam, rasam."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: So we're told. He said he'll try to come in the morning.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...if Govinda Mahārāja is well, that Purī program during the chariot period.

Dayādhara prabhu, does he try to collect _____ [?] Only English?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: No middle acquisition.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Only English will be your field? Or Sanskrit and Bengali?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: By the mercy of sādhu saṅga _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sādhu saṅga you have published. Ha, ha.

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: Not that sādhu saṅga.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: One Sikh gentleman I spoke with, I showed him The Hidden Treasure.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Where?

Dayādhara Gaurāṅga: In Malaysia. And then we, I met with his family, and we spoke about many other things. He looked at The Hidden Treasure and he liked it, and then he set it down. And then as we got into other discussions and other business, then I noticed he again he had picked it up and he was reading very scrutinisingly. And then he began remarking how wonderful this book was. He's a Doctor in plant science, botany. And had not much - although a nice man, not much inspiration towards the spiritual side. But he remarked how wonderful this book was, how developed the syntax.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The wonderful development may be traced in Gāyatrī, in nutshell, how from the beginning we can reach the highest zenith. Gāyatrī. In praṇava, oṁkāra, also. Oṁ is the seed of Gāyatrī, and there the meaning is yes. Oṁ means yes. One word, yes.

I thought how, why, how one word, yes, that can be the seed of every, seed of the highest good, how it is possible? Yes is the root that's containing the highest good. That means our inner quest. Everyone has got some inner search, searching for something. Searching for happiness, pleasure, rasam, ānandam. And in one word, what you are searching, yes it is. It is. In one word, the answer. The whole Vedic truth, revealed truth, when in most concise form it becomes Yes. That is a general reply to everyone. What you are searching that is. Yes, that is, go on searching. Encouragement. Yes. And from there Gāyatrī comes. _____ [?]

And this material plane, if you adopt this process it will take to the zenith of your hankering. Gāyatrī. And from the Veda it's coming to Bhāgavatam, Upaniṣad, Veda, Upaniṣad. Search after central thing, by knowing which everything will be known, by getting which everything will be got. That is the beginning, and that is coming to the fulfilment life in Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, the ripe fruit, rasam.

The līlā, the pastimes of the, are in the centre. That is the acme of all our achievement. That section of pastimes of the Absolute, that is the goal. To participate, to understand and to participate and to have consciousness of the fact, that is the goal. That from yes, from yes it's going to the - going up, rasa dancing, generally. Yes means this rasa of Kṛṣṇa, rasa dancing is going.

In the beginning, yes, what you're searching for it is, it exists. And what is that? Come to enquire, and gradually you'll get. And in Gāyatrī in nutshell the connecting thread, from the lowest to the highest, Gāyatrī. Then the Veda, Purāṇa, and this Bhāgavatam.

artho 'yaṁ brahma sūtrānāṁ, bhāratārtha-viniṛṇayaḥ
gāyatrī bhāṣya rūpo 'sau, vedārthaḥ paribriṁhitaḥ

["Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam represents the real purport of Vedānta-sūtra. And although it is very difficult to draw out the real purpose of the one hundred thousand verse epic Mahābhārata, the great history of the world, Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam has come to give its real meaning. The mother of all Vedic knowledge is the Gāyatrī mantra. Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam gives the gist of Gāyatrī in a very full-fledged way. And the supplementary truths of the Vedas are also found within Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam."] [Garuḍa-Purāṇa]

It is mentioned there that it is the fulfilment. Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam is the fulfilment of all the revealed scriptures of different type. That is a harmonising śloka, poetry, passage, one harmonising stanza. Artho 'yaṁ brahma sūtrānāṁ covers the whole Vedānta. Bhāratārtha-viniṛṇayaḥ, the Veda is not approachable, understandable, to the ordinary section, so Mahābhārata has been created out of that. And the Mahābhārata is also here, included. Bhāratārtha-vinirṇayaḥ. And Gāyatrī bhāṣya rūpo 'sau. The mother of all the revealed scriptures is Gāyatrī, in short, dig darśana, it's only suggesting the direction. Gāyatrī bhāṣya rūpo 'sau. It's extensive commentary of that Gāyatrī, bhāṣya rūpo 'sau. Vedārthaḥ paribriṁhitaḥ. The whole meaning of the Vedas, revealed scriptures, has been elaborated here. Śrutibhir vimṛgyām.

[āsā maho caraṇa-renu-juṣām aham syām, vṛndāvane kim api gulma-latauṣadhīnām
yā dustyajaṁ svajanam ārya-pathaṁ ca hitvā, bhejur mukunda-padavīṁ śrutibhir vimṛgyām]

["The gopīs of Vṛndāvana have given up the association of their husbands, sons and other family members, who are very difficult to renounce, and they have sacrificed even their religious principles to take shelter of the lotus feet of Kṛṣṇa, which are sought after by even the Vedas. O grant me the fortune to be born as a blade of grass in Vṛndāvana, so that I may take the dust of those great souls upon my head."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.47.61]

Those revealed scriptures they're only searching after such thing that is the sweet pastimes of the highest good, highest ecstatic personality. So from the Oṁ, yes, yes is going to rasa līlā of Lord. In the rasa līlā in Bhāgavatam it is mentioned that the śruti, the Vedas, they are begging forgiveness.

"We could not have any conception of such līlā, and we fail to give direction to this happy end of the Absolute Truth. We could not express, so we beg forgiveness. We could not follow and could not advise to the people that the ānandam is of this type. We could not understand and we could not make the others understand, so we beg forgiveness. When they participated in rasa līlā. Such things? The Absolute and the paraphernalia in a mad dance and singing, and so near and dear, and this class of ecstasy substance is distributed to the environment. It is such atmosphere. This is the highest. We could not, we failed to understand ourselves, what to speak of to make it known to others."

Śrutibhir vimṛgyām. Vedas are only pointing out the direction. "Go this side. Go this side, this direction, you'll see. So far we're like gatekeepers, we can show this is the way, harem is this side. More than that we can't say." The guide in the palace they assure some may say the harem is there, this side. This is the court, this is the police station, this is that, like a general guide.

yadi gaura nā hoita, tabe ki hoita, kemone dharitām de [rādhāra mahimā, prema-rasa-sīmā jagate jānāta ke madhura vṛndā vipina mādhurī praveśa cāturī sāra baraja yuvatī bhāvera bhakati śakati hoita kāra]

["What great insurmountable, unsurpassable loss would we have faced in our life, if Śrī Gaurāṅga had not appeared before us on this earth? How could we bear our unfulfilled, empty life without Him? Who in this world would have described the super excellent transcendental glory of Śrī Rādhikā, Who is the last limit of divine love and devotion for the Supreme Lord Kṛṣṇa? Without His grace, who would be able to know the super excellent devotional path that gives entrance into the transcendental realm of the ambrosial ecstasy of Vṛndāvana? Who would be able to attain the mood and taste of the topmost devotional ecstasy of the young damsels of Vraja?"]

If Gaurāṅga did not come, who other could come and inform us about the highest quarter ecstatic pastimes? Jānāta ke. Yadi gaura nā hoita, tabe ki hoita, kemone dharitām de. Then how could we keep our existence, maintain our existence? So much prospect we have got we did not know. So in vain we have dragged down our existence so far. Now we find so happy fulfilment there is waiting for our fate, for our fortune. Now think yes, our creation, our existence is real and desirable. Otherwise it's all dry and undesirable. Tabe ki hoita, kemone dharitām de.

Prema-rasa-sīmā, rādhāra mahimā, jagate jānāta ke. Prema. We give two paise to another and we find much ecstasy in heart. Giving a paise or two, or some food morsel, all in reaction cycle. Giving some morsel to a mouth, to a body, what is not real representation of him, and what I'm giving that is not touching in the real plane of life. We're all thinking that 'doing this we're big men, we're generous hearted, we're patron.' Puffed up with our pride. But we did not reach the real plane of life at all. Prema-rasa-sīmā. Giving the self satisfaction of self distribution, that can reach so far, so high. By giving to others, how to give, what quality of giving is real gift proper? All these things we did not know at all. Prema-rasa-sīmā. Prema. That when we give, and what we get in reaction, that is prema, love. That is the ecstasy. By distributing as what we get as reaction. That may be in quality so high that such reaction may come, the prema-rasa-sīmā.

Rādhāra mahimā. And it is the acme of self giving is in Rādhikā only. How the self forgetful distribution to the Absolute Centre, how far it may grow, to what standard? It is we find only Rādhārāṇī. Rādhāra mahimā. Jagate jānāta ke. Then who will come with this secret of the transcendental world down in this mortal world, mortal plane, without Gaurāṅga? Anyone has done such? Hmm?

The noble, what is the real standard of a noble life, what is nobility? We're all suffering from mean consciousness. We do not know how to give us, what standard of giving is real gift. Self distribution, self forgetfulness, these big words, what is their real meaning? How far it may go up? Only the big words won't do. But the real meaning, how far it may reach? It may reach to Vṛndāvana.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...self distribution, self forgetfulness, these big words, what is their real meaning? How far it may go up? Only the big words won't do. But the real meaning, how far it may reach? It may reach to Vṛndāvana, and the acme is there.

That Gaurāṅga, He took down by His realisation. Of course He's there. He Himself He has come to distribute. It is incomparable with anyone to do. But anyhow we have got this information of the highest type of noble live, noblest life through Gaurāṅga.

To give, to become unconscious of ones own self, to give a touch of that līlā, of that high pastime, a finishing of the life of this world. Fainted. Ha, ha. When Acyutānanda was here in the beginning, Swāmī Mahārāja and myself had a talk here. And Acyutānanda he was given quarter in that blue house.

There, Acyutānanda expressed to Swāmī Mahārāja, "What type of talk you had with Śrīdhara Mahārāja?"

Swāmī Mahārāja simply answered, "You will faint there. You won't be able to understand, you'll faint."

It came to me afterwards. "You'll faint, you won't be able to raise yourself in that standard to appreciate what was the theme of the talk with him and me."

So we all faint, fainted, superseding that there is the realm avyakta, ajñāna, apratarkya, avijñeya, in Manu-saṁhitā.

āsīd idaṁ tamo bhūtam, aprajñātam alakṣanam apratarkyam avijñeyaṁ, prasuptam iva sarvataḥ [tataḥ svayambhur bhāgavāṇ, avyaktavyaṁ jayan idam mahābhutādi vṛtaujāḥ, prādur āsin tamonudaḥ]

[Just before the creative movement began, the marginal potency of the Lord was in a state of equilibrium. Taṭa-stha means equilibrium: āsīd idaṁ tamo bhūtam. Everything was in darkness, fully enveloped by ignorance. Alakṣanam means there was no possibility of any estimation; no symptoms of reality existed by which any conjecture or inference about the nature of reality would have been possible. And it was aprajñātam: science has no capacity for investigating the nature of that stage of existence. We can only say from here that it was completely immersed in deep sleep. The analogy of deep sleep may give us some conception of that period: prasuptam iva sarvatra. Material existence was as if in a sound sleep.]

[Manu-saṁhitā, 1.1.5-6]

Manu in the beginning he gives this śloka. Āsīd idaṁ tamo bhūtam. This world in the beginning was sheer darkness, ajñā, ignorance. Aprajñātam. None could have any estimation what was there. Avijñeyaṁ. No scientific knowledge was possible at that stage. Āsīd idaṁ tamo bhūtam, aprajñātam alakṣaṇam. No symptoms to be detectable. Apratarkyam avijñeyaṁ, prasuptam iva sarvataḥ. Just as in deep slumber.

Then Svayaṁ-Bhagavān, then in this way it begins expressing. So it was dark before Gaurāṅga came and gave the news of that aprākṛta, the highest world, here. Even it was not known to the Vedas nor even Lakṣmī Devī. She aspires after rāsa-līlā, but She could not enter. She was not given permission to enter into rāsa-līlā. It is such.

We are talking high things, very, very high things.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] āmnāyaḥ prāha. Not only _____ [?] he was anyone ordinary. But it is the most necessity that āmnāyaḥ prāha. No value of any other opinion. Amni āmnāyaḥ. Āmnāyaḥ means the - we're to note particularly - āmnāyaḥ means the revealed truth, or scripture, that is coming through a reliable source, āmnāyaḥ. Guru paramparā is āmnāyaḥ. Āmnāyaḥ means the revealed truth which we're getting in a genuine succession of Guru, āmnāyaḥ.

Prāha tattvaṁ. What does it say? They're enumerating all the facts. Āmnāyaḥ prāha tattvaṁ harim iha paramaṁ. Hari is all in all. Sarva-śaktim. What is His nature? He's the master of all potencies. Rasābdhiṁ. And He Himself is the ocean of rasa, ecstasy.

Harim iha paramaṁ sarva-śaktim rasābdhiṁ, tad bhinnāmśāṁś ca jīvān. And the jīva soul they're nothing but bhinnāmśāṁś ca, not a direct part of Him, but the part of His particular potency, not śvāṁśa. Śvāṁśa, vibhinnāṁśa. Everything is the part of Hari, but śvāṁśa is Avatāra and vibhinnāṁśa is the part of His potency, part of taṭasthā-śakti.

āmnāyaḥ prāha tattvaṁ harim iha paramaṁ sarva-śaktim rasābdhiṁ
tad bhinnāmśāṁś ca jīvān prakṛti-kavalitān tad vimuktāṁś ca bhāvat

By nature some are engrossed in the external potency, and some we find in the lap of internal potency.

Tad bhinnāmśāṁś ca jīvān prakṛti-kavalitān tad vimuktāṁś ca bhāvat. By their very existence we find that some are within the svarūpa-śakti and some outside the svarūpa-śakti. Mukta and amukta. Prakṛti- kavalitān tad vimuktāṁś ca bhāvat.

Bhedābheda-prakāśaṁ sakalam api hareḥ. Everything is a part of Hari, but bhedābheda-prakāśaṁ, something common, something different. Sakalam api hareḥ.

Sādhanaṁ śuddha-bhaktiṁ. And the means to have Him is only pure devotion, exclusive dedication.

Prakṛti-kavalitān tad vimuktāṁś ca bhāvat, bhedābheda-prakāśaṁ sakalam api hareḥ sādhanaṁ śuddha-bhaktiṁ.

And sādhyaṁ yat prītim evety. And what is our end of life? That is prīti, prema. Sādhyaṁ yat prītim.

Evety upadi-śati harir-gauracandro. And Hari Himself in the form of Gauracandra, He's giving such understanding to us. Gauracandro svayamsa. Who is Himself Hari, He has come in the garb of Gauracandra and He's giving all these instructions to us, in nutshell.

Then, one tattva in one śloka, nine. [Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's Daśa-mūla śloka.]

āmnāyaḥ prāha tattvaṁ harim iha paramaṁ sarva-śaktim rasābdhiṁ
tad bhinnāmśāṁś ca jīvān prakṛti-kavalitān tad vimuktāṁś ca bhāvat bhedābheda-prakāśaṁ sakalam api hareḥ sādhanaṁ śuddha-bhaktiṁ sādhyaṁ yat prītim evety upadiśati harir-gauracandro bhaje tam

This is the first śloka, and another nine ślokas are there. The very gist of the whole Gauḍīya philosophy.

The Loving Search of Lord For Lost Servant.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Very nice.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Not any intensity expressed here, only simple. Loving Search. What I told that madly search, that imagined urgent campaign, all these. You may consider what...

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: The Lord's Loving Search For His Lost Servant.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Loving Search - Lost Servant. But very earnestly He has come to take them home. Home lost servants, taking home. He has come out with earnestness to take them home.

When in Bhāgavatāmṛta we find when Kṛṣṇa is coming back with the cows towards gostha, that very moment one boy got his emancipation and went in sākhya rasa līlā. He met on the way and Kṛṣṇa welcomed, embraced him, and both fainted. And Balarāma was there, anyhow He managed to rouse them.

Then Kṛṣṇa addressed friend. "Why you could stay leaving Me so long. How it was possible for you? You left Me and you were passing so many lives after lives without Me. How?" Then He told, "Yes, I know what trouble you take to come to Me. You took the search, and then went to beg from house to house. You were chastised by many, ridiculed by many. You shed tears for Me. All these I know. I was with you. I know all these things. Such a great trouble you had to come back to Me again."

In this way He's addressing and welcoming. And when He came home just taking by His own side to take prasādam. In this way a new recruit He so much earnestly welcomed him.

"How long you were? How could you forbear My separation in this way?"

From the first embrace they swooned away, lost consciousness, Kṛṣṇa Himself, Ha, ha, ha.

Balarāma anyhow - the other friends, sakhās, they were benumbed. "What's the matter? This newcomer has come and by embracing him Kṛṣṇa lost His senses?" But Balarāma came to relieve and anyhow managed to rouse them. All other sakhās they're looking on astonished.

So search of love is such, not ordinary search, from the heart, and the heart not ordinary heart. Ha, ha. Hearty search, and the heart not an ordinary heart. What type of search? His viraha, pangs of separation in Him also, though He's filled up by so many, still He has got feeling for every one of us. However small we may be, still we have got a room in the corner of His heart, and loving heart.

Infinite is such. Such Infinite, such Absolute, the Autocrat, the Absolute Good though Autocrat. Autocrat autocracy not under law, and not bankrupt, that if given to one another will be lacking, not that. Infinite supply at His command. So akhila-rasāmṛta-murtiḥ, the Lord is such. Lord's search for lost servant, home lost servant. Otherwise we have no other way. That is our solace, consolation of life ultimately. The Loving Lord, we're under His care, we're under the care of a Loving Lord.

The sākhya rasa people say, "What do we care for others? We have got our Kṛṣṇa, our friend."

rakṣā koribo tuhuṅ niścaya jāni, pāna korobuṅ hāma yamunā pāni

["Fearless and confident of Your protection, I shall drink the waters of the Yamunā, whether they are poisoned or not. I am Your property. You must take care of me; You can't leave me."]

[The Songs Of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, p 26-7]

That sort of inner encouragement, desperate encouragement, comes from within.

"Kṛṣṇa is there, our friend. Whom do we care? We can take poison, we can jump on the head of that big serpent Kāliya. Everything we can do, we have got loving backing over our head or back. Whom do we care?" Rakṣā koribo tuhuṅ niścaya jāni, pāna korobuṅ hāma yamunā pāni.

kāliya-dokha korobi bināśā, śodhobi nadī-jala bāḍobi āśā, bhakativinoda tuwā gokula-dhana, rākhobi keśava! korato jatana

["Although the Kāliya serpent's venom has poisoned the Yamunā's waters, I know that poison will not act. Your presence will cleanse the waters and so increase our confidence in Your protection. Bhaktivinoda is now the property of Gokula, Your holy abode, O Keśava. Kindly protect him with care."]

[The Songs Of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, p 26-7]

"Your property. You are to take care of me. You can't abandon me, leave me."

To come in such loving relationship with the Lord. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.

Yadi gaura nā hoita, tabe ki hoita, kemone dharitām de. "Who will inform about our prospect? We have got such a great prospect, who would come and care to inform us that we have got so much wealth underground? You do not know, but you have got such a great magnitude of wealth, you do not know."

One astrologer is coming to a person and says, "Why you are living a poor life? You have got immense money, immense wealth underground. Try to have it." That example is given [in Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 20.127-136]

So you're so big, so great. Your guardian is so loving and so high, and you are wandering like a poor fellow in the street! You are not helpless; as if you have no guardian. Only mind that.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. _____ [?]

...

Badrināràyaṇa: Goswāmī Mahārāja told, "You've just given the introduction to the book." What you just spoke...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah! This is introduction. Ha. Ha. Ha.

Devotees: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Goswāmī Mahārāja is the master of the situation. Ha, ha, ha, ha. He has created, he's maintaining. Rāma. Rāma. Rāma. Rāma. Rāma. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

...

That is the guarantee, that is the measurement, that is the criterion. Not the outward expression.

yaḥ kaumāra-haraḥ sa eva hi varas tā eva caitra-kṣapās [te conmīlita-mālatī-surabhayaḥ prauḍhāḥ kadambānilāḥ sā caivāsmi tathāpi tatra surata-vyāpāra-līlā-vidhau revā-rodhasi vetasī-taru-tale cetaḥ samutkaṇṭhate]

["That very Personality Who stole My heart during My youth is now again My Master. These are the same moonlit nights of the month of Caitra. The same fragrance of mālatī flowers is there, and the same sweet breezes are blowing from the kadamba forest. In Our intimate relationship, I am also the same lover, yet My mind is not happy here. I am eager to go back to that place on the bank of the Revā under the Vetasī tree. That is My desire."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 1.78]

Outwardly Mahāprabhu pronouncing a śloka of an ordinary nasty character, but that object, aim, is the supreme-most. So what is what? Hmm? What is what?

Haridāsa Ṭhākura keeping the company of a prostitute continuously three nights and giving her consolation. "Yes, I shall fulfil your desires, wait. I shall fulfil your desires, wait, wait." But what is that desire? What was then desire that is something. But Haridāsa Ṭhākura is looking for her lost desire. "You may not have any other desire than the grace of Kṛṣṇa. I shall fulfil that."

So in our ultimate vision everything is Kṛṣṇa. Yaśodā's whipping is devotion. If she does not whip then no devotion. We're to take it, understand like that. If she's afraid to whip that bala Kṛṣṇa then she's deviating from her devotional life. We're to understand like that.

Then what is what? What is devotion? And what is non devotion? We're to analyse it in this way, which is apparently very cruel, but the inner nature is everything. We're to follow this. What is devotion? To be actuated by Yogamāyā, surrender to the Yogamāyā, who is always busy to devise means how to please Him. Yogamāyā is always busy how to please her Lord. And she's devising various _____ [?]
To fulfil His desire. That universal wave, to try to learn and to try to dance with that universal wave. To dance in tune with that, in harmony with that wave, whatever it may be that is pleasing. Līlā. Līlā means this, līlā, not necessity, not to fulfil any purpose. It is already fulfilled. And dancing with the idea of His own fulfilment makes Him to move in a dancing form.

"I'm happy, I'm so happy. I have nothing, no necessity. I'm fulfilled, I'm happy."

So dancing is the symptom showing fulfilment. That is not a static thing, that is dynamic. The Absolute happiness is dynamic, dancing and doing, but not out of necessity that He has some want. No! That is not meant. Then it is not līlā. If for some want we work, we labour, that is not līlā. Līlā always fulfilling, in fulfilment. The very nature is in dynamic character it is doing so. This is līlā.

And also we may say, ānandāmbudhi-vardhanaṁ prati-padaṁ pūrṇāmṛtāsvādanaṁ. [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 1]

The ocean, as if, in that ebb and tide, and prati-padaṁ pūrṇāmṛtāsvādanaṁ. This is the peculiar characteristic of the Infinite, of the Absolute. Every moment He thinks He's enjoying new type of satisfaction, prati-padaṁ. Always new, never stale. One type of play is thousand times being repeated but it seems to be always new, evergreen, not stale. That is the characteristic of līlā - ever new, ever young, kiśora, nitya kaiśora isthati. That is the nearest to youth, not full grown youth, only going towards youth. That position has been given the example of Infinite characteristic. Not full blown youth, but just before that. That type, nitya kaiśora isthati, not yauvana. That is the nature given to us, the nature of Infinite is such, nitya kiśora.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Pramāṇa Mahārāja _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Pramāṇa Mahārāja, he has come?

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: With a new colour?

...

...to hear about Kṛṣṇa. All can join the class. Everyone can join the class. So grand, so generous, all comprehensive. Kṛṣṇa. All comprehensive. It is seen in Jagannātha Purī. Mahāprabhu accepted that position, that showed some sort of rāga-mārga, that Jagannātha's characteristic dealings there in Purī. We were told that when the chariot begins to move, the pāṇḍās they call bad name to anyone. With filthy words they - even to Jagannātha also, the form is not cared at all.

"Anyhow come in connection with Me and you are sure to be purified. Only some connection, you are free. You are given freedom, so I cannot interfere with your freedom. But anyhow connect with Me, good or bad, I shall capture you with that connection."

Prasāda, very generous treatment in prasāda. And also, and we're told, it is shameful _____ [?] we're told that so many figures on the temple very nasty scene of men, women union is shown on the outside the temple _____ [?] in Jagannātha temple. Very nasty type of men, women union, so such figures they are there, ordinary gentlemen will be very blush-full to look at those figures which is already carved in stone and set around the temple _____ [?] the dome of the temple. We're told. So, what does it show?

"I come down to the lowest type of wave of lust. And I promise to draw My lost servants from that layer. Even from that layer I have promised to take back My servants from the lowest position of their nasty life. That is the promise shown there. Otherwise in the temple those nasty figures of lady love as been depicted. Come to Me My child. You are in such worst condition. My heart's breaking, I can't tolerate."

From any position, as if a guardian enters into the prostitute's house to get his son from there. He's entering forcibly to the prostitute's house to take his son from there. Something like that.

So such is the search for lost servant. Loving search for lost servant, we find in Jagannātha. And Mahāprabhu selected His position there. So much generous and extensive is the _____ [?] the boundary line of His love, extending so much extension it has got. This phase is there in the heart of our Lord.

"Wherever you be, does not matter. It is My duty. You are My servant, you are My own. The responsibility is on My shoulder to rescue you at all cost."

When Lord comes with so much generosity, Who is He? And what type of things, what quality of things that come to connect with so low, still maintain His purity? Ordinary type if comes they'll prove to be polluted. But the best type.

Just as Hari Nāma, open to all, whoever he may be, without any caste, creed, he may get Hari Nāma. But that does not - why? Hari Nāma is of lower type, of lower quality, so it's meant only for the lower? It is so high that no lowest, nasty, can affect it. It is so pure. This is the underlying purpose. Hari Nāma is so pure, that even the most nasty touch cannot affect its purity. That is the underlying principle. 'It is for ordinary so it is a conception of lower purity to mix with them?'

That is not. The highest circle, greatest circle, and the mantram, which is considered to be given to a proper person, that is the lower circle within the higher circle, the main circle. Because,

kṛṣṇa-mantra haite habe saṁsāra mocana, [kṛṣṇa-nāma haite pābe kṛṣṇera caraṇa]

["Simply by chanting the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa one can obtain freedom from material existence. Indeed, simply by chanting the Hare Kṛṣṇa mantra one will be able to see the lotus feet of the Lord."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 7.73]

It will help us to get out of the negative side. And Hari Nāma from the lowest to the highest. Kṛṣṇa-nāma haite pābe kṛṣṇera caraṇa. Hari Nāma gives us the - helps us to enter into the positive. From the lowest to the highest, the greatest circle. And the mantram is the lower, small circle within the bigger circle. So from the lowest to the highest - Hari Nāma's jurisdiction. So how much purity is there which comes to, ventures to purify the lowest type of impurity?

Patita-pāvana. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura in his hundred and eight names.

patita-pāvana jagannātha sarvveśvara, vṛndāvana-candra sarvva-rasera ākara

["Lord Kṛṣṇa is the purifier of the fallen souls, the Lord of the universe, the Lord of all beings, the moon of Vṛndāvana and the origin of all rasas."] [The Songs Of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, p 92]

Vṛndāvana-candra Kṛṣṇa He's the source of all rasa, all forms of ecstatic engagement. But Jagannātha, patita-pāvana līlā is superior in Him, when Kṛṣṇa has become Jagannātha in Purī. And his book, and his future Maṭha in Jagannātha, that is making me say so much things _____ [?] Vyāso vetti na vetti vā.

The real purpose of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam is very difficult to conceive and can only be known through bhakti."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 24.313]

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Patita-pāvana jagannātha sarvveśvara, vṛndāvana- candra sarvva-rasera ākara. Mahāprabhu's selection particularly His selection to pass His time there.

There are so many remarks about Caitanyadeva. Some say, "Caitanyadeva is the cause of the fall of the Orissa empire. Pratāparudra, coming in His connection became a coward and he left his empire." Some scholars are researching. Another section - "Caitanya was murdered by the pāṇḍās because of His generous policy of dealing all good and bad in equal level." So the pāṇḍās saw that, "This will finish our dignity." So He was murdered. A new opinion is afoot now, blaspheming Caitanyadeva. These are all so called ornaments to Caitanya. He cannot be affected.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura.

So such critics they'll also not be able to come back from His capturing.

Akṣayānanda Mahārāja: Escape. They cannot escape.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Capturing the pastimes, they'll have to fall in the trap. Come to, like Jagāi, Mādhāi came to hit the head, but was captured. So generous with the līlā from the beginning. And Nityānanda Prabhu goes ahead.

Mahāprabhu, when blood shed from Nityānanda's body, Mahāprabhu was beside Himself. "I shall finish the world today. Nityānanda's blood oozing _____ [?]

Nityānanda Prabhu reminded Him. "Who are You My Lord? In this līlā those things won't do. You remember what līlā You have come to perform. In this līlā those things won't go on. We're to tolerate all this and still do good to others." Reminded by Nityānanda, to Mahāprabhu.

Ei bhaktya bhagavan [?] "My devotee is attacked - all My promise I may leave for the sake of My devotee. His honour is at stake, he's wounded, the blood oozing from his body. All My promises I can give up for the sake of My devotee." That was His attitude.

But Nityānanda pacified the devotee. Devotee came to His relief. "No, no, no, My Lord. You don't forget that what We've come for this time."

Or all searching Him, but unknowingly, and non-methodically. Sukha, happiness, pleasure, everyone wants, searching after, but does not know how to search that happiness properly, and what that thing really is. A scientific search of the pleasure, of the joy, scientific search. Kṛṣṇānusandhāna. The search will end in Him, the emporium of all rasa. Śanta, dāsya, sākhya, vātsalya, mādhurya, combination of all different types of pleasing substance, rasa.

For, who indeed, could breath, who could be alive if this Blissful Lord were not present within the hearts of all souls. He alone bestows ecstasy."]

[Taittirīya-Upaniṣad, 2.7]

...

Veda, the revealed scriptures _____ [?] which can supply ecstasy within us: our food.

Wordsworth says, "Human natures daily food." Ha, ha. "The phantom of delight." In the gross sense that is mentioned there. "Phantom of delight. Human natures daily food."

But that is in the highest sense. Human natures daily food can be found only in Kṛṣṇa conception. Wholesale satisfaction. In other words in that wonderful statement. Prati aṅga lāgi kānde, prati aṅga mora.

[Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī says: "My every limb is crying for the respective limb of My Lord; not only My Self, but every part of My Body earnestly aspires for the corresponding part of My Masters."]

[From Jñāna Dāsa's Vaiṣṇava-padāvali - Anthology of Vaiṣṇava Songs]

Every atom of our body is hankering to be united with the corresponding atom of that body. What to speak of us, the wholesale is being attracted there. Every atom there is attracting every atom in our body and saying, "Come here, get your satisfaction. If you combine you'll feel satisfaction. Kṛṣṇa is such."

Kṛṣ - ṇa, attracting and giving satisfaction. He's attracting everything and giving satisfaction to everything. That is food to the hungry, hungry mind. Mind is running here, there for satisfaction, but coming back disappointed. Mind is running on all sides, is very fickle, this side, that side, trying to get satisfaction, but it's coming back disappointed. But that mind can find satisfaction only with His connection.

akhila-rasāmṛta-mūrtiḥ [prasṛmara-ruci-ruddha-tārakā-pāliḥ
kalita-śyāmā-lalito rādhā-preyān vidhur jayati]

["Let Kṛṣṇa, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, be glorified! By virtue of His expanding attractive features, He subjugated the gopīs named Tārakā and Pāli and absorbed the minds of Śyāmā and Lalitā. He is the most attractive lover of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī and is the reservoir of pleasure for devotees in all transcendental mellows."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.142]

The nectarine figure, combination of all classes of satisfaction in harmony, we're told that, in Kṛṣṇa conception of Godhead. Family life, home life. I may not care to look after my own interest, but my home is always trying to satisfy me, beyond my consciousness. That is home. Home means beyond my consciousness, is trying to supply my fulfilment. That is home, all thinking well about me. My welfare is being designed and also disposed of. That is home, without my consciousness. Home means causeless affection, from mother's side, father's side, friend's side, wife's side, and the husband's side. Family all thinking good of another without his notice. Without his notice the very atmosphere is eager to supply welfare in this way for everybody. Home, so back to home. They're thinking good of us. Where everyone, every atom is thinking good of me and trying to give goodness in me. Home. We may not know, we're not conscious by which I'll be satisfied, but they know. The mother knows how to satisfy the child. So go to that higher existence, to take shelter in the higher existence of goodwill.

So these are indriya sukha, the sense perception, sense pleasure. Like so many prostitutes they're calling us for temporary satisfaction and then reaction. That sort of offer coming from the superficial surface of the world, sense satisfaction. Asad batya vesya [?] Dāsa Goswāmī says. "That without Kṛṣṇa, all the tidings, all calls of this surface nature they're like so many prostitutes. A temporary satisfaction and then reaction, so give them up, that false charm, sense...

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Badrinārāyaṇa: Muralidhar Prabhu, he has one question.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What is that?

Muralidhar: Mahārāja. I've heard that Kṛṣṇa is doing Gaura sevā. Is this right?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Guru sevā. He says that he has heard that Kṛṣṇa is doing Guru sevā. Is that correct?

Muralidhar: Gaura. Gaurāṅga.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Oh, Gaura sevā. Kṛṣṇa is doing Gaura, Mahāprabhu sevā. Is that right, is that correct?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Kṛṣṇa is serving Gaurāṅga? Yes. We can think that Kṛṣṇa is charmed by His own parallel existence of Gaurāṅga. He's charmed by Him because Gaurāṅga means Kṛṣṇa and Rādhā. Kṛṣṇa is one. Gaurāṅga is combination of Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, so that is more. And Gaurāṅga is prepared to distribute the Kṛṣṇa prema to one and all. He's extending the market of the same, for distribution of the Divine Love, magnanimous Kṛṣṇa. When Kṛṣṇa comes in the mood of Rādhā, Both combined comes to distribute Their inner wealth to one and all to the public for their benefit, that Kṛṣṇa is Gaurāṅga. Not only Kṛṣṇa - Kṛṣṇa in the mood of Rādhā and engaged in the distribution of His own wealth to the outside people. So for us, Kṛṣṇa is more valuable when He's Gaurāṅga, because there we get our heart's satisfaction. He's distributing Himself. In that, Gaurāṅga is higher than Kṛṣṇa, Gaura līlā. Kṛṣṇa engaged in distributing Himself causelessly to the others. So that is higher for us. ["I worship Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, who is Kṛṣṇa Himself, enriched with the emotions and radiance of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī. As the Predominating and Predominated Moieties, Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa are eternally one, with separate individual identities. Now They have again united as Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya. This inconceivable transformation of the Lord's internal pleasure-giving potency has arisen from the loving affairs of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 1.5]

Though They're One, in Vṛndāvana līlā They became Two, divided. And again in Gaura līlā They're Both eternal, always in two moods, one combined, and one different, half and half, for Their līlā, pastimes. One thing being divided. Whole into one becomes Gaurāṅga, not brahman. According to jñānīs the whole śakti ____ [?] the potency and the owner of the potency combined. The jñānīs say then it is non- differentiated brahman. But to us that is not non-differentiated brahman, that becomes Gaurāṅga, searching Himself. Sva-bhajana-prayojana-vibhajana. When One, Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, the Potency and the Owner of the Potency combine together in One Whole Absolute, then He's searching Himself, He's feeling Himself, searching Himself, and in that way He's distributing Himself to others. In Prema Dhāma Stotra I have got, ātma-siddha-sāva līla-pūrṇa-saukhya-lakṣaṇaṁ svānubhāva-matta-nṛtya-kīrtanātma-vanṭanam [advayaika-lakṣya-purṇa-tattva-tat-parātparaṁ

prema-dhāma-devam-eva naumi gaura-sundaram]

["The highest conception of the Absolute Truth must also be the highest form of ānanda, ecstasy. Mahāprabhu's dancing indicates that He is full of ecstasy, and His kīrtana is distribution of that rasa. So, if we scientifically search out who Mahāprabhu is, we cannot but find that He is the Ultimate Reality. He is mad in tasting His Own internal nectar, and His dancing is the outcome of His transcendental ecstasy. And He is chanting, distributing that to others. So, studying quite closely the character of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, we cannot but think that He is the Supreme Absolute Truth, in Its fullest, and most dynamic expression."] [Prema Dhāma Deva Stotram, 66]

The sign of the Absolute, Perfect and Full Absolute will be this, that He's dancing because He's overjoyed in His inner satisfaction. Who is satisfied with Himself, and nothing to search for His satisfaction outside, He will dance. The dancing attitude is showing that He's full in Himself. And the kīrtana, chanting, distributing that to others. That we find in Gaurāṅga. His dancing, that He's full in Himself. And kīrtana, chanting, He's distributing that. And this is self-evident, and this is the sign of the fullest substance of the Highest Absolute. Kīrtanātma advayaika. That is mentioned in one stanza in Prema Dhāma Stotra. Pūrṇa- saukhya-lakṣaṇaṁ. The satisfaction, that ānandam, ecstasy in its fullest conception will be, will have such sign, such symptom. What? That He's dancing in Himself, that is, He's full in Himself. And His chanting, He's giving Himself out to the environment. That should be the highest ideal of the Absolute Happiness, and that we find in Gaurāṅga. Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa together. Do you follow? What do you say? Eh?

Muralidhar: Yes, a little.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. I tried to express this idea in that stanza in Prema Dhāma Stotra.

And Svarūpa Dāmodara says, Rādhā kṛṣṇa-praṇaya-vikṛtir hlādinī śaktir [C.c, Ādi-līlā, 1.5]
"Who is Rādhārāṇī? She's the love of Kṛṣṇa in a particular form, the object of love of Kṛṣṇa. So They're one and same. The love, the affection of Kṛṣṇa in particular form, so it belongs to Kṛṣṇa, so it is one. But still for the pastimes in Dvāpara-yuga They become divided in Vṛndāvana līlā - two parties, one Predominating, another Predominated Moiety. They parted with Their own paraphernalia and began Their pastimes in different way, Their play. And again They come together, combine together, become Gaurāṅga and began to distribute Himself to the public, automatically by nature.

"Come, take Me. I am yours also, in the mood of Rādhārāṇī."

Their own common treasure They began to loot, to allow Them to be looted. Both, with the consent, Both the parties They began to be looted by the public. "Take this." They allowed Their treasure to be looted. Both combined. None to give objection - combined - Gaurāṅga. So Gaurāṅga is our greater shelter.

yathā yathā gaura padāravinde, vindeta bhaktiṁ kṛta puṇya rāśiḥ
tathā tathot sarpati hṛdy akasmāt, rādhā padāmbhoja sudhāmbhu-rāśiḥ

[Prabodhānanda Saraswatī Ṭhākura says: "As much as we devote ourselves to the lotus feet of Śrī Gaurāṅga, we will automatically achieve the nectarine service of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī in Vṛndāvana. An investment in Navadwīpa Dhāma will automatically take one to Vṛndāvana. How one will be carried there will be unknown to him. But those who have good fortune invest everything in the service of Gaurāṅga. If they do that, they will find that everything has automatically been offered to the divine feet of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī. She will accept them in Her confidential service and give them engagement, saying: "Oh, you have a good recommendation from Navadwīpa; I immediately appoint you to this service."
[Caitanya-candrāmṛta, 88]

If you can secure a card, admission card from Gaurāṅga, you'll find that automatically you are present in the harem of Kṛṣṇa. You're in the group of Rādhārāṇī, engaged in such. Admission card issued from here, and you're accepted in the confidential circle of service there.

So Nityānanda Prabhu tried His best. "Anyhow connect yourself with Gaurāṅga. Oh fallen souls, My friends, connect yourself with Gaurāṅga anyhow. It is very easy for you. For the fallen souls, it is very easy to make connection with Gaurāṅga. And automatically everything will come unexpectedly to you for your inner heart's satisfaction. Anyhow come." From door to door He canvassed. "Have a connection with Gaurāṅga, have a connection with Gaurāṅga, and you'll be richest of the rich." Door to door Nityānanda Prabhu wandered.

bhaja gaurāṅga, kaha gaurāṅga laha gauranger nāma,
yei jana gaurāṅga bhaje sei amāra prāna.

["Worship Gaurāṅga, speak of Gaurāṅga, chant Gaurāṅga's Name. Whoever worships Śrī Gaurāṅga is My life and soul. Come straight to the campaign of Śrī Caitanya and you will safely attain Vṛndāvana."] eta bali nityānanda bhūme gaḍi yāya

[yena bhaje tāre bale danta tṛṇa dhari, āmāre kiniyā laha bala gaura-hari eta bali nityānanda bhūme gaḍi yāya, sonāra parvata yena dhūlāya loṭāya]

[Locana dāsa Ṭhākur said: "The compassionate Nityānanda Prabhu most humbly approached those who did not feel any loving appreciation for Śrī Gaurāṅga due to their false pride and hard heartedness. Not to hurt their pride, He took a few blades of grass between His teeth as a token of humility and appealed to them saying, "O dear friend, try to understand that your own highest good is Gaura Hari. You can attain the greatest fortune of your life if you connect to Him with love and devotion. Please take His Holy Name, even if only once, and chant it from the core of your heart. With devotional faith speak about His glories and share your relish with other devotees. Sincerely pray for His grace, for you will surely receive great spiritual benefit. I am your most well wishing friend. If you can please take My advice and act accordingly then you can own Me forever."] [Śrī Bhakti Rakṣaka Bhajana Madhuri, p 4]

He began to roll on the door of the customers. "Take Gaurāṅga. Take Gaurāṅga." With tears in His eyes, that golden body began to roll on the door of so many customers. "Accept Gaurāṅga. Take Gaurāṅga. You don't know what is passing away from your door. Accept Gaurāṅga."

Then how is Nityānanda?

Nitāiyer koruṇā habe, braje rādhā-kṛṣṇa [From Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's Manaḥ-śikṣā]

Everything will be in your fist. Try to have the grace of Nityānanda. He can give Gaurāṅga. And if you get Gaurāṅga you've got everything - the consent - Both the parties, Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa. And not only those sound symbols, but the meaning underlining we're to try to follow, what is meant by these sounds.

na te viduḥ svārtha-gatiṁ hi viṣṇuṁ, durāśayā ye bahir-artha-māninaḥ
[andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās, te 'pīśa-tantryām uru-dāmni baddhāḥ]

[Prahlāda Mahārāja says: "Persons who are strongly entrapped by the consciousness of enjoying material life, and who have therefore accepted as their leader or guru a similar blind man attached to external sense objects, cannot understand that the goal of life is to return home, back to Godhead, and engage in the service of Lord Viṣṇu. As blind men guided by another blind man miss the right path and fall into a ditch, materially attached men led by another materially attached man are bound by the ropes of fruitive labour, which are made of very strong cords, and they continue again and again in materialistic life, suffering the threefold miseries."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.31]

From the external side, not to consider, but the substance within, we're to search for that. We're to search for the meaning. Artheṣu abhijñaḥ. The real meaning, the hit, the mark, what does it mean, the substance? Brahma-jijñāsā and kṛṣṇānusandhāna. Search for Kṛṣṇa, Reality the Beautiful. Dive deep. Die to live. Not only here in the superficial surface of your sensual sense experience, you're to die, dive deep into reality. Ādau śraddhā tataḥ sādhu-saṅga', bhajana-kriyā, anartha-nivṛttiḥ, niṣṭhā, ruci, āsakti, bhāva, then prema.

[ādau śraddhā tataḥ sādhu-saṅgo' tha bhajana-kriyā
tato' nartha-nivṛttiḥ syāt tato niṣṭhā rucis tataḥ
athāsaktis tato bhāvas tataḥ premābhyudañcati
sādhakānām ayaṁ premṇaḥ prādurbhāve bhavet kramaḥ]

["In the beginning there must be faith. Then one becomes interested in associating with pure devotees. Thereafter one is initiated by the spiritual master and executes the regulative principles under his orders. Thus one is freed from all unwanted habits and becomes firmly fixed in devotional service. Thereafter, one develops taste and then attachment. This is the way of sādhana-bhakti, the execution of devotional service according to the regulative principles. Gradually spiritual emotions manifest and intensify, then finally there is an awakening of divine love. This is the gradual development of love of Godhead for the devotee interested in Kṛṣṇa consciousness."] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, 1.4.15-16]

So many stages we're to pass through to dive deep into the reality. So many superficial covers, so many stages of our mental covers we're to pass through, and then we're to come into a touch of the reality. To die to live. So our progress, speed, that will be such that we're to pass through all these covers and to enter into the substantial world.

Ādau śraddhā, first faith. Then sādhu-saṅga, keeping company with those agents, sādhu-saṅga. Bhajana-kriyā, then as they advise us to discharge those duties, that cultivation, culture. To hear, to speak, to receive, to distribute, and so many others for recollection with serving attitude, bhajana-kriyā. Then anartha-nivṛttiḥ. The ulterior demands of our superficial nature they will disappear. Then niṣṭhā. A continuous aspiration for Kṛṣṇa, for the inner substance. Continuous, without any interruption by any superficial demand, niṣṭhā. Ruci. Then taste will be created for that. Before that the taste cannot be relied on. But when after continuous attempt for the truth the taste will come that is reliable, genuine taste, ruci. Then that will increase into āsakti, when we can't tolerate any separation from that taste of particular truth, āsakti. Then bhāva, a superficial connection with reality. Then prema, when we enter into the reality.

And then the positive development, sneha, mana, praṇaya, rāga, anurāga, bhāva, mahābhāva. And a positive participation into reality will create so many things in us. The process is there. It is not imagination, but by the process of elimination the progress, elimination and acceptance is there. Then what is real to us at present, the sense experience world, that will evaporate and we shall find ourselves in the midst of the inner world. Like a yogī, like a deep scientific scholar engaged in research, forgetting the world - that is very meagre example, more deep an interest we will find there - the forgetfulness of this cover.

[andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās, te 'pīśa-tantryām uru-dāmni baddhāḥ]

[Prahlāda Mahārāja says: "Persons who are strongly entrapped by the consciousness of enjoying material life, and who have therefore accepted as their leader or guru a similar blind man attached to external sense objects, cannot understand that the goal of life is to return home, back to Godhead, and engage in the service of Lord Viṣṇu. We're reading only the cover, over the surface of the world. We're misreading things because we're reading only on the cover. But what is inner substance we do not care to know, and that we're to go. It is the cover floating on our consciousness. Leaving the cover, we shall try to enter into deep consciousness.

"Consciousness, you give me experience of this world of sense experience I don't like. I want to exploit you deeper."

We're to enter into our own consciousness - our consciousness is a part of the whole consciousness. So we're to tackle the extensive consciousness, and we're a part of that. So subjective exploitation, not in the objective side, that the stone, the fossil, this earth or the water, no. Subjective consciousness we shall have to enter into, the causal truth. And gradually we shall find these things. The source of knowledge we're to tackle, we're to enter into the fountain from where the water is oozing. Water is coming outside through the fountain. We're to enter into the fountain to understand what type of water, how it is stocked, where, in what way. So enter into the source of knowledge to find out where from it comes. Against the current we're to move. And what is the product of the current? Just floating on our senses, and it is transient, and it is reactionary. So we're to enter into the source, and to have proper exploitation with the help of the agents there.

Ātmā, Paramātmā, then Bhagavān conception, bhajanīya. Ultimately we shall find that we're to serve the wonderful substance of ecstasy. And if we can engage ourselves, get slavery into that part, we shall find our fate is, fortune is fulfilled. Such high, high kind of pleasure is there, satisfaction is there. Anyhow, any neglectful connection if we get with that, we shall see all our fulfilment, final fulfilment we have got, a slight connection of that treasure. The source of all knowledge and all ecstasy. We can approach that way. Subjective enquiry - against the current we shall have to go.

Devotee: Mahārāja. I have one question. Is cultivation more important, or preaching?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What?

Devotee: Is cultivation of Kṛṣṇa consciousness more important, or preaching of Kṛṣṇa consciousness?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Preaching?

Devotee: Yes. Self cultivation, improvement - or preaching to others?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Preaching is the highest form of cultivation. Intensified culture is preaching, kīrtana. Offensive for offensive. To help others and to eliminate, to push the water. The jet plane of the British, they devour air in the front and pass it forcibly. Just as in swimming, we push the water back and we make progress. Kīrtana is like that - a jet plane, pushing back.

The poison that is coming to attack, to deal with nectar, that sort of poison, for me and for others also, the whole environment. Culture means it is concerned with you only, one. But here we're concerned with the whole environment. We're purifying the whole environment. More force is necessary. To purify the environment, and the same time to become the source of purification, that is more attraction of capital from the higher. We're to draw - if we distribute things, then we're to indent more from the higher capitalist. And more extensive, more forceful when not to purify myself, but when trying to purify the environment, more forceful action, and thereby we're benefited.

From another side, it helps others, and as a reaction I get some reward from higher because I'm helping others. Along with my own realisation I'm helping the realisation of so many, so I get reward from there. And for me also, I can exhaust myself in engaging my whole energy when I'm engaged in kīrtana. Concentration - that is I can utilise myself more extensively when I engage myself in kīrtana, purifying the atmosphere, not only myself within. This is weak, smaraṇa, the meditation is weak, but kīrtana is strong. In meditation, self-deception may enter easily, but in kīrtana we may not be irrelevant, all attention we must have to give. The circumstance will help me to be all attentive. So in many ways kīrtana, especially in Kali- yuga, it is more helpful. It is recommended like that. Offensive for offensive. And also helping so many. That is a great thing.

[agha-cchit smaraṇaṁ viṣṇor, bahv-āyāsena sādhyate]
oṣṭha-spandana-mātreṇa, kīrtanaṁ tu tato varam

["Although capable of destroying all sins, the remembrance of Lord Viṣṇu is achieved only with extraordinary effort. On the other hand, one may perform Kṛṣṇa kīrtana simply by moving one's lips, and thus this process is superior."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.5.38-40, purport - Vaiṣṇava-cintāmaṇi]

[Śrī Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 17.19 - Hari-bhakti-vilāsa, 11.453]

So smaraṇa, the meditation is weak, and even if you have slight kīrtana, by moving your lips, that is also better because so many subtle elements are outside they're helped by the movement of your lips. Then high kīrtana, loud kīrtana, that is more beneficial, helping so many. And your exertion is also to intensified degree. You'll have to engage every nerve for that purpose, more relevant, more attentive, you can engage yourself best in kīrtana. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Kīrtana. You're to assert yourself more when engaged in kīrtana.

Devotee: Mahārāja. One more question. When we go for collection, when we go to give sukṛti, while preaching, is it more important to concentrate on taking their energy, or preaching?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Both. In kīrtana, yes, you're also to assert yourself why you have come for collection. So you're to convince him, you're to exercise all your nerve to convince him about the Kṛṣṇa conception. "That is the better prospect of life." You're to establish, and then to get some energy from him to be utilised for the service of the Lord. And doing some positive good in that person that his energy is being utilised for the service.

And you're distributing sukṛti. His action is being utilised through you for his future best benefit. So that is also more helpful. To do kīrtana, to try to let him know what is his own benefit, and also to help him by utilising his energy for the service of that purpose. That will be more beneficial, collection, bhikṣā, by Kṛṣṇa kīrtana. And you're to exercise your own capacity to the fullest extent to collect something from him, to convince him, so that he must contribute something. So your exertion to convince him will be more intensified, that you're to convince him and to get some energy from him, convince him. So that will be more intense, this Kṛṣṇa kīrtana.

Devotee: Merely preaching and not taking money is useless? Unless he gives some money, his energy...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is also something, not useless, something. But that will be more fruitful and practical when you can collect some energy from him and to utilise double benefit for them. And you'll be rewarded in that way from the upper house. Not only you're trying to give him entrance into - but practically his past life also you're engaging by connecting his energy. His past life, you have collected something, his energy you're utilising and taking that, his past life also is engaged in the service. And at present when you're talking with him you're capturing his present time. And the past time when you get some energy of him, that is also utilised. And if you can create śraddhā, then his future also you're trying to engage. He will do again in future. And you'll be benefited, rewarded accordingly, from your Master.

85.07.21.C_85.07.30.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...material service, that is the money and the body service, that is for the beginners. But that is not the highest. Highest service is the service of the soul proper. But because he's engaged in these material things to collect them to draw his attention, where his money is going, energy is going, his attention is drawn towards that. In that way. If the child is taken away, the motherly affection will run that way. So a lover of money, and if he gives some money, his attention will be drawn to that direction. So you're taking the money, you're attracting his attention. Otherwise it is difficult to draw his attention towards this. But if you can get some money from him, his attention will be automatically drawn towards.

Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes. So sometimes - should I mention to them - that if I meet an engineer, should I mention that I'm an engineer, my past life, should I mention?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: If necessary you may do anything. "I'm so and so." To canvas yourself that "Being so and so, I've also engaged myself in this way. So you try to understand that this is not a futile thing, this is a bigger thing." If necessary you can give the example of so many others, and if necessary for you also you can say that "I'm such and such, and I admit this. So you try to follow. It is not ordinary thing, a thing of lower conception." In this way if necessary to convince him to show yourself you'll show.

Devotee: Past identity also we can mention? No?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: If necessary in particular cases. "In past life I was so. I'm converted in this way." That may help a particular man to follow the path. If it's utilised, not to canvas yourself, but if it's in the utility of that person, then you can do, give statement of your own history, own example.

kṛṣṇa-bhakti-janma-mūla haya 'sādhu-saṅga', [kṛṣṇa-prema janme, teṅho punar mukhya aṅga]

["The root cause of devotional service to Lord Kṛṣṇa is association with advanced devotees. Even when one's dormant love for Kṛṣṇa awakens, association with devotees is still most essential."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 22.83]

The very beginning of our spiritual life comes from the contact of the saints. And Kṛṣṇa prema, and gradually make progress, janme. Teṅho punar mukhya. Still the sādhu, the saints are our hope and help. From the beginning up to end of life the association of the saint is the most important and unavoidable thing. And the saṅga, association means with serving attitude. Do you understand?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: A few hours after it will be as it was, eh?

Devotee: What?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Any understanding proper, no?

Devotee: Yes, yes, yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then you'll be able to reply such questions to others? If anyone questions you, what you did just now, will you be able to answer, reply them?

Devotee: Yes. I will try my best.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Association with the saints. Whenever some disease is there then some antidote is necessary. So we're suffering from misunderstanding, proper understanding is necessary wherever it is found. We can find proper understanding with the saints, from the saints. So necessarily, naturally, we want them to remove our disease.

Only removal and dissolution, dissolution and removal must be of perfect type, not haphazard, then we can be satisfied with mere renunciation and liberation only. But positive attainment is necessary. That is, the real ego must be awakened. Not only this ego will be dissolved, but real ego must be awakened. _____ [?]

Badrinārāyaṇa: Muralidhar Prabhu.

Muralidhar: Mahārāja. I have one question Mahārāja. We've heard that in rāga-mārga, one devotee he may disregard some of the directions in the scriptures. But we're feeling that we should be very careful that we do not become sahajiyā by disregarding śāstra.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He says Mahārāja. In rāga-mārga, sometimes the devotee disregards scriptural injunctions. But he's feeling that he must be careful that not to become sahajiyā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. The sahajiyāism that is not rāga-mārga proper, that is imitation. So a bona fide student will avoid that sort of imitation, sahajiyā. We're to cross Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa. 'Virajā,' 'brahmaloka,' bhedi' 'paravyoma' tabe yāya tad upari.

[upajiyā bāḍe latā 'brahmāṇḍa' bhedi' yāya, 'virajā,' 'brahmaloka,' bhedi' 'paravyoma' pāya tabe yāya tad upari 'goloka-vṛndāvana', 'kṛṣṇa-caraṇa'-kalpavṛkṣe kare ārohana]

["The creeper of devotion is born, and grows to pierce the wall of the universe. It crosses the Virajā river and the Brahman plane, and reaches to the Vaikuṇṭha plane. Then it grows further up to Goloka Vṛndāvana, finally reaching to embrace the wish-yielding tree of Kṛṣṇa's Lotus Feet."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.153-4]

Step by step, we must not omit. That is Super Subjective area, not any object of our senses, after renunciation, above renunciation. Rāga, this anurāga, our affinity for Kṛṣṇa, that is not very cheap thing. We're to understand what is Kṛṣṇa consciousness really, what is Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. That is Super Subjective. Without dedication, in the area of material zone, we should not deceive us thinking to find Him.

Madhvācārya wrote, he gave a hundred points against māyāvāda, mere renunciation. And our Guru Mahārāja gave a hundred points against sahajiyāvāda, to guard against this sahajiyāism, that imitation Kṛṣṇa bhajan in material life. Hundred points. Prākṛta-rasa Śata-Dūṣaṇī.

...

Devotee: _____ [?] āula, bāula, karttābhajā, neḍā, daraveśa, sāṅi.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: [12:33 - 15:30 ?]

Only taste, the most valuable thing within us, whatever the quantity, the smallest quantity of taste for the Supreme, that should be made capital. And cultivate it in the proper association and you can go straight quickly and happily. [16:00 - 16:56 ?]

A part of the taste, inner hankering earnest for the Lord. You accept that only as your capital and begin your business. Very soon you will reach the goal. Neither knowledge nor power - try to utilise for the purpose, only the inner taste, whatever small quantity it may be. But exclusively you accept that and go to persons who are cultivating that. Thereby in a shortest time you can reach the final goal.

pāta-i nānā-bidha fānd so-sabu--bañcaka, tuwā bhakti bahir-mukha, ghaṭāowe biṣama paramād baimukha-bañcane, bhaṭa so-sabu, niramilo vividha pasār daṇḍabat dūrato, bhakativinoda bhelo, bhakata-caraṇa kori' sār.

[Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura's Bhakti-pratikūla-bhāva Varjanāṅgīkāra, Renunciation of conduct averse to pure devotion.]

Ultimately they offer either higher type of enjoyment or total renunciation. Bhukti, mukti jācato, pāta-i nānā-bidha fānd. And so many traps they've prepared to catch you, nānā-bidha fānd. So-sabu--bañcaka, tuwā bhakti bahir-mukha. But they're all deceivers, they have nothing to give delivery about your love, ghaṭāowe biṣama paramād. Bhakativinoda bhelo, bhakata-caraṇa kori' sār. Give up, reject everything summarily, and try to catch hold of the divine feet of the śuddha bhakta, pure devotee. Eliminate all these things, they're all agents of the Satan of different type offering.

Pure devotion exclusive, want Kṛṣṇa only, exclusively, nothing else. Neither renunciation, nor knowledge, nor power, nor mysterious powers, nothing. Bhukti, mukti, siddhi, these are the alternatives we can aspire after, but clear off them. And viddhi bhakti also, the calculative devotion according to śāstra, but no. Spontaneous devotion, heart to heart, no calculation. Be desperate in throwing you towards the fire of love. Throw yourself and you'll find that the fire is not fire, the fire is very soothing atmosphere. Prahlāda was thrown into fire, but that was like mother's lap to him.

No risk no gain. Take risk, and that must be sincere, from the heart, from the bottom of your heart, sincere. Eliminating everything than Kṛṣṇa. And more helpful, the highest servitor of Kṛṣṇa, more reliable. That is Rādhā dāsya. The best servitor of Kṛṣṇa, that will be your mark, ideal. The best servant of Kṛṣṇa, that should be the only ideal, to reach there.

The sahajiyā they want to get it very cheaply, mix their mental things in some least connection with divinity. Really culturing ninety cent per cent in the material, in the kāma. Lust and love opposite. We should not misunderstand lust as love. Atendriya priti vancha. The pleasure of our own senses, ego, that is lust. And the satisfaction of Kṛṣṇa, that is the opposite side, that is love. Prema and kāma, similar but the opposite thing, perverted reflection. Reflection, and that is perverted reflection. The highest thing there reflected as being the lowest. Just as a tree standing on the bank of the tank, the highest peak of the tree is seen in the reflection to be the lowest. So it is reflect kāma, self centred, sense centred. And Kṛṣṇa centred the opposite. Centre centering, the end of the inner current. And this sense centering that is end of the outer current, taking away from Kṛṣṇa. This nasty ego, his sense satisfaction. And to find Kṛṣṇa, Brahman, Paramātmā, Bhagavān, in this way theistic development, and to find out Kṛṣṇa. All accommodating loving centre. And then to try to merge in His interest, just opposite. Which is very rare even for the liberated souls, what to speak of these so many fallen souls under bondage with nasty ideal.

Rūpa Goswāmī says, "Whenever I got the touch of the shadow of real Kṛṣṇa prema of Kṛṣṇa, from that time this worldly sense pleasure became so nasty to me that whenever thinking that some spit comes in my tongue."

yad-avadhi mama cetaḥ kṛṣṇa padāravinde, nava-nava-rasa-dhāmany udyataṁ rantum āsīt tad-avadhi bata nāri-saṅgame smaryamāne, bhavati mukha-vikaraḥ suṣṭhu niṣṭhīvanaṁ ca

["Since I have been engaged in the transcendental loving service of Kṛṣṇa, realising ever-new pleasure in Him, whenever I think of sex-pleasure, I spit at the thought, and my lips curl with distaste."]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, dakṣiṇa-vibhāga, 5.39 - quoted from Yamunācārya]

"Whenever I came in connection with Kṛṣṇa consciousness with different types of astounding, ecstatic joy, from that time if any human sensualism comes to my mind then my whole figure becomes awkward and some spit comes in my tongue. In hate, hatefulness, extreme hate comes to mind."

One side so noble thing, another side so nasty thing. Sense experience, sense pleasure, which we can have by union of the male and female, that is the nasty thing. And it is the noblest thing towards Kṛṣṇa, opposite thing. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura says, kāma-preme dekho bhāi, lakṣanete bheda nāi, tabhu kāma 'premaʹ nāhi haya

["My brother, lust and love appear as one and the same; yet, lust is never love."]

[Kalyāṇa Kalpataru, Upadeśa 18]

Apparently there's no difference between this lust and love. Tabhu kāma 'premaʹ nāhi haya. Still, you must be fully confident that lust is not love. Rakta-māṁsamaya kāma. The lust is concerning only flesh and blood. And prema, cid-ānanda-dhāma. And the love just the opposite of the soul's reach in the highest level. Just the opposite, Sumeru, Kumeru, that north pole and south pole, just opposite. One extremely to become slave to the sense pleasure, that is fleshy things. Another, the soul's highest reach in the domain of high, noble sacrifice. The love of the centre, just as love of ones selfish family, and the love of the country, opposite. For the interest of the country he's to sacrifice his family interest, similar. For the negligent part, and for the whole centre, sacrifice for that, wholesale sacrifice.

Indradyumna: Guru Mahārāja. So how is it possible to detach from the gṛhastha āśrama, to rise?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Indradyumna Prabhu.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does he say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: How is it possible to become detached from the gṛhastha āśrama?

Indradyumna: And rise to the high point of realisation.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Gṛhastha āśrama, by increasing our association with the exclusive devotion, devotees...

Indradyumna: But it's something gradual?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...then even so much so the household members should be considered like enemies. They're swallowing my energy which may be utilised for Kṛṣṇa's purpose. Search for Kṛṣṇa. Search for Kṛṣṇa. That valuable time is being wasted in time for searching for the food and clothing of the children and wife. That will be in mind. "I cannot be exclusively devoted towards Kṛṣṇa. They're drawing me on the back side. 'Oh, see, look out for us, our interest.'"

But if the household, the wife may be a devotee even of higher type than the husband then she'll promote. "Go ahead, don't care for us." That will be the direction. "Go ahead, go ahead." Then she's not a wife she's a sādhu, her connection will help us, the Vaiṣṇava.

Kṛṣṇa consciousness in the beginning that is a hazy thing. But the Vaiṣṇava consciousness, the ideal of a proper Vaiṣṇava, if that attracts us that will be more tangible and helpful. So it has been laid stress in the service of a Vaiṣṇava than Viṣṇu Himself.

ārādhanānām sarveśāṁ, viṣṇor ārādhanaṁ param [tasmāt parataraṁ devi, tadīyānām samārcanam]

["Lord Śiva told the goddess Durgā:] 'My dear Devī, although the Vedas recommend worship of demigods, the worship of Lord Viṣṇu is topmost. However, above the worship of Lord Viṣṇu is the rendering of service to Vaiṣṇavas, who are related to Lord Viṣṇu.'"]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 11.31]

Of all services, the service to Viṣṇu is the highest. Tasmāt parataraṁ devi, tadīyānām samārcanam. Even higher than that to serve a Vaiṣṇava. That is tangible, that can help us more. We can have some concrete association with them, they're more encouraging. So more substantial progress can be done if we can have real attraction for a Vaiṣṇava, Guru Vaiṣṇava. That is more helpful. Something concrete we can see if we have - but that is also a stage of progress.

In ordinary case we do not like the service of a Vaiṣṇava. That is considering him that he's also a man. "I'm searching for God, why should I waste my energy for the service of a man? He may have some devotion, but still he's not the highest."

Ha, ha. But when we really want to make progress then we'll have to understand, must understand, that my attraction for the Vaiṣṇava that is more helpful. My energy is utilised in a more concrete way. Towards God, more or less abstract. I cannot have direct conception of Him, so that my endeavour is more of some abstract type. But Vaiṣṇava service becomes more concrete thing to me and thereby I can raise my condition, my faith, more and more towards something tangible.

But that requires some higher position. That sort of confidence in Vaiṣṇava that is not very easy. But if one can attain that stage he's now almost safe in his position. By the company of the association our journey towards Kṛṣṇa is more or less guaranteed.

I'm going to some unknown place, but on the way I've heard that about a particular destination and I'm captured by the charm of that goal, I'm going there. But if I get a company on the road who is also going there, and who has got some more knowledge about the goal, then I'm, very happily I can go there. If I get a real company, good company, who wants to go to the same goal, and he's got some more knowledge than myself, then my journey becomes very easy and happy journey. So.

[ādaraḥ paricaryāyāṁ, sarvāṅgair abhivandanam]
mad-bhakta-pūjābhyadhikā, sarva-bhūteṣu man-matiḥ

[Kṛṣṇa said: "My devotees take great care and respect in rendering Me service, offering obeisances with all their bodily limbs, and - above all - worshipping My devotees. They see all living entities as related to Me."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.19.21] & [Gauḍīya Kaṇṭhahāra, 13.59]

"To serve My devotees is better than to serve Me. In that way, in every stage."

Indradyumna: Guru Mahārāja. Could you explain about...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So that, when we've got attraction for Kṛṣṇa only, that is the primary stage of devotion. When we've got faith in His devotees, and want to serve them, then one step I've been raised. Madhyama-adhikāra. The test, how to test the progress of us, of the devotees, if we find that he's got attraction for the Lord and not devotees, he's in the primary stage. But when we find that he's got faith in the devotees of the Lord, then he comes in the intermediate stage.

arcayam eva haraye, pūjām yaḥ śraddhāyehate
na tad-bhakteṣu cānyeṣu, sa bhaktaḥ prākṛtaḥ smṛtaḥ

["A devotee who faithfully worships the Deity, but does not properly respect the Vaiṣṇavas or the people in general is called a materialistic devotee, and is considered to be in the lowest position of devotional service."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.2.47]

īśvare tad-adhīneṣu, bāliśeṣu dviṣatsu ca
prema-maitri-kṛpopekṣa, yaḥ karoti sa madhyamaḥ

["The devotee in the intermediate stage of devotional service is called a madhyama-adhikārī. He loves the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is a sincere friend to all the devotees of the Lord, shows mercy to the innocent and disregards the envious."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.2.46]

When the developed stage will show all these signs, attraction for the Lord, īśvare, and the friendship with the Vaiṣṇava, His servitors, and our sympathy with the ordinary people so that they may have affection for Kṛṣṇa, and those that are anti devotees we shall be indifferent to them. Then we come in the middle stage of a servitor. Eh? What do you say? What does he say?

Indradyumna: We heard that the relation with the Guru and the disciples are eternal. Can you explain that eternal relation?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He says that he has heard the relationship between Guru and disciple is eternal. Can you explain that?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Eternal. But the first vision - Guru means the inner Guru. That is, the first conception of Guru is not the whole thing, it has to change gradually. That primary teacher, then any higher education teacher. The teaching is continuing, teacher's position, he has come to teach me. If I'm alert then I can find that, but formally, physically that may be changed. But when education of a particular department may grow, and the teachers also may be changed - the flow inside of the teacher, teaching staff, that is one and same. In that way. We shall try to find out Guru, and the Guru is inside also, caitya-guru. The caitya-guru will help us to know the real Guru with the development. The principle of Guru is one and same, but according to my progress the external aspect may change. So it is told that Lord Himself is Guru.

ācāryaṁ māṁ vijānīyān, [nāvamanyeta karhicit na martya-buddhyāsūyeta, sarva-deva-mayo guruḥ]

["One should know the Ācārya as Myself and never disrespect him in any way. One should not envy him, thinking him an ordinary man, for he is the representative of all the demigods."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.17.27] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 1.46]

He has come to make Himself known to me. My sincere hankering to know Him has moved His heart and He's coming to accept me through agents. The company may have different agents, like that. Ācāryaṁ māṁ vijānīyān. He's in Guru. We're to try to understand that He Himself is Guru. His potency of distributing Himself to others, that potency is Guru. That aspect of the Supreme which tries to make Himself known to the others, that aspect, that function of Him is Guru. And that, formerly, according to my capacity it may change.

So our guru-paramparā is śikṣā guru-paramparā. Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanya, beginning from. Then Svarūpa Dāmodara. Then comes Rūpa, Sanātana. Then comes Raghunātha, Kavirāja Goswāmī, in the śikṣā guru-paramparā. The current coming we're to understand, according to our inner sincerity the current is coming, and what is suiting my taste. Śanta, dāsya, sākhya, vātsalya, mādhurya. We're to accept that current. Actually it is so.

Even the gifts are not only Guru but even the religious forms also. A Christian, Mohammedan, becoming a Hindu. A Hindu is becoming a Christian. In this way, according to his inner capacity they change, Guru, creed, all these things. But there is comparative study, but comparative study does not mean that all comparison is true. The real comparison must be there, if we can leave Christianity and accept Vaiṣṇavaism, eh?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...His representative. There is living Guru in the dynamic life, in the life of progress. Otherwise we've accepted one Guru and the whole life finished there. Guru is doing in his own way, I'm also going in my own way. One Guru. But if one is in a progress then according to progress his inner consciousness will help. "You can get help from this centre, this centre, and you're to approach." So though in this way you're making progress but you should have respect for the primary teacher. One who was the primary teacher of the infant class, I need not neglect him or insult him. But I must accept higher teacher's education, and some regard that in my beginning stage he helped me a great deal. Such respect we must maintain for the primary teachers, in this way. But if he comes to oppose my progress to accept higher teacher then I'm to come away from him. These practical things. If we're really concerned with my inner progress, and if I understand it's tangible progress, then we shall have to do that. The inner Guru will guide me, caitya-guru, the vivek, the spiritual consciousness, conscience.

Indradyumna: Guru Mahārāja. When can we know when is the will of God when something pass to us? And when is our karma? And when is māyā? And where is our freedom to...?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. That is the positive side. Just as, how can I know who is the sun? By sun's ray we can understand sun, and also so many things. The more intense light can show what is seen what we misconceived in the dim light. In a dim light we can have conceptions of the outside in some way. But in strong light we can find, "Oh! I misunderstood this for that." This is - it will come from there.

So only our taste - "I won't be satisfied until I get these things, my heart's satisfaction." All progress has got this similar question. This is more revolutionary. Progress means elimination of the acquired things and to accept new things. How do we do that? Many are losing in that campaign and many are being successful. What is the cause?

Indradyumna: The desire?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes. Desire is a type of sukṛti we acquire unconsciously by our fortune. That comes to guide us in the beginning, sukṛti. If we're to trace scientifically the very beginning of the progress, then śraddhā and then below, underground, sukṛti. Ajñāta-sukṛti, jñāta-sukṛti. That comes from the Lord's side. Jīva's free will is moving in his own way, and he's coming across with the generous dealing of the God. Then by chance acquiring some tendency, unknowingly, without his conscience he's acquiring some tendency towards the truth. Relative and Absolute.

Indradyumna: Like the Pāṇḍavas.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bigger question. That this is the Absolute, how can we understand this is Absolute? The Absolute will help you to understand - "That I am Absolute."

As much as you progress you will understand "Oh! These things are of lower existence." What I experienced before, that was of lower, when you come to higher experience. If you get more light then you can understand that in lower light, what I found that is wrong.

Not by vote, in this, it cannot be determined by vote of the ordinary man. Eh? The qualitative difference is known by qualitative progress, not by numbers.

The intricate question. When Mahāprabhu had a talk with Sārvabhauma - just before that Gopīnātha Ācārya he told his relative, Sārvabhauma, "Sārvabhauma, you think Caitanyadeva as your student. You can't find that He's divine aspect."

"But, no, no. He's a good boy. You're destroying him by speaking so highly about him. He's a genius, good boy, and you fellows you are glorifying him falsely that he's incarnation of God. You are his enemy. _____ [?] How do you know that he's incarnation of God, and not a genius man?"

Then Gopīnātha told, with the help of the scriptures, "In Kali-yuga there will be the incarnation of God. And His quality will be, nature will be to distribute the Name of Hari to one and all, powerfully. And we find in Him that. So He's the incarnation of God according to scripture we find. Then in Bhāgavata and Mahābhārata, they're principle śāstra. You're well read man, and you cannot understand. You've gone through Bhāgavata and Mahābhārata and there it's mentioned. So only by the grace of the Lord one can understand the Lord, not by genius. You're a great genius, Sārvabhauma, but by genius capacity we cannot understand. Only through His grace."

Then the students of Sārvabhauma put a question to Gopīnātha. "What is the proof that you have got that grace, you are not falsely interpreting the śāstra, what is the guarantee there?" The students put the question to Gopīnātha. Then, ācārya kahe, - vastu-viṣaye haya vastu-jñāna / vastu-tattva-jñāna haya kṛpāte pramāṇa

["It is evident that I have the grace of the Lord, because I know Him, and that you have not, because you deny Him."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 6.89]

"I have a bit of grace in me of the God. Grace of God, a bit in me, because I can understand this, so. Vastu-viṣaye haya vastu-jñāna. That what is what, I can feel, and you can't do."

That is the last answer in this world. So Absolute Truth is not to be understood by the help of any other knowledge. Absolute Truth, only He can, the Absolute can make Himself known. Cannot be known by the help of other things. Then how, why He's Absolute? So sun is known by his own light, not by candle light, or any other light. Sun is known only by his light, and not with the help of other light. So the source of all knowledge, real knowledge, real love, that can be attained by the ray of that thing, not by the ray of any other thing. So, sat citte sata eva siddha, it is self evident, not dependent to any other thing for its knowledge. This is the characteristic of the Absolute, sat citte sata eva siddha. When you naturally come to sun you can know the sun. From the darkness you cannot conceive of the sun, you have no experience previously. So, sat citte sata eva siddha, sata siddha. He can make Himself known alone.

We're to follow this sort of thought. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas.

[nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena

yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām]

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. When the living entity begs the Lord for His mercy, being desirous of His transcendental loving service, then the Supreme Lord reveals His self-manifest form directly before him."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] & [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.3.2]

Whoever He as His choice to make Himself known, the man of choice can know Him, otherwise not.

In Kuru sabhā Dhṛtarāṣṭra told, "Oh! They're seeing You in a very noble figure. I'm blind I can't see. Please remove my blindness for the time being. I want to see You. Then You'll again make me blind."

"No! Blindness not to be removed to see Me. You remain blind. I say 'you see Me' you'll see Me."

What sort of sight? His blindness did not - it was not necessary to remove his blindness.

"I say you see Me." And Dhṛtarāṣṭra, a blind man could see Him. So what sort of colour, figure, is there?

His will, yam evaiṣa, whomever He'll select, "You see Me," he'll see.

The Super Subjective, the object cannot enter into subject. When the Super Subject chooses any object to make Himself known, then he can know. And to what extent, only to that extent he can know. But the Super Subjective principle can also be controlled by Yogamāyā, svarūpa-śakti. He may want something but He's forced to change His mood by highly powerful potency.

As we're told that Kṛṣṇa wanted to maintain His four-handed figure when the gopīs fast. But when Rādhārāṇī came He could not maintain His four-handed figure. Forcibly, inner force, made Himself to transform Him into two-handed Kṛṣṇa at the sight of Rādhārāṇī. But this is unique. This should not be taken as any law, or free for anyone. But in extreme case it's such, in extreme point. Otherwise He's all-free, and whatever He likes to do He can do so, with anyone and everyone. So His sight.

So only śaraṇāgati is our capital, surrender, to increase the negative side of us. Surrender, dependence, total and extreme, intensified dependence on Him, to move His heart. And He will come before us. So negative side, no positive attempt on Him may be successful. We're to excite His will, sweet will, appeal to His sweet will, by sacrifice, self abnegation, and self surrendering, for Him. We're for Him. Die to live. Die to live. By death, by embracing death we can live more really. A negative side, to excite Him.

"Please show me who are You. Please show me."

I can't see Him. He can make Him shown to me. This is the position. So what I am to do to increase my negative side, appealing side, that sincere and endless appealing side? By increasing that we can attract Him, His heart. And when He wills, then He can show to me, otherwise not. I cannot be a subject and make Him object of my sight. Ke?

Devotees: Muralidhar.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Muralidhar. Another?

Devotee: Mādhava Purī Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mādhava Purī Mahārāja. And there?

Devotee: _____ [?] Indradymuna, Badrinārāyaṇa Prabhu, Tuṅga-vidyā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Tuṅga-vidyā understand, what I say, follow?

Tuṅga-vidyā: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Tapas is the same as sacrifice, tapas? Tapasya is the same?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: No. Tapasya means penance. Only suffering is not necessary, mere suffering has no value. If any necessity to undergo any affliction, any trouble, we shall do that. Unnecessary - only to impose penances, hardness, austerity, that has got no value. Which is necessary for the purpose, which is recommended by Guru, Vaiṣṇava, what is necessary for the service, that is helpful. Unnecessary penances, practice, habits, that is not necessary.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja:

nāhaṁ vedair na tapasā, na dānena na cejyayā śakya evaṁ-vidho draṣṭuṁ, dṛṣṭavān asi yan mama bhaktyā tv ananyayā śakya, aham evaṁ-vidho 'rjjuna jñātuṁ draṣṭuṁ ca tattvena, praveṣṭuṁ ca parantapa

["Neither by study of the Vedas, nor by austerity, charity, or sacrifice, can anyone behold My human- like form of Supreme Absolute Truth (Parabrahman) which you are now seeing before you."] - ["O Arjuna, conqueror of the enemy, although in this form of Mine I am practically impossible to be seen by all other methods, the pure devotees, by their exclusive devotion unto Me, are capable of actually knowing Me, seeing Me, and entering into My divine pastimes."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 11.53-4] rahūgaṇaitat tapasā na yāti, na cejyayā nirvapaṇād gṛhād vā na cchandasā naiva jalāgni-sūryair, vinā mahat-pāda-rajo-'bhiṣekam

(The sage Jaḍa Bharata said to King Rahūgaṇa:) "O Rahūgaṇa, without bathing the soul in the dust of the holy feet of the pure devotees (mahā-bhāgavata vaiṣṇavas), one cannot know the Supreme Lord by adopting the religious life of brahmacārya, gṛhastha, vānaprastha, or sannyāsa, or by worshipping the gods of water, fire, and sun, etc."] [Srimad-Bhagavatam, 5.12.12]

We're to understand the real inner meaning of these passages. Only surrender, śaraṇāgati, if I've preparedness for anything to satisfy Him and His devotee. Not aimless practices of different types of exercise.

Even so, one day one of our Godbrothers went to see the ārati of Jagannātha, he visited Jagannātha temple. Our Guru Mahārāja enquired, "Where is Sauren Bābū?" An Advocate, a son of zamīndār, respectable person. "Where is he?"

"He has gone to Jagannātha temple to see the ārati."

"Oh, he has gone for eye exercise?"

Ha, ha. So what about tapasya? Eye exercise. _____ [?] So this sort of exercise has got no value, until it is the necessity from the higher, order. We're to obey the dictation from the higher.

So much so, our Guru Mahārāja once told, "If the sādhu has said 'Oh, take some flower." Then taking flower, then, "No, no, no. Take some water."

"Oh, you wanted flower, take it."

Then it will be karma, to enforce him to accept his own whim. He has cancelled, he has got the capacity. What order he gave previously, he's a free man, he's got right to cancel that. If we want to push his previous action, order to him, that is also not devotion. You'll leave it and take water. That is devotion.

Whatever will come from high to me, I'm to obey that without hesitation, surrender to that. That can promote my position to the higher, to be more acceptable by the Supreme Power.

Here I stop today. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari.
Vāñchā-kalpatarubhyaś ca.
Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī.
A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!
Harināma saṅkīrtana kī jaya!
Gaura bhakta vṛnda kī jaya!
Navadwīpa Dhāma kī jaya!

...

...knowing the nature of the centre, everything is known. That He can do anything and everything. In nutshell it is such. Beyond our jurisdiction. Everything is known with Him, make or mar, designed and destined. Eh? Prime cause is such. Beyond the jurisdiction of my thought. What small portion of the infinite I can know? What little my thirst? There is the ocean, the ocean water.

There is a story. Once our Godbrother, that writer of Krishna Caitanya, Professor Sanyal. Ganges is considered to be holy river, a drop of water purifies us. So in his home he was accustomed to see Ganges water in a small bottle. A drop of water touching, everything is purified. Now he came with his father to this side on the Ganges in a town Baharampur. Then he came to this Kṛṣṇanagar and from here they're to make journey by boat to Baharampur.

Then, "What is this river?" He asked his father.

"This is Ganges."

"What Ganges?"

"But a drop of water you find in your home, in a small bottle it is kept. And whenever necessary a drop is given, touch, and everything purified."

"Oh. So much water. So much water that we've got only a drop of water we're experienced with, a very small quantity. A drop can purify the whole, impure man. That is very precious, valuable, rarely found, secured. And we find so much water that we're passing through the boat."

So valuable thing we're concerned only with a little drop. But that is an ocean of such important things which is to have known to us like a drop. We can have experience hardly of a drop. But there's an ocean of that substance. Wonderful. So to satisfy our tiny brain, how much is required? Nothing. Infinitesimal.

Jīva soul is a drop of consciousness, very smallest part. But Brahman, the source of that soul where from coming. From all respects the cause is such, from all respects. So not by power, nor by brain can we approach Him. Mahāprabhu told, "Only heart can take us there."

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. How far is that purification of Gaṅgā? How deep is the purification for the soul?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? What does he say? Eh?

Badrinārāyaṇa: The purification of Gaṅgā, how far does it go, how deep? How much purification?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. That depends upon the person who comes in connection with Gaṅgā. Gaṅgā is padadoka, the feet water of Nārāyaṇa, so she can give us admission into Vaikuṇṭha. And again, she's connected with Gaura līlā. In Navadwīpa Dhāma there is Gaṅgā. So she has connection with Gaura līlā where Mahāprabhu with His party is swimming and making so much pastimes. That connection. So according to the necessity and the capacity of the man to be purified it depends. Just as Yamunā can connect with Kṛṣṇa. The association of Yamunā in the highest sense can connect with Kṛṣṇa, Vṛndāvana. So association of Gaṅgā can connect with Śrī Gaurāṅga, the highest attainment of a jīva is possible. So according to the sukṛti the innate nature, fortune of the jīva, the gift of Ganges will be ascertained.

Devotee: Because many buffaloes take bath every day they're very...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In the positive sense, and from negative side she can purify anyone, up to liberation. Up to liberation - general gift from her. But in the positive side if we have such sukṛti she can help us to that direction. What do you say?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Many buffaloes are bathing, every day, morning and evening.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That sukṛti is coming, connecting buffaloes, so many fishes, so many insects. But in the world innumerable jīva souls, everywhere there is soul. So how many buffaloes are coming in connection, very limited. Ha, ha.

In my childhood, we were born by the side of Ganges, and in our childhood at every occasion we used to go to take Ganges bath. And it was found in the almanac, that if one takes bath on a particular day then all the sins of thousands of births may be washed in a second, all by one bath. Then I thought - I was a child - I thought, so many thousands of lives birth by one bath is cleared, cleansed. Then why the person will be sinner at all? Then by this all will be purified from sin. That was my inner argument.

Then I gradually came to know, that how many get the chance of taking bath in the Ganges. It is very cheap to us, we were born by the side of Ganges. But there are so many persons who have no connection with Ganges. So it is not hyperbolic, it is all true. By fortune we have got birth near the Ganges, and so many there, and they must have some faith, they will go to take bath. But unknowingly also if we have connection with Ganges water we'll get something. If consciously we take bath we get some higher result. But unconsciously also if we come in connection, that also will help us a great deal. But how many of us in the infinite can come in connection? Very scanty number, in consideration with the number of the souls infinite.

First unconscious connection, then conscious connection, then according to the confidence the result will increase with acceleration. And when comes to the highest position and sees it's a part of Gaura līlā, then in the acme of ones realised life he will have Ganges in his eternal serving life, nityа, eternal.

Mahāprabhu in His childhood used to take seat on the banks of the Ganges. With His students also He used to have a talk in the evening on the banks of the Ganges.

Digvijayī suddenly met Him while He was talking with His students, and he was told, "All the paṇḍits they're absent in Navadwīpa, perhaps in fear of their discussion with you. But Nimāi Paṇḍit is not to be neglected. Though very young, within teens, but still He's got a good name as a paṇḍit. He's here. If you like you can have a talk with Him."

Then Digvijayī, who had come to conquer all the scholars - Navadwīpa at that time was a famous place for the paṇḍits, especially this nyāya, logic. Then Digvijayī he came to have a discourse with Nimāi Paṇḍit.

"Oh, You are Nimāi Paṇḍit I'm told. You are a paṇḍit of Sanskrit grammar I have heard. But still You've got a good name as a scholar."

Mahāprabhu also responds. "Yes. I've heard that you have come here to conquer the paṇḍits. Are you so?"

"Yes."

"Then we're fortunate enough to meet you here."

"Then, what can you ask?"

"What should I ask you as a big paṇḍit here on the banks of the Ganges. You please make us listen to a stanza in praise of Ganges."

Then Digvijayī began to pronounce, began to deliver a Sanskrit śloka in praise of Ganges. And so quickly within a short time about a hundred - immediately he composed, delivered hundreds of stanza in praise of Ganges, in a storm speed.

And Nimāi Paṇḍit asked him that, "Yes, you are a strange poet and scholar and realise a point. But now we'd like to hear the meaning, the explanation of one of the stanzas. We're here all not very scholarly to understand your poems. But if you be kind enough to explain your poem, at least one stanza, we can be satisfied by your scholarship."

Then Digvijayī told, "Just now I have delivered about a hundred stanzas. And what stanza you want to be explained?"

Then Mahāprabhu reproduced one, that was the first _____ [?]

"In a stormy speed I went on delivering these poems, and He has got by heart one in the meantime. All right, by the grace of the goddess of learning You must have been śrutidhar."

Śrutidhar means a particular class of paṇḍit who once heard can remember, keep it in memory.

"So He has got some grace of God by which once it touches His ear He can keep it in memory."

_____ [?]

That śloka also mentioned in Caitanya-caritāmṛta by Kavirāja Goswāmī.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...comes to act on us.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: "Thank your star", or is it any expression in English? Thank God _____ [?] Thank your star that you have suddenly got this. No possibility but you've suddenly got this fortune or misfortune. That is star, by means of the medium of the influence of the planet. That also acquired by our previous karma, suddenly appears, as if without any cause or effect. That bhāgya, fortune, or misfortune, like that. Eh?

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. This Halley's Comet is coming next - in a few months. I'm very worried about it.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Why? You want to oppose that?

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. You're worried? When I was perhaps fifteen or so Halley's Comet came. My age was fourteen, fifteen, now ninety. It comes generally after seventy eight years.

Devotee: Yes. Seventy five or seventy eight.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The same comet visits.

Devotee: Yes, same comet, yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So I saw that comet when I was fourteen or so.

Devotee: 1911 it came.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: 1911?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Fifteen I was then, 1911. That year pañcan George got the throne. George the Fifth, he was enthroned, installed in England, and also came in India. And 12th December, 1911, an installation took place in Delhi. And he came to Calcutta afterwards. Lord Hardinge was the Viceroy. And I went to visit in Calcutta for the first time. And this Mukunda Bābū's father was _____ [?] And I was guest in their quarter, 1911, December. I visited Calcutta first on that occasion - the king's visit to Calcutta, 1911. George the Fifth.

And Hardinge was wounded by one Rashberi Bosh [?] at Delhi. That Rashberi Bose fled to Japan. And when Subhash Bose, Netaji, he joined during the last great war, the second great war, Subhash joined Rashberi and formed an army that was imprisoned by the Japanese from the British army. And organising those he attacked India, Manipur, captured something. But anyhow that atom bomb finished everything in Japan. Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Two atom bombs thrown by America against Japan. And that concluded the war suddenly. Netaji and all finished.

I took, I was guest in Mukunda Bābū's father's quarter in Killipur [?], Calcutta. 1911, December, 12th December, in Delhi coronation.

Halley's Comet came, eleven, and first great war came, fourteen, in the month of August. Today is 2nd August. 1914, first great war broke out, perhaps in August.

Austria's king, or prince, was murdered in Serbia in his father-in-laws house, and that was the cause. Austria marched against Serbia. Russia came to help Serbia, Slav. And Germany came to help Austria. And Germany was full of military power, so France, to keep up the balance joined Russia's side, and the British also did that. And Austria, Germany, Bulgaria, Turkey - Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria, and Turkey, in one side. All others on another side - Russia, Romania, this side, Yugoslavia, France, Italy, British. And America joined afterwards. President Wilson was the President of America at that time, from 14 up to 18. In 18 it was finished, first great world war.

And in 18 also a great change came in my life, in 1918.

Tuṅga-vidyā: In Vaikuṇṭha they also fight? _____ [?] In Vaikuṇṭha they make something like fight also?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: What does she say?

Devotee: She wants to know if people fight in Vaikuṇṭha?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Fight? Ha, ha. There may be fight, but that is not of this type. Struggle. Struggling is everywhere, but in different colour, or different quality. Because jīva also passes through Vaikuṇṭha to Goloka. Those that are dissatisfied with the environment of Vaikuṇṭha, they have to struggle to go out of Vaikuṇṭha and further. So if you mean that fight, then that sort of fight is there. Dissatisfaction with the environment and struggling to go further, up. Fighting with their own different tendencies. First accepted that as good, gradually that was found not satisfactory, and for further progress they're trying. That had not first entered Vaikuṇṭha, and got some satisfaction in comparison with the satisfaction here, in brahmāṇḍa. Then for some time, those that have got their inner self for the service of Goloka they find dissatisfaction, and begin to struggle, fight. A type of fighting. And when gets chances they follow some agent and they pass through Vaikuṇṭha, towards Ayodhyā, Dvārakā, Vṛndāvana, in this way.

Ha, ha. Once, people in general, not ordinary, but some people of higher rank, approached Mahārṣi Bhṛgu. "We can't ascertain who is the highest amongst Brahmā, Śiva, and Viṣṇu, Nārāyaṇa. Who is the highest? We fail to understand. They're all above, so far. We can't distinguish who is the highest."

Then Bhṛgu he accepted that, "All right, let me have a test in the matter, then I shall give my opinion."

Then he approached Brahmā, his father, creator, and there he stood silently, giving no honour to his father, only stood there silent.

Then after a short time Brahmā became enraged. "What is this? You do not know the etiquette, courtesy. You come here and don't show any honour to your father, the creator, and stand with your head erect. No offer of any respect. Nothing. What is this?"

Then Bhṛgu went off from there and approached Śiva, Mahādeva. And there he began to rebuke Mahādeva. "Oh! What do you do? Only external indifference. But you destroy the world." So many things of disrespect, showing some disrespect, haughtiness, to Mahādeva. And after some time, waiting for some time, Śiva was enraged and came with his pasula [?] to kill him.

And Bhṛgu left the place immediately and went to Vaikuṇṭha. And there, all of a sudden, there was Nārāyaṇa, Lakṣmī Devī, he entered the place all of a sudden and gave a kick on the breast of Nārāyaṇa.

And Nārāyaṇa came to beg forgiveness from him. "Oh! You must have brought some wound, some pain on your foot. My body is very hard, and you put a kick on My breast and you must have got much pain there. Let Me serve you to minimise your pain of the leg. Allow Me to serve."

Then Bhṛgu came back and announced in the world, "Nārāyaṇa is the highest."

In Vaikuṇṭha the soil of toleration in general we can conceive by this. No vindictiveness there, rather the opposite, all affectionate, and toleration of all these difficulties which come out from the wrong deeds of our free will. So that is a place of toleration, forbearance, and mercy, such nature, than justice. The land of mercy, affection, Vaikuṇṭha. But there is gradation, there is some calculation.

Above that, further, is Goloka where without any calculation the affection flows there, like water of Yamunā. And though there's that hard substance, that Govardhana-Giri, that also gives shelter at the time of our danger. Kṛṣṇa's kingdom is such, wonderful. God works wonders. So Kṛṣṇa's every pastime is wonderful, and full of affection and love and mercy, grace _____ [?]

Apparently what is violence there against Pūtanā and other demons, ultimately that also reaches into some healthy position. Pūtanā is rewarded by the after position of motherly respect.

There's no loss in Vaikuṇṭha, no loss, no death is there. Still the līlā, that is only līlā, like drama.

We were astonished to hear from my Guru Mahārāja from the beginning, that Vaikuṇṭha, in Goloka, in Kṛṣṇa līlā, in Nārāyaṇa līlā, "Siṁha prasena _____ [?] That topic came in a discussion with a māyāvādī. Guru Mahārāja told, "Siṁha killed Prasena, siṁha prasena _____ [?] But both the lion and the Prasena, they did not die, anyone, but they got enjoyment thereby. One who is killed, the killer and the killed, both get enjoyment, satisfaction. So it is like drama. No real killing is possible there, that is all of eternity, but all only show, like a drama. One is being killed, another is killing, but none was really killed. But the killer and the killed, both of them get inner satisfaction. The land, the soil is such. That is called līlā.

And, siṁha jāmbavata _____ [?] Again, Jāmbavān killed the lion and took that [Syamantaka] jewel to his den. And Kṛṣṇa went in search of that gem, and He took that gem from Jāmbavān. And Jāmbavān, he was a servitor of Rāmacandra, he gave his daughter [Jāmbavatī] to Kṛṣṇa, and the gem also as presentation. And Kṛṣṇa came back with the gem and gave it to the party.

Kṛṣṇa had to go to search for that gem because some rumour came in Dvārakā that Kṛṣṇa has stolen that gem. So He had to trace that thing and get it back to the party. "That I have not stolen." That bad name may also come to Kṛṣṇa Himself. Līlā, pastimes, like drama.

A drama - who is killed, if he can play his part well, they're very satisfied. Because he's playing the part of the killed, and if his part is done well, he's highly satisfied. And the killer also may be satisfied, "That I've played my part very well." Real loss is not there. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Ke?

Devotees: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

...

Badrinārāyaṇa: ...she has one question to ask.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Teresa?

Teresa: _____ [?]

Badrinārāyaṇa: Her question is, "Does the mahā-mantra have any effect before initiation?"

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Before initiation of mahā-mantra?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is like shadow, casting shadow. But when we get that from Gurudeva, that mahā-mantra, it comes to recommend our connection with reality. Before that, casting shadow like thing. Negotiation period, śravaṇa-daśā. Then varaṇa-daśā, next condition, a regular connection with mahā- mantra after dīkṣā. Before that, negotiation period, śravaṇa, hesitation remains.

Eh? Who comes?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Purañjana Prabhu.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mahā-mantra is mahā-mantra, that is all in all. And this mantra, pañcarātrika dīkṣā comes to help mahā-mantra. Without pañcarātrika dīkṣā, by mahā-mantra everything may be achieved. Haridāsa Ṭhākura he had no dīkṣā, pañcarātrika, but mahā-mantra was with him.

Mantra, mahā-mantra. Mana gānat trāyate. If we're mindful about it we'll get relief, liberation, by our attention towards that. Mana gānat trāyate. The other side, it can give us relief from mental exercise, concoction, special interest cultivation, mana gānat, and connects us with universal things. Mind is concerned with individual interest, and that gives us relief of that individual consciousness. And generally universal consciousness which is within us, that is discovered by mantra, mahā-mantra.

kṛṣṇa-mantra haite habe saṁsāra mocana, kṛṣṇa-nāma haite pābe kṛṣṇera caraṇa

["The Kṛṣṇa Gāyatrī mantra liberates one from repeated birth and death in this world; the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa gives one shelter at the lotus feet of Kṛṣṇa."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 7.73]

The mantra can relieve us from the concocted life. And a real connection we can get from Name. In mantra also there is Name. Name is all in all. If in the mantra we take the Name of Kṛṣṇa out and put another god's name, then whole meaning is changed. From mantra, suppose we take the Name, and in place of that we put another name, then whole thing is diabolically changed. But Name cannot be changed, one Name in eternal connection. So Name is all in all. In mantra also there is Name. Only recommendation with a particular process in the Name, mantram. Mana gānat trāyate. By minding which we can get liberation, or it can get us, give us relief from the mental concoction forever - individual interest thinking.

We're mainly to be concerned with three stages of life, exploitation, renunciation, and dedication, devotion. We should be always mindful to these three things. Avoiding enjoyment, that is exploitation. And avoiding also especially renunciation, that is negative end, nothing. Only withdrawal from the negative side that is also the origin of the negative side. But to enter into the positive side of the life, that is all important. A noble life of dedication, devotion, a noble life. Who has got a little tinge of devotion, to them all this renunciation and enjoyment is very mean life, mean, piśāci. Even to maintain the idea of those two is very mean, filthy.

bhukti-mukti-spṛhā yāvat, piśācī [hṛdi varttate
tāvad bhakti-sukhasyātra, katham abhyudayo bhavet]

["How can the joy of holy devotion appear in the heart as long as it is haunted by the ghosts of desire for exploitation and renunciation?"] [Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrva, 2.22]

In comparison with a life of a devotee, a noble life of dedication, and especially dedication to the Lord, generally, otherwise no perfect dedication is possible. When only towards the centre, Absolute, the Absolute Good. That to them, to a dedicated life, these two phases of life of enjoyment and renunciation, seems to be very, very low, mean, nasty. Even mukti, to revolt against the arrangement of the devotion of God. God is so good and great, that to leave His connection that is very, very filthy thing. So bhukti-mukti-spṛhā, the aspiration for enjoyment as well as liberation, that seems to be very mean thing. Piśācī, ghost.

So these things, complete retirement, or exploitation, these are the anti engagement of the jīva soul. We must be very much careful about these two tendencies within us, that they may not peep in our mind, to get some position. The enjoyment, to live at the cost of others, try to live at the cost of the environment, that is bad, nasty, reactionary. And to stop the work totally, to be reduced to be a zero, that is also a dangerous thing for the soul. And eternally these fellows, those that are in life of enjoyment, they may have future chance of being relieved by the divine agents. But those that enter into the cave of union with the ray of Vaikuṇṭha are buried within that, they've got very little chance to come out from the cave. So that has been condemned more than this enjoyment. In Rāmānanda Rāya saṁvāda,

'mukti, bhukti vāñche yei, kāhāṅ duṅhāra gati?' / 'sthāvara-deha, deva-deha yaiche avasthiti'

["And what is the destination of those who desire liberation and those who desire sense gratification?" Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu asked."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.257]

What is the future of those that aspire after enjoyment and liberation? Rāmānanda says those that aspire after enjoyment, they get the life of a demigod. Deva-deha. And those that aspire after complete liberation, they get the body of a material mass. Sthāvara-deha. Just as Himālaya, or some planet, sleeping for long, long time. Sthāvara-deha, deva-deha.

ye 'nye 'ravindākṣa vimukta-māninas, tvayi asta-bhāvād aviśuddha-buddhayaḥ
āruhya kṛcchreṇa paraṁ padaṁ tataḥ, patanty adho 'nādṛta-yuṣmad-aṅghrayaḥ

["O lotus-eyed Lord, although non-devotees who accept severe austerities and penances to achieve the highest position may think themselves liberated, their intelligence is impure. Although they may rise to the level of impersonal Brahman realisation, they fall down from their position of imagined superiority because they neglect to worship Your lotus feet."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.2.32]

The moment when they'll come in contact with the higher plane of life, they'll neglect the purity and venerable position of the higher, and considers same with Him. By that crime he's hurled down towards the deep material position. Āruhya kṛcchreṇa paraṁ padaṁ. By great trouble they come to rise up to the margin, getting passport they come to the last boundary of the country. But when they think that where they're going to take visa, that is also like his own country, he'll enjoy like that for the interest of his own land. He's going there to enter that country for the interest of his own country, then he's hurled down, not allowed. He's exposed, and he's considered unfit, and hurled down. Āruhya kṛcchreṇa paraṁ padaṁ tataḥ, patanty adho 'nādṛta-yuṣmad-aṅghrayaḥ. Because they have no proper respect for the other land they're failure in their life. So mukti, conception of liberation, is more condemned than enjoyment. Enjoyment is a trifle thing. But that is a challenge against the - to remain eternally in a liberated, marginal position, that is a challenge to variability and respectability of the higher plane of devotion. So they get greater punishment. Mukti.

[ei du'yera madhye viṣayī tabu bhāla] māyāvādī saṅga nāhi māgi kona kāla

["The company of ordinary persons, misguided souls in the ordinary street, is somewhat better than the company and influence of the so-called scholars."] [The Songs Of Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura, p 31]

"This is the highest position, no other higher position." The strong inclination in them. "The best."

...

...bigger circle. And the mantram, a smaller circle within the bigger circle. Name comes down to the most fallen. Mantram may not come down so low. The Name can come to the lowest position for relief work. And mantra is in the middle. Then after we have finished the jurisdiction of mantra we can go up, again there is Name. Mukta-kulair upāsya. [From Nāmāṣṭakam, 1] They may not go on chanting, repeating the mantra, but Name cannot be avoided in any condition of our highest devotional life.

kṛṣṇa-mantra haite habe saṁsāra mocana, kṛṣṇa-nāma haite pābe kṛṣṇera caraṇa

["The Kṛṣṇa Gāyatrī mantra liberates one from repeated birth and death in this world; the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa gives one shelter at the lotus feet of Kṛṣṇa."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā, 7.73]

Mantra in the middle period, not necessary in the higher position. But Name is always with the devotees, even in the highest position. So Name is higher than mantram. Mantram - the Name is there, but couched with some recommendation of particular process for the time being.

85.08.07.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...laulyaṁ, the greed. Necessity is the mother of invention. The necessity, that is a negative aspect, want, feeling the want. To feel want for a thing, that means to get it in some way or other. To feel want for a particular thing, we get some connection, otherwise why the feeling of want will come? Want of what? So that inner preparation to welcome that thing. Earnestness, dedicating tendency, to offer ones own self for the utility of the other. The preparedness of offering ones own self wholesale for the whimsical satisfaction of the other party. That is prema, love. Love means sacrifice for the object whom we love. To live in love, to live in death, life in death. The death of selfishness, and a life rather of noble satisfaction. I am mean. I am base. I'm small. I must not be self seeker, a seeker of small, mean things. But I shall try to be utilised for higher life, higher centre. More utilisation of my own self, that should be our aim of life.

"Die to live." Hegel told.

But Mahāprabhu told, "The physical death is nothing." He told to Sanātana Goswāmī.

sanātana, deha-tyāge kṛṣṇa yadi pāiye, koṭi-deha kṣaṇeke tabe chāḍite pāriye, [deha-tyāge kṛṣṇa nā paī, pāiye bhajane, kṛṣṇa-prāptyera upāya, kona nāhi 'bhakti' vine]

["My dear Sanātana," He said: "If I could attain Kṛṣṇa by committing suicide, I would certainly give up millions of bodies without a moments hesitation."] ["You should know that one cannot attain Kṛṣṇa simply by giving up the body. Kṛṣṇa is attainable by devotional service. There is no other means to attain Him."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 4.55-56]

"If by giving up this physical body we can attain Kṛṣṇa, then in a moment I like to die crores of times. But it is nothing. To leave this physical body, to give up the physical body to attain Kṛṣṇa consciousness is nothing. Crores of times I'm ready to die in a moment if I can get Kṛṣṇa simply by giving up this body."

Welcoming this physical death - no - physical death cannot take Kṛṣṇa to us. Threatening of suicide does not attract Kṛṣṇa at all. This is tāmo dharma, sheer ignorance _____ [?] but conscious separation from our own ego. Ego should be dissolved within. So śravaṇa, kīrtana, the process of realisation that has been recommended through the scriptures, that must be followed, that course. No other means to get Him. Physical death is nothing, this is sheer ignorance, to give up this body, this is tāmo dharma. From the material consideration to give up this physical body may be admired very much. But that is not material thing. So to welcome material death that has got nothing to contribute with Kṛṣṇa consciousness, the life within.

We shall have to live for the cause. And a gradual process, śravaṇa, kīrtana, the regular internal life should be improved by śravaṇa, kīrtana, to hear and to reproduce, in this way. By taking jet viman, attracting air from the front side, and pushing that air in the back side. In swimming process we can go. To receive and to preach, reproduce, to receive and to reproduce. Śravaṇa and kīrtana, main thing. The current business means to get some articles and to pass in the market that. That transaction may make us rich. To purchase from a party, and to dispose of to another party. So śravaṇa, to receive from higher source capitalist, and to give out, preach, try to give out to others. And to make progress in the current of thought. Śravaṇa, kīrtana, no other alternative. Like a _____ [?] rough process of a rowdyism.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Desire and you have, desire. Desire rightly, sincerely desire, and you will have. There may not be any burglary in that desire. It must be pure. Laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ.

[kṛṣṇa-bhakti-rasa-bhāvitā matiḥ, kriyatāṁ yadi kuto 'pi labhyate
tatra laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ, janma-koṭi-sukṛtair na labhyate]

["Pure devotional service to Kṛṣṇa cannot be obtained by performing pious activities even for millions of births. It can be purchased only by paying one price: intense eagerness. Wherever it is available, one must purchase it immediately."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.70]

Only price for the thing is genuine desire, necessity, the feeling of necessity. That is rarely found, sincere necessity, and you will have. This is a fair dealing, it is all very fair dealing. You desire it, don't try to misuse, so sincere desire, and you'll have. A very simple and fair dealing. To have a fine, pure desire, that is the difficulty. Exclusive desire. Fair and easy, sahajiyā, very easy desire. But a point of that pure desire is very rare in the market. Desire of giving up to the Supreme Authority, Supreme Good, to work in the hands of the superior.

So our mind, our heart, should be purified, citya suddhi, purification of our heart within. And the real purification also cannot be effected by his connection, his svarūpa-śakti. But we must cooperate, we must be a party, we must like a bond, then He'll be able to work in me. Free choice, free consent. "Yes." Sincere. And He'll come to work on my behalf, the svarūpa-śakti. Svarūpa-śakti will come to work on my - and He'll purify my heart and make it proper to be utilised in the higher domain.

Yogamāyā, the in carrying current. In means centre carrying current. Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

The seat of the highest culture, a human can reach. A man, a jīva soul can reach to what extent? So high, the zenith. That has been given out here by Mahāprabhu in Nadiyā. We're to deal the atmosphere surcharged with that information and help. Understand what is the highest reach of our culture, for all the jīva souls, for everything. The connection with the highest point of life, highest aim of life. We're to understand, and we're to make that our own, and to give that standpoint to the world. Then we'll be real servant, real utility to all in the world.

The zenith of our prospect is this, how we're to understand and to explain. How this is the zenith what Mahāprabhu told that this is the highest prospect of life. That was given out here by Śrī Caitanyadeva. And His intensity of His dedication to the cause, that is also clear. In ordinary way a scholar like Him, the brightest scholar, and He dived so deep, and from there He brought the gems for us. In samādhi, ignoring this phenomenal world He dived so deep, sometimes His body became like a tortoise, sometimes long, dead man's body. And earnest for the thing so much intense that He's rubbing His mouth, His face on the wall for want of that thing. So many physical symptoms of diving deep into the matter extraordinary. And what He has taken out from that depth, that's surpassing the plane of knowledge. The land of love, and how sweet, and what is the nature in the beginning, and depth of the love. How much of what position taken out and give. And that is everyone's own deepest necessity.

So Vāsudeva Datta said, "If Gaurāṅga did not come with this valuable substance, which is the very wealth of our own inner self, how could we live? How could we live? It is impossible to live without such valuable asset of our own. I'm so rich inside, and it was quite unknown to me. And Gaurāṅga has come and taken out that the most valuable thing is within you ever discovered.

And without that it is impossible to live for anyone. He has given me my own noblest self. 'You are so noble, so big, so valuable, within you.' He has discovered for me. Without that, impossible to live, now we have once come in consciousness with that. And the feeling coming from within that without such thing how could we live? So much valuable thing within us He has given back. So innermost valuable thing we have got within. And Gaurāṅga has come to discover for us that, 'You're so noble. You're not so many fodder of death, helplessly wandering in this desert, the land of death, every moment devouring you. But you are so precious and valuable in your heart. How big, how noble you are, human, or any jīva soul, how rich you are. Your heart is a throne for Kṛṣṇa, living heart you have got.'"

Vasudeva hiya pasa nemi siya gore chekana bavidhi [?]

"Stonyfied I am, unconscious of my internal richness and nobility, a stoneyfied life I'm leading. And nectar within. Pasa nemi siya gore chek [?] Where is that creator who has made me like a stone figure, statue? And in my heart there is so high class of nectar _____ [?] Outwardly I'm like a piece of stone. And what valuable things within me, that Kṛṣṇa may be attracted. The all-attractor may be attracted. That thing, who can attract the all-attractor, a small point of that thing is within me."

Hare Kṛṣṇa.

...

...he wanted to bear all the cost for foreign preaching one time. At that time he wanted that the western _____ [?] should be preached to the west. And the founder of _____ [?] was, his name I forget.

_____ [?] that place, a garden where everyone goes for pleasure walking. And many cows are kept there. The name is Madhuvara [?] The founder I forget his name.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] was his grandson perhaps. And their home was on the hill. What is the name?

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] There was their house. _____ [?] very good man.

Once, one Bengali officer _____ [?] he made an unfavourable criticism on Bhāgavatam. Then that _____ [?] informed our Guru Mahārāja that - he was a Bengali gentleman - and that must be protested vehemently. And that was done. Three articles were sent in the paper, Bombay Chronicle, or that Hindustan Times, in Delhi.

That gentleman mentioned that, "In Bhāgavatam many nasty things are mentioned, awkward things."

Our Guru Mahārāja, his line of argument was this, "That those things are mentioned only to cure ourselves from that disease. Hṛd-rogam āśv apahinoty acireṇa dhīraḥ. We're all caught with that disease. So when our private part is in disease then for the treatment to expose that thing and to handle _____ [?] it is necessary to help us. So Bhāgavatam...

But it is mentioned to cure ourselves from that _____ [?] It should be taken at least in that sense, that attitude, it is mentioned to cure us from the disease. Hṛd-rogam, kāmaṁ, hṛd-rogam. Kāma, the lust, our thirst for material things, men, women, this is heart disease. It's called heart disease in Bhāgavatam, kāma, the lust. Lust is the heart disease. So to be cured from that heart disease it is necessary to deal that thing in such a way. Otherwise no relief. Kṛṣṇa karmārpaṇa, everything from the standpoint of Kṛṣṇa, to be seen, then we're relieved.

[tad-artham karma kaunteya, mukta-saṅgaḥ samācara]

["Selfless duty performed as an offering to the Supreme Lord is called yajña, or sacrifice. O Arjuna, all action performed for any other purpose is the cause of bondage in this world of repeated birth and death. Therefore, remaining unattached to the fruits of action, perform all your duties in the spirit of such sacrifice. Such action is the means of entering the path of devotion, and with the awakening of true perception of the Lord, it will enable you to attain to pure, unalloyed devotion, free from all material qualities (nirguṇa- bhakti)."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.9]

We're entangled in many things here - but we're to get relief of that tie only if we're connected with Kṛṣṇa. To connect with Kṛṣṇa, the centre, organiser, the principle representing the whole organic whole. We're separate interest sufferer, we're suffering from separate interest. So divided into many parts, so it's troublesome. But nothing is nasty when it's seen from the standpoint of centre, everything is all right. Everything is good if it's concerned, if it's considered from the interest of the centre, everything is all right. Not only all right, but it's very happy. What is seen through our self interest, that is awkward. But if that very thing is seen from the central standpoint it is beautiful. We're to understand that. So, it belongs to Kṛṣṇa, it's His jurisdiction. If we become trespasser it is awkward and we're punished, we suffer.

bhaktiṁ parām bhagavati pratilabhya kāmaṁ, hṛd-rogam āśv apahinoty acireṇa dhīraḥ

["One who hears with firm faith the supramundane amorous affairs of Lord Kṛṣṇa and the gopīs, as described by a pure devotee of the Lord, soon becomes freed from mundane lust and achieves divine love of Kṛṣṇa."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.33.39]

To get out finally from that disease, heart disease, that very thing is necessary. That it's seen through the standpoint of Kṛṣṇa's enjoyment. Then the harmony is there, it is all curing process, wholesale cure. We're suffering from the anomaly, mis adjustment, misreading, misunderstanding. And that will be wholesale cured if we can come to adjust those things with Kṛṣṇa conception. Kṛṣṇa consciousness can cure us from any and every disease as reaction we're suffering from. It is so nectarine, sustaining. It's the highest kind of sustainer, Kṛṣṇa consciousness, like amṛtam. Śuddha, cured from all disease we're suffering from, action, reaction, in the main. We'll feel that we're merged in the ocean of happiness. Ānandāmbudhi-vardhanaṁ.

[ceto-darpaṇa-mārjanaṁ bhava-mahā-dāvāgni-nirvāpaṇaṁ śreyaḥ-kairava-candrikā-vitaraṇaṁ vidyā-vadhū-jīvanam ānandāmbudhi-vardhanaṁ prati-padaṁ pūrṇāmṛtāsvādanaṁ sarvātma-snapanaṁ paraṁ vijayate śrī-kṛṣṇa-saṅkīrtanam]

["The Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa cleanses the mirror of the heart and extinguishes the fire of misery in the forest of birth and death. As the evening lotus blooms in the moon's cooling rays, the heart begins to blossom in the nectar of the Name. And at last the soul awakens to its real inner treasure - a life of love with Kṛṣṇa. Again and again tasting nectar, the soul dives and surfaces in the ever-increasing ocean of ecstatic joy. All phases of the self of which we may conceive are fully satisfied and purified, and at last conquered by the all-auspicious influence of the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa."] [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 1]

Ever-increasing ocean of happiness, ecstasy, if we can feel, see and feel, understand that it's the līlā of Kṛṣṇa. So fine, so nice, so dignified, so sweet, homely. Sweet, sweet home. Our home is in that harmonious plane. Sarvāḥ sukha-mayā diśaḥ.

[akiñcanasya dāntasya śāntasya sama-cetasaḥ
mayā santuṣṭa-manasaḥ sarvāḥ sukha-mayā diśaḥ]

["One who does not desire anything within this world, who has achieved peace by controlling his senses, whose consciousness is equal in all conditions and whose mind is completely satisfied in Me finds only happiness wherever he goes."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.14.13]

When one who has, who is able to take stand in that plane, every news carrying happiness to him, joy to him. From all directions waves are coming, carrying joy to him. Sarvāḥ sukha-mayā diśaḥ. All the directions are carrying the news of happiness to him whose position is in harmony. That is Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Everything meant for His enjoyment, we are also. Everything meant for His enjoyment, and we're also meant for His enjoyment. Such a degree of self abnegation and dedication to Kṛṣṇa. That is what is necessary, as Mahāprabhu told that, to the extreme. And this body interest? Mahāprabhu says, sanātana, deha-tyāge kṛṣṇa yadi pāiye, koṭi-deha kṣaṇeke tabe chāḍite pāriye,

[deha-tyāge kṛṣṇa nā paī, pāiye bhajane, kṛṣṇa-prāptyera upāya kona nāhi 'bhakti' vine]

["My dear Sanātana," He said: "If I could attain Kṛṣṇa by committing suicide, I would certainly give up millions of bodies without a moments hesitation."] ["You should know that one cannot attain Kṛṣṇa simply by giving up the body. Kṛṣṇa is attainable by devotional service. There is no other means to attain Him."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 4.55-56]

Die to live. What sort of death?

"If by giving up the body we can get Kṛṣṇa, then within a moment I'm ready to die crores of times."

But it's beyond that. By sacrificing our body - we think if we sacrifice our body for a particular purpose we do a great thing.

But Mahāprabhu says, "The crores of deaths, self sacrifice, the body sacrifice crores of times cannot take us to Kṛṣṇa. Only the śāstric order, śravaṇa, kīrtana, Vaiṣṇava sevā, all these things."

The body is nothing, it's a negative asset. The body is a cage of flesh and blood. This is nothing. Any sacrifice in this plane is no consideration. But it is the approach from the soul to Supersoul, not in this plane of the body.

Sanātana, deha-tyāge kṛṣṇa yadi pāiye, koṭi-deha kṣaṇeke tabe chāḍite pāriye. "I'm ready to die crores of times in a moment if by that I could get Kṛṣṇa consciousness. But no."

So die to live. What sort of death, for proper living, wholesale. Wholesale death of our present position. What are we? This is a camouflage, a black marketing. Our present life is a black marketing, abnormal. What is - really belongs to Kṛṣṇa, we want to make it our own thing. "Because everything is mine, I want to spread my kingdom." Elevationist. "I'm monarch of all I survey." We're initiated into that sort of conception. We want to be monarch of all we survey. That is the great disease.

Or, if I cannot be monarch, then I do not want to maintain my life. That is called suicide. According to Buddhists and Śaṅkarite - Śaṅkarācārya and Buddhist, real renunciationist, salvationist. "If we cannot reign here, then rather we shall do away with our very existence." Sāyujya-mukti. "We don't want to remain again awake in this world."

But the Vaiṣṇava they say, "The real aspect of life is there, and that is in dedication. Then we can find a world of nectar in this world. Only trouble with me, disease with me, I see something as other." So a diabolical change, complete change should come in our perspective. We're an enjoying member in this world, but just the opposite, a dedicating unit in this world is our proper self. We're to find out that, a dedicating part in the whole, then we can live. We're to die - this life of enjoyment, exploitation, and to find out our inner self in the plane of dedication. The soul is a dedicating unit in the organic whole.

And whole represented by Kṛṣṇa, the līlā moya. We can find out the inner beauty of the whole existence, the proper utility. Everything in Vṛndāvana, as in Vṛndāvana, and Kṛṣṇa there like a child, like a friend, like a loving consort. So near. Sucking the breast of Yaśodā. Papau yasyāḥ stanaṁ hariḥ. And crawling in the compound of Nanda Mahārāja. Carrying his shoes on His head, carrying the shoes of Nanda on His head, the Absolute Supreme. So Absolute is come within the fist of the Vṛndāvana residents.

nandaḥ kim akarod brahman, śreya evaṁ mahodayam yaśodā ca mahā-bhāgā, papau yasyāḥ stanaṁ hariḥ

["Having heard of the great fortune of mother Yaśodā, Parīkṣit Mahārāja inquired from Śukadeva Gosvāmī: O learned brāhmaṇa, mother Yaśodā's breast milk was sucked by the Supreme Personality of Godhead. What past auspicious activities did she and Nanda Mahārāja perform to achieve such perfection in ecstatic love?"] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.8.46]

And whipping Kṛṣṇa - Yaśodā, and the Absolute, Kṛṣṇa, is weeping. Yaśodā whipping, Kṛṣṇa weeping.

Ha, ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa. It is possible, the Absolute may come in the fist of the devotee, so intense. It is possible, it is reality, Bhāgavatam has given that. Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, the very highest meaning, the real meaning of the whole Veda, Upaniṣad is Bhāgavatam, the very gist, substance.

artho 'yaṁ brahma sūtrānāṁ, bhāratārtha-vinirṇayaḥ
gāyatrī bhāṣya rūpo 'sau, vedārthaḥ paribriṁhitaḥ

["Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam represents the real purport of Vedānta-sūtra. And although it is very difficult to draw out the real purpose of the one hundred thousand verse epic Mahābhārata, the great history of the world, Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam has come to give its real meaning. The mother of all Vedic knowledge is the Gāyatrī mantra. Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam gives the gist of Gāyatrī in a very full-fledged way. And the supplementary truths of the Vedas are also found within Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam."] [Garuḍa-Purāṇa]

The gist of all the Vedic scriptures is Bhāgavatam. And he says that Absolute is in our fist, He's object of our play. It is possible, through love. And love can get Him through dedication, by sādhu saṅga, we can acquire that highest jewel.

And what is Navadwīpa Dhāma? The distributor to one and all, even the worst fallen, that wealth of Vṛndāvana. Rādhā-Govinda combined came here and wanted Their Own inner wealth to be looted by the ordinary people.

"Purchase a ticket here and automatically you'll find you're in Vṛndāvana." Gaurāṅga is such, Nityānanda. "Try to have an admission card here. Very cheaply distributed from door to door. You want to go to Vṛndāvana, enlist your name here. Very cheaply it is done. Automatically you'll find you're in Vṛndāvana."

Take the Name of Kṛṣṇa in a proper way. Take the Name of Gaurāṅga. Try to understand His characteristic, how pushingly He distributed here Kṛṣṇa consciousness. This is everything, and accept Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Day and night, always "Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa." Try to connect yourself with Kṛṣṇa consciousness while walking, eating, sleeping, whatever you're doing think about Kṛṣṇa.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...think of Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa, and take the Name always. And keep the company of Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa. Dive deep into Kṛṣṇa consciousness, and you'll find you're there. Give up everything.

sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja
[ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ]

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

That's the highest maxim in Bhagavad-gītā. All trifle, everything is trifle thing. Give up everything and try to reach to the Holy, Divine Feet of Kṛṣṇa. The call of different duties there are, but they're all futile. Be deaf to all the calls of all different duties and try to merge yourself in Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Absolute, desperately, be desperate to connect all your connections with all obligations and run madly towards Kṛṣṇa consciousness, desperate. Sarva-dharmān. Reckless.

Gandhi told in his non-cooperation movement, "That fearlessness bordering on recklessness. Only mere fearlessness won't do, but bordering on recklessness."

So, that is also, not only we shall leave the duty, but doing that reckless, we shall make advance towards Kṛṣṇa. Reckless, whatever, desperate, whatever may come, come, let it come. I must march towards Kṛṣṇa. Sarva-dharmān parityajya. Little reaction may come, naturally, but I won't care for that, let them come. I shall put my back towards them and go ahead towards Kṛṣṇa. He's all in all. Home is there, in His feet.

oṁ tad viṣṇo paramaṁ padaṁ sadā, paśyanti suraya divīva cakṣur ātatam
[tad viprāso vipanyavo jāgṛvāṁśāḥ, samindhate viṣṇor yat paramaṁ padam]

["As the sun and sunlight is continuous over the skies as light-giver to us (for that sunlight is the universal form of the Lord) similarly, the Divine Lotus Feet of the Lord Śrī Viṣṇu is always spread widely (like a canopy) over our head."] [Ṛg-Veda, 1.22.20]

His divine feet are a vigilant eye over our head, a guardian. Always live with this consciousness. He's our guardian, He's all in all. And His holy feet is conscious like the sun, can see anything and everything. He's such.

When Kṛṣṇa Himself wants to give, to distribute Him, He becomes Gaurāṅga. When He wants to distribute His own self to the world, even to the fallen, He becomes Gaurāṅga. He Himself becomes a devotee. He plays the part of a devotee, and shows the path to us how to attain Him. He Himself becomes the leader. "Come with Me. I'm going to Kṛṣṇa consciousness, I'm going to Vṛndāvana, come with Me." Kṛṣṇa Himself comes to our door and says that, "I'm going to Vṛndāvana, you all come with Me." He Himself comes in that way to take us. So this is Navadwīpa Dhāma, the generous Vṛndāvana, the bureau to issue tickets to the fallen souls for Vṛndāvana. Navadwīpa. Gaura Hari. Gaurāṅga. And Nityānanda is the canvasser in-chief for the tickets.

yathā yathā gaura padāravinde, vindeta bhaktiṁ kṛta puṇya rāśiḥ
tathā tathot sarpati hṛdy akasmāt, rādhā padāmbhoja sudhāmbhu-rāśiḥ

[Prabodhānanda Saraswatī Ṭhākura says: "As much as we devote ourselves to the lotus feet of Śrī Gaurāṅga, we will automatically achieve the nectarine service of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī in Vṛndāvana. An investment in Navadwīpa Dhāma will automatically take one to Vṛndāvana. How one will be carried there will be unknown to him. But those who have good fortune invest everything in the service of Gaurāṅga. If they do that, they will find that everything has automatically been offered to the divine feet of Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī. She will accept them in Her confidential service and give them engagement, saying: "Oh, you have a good recommendation from Navadwīpa; I immediately appoint you to this service."]

[Caitanya-candrāmṛta, 88]

He takes to the camp of Rādhārāṇī. All these, we may think these are mere abstract thoughts, and we're living in the concrete reality. But what we consider to be reality, that is abstract and will be evaporated. The atom bomb is ready there. In a moment our considered reality will vanish. Wholesale dissolution of the solar system and the whole world of the experience of our senses will disappear. Coming, going, coming, going. Creation and dissolution. Sṛṣṭi-sthiti-pralaya [creation, maintenance and dissolution]. Always, every moment everything is dying. How to get out, that problem, it's not reality, false notion we're suffering under. We're to understand that. Where we are that is the kingdom of death. The god of death, he's the master of this world. And we should not be a tax-paying subject of that god of death.

We should try to find out our home of eternal living. Sweet, sweet home. Back to God, back to home. We're to understand this principle of life. Back to God, back to home. In one word, it is very encouraging, sustaining. Back to God, back to home. Tad viṣṇo paramaṁ padaṁ sadā, paśyanti suraya. The spiritual scholars they always see that our abode is the Holy Feet of Viṣṇu. There we can live safely. All these will be inundated with water or fire. Where to live? There is time and there is chance in the human birth. This is the door to enter the home is the human birth. And with the agents we must go to our home. These agents are there, wandering to recruit us towards our home. We take this advantage and go with them, go home, sweet, sweet home.

Nitāi. Nitāi. Then, they may got to Māyāpur?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Make such proper arrangement for prasāda, help them.

Devotee: Jaya Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda Paramahaṁsa Parivrājakācārya Aṣṭottara-śata Śrī Śrīmad His Divine Grace Śrīla Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!

Devotees: Jaya!

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ... and so the Gracious Lord, to help the people has made special arrangement for bestowing, for distributing, for saving the people _____ [?] peculiar position. In the worst period of time to help all with the best thing. Gaura Hari. We shall ask you to visit again. Today you're going. This is not a place to be left. Highest ideal of life connected with this place, Navadwīpa.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: We are by the finishing of the Ganges. River Ganges also meant to save the fallen souls. And just nearby the end of the Ganges this town, this place has been placed. The last and highest gift of the Ganges. _____ [?] sevā, service.

Devotee: And I took initiation from Satyānanda Saraswatī of Mangeer [?] Bihar Mangeer [?] He's disciple of Śivānanda Saraswatī of Rishikesh.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Oh. Śivānanda. Satyānanda Saraswatī of Bihar.

Devotee: Satyānanda Saraswatī of Mangeer Bihar. Mangeer is the name of the village, it's in the Bihar state.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Do you know what was his previous name?

Devotee: No, I don't know. Actually I seen once only.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: One boy came from Bihar to me and stayed with me for some time. Then he had a quarrel with this Hari Charan and he left the Maṭha and went to live with Śivānanda, so far I know. And perhaps he was sent to foreign land, and then he came back, at that time he wrote a letter to me, perhaps by the request of Satyānanda - er, Śivānanda. That he wants to take sannyāsa there. His initiation from me was kept and he took sannyāsa from there. Whether he came from Bihar, whether he's that Satyānanda - maybe.

Devotee: I think he's a master for yoga.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That Satyānanda he issued one magazine...

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...and _____ [?] Gopāla Ācārya had his essay in that magazine. I saw that. But he was not in the line of Vallabhācārya.

Devotee: No, he's not like...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Vallabhācārya is a Vaiṣṇava line...

Devotee: It is mainly for Śiva I believe.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...and his line may be of Śaṅkara.

Devotee: He follows Śiva. And name of his organisation is Bihar School of Yoga.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yoga. So that is not devotion proper. That is not for devotion, but that is a deviation from your Vallabhācārya Matha. Vallabha School comes from the branch of śuddhādvaita-vāda. Śrīdhara Swāmī, Viṣṇusvāmī, is in the main Matha, and Vallabha is in that line. So that is they're Vaiṣṇava but their stress is in the vātsalya rasa. And also when mādhurya rasa they come to Yamunā, Virajā, Yamunā.

I also met one Gokula Swāmī or someone in Bombay in the Vallabha School. Dharamdāsa took me to him and I had a talk with him. There the Nathadhara was one of the important place, and that very time some trouble in the Nathadhara Maṭha. That mahanta married a Muslim girl perhaps, and he was made out of the position of the mahanta and there was a case going on at that time. I forget the name of the mahanta.

And one of the pleaders also, big pleader there in Bombay, he also put me questions whether this possible. And that lawyer's wife she maintained the opinion "Guru may do anything and everything. So still we must not leave the Guru." That was the opinion of the wife of that big lawyer, in the Vallabha School. I forget his name. But we protested that.

guror apy avaliptasya, kāryākāryam ajānataḥ [utpatha-prathipannasya, parityāgo vidhīyate]

["A guru who is addicted to sensual pleasure and polluted by vice, who is ignorant and who has no power to discriminate between right and wrong, or who is not on the path of śuddha-bhakti must be abandoned."] [Mahābhārata, Udyoga-parva, 179.25]

If guru is led astray then we must disassociate with him. And the husband, that broker, he was very satisfied with our argument, but his wife did not like. Gokul mahanta perhaps at that time there, Bombay.

Anyhow, they come from Vaiṣṇava School, their four Vaiṣṇava School. Viṣṇusvāmī, Nimbarka, then Rāmānuja, and Madhvācārya. Śrī Caitanyadeva comes in the Madhva School. Rāmānanda a branch in the Rāmānuja School. And Vallabhācārya a branch in the Nimbarka, in the Viṣṇusvāmī

School. And Nimbarka also divided Dāsa and Haridāsa. Haridāsa School also a branch from the Nimbarka. All these four they believe that Personality of God is the highest.

But this Rāmānanda and others they think that God conception is lower, and the highest conception is Brahman. So Brahman is equal to God minus vidya is equal to jīva minus avidya. Brahman when enveloped by avidya, ignorance, he's jīva. And Brahman when he's mixed with vidya - and vidya is also a part of māyā - then he becomes God. That is their underlying principle. So if jīva is liberated he goes over the God. That is their idea.

But Mahāprabhu, Rāmānuja, They gave argument against that. "What is this? God is the Master of māyā, and jīva is the slave of māyā. And you mix them together as one and same, so it is erroneous at the very foundation."

When I was a third year student I got a Bhagavad-gītā edition written by a disciple of a very big Paṇḍita, Sasa Datta Kagaraman [?] at that time, whom I met again when I was a college student.

There he wrote that, "If jīva is liberated then he goes on the upper position of the God."

I could not adjust that. But I did not know anything about the different opinions in the śāstra at that time. But I could not accept that, that jīva when liberated can go in the upper position than God. Then what is the position of the God? It can't be, that was my internal intuition. Then when I grew up I found that, Oh, this is the interpretation of the Śaṅkara School.

But Rāmānuja, Nimbarka, Viṣṇusvāmī, they are of opinion that, "No. That can never be."

Mahāprabhu had argument with Sārvabhauma Paṇḍita. "This is most wonderful that you say,

"māyādhīśa," "māyāvaśa" - īśvare jīve bheda, [hena-jīve īśvara-saha kaha ta' abheda gītā-śāstre jīva-rūpa "śakti" kari' māne, hena jīve abheda kara īśvarera sane]

["The Lord is the master of the potencies, and the living entity is the servant of them. That is the difference between the Lord and the living entity. However, you declare that the Lord and the living entities are one and the same. In Bhagavad-gītā the living entity is established as the marginal potency of the Supreme PersonaIity of Godhead."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 6. 162-3]

"Īśvara is the Master of māyā, and jīva is His servant. And you say both of them are one and the same. How it is possible? This is a bogus theory, so let us cancel it. The devotional school cancels this idea that jīva can be Brahman, and God is below the Brahman."

So life is not well, according to us, that you should continue in that sampradāya because that is Godless. Their God is concocted, vidya. Brahman is concerned with good learning, then become God. But ultimate reality is Brahman, non-differentiated consciousness, not person. In Bhagavad-gītā it is clear that, brahmaṇo hi pratiṣṭhāham, [amṛtasyāvyayasya ca śāśvatasya ca dharmasya, sukhasyaikāntikasya ca]

["I alone am the original mainstay of the undivided divine vitality, the inexhaustible nectar, the timeless pastimes, and the sweetness of the ambrosia of profound love divine."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 14.27]

Lord says, "I am the support of Brahman."

[yasmāt] kṣaram atīto 'ham, akṣarād api cottamaḥ [ato 'smi loke vede ca, prathitaḥ puruṣottamaḥ]

["Because I am transcendental to the fallible souls and also superior to My infallible eternal associates, My glories are sung in the world and in the scriptures as Puruṣottama, the Supreme Person."]
[Bhagavad-gītā, 15.18]

akṣaraṁ brahma paramaṁ, [svabhāvo 'dhyātmam ucyate bhūta-bhāvodbhava-karo, visargaḥ karma-saṁjñitaḥ]

["The Supreme Lord said: Certainly Brahman is the indestructible, unchangeable Absolute Truth, and the pure spirit soul is the genuine personality of the living being. The word 'karma' denotes abnegation for the sake of a demigod, which produces the bodies of humans and other species, created by the agency of gross and subtle material elements; this abnegation refers to the performance of charity, sacrifice, austerity, and all duties rendered for the propitiation of that god."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 8.3]

"What is Brahman? That kṣara, akṣarā, two kinds of existence. And I, kṣaram atīto 'ham, akṣarād, I'm beyond both kṣara and akṣarā, so My name is Puruṣottama, Vāsudeva."
It is mentioned clearly in Bhagavad-gītā.

Devotee: Now what I should do? I took initiation from...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh? No, No. That must be left...

Devotee: I can - can I...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I notice that I so far I could not know that your ultimate goal is a non-differentiated, impersonal. But the highest idea of the Supreme Entity is personal. A part of that Brahman, we're person, and the whole Brahman represented He's an impersonal existence? He's person, Parabrahman.

Brahmapur, Chāndogya, has written in Chāndogya-Upaniṣad that, "There is a country made of Brahman, not of matter but of consciousness. And He's the king of all, He's person, God is person. Not the person that is enveloped by māyā. Māyā-titha, beyond illusion, but His existence is personal existence.

Devotee: Then what you advise me to do?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: To be indifferent from that school, gradually. And take initiation in some Vaiṣṇava School who have the conception that God is personal.

And these are impersonalists. Mukti, liberation, merging into consciousness, that is their highest goal.

Devotee: Now, can I get initiation from you? Because now I have to leave. The train is at six forty.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Of course if it's necessary to help you, then I shall have to be ready. Ready, according to the order of our Guru Mahārāja. But you must search your heart first, whether the inner heart approves this. The God is personal. God is Reality The Beautiful. He's satyam, śivam, sundaram. Sat-cit- ānandam. Ānandam is personal existence, not a substance but person. Consciousness over consciousness, that is all personal.

Devotee: Purī Mahārāja knows me very nearly.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Yes.

Devotee: So he can tell you about me.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: You have a good heart at the bottom, otherwise how you're selected to do such high service for the Vaiṣṇava School. So your previous sukṛti is good. But anyhow by chance you're committed to their creed, section.

Śivānanda School, I know them, they're Śaṅkarite, followers of Śaṅkarācārya. Their āśrama is near Rishikesh. When from Haridwar going to Rishikesh in the - once I went to that side, Badarikāśrama, at that time found one told that 'this is the Śivānanda āśrama.'

Devotee: Yes. That is Śivānanda āśrama, right.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: From Haridwar to _____ [?] or somewhere on the way. Śivānanda. And his journal also I have seen. An educated man, no doubt, but educated in the impersonal school.

This man, Satyānanda you say perhaps, in the beginning he was in connection with Rahul, the Buddhist School. Then he left him and came to me, and stayed here for some time, one year or so. And then had a quarrel with Hari Charan and left the Maṭha, beyond my consciousness, from Calcutta. I was here.

Then he wrote a letter from Śivānanda's āśrama. "I am here. He has accepted me. But your initiation is intact. He's not going to disturb. And I'm taking sannyāsa from him, and he's sending me _____ [?]

Devotee: Now, I can get initiation from you within this limited time.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But whether that man, I forget his name.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Mahārāja. Nityasevā is going now.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: All right. _____ [?]

Badrinārāyaṇa: And Mr. Devani he says he wants his initiation now.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Eh?

Badrinārāyaṇa: He's wanting your connection right now.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Then, you'll have to stay today.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Today is Ekādaśī, Hari-vāsara, Ekādaśī day. And it's good that this day you may not leave the Dhāma.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Badrinārāyaṇa: He says, Mahārāja, "There's someone waiting at Howrah station for him." The latest he can leave is seven thirty.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha. Ha.

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But this initiation is not so...

Devotee: So easy.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...non-important. The most important thing in ones life. Importance must be given. It's not a matter of play. Initiation means surrender. Praṅipāta, paripraśna, and sevā. Praṅipāta, surrender, honest enquiry, and service, that means initiation, underlying. So surrender, and honest enquiry, and then to accept the service. Proper initiation is this. In Veda also, gurum evābhigacchet. Ābhigacchet means he will go there forever.

tad vijñānārthaṁ sa gurum evābhigacchet, samit paniḥ śrotriyaṁ brahma niṣṭham

["One who wants scientific knowledge about the Supreme Truth must approach a bona fide Guru and offer him everything required for sacrifice. The Guru must be fixed in the truth, having heard it from a genuine source."] [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 1.2.12]

Samit paniḥ. What is necessary for that purpose of divya jñāna, divine knowledge, he will take everything with him. And he will approach, śrotriya, who is well versed in the revealed scriptures, brahma niṣṭham, and who is really established in that knowledge. In Bhāgavatam,

[tasmād guruṁ prapadyeta, jijñāsuḥ śreyaḥ uttamam]
śabde pare ca niṣṇātaṁ, brahmaṇy upaśamāśrayam

["Therefore any person who seriously desires real happiness must seek a bona fide spiritual master and take shelter of him by initiation. The qualification of the bona fide Guru is that he has realised the conclusions of the scriptures by deliberation and is able to convince others of those conclusions. Such great personalities, who have taken shelter of the Supreme Godhead, leaving aside all material considerations, should be understood to be bona fide Spiritual Masters."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.3.21]

He'll approach the Ācārya who is already established in that scriptural knowledge as well as the realisation of that. So it is not a non-important thing that only in a passing by way we can be doing this. It must be given highest importance. To be recruited towards home, to purchase ticket to be recruited safely towards home. Home recruitment, dīkṣā means, home recruitment, all in all.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: One may go to Howrah and take him here, fetch, also?

Devotee: But only I can identify him. Nobody else can identify him. Only I can identify that gentleman. None else will identify him. You see, he's a materialistic person, he has so many nonsense commitments in life, so you're to fulfil that also. He's a materialistic man, he has so many nonsense commitments in the life which we have to fulfil.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But that nonsense commitment we should, must get out of, relief. That entanglement, as soon as possible, that association should be left immediately, misguidance. Misguidance is not guidance proper. Misreading is not proper reading. So that must be left immediately, that association.

Devotee: So I will again try to...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Life has value, and this is going to be devalued.

Devotee: I will again try to come on the Vyāsa pūjā day.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha. "Trust no future however pleasant."

Devotees: (Group laughter)

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa. Yes.

Devotee: Unfortunately yesterday evening I missed you.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Self help, and the help must be real help. Self help, to help ones own self, and not to misguide. Whenever, in the treatment of a doctor, whatever, some new thing is discovered, new bad sign, symptom is discovered in the - immediately that must be taken for fresh treatment, and not neglected. Bad symptom in a patient, the immediate help should be given for relief. This is both scripture and saint, and common sense also says like that.

Devotee: Now, may I take your leave?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hare Kṛṣṇa.

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ... cherishes him, makes cheerful. But if water withdrawn, the very sun dries, burns that lotus. Do you follow?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The Sanskrit śloka there is. I forget that. But the meaning is this. The disciple is like lotus, and Guru is like the water around the lotus. When Guru is there the sun rays helps the lotus. But if water is withdrawn, Guru withdrawn, the very sun burns that lotus. So Guru is the śakti, the potency which is always very kind to us and helps us. And that is also a particular potency of God, not independent thing, Guru. But Guru is that substance, or that portion of God which is always given the responsibility of nurturing me, the disciple. Guru is that part of God which takes care of the disciple always, and the whole responsibility of that disciple with him, through him. Guru's that particular function of God, potency, the particular potency, or agency, given to particular internal potency. The charge to look after the interest of the disciples that are recruited from foreign parts from the kingdom of māyā.

And there also the adjustment is like a hierarchy. In svarūpa-śakti there is also in every rasa the chief. In mādhurya-rasa, Rādhārāṇī, and the competitors and the subordinates also. And vātsalya, in every rasa, every group of service holders there are such adjustments, many. One and many, and that is in harmony. And harmony is of two kinds, one opposition party, and another direct serving party, in this way. Anvayāt, vyatireka, ṛgyām, 'nvayād itarataś, direct and indirect, in both ways He's being served - the Lord. And there is the harmony.

And Guru is the mediator, through him we're to serve Him. Without him I cannot have any interest in God, any service in God. That particular function of the direct potency of God is Guru. Sākṣāt. Sometimes he's called God Himself, and sometimes His devotee. And that also, the function changes from - just as in a student the teachers may change physically, but the teacher-ship is always one and same, helping the student for their progress in knowledge.

The ontological conception of Guru, and Śiva, god, and Dhāma, is little intricate, cannot easily be understandable. Peculiar, the Dhāma, the conception of Dhāma. And the conception of Mahādeva Śiva, sometimes very affectionate, favourite to Nārāyaṇa, sometimes revolting. And Guru may come in different disposition, different way to help. Guru tattva. Guru has been called God Himself, but if we scrutinise more perfectly we see he's particular potency. And that function may come to us through different bodies, different persons, that interest, caretaker. The caretaker of a particular person may be, may differ, but the caretaker-ship is always there, from the side of the Lord. That particular function of helping the ordinary soul is Guru, but that function may come through different persons. But still they're Guru. A primary teacher, a school teacher, college teacher, a teacher of music, teacher of science, art, they're all teachers, and there's gradation also according to the importance of the subject.

In Bhāgavata [11.7.20 - 11.9.33] it's mentioned that avadhūta he had twenty four Gurus. Ha, ha. He found advice to go towards God from many sources. As one makes progress in spiritual life he sees Guru everywhere, giving suggestion to go towards Kṛṣṇa. They will all say, "Do this, do this."

In our lower stage everything tries to take us away from Kṛṣṇa, from God. They invite us for enjoyment, that is to take away from the service of God.

But when we're properly adjusted then we find that everything is asking me to serve God. They're giving, showing signs. In symptoms, we can see from them that they're asking me to do some service towards God. Reminds us about God. In different ways they come to help us to serve God, when we're adjusted, everything. In Vṛndāvana the water, the dust, the sand, the trees, the creeper, they'll all encourage me to serve Kṛṣṇa. Their very idea, their very association will excite me, will imbibe some force in me to serve Kṛṣṇa. The environment is such.

And when we're awake in this world everything will try to take away from God and invite me. "Oh, come and enjoy me. Where is Kṛṣṇa? Where is He? You come and enjoy me." Everything will invite.

But when we're placed in that area everything will say, "Oh, go to Kṛṣṇa. Serve Kṛṣṇa. We're also doing so. Help me to serve Kṛṣṇa." Others will say, "Come with me to serve Kṛṣṇa." Some will say, "Help me to serve Kṛṣṇa." Only that centre consciousness, Kṛṣṇa consciousness is in vogue intensely there. The whole atmosphere is surcharged with devotion that is serving tendency towards Kṛṣṇa, God. The attractive centre, nearby we shall find everything is being attracted in an intense way.

And we're far, then we're under out carrying current, then we're being away from Kṛṣṇa consciousness. And the in carrying current...

85.08.20.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Family, admission to enter into the family, His family of servitors, by dīkṣā.

divyaṁ jñānaṁ yato dadyāt, [kuryāt pāpasya saṅkṣayam
tasmād dīkṣeti sā proktā, deśikais tattva-kovidaiḥ]

["The process by which divine knowledge (divyaṁ jñānaṁ) is given and sins are destroyed is called dīkṣā by the highly learned scholars who are expert in spiritual affairs."] [Hari-bhakti-vilāsa, 27]

He gets such enlightenment he can understand that Kṛṣṇa is my guardian. He's all in all. And leaving all other duties he promises to go towards Kṛṣṇa for His service. This function, they impart such knowledge, and the disciple also invites that sort of knowledge. That I belong to Kṛṣṇa wholesale, I'm His property. He can use me in any way. I'm not free to leave Him, my programme is within His area of service. But not without that, on the outside.

dīkṣā-kāle bhakta kare ātma-samarpaṇa, sei kāle kṛṣṇa tāre kare ātma-sama
[sei deha kare tāra cid-ānanda-maya, aprākṛta-dehe tāṅra caraṇa bhajaya]

["At the time of initiation, when a devotee fully surrenders unto the service of the Lord, Kṛṣṇa accepts him to be as good as Himself."] - ["When the devotee's body is thus transformed into spiritual existence, the devotee, in that transcendental body, renders service to the lotus feet of the Lord."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 4.192-3]

"You are My own. Your interest is My interest. My interest is your interest. We are one and the same."

This assurance comes from Kṛṣṇa. He accepts us as His own and takes the responsibility of everything, in good or bad days for us. And according to our surrender that comes also. Divyaṁ jñānaṁ, this is real knowledge, this is proper knowledge, this is absolute knowledge. Independent of all different interests, separate interests. From the absolute standpoint that He has got right over everything and over me also, that I'm absolutely to be used by Him and none else. This sort of transaction, this is dīkṣā. Divyaṁ jñānaṁ, the divine knowledge is this, divine conception is this. So we understand and we go to do that.

Otherwise we're suffering from ignorance, this false notion about the environment. That ignorance of the proper estimation of the environment and us, we're suffering from that, avidya, ajñāna, ignorance. What is that? Separate interest. I've got separate interest, and so many others they've got separate interest, there are many. Not harmony in one, this is our ajñāna, ignorance.

And when we're conscious of the common centre, and that is good, home, home sweet, all these things, then we get connection, divya jñāna, real knowledge, divine knowledge we get.

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: So what is the meaning of the eternal relationship? What is the meaning that you are eternally related with Guru? When you take initiation from Guru, that relationship is eternal?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That our very nature of our existence is of a subordinate. No direct connection is possible with Kṛṣṇa in our constitutional position. Through him, through some we're to have His connection, not direct. We're taṭasthā-śakti, we come from marginal potency. So we can connect with Kṛṣṇa through His internal potency. And in internal potency also there's gradation.

In the potency there's the conception of personality, and there's also hierarchy. Very near and closer and closest, and far, more far, in this way. Hierarchy. Just as in the bureaucracy, all are not very intimate to the king. Some are very near, some are little far, in this way. The śakti, the potency is in this way, there is intensity, more, more. Just near the sun heat is more, light is more. Far away from the sun, there the intensity of the light and heat will be little less. In this way. Light and heat near the sun, as it's going far it's being less, both light and heat, like that.

Near about Kṛṣṇa is more serving spirit. And going a little away and that tendency is being lessened, serving, affection, everything. So inside, nearest, is more interest, and little far, little slackened. More or less they're subservient to the nearer group, higher group. Hierarchy is there.

...

...supreme position. He's an autocrat. We're to adjust ourselves with such a centre, with anything. Any change in the environment may come. But with optimism we're to face. That is the key to success in our life.

tat te 'nukampāṁ [susamīkṣamāṇo, bhuñjāna evātma-kṛtaṁ vipākam
hṛd-vāg-vapurbhir vidhadhan namas te, jīveta yo mukti-pade sa dāya bhāk]

["One who, in the hope of achieving Your grace, goes on enduring the inauspicious fruit of his own karma, and passes his days practising devotion unto You in every thought, word, and deed - such a person is heir to the land of freedom: he attains to the plane of positive immortality."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.14.8]

The highest advice. Tat te 'nukampāṁ susamīkṣamāṇo. The best estimation about the environment has been advised to be in this way. It is a grant, but where from the grant coming, He's my guardian, He's my Lord. He's supreme, He's autocrat. His grace - we're living by His grace, not as a matter of right. We're living, this is not our birthright. We may or may not exist. Does not matter to the infinite whole. Tat te 'nukampāṁ susamīkṣamāṇo. Whatever coming - His grace - not earned by my right, or my ability, or my qualification. All coming, every part of it, a grace coming to me. Tat te 'nukampāṁ susamīkṣamāṇo. Our well estimated, well guided estimation will be like this. We'll be satisfied whatever small grant we get. No right, not with the eye of any right, whether I'm getting our own or not, my own portion, own share, nothing of the kind. Tat te 'nukampāṁ susamīkṣamāṇo, bhuñjāna evātma-kṛtaṁ vipākam. And what trouble we find that is self acquired. Due to my defective position I'm so. I'm so low, mean, so my vanity should have to disappear altogether. No position I have got. Only under the grace, the whole thing. My whole existence, prospect, everything, only for His grace. Such dependent position we've got. Slave, kṛṣṇera 'nitya-dāsa.'

[jīvera 'svarūpa' haya — kṛṣṇera 'nitya-dāsa', kṛṣṇera 'taṭasthā-śakti' 'bhedābheda-prakāśa' sūryāṁśa-kiraṇa, yaiche agni-jvālā-caya, svābhāvika kṛṣṇera tina-prakāra 'śakti' haya]

["It is the living entity's constitutional position to be an eternal servant of Kṛṣṇa because he is the marginal energy of Kṛṣṇa and a manifestation simultaneously one with and different from the Lord, like a molecular particle of sunshine or fire. Kṛṣṇa has three varieties of energy."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 20.108-109]

Mahāprabhu told. "You consider, you know yourself to be the slave of the Supreme Lord."

Slave has got no right, like property, like animal property, cows, cats, dogs. Our position is like that of a dog and cat. But at the same time 'no right' but prospect by His grace we can enter the highest position, only through service. Service means to satisfy Him, not to satisfy me, not for myself. But when I'm determined to maintain my existence for Him then I've got some position. I'm for Him. Everything for Him. For Itself. So I'm for Him, I've got some position. And as much as I can dedicate myself to be for Him, so much position concrete I may acquire. So my position depends on my rendering sincere service to the prime cause.

Kṛṣṇera 'nitya-dāsa', kṛṣṇera 'taṭasthā-śakti' 'bhedābheda-prakāśa.' A marginal potency, from the independent view we can find. Something common, something different, but it is inconceivable. So Kṛṣṇa all, and we've got dependent position potency, and owner is He, and if we're conscious of that fact then we can thrive. We can improve our position and we may get the highest position. We can enter into the most confidential service. We're to satisfy the permanent servitors of the highest conception. The highest servitor is - should be the object of our greatest reach. Rādhā dāsya. Who can serve Him best, our aim will be to enter into Her group. So service is our life, service is everything, we thrive there. And whenever we want to do the work of a master we go away, we degrade.

So by serving we live, and by trying to make - lord it over, we die. Die to live. Don't try to live without death. Ha, ha. Die to live, not to live at the cost of the death. Don't live to die, but die to live, but don't live to die. Living, in our estimation, is to face death. But in our estimation, to die for Him is to live. Central position is such, our relation with the centre. That Hegelian theory is very auspicious. Die to live.

So our ego should be dissolved, ego of self searching. God searching is our self searching. Search for Kṛṣṇa is really to search for our own interest, higher interest. So search for Kṛṣṇa, not to search for a separate ego, but search for Kṛṣṇa. Your interest searching is included in that, represented there. Only search for Kṛṣṇa, with the spirit of service, not with the spirit of enjoyment. Die to live.

Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ. Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, that ego must be dissolved. Ego means the collection of separate interests of different type. That is in a box. Just as when aeroplane has been crashed they're trying to find out that box, the record is there.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Black box.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Black box. The plane is passing through different lives, that box is there, that is ego. There we can trace from where he's coming, and where to go, he's going. That karma, the result of our karma in the most subtle form is reserved there. That ego, if we search the ego of a person, where from he came, there are specialists who can read. "Oh, he came from a tiger section, or he came from an insect. He came, his previous birth was that horse, or something." That can be traced in that ego. "And it's possible that in next life he'll have to go, his goal is such, and place." That sort of ego should be dissolved, that nowhere in the world of three dimension we shall go, our goal, our destination. Nowhere in the land of three dimension. Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svaḥ, Mahā, Jana, Tapa, Satyaloka, Virajā, Brahmaloka.

I have got, I want to have a ticket for Goloka or Vṛndāvana. And Nityānanda Prabhu, Mahāprabhu, They're distributing that ticket. I want to go there to live. I'm told that that is the home of my previous generations, something like that. I'd like to go there. Ruci, taste. Taste is the unit, not brain, not knowledge. Mahāprabhu gave recognition to the inner taste. That is our capital. Brain has got nothing to do. Brain may sanction something, but heart may take me towards some other direction. We're generally guided by our heart, our taste, not by our brain. Brain cannot control all this - to certain extent. But heart is the innermost guiding principle, will be guiding the inner taste. That guides us to our goal. So we must be more concerned with that taste, ruci. And to improve it, only the association with the sādhus, with those that have got real taste for Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Anyhow to associate, that is valuable, not the brain is valuable, but earnest, sincere hankering for Kṛṣṇa, that is valuable. Kṛṣṇa - all beautiful, but autocrat, we must think.

The highest thing can never be subservient to anything, it is clear, reasonable also. Because He holds the highest position so why He should be dependent to any other thing? But only dependent to those that have got that conception of the highest thing about Him, that He's the highest. Naturally oneness is there, common interest binds together. Kṛṣṇa. So Kṛṣṇa and His own. When we've got some connection with a real devotee of Kṛṣṇa we've got some tangible position. Otherwise we're nowhere, we're lost in the infinite. But whenever we come in contact with a devotee, rather with an agent who is wandering here for His interest, come across such a person, then we've got some substantial position.

brahmāṇḍa brhamite kona bhāgyavān jīva [guru-kṛṣṇa-prasāde pāya bhakti-latā-bīja]

["Wandering throughout the material universe, the very fortunate living entity who receives the grace of Guru and Kṛṣṇa receives the seed of the creeper of devotional service."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.151]

We're wandering aimlessly in this universe. When we come in connection with a devotee of Kṛṣṇa then we get some hope, some support, some safe position. Otherwise we're lost in the infinite. Where coming, where going, what doing, all aimlessly, no good. Connected with local interest that has got no value in the infinite. Like a ball, by getting a kick ball is rolling that side, again another kick going this side. Another kick from that side going this side. In this way, a ball under the kicks, our position. But when we come to have - to meet one who has got some substantial connection with the real centre, some tangible position we have acquired. Otherwise nowhere. Counted. We've got, we're within the calculation from the centre, under the calculation. We're traceable, otherwise untraceable position we're wandering, passing through. Brahmāṇḍa brhamite.

Even Brahmā, the creator of this material world, has got no tangible position. But the Guru Brahmā is another thing. Ordinary Brahmā, the creator of any solar system, may not have any tangible position in the universal calculation.

When Brahmā approached Kṛṣṇa to meet Him, Kṛṣṇa asked, "Which Brahmā has come?"

Brahmā thought, "Is there any other Brahmā? I'm all in all, the creator of the wholesale, whatever we see, feel." Still, he had to tell, Yes, he was the father of Sanaka. "The four-headed Brahmā has come to meet You." Then he was taken in and there found, "Oh. So many Brahmās are there. Hundred faced, thousand faced, million faced Brahmās are there with their big and gorgeous figure. They're commanding more, greater brahmāṇḍa, creator of greater solar system, they're there."

So infinite can accommodate everything. We're to make some tangible position in the infinite. How to make progress, what direction? That love, affection, beyond calculation, a plane beyond calculation. That force which is controlling without brain, that intuition, something like. The mother of the child, even it is found in the beasts and birds, insects, everywhere, the intuitive force. That is going on to conduct this world affairs. That is unaccountable, come from where we do not know. Some affection comes to do the duty, service, then disappears. Bird's chicks little growing, but knows that intuitive affection, bird goes away. In this way. With that sort of tendency, that comes from the affection area, love. We're to take shelter under that wave if available anywhere. That can help in such helpless condition we're wandering through.

Human brain, we're going to destroy the whole world by inventing atomic energy. Ha, ha. So civilised in the negative side. Civilisation in the negative side improvement, meaningless, suicidal, to kill one another. Is this civilisation, a development? Should we call this improvement or development? Satanic brain. Satan is not a positive thing, it is indirect, undesirable force. So Satan is killing, destroying, agents of destruction.

But constructive thing is affection, love, sincerity, self-giving, surrendering. Love is always based on surrender. That high thing we shall try to imbibe, that noble thing, self-giving. To give is nobleness. To absorb, to exploit, that is Satanic. And to surrender for higher things that is Godly.

Mahāprabhu told, "Who are you to give? Already you belong to Him."

How you belong to Him? Not by any contract but by nature you're a servant, Kṛṣṇa dāsa, slave. What does it mean? By your very existence you are His subservient, that is your nature.

And you want the opposite thing, you want to become a Kṛṣṇa, you want to become a God, take His position. Just the opposite your aspiration. And because you do not thrive, you can't become that Kṛṣṇa, so you want to commit suicide. That is renunciation, mukti, liberation, to enter into non-differentiated area, not to rise again, eternal slumber, samādhi, brahma-sāyujya, all these things, unnatural.

Come in the natural way and you thrive there. We're so much accustomed to get our interest in the world of exploitation that we can't think that by serving we live. By dying we can live. We can't understand that very thing. By giving we get, giving we thrive. And by taking we go down, we lose. Just, we're accustomed in a thought of opposite thing, by amassing I become big, not by dissolution, not by giving, offering myself, I can be big and noble. So die to live.

Bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ, kṣīyante cāsya karmāṇi.
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.21] & [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.20.30]

Identified, if whole separate interest box dissolved, we find we're identified with the same common interest with my Lord. And according to my might I'm to do my duty. That is normal life. That is a life which has got recognition in the normal living in this organic whole.

This is too abstract, is it not? Eh?

Badrinārāyaṇa: No. Very practical.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Practical? Who is there? Madan-manohara?

Badrinārāyaṇa: No, Mike.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mike. Here?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Madan-manohara.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: And there?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Purī Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Purī Mahārāja.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Dinadayal. And behind the pillar is Rāma, he's trying to hear some Hari kathā.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] Trying to swim in the - what I'm talking, swimming in the sea.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Vyāso vetti na vetti vā [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 24.313]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Left in the world of thought. Kṛṣṇa has left him in the world of thinking, only.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Previously Mahārāja you told, "Kṛṣṇa is playing hide and seek with him."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hide and seek, but now more hiding. Ha, ha.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Ha, ha. To increase his seeking.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Hiding means naturally increasing seeking. One thing cannot stay for long, the reaction will come.

naiva tasya kṛtenārtho, nākṛteneha kaścana na cāsya sarvva-bhūteṣu, kaścid artha-vyapāśrayaḥ

["In this world, a self-realised person who rejoices in the soul does not accrue piety by the performance of actions, nor does he incur sin by abstaining from duties. Amongst all living entities, from the highest life-forms of the planet of Lord Brahmā down to the world of immobile organisms, he never depends on anyone for any personal demand whatsoever."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.18]

A worldly busy man, it does not mean that always his movement is profitable. Who is busiest man in the world, does he make the greatest profit? Adjustment. What is necessary, that is adjustment, that safe trouble of many ages, suiting one moment's adjustment can make us so rich that running through ages from this side, that side, is meaningless.

[kiṁ pramattasya bahubhir, parokṣair hāyanair iha]

varaṁ muhūrttaṁ viditaṁ, ghaṭate śreyase yataḥ

["What is the value of a prolonged life which is wasted, inexperienced by years in this world? Better a moment of full consciousness, because that gives one a start in searching after his supreme interest."]
[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.1.12]

That was the first starting of Śukadeva Goswāmī in Bhāgavatam.
"Only seven days left? Oh. That is enough time, that is enough, seven days is enough. Only a seconds utilisation that can solve the whole problem. But sleeping over, running hither, thither, aimlessly, millions of years, no value, cannot fetch any value, anything. But proper utilisation in a second, that can make us, that can enrich us beyond our knowledge, our estimation. Kiṁ pramattasya bahubhir, parokṣair hāyanair iha. Thousands of years inattentively being passed away. What is the good there? Varaṁ muhūrttaṁ viditaṁ. In a moment properly understood, properly utilised, can solve the whole thing." So,

kiṁ karma kim akarmeti, kavayo 'py atra [mohitāḥ tat te karma pravakṣyāmi, yaj jñātvā mokṣyase 'śubhāt]

["Even very learned men are baffled in ascertaining the nature of action and inaction. Some cannot comprehend action, while others cannot comprehend inaction. Hence, I shall now teach you about such action and inaction, knowing which you will attain liberation from the evil world."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.16]

What is work and what is not work, the scholars also cannot ascertain. They're perplexed to find out who is doing and who is not doing. Ha, ha. Planing within the room, the General planing within the room, fighters on the outside, killed outside. The valuable thing is in the plan. Only physical movement is not necessary. So find out the clue of life. There is also activity in the mental plane, not in the bodily plane, physical plane, but in the mental plane. Finding out the solution of life, trying to find out the proper solution of life, that is work enough. Working energy is there in subtle form. Only the gross form should be appreciated if it's not the right thing.

na hi kaścit kṣaṇam api, jātu tiṣṭhaty akarma-kṛt [kāryate hy avaśaḥ karma, sarvaḥ prakṛti-jair guṇaiḥ]

["No one can remain without acting even for a moment. Everyone is forced to act helplessly, stimulated by the modes of material nature. Therefore, it is improper for a person of impure consciousness to reject the purificatory duties prescribed by the scriptures."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 3.5]

Working in the mental plane, only physical activity energising, it is not, the subtle energising may be within. In the mental plane, in the plane of reason, even higher searching after self passing away the world that can be understood by reason. Beyond reason, beyond our reason and understanding, there is a region and to search for that. No activity in the physical sense, but great concentration to find out the higher plane from within is possible. And then that repentance for the past misuse of the life what I have done. That also gathers a force. "O Lord, the prayer...

85.08.20.B

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...may be done within, search within, searching, and trying to utilise, trying to adjust. That is not less important work, to arrive at the conclusion of our life's immediate future, how to utilise. A perplexed - perplexion means unsatisfied, dissatisfaction in the present circumstance. Which way to find out I can be used in the service of the Lord?

If Lord says, "You take your seat here," and if I want to run hither and thither, and if Lord says, "No, you stay here, sit here by My side," what should we do? We should sit here - no, I want some work." That is also a sort of temperament. "I can't sit idly by Your side, some sort of service I must have given to me."

In good connection everything may be good. The connection is all-important, Kṛṣṇa connection, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. In different ways, different persons may go on with their service. All may not be stereotyped thing, stale things. Generally leaders are seen to sit idle, externally, the guide.

Our sincere attitude for the truth, that is all-important. Searching mood, searching Kṛṣṇa and nothing else, that mood is very valuable here. Kṛṣṇānusandhāna, search for Kṛṣṇa. Not satisfied by this and that, so many things. My heart aching. I have heard from any source about Kṛṣṇa. I want to be very near to Him. But nearer to His devotees, that is more tangible, and more real. When we've got some practical faith in the association of His real servitors then we acquire something substantial in our way. That is possible, available, helping. So one who has got abstract attraction for Kṛṣṇa, his position is considered to be primary. But better position who has got aspiration for His servants, than Kṛṣṇa.

īśvare tad-adhīneṣu, bāliśeṣu dviṣatsu ca
prema-maitri-kṛpopekṣa, yaḥ karoti sa madhyamaḥ

["The devotee in the intermediate stage of devotional service is called a madhyama-adhikārī. He loves the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is a sincere friend to all the devotees of the Lord, shows mercy to the innocent and disregards the envious."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.2.46]

Then,

arcayam eva haraye, pūjām yaḥ śraddhāyehate

na tad-bhakteṣu cānyeṣu, sa bhaktaḥ prākṛtaḥ smṛtaḥ

["A devotee who faithfully worships the Deity, but does not properly respect the Vaiṣṇavas or the people in general is called a materialistic devotee, and is considered to be in the lowest position of devotional service."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.2.47]

The beginner they want Kṛṣṇa and not His devotees. But those that have got some tendency to get friendship association with the devotees of Kṛṣṇa, that is something tangible. That is real, higher position, and his life is insured, has got some tangible action, something. So that is considered to be higher.

arcayam eva haraye, pūjām yaḥ śraddhāyehate
na tad-bhakteṣu cānyeṣu, sa bhaktaḥ prākṛtaḥ smṛtaḥ

Ordinary primary stage, who are avoiding the servitors, but only about Kṛṣṇa want to cultivate by Arcā- Mūrti, or by books, or any other way. But when from practical sympathy felt in the heart for His devotees, then his position is more reliable and more safe and more progressive. Got something tangible. And when from every direction nothing but Kṛṣṇa conception can satisfy him then he's got a good position. All the waves coming to him, all connected with Kṛṣṇa, whatever, good or bad coming to him, but concerning Kṛṣṇa, then he's in a better position.

Bad means one devotee he's going away from the ISKCON. Came by his fortune to connect with ISKCON but now going away, that pains his heart - then he's in a bona fide position. His heart is aching for that man whose fallen from Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Though not very palatable, but still giving pain, so his position is good. He's feeling pain for the devotees going away from Kṛṣṇa consciousness. And so many are coming to preach Kṛṣṇa consciousness, carrying the flag from corner to corner of this world, heart is feeling pleasure. That is also good. Anything relating to Kṛṣṇa consciousness, good or bad, satisfaction or dissatisfaction, but concerning Kṛṣṇa, that is good.

Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Disappearance. He was the only sādhu who had recognition from our Guru Mahārāja as sādhu. Vaṁsī Dāsa Bābājī. He was living in the strict sense the life of a bābājī, indifferent to the world. And he was seen smoking, and so many things were scattered around his āśrama, the fish scales, all these things. He wanted to keep himself aloof from the present society by these things, smoking publicly. But he was indifferent to all these worldly things, and really in the heart searching after Kṛṣṇa. In spite of so many opposite signs in his character he had recognition from our Guru Mahārāja. "He's a real Vaiṣṇava living here." But so many Vṛndāvana bābājīs they're cancelled, imitationists. But Vaṁsī Dāsa Bābājī is not imitationist, but really hankering after Kṛṣṇa.

Once he told there was an earthquake and the temple was demolished. And Gaura-Nitāi was within the temple and They were smashed. He's talking to his audience. They say that, "They're not children of such type that They'll be smashed - They fled already." In this way. Not material substance, Nitāi-Gaura, that They'll be smashed by temple crash, fled away.

Peculiarity is this, he lived whole live almost in Navadwīpa, but before passing away he went to his own home in Mymensingh District somewhere, and there he left his body. And before his passing away there were many itches and blood oozing, something like that. And he used to advertise, "What type of sādhu I am, you come and see. Oh, you neighbour you come. What class of saint is myself? You see all these results of my bad karma. I'm a worst type of man. Don't take me as a saint, as a sādhu. I'm the worst of the worst. Otherwise you can't trace that so many things have come in my body." In this way.

Went once to Vṛndāvana and came away, and went to his previous home and there he died. Vaṁsī Dāsa Bābājī. Half mad he was wandering in the streets of Navadwīpa.

I saw him several times when I came here to stay alone. Sometimes I used to go to his āśrama at night. One night I'm seeing - night means in the evening - I was sitting there, I saw him very much enraged.

"Why you so many men here? Don't you find here is Rūpa Mañjarī? Rūpa Mañjarī is here. And why you are so many men are wandering?" Like perhaps in the mood of Yaśodā he's talking like that, apparently irrelevant. "The Rūpa Mañjarī, the young girl has come here, and you men are making crowd here, quarrelling. Go away."

One gentleman was singing some Narottama poetry, song of Narottama. Then after it was finished he remarked, "You only repeated the sound." But the real influence, impression, he caught, he realised. "You are only superficially repeating the sound only, but the inner voltage is not known to you." He told.

_____ [?] "The strong feeling suggested by that song, that hits whom he can know the power underlying that song. But you are only repeating physically. You do not feel what is what volt energy within, you do not know. Only superficially you are repeating the sound. But the voltage within, the meaning, that strikes whose heart he feels how much energy is there." He remarked like that. "Like an ordinary man on the surface you're only repeating the sound. But the deeper meaning underlying the sound that has touched ones heart, whose heart he knows what is there contained in that song."

Ha, ha. What of song? Only the Name, the simple Name of Kṛṣṇa, what voltage is within? Who can understand? According to the depth of ones realisation the word will react, simply the Name of Kṛṣṇa.

tuṇḍe tāṇḍavinī ratiṁ vitanute tuṇḍāvalī-labdhaye

cetaḥ-prāṅgaṇa-saṅginī vijayate sarvendriyāṇāṁ kṛtiṁ
no jāne janitā kiyadbhir amṛtaiḥ kṛṣṇeti varṇa-dvayī

["When the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa appears on the lips of a devotee, it begins madly dancing. Then the Name takes over and handles him as if the person to whom the lips belong loses all control over his lips, and the devotee says: 'With one mouth, how much can I gather the ecstasy of the Holy Name? I need millions of mouths to taste its unlimited sweetness. I'll never feel any satisfaction by chanting with only one mouth."]

[Vidagdha Mādhava, 1.15]

That is said by Paurṇamāsī in Vṛndāvana. "Oh. What power is behind this word Kṛṣṇa? Tuṇḍe tāṇḍavinī ratiṁ vitanute. When I take it on the tongue, I pronounce, then it creates a force making mad. Tāṇḍa ratiṁ tuṇḍāvalī. One tongue is not sufficient. I should have many tongues so I could, may be satisfied, something, by taking the Name of Kṛṣṇa. That aspiration, that deep intolerable feeling within. One tongue is not sufficient. Millions of tongues necessary to pronounce the word Kṛṣṇa. So sweet, so sweet. Tuṇḍe tāṇḍavinī ratiṁ vitanute tuṇḍāvalī. Karṇa-kroḍa-kaḍambinī. When I hear that sound Kṛṣṇa, karṇa-kroḍa-kaḍambinī ghaṭayate karṇārbudebhyaḥ, millions of ears I feel necessary. One or two ears is not sufficient, but ears on all sides will appear the sweet Name of Kṛṣṇa. That sort of feeling arises within, karṇārbudebhyaḥ. Cetaḥ- prāṅgaṇa-saṅginī vijayate. And when it goes and enters the heart, paralyses all other activities. Such a feeling comes within that whole thing is paralysed."

tuṇḍe tāṇḍavinī ratiṁ vitanute tuṇḍāvalī-labdhaye karṇa-kroḍa-kaḍambinī ghaṭayate karṇārbudebhyaḥ spṛhām cetaḥ-prāṅgaṇa-saṅginī vijayate sarvendriyāṇāṁ kṛtiṁ
no jāne janitā kiyadbhir amṛtaiḥ kṛṣṇeti varṇa-dvayī

"I can't estimate, with how much, and what type of nectar the Name Kṛṣṇa - these only two letters, but it's the production of what wonderful thing I can't estimate. What is this?"

Then Rūpa Goswāmī says, babhrāma vaṁśī-dhvaniḥ.

[rundhann ambubhṛtaś camatkṛti-paraṁ kurvvan muhus tumburuṁ dhyānād antarayan sanandana-mukhān vismāpayan vedhasam autsukyāvalibhir baliṁ caṭulayan bhogīndram āghūrṇayan bhindann aṇḍa-kaṭāha-bhittim abhito babhrāma vaṁśī-dhvaniḥ]

[The most attractive sound is the sound of His flute. Śrīla Rūpa Goswāmī has given a description: "Arresting the movement of the clouds, astonishing the Gandharvvas headed by Tumburu and breaking the meditation of the sages headed by Sanandana; astonishing the heart of Lord Brahmā, distracting the mind of the indomitable Balirāja with intense ecstasies, reeling the head of Ananta, the Serpent King who supports the earth planet, and piercing the covering of the universe - the vibration of Kṛṣṇa's flute wandered all around."]

When the sound of the flute came from Kṛṣṇa, what was the effect? Visitha tulayam [?] Rūpa Goswāmī has given description. "The Brahmā he's looking this side, that side. From what side this sort of sound is coming?" Eh? The creator of this world he's perplexed. "What side is this peculiar sound coming from?" He's looking this side, that side. The Anantadeva Who is supposed to carry this whole world on His head, visitha tulayam [?] and bhogīndram āghūrṇayan. His head is reeling. Who's the support of this whole material creation, His head is reeling. So from where this vibration is coming? So sweet, so capturing. And in this way so many others Rūpa Goswāmī says when the sweet sound of the flute of Kṛṣṇa came.

Sweetness, makes a type of madness in us, makes mad. So sweet we cannot adjust, we cannot capture it, utilise it for our purpose. Surpassing all our feeling of taste, the feeling of measurement, of good and bad, of pain and pleasure, all paralysed, surpassing everything. So sweetness making mad, forgetting everything I'm nowhere in the ocean of joy.

How much sweetness, or ecstasy, or pleasure, satisfaction, how much we can take? How much capacity we've got to taste sweetness? Ha, ha. Our capacity is very limited. Ha, ha. That may be covered by a tinge and superfluous things may drown me in that ocean of sweetness.

Here I stop today. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura-Nityānanda. Dayal-Nitāi. Dayal-Nitāi. Dayal-Nitāi.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...to Nityānanda that is nothing. Eh? While enjoying such quality ecstasy, the Jagāi, Mādhāi is throwing something on forehead, blood oozing. "That does not matter." They're Kings, They're Masters of ecstasy, satisfaction, pleasure, joy. What this blood shedding can do, the pain of blood shedding? Nothing.

"What of that? You take this sort of pleasure, this sort of joy I'm distributing to you. It does not matter that you have shed blood in My body, does not matter. You take this. Jagāi, you take this. You cannot affect Me, blood shedding cannot affect Me. I'm in such a position, it cannot make Me abnormal."

But at the same time Mahāprabhu could not tolerate. "Eh? Who has shed blood from the body of Nityānanda? I shall finish him."

"No, no, My Lord. This is the līlā We have come to play, the drama. Not befitting Your image in this position, such disposition. Please control Yourself, and come out with more magnanimity."

Appeal of Nityānanda to Mahāprabhu.

From our side the sinner who wants to hurt the Guru, Vaiṣṇava, the agents that are coming to help us and we're so ingratitude we want to beat them, to give them good beating. Such is our attitude. So Nityānanda Prabhu's Grace and recommendation for the sinners it is inestimable. Nityānanda Prabhu.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...Why his doubt about that? Any alternative misconception? Why he's asking that question so late? Eh? Why so late?

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: I asked you before Mahārāja.

Badrinārāyaṇa: He said he had asked before. Before also he asked. And...

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: Well I...

Badrinārāyaṇa: "And never got any answer."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That substance that feels, the feeler. Sat-cit-ānandam. Three kinds of things. Existence. And conscience of the existence, of his own existence. And the fulfilment. The thing of the search of the feeler, of the consciousness. Existence, the feeler of the existence, and the object of search of the feeler, thinker. Existence with matter. And cit means feeling of the existence, who can conceive of its existence. And who can conceive and he's searching something, what he wants to feel. What he's compelled to feel and what he wants to feel, that is higher. And what he's feeling at present that is lower. Feeler in the middle, cit in the middle. In the lower level, matter. Now the subject is feeling the matter, but that cannot satisfy him. What can satisfy that feeling that is ānandam. That is harmony, beauty, that is above. Three kinds of existence, sat-cit-ānandam.

Satyam, śivam, sundaram. Śiva generally represented by consciousness. And śakti, potency, by matter. And consciousness of the potency is śiva, the feeler, the person. And which can fulfil the search of the person that is ānandam, sundaram, beauty, harmony, love. Three kinds of existence. Satyam, śivam, sundaram. Sat-cit-ānandam. Ānandam, that is full in itself. Feeling, next, lower, feeling, that is half. And the lower, mere existence. Mere existence, and the feeler, both existence and something more - conception, but not fulfilment. In ānandam both existence, consciousness, as well as fulfilment. Three things there, pūrṇam, perfect. So beauty, love, ecstasy, that is perfect existence. And half is only feeling. And with neither feeling nor fulfilment, mere existence, that is the lowest, that is matter. Ānandam is the king. And the feeler, the conception, is the servant, serving group. And the matter is the object of service.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Aurshud [?] Mahārāja. Mahārāja. He says if the spirit is subjective, then what is the difference between the mind and the spirit?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Mind, cidābhāsa, mind is the conception about the matter. And conception on its own, conception of the matter, lower things, and conception of the higher thing. It's in the middle. When conceiving about the objective world, lower things, that is mind. Aspiration after - "I shall take this, I shall, I won't take this," this sort of aspiration about the lower things, that is mind. Saṅkalpa, vikalpa, rāga-dveṣa, sympathy and apathy for material things, that is mind. And the judgement faculty about this sort of decision, that is intelligence, buddhi, reason. Sankalpa, vikalpa, catmakam mana, vyavasāy-ātmikā-buddhi. This cannot be that, it must be this. This sort of reasoning is buddhi.

Gloomy atmosphere is it?

Badrinārāyaṇa: Yes. Something. Maybe it will clear up as the day goes on.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: The British Portuguese Africa, in French Africa, that Darlan he was murdered treacherously by the British hooligan in the last great war. When France was captured by Hitler it was a very awkward position at that time. British and French side by side at every place they were fighting against German party. But when France was conquered, that Petain perhaps he was the commander in chief, he ordered that all the French forces must come to German side. But they were living together at every port, very difficult. So fight began somewhere. Some French forces joined the British, and some began to fight between them, came away towards German. A very peculiar, awkward position. And Darlan, the next man to the Petain, he went to South Africa to take the possession, and he said much about, in favour of Hitler.

"Hitler could destroy the whole of France but he did not do that, he's a very generous man."

He began to praise very highly about Hitler...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...I want something more, what is not found here. The lower experience. I, as a master, want experience of this world as a subject, to lord it over. That's finished, I don't want to lord it over anything in this world. This is so base in nature that to be master of these things that is also to spoil ones life, to waste ones time, to waste time.

A spiritual student has such qualification, disgusted with the world of three dimensions, such sense experience, no charm. "I like to prepare for some more noble substance, association of the higher substance. Whether I get or I may not get, but my charm for this all finished for all, don't want this, lord-ship I don't want. Lord-ship means connection with lower things. I want higher association, more civilised. Ha, ha, not so-called civilisation. Higher civilisation, to exploitation is non-civilised, it is mean attempt, of the lower aspect of the self, ego. Higher association, nobler association, and so I'm prepared to sacrifice anything and everything for that. If necessary the whole life may be dedicated for such enquiry, for such attempt. Not to be master, but enquiry for the whole, life's whole existence. Go on enquiring, further, further, further."

In connection with the infinite, that sort of nature is necessary. Infinite cannot be finished within a minute or hour. Ha, ha. So more invention, more engagement. Wonderful experiments with the wonders. But not wonders of sense satisfaction, that is gone, that is finished, on the whole, the exploiting nature finished. If exploiting nature's maintained it cannot but be in connection with lower things.

So dedicating, internal dedicating noble nature to be brought out from inside, inner nature. That is in our soul, within the soul, within the spiritual aspect of us, to connect with higher spiritual _____ [?] Categorical difference, revolution in life, just opposite direction, service. Service and enjoyment, both opposite. Mahāprabhu announced,

["It is the living entity's constitutional position to be an eternal servant of Kṛṣṇa because he is the marginal energy of Kṛṣṇa and a manifestation simultaneously one with and different from the Lord, like a molecular particle of sunshine or fire. Kṛṣṇa has three varieties of energy."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 20.108]

"Really, a soul is eternally in subservient connection with the Absolute." That is His diagnosis. Give and have. As much as you can give, with as much intensity, you may expect to have so. Give wholesale eternal and get eternal connection of the environment. Heart's transaction, give your heart, have the heart from the outside, transaction of heart. Heart is our real self, the taste, not brain. Brain is subservient to find out the means to satisfy the heart. Brain has got no satisfaction of its own, not a person. Heart represents the person more really.

Madan-manohar: Śrīdhara Mahārāja. Madan-manohar. I want to ask you a question. How to begin, how to start breaking the seal of the heart?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: First unconsciously getting sukṛti, and when that sukṛti comes to the tangible consciousness it becomes śraddhā, faith. And with the help of the faith, the association of the saints and scriptures that helps us. Saints have got that force, those persons that have got that force, they're called saints, devotees. And their association, that force comes from the heart of the devotee to help the heart of the sleeping man. Just as one wakeful man can rouse another, rouse a sleeping man. A man is sleeping, who can rouse him, a man who is awake. So who has got his heart awakened, he can help another heart to get out of slumber. He can remove the seal of the heart, ego, and heart is opened. When the necessity is felt, one should go to such a person. "Please break the seal of my heart." Sādhu, śāstra. The books concerning those instructions - especially the living person, the professor, the teacher, the expert, departmental expert - and the books concerning those facts that can help us. Mainly the expert whose heart is already opened, he can help others to open their heart, break the seal. Developing Kṛṣṇa consciousness that is within, within the box, within the seal. Do you follow?

Madan-manohar: Almost. I'm trying.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah, trying. Sādhu, śāstra, active and passive help from two sides. Śāstra, revealed scripture, something passive. And active, the saints, heart opened saints, they're agents of the Supreme Truth, who are wandering within the heart affairs. Guided by the inner heart they move and live. Their business is such to help others to open their heart. They're engaged in heart transaction. Heart within, not outside, this imitating heart of this world, a real heart. In connection with that work in connection with the centre, not any provincial interest. Then we can come in connection with the wave of the centre.

Līlā. Everything For Itself. Everything For Himself. We can see and we can be a member to that movement. Everything For Kṛṣṇa. Everything for the centre, to fulfil the purpose of the centre, to satisfy Him. And our business also cent percent like that. And we can see there are groups in that department. That is a detailed affair. As here also in this land of exploitation so many perplexing things appear, there also like that. Śanta, dāsya, sākhya, vātsalya, mādhurya, the five camps, general. And then again subdivision in the particular department, so many.

When we awake there, we have to sleep here. When we're awake here, we're sleeping there. That plane. Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Ultimately everything is good, absolute good. By our separate search we have detached ourselves from our higher position, absolute position. And that is due to our vulnerable position, taṭasthā, marginal. We come from marginal position, so these difficulties with us.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Ultimately we're connected with eternal satisfaction. Really we're searching for that. But misguided, something we try to acquire for satisfaction, but that is finished, ended. Many troubles there, so leave that. In this way, searching, searching after happiness, everyone searching after happiness. But due to their false attempt they're being disappointed. But when comes in connection with a real agent of happiness then he can help him really and to go to the world of eternal satisfaction. Satisfaction, happiness, joy, ecstasy we want.

andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās, te 'pīśa-tantryām uru-dāmni baddhāḥ]

[Prahlāda Mahārāja says: "Persons who are strongly entrapped by the consciousness of enjoying material life, and who have therefore accepted as their leader or guru a similar blind man attached to external sense objects, cannot understand that the goal of life is to return home, back to Godhead, and engage in the service of Lord Viṣṇu. As blind men guided by another blind man miss the right path and fall into a ditch, materially attached men led by another materially attached man are bound by the ropes of fruitive labour, which are made of very strong cords, and they continue again and again in materialistic life, suffering the threefold miseries."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.31]

They can't understand that their real aim is to search Viṣṇu, that all-pervading spirit. They can't follow, but searching the same thing, that satisfaction of the higher degree. But can't understand that the all- pervading, all-permeating principle underlying, that is the real object of our search. Can't follow, so the trouble. Na te viduḥ svārtha-gatiṁ hi viṣṇuṁ, durāśayā ye bahir-artha-māninaḥ. They're caught by the external glamour. And going somewhere and frustrated, again going somewhere again frustrated.

Neither by enjoyment, nor by retirement, the complete retirement in mukti, salvation, liberation. But that is not liberation proper. Real liberation means to have desirable engagement. Self-determination is real liberation, not to be dissolved to zero.

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: Guru Mahārāja. Hegel says that self-determination means infinity, true infinity.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ah. Self-determination. Self-determination, that is the real position of the self, in connection with the infinite, connection with the whole.

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: But Hegel, he says that self-determination means infinity. Only infinite things can be self-determined.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Self-determination, that is in relation with the infinity, with the absolute, our function in the absolute conception. Self-determination. The duty of the part in the whole, in relation to the - according to the guidance of the infinite interest. Not partial interest, but interest of the whole, carried out by the parts. That is harmony, adjustment.

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: But only Kṛṣṇa can be self-determined, no?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Only Kṛṣṇa. Yes. All-attracting, Who is all-attracting, and giving existence and position to everything by His attraction. By attraction He's giving the cause of the cosmos. By attraction the proper adjustment is maintained by the attraction, central attraction. And the reaction coming, Kṛṣ - ṇa, and as attracting, and then reacting giving them their food, their diet, that is satisfaction. Not mere physical attraction but supplying the food of the soul. This ṇa means nivṛti, supplying satisfaction. Attracting and giving, reaction, action, reaction. Reaction, that is feeding them, feeding with satisfaction of highest quality. Absolute good, absolute type, food of absolute type, that is satisfaction, wholesale satisfaction.

Sarvātma-snapanaṁ [From Śikṣāṣṭakam, 1] The whole system is being purified with satisfaction. Here satisfaction means make impure, responsible of reaction. But there it is service, satisfaction means purification. Sarvātma-snapanaṁ. Just as a man when dirty he takes bath and then thinks that 'I'm pure by taking bath.' Snapan, taking bath. Here Kṛṣṇa consciousness gives satisfaction and purification. That enjoyment, that satisfaction does not have any dirt of reaction. There's more love, more intensity to serve, that is purificatory. Kṛṣ - ṇa. Kṛṣ - attracting towards Him, in carrying current. And what is coming from that, the wave outside, that is feeding them, supplying diet. And that is satisfaction, that is more serving attitude. Service means purity, enjoyment means dirt.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...to find ones own existence in distribution, not in collection. Ha, ha. Distribution is our capital, the tendency of distributing is our capital. We're to think like that. Everyone is distribution for others, Vaiṣṇava sevā. Kṛṣṇa sevā, kāṛṣṇa sevā. You are distributing, he is distributing, he is distributing, helping. And we're absorbing, absorbing here. Everyone is exploiting another, exploiting the environment. How to distribute ones own self to the environment, everyone is engaged there in that soil. That is very noble life, all eager to distribute himself for the environment, sacrifice for the environment. Just the opposite.

And that is in connection with the centre. The centre is so. We can live in that plane, plane of distribution, sacrifice, and there we thrive most. By giving we get. Wholesale giving, and then we get also of that type. Here also we're giving some labour and we're getting some money, and by that we can enjoy. Give and take, but not this type. Wholesale giving, eternal giving, and to become a member of that eternal sacrifice society. And that is the wave, that is the current most fundamental, connecting with the centre of highest absolute love. Prema means to give, love means to sacrifice, the basis. "I love Him, I can sacrifice myself for Him." Love means sacrifice - the heart, sacrifice, nobility there. Not by robbing, robbing is nasty. And offering is pure, noble. So the main flow of the whole infinite is that of giving, sustaining, sustenance. Sustain the whole plane, contribution, everyone is contributing, the main purpose. The purpose is, the wave of satisfaction. Satyam, śivam, sundaram. Ānandam. The beauty distributing Itself, the ānandam distributing Itself. Ānanda, beauty, harmony, similar. Adjustment, samañjasā _____ [?] samañjasā means harmony.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: In Nārāyaṇa in Vaikuṇṭha that is some calculated things. But in Vṛndāvana in Kṛṣṇa that is without limit. Ha, ha. No calculation. The sacrifice has no limit, no law. Reckless sacrifice in Vṛndāvana. Everyone is sacrificing recklessly in Vṛndāvana. And in Vaikuṇṭha, proportionate, with consideration, viddhi, law, regulation is there. But in Vṛndāvana reckless service, self distribution is done recklessly, without considering his own interest. And there is Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa's dealings also like that, reckless, without law. Love is Prodigals Favourite. Prodigal is Kṛṣṇa, and our favourite in Vṛndāvana. _____ [?] distribution, reckless. But that is Absolute Good. Higher recklessness where? In nobility, no limit. And that is not...

85.08.23.B_85.08.24.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...whimsical, reckless, whimsical, without reason. But that is good, absolute good. Absolute good when becoming reckless, whimsical. Autocrat, that is Kṛṣṇa. _____ [?]

Devotee: Dinadayal has a question. He says, he asks you if when the soul is in the conditional state if he has a form? When he's still in the non-differentiated state of consciousness...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: I can't follow.

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: When the soul, jīva, is in the taṭasthā sakti - non-differentiated region, does he have a form, a body?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Form of that type. Air unit has got airy unit, and fire, heat has got that sort of unit, water has got that sort of unit, earth similar. So that is, the marginal potency has got its one peculiar nature of unity, taṭasthā, neither water nor earth, taṭ means. Actually the word taṭ means neither water nor land, mixed. Akṣara, undetectable, not kṣara, akṣara, that is undetectable position they hold. We cannot scrutinise that. But something margin, buffer state, influence of both the joining states, buffer. Something like that, taṭasthā. When that comes out this side or that side, then gets some recognition. Otherwise undetectable, kūṭastha. Kūṭastho 'kṣara ucyate [Bhagavad-gītā, 15.16] Akṣara, kṣara and akṣara, detectable, undetectable. Undetectable is called kūṭastha, which can't be ascertained. But it is ascertained by the supreme vision, not by ordinary.

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: Guru Mahārāja. He wants to know, what is the form of the soul when he's conditioned, in conditioned life? What is the form the soul has when he's in conditioned existence, material existence?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That is according to the dress. A man sometimes to the foolish section is known only by the dress. 'That man with the moustache', he cannot give any other _____ [?] a boy. So that ignorant section, the representation of a thing to the ignorant section is of particular type. That may not be real symptom, but something. From their position, 'a man with the coat, a man with the pajama.' Just as a boy he cannot detect the man whether he's a qualified or non qualified. 'Oh, that bullock man.' In that sort, haphazard way, the superficial nature may be represented as they'll talk like that.

But a man of higher type he'll say, "Oh, that pleader.' Neither referring to his dress nor the colour, he says, "Oh, that pleader gentleman" or "that judge gentleman." According to the person who is giving reference, according to his position they try to know the outside, to read the outside. Reading is different according to the nature of the position of the reader, reading going on.

So in the Absolute sense everything is a slave unit. Every unit is a slave to the Absolute. And to the ignorant, so many conceptions of things, a man, a beast. Sometimes a man, sometimes a beast, sometimes a tree, creeper, bird, the external understanding. Understanding is according to the person who is giving, who is relating about the object, about his vision, his estimation. Estimation is differing. Do you follow?

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: Hmm, yes Guru Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Someone says, "Oh, that fat man." Someone says, "That intelligent man." And some sections say, "The judge." In this way, according to the seer and man of experience they will designate their person, one person. One person, the representation will be different according to the classification of the estimator, reader. When Kṛṣṇa entering the arena of Kaṁsa,

mallānām aśanir nṛṇāṁ naravaraḥ strīṇāṁ smaro mūrttimān
gopānāṁ svajano 'satāṁ kṣitibhujāṁ śāstā svapitro śiśuḥ mṛtyur bhojapater virāḍ aviduṣāṁ tattvaṁ paraṁ yogināṁ
vṛṣṇīnāṁ paradevateti vidito raṅgaṁ gataḥ sāgrajaḥ

["O King, Śrī Kṛṣṇa then appeared as a thunderbolt to the wrestlers, as the supreme male to the men, as Cupid incarnate to the ladies, as a friend to the cow herdsmen; as an emperor to the wicked kings, as a child to His father and mother, as death to Kaṁsa, as the universal form of the world to the ignorant; as the Supreme Truth to the yogīs, as the Supreme Worshipful Lord to the Vṛṣṇis - and along with Baladeva He entered the arena."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.43.17]

Kṛṣṇa coming, entering the arena, and different sections are having view of different type. Involves Him also, the Absolute also. And everywhere that is applicable. According to the group of the seers, the qualification of the seers, the estimation will come in different ways. The seer section will give estimation according to their capacity of reading things.

Relative and Absolute. Relative Worlds. Our Guru Mahārāja wrote one book Relative Worlds. Paratam jagat yai [?] That original and the perverted reflection. Relative position. Absolute position. In calculation so many differences there are.

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Teresa is asking, "Does any souls come down from Goloka, falls down from Goloka, or the Vaikuṇṭha? Any jīva, any soul falls down from Vaikuṇṭha and Goloka?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: They may come as agent to work here in this plane, to preach about the property of Goloka, the wealth of Goloka. To distribute the wealth of Goloka by order of Kṛṣṇa may be sent here as agent, Avatāra. A Vaiṣṇava also may be sent here from Goloka. "Go and preach, distribute love divine, this way." He Himself comes, sometimes His paraphernalia He sends, and that is Avatāra. They come here but They're not affected by the contamination that is produced here in this plane, above that.

Just like the patient in the hospital, and doctors and nurse also comes in the hospital, but they're not patients. In that way. All that are moving in the hospital are not patients. Patients are there mainly but doctors also come to give them relief, nurse also comes, in that way, but they're not patients.

So they're not prey to the ignorance. They have full knowledge and full normal life they come here to help the patients here, to recruit them. But they're not touched by the ignorance or illusion, misconception of the locality. They're in their proper conception. As servant of Kṛṣṇa they come here.

Do you understand? No?

Teresa: But Mahārāja, can they fall down, like in any offence or any mistakes committed, can they fall down?

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Misreading, mistaking, cannot touch them. They're always in normal thinking and making others, curing others from abnormality. Though they're seen here, but all round the real consciousness is protecting them all round. Just as Kṛṣṇa comes, in Bhagavad-gītā, avajānanti māṁ mūḍhā, mānuṣīṁ tanum āśritam paraṁ bhāvam ajānanto, mama bhūta-maheśvaram

["Unable to comprehend My super-excellent divine form of human features, ignorant men blaspheme Me - the Supreme Lord of all beings - by considering Me a mere human being."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.11]

nāhaṁ prakāśaḥ sarvasya, yoga-māyā-samāvṛtaḥ
[mūḍho 'yaṁ nābhijānāti, loko mām ajam avyayam]

["By My own sweet will, remaining concealed by an illusory image, I am not manifest to anyone and everyone. Therefore, none of these foolish persons can ever really know Me as the son of Vasudeva, who am independent of mundane birth and ever-existent in My divine personal Śyāmasundara form of beautiful feature like a blackish rain-cloud."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 7.25]

Sambhavāmy ātma-māyayā.

[ajo 'pi sann avyayātmā, bhūtānām īśvaro 'pi san
prakṛtiṁ svām adhiṣṭhāya, sambhavāmy ātma-māyayā]

["Although My eternal form is transcendental to birth and death, and I am the controller of all beings, I appear within the world in My original form, by My own sweet will, extending My internal potency of yoga-māyā."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 4.6]

"I enter in this world but I'm always protected by My own potency. Wherever I go the misunderstanding, misconception goes away."

He's protected, surrounded by proper understanding and proper nature. And wherever he's going this misunderstanding is going away, māyā. Māyā is going, false reading going away, and he's teaching others. There is a professor who comes and mix with the ignorant child, but the professor, physically mixing with the child, but he's not surrounded by the ignorance of the child. He's full in knowledge. But physically he has come to remove the ignorance of the child. Wherever the professor is going, mixing with the ignorant people, but he's surrounded by full knowledge and removing the ignorance of others, the students. But because he's in the midst of the ignorant child so he has become ignorant - it is not. Follow?

Teresa: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: He's always with knowledge. He's going to remove the ignorance of the child. But because he's seen with the ignorant child so he has become ignorant, that is not the point. He's always full in knowledge. So Kṛṣṇa or His devotee, wherever they go they're with full devotion, and they're removing the non devotional aspect. Just as some disinfecting medicine, this is disinfection itself, and it's disinfecting the atmosphere, but it is not contaminated. Something like that. Do you understand?

Teresa: Yes. But then Jaya, Vijaya, Vaikuṇṭha _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: They were at the gate, they were nearby the gate. So they might have committed something wrong, but it's not the real meaning. That is līlā. To show the dignified position, the magnanimity of the Supreme, Nārāyaṇa, they did, showed like that.

Nārāyaṇa again chastised the ṛṣi. "That why you have put them? You are not supposed to come to this, to find out their faults. What they have said there's some underlying meaning. But you have ignored that and cast your curse on them. It was not suitable for your position. That also was told. But when you have done so, cast any curse, they will go."

That is līlā, it is in the Brahma-vaivarta, a plea to come down here. Rādhārāṇī and Subal, there was quarrel, in Brahma-vaivarta-Purāṇa. It is some sort of plea for this līlā. They quarrelled and cursed against one another. "You will have to have one hundred years separation from Kṛṣṇa." In this way something, and then They came here. This is some external explanation. Līlā means some plea is created to show something here, there. Just as it's told, aher iva gatiḥ premṇaḥ, svabhāva-kuṭilā bhavet ato hetor ahetoś ca, yūnor māna udañcati

["Just as a serpent naturally moves in a crooked way, in a zigzag way, the nature of love is naturally crooked. It is not straight. So the concerned parties quarrel, sometimes with cause and sometimes without cause, and separation comes. Separation is necessary for the transcendental pastimes of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa."]

[Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi]

The very nature of love is such, with cause or without cause, some quarrel comes on misunderstanding and some sort of sentimental difficulty arises in the mind of the loving party. Just as the movement of the snake is naturally crooked, it is naturally not straight, but it is naturally...

Devotee: Zigzag course.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Zigzag - the serpent. So also the course of the lovers is to move in zigzag way. So without cause or with cause, they have some sort of sentiment, and they quarrel with one another, and that is the necessity in the loving life. It enhances the beauty of the life. Hetor ahetoś ca, yūnor māna udañcati. No cause, but some sort of abhimāna _____ [?] some sentimental difficulty arises between them. The very nature of the līlā, pastimes, demands this. It has come without any cause, the difference.

I shall go now.

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: Jaya Oṁ Viṣṇu-Pāda Paramahaṁsa Parivrājakācārya Aṣṭottara-śata Śrī Śrīmad His Divine Grace Bhakti Rakṣaka Śrīdhara Deva Goswāmī Mahārāja kī jaya!

Devotees: Jaya!

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Bhaktisiddhānta Saraswatī Goswāmī Prabhupāda kī jaya!

Devotees: Jaya!

...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...they were wondering about, and they wanted to ask some question, but hesitating.

Then Prabhupāda asked them, "It seems that you like to ask something?"

"Yes. We had some mind to ask some question."

"What is that? You say."

"So long we're here, but we don't find anything, no progress we feel. That is our question."

"Oh. Do you say it truly, that you've not got anything so far? Is it true?"

"Yes. This is true, we feel."

"It is all right, go ahead. But if it would have been that if you say that I've got something, that will be dangerous. "So far we've not got anything." Do you say this, truly, sincerely?"

"Yes. So far we know we're saying truly that we have got nothing so far."

"Then that is all right, go."

"We have got," that is dangerous. "We're searching," that is qualification, searching for. Brahma-jijñāsā. But indirectly of course we get Him, indirectly.

bhidyate hṛdaya-granthiś, chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ
kṣīyante cāsya karmāṇi, mayi dṛṣṭe 'khilātmani

["The knot in the heart is pierced, all misgivings are cut to pieces and the chain of fruitive actions is terminated when I am seen as the Supreme Personality of Godhead."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.20.30]

Everywhere He's seen, we're to trace. We cannot give up from our consciousness His idea in the background. Hunting in the background. Once one has got the trace of Kṛṣṇa consciousness he can't give it up. When Kṛṣṇa consciousness of the Absolute, if once enters any heart, that can't be left. There is a wealth of love, a wealth of heart. Love, affection, is wealth of our heart. The demand of the heart requires some solution. Any news and there is beautiful thing, there's love, affection. Can't forget, must search.

"Where, is it true, where we can have it?" Not solution, that is the solution, not brain solution. But home means heart solution. Home, friend, guardian, then all these more concerning the heart than the brain. Brain ends where heart begins. Jñāna śūnya bhakti. And Mahāprabhu boldly asserted that, jñāna śūnya bhakti. Unreasonable affection, beyond reasoning. Our satisfaction begins beyond reasoning, not within the domain of reason, the boundary of reason, but beyond. It is some mystic mystery.

"I am everywhere, I am nowhere. Everything in Me, nothing in Me." The brain cannot answer. "I am everywhere, I am nowhere. Everything in Me, nothing in Me."

Acintya, unreasonable, intuitive, intuition. He's everywhere, we can't find Him. So many searching after Him, but He's everywhere.

To Prahlāda He was everywhere, and Hiraṇyakaśipu He's nowhere.

And Prahlāda told, "He's everywhere."

"Is He in this pillar?"

"Yes, it is. He's here."

And he broke it down. Then He came furiously.

It is His pleasure, sweet will. To come to our conscious area it is His sweet will. If He does not come He's not existing - it does not mean so. We can't efface the possibility of His existence from our heart.

But He Himself declares,

ahaṁ bhakta-parārdhīno, [hy asvatantra iva dvija
sādhubhir grasta-hṛdayo, bhaktair bhakta-jana-priyaḥ]

[The Lord tells Durvāsā: "I am the slave of My devotees; I have no freedom apart from their will. Because they are completely pure and devoted to Me, My heart is controlled by them, and I reside always in their hearts. I am dependent not only on My devotees, but even on the servants of My devotees. Even the servants of My devotees are dear to Me."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 9.4.63]

"Though I am free, absolutely free, still I'm dependent on My devotees."

Sometimes He shows like that. Mahāprabhu told once about Vāsudeva Datta. Vāsudeva Datta was so affectionate and so generous, benevolent, he prayed to Mahāprabhu, "Please grant this boon to me. All the sinful jīvas suffering, release them, and their burden put on my shoulder, and let me, allow me to go to hell eternally. All the burden of sin, put on my head and allow me to go to eternal hell. But I can't tolerate the suffering of these Godless sinful people."

Mahāprabhu told, "No, no, it is not necessary. You're a devotee, when you have desired like that Kṛṣṇa will release them. He's not bankrupt. He can do anything and everything."

Then one devotee put a question. "Then what will be about this, if wholesale release, then what will be about this world, how it will be reduced to zero?"

The answer came, "If from so many that causal territory there will come again and fill up the whole."

There may be an amnesty. _____ [?] Some occasion, all the prisoners may be released, again it will be filled up by the newcomers. So like that.

Then Mahāprabhu told about him. "That this devotee Vāsudeva Datta, wherever he likes to sell Me, I'm sold there like article. He can sell Me, he can purchase Me, and he can sell Me, he's got so much devotion. Vāsudeva Datta. _____ [?] His devotion is so strong that he can make Me commodity of his trade."

Bhakta-parārdhīno. And He's saying for Ambarīṣa Mahārāja to Durvāsā this śloka.

"Durvāsā, you are a brāhmaṇa, you are a sannyāsī. But for fear of your life you're running hither, thither, in infinite, whole world. But Ambarīṣa he did no wrong. For to observe My own vrata, a drop of water he took into the mouth. Not to dishonour you as honourable guest. You were his honourable guest, and he did not cross your respect. Only to keep up the rules and regulations of the vrata, one drop of water, Dvādaśī. But you could not tolerate. That Ekādaśī, Dvādaśī, it is Mine, concerning Me. But you, yourself did, when you found that the pāraṇa time is passing away, you took yourself, but that was criminal in case of Ambarīṣa. He did nothing wrong. And you went to reduce him to ashes by your curse. But when Sudarśana chased you, you ran after three planes, tribhuva.

And you say, "Why I am showing partiality to Ambarīṣa Mahārāja, and not you?"

He's there, waiting for you. So long he's waiting. "A brāhmaṇa guest, I could not satisfy him." He's standing, waiting in the very same posture. Until he gets you and feeds you he's not taking food. Go and see." Ahaṁ bhakta-parārdhīno, hy asvatantra iva.

"When You can decide anything and everything You'll do it, why You want to send me to Ambarīṣa?"

Nārāyaṇa asked him to go to Ambarīṣa for the final decision. "I can't do. I can't take decision. I'm dependent on My devotees. You go, and he will decide about you. I can decide for everyone but devotees, I respect them, special respect, regard for them. You'll have to go to him and to beg for forgiveness there."

And Durvāsā had to do that.

Ahaṁ bhakta-parārdhīno, hy asvatantra iva. "As if I am dependent. Though I am independent, but still, affection, love, that can make Me dependent to them."

Śrī-kṛṣṇākarṣiṇī. That is the special and wonderful nature of affection, beyond reasoning. The domain of love, reason cannot be applied there. Such a world is existing, beyond reason, beyond justice, a land is there. Mahāprabhu showed us to that. Try to have, find a place in that plane to live. And it is within you, the key is within you. That is home, where everyone is thinking affectionately of us. A friendly circle. There the soul can find rest, confidence.

That God. God of that type. Affectionate God. God the justice as God the affection. God the source of all potency, karmī, the source of all potency. Then the source of all solution, reasoning, justice. Then, the source of all affection and love, heart, hearty transaction, heart satisfying, that type.

Select whom you want. You want to be master of all potency, of energy, the commander of all energy, and all knowledge, and all affection. Someone's karmī, wants to be master of energy, to control everything.

"All I survey." Alexander Selkirk told, "I'm the lord of all I survey."

[The Solitude of Alexander Selkirk, by William Cowper, 1731-1800]

He was banished in a solitary island. Alexander Selkirk or someone. But he was not satisfied there, alone. "I'm the king of all I survey." But that did not satisfy him.

Robinson Crusoe was not satisfied with the raja position of that island.

Association we want, and association of which, not only of servant. 'All servants and I'm the commander.' That can't satisfy. Friendly association is necessary to live vitally. Vital necessity for our living, proper living, friendly association.

So God in His highest conception He's also playing like a child with His friends.

Swāmī Mahārāja has mentioned that in his letter when passing through the Atlantic. "Kṛṣṇa was just going in a boat, in the front of the ship." He found.

And the journey was so peaceful and smooth that the captain told, "Oh, we shall take you always. We did not find the Atlantic - such a furious place - so calm and peaceful Atlantic we did never cross, so far. So you are a special - pilgrim, [passenger] a member of the ship." So Kṛṣṇa was guiding.

And he has mentioned, "I'm ordered by my Gurudeva, who is none but Rādhārāṇī's representation, to preach about Her Lord throughout the world. I have come to do that. Kṛṣṇa, come to my help. Please come to my help. Because it is Rādhārāṇī's order to me, You must help me, assist me in this campaign. After finishing this I shall meet You again in Vṛndāvana and there we shall play. A friendly play then we shall have. I shall climb up on Your shoulder. You will also do. Sometimes we shall embrace. Sometimes fall on the ground. This sort of play we shall do here after again. Now I have got some responsibility to take the Holy Name of the Lord throughout the world. And that order was given to me by my Gurudeva who is none else but Rādhārāṇī Herself. And She's Your most favourite. I have come to obey his order, and You must come to my help my friend, in this time."

And Kṛṣṇa did that. And he took the Name of the Lord the length and breadth of the...

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...preaching in the surrounding country. And then in September of 1930, near about the end of September I got sannyāsa, 30. So 85 September, so 55 years going to be completed this September I got sannyāsa from my Gurudeva. And visited the place of Rāya Rāmānanda, Godāvarī, after returning from a preaching tour from Godāvarī, then I got sannyāsa, by the recommendation of Bon Mahārāja.

Bon Mahārāja told that, "He's more a preacher than canvasser." I was taken, Bon Mahārāja was, and Sar Mahārāja, two sannyāsī, and I was taken with them as canvasser. But Bon Mahārāja came back and told, "He's not a good canvasser but he's a good preacher." Then Prabhupāda gave me sannyāsa.

Bagh Bazaar Maṭh was opened that year, 1930. Perhaps in the beginning of October, or in the end of September. Bagh Bazaar Maṭh new, present Bagh Bazaar Maṭh. Before that Calcutta Maṭh was in a rented house, 1930. Then again I was sent towards Madras side for preaching.

So, Godāvarī, that divine talk between Rāmānanda and Mahāprabhu Śrī Caitanyadeva. That is a record thing in the whole of the theological world. A revolutionary revelation, a revolutionary revelation about the wealth of spiritual world.

"eho bāhya āge kaha āra." "eho bāhya āge kaha āra."
[The Lord replied, "This is external. You had better tell Me of some other means."]
[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.59, 61, 64, etc]

How is development going on. Began from varṇāśrama, (kadam glaya?), the gradual development coming in connection with God, the gradual development, step by step, how we can go up nearer to Him.

"This is superficial, this is superficial, this is also superficial; go deeper, go deeper."

In this way the progress has been traced there, in the theological development.

"Yes, here it begins. Go further. Yes, it is also good. Go further, go further. Yes, this is satisfactory position. Still further. Yes, I admit this is the highest. If anything else beyond this, above this? Please come out with that." He told.

In this way, by gradation it has been given out to us. It is very helpful to understand what is theism.

Though Mahāprabhu Himself was everything, but still He showed what sort of practice we shall have in the spiritual life. He first took initiation from Īśvara Purī. Then for preaching purpose He took sannyāsa from Keśava Bhāratī. And also, to enter into rāga-mārga He showed that Rāmānanda Rāya, as if He was taking that sort of knowledge from him.

Rāmānanda Rāya was speaking in a such style. He's asking and Rāmānanda answering. What is what? What is what? And Mahāprabhu like a student only putting questions. And as like a teacher Rāmānanda answering. But the question put in such a character that one can understand He knows everything. But still, He wants to hear it from the lips of Rāmānanda, as if He has accepted him as guru in the rāga-mārga. Third guru of Mahāprabhu, Rāmānanda Rāya. He used to hold him with some respect, Rāmānanda Rāya.

"I have got all this things from Rāmānanda. I do not know what to talk about Kṛṣṇa, only Rāmānanda knows." He's saying to Pradyumna Miśra.

Pradyumna Miśra approached Mahāprabhu. "I have come to hear about Kṛṣṇa from Your lips."

"I do not know anything about Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa is known to Rāmānanda. You go; if you have any respect for Me, you go. He may not care to say anything. You say there that I'm sending you, and he will talk to you about Kṛṣṇa." He's sending to Rāmānanda. "I do not know." Mahāprabhu told. "Rāmānanda knows."

And when He met Rūpa, Sanātana, He also told, "I have got all these things from Rāmānanda."

These very important things He taught Rūpa and Sanātana.

Southern India is the place of the Ācārya, spiritual teachers. Rāmānuja, Madhvācārya, Viṣṇusvāmī, they come from that part of land, the Ācāryas. The incarnations of the God in this northern India, and the Ācāryas are mostly from the southern India. Śaṅkara also after he came, but that was refuted.

There is a proverb here. Puber neye, paschimer meye [?] The superior, neye, that is the boatman. Boatman, good boatman is available on the eastern side. And the good girls maybe found in the western side. And good language can be found on the northern side. And good brain is found on the southern side. Puber neye, pashimer meye/ uttarer katha, dakshiner matha [?] Southern brain is appreciated in a proverb here. The brain of the southern India, and the language of the northern, and the boatman, that navigation, on the eastern side, and good girl on the western side. A proverb is here.

Tuṅga-vidyā has come here, no?

Devotee: Yes.

Devotee: She's here Mahārāja.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: How is she?

Devotee: She's feeling better now, her fever is down. Fever's gone down and she's feeling a little better.

Devotee: _____ [?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But she must look after her own health, more attentively.

[tape recording speeds up]

Devotee: Guru Mahārāja. Is aṣṭānga-yoga, is that exploitation or renunciation? Aṣṭānga-yoga.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ascending method. Ha, ha, ha. By artificial method the Supreme entity cannot be forced, yoga. He can be had only by His sweet will, He can come. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas.

[nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena
yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām]

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. When the living entity begs the Lord for His mercy, being desirous of His transcendental loving service, then the Supreme Lord reveals His self-manifest form directly before him."] [Kaṭha-Upaniṣad, 1.2.23] & [Muṇḍaka-Upaniṣad, 2.3.2]

Whomever He will select to come near, he will come. However, doing some sort of exercise with the material things and He will be forced to come? He's living thing, not a material thing that can be acquired by material energy.

He can give Himself. So anyhow we must have to approach Him. Everything within Him, but that is not the whole thing. He's there in svarūpa śakti, then the taṭasthā, then the māyā. Any activity within this jurisdiction of illusory energy, or in the jīva world, cannot force Him to come to give salute to them. He's independent. Only we have to tackle His own independence, His independence. He's independent absolute, and His attention must be drawn towards us. We must - how can we do that? Not by exercising any power outside. But we must have some appeal to Him through our prayer. So devotion means that, to appeal to Him to accept me, to give me admission in His own domain. That appeal, that is devotion, prayer.

"I'm helpless, I'm the most wretched. Please forgive me and accept me, and allow me to enter Your domain." This appeal from the heart. And I shall do something outside and by the force of that thing He will be compelled to come to me; this is impossible.

And jñāna-yoga, Mahāprabhu gives an example that one is there and another is giving a proposal.

"You have got some prospect within you. Approach from the southern side." And he approached to get that wealth from the southern side, this method of karma, there was the hornet _____ [?], and they came one by one and bit them. And what... to get about that wealth? That he has pain, got pain from the sting of the hornet and went away. That is karma-kāṇḍa: doing work and to feel the consequence of our action, and like hornet biting, and then got no success to get the wealth proper. It is buried under the room.

Then, someone says, "Approach from the western side, yoga." And there came one demon came and he began to show different mystic powers, and he was attacked and arrested by them, and his time finish and they could not collect the wealth...

[tape speeds up even more, becoming inaudible. 15:40 - 17:55]

...wholesale dedication quality is necessary, indispensable in Kṛṣṇa consciousness only. Not part dedication, but a type of dedication in connection with Kṛṣṇa demand wholesale, nothing less. The Autocrat, the demand from the Autocrat, that is categorically different. Kṛṣṇa is not satisfied with any partial service. He wants to swallow the whole thing, not less. And the demand of an Autocrat, but He's the Absolute Good, and He's the beautiful, He's the harmony, He's the law, all. But His demand is such.

So, self-giving, that is the symptom of śraddhā. Otherwise intellectualism as reading scriptures has no value, reading scriptures. And also the physical association of the sādhu, that also has no value if there's no śraddhā. Physical association, so many, the bugs, ant, mosquito, so many things are in physical association with a sādhu. But physical association, the association through dedication. Dedication, śraddhā is all important. And śraddhā means that if we dedicate to Kṛṣṇa we get everything. We get everything; whatever necessary, the wholesale fulfilment. And the way, the path is that of dedication, śraddhā, sevā, service.

So our Guru Mahārāja laid much stress in the service. We were not allowed so much to read, even Bhāgavatam and other Goswāmīs. "Go and do service." Service, serving nature, will attract your connection with the real thing. And no scriptural knowledge, and neither close connection with a saint, if not through dedication, self-surrender, self-giving; it's not there. So physical association has got no meaning. That must be done through śraddhā, sevā, service. So much so, when a sādhu, Guru, will ask "Read this book," that will be service. And if I read a book to enhance my knowledge, increase my knowledge, that may be jñāna. If I myself take initiative to read śāstra, that may contribute knowledge, but that is not service, as such. Only we can have by sevonmukhe hi jihvādau. This śloka of Rūpa Goswāmī.

[ataḥ śrī-kṛṣṇa-nāmādi na bhaved grāhyam indriyaiḥ
sevonmukhe hi jihvādau svayam eva sphuraty adaḥ]

[Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Pūrva-vibhāga, 2.234]

Otherwise, nāmākṣara [bahiraya batu nāma kabu naya], [From Jagadānanda Paṇḍita's, Prema-vivarta], everything may be imitation. If we do not approach with the spirit of service, then everything will be imitation, may be. But we don't come in contact with reality. Reality, this is the most important point we're to, this is the speciality of Gauḍīya Maṭh ordered by our Gurudeva, and also Mahāprabhu and Rūpa Goswāmī. That is the key, key to Vaikuṇṭha, to deal with the infinite. Surrender, service, dedication. Without knowledge and without energy, much energy, one can attain his fulfilment. Without much energy to move the hill, the mountain, move the mountain, the energy, that is not necessary. And also to read all the religious literatures of the world, put them within the belly, that is also, won't come to any good.

A typical example was shown in Mahābhārata. When the rājasūya-yajña of Mahārāja Yudhiṣṭhira was finished, Kṛṣṇa foretold that, "When the yajña will be finished, that great sacrifice, then the bell will ring automatically." There was some bell, "And when the bell will ring automatically then you will know that the yajña has been completed." Then all finished, but this bell not ringing.

Then Bhīma asked Kṛṣṇa, "You told that the bell will ring automatically, but not ringing, the whole finished."

"No. One thing is still remaining."

"What is that? What kind of thing?"

"The Vaiṣṇava sevā, the service of a Vaiṣṇava."

"What do You say? So many big munis, ṛṣis, Nārada, that Vyāsadeva, and You, Yourself; all satisfied with good feeding, and etc., and You say that Vaiṣṇava sevā has not been yet done."

"Yes."

"Where is that Vaiṣṇava?"

"Go to the outskirts of the town, there you'll find one of the lowest cast. He does not go anywhere. He's satisfied with taking the Name of the Lord, going on in his own way. Does not care for the world, anyhow passing, he's full of devotion."

Then, what to do? They went with the chariot to receive that man, and found an ordinary poor man of the lower class, he's there. And wanted to take him to the rājasūya, with folded palms.

He was perplexed. "Oh, so many big men have come in my cottage. What is the matter?" He was very much panic stricken.

Then when he was represented that, "We have come to you, you must go and take some food there."

Then, what to do? He could not avoid, he had to come, now he began.

Draupadī she thought, she had to cook and cooked in various ways, palatable, things were. "That Vaiṣṇava sevā has not been done. So many ṛṣis, munis, even Lord Kṛṣṇa is fed, but Vaiṣṇava sevā is not done." So with all her might she prepared cooked foods of various type. Man was given and he took but bell not ringing.

"What is the matter?" Bhīma asked. "It is finished but the bell not ringing."

"There must be some sort of offence against Vaiṣṇava sevā, so the bell did not ring."

"What do You say?"

"You have some doubt or something against him, some conception against him?"

Then they asked one another if anyone has thought any evil about him.

Then at last Draupadī she came to admit that, "I had something in my mind, that the man is of a low born. I prepared so many curries with utmost keenness and skill, but the man - all the curries were put together and then ate them. He does not know how to eat because he comes from a very lower caste. I had that thing in my mind."

"Kṛṣṇa told, "So there is some contempt for the Vaiṣṇava, so the bell is not ringing."

Then what to do? "No other way, go to him again and take him."

Then what to do? They had to go and again he was taken. And this time all with great respect waiting when he's taking prasādam, and the bell ringing with the morsel, with every morsel the bell is ringing.

So, this is a type of example found. Niṣkiñcana, they do not want anything. Anything, no name, no fame, nothing of the kind, satisfied with anything, but wholesale dedicated to the Lord. It may be found anywhere without any show of world grandeur. No worldly grandeur is necessary; the richness of the heart. So, no knowledge, no education, no honour of the caste, high born birth, no, and nothing, power, gorgeousness, nothing. So the Kṛṣṇa consciousness is so full, so sufficient, so absolute. A point of that contains everything: all grandeur, all education, everything is there. It is of such nature. So, service, self-dedication, śaraṇāgati, surrender, that is what is necessary. na vidya na ca purusam [?] Neither valour, nor learning.

api cet sudurācāro, bhajate mām ananya-bhāk / sādhur eva sa mantavyaḥ, samyag vyavasito hi saḥ

["If even a person of extremely abominable practices, abandoning all non-devotional pursuits of exploitation and renunciation engages in My exclusive and uninterrupted devotional service, he is venerable as a true saint because he has embraced the revolutionary plane of life."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 9.30]

"You fail to understand, but he's all right. He must be thought a sādhu, the real honest man and nothing else." No obligation, no name, no fame, no attractive things which attract us, nothing necessary, he's self- sufficient. Self-contentment. Contentment does not require anything, it can stand alone. Contentment, fulfilment, sufficient, self-sufficient. Kṛṣṇa consciousness is so self-sufficient does not require anything in paraphernalia to establish itself. It is self-established thing, without hanker anything, no grandeur, nothing, no grandeur.

There was one Vaiṣṇava, Vasudeva by name, in Kūrma-kṣetra, just beyond Purī, in the southern side. He was a leper, but what type of leper. The worms in the leper, so many worms that is falling away from the leper, that will die. So he's collecting and putting them in the wound. If any worm coming out of the wound and falling to the ground, again taking that and putting in the wound. A brāhmaṇa, was a leper, his name was Vasudeva, he was in Kūrma-kṣetra.

Anyhow he found in his internal mind that, "Lord is coming and I shall have a chance to have His darśana."

Mahāprabhu went there and after seeing going away. He heard that the Lord came, one extraordinarily capacity sādhu came, and He left, only a few minutes ago He left. Then he was disappointed and fell to the ground.

"What is that? I could not have a darśana, a glimpse of that Lord. He came and passed away, and I had not the capacity of His connection, His darsana."

Mahāprabhu went almost a mile. Suddenly He felt some attraction backwards, and had to come, run, to run back and find that man on the way and embraced him. And the whole body was turned into a beautiful figure. That leper body vanished and the beautiful figure came of the man, Vasudeva vipra.

The _____ [?] they'll rather feel they're poorest of the poor, they're very humble of the humble, dainya, ātmā dainya.

tṛṇād api sunīcena, taror api sahiṣṇunā / [amāninā mānadena, kīrtanīyaḥ sadā hariḥ]

["One who is humbler than a blade of grass, more forbearing than a tree, who gives due honour to others without desiring it for himself is qualified to always chant the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa."] [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 3]

They'll feel they're lower than a blade of grass, dainya. Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura has written in one place, What is the measurement of a Vaiṣṇava? How we're to measure a Vaiṣṇava? How to understand what is the key to diagnosis? Dainya, humility. In general humility, natural, real humility. Mere showing humility has got no value. Imitation has got no value anywhere. Proper humility only can come when one is in connection, feeling his connection with the Autocrat Lord, Master. Master is Autocrat. Then only he can feel he's humble, he has no position. This is matter of realisation and not a mathematical truth. We can find, his connection with the Autocrat he has no position. And if he takes, not artificially, takes this naturally, then he's the humblest, has no position. A servant of an Autocrat he has no position, no ego, no ego whatsoever.

So, natural humility, that is our wealth. Then that is what sort of wealth? That can capture the Autocrat. The service is of that type. A real servant has got that position with the master. The master is also addicted to the servant, vice versa, he's surrendering, He's also attracted towards that sincere servant. He's not heartless. May be Autocrat but He's not heartless. He has got heart also of that type.

So who is the richest? Who is the lowest? The meanest is the real, meanest is the richest, poorest is the richest. Kṛṣṇa consciousness. Hare Kṛṣṇa. So service is necessary, nothing else. How? How we can, that innate tendency, we can make out and develop. And that will be our full body, our body will be made of that stuff, nothing else. How it is possible? The śraddhā will make us understand. Sincerely hankering. "Yes, this is the highest, we want that." Sincere hankering, śraddhā, faith, lobha, greed for that. Laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ.

[kṛṣṇa-bhakti-rasa-bhāvitā matiḥ, kriyatāṁ yadi kuto 'pi labhyate
tatra laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ, janma-koṭi-sukṛtair na labhyate]

["Pure devotional service to Kṛṣṇa cannot be obtained by performing pious activities even for millions of births. It can be purchased only by paying one price: intense eagerness. Wherever it is available, one must purchase it immediately."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.70]

You want and you'll have. Plain transaction, natural transaction. But you do not want it, you do not want it. We're culprits there, we do not want from the core of our heart. Only one thing, sincere wanting is the qualification, nothing else. Laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ. We're thinking, we're sham devotee, a devotee in dress. But the real inner hankering, if is there, then it will be wholesale, otherwise. Only want and you will have. Laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ. But there must not be any adulteration in that wanting. That wanting must be sincere, laulyam. And want you have a simple thing, simple thing, and most natural and most gentleman like. You want, you will have. No complaint can come against you from any quarter. You do not want, you don't have. Laulyam api mūlyam ekalaṁ. Only price, to want it really. Don't misuse it, understand the value of it, and want it, and you'll have it. So śraddhā, regard, real regard to have. "This is the thing and this is the highest thing, and that can only satisfy my inner thirst, quench my thirst." We're told, the inner most thirst can be quenched only by that. By giving your small self, you can get the whole infinite. Yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas.

[nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo, na medhayā na bahunā śrutena
yam evaiṣa vṛnute tena labhyas, tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛnute tanūṁ svām]

["One cannot understand the substance of the Paramātmā, the Super-soul residing within everyone's heart, by means of expertise in logic, intelligence or learning. So what is needed of us? Sincere hankering. How to develop that? With the contact of the sādhu and with the help of the scriptures we can try to increase our, that inner feeling, inner demand. The inner demand can only be satisfied by Kṛṣṇa consciousness; the inner most demand of us only. So, the justification of the saying,

sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām ekaṁ [śaraṇaṁ vraja
ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo, mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ]

["Totally abandoning all kinds of religion, surrender exclusively unto Me. I will liberate you from all kinds of sins, so do not despair."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 18.66]

"Give up all conceptions of duties, phases of duty. Whatever call of duty comes on you, give up. I'm everything in you. Sarva-dharmān. All conception of duties give up. And, mām ekaṁ, only Myself, one, single. That is My, and your position, by nature, by constitution. You try to understand and do. Ahaṁ tvāṁ sarva-pāpebhyo. And whatever undesirable sinful reaction, everything will vanish. Mokṣayiṣyāmi mā śucaḥ. No repentance will come to you, all satisfaction. That is the assurance, the greatest assurance ever found, is clearly, so clearly and boldly it is put. The call is so bold and clear. All phases of duty give up at all, and come to Me alone, and won't have to repent for any loss." Clear, and bold, straight, direct, in the conclusion of Bhagavad-gītā where so many phases of duties have been dealt there, almost all covering.

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. And Mahāprabhu, Indeed, if you follow these regulative principles, we will again meet here, or, rather, you will never lose My company."]

[Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 7.128-9]

Mahāprabhu told, "No other duty. If you want to do anything good to the world, only to talk about Kṛṣṇa. Distribute, try to distribute Him. Who can compensate all other alternatives. That central thing, absolute thing, only distribute, you try to distribute to help the people, the environment. No other duty will help. Just as sarva-dharmān parityajya, mām, only that you try to distribute. Whomever you meet you go, go if you want to do good to others, only give that highest thing. Engage yourself and you will be, your conformation in the position will be more and more, and so many more will be benefited. No more holy duty can be there; Hari kīrtana, in this age of Kali, Kṛṣṇa kīrtana, talk about Kṛṣṇa. Distribute Him.

85.08.25.B_85.08.27.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...they're heartless, they're hard hearted. Distribute heart to everyone. The heart of the heart, sweet heart. Sweet heart distribute everywhere. Not sweet heart in the poetic sense, real sweet heart distribute to everyone. Most holy campaign, holy engagement, holiest, what more can be best, better.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Mahāprabhu told, [Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu further advised the brāhmaṇa Kūrma, "If you follow this instruction, your materialistic life at home will not obstruct your spiritual advancement. Indeed, if you follow these regulative principles, we will again meet here, or, rather, you will never lose My company."]

"Take it as I ordered it, My direction, so the ego that you have become a Guru and you are distributing Kṛṣṇa consciousness, that dirt won't touch you. My order. With this idea on your head you go on distributing Kṛṣṇa. Whomever you meet, no other talk, only talk about Kṛṣṇa, talk about the heart of the heart."

Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. So sevonmukhe hi jihvādau svayam eva. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi.

Karmibhyaḥ parito hareḥ priyatayā [Śrī Upadeśāmṛta, 10]

Karma-miśrā, yoga-miśrā, jñāna-miśrā, śuddha-bhakti. Śanta, dāsya, sākhya, vātsalya, mādhurya, svakīya, parakīya, and its intensities in parakīya culminating in Rādhārāṇī's service. The comparison is there already. But one who does not have any knowledge of the department, to him the whole thing like an ocean, immeasurable ocean. But who has got that taste, understand, can hold the criterion, so that they can boldly classify them according to that principle. The principle is there: miśrā-bhakti, śuddha-bhakti. Karma-miśrā, jñāna-miśrā, yoga-miśrā, so many mixed together, adulterated. And then pure bhakti; that is also classified in different ways, according to the, to whom it is dedication, the conception. Nārāyaṇa conception, so many God-Avatāra conception, Rāmacandra conception of Godhead, Dvārakeśa, then Brajendrananda conception. There is according to the conception of the central thing and the relationship with that central thing, the calculation will come. Is it clear, no?

Devotee: Yes.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Sambandha-jñāna, abhidheya, prayojana; in these three points we shall have to judge. To whom? The God conception, the Brahman conception, Paramātmā conception, Bhāgavata conception. There are also so many kinds. Then to Kṛṣṇa, it is Dvārakeśa, Mathureśa, Vrajeśa. Then also in different rasa, the highest type is going in the camp of Rādhārāṇī conception. The service also improving and the service holder is also improving, and the central position is there.

[kaṁsārir api saṁsāra-, vāsanā-baddha-śṛṅkhalām] rādhām ādhāya hṛdaye, tatyāja vraja-sundarīḥ

[" 'Lord Kṛṣṇa, the enemy of Kaṁsa, took Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī within His heart, for He desired to dance with Her. Thus He left the arena of the rāsa dance and the company of all the other beautiful damsels of Vraja."] [Gīta-govinda, 3.1] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.106]

Culminating in this way. So both, the devotion will increase, purify, according the conception to whom the devotion will go; that is also in the series of development. To whom is going, dedicated, and what is the nature of dedication. The hierarchy is there.

Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

asaṅkalpāj jayet kāmaṁ, krodhaṁ kāma-vivarjanāt arthānarthekṣayā lobhaṁ, bhayaṁ tattvāvamarśanāt

["By making plans with determination, one should give up lusty desires for sense gratification. Similarly, by giving up envy one should conquer anger, by discussing the disadvantages of accumulating wealth one should give up greed, and by discussing the truth one should give up fear."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.15.22]

In this way it is said in Bhāgavatam, in Nārada's advice. The general recommendation, how to get out of different desires, kāma. Asaṅkalpāj, we don't allow ourselves to enter into any plan of life. We won't allow ourselves to enter, to contact with any plan of life. Always open to deal with the present, not with future plans. Asaṅkalpāj jayet kāmaṁ.

Krodhaṁ kāma-vivarjanāt. Our anger, if we do not have any kāma, our plan, then the anger may not come. When there is some obstruction in the plan, then we're angry. If no plan of life, always open, serving the present, we're clear, no debt, no obligation, always open. Whatever the present coming I'm doing my duty. So plan is there, the reaction is there, when we're angry, when there's disturbance in my working out of the plan. Krodhaṁ kāma-vivarjanāt.

Arthānarthekṣayā lobhaṁ. And the lobha, our greed should be we can conquer only seeing the reaction of the money. With money, with energy, if we collect energy from outside, with that comes the sin and the mentality of the man from whom we collected the fund, the anartha. The purpose, we collect from so many it is contaminated with their particular mentality, that also comes. So, with this conception we may not have any greed for the, for any energy under my command. Arthe, action, reaction. Arthānarthekṣayā lobhaṁ.

And bhayaṁ tattvāvamarśanāt. And we're apprehending so many things, good, bad, but bhaya, fear, tattvāvamarśanāt, tattva, the culturing, cultivating about the real nature of the world. His will going on in progress. And with separate interest we're throwing, and that is coming back. His will will be done, go on, tattvāvamarśanāt.

Our individual opinion may not be successful here. It will come, whatever comes in clash with the Absolute Will that will have to vanish. With this idea we'll be open in the present, and no future plan, all these things. In this way, and so many given instance. In the end it is given.

[rajas tamaś ca sattvena, sattvaṁ copaśamena ca]
etat sarvaṁ gurau bhaktyā, puruṣo hy añjasā jayet

["One must conquer the modes of passion and ignorance by developing the mode of goodness, and then one must become detached from the mode of goodness by promoting oneself to the platform of śuddha-sattva. All this can be automatically done if one engages in the service of the spiritual master with faith and devotion. In this way one can conquer the influence of the modes of nature."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.15.25]

But there is only one thing by which we can conquer all these anomalies. What is that? Guru bhakti. I'm a servant of my Guru. Whatever he'll say I shall do. Concentrate to this point. All the plans withdrawn and it is put only one point. Whatever will come through him, the representation of the Lord, I shall do that. No necessity of any other thinking, or planning, designing. 'I want this, I shall do that,' nothing necessary, only concentrating in one point. The representation is there, supreme; and whatever wanted by him I shall do that, in one point. We do not see anything.

Just as when Droṇācārya, to test, to examine the scholars, students under him, he put a sham bird on the tree and asked them, asked his disciples to mark by the arrow the eye of that bird. His disciples were addressed, Yudhiṣṭhira and the others.

"Oh, you are to mark the eye of the bird which is on the head of the tree. Prepare yourself."

Yudhiṣṭhira said, "I'm ready."

"What are you seeing?"

"I'm seeing everything. I'm seeing the bird."
"Whole?"
"Yes."
"The tree?"
"Yes."
"You are seeing others?"
"Yes, I'm seeing everyone."
"Give up your bow and arrow."

In this way; then Arjuna was called.
"Arjuna, you prepare yourself. What are you seeing?"
"I'm seeing the bird."
"The whole of the bird?"
"No, only the head."
"The whole of the head?"
"No."
"What?"
"Only the eye of the bird."
"You can't see anything else?"
"No. I can't see anything else, only the eye of the bird."

So, all may be concentrated to one point. I have got the representative of the Supreme, and I'm at his disposal. Whatever He will say I shall do, I'm not servant to anyone else, concentrated. Etat sarvaṁ gurau bhaktyā, puruṣo hy añjasā jayet. So no anger, no lust, nothing, I'm indifferent. If one can do so, strongly keep him in position, then that is the key to a very easy and very quick success.

yasya deve parā bhaktir, yathā deve tathā gurau tasyaite kathitā hy arthāḥ, prakāśante mahātmanaḥ

["The key to success in spiritual life is unflinching devotion to both the spiritual master and Kṛṣṇa. To those great souls who have full faith in both Kṛṣṇa and the spiritual master, the inner meaning of the scriptures is fully revealed."] [Svetāśvatāra-Upaniṣad, 6.23]

And he can understand the real meaning of the śāstra, scripture. Otherwise the real meaning won't come out to his head, he can't follow what is the real purpose of the scripture. So that is the Indian, or the a priori method of the study of the Vedas.

acaryavan puruso veda. ["Only one who has a Guru can know the truth."]
[Chāndogya-Upaniṣad, 6.18.2] & [Gauḍīya-Kaṇṭhahāra, 1.2]

The Upaniṣads, this study, this meaning of the Upaniṣads can be understood only by those who have got their Guru. Under the disposal of a real Guru, he can understand the real meaning of Upaniṣad; not all. Not by intellectualism. By intellect we cannot understand the meaning of Upaniṣad. Only with a serving attitude approaching the Guru it will reveal, yam evaiṣa, He will come to express Himself to me.

That is, He will come. "I'm so and so. You understand Me." He will come. He will give admission. "Know Me, I'm such and such." Then we shall be able to know Him. Not by intellect, not by study, nor by anything else. Or research scholarship, that is all different attitude of thinking the māyāic world. Misconception. From one misconception we're going to another misconception. Research means this. Science research means one misconception to another general misconception, another general misconception, all misconceptions on the whole. The very error, falsehood at the root.

Acintya bhedābheda. At His command; the centre is such that, "Let there be light," there was light. "Let there be water," there was water. And I'm going to research 'this is this, that is that.' But ultimately His sweet will. And neglecting that I'm going on research after research, all false. If His will is withdrawn, everything falsified. But we do not want to go so far at the depth of things. So deep knowledge we do not want. Within surface so many all like myself for transaction. This half knowledge, this infinitesimal, small, limited knowledge is our concern because we're floating in that section. Giving and taking, all false, all black market here. Everyone's money is black and they are making transaction. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. So false notes, false notes are going on in this area, society.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Nitāi Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.
Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.

Acintya bhedābheda, His will, His will. It is adventure, greatest adventure to search for Kṛṣṇa. The search for the root of the whole infinite is the greatest adventure. That wants courage, sufficient; and sufficient preparedness, risk. Going to, for the discovering of the southern pole. The discovering of the highest peak of the Himālaya. Courage and risk, if so much courage necessary, then what sort of courage necessary to find out the absolute cause of the whole. Internal courage, moral courage, or spiritual courage, that is necessary. The courage of soul, the courage of confident faith. What is faith? To understand the noble character of the faith in us. Just as without electricity we cannot have connection with the moon or other planets. Not this eye, not this hand, nothing of the kind. So faith can connect us with the farthest thing. All other methods fail. Only faith, and faith is a substantial thing. Faith, not some mental illusion, part of a mental illusion of the mind. The whole mind is a concocted thing, it's a forgery. Our mind means a source of forgery; it is not to be had there. Faith can cross; faith, śraddhā. Faith is the function of the soul. Soul can approach and see through faith, śraddhā. The highest, noblest thing we can approach with faith, not by our hand. So, apāṇi-pādo javano grahitā, paśyaty acakṣuḥ sa śṛṇoty akarṇaḥ [sa vetti vedyaṁ na ca tasyāsti vettā, tam āhur agryaṁ puruṣaṁ mahāntam]

["The Lord has no hands or legs, yet He walks and touches. The Lord has no eyes or ears, yet He sees and hears."] [Śvetāśvatara-Upaniṣad, 3.19]

Not with the help of these mundane elements, something else we can, with the help of that we can know. Even we cannot see what is within our body; we are to use some apparatus, What is there? What is there?

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari.
Nitāi Gaura Hari bol. Nitāi Gaura Hari bol.
So I close here.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?]

...taking the course, and then many will come, to catch them.

Badrinārāyaṇa: That is his main purpose, for attracting people.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: That sort of propaganda; and then so many will come carried by this idea, and to try to catch them. Just as to put some food for the fishes in the water...

Badrinārāyaṇa: Bait.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...and by the scent of that food the so many fishes will come together, and then to catch them. It may have some such success. A hoax to the public, and they will come all together _____ [?] program, and then to catch them. It may be utilised in that process.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Bhāratī Mahārāja told me in Māyāpur they advertised English, teaching English, and one hundred persons came. Out of the one hundred, ten became devotees and stayed in the temple.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: _____ [?] it may be used as a trap.
Prabhupāda opened Bhaktivedanta Institute, ordinary education. Many came there invited to take the advantage of the ordinary education, and have some higher association, and some recruitment from there. That maybe the utility. _____ [?]

...

...indifference to the world, and the educationist are a black marketeer. Three sections; when such knowledge will dawn in us, these three tendencies, kind of tendencies, to be a good, bad and middle. To be selfish, to be donor of these material things, and then indifference to the material elevation. Three kinds, three classes are found here: sāttva, rāja, tāma. When we shall have indifference to all this jñānam, such knowledge will dawn, will peep in us, when these three sort of relationships with the material environment will be tasteless. Pratinivṛtta-guṇormi-cakram, ātma-prasāda.

[jñānaṁ yad āpratinivṛtta-guṇormi-cakram, ātma-prasāda uta yatra guṇeṣv asaṅgaḥ kaivalya-sammata-pathas tv atha bhakti-yogaḥ, ko nirvṛto hari-kathāsu ratiṁ na kuryāt]

["Transcendental knowledge in relation with the Supreme Lord Hari is knowledge resulting in the complete suspension of the waves and whirlpools of the material modes. Such knowledge is self-satisfying due to its being free from material attachment, and being transcendental it is approved by authorities. Who could fail to be attracted?"] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.3.12]

And some sort of inner satisfaction will evolve from within, ātma-prasāda, we can't account for. Automatic inner satisfaction will come from within and influence all our tendencies; we shall find, causeless satisfaction coming out from the underground, ātma-prasāda. Uta yatra guṇeṣv asaṅgaḥ. And no question of any association with these mundane waves.

Kaivalya-sammata-patha. This is the line to enter, to have admission in the kaivalya, in the eternal existence, plane; the consciousness of eternity. Atha bhakti-yogaḥ. After this, bhakti-yoga begins. This is complete withdrawal from the worldly life; then begins plane of devotion. So ko nirvṛto hari-kathāsu. When this has got some positive position. So there may be different classes of impersonalists, but why they should not partake in such campaign, positive thing. After withdrawal from all possible charms of this material world, then begins devotion. Withdrawal from the negative then begins to take admission in the positive side. So all impersonalists, salvationists, should try to respect this devotional method. This is not one of the worldly campaign. This is nirguṇa, not within guṇa, sāttva, rāja, tāma: good, bad, and the middle class; not a member of this world of mortal conception. So all sort of impersonalists who want to end their lives, why should they not try this positive attempt? Ko nirvṛto hari-kathāsu.

So ūrmi means wave in this ocean. One ūrmi is how many feats? How many years? High, low, high, low; in that way the movements of this illusory world going on, ūrmi. America has become the richest and threatening the world because of this position. One day America will be reduced to jungle; and where there is no trace of civilisation they will come high, will rise. In this way, high, high wave, and then going down. In this way, the movement of the world. Crooked movement of the world. He was just one in the top, and he will be found almost in the lowest position. So it is high and low, high and low; in this way. Guṇormi- cakram. Who is found in the topmost position, next moment he will be found in the lowest position. In this way it is moving.

tasyaiva hetoḥ prayateta kovido, na labhyate yad bhramatām upary adhaḥ
[tal labhyate duḥkhavad anyataḥ sukhaṁ, kālena sarvatra gabhīra-raṁhasā]

["Persons who are actually intelligent and philosophically inclined should endeavour only for that purposeful end which is not obtainable even by wandering from the topmost planet [Brahmaloka] down to the lowest planet [Pātāla]. As far as happiness derived from sense enjoyment is concerned, it can be obtained automatically in course of time, just as in course of time we obtain miseries even though we do not desire them."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.5.18]

In this way, action, reaction. Today's king, he'll be reduced to the lowest servant. Because absorbing, enjoying, controlling, and the reaction will take him to same lowest position. Guṇormi-cakram.

_____ [?] na labhyate yad bhramatām upary adhaḥ, tal labhyate duḥkhavad anyataḥ sukhaṁ, kālena.

To save us from this movement, automatic movement of high and low, high and low, inevitable, action, reaction. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. But those who can connect themselves with the nirguṇa, they can maintain their position. Mixed, may not go so high, may not go so low, if connected with some nirguṇa things, somehow. If well connected then he'll go away from the jurisdiction. But any haphazard connection, that may maintain the middle position, of less action and less reaction. Move in human circle, and the sun moving after going to the demigod, and then again going to the vegetable. Long circle, bigger circle. And some may move within again small circle. That may be possible by connection with that so called religious life. May not go down much, may not go up much. And then when in this way they imbibe real connection with the agent of the Lord, their permanent improvement will begin, permanent improvement, only in connection with God consciousness.

When Parīkṣit Mahārāja in the womb of his mother he was attacked by Aśvatthāmā brahma-śiro, some astra, some such. Then Kṛṣṇa, na tatra kusalam pacit yatra [?] When there is dead-blow from some parties, opposite parties, there we cannot hope to find any goodness. One party killing another, another party killing them. In this way, guṇormi-cakram.

Other day one man gave a blow on his nose. If he's also comes from same party, perhaps, Devanath. And this gentleman he's killed he's also a Devanatha, one of the Devanath party, finished. One of them gave blow, stole the watch, and again gave the blow on the nose.

Ha, ha. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. So very peculiar, mysterious.

When I was delivering lecture in Dacca University, one post graduate student of Muslim section put me a question. "Rāmacandra is an ideal king, why He killed a man, śūdraka, who was engaged in penances, austerities? Only because he was śūdra, so he was beheaded by Rāmacandra. Such a good king of yours, the model king, ideal king, Rāmacandra, and He beheaded one person who was engaged in tapasya, austerities. And he was beheaded only because he was of the śūdra section. What is the justification?"

Śūdra, apparently very innocent, engaged in austere austerity, self-affliction, so he was beheaded.

I told, "What is the meaning of the śūdra you are to understand. Śūdra means who is under lamentation, lamentation. One who has to lament, who is under lamentation."

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: ...and then to go further, enter into the land of the Lord. There is no fear.

Ashokam abhaya amrta adau tama caranam uddayet [?] Ashok, no mourning, abhaya, no fear, and amṛta, the nectarine taste. The feet, the holy feet, the land of the feet of the Supreme, it is such. Anyhow to withdraw in that position. If we like to be true to our own self, we must try our best. And whoever we shall find in this world of epidemic we shall ask them to withdraw.

When the great flood is coming, approaching everyone, we must go, and we shall try to take anyone to a safe position. 'It is going to be inundated. Leave your house, everything, and save your self. Come to some elevated place." Something like that. This is vulnerable and we must try to have our position in some permanent soil where the flood of mortality cannot reach. _____ [?] mortality. This is the need of everyone here. By well meaning, all well meaning men must try to withdraw into the plane of safety, where we can live, and we can have a happy service and live there. It is the general. We must be conscious, so, na mocayed yaḥ samupeta mṛtyum.

[gurur na sa syāt sva jano na sa syāt, pitā na sa syāj jananī na sā syāt daivaṁ na tat syān na patiś ca sa syān, na mocayed yaḥ samupeta mṛtyum]

[Ṛṣabhadeva says: "Even a spiritual master, relative, parent, husband, or demigod who cannot save us from repeated birth and death should be abandoned at once."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 5.5.18]

And whoever does not help us in this direction they're our enemy. Even apparently, may be father, may be son, may be guru, may be husband, may be anyone, but he's but enemy after all, attracting in this vulnerable plane. Who does not help us to get out of this mortal soil he's our enemy, generally, whoever he may be in the calculation of this mortal intelligence. But really friends are those that will take us to the safe soil.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Only our soul can live. Eliminating this body, this is paśu-buddhi, animal consciousness. The mind, the intelligence, there is God consciousness, demigod consciousness, ghost consciousness. The body consciousness, then mind consciousness almost ghost consciousness. And intelligence at most God consciousness. And our good will for other religious conception, that may be Mahā, Jana, Tapa, up to Satyaloka, sat, satya-guṇa. That goodness, to cultivate goodness in the worldly sense, that is satya-guṇa, that won't do. Nirguṇa, beyond the boundary of our consideration of good and bad.

'dvaite bhadrābhadra-jñāna, saba-'manodharma' / ['ei bhāla, ei manda',-ei saba 'bhrama']

["In the material world, conceptions of good and bad are all mental concoctions. Therefore, saying, 'This is good, this is bad,' is a mistake."] [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Antya-līlā, 4.176]

Whenever we're living a separate life from this Lord, then our consideration 'good or bad' all false. Good, bad, all false, saguṇa, satya-guṇa, that is false. Only nirguṇa, when we calculate our interest in that of the Supreme Lord there is reality. We're part of the organic whole, the Absolute. That consideration, that is reality, all else false, all separate consciousness false. Absolute reign here of the Autocrat, and without considering so many recommendations even from the śāstra. That is crossed by the Vṛndāvana members, no society, and never any scripture, all helping to go there. But the relationship with the Absolute is of absolute subordination, absolute subordination to the Absolute. General service of our life should be like that. Vidhi, rāga.

Vaidhi bhakti adhikaras tu ragabhir bhavanavadhi [?] As long as the internal tendency, automatic tendency, does not rise, awake within us, we should try to follow the rules and regulations of the scriptures. But when that natural, irresistible inclination towards the service of the Lord, which is within us, awakening, our consideration for the rules and regulations will be slackened, that much, to that degree. As much as the inner love for the centre will awaken, that in other words, we'll be able to reach that plane of our inner life. When we shall find that our inner tendencies is guiding towards the truth, no regulations from the outside is necessary to give attention. Vaidhi bhakti adhikaras tu ragabhir bhavanavadhi [?]

As long we're, the innate awakening of the affection for the service of the Lord we're not finding, we're to undergo the regulations given to us by the scriptures and the directions of the sādhus. But as soon as that awakens within, like intuition, then no necessity, that will guide me, that will guide me. Inner tendency will guide me towards the centre.

Paravyome deya phele. Dāsa Goswāmī says, "If we do, make much of rules and regulations, then we'll be thrown into the plane of that position, where we're to respect rules and laws." But still we must be very cautious whether the inner tendency is real rāga or not, it may not be any outside tendency bhukti-mukti- spṛhā may misguide us. Very, very cautious about that, that the inner tendency may not have any connection with the worldly tendency. Because the rāga, the real love for the Lord is very rarely found. Koṭiṣv api mahā-mune.

[muktānām api siddhānāṁ nārāyaṇa-parāyaṇa / sudurlabhaḥ praśāntātmā koṭiṣv api mahā-mune]

["O great sage, among many millions who are liberated and perfect in knowledge of liberation, one may be a devotee of Lord Nārāyaṇa, or Kṛṣṇa. Such devotees, who are fully peaceful, are extremely rare."]

[Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 6.14.5] & [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 19.150]

So our conscience should guide us to accept the rules, regulations given by the saints and the scriptures.

sakhyāya te mama namo 'stu namo 'stu nityam / dāsyāya te mama raso 'stu raso 'stu satyam

[Śrīla Raghunātha Dāsa Goswāmī, the greatest exponent of the faith of servitude to Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī, Rādhā-dāsyam, wrote: "I won't allow myself to become fascinated by the proposal of the higher level service as a friend, sākhya. Rather, I shall tend always to do the lower service, dāsya, the service of the servant. I shall not consider myself to be a high-class servitor and I shall always tend to go towards the lower class of service. But He may forcibly take me to a higher service - "No, you are no longer to serve there; now you must serve in this higher category."] [Vilāpa-kusamāñjali, 16]

For our safety this caution has been given to us. "Don't think that you have got real affection for the Lord, it is very rarely found. So don't rely on you so much. You should try to observe the rules, regulations and the directions of the saints and the scriptures. That I'm not so high, I'm of lower stage, that should be the tendency of a devotee."

Bhaktivinoda Ṭhākura has written in Caitanya-śikṣāmṛta, "Kṛṣṇa likes rāga, anurāga, but devotees they should try to observe rules, regulations. I'm not so good, so big, I'm not so high. That will be the undercurrent consciousness. I'm not so high as to be reckoned into the class of the rāgānūga. Rather, I shall try to think myself to be of lower position."

Rādhārāṇī Herself says, "My tendency is to serve Kṛṣṇa. But Kṛṣṇa's tendency is to enjoy Me. I have no other alternative to accept His proposal. But My tendency is always to serve towards His feet. Towards His feet. My tendency to serve His feet, I, My tendency genuine is that side. And He wants us to enjoy some other way. I'm at His disposal."

We should, that is the, very fine points, these are very fine points. We must not believe us that we have got rāga. It is very, very rarely found. Not to be. So always to be kept to the high on our head.

Our Guru Mahārāja's direction, "Pose yourself, not as rāga-mārga, but you are servants of the rāga-mārga Guru. Our Guru, they're in the rāga-mārga, and we're serving them. That will be the safe position of yours."

Otherwise there may be a reaction. It is very sensitive thing. If we think we've got, nothing. If we're very particular to see things, vanish. When He comes to my, or to our position to show, all right, but when we try to catch, finished. That is the position.

So we may say, "This is superstition. That is wild goose chasing. Those Godly persons they're mad people, not normal, abnormal. Because, their wealth, their search, object of search is not under control. Ha, ha. So these persons they're ideologist, or abstract thinking persons."

No, cannot come within your fist. You're after that. That is your master, that is not your servant, won't come at your disposal. You'll be able to find as He's playing with your Guru. So that sort of strategy has been given to us. Try to see that He's playing with His friends. That Guru, far away we can see Him in that way. Don't approach to control Him direct. Then you'll miss everything. If you like you may come, don't like, you may do as you like. And so the whole world, mortal world is filled up with so many souls. Few and far between. Few and far between.

So only sukṛti, indirect taste can lead us to that direction. Tangible, not tangible. Tangible. Super-subjective area. He's the subject, you're His object at His disposal or sweet will, you're to go on accordingly. Not your sweet will be utilised there. But in high stages sometimes we see that He's also under the influence of the affection of the devotees.

ahaṁ bhakta-parārdhīno, hy asvatantra iva [dvija
sādhubhir grasta-hṛdayo, bhaktair bhakta-jana-priyaḥ]

[The Lord tells Durvāsā: "I am the slave of My devotees; I have no freedom apart from their will. Because they are completely pure and devoted to Me, My heart is controlled by them, and I reside always in their hearts. I am dependent not only on My devotees, but even on the servants of My devotees. Even the servants of My devotees are dear to Me."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 9.4.63]

"As if I'm not independent. As if I'm not independent, I have to go on with the devotees in that way: that I'm dependant on them." This also comes from Him, but not as a matter of right, but a matter of grace. Grace, the affection, the love may come down so much. "As if I'm not independent, I'm dependent of them."

Is His sweet will this life. The Autocrat can be controlled only in this way, through affection, not otherwise. Only, not force, no law, but only affection can control the Autocrat. The only way, only means, surrender, affection, love, can control the absolute, nothing else. No knowledge, no energy.

And He's controlled so much, it is shown that Yaśodā is whipping Him. So much control He accepts...

Yaśodā trying to tie on His waist, trying her utmost, only two fingers less, again rope added, again two fingers less. Yaśodā is so illusioned that she can't understand, "Why every time only two fingers less. Two fingers less and one hand long, I imagine, again that two fingers less. What's this?" He's controlling by His... our intelligence is controlled by His energy, Yoga-māyā. We cannot read the real fact, that "two fingers less, again I'm adding one hand rope, one foot more, but again same two fingers." Still we can't follow, what is the cause?

...but mad, but Yoga-māyā. Yoga-māyā, illusion of higher, higher class illusion. Who, that potency which always serves the sweet will of Kṛṣṇa. She controls, she manages the environment in such a way that it satisfies Kṛṣṇa. That is also a misunderstanding. Here misunderstanding another, one type, and there Yoga-māyā that is also another type. We're within the area, but we can't understand, but we're in direct connection. Nanda, Yaśodā, other gopīs, Kṛṣṇa, direct connection, but can't finish. But so sweet, they can't leave it. Aprākṛta, similar to this mundane, but not mundane, similar. That Infinite can come in the closest position with the finite, He has to become like finite, to deal like finite. Infinite, when He comes to be handled by the finite, He will have to pose as finite. Sometimes covers His infinite character, sometimes it comes out. But He has to come down to our position to play with us in different rasa, śanta, dāsya, vātsalya.

So elimination and acceptance, and that is the question of inner heart, the certificate of the inner heart necessary. "Eho bāhya āge kaha āra. Eho bāhya." [Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā, 8.59, 61, 64, etc] All superficial, superficial, so go deeper. Deepest satisfaction of the deepest heart. What is that? Living proposal. Your deepest heart. Deepest part of your heart will find satisfaction with this. And superficial part, they're of same element with them. But home choice, the deepest part of your heart, and that will only have recognition with this thing. Eho bāhya āge kaha āra. Go further, go further, little more ahead, in this way. Inner satisfaction. Knowledge will fail, your reason will fail. But your intuition, your real inner intuition that will help you. That is a part given by the Lord. Something divine within you, that can only understand its own soil. And neither your knowledge gathered from the external world, nor energy, energy is blind, whatever direction that will be used, direct, go that way. Knowledge is the guide. But knowledge experience of this world they do not know this, nothing. Only your deepest part of your heart can satisfy, "Yes, I'm happy, I'm happy with this association, it's wonderful, wonderful atmosphere I'm feeling. So dependant, so affectionate, so helping, so life giving, wonderful! This is the soil I shall live, not in other, in Vṛndāvana."

Uddhava says, "I want to live here as a creeper, as a shrub I want to live here. This is my soil. All eliminated. Whoever likes he may go, accordingly, but I must, I can't leave, this is very, very life existence. I feel very existence here. My real existence is here. Āsā maho caraṇa-renu [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.47.61] And I shall eternally I shall be servitor of this soil. I shall try to give my whole hearted contribution to this soil, to serve this soil. This is the life, real life giving, nectar giving soil. So I shall devote my whole life to enhance the beauty, the charm of this soil. This will sustain, this is nectar. I shall drink nectar and contribute to enhance this nectarine beauty."

And they're dancing, chanting, and playing on mṛdaṅga, and madly possession _____ [?] What's that? And ordinary people they're very satisfied, and those logicians they're puzzled. So what is this?

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. Mad, abnormal thinking. What is normal to this plane of logicians we want to neglect that. No logic. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari bol.

Prakāśānanda, the greatest among the scholars of the Śaṅkara School in Benares. "Why? We see you to be a very sincere, and very innocent person. But why you become mad with thinking and dancing, with chanting the name, what's the matter? We can't understand. We fail to understand. A man of your stature, your characteristic, your simplicity, your sincerity, man of your type, how you can make yourself mad in dancing, and singing, and this and that? We fail to understand. Śrī Chaitanya, I fail to understand."

Mahaprabhu told, "I also asked it to My Guru. What is this? You have giving this mantra and by repeating this I've become mad. I can't contain Myself in normal position."

"Then Guru told, "You are very fortunate. It is written in śāstra, in Bhāgavatam.

evaṁ vrataḥ svapriya-nāma-kīrtyā jātanurāgo druta-citta ucchaiḥ hasatyatho roditi rauti gāyatyunmādan-nṛtyati lokavāhyaḥ

["When a person is actually advanced and takes pleasure in chanting the Holy Name of the Lord, who is very dear to him, he is agitated and loudly chants the Holy Name. He also laughs, cries, becomes agitated and chants just like a madman, not caring for outsiders."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 11.2.40]

"Beyond the intelligence of the ordinary sane person he will show his gesture, posture. Cannot be understandable by the common mass and the intelligence class also." Svapriya-nāma-kīrtyā. "He will sing the Name of the Lord and will dance in ecstasy." Guru told Me, "You are very fortunate. It is written in Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam you see, when that love, divine love enters into ones heart, then his gesture, posture, outward tendency is also." Guru told Me that. "Don't be afraid, You are very fortunate, it is there." He showed Me from the scriptures. Anyhow I'm maintaining that way, out of My control. The feeling, such a divine feeling comes within Me, that I'm out of control. And I dance, I chant, I sing, this or that. The ānandam, the rasam, the ecstasy is of such character. I do not do it. I do not make any plan and do this. But I lose My control, something else does Me to move in such a way that I can't control."

Then it might be something, karma, action. Any sudden, furious action, may create something in our mind as ghost. Just as like suicide. Who committed suicide they generally come to have such experience, or such horrible action. If one has that murder, then some mental impression is created, and that appears in that form now and then.

But when really connects with Kṛṣṇa consciousness, that all-accommodating thing, as much as one can surrender to Kṛṣṇa, Kṛṣṇa comes to accept him or her. And then all the evil spirits have to retire forever. Wherever there is any tinge of Kṛṣṇa consciousness real, not sham, then Kṛṣṇa's protection comes to them. And whenever, the light of the eyes of Kṛṣṇa falls anywhere they will have to retire, no help for them. So, surrender to Kṛṣṇa, and He will come to take protection of you, and all other evil forces must have to retire, no other alternative, so surrender to Kṛṣṇa.

Whenever you see such things, "O Kṛṣṇa! What is this? Please come in Your good disposition. In what way You are dealing? What is past is past, what is gone, bygone is bygone. Now please give me protection under Your care."

Always surrender to Kṛṣṇa and whenever the corresponding protection will come, anyone, however greater, must have to retire. That he will also be benefited, the ghost will also be benefited.

And the ghost will think, "O, I cannot maintain my body, my position here, something disturbing."

So he will fly out of there for his own selfish end, he'll have to retire.

There is a story. Once in Keral [?] there was a king, whose after name was Krimikanta [?]. He was Śivaite, orthodox Śivaite, and anti Vaiṣṇava. Then, once his daughter was caught by ghost. Naturally he referred to the paṇḍit of his tol, a Śaṅkarite sādhu, he was invited to look after the daughter. Went, with the help of the mantram to do away with the ghost. His name was Yādavaprakāśa, that big, good scholar. He was also the professor of Rāmānuja, the great Vaiṣṇava Ācārya.

Then, there is a story, one day when Yādavaprakāśa was taking the class - then there is a verse in the Vedic literature,

[tasya yathā] kupyāsum puṇḍarīkam nāyānam [evam akṣini]

[And he [Yādavaprakāśa], as Śaṅkara explained it.

Kupyāsum punḍarīka nāyānam. "Nārāyaṇa's eye is reddish like the buttock of a monkey."]

Kopi means monkey, asum - the seat of kopi...

85.09.17.B

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Kupyāsum punḍarīkam nāyānam.

[tasya yathā kupyāsum punḍarīkam nāyānam evam akṣini] [Chāndogya-Upaniṣad]

How the eye of the Lord, Lord's eye is like the lotus, and lotus is the colour of the buttock of a monkey. In this way the Yādavaprakāśa was explaining that Vedic mantra. Rāmānuja was a small boy, he was serving on the back of his professor, two or three drops of tears fell on the back of the professor, Yādavaprakāśa. Yādavaprakāśa, he turned his neck and found Rāmānuja weeping, shedding tears.

"Why, you have any pain, sudden pain on you body?"

"No."

"Why then you are worried?"

"By hearing your explanation of the Vedic literature."

"Why? Ācārya Śaṅkara has given this meaning and you don't have any reverence for him? Can you give any other interpretation?"

Rāmānuja told, "If you order I shall try."

"Yes, I give you chance to you, you explain how?"

Then Rāmānuja told: "Kopi, kore, kon means water. Pi, pan, kore, that is drinking. Kupyāsum, kopi, punḍarīka means lotus. Lotus that is seated on the stem by which it drinks the water. That is fresh lotus, which is still having it's seat, not plucked out, but still sitting on the stem. Stem, kopi, means kon, pi... pivote, anena, by which one drinks water, that is kopi, not monkey, here. But the lotus is already seated in the stem and getting food. Such fresh lotus is compared with the eyes of the Supreme Lord."

Then Yādavaprakāśa saw that that boy in future, he will be a great enemy of the Ācārya Śaṅkara. And he tried his best, afterwards a man was prepared even to attempt to over the life of Rāmānuja, but could not do anything.

Now, this time, Yādavaprakāśa is called by the king to cure his daughter attack, supposed to be attacked by the ghost. Yādavaprakāśa went and tried.

Then the ghost within the daughter, the princess, he told by the mouth of the princess, that: "I won't care this scholar. He was only in his previous birth he was a mongoose, and by chance taking the ucchiṣṭham, the remains of the Vaiṣṇava, he has become brāhmaṇa this life. But still not a pure brāhmaṇa, so I do not care for him. But he has got one disciple, Rāmānuja by name, young boy. If he comes and touches by his feet dust on my head then I shall go away, I will be saved and I shall go away.

Then Yādavaprakāśa wanted to concealed the fact, but the king was very anxious. "Oh, who is the boy, your disciple? Please send him, please send him. Let us try, my daughter is at stake."

So what to do? He was compelled to send Rāmānuja, and when Rāmānuja gave the king took the feet dust and put, then the brahma-datri came out, a brāhmaṇa ghost. "I'm now delivered from my past bad activities, I'm going away, going away now, I'm blessed." In this way occasion was finished, the ghost went away.

Next, another incident came. That he was an out and out Śivaite. He gave announcement in his kingdom, that, "Śiva is the highest God, not Nārāyaṇa, or any other." And that was throughout his kingdom, within his kingdom, that announcement was given, "If anyone wants to oppose he must come here and say what is his say."

Then none opposed him. Everyone knew he's a very bad tempered king, so no paṇḍit ventured. Then when all came back, "Yes, all have accepted that Śiva is the highest God."

Then one of his court men told him, "O, these ordinary paṇḍits they have given their sign, but not a bona fide Vaiṣṇava has given any sign."

"But who is a bona fide Vaiṣṇava?"

"Rāmānuja Ācārya. If you get his sign, then of course you may think that the whole of your country has accepted Śiva as the Absolute."

"Then call for Rāmānuja, he must have to give his sign."

Then persons went to fetch Rāmānuja. They could also understand previously that force is coming to capture them there, and if they cannot acknowledge then they may be punished in any way.

Then, Rāmānuja had one pupil, very favourite, and near relative as well as disciple, one Kūreśa Āḷvār. He told Rāmānuja - Rāmānuja was in saffron, in sannyāsī dress, as a sannyāsī - that, "They will come and capture you. What to do? If you leave, all our Vaiṣṇava faith will leave. But he will kill you then everything will go."

Then what to do? They advised him, "Take the white dress and go out. And give your sannyāsī garment to me. I shall go to represent you there."

And though reluctant in the beginning, ultimately Rāmānuja had to accept that proposal. And he changed his dress, gave it to Kūreśa and took his white dress and then passed through the area. They besieged the town, Śrī Raṅgam. Passed through, white dress, came to capture Rāmānuja, he's a sannyāsī, red dress, saffron. So Rāmānuja safely passed away.

And they came and captured Kūreśa and took him to the court. The king in the court asked, "Who is the highest God, Śiva or Viṣṇu?"

Then in a sporting way, the Kūreśa answered that, "Kak seems to be bigger than śiva."

Kak, in the southern section in Keral there is a process of measurement. Four śiva, śiva means when, like one cup, so measuring cup, so four cups which is known as śiva makes one kak, another measurement.

So Rāmānuja told that, "Kak is greater than śiva." He sarcastically told, answered that way. The four śiva makes one kako, the measurement of the crops.

Then the king was very much enraged. "Eh! He has come to cut jokes with me. Oh, this fellow saved my daughter one time, so I won't take his life. But take off eye balls and leave him." That was the order.

So at once the two eyes were taken away from Kūreśa, and he's left in the mango garden outside the town. Then gradually his own men came, friends came and took him there, did not mind.

"And that boy once saved my daughter, so I should don't do anything more."

At that time Rāmānuja about twenty years the whole of Industan he wandered. He went to Kashimir, and there he got old commentaries on Vedānta. He has mentioned in his book, Dravida, Tanka, Bodhayan, the old commentaries on Vedānta he collected from Kashimir and other parts of northern India. He came to Navadwīpa, went to Purī, and then again Krimikanta died.

That is also an incident. Krimikantha came himself to Śrī Raṅgam again with his force, to see whether any conspiracy is going on against Godhead of Śiva there in the Vaiṣṇava camp, the Śrī Raṅgam. Then suddenly at night he was roaming and one gentleman came and with a dagger wounded him on the throat. And then he was seriously wounded and his own people carried him to the capital, and in that wound there was a germ. And he was named as Krimikanta, Krimi means germ, and kanta is throat. And he lived, his name was Krimikanta, then he left the campaign against the Vaiṣṇava. And Rāmānuja went and preached Vaiṣṇavism.

So ghosts cannot stand before Kṛṣṇa consciousness, Viṣṇu consciousness. No separate evil representation.

hṛdy antaḥ stho hy abhadrāṇi, vidhunoti suhṛt satām

["Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the Personality of Godhead, who is the Paramātmā [Supersoul] in everyone's heart and the benefactor of the truthful devotee, cleanses desire for material enjoyment from the heart of the devotee who has developed the urge to hear His messages, which are in themselves virtuous when properly heard and chanted."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.2.17]

Whatever undesirable, abhadrāṇi, whatever ungentle, awkward things are within us, they're all brushed aside by Kṛṣṇa consciousness. As when the sun rises all sorts of darkness have to retire. All misconceptions, different types of misconceptions in the world of misunderstanding, and misleading, and separate interest. When we successfully merge ourselves to the universal interest of the whole organism, that is Kṛṣṇa consciousness of the Absolute. Kṛṣṇa consciousness I merge, I throw myself into Kṛṣṇa consciousness, all separate consciousness have to retire. And they're all so many parts of misconceptions, separate consciousness, the result of separate consciousness, the hitch between this and that, so many. But when I prepare and I throw myself for the universal flow, all selfish agents will have to retire once for all. They can't, no interest they can't find there in the ocean of Kṛṣṇa consciousness, nothing. It is so harmonising, so forceful, so accommodating, and so purifying that nothing can stand against that, Kṛṣṇa consciousness.

Śṛṇvatāṁ sva-kathāḥ kṛṣṇaḥ, puṇya-śravaṇa-kīrtanaḥ, hṛdy antaḥ stho hy abhadrāṇi.

This is all abhadra, ungentle things. They cannot have any stand in our heart. Heart will be captured by Kṛṣṇa Himself gradually. And His men, His agents are wandering here, there, everywhere, and they won't tolerate that what is dedicated to Kṛṣṇa that will be again influenced and captured by the unholy agents of the misunderstood world.

"So, surrender to Kṛṣṇa, take His Name. I'm Yours. None will venture to approach the property of Kṛṣṇa. What is Kṛṣṇa consciousness, what you have heard about Kṛṣṇa, the Absolute, the all-forceful, none can challenge Him, His authority. So, surrender to Kṛṣṇa, and Kṛṣṇa's property none can encroach. It is very self evident thing. And keep yourself, anyone will come and try to capture, forcefully take position. Your, our property, anyone can come and take forceful position. But Kṛṣṇa's property none will venture to capture. So surrender."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Gaura Hari. "Take the Name of the Lord, and, I'm Yours, I do not belong to anyone but You my Lord. Wholesale I belong to You."

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. By our surrendering to Kṛṣṇa all sorts of undesirable things will have to retire, must have to retire. They have to leave their possession to Kṛṣṇa, the Absolute authority. Only we must write something, some document to Kṛṣṇa, "I'm giving it to You my Lord." None will venture whatever forceful possessions are they already, they'll have to retire with all their documents.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. So exclusive Kṛṣṇa consciousness. "I belong to none but You my Lord. Even I do not belong to me, my ego." The ego of separate interest must be dissolved and one will find that, "I'm Kṛṣṇa's, I belong to Kṛṣṇa. My inner self belongs to Kṛṣṇa. Only outer ego, that thinks I'm master of this world, I'm monarch of all I survey."

Hare Kṛṣṇa. Nitāi. Nitāi. Nitāi. Go to Kṛṣṇa, Mahāprabhu. "Please accept me My Lord. What is this, that formerly I have devoted to You and these evil agents are coming and disturbing me? You do not take care of taking position of Your own property. I'm Your property. If anything wrong within my document, please correct it and accept."

So hearty transaction, and none will venture to encroach you. It will be considered as the property of Kṛṣṇa. Ha, ha. What to speak of a ghost, the Śiva, Durgā, powerful gods, they'll have to retire when anything offered to Kṛṣṇa. None can stand to fight against Him. Only our misfortune separated us from Him. Really we belong to Him, but this māyā, illusory conception of our false interest has taken us away from Him.

Svarūpe sabāra haya, golokete sthiti. My future adaptability, possible adaptability is only there, connection, though I'm in the marginal position from the beginning of time.

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. This is Navadwīpa Dhāma. Nityānanda Prabhu is the Lord of this Dhāma. And He voluntarily approaches every householder and says, "Indent Śrī Gaurāṅga within your heart. And what property you'll get you do not imagine, so rich you'll be in your life. Accept Śrī Gaurāṅga. My boys, accept Śrī Gaurāṅga. Install Him in your heart, and you'll be enriched beyond your conception, even in dream." So appeal to Nityānanda Prabhu.

And this place, aparādha-bhañjan-pāṭ, when after sannyāsa Mahāprabhu came here again, all the culprits of previous time fell on His feet, and they're all excused, they're forgiven. This is aparādha-bhañjan, all serious offences were forgiven when He came here in this Kuliyā after sannyāsa. This is such a place, on the Ganges, the Govardhana of Vṛndāvana in concealed form.

Ask, pray to Nityānanda Prabhu, "Please offer me to Śrī Gaurāṅga. And I will get Vṛndāvana automatically, we're told by the experts. So please accept me, give me admission card. None will venture to encroach on me."

...

Tuṅga-vidyā has easily contaminated. Her ghost has come to you, and captured both of you.

Anurādhā: When she had high fever, when I went to Calcutta, and that night she had high fever, hundred and four, at that time he came, she said.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: But illusory play, illusory jugglery, jugglery of the mental face, nasty, a mental disease, a sort of mental disease. Whims, so many whims hunting in our, in subtle or in gross form, so many whims are hunting in our mental area. As much as Kṛṣṇa consciousness will take possession of our heart they will have to retire automatically. No other alternative they will have.

Our Guru Mahārāja told, "Only allow the Kṛṣṇa consciousness to land on your heart, and the Kṛṣṇa consciousness will capture the whole. None can stand against Him in any fight."

Kṛṣṇa consciousness is so generous, so broad, so powerful, so heart touching, that none can stand against Him when He wants to capture. Because the place is home, home comfort, home assurance, home affection assurance I'm getting. So all have to retire. Such is Kṛṣṇa consciousness. All proposals of all different prospect of life will have to retire forever when Kṛṣṇa consciousness enters into that, in any part. It is such, such home, homely. A real Lord of heart, when He comes all foreigners have to go away, no other alternative there. He's such, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. All our inner demands, only He can satisfy. Every part of our heart demand is fully satisfied by Him only. So when He comes to enter, to take possession with the sweet relationship of every atom in our existence, all other possessors have to retire forever. He's such, Kṛṣṇa consciousness. The love is His weapon, sympathy, owness. "I'm your own, so much own that you have never experienced that such one can become our own."

Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol. Gaura Hari bol.

In Dacca town, once a big building was known to the public, haunted by ghosts. So the college students, they took it, and make it their boarding. One day, one night they find, the college students, that their cook was cooking some meat and in a cauldron. One student suddenly came and found that the cook's head is within that cauldron in the fire. Then the college students left at once that boarding and fled away. That house was vacant. Then Gauḍīya Maṭh people went there to open a centre, that vacant, and in a good road. The road is public road, important road of the town, near college, heart of the city, and that room two story building is vacant. They wanted to hire that house.

And people asked, "Don't go there. The college students had to fly away. Evil spirit is haunting there."

"So let us see. No ghost can stand against Hari kīrtana, Kṛṣṇa kīrtana, so we shall try."

But they entered, took possession, and remained there for several years, but no trace of any ghost.

Here in Gayā also another ghost house of the Mohammedans. A big place, a big building, a very fair building, left, haunted by ghosts. That was also taken possession by Gauḍīya Maṭh, but no ghost.

Another in Madhupur also, one ghost haunted house, we went there. In Madhupur, everywhere I went, but at night for some time I was alone there only with a light and taking the name of Kṛṣṇa, but I did not find any trace of any ghost there.

Then another gentleman hanged here in this bamboo grove. And then that new blue house was told that some lived there. Don't, a ghost has entered, that man was hanged nearby. I went there, three days, three nights I stayed there, but no trace of ghost. They say before I came here in that bamboo cluster there was some heinous ghost. But I came here, I never found any trace of ghost. Now they say that no ghost lives here. Why? Hari Nāma, Hare Kṛṣṇa, the Kṛṣṇa consciousness cannot tolerate any evil action from the evil agents. Hare Kṛṣṇa.

So no ghost. It is concoction of our mental case, and that may help us in one way, to take surrender to Kṛṣṇa being afraid by their attack. Possible attack we may be encouraged to take the shelter of Kṛṣṇa more intensively. "Please save my Lord, this scare is coming to me." More closely.

Tumi bina karo nahi he Radha-raman. "O, Lord of Rādhā, Rādhikā. I'm Your property. You utilise, please utilise me in any service however it may, however mean and lower service it may be. Please give me some sort of service in connection of You. Nityānanda Prabhu You have come to rescue the fallen. I'm fallen of the fallen, please come and help me."

Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. Gaura Hari. What ghost? It may be bigger in consideration with our ability, but it is nothing in comparison with the infinite power of Kṛṣṇa, Gaurāṅga, Nityananda; nothing, no position. So tiny soul when we takes shelter into the biggest, then everything will have to go away, vanish. We're small, but our connection may be with the highest. That is the line by which we can avoid all undesirable things.

Our Guru Mahārāja once told in his lecture in Bombay, "The poor girl has nothing, she has got in possession, but if she's married to a prince, with that connection with the prince, so the kingdom can come under her command. Through the relationship with the prince, she can think that 'the whole kingdom is mine,' but she was on the street the other day. But this connection with the prince may make her think that 'the whole kingdom is at my command.' Such high position we may get if we get real connection with Kṛṣṇa. Through Him everything is ours. We do not care for any evil thing.

Hare Kṛṣṇa. So all right, I shall finish here.

...of the brāhmaṇas, to cure his fever, and the Kṛṣṇa's headache by the feet dust of the devotees, that medicine. So Absolute also in His līlā wants the help of the devotees. Cooperative, coexistence, direct-indirect, one. Nvayād itarataś [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.1.1]

ṛte 'rthaṁ yat pratīyeta, na pratīyeta cātmani
tad vidyād ātmano māyāṁ, yathābhāso yathā tamaḥ

["O Brahmā, whatever appears to be of any value, if it is without relation to Me, has no reality. Know it as My illusory energy, that reflection which appears to be in darkness."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 2.9.34]

Purī Mahārāja, do you know this verse?

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: It's one of the catuḥ-ślokas of the Bhāgavatam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Please explain this?

ṛte 'rthaṁ yat pratīyeta, na pratīyeta cātmani
tad vidyād ātmano māyāṁ, yathābhāso yathā tamaḥ

'Rthaṁ ṛte yat pratīyeta. What comes to our conception, and not the real purpose, the real truth, the apparent truth. 'Rthaṁ, not proper reading, proper meaning. Not proper meaning of the existence what comes to us, improper reading, improper meaning. Ārtheṣv abhijñaḥ svarāṭ [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 1.1.1] Ārthe, the purpose, the purpose of the existence of anything and everything. The end of life, the purpose of life, fulfilment. Whatever is without that, does not hit that point; not the purpose of life, that is māyā. Ṛte 'rthaṁ yat pratīyeta. Ārtheṣv abhijñaḥ svarāṭ.

na te viduḥ svārtha-gatiṁ hi viṣṇuṁ, [durāśayā ye bahir-artha-māninaḥ
andhā yathāndhair upanīyamānās, te 'pīśa-tantryām uru-dāmni baddhāḥ]

[Prahlāda Mahārāja says: "Persons who are strongly entrapped by the consciousness of enjoying material life, and who have therefore accepted as their leader or guru a similar blind man attached to external sense objects, cannot understand that the goal of life is to return home, back to Godhead, and engage in the service of Lord Viṣṇu. As blind men guided by another blind man miss the right path and fall into a ditch, materially attached men led by another materially attached man are bound by the ropes of fruitive labour, which are made of very strong cords, and they continue again and again in materialistic life, suffering the threefold miseries."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 7.5.31]

Ārthe means the real meaning of the life, for which we're meant, we're created, the real object, the real engagement. Ārthe. 'Rthaṁ ṛte yat pratīyeta. Without the real purpose of life whatever comes to our mind, to us. Na pratīyeta cātmani. And what, that sort of conception is totally absent when we're in full conception of ātmā, soul, in the spiritual realm, in the pure spiritual realm we can't trace that. Na pratīyeta cātmani, tad vidyād ātmano māyāṁ. And what we can find in the spiritual sphere, that is Yoga-māyā.

[mūḍho 'yaṁ nābhijānāti, loko mām ajam avyayam]

["By My own sweet will, remaining concealed by an illusory image, I am not manifest to anyone and everyone. Therefore, none of these foolish persons can ever really know Me as the son of Vasudeva, who am independent of mundane birth and ever-existent in My divine personal Śyāmasundara form of beautiful feature like a blackish rain-cloud."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 7.25]

There is Yoga-māyā, and here is Mahā-māyā. Ṛte 'rthaṁ yat pratīyeta, na pratīyeta, makes us beside, leads us astray. The real object of life is avoided.

ṛte 'rthaṁ yat pratīyeta, na pratīyeta cātmani
tad vidyād ātmano māyāṁ, yathābhāso yathā tamaḥ

That created that separate ego, separate interest, out-carrying current, and not centre-carrying current. Yoga-māyā, centre-carrying, towards the centre, towards Kṛṣṇa. Centre means central existence, the deeper, deepest existence. Truth of truth. Satyasya satyam. Have you read this śloka?

satya-vrataṁ satya-paraṁ tri-satyaṁ, satyasya yoniṁ nihitaṁ ca satye
satyasya satyam ṛta-satya-netraṁ, satyātmakaṁ tvāṁ śaraṇaṁ prapannāḥ

["The demigods prayed: O Lord, You never deviate from Your vow, which is always perfect because whatever You decide is perfectly correct and cannot be stopped by anyone. Being present in the three phases of cosmic manifestation — creation, maintenance and annihilation — You are the Supreme Truth. Indeed, unless one is completely truthful, one cannot achieve Your favour, which therefore cannot be achieved by hypocrites. You are the active principle, the real truth, in all the ingredients of creation, and therefore You are known as antaryāmī, the inner force. You are equal to everyone, and Your instructions apply for everyone, for all time. You are the beginning of all truth. Therefore, offering our obeisances, we surrender unto You. Kindly give us protection."] [Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, 10.2.26]

Do you know this śloka?

Mādhava Purī Mahārāja: No Mahārāja I don't.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: It is in the Brahmā-stava. When, just before the appearance of Kṛṣṇa, all the gods with Brahmā has come to chant in praise of Kṛṣṇa, stava. There it is mention, satya, satya, satya, different conception of truth from all standpoints.

satya-vrataṁ satya-paraṁ tri-satyaṁ, satyasya yoniṁ nihitaṁ ca satye
satyasya satyam ṛta-satya-netraṁ, satyātmakaṁ tvāṁ śaraṇaṁ prapannāḥ

So many conceptions of truth. Truth approached from different directions. What is truth? A variegated approach to understand what is truth? What is the conception of real truth? It is given there. Satya, satya, satya. And connection of the truth with Kṛṣṇa. Kṛṣṇa's connection with truth as we know it.

In Gayā Prabhupāda in some place explained this śloka, and new light are coming. I'm alone there, and no friend, no paper, I can't note it. But I feel so much uneasiness because I can't note it. I even cannot attend his explanation, puzzled, perplex. But what to do, no paper, no pencil, no other person. If I tried at least to keep it in memory, that would have also been something. But I was so embarrassed...

85.09.24.A_85.09.27.A

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja....how much we can conceive? What is there, what is not there? How it is possible for us to conceive, the least portion?

Newton told, "I'm collecting some pebbles on the shore. The ocean of knowledge is spread before me. I'm simply collecting some pebbles here on the sea shore."

What is there, what is not there? What is what? Acintya. Everywhere there is centre. Everything is everything. Anything may turn into everything. Our vulnerable brain is such, we're proud of our brain. As we're forced to see we can see only that. What He wills I can see only that. Paśya me yogam aiśvaram.

[na tu māṁ śakyase draṣṭum, anenaiva sva-cakṣuṣā
divyaṁ dadāmi te cakṣuḥ, paśya me yogam aiśvaram]

["You will not be able to see Me through your present eyes, and therefore I give you supernatural vision by which to behold My almighty, supreme absolute power."] [Bhagavad-gītā, 11.8]

Viśvarūpa in Gītā. "You see what I say."

And he had to see that. Arjuna was perplexed with the infinite character of the Lord, and he asked last, "Come in a sober figure of my friend as I see You, accustomed to see You, come with that form. Please withdraw Your majestic form. I can't forbear."

So soothing atmosphere in Vṛndāvana, sweet atmosphere in Vṛndāvana, very palatable for us. The Lord comes so far, so down there, and makes everything very sweet. No gorgeousness, no majesty. So for the time being it is pleasing to think that there is so much power, so much majesty, all this. But for daily life they're all repulsive nature. Only Vṛndāvana type of play, that is very suitable for our help. That is aprākṛta, above adhokṣaja. Adhokṣaja, in the higher part of adhokṣaja is aprākṛta. Prakṛta vāt nu tu prakṛta. Just like ordinary - this phenomenal world.

Devotees: [04:08 - 05:03 ?]

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: So limited we are. I have pocket, I can't find it out.

Badrinārāyaṇa: Giving us some ānandam.

Śrīla Śrīdhara Mahārāja: Ha, ha, ha. So jñāna śūnya bhakti, ignorance is bliss. Ignorance is bliss. Ha, ha. And knowledge makes us proud, besides ourselves. Mahāprabhu asked us to be humble and forbearing.

tṛṇād api sunīcena, taror api sahiṣṇunā [amāninā mānadena, kīrtanīyaḥ sadā hariḥ]

["One who is humbler than a blade of grass, more forbearing than a tree, who gives due honour to others without desiring it for himself is qualified to always chant the Holy Name of Kṛṣṇa."] [Śikṣāṣṭakam, 3]
